However, the Siege was Carry'd on, and the Trenches were Open'd on the 17th of August, when the Prince of Wirtemburgh Lieutenant-General, with the Major-General Kirke, Tetteau, and Sir Henry Bellasis, Brigadeer, with Seven Battalions, enter'd the Trenches, and advanc'd near 300 Paces, and made themselves Masters of two Redoubts. The 18th, the Trenches were Reliev'd by Lieutenant-General Douglas, the Lord Sidney, and Count Nassau, Major-Generals, and Brigadeer Stewart, who approach'd another strong Redoubt of the Enemy; while His Majesty, in the thickest of the Fire, rode up to Cromwell's-Fort, and as his Horse was just entering the Gap, He was stay'd by a Gentleman that came up to speak with Him, when, in the very Moment, there came a Cannon-Ball, that grounded upon that very Gap, and cover'd the King with Glorious Dust: His Majesty took little Notice of it, but alighting, went and laid Himself down within the Fort. On the 19th, the Trenches were Reliev'd by Prince Wirtemburgh, who advanc'd farther towards the said Redoubt, which the King Order'd to be Attack'd the next Day, when Lieutenant-General Douglas, the Lord Sidney, Count Nassau, and Brigadeer Stewart, were again on the Guard: And the Signal being given about Two in the Afternoon, the English Attack'd the Fort with admirable Bravery, and, after an obstinate Fight, drove out the Enemy, killing 40 of their Number. About Half-an-hour after, the Irish made a great Sally with near 2000 Horse and Foot, but were vigorously Repuls'd. The 21st, the Trenches were carry'd on, and so well-finish'd, as to hinder any more Sallies. The 22d, the Besiegers batter'd the Enemy's High-Tower, from whence they had fired into the Trenches, and quite Levell'd them, and in the Night threw several Bombs and Carcasses into the Town, as they did, the next Day, Red-hot Bullets, which set several Houses, and a Magazine of Hay, on-fire. All the Batteries being finish'd the 24th, and Thirty Pieces of Cannon mounted on 'em, the Trenches, by the 25th, were advanc'd within thirty Paces of the Ditch, a Breach was made in the Wall near St. John's-Gate, and part of the Palisado's on the Counterscarp beaten down by the 26th: So that on the next Day, the King Commanded the Cover'd-way or Counterscarp, and two Towers or Forts that were on each side of the Breach, and contiguous to the Wall, to be Attack'd, and that the Men shou'd advance no farther, but make a Lodgment there. About Half-an-hour after Three, the Signal was given, and the Granadeers under Monsieur La Barthe leapt over the farthest Angle of the Trenches, and ran towards the Counterscarp, firing their Pieces, and throwing in their Granado's, with so much Bravery, that the Irish threw down their Arms, and ran as fast as they cou'd into the Town: Which the English perceiving, they enter'd the Place, pell-mell with 'em; and had certainly carry'd it, if the Regiments who were to second the Granadeers upon the Counterscarp, had not stopt there, as having no Orders to go farther, for the Irish were all running from the Walls, quite over into the English-Town; but seeing that few of the English had enter'd the Breach, they Rally'd again, Fac'd the Assailants, and ply'd them so warmly, that several of 'em were Kill'd, and many mortally-Wounded. The Irish being flusht with this Success, ventur'd upon the Breach again; while

Attack bravely made;

But unsuccessful.

1690. the Women came up, and exerted all their Fury, in pelting the English with Stones, Broken Bottles, and any Instruments of Mischief that came next to their hands. The Men, for meer shame, were the more Valiant; so that after Three Hours on equal fighting, the English were forc'd to retire to their Trenches, having lost about 600 Men Kill'd upon the spot, and about as many Mortally-Wounded.

The King Raifes the Siege;

And returns to England;

Is Received with many Congratulations.

Meeting of the Parliament.

The King, who stood nigh Cromwell's-Fort all the while, when the Action was over (which lasted from Six to Seven) return'd to his Camp, very much Concern'd at the Disappointment, and thought fit to Raife the Siege: So, on the 30th of August, the Heavy-Baggage and Cannon were sent away; and the next Day, the Army Decampt, and March'd off in very good Order, without any Disturbance from the Enemy, towards Clonmel, under the Command of Count Soames.

Then His Majesty having Constituted the Lord Sidney, and Thomas Coningsby Esq, Lords-Justices of Ireland, He embarqu'd at Duncannon-Fort, with Prince George, and some other Persons of Distinction, on the 5th of September, and arriv'd next Day, towards Evening, in King's-Road, with three Yachts, two Men of War, and some Tenders. His Majesty being come a-shore, lay that Night at King's-Weston; on Sunday went to Bath, and lay the Night following at the Duke of Beaufort's at Badmington: On Monday His Majesty lodg'd with the Duke of Somerset at Marlborough, and the next Night at Windsor; and next Day, about Four in the Afternoon, came to Kensington, where, that Night in Council, He Order'd a Commission to be Prepar'd, for Proroguing the Parliament to the Second Day of October next; and a Proclamation, to give Notice, That His Majesty, on that Day, expected a full Attendance of the Lords and Commons.

The next Day, being Thursday, September the 11th, the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen and Recorder, Attended the King at Kensington, humbly to Congratulate His Majesty, upon the happy Success of His Arms in Ireland, the wonderful Preservation of His Royal-Perfon, and His safe Return into this Kingdom.

In the Afternoon, the Bishop of London, with his City-Clergy, Attended the King and Queen, to pay their Duty and Congratulation to Their Majesties, upon the same happy Occasion.

And soon after, the Lieutenancies of London and Middlesex made the like Congratulations.

And Addresses of the same Nature were brought from several Companies and Corporations.

On Thursday the 2d of October, the Parliament Met at Westminster; and His Majesty made this Speech to both Houses:

My Lords and Gentlemen;

“ Since I last Met you, I have us'd My best Endeavours to Reduce Ireland into such a Condition this Year, as that it might be no longer a Charge to England. And it has pleas'd God to bless my Endeavours with such Success, that I doubt not but I should have been fully possess'd of that Kingdom by this time, had I been Enabled to have gone into the Field as soon as I shou'd have done, and is more especially

The King's Speech.

1690. " especially necessary in Ireland, where the " Rains are so great, and begin so early.

" I think My Self oblig'd to take Notice,
" how well the Army there have behav'd
" themselves on all Occasions, and born great " Hardships with little Pay, and with so " much Patience and Willingness, as could not
" but proceed from an affectionate Duty to
" my Service, and a Zeal for the Protestant-
" Religion.

" I have already made it evident, how much
" I have prefer'd the Satisfaction of my Sub" jects, before the most solid Advantages of " the Crown, by parting with so considerable
" a Branch of its Inheritance: And it is no-
" less apparent, that I have ask'd no Revenue
" for My Self, but what I have readily " subjected to be Charg'd to the Uses of " the War.

" I did, at My Departure, give Order
" for all the Publick-Accounts to be made " ready for Me, against My Return, and I
" have Commanded them to be Laid before
" the House of Commons; by which they will " see, that the real Want of what was neces" sary beyond the Funds Given, and the not-
" getting in due Time That for which Funds
" were Assign'd, have been the Principal-
" Causes why the Army is in so much Arrear
" of their Pay, and the Stores for the Navy
" and Ordnance not Supply'd as they ought " to be.

" Now, as I have neither spar'd My " Person, nor My Pains, to do you all the " Good I could; so I doubt not, but if you " will as cheerfully do your Parts, it is in " your Power to make both Me and your" selves Happy, and the Nation Great. And " on the other hand, it is too plain, by what
" the French have let you see so lately, That " if the present War be not Prosecuted
" with Vigour, no Nation in the World is
" expos'd to greater Danger.

" I hope therefore, there will need no
" more upon that Subject, than to Lay before
" you, Gentlemen of the House of Commons,
" the State of what will be necessary for the " Fleet and Armies; which cannot possibly " admit of being Lessen'd in the ensuing " Year: And to Recommend to your Care,
" the Clearing of My Revenue, so as to Ena" ble Me to Subsist, and to Maintain the " Charge of the Civil-List; the Revenue
" being so Engag'd, that it must be wholly
" apply'd, after the First of November next,
" to Pay off the Debts already Charg'd upon
" it: And therefore, a present Consideration
" must be had of the Arrears of the Army,
" which shall likewise be Laid before you;
" and for all which, I must desire a Sufficient
" and Timely Supply.

" It is further necessary to Inform you,
" That the whole Support of the Confederacy

1690. " Abroad, will absolutely depend upon the " Speed and Vigour of your Proceedings in
" this Session.

" And here I must take Notice, with " great Satisfaction, of the Readiness which
" My Subjects of all Degrees have shewn,
" both in this City, and in their several Coun" ties, by giving their Assistances so cheerfully
" as they did in My Absence, while the French-
" Fleet was upon Our Coasts. And besides
" this so convincing Mark of the Good-Incli" nations of My People, I have found, through " all the Countries where I pass'd, both at
" My Going into Ireland, and in My Return
" from thence, such Demonstrations of their
" Affection, that I have not the least doubt,
" but I shall find the same from their Repre- " sentatives in Parliament.

" I cannot Conclude, without taking No" tice also, how much the Honour of the Na" tion has been expos'd, by the Ill-Conduct
" of My Fleet, in the last Summer's Engage" ment against the French: And I think
" My Self so much Concern'd to see it Vin" dicated, that I cannot rest Satisfy'd, till an " Example has been made of such as shall be " found faulty, upon their Examination and
" Trial; which was not practicable while the " whole Fleet was Abroad, but is now put " into the proper Way of being done as soon
" as may be.

My Lords and Gentlemen;

" I look upon the future Well-being of
" this Kingdom, to depend upon the Result
" of your Counsels and Determinations at this " Time; and the Benefit will be Double, by
" the Speed of your Resolutions: Inasmuch,
" that I hope you will Agree with Me in
" this Conclusion; That whoever goes about
" to obstruct or divert your Applications to
" these Matters, preferably to all others, can nei- " ther be My Friend nor the Kingdom's.

The Parliament taking into Consideration the " weighty Matters Recommended to them, and that
" Lay before them; the Lords, in the first place,
" on the 6th of October, Presented an Address to
" His Majesty, wherein they express'd, " How
" extremely sensible they were, of the great " Benefit and Advantage His late Expedition
" into Ireland had procured to all his Subjects
" in general, and also the Success of His Arms
" in that Kingdom; which was, under GOD,
" owing to His Majesty's Valour and Conduct:
" Wherefore they thought it their Duty, to return
" him their humble and hearty Thanks, for all " those signal Evidences He had given to his " People, which had carry'd him, on so many " Occasions, to Venture a Life that was so Dear
" to them; and to Despise all Hazards, to pro" cure the Settlement of His Kingdoms, the Peace
" and Tranquility of His Subjects, and the Estab- " lishment of their Religion. And as it was impos" sible but so-much Bravery of Mind, such an
" Undaunted Courage, and a Heart so exalted
" above any Apprehensions, in the midst of all " Dangers.

Address of
" the Two
" Houses:

The Lords;

1690.

“Dangers, must gain His Majesty the Admiration and Esteem of all the World, and even of His Enemies themselves, who had felt the Effect of so great Vertues; so they did not doubt, but such Extraordinary Qualities, must Unite the Hearts of all His People in such a Tendernefs, as well as Duty, for His Royal-Person, as was necessary for the Compleating of what He had so Gloriously Begun.

Their Lordships also being very sensible of the Queen's Prudent Administration, during His Majesty's Absence in Ireland, next Day acknowledg'd, “The great Advantage the Nation had receiv'd, by the eminent Resolution, as well as Prudence, She had shewn in the King's Absence, and in such Circumstances of Difficulty, as would have discompos'd a Mind that had not been rais'd above them, as Her Majesty had approv'd Hers to be, by that undeniable Evidence: And they Declared, That Her Majesty having preserv'd the Peace and Quietnefs of the Kingdom, by Her Prudent Administration, against the Dangers threaten'd by a Powerful Enemy; the Remembrance of such Extraordinary Vertue must ever dwell in their Minds, and engage them, in Justice, upon all Occasions, to express their Gratitude, as became Her most Dutiful Subjects.

The Commons, though not quite so forward as the Lords, yet, with no less Sense of Duty and Acknowledgments to Their Majesties, on the 9th of October, represented to the King, “Their Grateful Sense of that Unparallel'd Goodness, and Tender Affection to His People; which, for the Rescuing of the Kingdom of Ireland from a Tyrannous and Foreign Yoke, and Easing His Subjects of that Kingdom, of the excessive Charge of a Lingring War, had induced Him to undertake a Hazardous Voyage, and too freely to expose to all the Dangers of War, that Invaluable Life, upon which the whole Protestant-Interest, and Common-Liberty of Europe, so much depended: That it was, next under God, to His Conduct and Example, that they must ascribe the Success of the Expedition, and to which they must owe their Hopes of the Speedy and Entire Reduction of that Kingdom, and of seeing themselves in a Condition to make His Enemies sensible of the Strength and Power of England, under a King who Knew and Pursued its Interest. They most heartily Congratulated His Majesty's Success, and safe Return to His People, who were Unanimously Perswaded, That their Peace, Security and Happiness, were bound up in His Safety: And they did, in the Name of All the Commons of England, Assure Him, That they would be ever Ready to Assist Him, to the utmost of their Power; and as the best and truest Way of expressing their Gratitude, would endeavour effectually to Support His Government against all His Enemies.

In their Address to the Queen, on the same Day, they express'd, “The deep Sense they had of that Goodness, Wisdom and Courage, which Her Majesty had manifested, in the greatest Difficulties, and most pressing Dangers, during the King's Absence, at a Time when a Potent Enemy was upon our Coast, when the Nation was Weaken'd in that Part which was its proper Strength, and depriv'd of the Security of His Majesty's Presence.” Here they Declared, “The Resolution Her Majesty shew'd in the Administration, gave Life to Her Subjects, and made them exert a Strength and Force unknown to the former Reigns: That Her “Zeal for the Publick, Encourag'd them to shew such Cheerfulness in their Duty, as Disappointed the Hopes and Designs of all the Open and Secret Enemies of the Government: And that the grateful Remembrance of that (which reviv'd the Memory of the most happy Times) would for ever remain in the Hearts of Her People; and could never fail to be express'd in all Instances of Loyalty and Obedience from themselves, and all the Commons of England.

1690.

The same Day these Addresses were Presented (October the 9th) the Commons began to Make-good their Assurances of Loyalty, by Voting, That a Supply be Given to Their Majesties, for the Entire Reducing of Ireland, and Securing the Peace of this Kingdom, and Carrying on a Vigorous War against France. The next Day, they Granted the Sum of One million, seven hundred ninety one thousand, six hundred ninety five Pounds, for the Navy, and Building of New Ships: And on the 4th of the same Month, they Voted the Sum of Two millions, two hundred ninety four thousand, five hundred and sixty Pounds, for the Maintaining an Army of Sixty nine thousand, six hundred thirty six Men; which His Majesty had signify'd to that House, that He thought Necessary for the next Year's Service.

Votes of the Commons.

To Levy these great Sums, the Commons Resolved,

1. “To Charge an Assessment of One hundred thirty seven thousand, six hundred forty one Pounds, by the Month, for One Year, upon all Lands.
2. “That an Additional-Duty be laid upon all Wrought and Raw-Silks, and all Foreign-Linen.
3. “That a Duty of Six-pence per Gallon, be laid upon all Low-Wines of the First-Extraction.
4. “That an Additional-Duty of Ten per Cent. be laid upon all Foreign-Timber and Wood; and the like Duty, above what was already charg'd, upon all Wrought-Silks, Callico, Indian-Linen.
5. “That several Duties be laid upon Foreign-Seeds, Oil, Hops, Pepper, and all Grocery-Ware, (except Sugar and Tobacco.)
6. “That the Excise upon all Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, be Doubled: And,
7. “That an Additional-Duty be laid upon Foreign-Iron, Yarn of Flax or Hemp, and all Manufactures of Glass.

These several Funds falling much short of Answering the Supplies Granted to Their Majesties, it was Resolv'd, October 17th. “That the Sum of One Million be rais'd, upon the Credit, or by the Sale of the Forfeited Estates in Ireland, and that an Address be presented to His Majesty, That He would be pleas'd to Command the Commissioners in Ireland, to make a Return to His Majesty of the Names of the Persons in Rebellion in that Kingdom, and of their Estates and Value thereof, and that the same might be transmitted to the House of Commons”. This Address having been drawn up and Reported to the House, October the 22d. by Sir Thomas Clargis, and the Question being put, That the said Address with Amendments be Agreed unto? It pass'd in the Negative. However, it was Resolved the same Day, That a Bill be brought in for Attainting of the Persons that were or had been in Rebellion in England, or Ireland; and for Confiscating their Estates, and for applying the same to bear the Charge of the War.

Address of the Commons.

1690. War. This Bill was not presented to the House till the 2d of December, and upon a Second Reading, December the 8th, It was Order'd, That a Clause be brought in for reserving a Proportion of the Forfeitures in England and Ireland to His Majesty's sole Disposal, which Clause, when Reported on December the 18th, was disagree'd to by the House. At length the Bill with several Amendments being Ingrossed, and Read the Third Time and Pass'd, was sent to the Upper-House on the 23d of December, where it was laid by, notwithstanding several Messages from the Commons to put their Lordships in Mind of it. The truth is, the Court did underhand oppose the Passing of this Bill, not only because the King design'd to recompense the Services of several Persons with Part of the Forfeitures; but because this Fund could not in due time have yielded the Sum it was given for.

Acts Pass'd.

On Monday the 10th of November, the King went to the House of Lords, and gave his Royal Assent to an Act for granting an Aid to Their Majesties of One Million, Six Hundred Sixty-one Thousand, Seven Hundred and Two Pounds.

And on Tuesday the 18th of November, His Majesty came again to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Sanction to,

1. An Act concerning the Commissioners of the Admiralty.

2. An Act to Prohibit the Covering of Houses and other Buildings with Thatch or Straw, in the Town of Marlborough in the County of Wilts.

3. An Act to Vest divers Messuages and Tenements (the Estate of David Bigg, Esq;) in Trustees, to be Sold; and for laying out the Money to be Raised thereby, in the Purchase of Lands more to his Convenience, to be Settled to the same Uses.

4. An Act to Vest the Manor and Lands late of George Vilet, Esq; in Trustees, to be Sold for Raising Portions for his Daughters.

Violent Attempt on Mary Wharton, Infant.

Captain James Campbel, a Scotch-Gentleman, Brother to the Earl of Argyle, assisted by Archibald Montgomery and Sir John Johnston, did on November the 14th forcibly Seize on Mrs. Mary Wharton, a Rich Heiress of about Thirteen Years of Age, and carried her away from her Relations in Great Queen-Street, and Married her against her Will. Whereupon His Majesty issued out his Royal Proclamation the next Day, for the Apprehending of Captain Campbel and his Abettors. Not long before there had been a Bill brought in to the House of Commons, on October the 26th, to prevent Clandestine Marriages, and People thought the Passing of it wou'd have been expedited upon this Violence committed by Campbel: But upon Consideration that this Bill was attended with many Inconveniencies, and might hinder many Younger Brothers from making their Fortunes, it was drop'd into Silence. However, another Bill was brought into the House of Commons, Dec. 4. For making void the Marriage between Mrs. Wharton and Mr. Campbel; which, notwithstanding the Earl of Argyle's Petition in his Brother's behalf, did quickly go through Both Houses.

Will against Clandestine Marriages

The Commons were very forward in proposing and dispatching the necessary Supplies for the Government: So that on Tuesday, Nov. 25. His Majesty came to the House of Peers, and being attended with the usual Solemnity, gave the Royal Assent to, 1690. Bill pass'd. 1. An Act for the Doubling the Excise upon Beer, Ale and other Liquors, during the space of One Year.

2. An Act to Enable Elizabeth Mountagne, Widow, to let Leases for Years, of Houses and Ground in Stepny, in the County of Middlesex.

And then His Majesty was pleas'd to make this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen;

I Take this Occasion, with great willingness to assure you, that I am extremely sensible, of the Zeal and Cheerfulness of all your Proceedings in this Session of Parliament; and of the Readiness, which you Gentlemen of the House of Commons have shewn, in granting such large Supplies, towards the pressing Occasions of the Army and Navy.

And I do farther assure you, that I shall not be wanting on my Part, to see them carefully apply'd to those Uses for which you intend them.

At the same time, I must observe to you, that the Posture of Affairs abroad, does necessarily require my Presence at the Hague, before the end of this Year; and by Consequence I must desire you to lose no time, in the dispatching and perfecting of such further Supplies, as are still necessary for the Navy and Army: And not for them only, but it is high time also to put you in mind of making some Provision for the Expence of the Civil Government, which has no Funds for its Support, since the Excise, which was design'd for that Service, and also the other Branches of the Revenue, have been apply'd to other Publick Uses; and therefore I earnestly recommend it to your speedy Consideration.

The Day before Nov. 24. the Commons had Resolv'd, "1. That the several Duties laid upon Goods Imported, be granted to Their Majesties for the Term of Five Years, to commence from the 10th of November, and no longer." 2. That the Duties impos'd upon Wines and Vinegars, by an Act made 1 Jac. 2. and upon French-Linen and wrought-Silks and Stuffs, and all East-India Linen, and other Manufactures, &c. impos'd by another Act made in the same Year, should be continu'd until the 24th Day of June, 1696. And 3. That the Duty impos'd upon Tobacco, by an Act made 1 Jac. 2. should be continu'd to the like Term, and no longer." At the same time it was Order'd, "That a Bill or Bills be brought in, For Granting to Their Majesties the several Duties or Impositions upon these several Heads". But all this fell short of the Supplies that had been Voted by the House; and therefore it was Resolv'd, Dec. 19. "That the remainder of a Sum, not exceeding 4086255 Pounds, for the Supplies to be Granted to Their Majesties, be rais'd by doubling the Additional Duties of Excise, upon Beer, Ale and other Liquors, mention'd in an Act of the First Year of Their Majesties

King's Speech.

Resolutions of the Commons.

1690.

“fies Reign, Entitl'd, An Act for an Additional Duty of Excise upon Beer, Ale and other Liquors, to begin from the time the Act for doubling the Duty of Excise upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, during the space of One Year, did expire”. And a Bill was Order'd to be prepar'd, in pursuance of the said Resolution.

On Saturday, Dec. 20. His Majesty came again to the House of Peers: And being seated on the Throne, and the Commons attending, gave the Royal Assent to,

Acts past.

1. An Act for Granting to Their Majesties certain Impositions upon all East-India Goods and Manufactures, and upon all Wrought-Silks, and several other Goods and Merchandizes, to be Imported after the 25th day of December, 1690.

2. An Act for the Continuance of several former Acts therein mention'd, for the laying several Duties upon Wines, Vinegar and Tobacco.

3. An Act for punishing Officers and Soldiers who shall Mutiny and Desert, and for punishing False-Musters.

4. An Act for reviving a former Act, for Regulating the Measures and Prices of Coals.

5. An Act for Paving and Cleansing the Streets in the Cities of London and Westminster, and Suburbs and Liberties thereof, and Out-Parishes in the County of Middlesex and the Borough of Southwark, and other Places within the Weekly-Bills of Mortality, in the County of Surry, and for Regulating the Markets therein mention'd.

And to Sixteen Private Acts.

King's speech.

After which His Majesty acquainting Both Houses, “How sensible he was of their good Affections towards him, and of their sincere Endeavours to promote the true Interest of their Country, in continuing to provide further Supplies towards defraying the Charge of the War, which he would take care to see diligently and strictly apply'd to the Uses for which they gave them.” He further added, “He had lately acquainted them, that the Posture of Affairs abroad, would not admit of deferring his Journey to the Hague, much beyond that time; and that he put them in mind of it now, in hopes that Consideration would prevail with them to use all possible Dispatch of what still remain'd to be done, for the more vigorous Prosecution of the War”: And concluded with telling the Commons, “That if some Annual Provision could be made for augmenting the Navy, and Building some new Men-of-War, it would be a very necessary Care at that time both for the Honour and Safety of the Nation.

Resolution of the Commons for Recruiting the Navy.

The Commons having taken His Majesty's Speech into Consideration, particularly the latter part of it, Unanimously Resolv'd, on Dec. the 24th, First, That a Supply be given to Their Majesties for the building of Ships of War, not exceeding the Sum of 570000 Pounds. And Secondly, That the said Supply, so to be given to Their Majesties, be for the Building of Seventeen Third-Rate Ships, of Sixty Guns apiece, to be added to the Ships in the Estimate already provided to be built. Three days after, it was Resolv'd, That this Supply should be rais'd by Additional Duties upon Beer, Ale and other Liquors; and Order'd, That an Enacting Clause be prepar'd, in pursuance to the said Resolution.” They had pass'd a Bill, for Appointing and Enabling Commissioners for taking the Publick 1690.

Accompts; and had Order'd the several Members to put into Glasses at the Table, the Names of Nine Persons, to be Commissioners in the said Bill: By which Method, on Dec. 26. the Majority fell on Sir Robert Rich, Sir Thomas Clugis, Paul Foley, Esq; Robert Austin, Esq; Sir Matthew Andrews, Sir Benjamin Newland, Sir Samuel Bernardiston, Sir Peter Collaton, and Robert Harley, Esquire.

On Monday, January 5. The King being now impatient to go over to the Congress in Holland, came to the House of Peers, and with the usual Solemnity gave the Royal Assent to,

1. An Act for appointing Commissioners to take and state the Publick Accompts of the Kingdom. Acts past.

2. An Act for the Raising the Militia of this Kingdom, for the Year 1691. altho' the Months pay formerly advanc'd be not re-paid.

3. An Act for Relief of Poor Prisoners for Debt or Damages.

4. An Act for preventing Vexatious Suits, against such as acted for Their Majesties in Defence of the Kingdom.

5. An Act for the Encouraging the Distilling of Brandy and Spirits from Corn, and for laying several Duties on Low-Wines, or Spirits of the first Extraction.

6. An Act for granting to Their Majesties several Additional Duties of Excise upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, for Four Years, from the time that an Act for doubling the Duty of Excise upon Beer, Ale and other Liquors, during the space of One Year, doth expire.

7. An Act for the more effectual putting in Execution, An Act, Entitl'd, An Act for prohibiting all Trade and Commerce with France.

8. An Act to Enable Thomas Earl of Aylesbury, and Elizabeth Countess of Aylesbury, his Wife, to make Provision for payment of Debts, and to make Leases of their Estates.

9. An Act for Incorporating the Proprietors of the Water-works in York-Buildings, and for the Encouraging, Carrying on, and Settling the said Water-works.

10. An Act for Vesting certain Lands (the Estate of Thomas Manwaring, Gent.) in Trustees to be sold for the payment of Debts.

11. An Act to Enable John Rochester, Esq; to sell Lands for payment of Debts.

After which His Majesty was pleas'd to make a most Gracious Speech to Both Houses of Parliament, as follows.

My Lords and Gentlemen:

“HAving lately told you, That it would be necessary for Me to go into Holland much about this time, I am very glad to find, that the Success of your Endeavours to bring this Session to a happy Conclusion has been such, that I am now at Liberty to do it. And I return you My hearty Thanks, for the great Dispatch you have made, in finishing the Supplies you have design'd for carrying on the War; which it shall be my Care to see Duly and Punctually Apply'd to that Service for which you have given them. And I do likewise think it proper to assure you, That I shall not make any Grant of the Forfeited Lands in England
Vol. III. From D d d d to L III and

King's Speech.

1690. " and Ireland, till there be another Opportunity of Settling that Matter in Parliament, in such Manner as shall be thought most Expedient.

My Lords and Gentlemen;

" As I have reason to be very well-satisfied with the Proofs you have given Me of your Good Affections in this Session of Parliament, so I promise My Self the Continuance of the same, at your Return into your several Countries. And as every Day produces still fresh Instances of the Restlessness of our Enemies, both at Home and Abroad, in Designing against the Prosperity of this Nation, and the Government Established; So I cannot doubt, but that the Union and good Correspondence between Me and my Parliament, and my Earnest and Constant Endeavours on the one hand, joined with the Continuance of your Zeal and Affection to Support Me on the other, will, by the Blessing of GOD, be at all times too strong for the utmost Malice and Contrivance of Our Common Enemies.

And then the Lord-Chief-Baron, Speaker of the House of Lords, declar'd to Both Houses, That it was His Majesty's Pleasure, that they should Adjourn themselves until the 31st of March next; and that if His Majesty should think fit that the Parliament should then Sit, He would give them timely notice thereof by his Proclamation.

And accordingly Both Houses of Parliament did Adjourn to the 31st of March next.

Bills left unfinished. Before we leave this Session of Parliament, it ought to be observ'd, that besides the Bill relating to the forfeited Estates in Ireland, there were several others that were left unfinished; particularly,

A Bill to regulate Tryals in Cases of Treason: which was much talk'd of in the House of Commons, as a great Defence of their Liberties and Lives, and yet was put off from time to time.

Another relating to the African-Trade.

Another, Against Robbers on the High-way.

Another, For the Speedier determining Elections of Members of Parliament.

Another, *To charge the Estate of the late Lord Jeffreys, in Leicestershire, with the Sum of 1476*l.* and Interest, to Edmund Prideaux, Esq;*

Another, For Regulating and Licensing Hackney-Coaches.

Another, For the Enabling Chirurgeons to Administer inward Medicines in Cases of Surgery: which dropp'd, on a Petition against it by the Physicians and Apothecaries.

A Bill was also brought in, For reducing Interest-Money, from 6 to 4 per Cent. which after a Second-Reading was rejected.

*Affairs
abr. ad.*

Some things hapned during this Session, that ought to be remembered. The Duke of Savoy had suffer'd extremely by the French Arms, under the Command of Catinat and Monf. S. Ruth; and having lost, in effect, the whole Dukedom of Savoy, except the Town of Montmelian, he 1690. began now to be sensible, that he could not depend, either on the Emperor, or the K. of Spain for the Recovery of his Dominions; and therefore he wisely thought of making Application to the States-General of Holland, and principally to His Britannick Majesty, the Head and Support of the Grand Alliance: And to that purpose, he sent away the Count de la Tour, Baron of Bourdeaux, and Counsellor of State, President of his Finances in Savoy, and Intendant of his Household, a Man of great Parts and Address. This Envoy Extraordinary having dispatch'd his Business at the Hague, came immediately over to England; and on Nov. 2. made the following Speech to His Majesty at his first Publick Audience.

S I R,

" HIS Royal Highness, my Master, do's by me, Congratulate your Sacred Majesty's Glorious Accession to the Crown. It is due to your Birth, and deserv'd by your Vertue, and is maintain'd by your Valour. Providence had design'd it for your Sacred Head, for the Accomplishment of his Eternal Decrees, which after a long Patience, do always tend to raise up Chosen Souls, to repress Violence, and protect Justice. The wonderful Beginnings of your Reign, are most certain Pretages of the Blessings which Heaven prepares for the Uprightness of your Intentions; which have no other Scope, than to restore this Flourishing Kingdom to its First Greatness, and break the Chains which Europe groans under. This Magnanimous Design, worthy of the Heroe of our Age, fill'd his Royal Highness with inexpressible Joy: But he was constrain'd to conceal it in the secret of his Heart; and if at last he has been free to own it, he is oblig'd to the very Name of your Majesty for it, since that alone has made him conceive some Hopes of Liberty, after so many Years of Servitude.

" My Words, and the Treaty which I have Sign'd at the Hague, with your Majesty's Ministers, do but faintly express the Passion which my Master has to Unite himself by the most inviolable Ties to your Service. The Honour, S I R, which he has to be Related to you, has ty'd the first Knots of this Union: The infinite Respect which he has for your Sacred Person, has, as it were, knit them faster; and the Generous Protection which you are pleas'd to grant him, will, without doubt, make them indissoluble. These are the sincere Sentiments of His Royal Highness, to which I dare not add any thing of mine: For how Ardent soever my Zeal may be, and how profound the Veneration which I bear to your Glorious Achievements, I think I cannot better express either, than by a Silence full of Admiration.

There

1690.

Domestick Affairs.

Honours and Proments.

There were some other Domestick Affairs during the same Session, that are worthy Observation. Our Fleet, commanded by the New-Admirals, Sir Richard Haddock, Henry Killegrew, Esq; and Sir John Ashby, arriv'd in the Downs, October the 8th. They came from Cork-Harbour, and brought home with them the Earls of Clinarty and Tyrone, the Lord Carne, Colonel Margellicot, and several other Prisoners. On Oct. 9. His Majesty was pleas'd to confer the Honour of Knight-hood upon George Mezzot, Esq; High-Sheriff of Norfolk, upon his delivery of an Address from that County, Congratulating His Majesty's good Success and Safe-Return. About the same time, His Majesty appointed Thomas Baker, Esq; to be his Consul at Algiers. In the beginning of November, His Majesty was pleas'd to order a New-Commission to pass the Great Seal, Constituting the Right Honourable Sidney Lord Godolphin, Sir John Lowther of Lowther, Bar. Vice-Chamberlain of His Majesty's Household, Richard Hambden, Esq; Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Stephen Fox, Knt. and Thomas Pelham, Esq; Commissioners of Their Majesties Treasury. At the beginning of December, His Majesty was pleas'd to Confer a Mark of his Royal Favour upon Colonel John Cutts, for his Faithful Services and zealous Affection to his Royal Person and Government, and therefore Created him a Baron of the Kingdom of Ireland, by the Stile and Title of Baron Cutts of Gouran in the said Kingdom. One Golfrey Cross, of Lydd, in the County of Kent, Inn-holder, who went on Board the French-Fleet whilst it lay on that Coast, to give Intelligence and bring back Instructions, was try'd at the Kings-Bench-Bar, and found Guilty of High-Treason, and according to Sentence pronounc'd against him, was Executed in Southwark, on December 8. Henry Lord Viscount Sidney, one of the Lords-Justices of Ireland, was call'd over by His Majesty, and being made one of the Principal Secretaries of State, he took the usual Oath at the Council-Board, on Dec. 26. His Highness George William, Duke of Zell, Eldest Prince of the House of Brunswick and Lunenburgh, was Elected Knight-Companion of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, in a Chapter, held December 30. at Kensington, in the Presence of the Sovereign. On January 1st. Sir John Trevor, Knt. Speaker of the House of Commons, and First Lord-Commissioner of the Great Seal of England, was, by His Majesty's Command, Sworn of His Majesty's Most Honourable Privy-Council.

Review of Ireland.

To look back to Ireland: There were still several Towns besides Limerick in possession of the French and Irish, and their Forces were yet very numerous, which gave the Friends of King James some hopes of Reducing that Kingdom to his Obedience. But they were not a little surpriz'd to hear that the English-Fleet was arriv'd before Cork-Harbour, the 21st of September, with some Forces under the Command of the Earl of Marlborough, who immediately acquainted the Duke of Wirttemberg, and Major-General Scravenmore with his Arrival. The next day his Lordship found that the Enemy had a Battery of Eight Guns to oppose his Entry into the Harbour; but he sent Three Boats ashore, with stout Fellows, who by thick Firing, oblig'd the Irish to quit their Guns.

Earl of Marlborough before Cork.

On the 23d. The greatest part of the Land-Forces were sent up the Passages, headed by the Duke of Grafton; and being come next Day within a Mile of the Town of Cork, they began to mount their Cannon, and to begin a Formal Siege. The Duke of Wirttemberg and the Earl of Marlborough being both Lieutenant-Generals, there happen'd a Warm Dispute betwixt them, about the Chief Command: The first laying Claim to it because he was a Prince, the other, with great Temper, insisting upon his Right, both as Eldest Officer, and because he led the Troops of his own Nation; whereas the Duke of Wirttemberg was only at the Head of Auxiliaries. The wise Monf. la Meloniere interposing, the Earl of Marlborough was contented to share the Command with the Duke, left his insisting on his full Right should retard his Majesty's Service. Accordingly, the Earl of Marlborough Commanded the First Day, and gave the Word, Wirttemberg; and the Duke of Wirttemberg Commanded the next, and gave the Word, Marlborough. Under their Conduct and Bravery, they soon brought the Besieg'd to demand a Parley, and to give Hostages for a Truce: But not accepting the Terms offer'd them, the Besiegers made a considerable Breach in the Walls, and resolv'd to Storm the Town. The Grenadeers, under the Lord Cobchester, led the Van, and marched forward with incredible Bravery, though all the while expos'd to the Enemy's Fire; having an Example of Glory set them by the Duke of Grafton, the Lord O'Brian, Colonel Granville, and some other resolute Volunteers: But in this Approach, the Duke of Grafton received a Wound in the Shoulder, of which he soon after died. All things being now ready for a General Assault, the Besieg'd thought fit to prevent it, by beating a second Parley: And at last, the Earl of Tyrone, and Colonel Rycant, being sent from Colonel Makilicut, who Commanded in the Place, agreed to the Earl of Marlborough's Conditions: Which were, Sept. 28.

1690.

That the Garrison, consisting of Four Thousand Men, should be all Prisoners of War, both Officers and Soldiers.

That no Prejudice should be done to them or the Inhabitants.

That the General would use his endeavours to obtain His Majesty's Clemency towards them.

That all the Arms, as well of the Inhabitants, as of the Garrison, should be secured.

That all the Protestant-Prisoners should be set at Liberty.

That the Old Fort should be delivered up within an Hour, and the Two Gates of the City the next Morning.

And that an Exact Account should be given of the Warlike Ammunitions and Provisions in the Magazines.

The Earl of Marlborough was resolv'd to pursue his good Success, and therefore immediately sent away a Detachment of Horse and Dragoons, under the Command of Brigadier Villiers, to Summon the Town and Forts of King-sale; and His Lordship setting out from Cork on the 1st of October, arriv'd at Five-Mile-Bridge the same Day, and the next, before King-sale; and having form'd his Camp in the Evening, gave Directions to make his Approaches towards the New-Fort, while Major-General Tetteau was Order'd to Attack the Old.

The Earl of Marlborough's wife Conduct and good Success.

The next Morning early, Tetteau having pass'd the River in Boats, made a Feint of Storming the Fort in the weakest Place, where most of the Besieged were ready to receive him: But in the interim, another Detachment made a bold Assault upon another Place, where the Enemy

1690. least suspected them, and by that means were soon Masters of a Bastion. At the same time, several Barrels of Powder, happening to take fire, blew up near Forty of the Irish: Upon which the rest retir'd into an Old Castle in the midst of the Fort, and immediately submitted to be Prisoners of War.

This Business being over, the Earl of Marlborough sent to Summon the New-Fort, which was much more considerable than the other: But Sir Edward Slat (the Governor) readily answer'd, That it would be time enough to Capitulate a Month hence. Thereupon the English Open'd their Trenches, October the 5th, and on the 9th, had advanc'd them to the Counterfearp; but the Ill-Weather hinder'd the comingup of the Cannon till the 11th. After a considerable Breach, and a False-Attack, all things were prepar'd for a Storm, when the Enemy Beat a Parley. On the 15th, Hostages being Exchang'd, the Articles were Agreed on, and Sign'd about Midnight, by which the Middle-Bastion was to be Deliver'd up the next Morning; and the Garrison, consisting of about 1100 Men, was to March out the next Day after, with Arms and Baggage, to be Conducted to Limerick.

By Subduing this Sea-port-Town, and that of Cork, an effectual Stop was put to all Supplies from France, at last on the Southern-Coasts; and the Irish were almost confin'd to the Province of Ulster, where it was harder to subsist, than in any other Parts of that Kingdom.

Upon the first News of the English-Fleet sailing towards Ireland, Count Lauzun, afraid of being Blockt-up at Galloway, went off from thence with the Duke of Tyrconnel, Monsieur Boisjean, and the miserable Remains of his French-Troops, leaving the General Command of the Irish-Forces to the Duke of Berwick, which was afterwards given to Monsieur St. Ruth.

The Earl of Marlborough, having perform'd this Glorious Expedition, in as little Time as, considering the Season of the Year, the Voyage itself requir'd, embark'd again, and arriv'd at Kensington on the 28th of October, where he was very favourably receiv'd by His Majesty, who had a high Esteem of his Courage and Conduct, and was heard to say, That He knew no Man so fit for a General, who had seen so few Campaigns.

Ireland
Reduc'd.

Ireland seem'd now to be Reduc'd to the Obedience of King William; and therefore, at the beginning of December, His Majesty Establish'd a Privy-Council, of the Lord-Primate of Ireland, the Lord-Chancellor, the Lord-Treasurer, and the Arch-Bishop of Dublin for the time being, James Duke of Ormond, Edward Earl of Meath, Henry Earl of Drogheda, Francis Earl of Longford, Richard Earl of Ranelagh, Arthur Earl of Granard, Adam Viscount Lisbourn, the Bishop of Meath for the time being, Robert Fitz-Gerald Esq; Sir Henry Fane, William Hill Esq; and certain Ministers of State for the time being.

His Majesty, at the same time, Appointed these Judges, in the several Courts of Justice: Sir Richard Reynell Chief-Justice, Mr. Lindon, Sir Richard Stephens, Justices of the King's-Bench; Mr. Justice Cox, Mr. Justice Jefferyson, of the Common-Pleas; Lord-Chief-Baron Hely, Mr. Baron Eschlin, Sir Standish Harstrong, of the Exchequer.

1690. And within few Days after, His Majesty dispos'd of the Vacant Bishopricks, as follows: The Arch-Bishoprick of Cashel, to Doctor Marsh Bishop of Ferns; the Bishoprick of Clogher, to Dr. Tennison Bishop of Killalash; the Bishoprick of Elfin, to Dr. Digby Bishop of Limerick; the See of London-Derry, to Dr. William King; the See of Ferns, to Dr. Vigers Dean of Armagh; the See of Limerick, to Dr. Wilson Dean of Raphoe; the See of Clonsfert, to Doctor Fitzgerald Dean of Clein; the See of Killalash, to Dr. Lloyd Dean of Aronry. And upon the Recalling of the Lord Sidney, His Majesty Appointed Sir Charles Porter to be One of the Lords-Justices and Lord-Chancellor of Ireland.

The King was now Preparing to go over to the Famous Congress at the Hague; and therefore, the next Day after the Rising of the Parliament, His Majesty set out, Attended by the Great-Officers of His Household, and divers others of the Nobility and Gentry. He lay that Night at Sittingborne, and intended to embarque the next Evening at Margate; but finding, upon His Arrival at Canterbury, that the Wind was set in Eastwardly, with a hard Frost, He thought fit to return to Kensington on January the 9th, with Intention to proceed on his Voyage for Holland, with the first Change of Weather.

The King
Prepares for the Congress
at the Hague.

So, on Friday the 16th of January, the King went to Gravesend, and Embarqu'd there, with divers of the Nobility, and other Persons of Quality, attending Him, under a Convoy of Twelve Men-of-War, Commanded by Rear-Admiral Rooke. When, with some Trouble, they came on the Dutch-Coast, the Frost had been so severe, and the Ice near the Shore was so great, that it appear'd to be extremely Dangerous to attempt Landing: But the King, with whom the Sea did not agree, and whose Business required Haste, went into a Shallop, and Order'd the Sea-men to Put-off. The Seamen themselves were afraid; and all the Persons of Quality about the King, would have dissuaded Him from it, by representing the prodigious Danger to which he must expose His Royal Person: But nothing being able to move Him from His Resolution, they put-away from the Fleet, and quickly lost sight of 'em. Night came on, and the King remain'd, for Eighteen Hours together, expos'd to the Injuries of the Air and Cold, to the Mercy of the Sea, and the Chance of Privateers, having nothing but his Cloak to cover him; and the Sea ran so high, that He and all the Company were dash't and wash't with Waves: At last the Shallop, by Break-of-Day, came near the Isle of Goree, where His Majesty went a-Shore, and got a little Refreshment in a Fisherman's Cottage. Then His Majesty went into his Boat again, and happily Landed at Orange-Polder; from whence He went to Housterdike, where He was Met by the Deputies of the States, who Conducted Him to the Hague, by Six that Evening.

Embarks at Gravesend.

Is in very great Danger.

Lands
safely.

And because His Majesty came so suddenly, as to prevent the Reception that was intended by the Magistrates of that Place, Monday next was Appointed for Solemnizing their Publick-Joy on that Occasion, with Fire-works, Bonfires, and Triumphant-Arches: And they Order'd another Day to be Observ'd with Publick and Solemn-Devotion, for Returning Thanks to Almighty God, for the King's Safe-Arrival, and to Implore His Blessing upon His Majesty's Arms, and those of that State, and Allies.

And

1690.

Congress at the Hague.

And now began the most Glorious Congress that ever yet appear'd, of Christian Princes and Ministers. The Electors of Bavaria and Brandenburg; the Dukes of Lunenburg, of Zell, and of Wolfembuttel; the Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel, Prince Christian Lois of Brandenburg, Prince Waldeck; the Prince of Nassau Stadtholder of Friesland, the Prince of Nassau Saarbrug Governor of Boissleduck, the Prince of Nassau Dilleburgh, the Prince of Nassau Idstein, the Duke-Administrator of Wirtemberg, the two Princes of Ansbach, the Landgrave of Hesse D'Armstadt, the Prince his Brother, the Duke of Sax-Eysenach, Prince Philip Palatine, the Duke of Zulsbach, the Prince of Wirtemberg Nuestadt, the Prince of Wirtemberg, and the Prince his Brother; the Duke of Courland, and Prince Ferdinand his Brother; the Prince of Anhalt Zeerborst, the Landgrave of Homburg, Three Princes of Holstein-Beck, the Duke of Holstein, Prince of Commercy, the Prince-Palatine of Birkenfelt: To which we may add the Princes of Nassau-Friesland, the Princes of Radzeville, the Counts of Soissons, the Princes of Sax-Eysenach, and other Illustrious Persons.

It wou'd be too tedious to give the Names of all the Counts that appear'd on this Solemn Occasion; however, we'll mention a few of them: And the most Remarkable were, the Counts of Horn, Erbach, Tirimont, de Brouay, de Gryal, d'Arco, de Rivera, de Sanfra, de Lippe, d'Espeuse, de Fugger, de Denhof, de Carelson; with the Barons of Pallant and Spaein, the Rhingrave and his Brother; the Marquesses of Cashlemonlayo, and Castanaga Governour of the Spanish-Netherlands; and the Generals, Chauvert, d'Elwicht, Barfus, d'Autel, Palf, &c.

But we shou'd more particularly name the Ambassadors and Foreign-Ministers present in this Assembly: And here you had, from the Emperor, the Counts of Windigrats and Berka, with the Chevalier de Campecht; from the King of Spain, Don Emanuel de Colonna; from the King of Denmark, the Count de Rebenkian, and M. Centhe; from the King of Sweden, the Count of Oxenstern; from the King of Poland, M. Moreau; from the Elector of Bavaria, the Baron of Boomgarden, and M. Prielmeyere; from the Elector of Brandenburg, M. Van Diest and Smettau; from the Elector of Saxony, M. Haxhaussem; from the Elector of Treves, the Baron de Leyon, and Monsieur Champagne; from the Elector of Mentz, M. Talberg and Meyers; from the Elector of Cologne, the General and Baron Berusaw, and M. Soelmaker; from the Elector-Palatine, M. Hertermans; from the Duke of Savoy, the Count of Pielat, and the President de la Tour; from the Duke of Zell, M. Zieger; from the Bishop of Munster, M. de Nort; from the Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel, the Baron Gorts, and M. Reppelaar; from the Duke of Wolfembuttel, the Baron Crosek; from the Duke of Hanover, M. Klekk; from the Duke of Holstein-Gottorp, M. Tourken; and from the Prince of Liege, Counsellor Mean. Neither are we to omit taking Notice of those Noble Persons of His Majesty's own Subjects, that Attended Him upon this Solemnity, and they were, the Dukes of Norfolk and Ormond, with the Earls of Devonshire, Dorset, Essex, Nottingham, Scarborough and Selkirk, my Lord Bishop of London, my Lord Dramlendrits, my Lord Dursley, the Earls of Portland and Monmouth, Duke Schomberg, his Brother Count Maynhard, &c.

The great Design of this Congress, was for all the Confederate-Princes and States to concert Measures with King William, in order to Preserve the Liberties of Europe: And therefore His Majesty, in a very Pathetical SPEECH, represented to 'em;

THAT the Imminent Dangers wherein They found themselves, sufficiently discover'd the Errors that had been committed; so that He needed not use many Arguments, to shew them the Necessity of taking Juster and Better Measures: That, in the Circumstances They were in, it was not a Time to Deliberate, but Act: That the Enemy were Masters of all the Chief-Fortresses that were the Barrier of the Common-Liberty; and that he wou'd quickly possess himself of all the rest, if a Spirit of Division, Slowness, and particular Interest, continu'd among them: That every-One ought to remain perswaded, That Their respective Particular Interests were compriz'd in the General-one: That the Enemies forces were very Strong, and that they wou'd carry Things, like a Torrent, before them: That it was in vain, to oppose Complaints, and fruitless Clamours, or unprofitable Protestations against Injustice: That it was neither the Resolution of a Barren Diet, nor the Hopes of some Men-of-Fortune, arising from frivolous Foundations, but Soldiers, Strong Armies, and a Prompt and Sincere Union between all the Forces of the Allies, that must do the Work; and that these too must be brought to Oppose the Enemy without any Delay, if they wou'd put a Stop to his Conquests, and snatch out of his Hands the Liberty of Europe, which he held already under a heavy Yoke.

Concluding, "That, as for Himself, He wou'd neither spare His Credit, Forces, nor Person, to Concur with them in so Just and Necessary a Design; and that He wou'd come in the Spring, at the Head of the Troops, faithfully to Make-good His Royal Word, which He had so solemnly Engag'd to Them.

This Speech, from a Prince in whom they all confided, had so good Effect, that they came to a Resolution, of employing Two Hundred Twenty Two Thousand Men against France; of which the King of England, the Emperor, and the King of Spain, were to find each of them Twenty Thousand. But notwithstanding the large 1690.

Design of this Congress.

King William's Speech.

Resolution of the Congress.

1690. large Proportions promis'd by divers Princes and States of Germany, yet England and Holland were forc'd to pay them, and to bear the Burden of the War.

Before the Congress broke up, they came to this Unanimous Declaration.

And their Solemn Declarat.
1690.

“ SINCE We look upon the Union that is between Us, as the Work of God alone; It is but reasonable that We should make a Solemn Protestation to him, to deliberate nothing in this Assembly, but what may be very just and equitable. We Solemnly Protest, before God, That Our Intentions are, That We will never break off this Union, nor make any Peace with Lewis the XIVth, till the following Articles be Executed: To the Obligation of which, We oblige Our selves for ever.

I. “ Till he has made Reparation to the Holy See, for whatsoever he has acted against it; and till he has annull'd and made void all those Infamous Proceedings against the Holy Father Innocent XI.

II. “ Till he has Restor'd to each Party concern'd, what he has taken since the Peace of Munster; and till he has Demolish'd Brisac, and deliver'd up the Country of Ceay to the Canton of Bern.

III. “ Till he has Restor'd to the Protestants all their Possessions and Goods; and till there be an entire Liberty of Conscience throughout the whole Extent of the French Dominions.

IV. “ Till the Estates of the Kingdom be Re-establish'd in their Ancient Liberties; so that the Clergy, the Nobility, and the Third Estate, may enjoy their Ancient and Lawful Privileges: And till the Kings for the future shall be oblig'd to call together the said Estates, when they desire any Supply; without the Consent of whom, they shall not raise any Mony, after any manner, or for any pretence whatsoever.

V. “ Till the Tax upon Salt, that upon the Third Estate, and an infinite number of other unreasonable Taxes and Impositions, be Abolish'd for ever.

VI. “ Till he has Restor'd to the Parliaments their Ancient and Rightful Authority; that so they might be Enabled to distribute to every one Justice freely, and without restraint, according to their Consciences.

VII. “ Till all the Towns of the Kingdom be Re-establish'd in their Ancient Privileges; and till their Revenues be Restor'd, which had been taken from them with such Violence and Injustice.

“ God, who knows the Intention of Our Hearts, knows that we bear no Hatred against the French Nation; and that We do not aspire to have the Lawful Dominions of the Kingdom of France.

1690. “ And if all those who are Inhabitants would join with Us, We should soon dispatch this Affair, without Effusion of Blood, and without Desolation of the Kingdom. And We promise all those that shall do it; That we will treat them as Our particular Friends, and preserve their Towns and Possessions as if they were Our own. And as for those that shall not do it; We shall look upon them as Persons that have approv'd and aberted all these Persecutions, Burnings and other Devastations that have been made: And We will make them feel, without Mercy, those Pains and Torment, which they have been the Occasion that so many poor People have suffered.

“ We were willing that the whole World should have a perfect Knowledge of Our Resolutions: Partilularly the French Gentlemen and Persons of Honour, who are Opprest with the heavy Load of the Government, and can no longer endure the Slavery which they lie under: To the end they may be able to take such Measures, as may be assisting to Us in Recovering for them their Ancient Liberty, which has been so cruelly and so unjustly taken from them.

In the mean time, the French King was resolv'd to be before-hand with the Confederates; and therefore having divided his Army into two Bodies, with one of them he Besieg'd and took Nice from the Duke of Savoy; and with the other he invested the strong City of Mons, on March 15. and came before it in Person, Six Days after, accompanied by the Dauphin, the Duke of Orleans, and his Son the Duke of Chartres. The Trenches were open'd the next Day, and were advanc'd with great Expedition. The Prince de Bergu was Governour of the Town, and had a Garison of about Six Thousand Horse and Foot in the Place.

King William, upon News of the Siege, returned from Loo to the Hague; from whence he dispatch'd Prince Waldeck to Hull near Brussels, where the Forces were to Rendezvous; and the King himself arriv'd there, on April 6. where he found an Army of about Fifty Thousand Men: Yet the Spaniards had been so careless and slow, that there was nothing provided for the Expedition, no not so much as the necessary Carriages; so that the French had leisure to go on with their Siege: And tho' in the Attack they made upon one of the Half-Moons, on the 7th of April at Night, they were repuls'd with considerable Loss, yet the Burghers were so terrify'd with the Bombs, and influenc'd by the Papish-Clergy, to be of the French Interest, that they prest the Governour to Capitulate, which he refusing, they sent a Drummer of their own to beat a Parley, and threatned to open the Gates, and to deliver both him and the Garison into the Besiegers hands. This made the Governour at last comply; so that the Town was Surrendred April the 10th. N.S. upon Honourable Terms. Whereupon King William immediately left the Army, return'd to the Hague, embark'd for England, and arriv'd at Whitchal on the 12th of April.

1690.

Progress of the French
Army.

1690.
Jacobite-Plot,

In His Majesty's Absence, the Jacobites were plotting for the Restoration of their Master, and held several Meetings, from whence they transmitted their Sentiments to the Royal-Club (as they call'd it) in Covent-Garden; who were to digest them into such Methods for Practice, as should govern the whole Party.

The Result of their several Consultations, was,

1. That being unable to Re-inthrone the late King by their own Strength, they should endeavour to obtain Assistance from France, who had formerly made them such Promises of Invading England.

2. Since Delays were dangerous, sending Letters into France hazardous, and the Court at St. Germain's Factions and Treacherous; That some Man of Quality and known Ability, should go over into France, to transact that Matter, from the whole Party.

This Project having the Approbation of the Leading-Club, in December, 1690. the Lord Preston, Mr. Ashton, and Mr. Elliot, were pitch'd upon as proper Persons to be sent into France: They hired a Vessel of Mrs. Jane Prat, of Barkin in Essex, for their Transportation; and went on Board her near Battle-Bridge, Dec. 30. But the whole Plot being discover'd, the Government order'd Captain Billop to attend their Motion: Who accordingly suffer'd them to Sail before Gravefend, and then boarded and took them.

In Mr. Ashton's Bosom were found a Pacquet of Papers and Letters, whereby it abundantly appear'd, that they were going to France to promote the Treasonable Designs of Invading the Realm, Subverting the Government, and Restoring the late King, by the Assistance of French-Forces. So on Jan. 16. Sir Richard Graham, Bar. Viscount Preston in the Kingdom of Scotland, John Ashton, and Ebmund Elliot, Gent. were Arraign'd at the Old-Baily, upon an Indictment of High-Treason, to which they pleaded Not Guilty.

The next Day the Lord Preston was brought to his Tryal; and after a full and clear Evidence, the Jury found him Guilty. On Jan. 12. Mr. Ashton was likewise found Guilty, and the Court proceeded to pass Sentence of Death against both of them, as in Cases of High-Treason. Mr. Ashton was Executed at Tyburn, on Jan. 28. but the Lord Preston, by the Intercellion of his Friends, and in consideration of his Discovering the whole Conspiracy upon Oath, obtain'd Their Majesties Pardon. As for Mr. Elliot, there being no positive Proof against him, he was not brought to his Tryal. Soon after, the Queen issued out a Proclamation, for Discovering and Apprehending Francis late Bishop of Ely, William Penn, Esq; and James Graham, Esq; for Conspiring with divers Enemies and Traitors; and particularly with the Lord Preston and Mr. Ashton, lately Attainted of High-Treason. But the Clemency of the Government was so very great, that among the multitude of Conspirators, no one suffer'd but Mr. Ashton.

On March 11. The Office of Post-Master-General, was Granted by Letters Patent to Sir Robert Cotton, of Hutley St. George in the County of Cambridge, Knt. and Thomas Frankland, Esq; On March 19. Nicholas Dupin, Esq; Deputy-Governor of the King and Queen's Corporation of the Linen-Manufacture in England and Ireland, waited on Her Majesty, to give Her an Account of the great Success and Progress made in it, by employing many Thousands of the Poor, &c. With which Her Majesty was extremely satisfy'd; and to encourage it by Her own Example, She was pleas'd to bring up the Work of making Fringes, wherein She busied Her own Royal Hands, and was quickly imitated, not only by Her Maid of Honour, but by all the Ladies and Gentlewomen throughout the whole Kingdom.

As to the State of Religion; The Non-Jurors of the Church of England, began to think of a Separation from their late Brethren, that they might be distinguish'd in Communion as well as in Politics. They were indeed highly Discontented with the present Settlement, and very uneasy for the Return of King James; tho' they could not but think the Consequence must be Popery and French-Power. There was about this time a Pamphlet Publish'd, Entitl'd, A Modest Enquiry into the Causes of the present Disasters of England: Wherein the Author charges the disaffected Clergy, whom he calls the Lambeth Holy-Club, with being the Principal Managers of the Jacobite-Plot, for bringing the French Fleet into the Channel. He alledges,

"That the first step the Clergy made, was, The Writing against the taking the Nece-Oaths to Their Majesties, enjoin'd them by Act of Parliament; and the buzzing into the Ears of their Vetaries, The Unlawfulness of those Oaths, and the continuing Right of King James to the Crown.

"That there being very few of the disaffected Clergy, that had the Courage to lay down their Places for the Oaths; the next step of the Plot was to cheat the World and their own Consciences, with the Ridiculous Distinction of taking the Oaths to a King de Facto, and not de Jure: Which is as much as to say, That Their Majesties were not Lawful and Rightful King and Queen of England, but de Facto only; that is, in English, downright Ujarpers.

"That this Distinction did not only give scope to take the Oaths to their Majesties, but also to Pray for them by Name in their Pulpits; tho' some of more Sincerity than the rest, would not pray for them at all: And yet to prevent any Trouble from the Law, they wisely pray'd in general Terms, for the King and Queen; which might be taken either for King James and Queen Mary, or King William and Queen Mary: And others of a more nice Stomach yet, would not Pray for the King and Queen, but, for the King and Royal Family.

"That the Plot being Lame, because the Machines that mov'd it were debarr'd from the Pulpit; it was found out, that the Act of Parliament, Enjoining the Oaths to Their Majesties, admitting of some favourable Interpretation in Law, upon the part of those that only Preach'd, but had no Cure of Souls: Thereupon Dr. S— one of the greatest Champions, mounted the Chair first, with the loud Acclamations of the Party; and as an Introduction to his Sermon, gave his Auditors an Account of the happy Discovery he had made of so great a Blessing, as his having Liberty to Preach to them, notwithstanding the Act of Parliament about taking the Oaths.

"That he was follow'd by a great many, both in London and in the Country; who partly by stealth, and partly by the Pious Zeal of some of their own sort of Church-Wardens, got up into the Pulpit, to Trumpet up the People to a Disaffection with the Government.

"That all these steps of the Plot, were back'd with the History of Passive Obedience, which was handed about in Triumph among the Party.

"That in this Pamphlet are muster'd a great many Expressions of English Divines, both Ancient and Modern; altho' the most of the Citations be far wide of the Question, and refer only to Obedience to Magistracy in general, and the Unlawfulness of Private Persons their rising up against the Government upon any frivolous Pretence.

1690.
The Non-juror Clergy make a separate Communion

The Publick Misfortunes imputed to this Party.

Discover'd

The Plots taken up.

Id. Preston and Mr. Ashton found guilty.

Offices & Honours.

" That

1690.

“ That the next Engine of the Plot, was the happy Result of a kind of Occumenick-Council of the Whole Party; The Liturgy of the Church of England mult be laid aside, and a New one must be Calculated for the Meridian of King James's tottering Fortune. That in this New-Liturgy, they Pray'd thus: Restore us again the Publick-Worship of thy Name, the Reverend Administration of thy Sacraments; Raise up the former Government, both in Church and State, that we may be no longer without King, without Priest, without God in the World. — That when they came to Pray for King James, the Jacobite-Club had exhausted all their Rhetorick and Zeal, in the following Words: Protect and Defend thy Servant, our Sovereign Lord the King; Strengthen his Hands, and the Hands of all that are put in Authority under Him, with Judgment and Justice, to Cut off all such Workers of Iniquity, as turn Religion into Rebellion, and Faith into Faction; that they may never Prevail against us, or Triumph in the Ruine of this Church among us. To this end, Defend the King; Bind up his Soul in the Bundle of Life, and let no Weapon form'd against Him prosper: Be unto Him a Helmet of Salvation, and a strong Tower of Defence, against the Face of his Enemies: Let his Reign be prosperous, and his Days many: Make him Glad, according to th Days wherein thou hast Afflicted him, and for the Years wherein thou hast made him suffer Adversity: Give him the Necks of his Enemies: and also, every Day more and more, the Hearts of his Subjects: As for those that are Implacable, cloath them with Shame; but upon Himself, and his Posterity (that is, the Prince of Wales) let the Crown flourish.

“ That the General-Council having Compos'd this New-Liturgy, there were above Ten thousand of them Printed, and Dispers'd up and down among the Party, which they Us'd in their Cabals; laying aside a great part, and sometimes all the Old-Liturgy.

“ That there were many of the Holy-Club detach'd up and down, to Perswade Money'd People, who With'd-well to the Cause, to Contribute for the Subsistence of King James's Cathier'd-Officers.

“ That King William being resolv'd to Venture his Person once more, for the Safety of these Kingdoms, his Journey to Ireland concluded upon, and the most and the better-Disciplin'd part of the Army to Attend His Majesty, it was impossible to leave any considerable Force behind Him in his Absence: Likewise, That the Transportation of the Queen of Spain, and the Convey of the Straights-Merchant-men, under Admiral Killigrew, had carry'd a considerable part of our Fleet to the Mediterranean; and another part of it, Commanded by Sir Cloudesley Shovel, was to Attend His Majesty and the Army to Ireland; so that the Grand-Fleet was not to have been so Considerable as otherwise it wou'd have been.

“ That all these Circumstances rais'd the Courage of the Plotters, who thought this the only Time to put their Design in Execution.

“ That, in order to that, at one of their General-Meetings in London, where it was necessary some of the Clergy shou'd be present, to Bless so Pious a Work, it was Concluded, To Present a Memorial, in the Name of the Loyal and Distressed Subjects of England, (for so they nam'd themselves) to His Most Christian Majesty; Humbly Inveing Him, out of His Unparalleled Goodness, and for the Affection He always bore to Oppressed-Virtue, that He wou'd Assist

A Memorial of this Party, to the French King.

“ them, in Restoring their Lawful King, His Ancient Allye and Confederate, to His Throne; and in breaking the Yoke of Usurpation, under which these Three Nations were at this time so heavily Groaning.

“ That there had been Two or Three Memorials Presented to the French-King, before this, over-and-above a constant Correspondence betwixt the French-Ministers of State, Monsieur de Croissy, and them. And the Clergy, who were the great Contrivers and Managers of this, and who, by their Profession, are, for the most part, extraordinary Credulous of any thing they incline to, did really believe, that immediately upon the Appearing of the French-Fleet, and the Burning of ours, (which they thought as sure) there wou'd certainly be a General-Insurrection through a great many Places of the Kingdom, in order to Join them at their Landing, and to Declare for King James.

The Pamphlet (out of which I have made this short Abstract) Reflecting so highly on the Non-Juring-Clergy: The Arch-Bishop of Canterbury, the Bishops of Norwich, Ely, Bath and Wells, and Peterborough, both in their own, and in the Name of their absent Brother the Bishop of Gloucester, Publish'd a Paper, wherein they did Solemly, and in the Presence of GOD, Protect and Declare;

The Non-juring-Bishops vindicate themselves.

I. That these Accusations, cast upon them, were all of them Malicious Calumnies, and Diabolical Inventions.

II. That they knew not who was the Author of the New-Liturgy, nor had any Hand in it, neither did they Use it at any time.

III. That they never held any Correspondence, directly or indirectly, with Monsieur de Croissy, or with any other Minister or Agent of France; and if any such Memorial had been Presented to the French-King, they never knew any thing of it: And that they did utterly Renounce both this, and all other Invitations, suggested to be made by the French.

IV. That they utterly Deny'd and Discov'd all Plots charg'd upon them, as Contriv'd and Carry'd on in their Meetings at Lambeth; the Intent thereof, being to Advise, how, in their present Difficulties, they might best keep their Consciences void of Offence, towards God, and towards Man.

V. That they were so far from being the Authors or Abettors of England's Miseries, that they did, and shou'd to their dying-hour, heartily and incessantly Pray for the Peace, Prosperity and Glory of England; and shou'd always, by God's Grace, make it their daily Practice, to study to be Quiet, to bear their Cross patiently, and to seek the Good of their Native-Country.

They Concluded, That as the Lord had taught them, to return Good for Evil; the unknown Author of the Pamphlet, having endeavour'd to raise in the whole English-Nation, such a Fury as might end in † De-Witting them, (a Bloody Word, but too well understood,) they recommended him to the Divine-Mercy, humbly Beseeching GOD to forgive him. And as they had, not long since, either Actually, or in full Preparation of Mind, hazarded All they had in the World, in Opposing Popery and Arbitrary-Power in England; so they shou'd, by God's Grace, with greater Zeal, again sacrifice All they had, and their very Lives too, if GOD shou'd be pleas'd to Call them thereto, to Prevent Popery, and the Arbitrary-Power of France, from Coming upon them, and Prevailing over them; the Persecution of their Protestant-Brethren there, being fresh in their Memories.

† John de Witt, and his Brother, were Murder'd by the Mob, at the Hague.

The

1691. The Parliament met at Westminster on Tuesday March the 31st. according to their last Adjournment; But upon Her Majesty's Pleasure signified to both Houses, they Adjourned themselves to April 28. And on that Day to May 26. When they met, and were by Commission Prorogued to the 30th. of June next ensuing, and then again Prorogued to Monday August the 3^d. and then farther Prorogued to October the 5th. and then again to the 22^d. when they met to do Business.

On April the 9th. the Queen published a Proclamation against Papists and other dissipated Persons, who being of restless Spirits, and abusing the Clemency that had been used towards them, had resorted to, and assembled in the Cities of London and Westminster, and had there taken great Boldness by Seditious Discourses and Libels, and with Insolent Behaviour, to Defame and Affront the Government; and also had consulted and prosecuted divers Mischievous and Treasonable Designs and Practices, tending to the Disturbance of the Publick Peace, and the Destruction of their Native Country, &c. Their Majesties by another Proclamation appointed a Publick and General Fast to be observed throughout the Kingdom, on Wednesday April the 29th. and from thenceforth on the Third Wednesday of every Month during the present War.

The King came out of the Maese on Sunday Morning April the 12th. attended by part of the Dutch Squadron, being Ships of the First and Second Rank. who came to joyn our Fleet at the Buoy in the Nore; where as His Majesty pass'd by, he was Saluted with a Discharge of all the Cannon from the Ships, and the repeated Huzzas of the Seamen, expressing their Joy and Duty in a particular and extraordinary manner. After a very quick Passage the King arrived at Whitehall, on Monday Evening April 13. when immediately Bonfires, Illuminations and Ringing of Bells demonstrated the general Joy for His Majesty's safe Return. His Majesty having dispatched the weighty Affairs of hastning out the Fleet, and making due Preparations for the Campaign in Flanders, he could spare no time for Sports or Ease; but in pursuance of His Royal Resolution to Command the Confederate Army this Summer, He set out from Kensington on Friday May the 1st. very early in the Morning, and arrived at Harwich about Six in the Evening, where He went immediately on Board the Mary Yatch; but the Wind hanging Southwardly with the Tide of Flood, hindered their going to Sea that Night, upon which His Majesty came ashore; and embarking again next Day, about Nine in the Morning, set Sail with a fair Wind for Holland, attended by a Squadron of Men of War under Command of Rear-Admiral Rook. The next Day about Six in the Morning His Majesty Landed near Marseland-Sluice, and went that Night to the Hague, where the next Morning all the Foreign Ministers waited on him to Congratulate his safe Arrival. On Friday following, the King went to Loo, and from thence sent away Count de Selmes, and the Lord Marlborough to Flanders, to put all things in a readiness against His Majesty's Arrival. Some few Days after, May 31. N. S. His Majesty parted from Loo, and having passed through Brada, on Sunday following He put himself at the Head of the Confederate Army; where he was attended by the Duke of Ormond, the Marquess of Winchester, and the Earl of Essex; who reviving the Ancient Custom of the English Nobility, chose rather to share with their Prince in the Honourable Hazards of the Field, than to lead an inactive and inglorious Life at Home. And it was indeed no Credit to our Nation, that their Example was not follow'd by more of their Quality. His Majesty having disappointed Boufflers in his Attempt upon Lige, endeavour'd to bring Marechal de Luxembourg to an Engagement, as well by several Marches and Counter-marches He purposely made, as by the Umbrages he gave him of Attacking Manbeuge or Mons; but the Cautious French General very industriously avoided Fighting, and would afford no opportunity for it, but upon very great Advantage; wherefore His Majesty having blown up the Fortifications of Beaumont, a place he had made himself Master of, March'd the Army towards Lieth; and leaving it under the Command of Prince Waldeck, He went away for Loo on September the 17th. The same Day the Confederate Army March'd from Ikonwell to Leuze, and Decamp'd again on the 19th. in the Morning, advancing towards Cambray; and about Eleven a Clock the whole Right Wing, with the Body of the Foot, and the greatest part of the Horse of the Left Wing, had pass'd the little River and Defile near Cateau. The Duke of Luxembourg being inform'd of this Motion, and encouraged by his Britannick Majesty's Absence, Advanced at the same time with the Troops of the French King's Household, and a strong Detachment of his Cavalry, making together Fifty Five Squadrons, his swift March not being discover'd, by reason of a great Fog; and Charg'd the Rear Guard of the others with great Fury. Count Tilly who commanded in the Rear, drew up his Men as well as the suddenness of the Attack would permit, and received the Shock with great Bravery, but was soon overpower'd, and put into Disorder. By this time several of those that had already pass'd the River, were brought back by the Lieutenant Generals Overkirk and Obdam, and forming a Second Line, gave an opportunity to the First to Rally. Two Battalions were likewise Post'd behind the Hedges adjoining to the Defile, who much Gall'd the Enemy. Here the Conflict was very Fierce, till the second Line was also forc'd to give Ground before the Enemy; but the Cavalry being soon rally'd by Monsieur Overkirk, who signalized his Valour and Conduct on this Occasion; the French, who were unwilling to push the Action too far, for fear of the Dutch Infantry, which was also Marching up, Retreated in some Hast and Confusion; contenting themselves with having Kill'd about a Thousand of the Confederates, and amongst them, some Men of great Distinction, with the Loss themselves of about half the Number. And with this Action the Campaign ended on that side.

Notwithstanding the many Disappointments the Jacobites had already met in their bold Designs, they began this Year with fresh Attempts to subvert the present Government. To accomplish this, they maintain'd a constant Correspondence with the Court of France, who Fed em with liberal Promises of Assistance with Men, Arms and Money; which raised their Hopes and Expectations, that England should be speedily invaded and Conquer'd, if a Project that was then on Foot, did not accomplish the Work by a greater Dispatch, and Restore King James without the loss of much Blood. With these dark Sayings, some of the Jacobites entertain'd the Rest, and did not scruple to boast that a great Thing was then on Foot, that would Confound the Williamites. What should be meant by this Great Thing, appeared afterwards to be the King's Murder: His Majesty's Enemies being unwilling to wait any longer the uncertain Fate of War, thought this Project the best Expedient for their Purpose, and this Time most agreeable. For to Assassinate His Majesty in Flanders, would admit of more Excuses, and more Safety, than in any other place, Adjournments and Prorogations of the Parliament.

Proclamation against Papists.

The King returns from Holland.

The King goes back to the Campaign.

1691. The French decline Fighting

Engagement.

New Attempts of the Jacobites

Design to Assassinate the King

1691. place. This Hellish Enterprize, with the Promise of great Rewards, being communicated to Bartolomeu Lineire Sieur de Granvaile, he and Dumont who had been formerly retain'd for the same purpose, undertook to put it in Execution while the King was at Lee; but missing their Opportunity, they followed his Majesty to his Camp in Flanders. From hence Granvaile returned to the French Army, and Dumont, according to the Orders given him, enter'd himself into the Confederate Army, that he might take his Opportunity when his Majesty went to visit the Grand Guard, or the Lines, to shoot him in the Back, and then make the best of his way to a Body of Horse, that Granvaile and Colonel Parker, the chief Contriver of this bloody Design, should have in readiness upon a previous intimation to rescue and carry him off. But Providence took care of the Preservation of Europe, that so visibly depended upon his Majesty's single Life; and whether Dumont's Heart fail'd him, or whether his Confederates deserted him, or whatever else was the restraining Cause, after some Weeks Attendance he went to the Court of Hannover, and for this Year gave over the accursed Project of Assassinating His Majesty; who safely return'd to Lee, and having spent there near Two Months in Hunting, he came to the Hague to settle the State of the War for the Ensuing Year. On Sunday October 18. he Embark'd on the Mary Yacht in the Macle, being attended by a Squadron of Men of War, under Command of Sir Cloudesty Showel, Rear Admiral of the Blue. On Monday about 9. in the Morning His Majesty landed at Margate, and came that Night to Kensington; upon which the Cannon were Fired from the Tower, and all the Streets were fill'd with Bonfires, Illuminations, and all possible signs of Joy for His Majesty's Safe Return.

The King returns
safeto Eng-lan.

Affairs in Ireland.

To take a short View of the Affairs in Ireland; the greatest Mischiefs done there to the English, was by the Irish Robbers, called Rapparees, who committed great Spoils and Cruelties, and then retreated into their Boggs and Fastnesses, where the Regular Forces could not reach them: Nor were the Lords Justices more successful in their Attempts to suppress 'em, either by offers of Mercy to such of 'em as should submit to Their Majesties Obedience, or by proposing a Reward for every Head of a Rapparee. King William's Forces being considerably Augmented by the Addition of those Troops, which under Mackay had happily compleated the Reduction of the Scotch Highlands; Lieutenant General Ginkle, Commander in Chief, decamped from Mullingar on June 6. and came the next day before Ballimore; the Marquis De Ruwigny, Major-General, being sent before with a Detachment of Horse and Dragoons, to possess himself of a Pass between that Place and Athlone: The Batteries being rais'd, the General sent a Message on June 8. to Colonel Ulicke Bourke, Governor of the Town, That if he and the Garrison would Surrender within Two Hours, he would save their Lives, and make them Prisoners of War; if not, they were to expect no Mercy. To which the Governor made a shuffling sort of Reply, in hopes of getting better Terms; but the Cannon and Bombs having made two several Breaches, the Pontoons being put into the Water, and all things ready for a Storm, it struck so great a Consternation, that the same Evening the Garrison, which consisted of 780 Men, besides Four Field Officers, and 259 Rapparees, laid down their Arms and Submitted at Discretion.

Ballimore
Surren-
dred.

The English put this Town into a better Condition, and March'd from thence on June 18th. when being joined by the Prince of Wirtemberg, they encamp'd at Ballymony's Pass, whilst a strong 1691. Detachment of Horse advanc'd towards Athlone. On the 19th the Van-guard march'd from Ballymony, and beat the Enemy from several Out-Ditches of the English Town of Athlone, on this side the Shannon, and lodg'd themselves there. The next day, a Battery of Ten 18 Pounders having ruin'd a Bastion near the Water-side, the General ordered an Assault to be made; the English at the word went desperately on, and in the midst of the resisting Irish kept firing, till they came to the Breach, which a French Captain of Granadiers first mounted, throwing his Granado, firing his Piece, and ordering his Men to do the same. His Bravery so encourag'd his Party, that though he was kill'd in the Action, yet the Irish were soon forc'd to quit the Place; some flying over the Bridge to Connaught's side, and the rest leaping into the Shannon where many were drown'd.

Siege of Athlone.

After this Success, Batteries were planted against the Irish-Town of Athlone, and by the 22d the Cannons and Mortars began to play very briskly on the North-East-side of the Castle. The 25th was spent in raising more Batteries, one below, and another above the Bridge, while another was Erected opposite to a Bastion the Irish had made on the other side the River. At the same time the General was concluding Methods, to March part of his Army over the Shannon, at a Ford towards Lanesborough, but that Design being frustrated, he resolv'd to force his way through the English Town, and therefore laboured hard to gain the Bridge, wherein he found no small Difficulty. However, on the 27th, the English burnt the wooden Breast-work the Enemy had made on the other side of the broken Arch; and the next Morning, had laid their Beams over, and partly Plank'd them; which a Party of the Besieg'd endeavouring to ruin, they were all killed in the Attempt. This did not discourage another Party of theirs to set about the same work, which they desperately effected, throwing down the Planks and Beams into the River. This made the General resolve to carry on the work by a close Gallery on the Bridge; but this too was burnt by the Enemy; and there seem'd no way left to pass the Shannon. So on the 30th, a Council of War was held, and it was warmly debated, Whether to attempt the River, or to March off? There were not wanting great Reasons for the latter; but the Duke of Wirtemberg, the Major Generals Mackay, Talmash, Ruwigny, and Tetteau, and Col. Cambou, urg'd, That no brave Action could be perform'd without Hazard; That the Attempt of taking the River and passing it safely, was like to be attended with Success; and proffer'd themselves to be the Leaders of the Rest. Their Opinion prevail'd; and all things being ready about Six that Evening, upon a Signal given, Captain Sandys, and Two Lieutenants, led the first Party of Sixty Granadiers, all in Armour, and 20 a-Breast, seconded by another strong Detachment of Granadiers, (which were to be supported by Six Battalions of Foot) who intrepidly took the River, a little to the left of the Bridge, against a Bastion of the Enemies; the Stream being very rapid, and the Passage very difficult, by reason of some great Stones that were in the River. At last, by an incredible piece of Bravery, they forc'd their way through Water, Fire and Smoak, and gain'd the opposite Bank, while the rest were laying Planks over the broken part of the Bridge, and bringing down the Pontoons. By these means the English pass'd over so fast, that in less than half an hour they were Masters of the Town, while the Garrison in distraction fled away to the Army near encamp'd. The English were no sooner enter'd the River, but an Express

Bravery in passin
the Sh.
non.

1691. prefs was sent from the Town to Monsieur St. Ruth, who commanded the Army, for speedy Succours; but he answered, It was impossible for the English to pretend to take a Town, and be so near with an Army to defend it. He would give a Thousand Pistoles they durst attempt it. The brave and active Sarsfield replied, He knew it was a difficult Enterprize, but not too difficult for English Courage to attempt; and therefore press'd St. Ruth to send away some Forces to relieve the Town. Which that General refusing to do, and still turning the Attempt into a Jest, some hot Words pass'd betwixt him and Sarsfield, that were thought to have their fatal Consequence not long after. St. Ruth being soon convinced that the English were in actual possession of the Place, ordered several Detachments to beat them out again: But then he was sensible of another Oversight, in not Levelling of those Fortifications of Athlone, that were next his Camp. For now the English us'd the Enemies Works against themselves, and struck such a Terror upon the whole Army of French and Irish, that they decamp'd that very Night.

Thus was the Irish Town of Athlone (when proudly thought inaccessible) resolutely taken in an Hour's time. It is a hard matter to match in History so brave an Enterprize; a fortified Town attack'd cross a deep and wide River, only by Three Thousand Men; in the face of a Great Army, who were Masters of all the Fords by the Retrenchments they had cast before them. And therefore it was but Justice, that General Ginkle should entail on his Family the Honour of this Atchievement, by the Title which was afterwards bestow'd upon him, of Earl of Athlone.

This happy General having continued at Athlone, till he had put it into a Posture of Defence, march'd out with his Army on July 10. and having reach'd Ballinasloe, encamp'd along the River Suck upon Rescommon side; which was a very good Pass, and which if the Irish had secur'd, they would have given the English a great deal more trouble. But they indeed possess'd themselves of a more advantageous Post; for they lay on the other side of Agbrim Castle, three Miles beyond Ballinasloe, and were extended from the Church of Kilcommodon, on their Right, to a Place called Gaurtnapon, about two Miles in length: On their Left run a Rivulet, having steep Hills and little Bogs on each side; next to which was a large Red Bog, almost a Mile over; in the end whereof stood the Castle of Agbrim, commanding the Way that led to their Camp; passable for Horse no where but just at the Castle, by reason of a small River, which running thro' a moist Ground, made the whole a Morass. This Morass extended it self along to the Right, where there was another Pass at Urachres, having a rising Ground on each side; and the Irish Camp lay along the Ridge of a Hill, on the side of which stood two Danish Forts, about half a Mile's distance from the Bog below, and this cut into small Enclosures, which the Irish lined very thick with Musquetiers, and kept a Communication between them.

General Ginkle having view'd the Enemy's Camp, found it of very difficult Access; but considering he had now advanced so far, that he must either fight his Way through, or retreat with Loss and Shame, he brought up his Army to front the Enemy, and provoke them to Battel. St. Ruth supposing by the way of Appearance in the English, that they were resolv'd to attack him, he made a solemn Speech, and told the poor Irish, "How successful he had been in suppressing Heresie in France and Savoy, and bringing over a vast Number of deluded Souls into the Bosom of the Mother-Church. That for this Reason his Master had made choice of him, before others, to establish the Church in Ireland, on such a Foundation, that it should not for the future be in the power of Hell or Hereticks to disturb it: And that all good Roman Catholicks depended on their Courage, to see those Glorious Things effected. He confess'd, Matters did not entirely answer his Expectation, since he came among them; but that still All might be easily recovered. He was now inform'd, that the Prince of Orange's Heretical Army was resolv'd to give them Battel; that therefore now or never was the time for them to recover their lost Honours, Privileges, and Estates of their Ancestors. They ought now to remember, that they were no Mercenary Soldiers; that their All was now at stake, and the happy Event would be to restore a pious King to his Throne, to propagate the Holy Church and Faith, and at a blow to extirpate Heresy. He begg'd them to raise their Courage, by assuring themselves, that they should have King James's Love and Gratitude, Lewis the Great's Protection, himself to Lead them on, the Church to Pray for them, and the Saints and Angels to carry their Souls into Heaven." Then he concluded with a strict Order, To give Quarter to none, especially not to spare any of the French Hereticks in the Service of the Prince of Orange.

On Sunday July 12. the English Army march'd early in the Morning towards the Enemy, but the Weather proving foggy, they halter'd till about Noon, when they advanced in as good Order as the Nature of the Ground would permit. The General having view'd the Posture of the Irish, and seeing the necessity of making himself Master of the Pass of Urachres, he sent a Danish Captain to force it; but they failing in the Attempt, he order'd Two Hundred of Cunningham's Dragoons to march to certain Ditches nigh the Ford, to keep the Enemy from coming over; while the Army in the mean time continued their March. By this time it was Two-a-Clock; and the General finding it necessary to gain that Ford, and the other Ways that lead to the Right of the Irish Camp, as the most proper Means to attack them, commanded Cunningham's Dragoons at the Ditch, to advance towards a Party of the Enemy that were posted on the other side; who thereupon, with another Party that sustain'd them, retir'd behind a Hill nearer the Camp, where a great Body was posted: Now all these being still reinforced by others, oblig'd the English Dragoons to retreat. Upon which the General order'd Eppinger's Dragoons to get between those Bodies and the Camp of the Enemy: Who presently discovering this Motion, would by the Advantage of quick Reinforcements have been too hard for the English, had not the Dragoons been seconded by my Lord Portland's Horse, who behaved themselves here with exceeding great Bravery. Now what was at first only a Skirmish, engag'd a considerable Body on both sides; but the Enemy retiring in some time, brought the Generals together to Consult, whether it was not better to defer the Battel till next Morning? Which was agreed on so far, that the Tents were order'd to be sent for: But when, by what had already happened, they perceiv'd the Enemy to be in some Disorder, the Battel was fully resolv'd on. Wherefore it was agreed by the Advice of Major General Mackay, to begin the Fight on the Enemy's Right; whereby it was propos'd to draw part of their Strength from Agbrim Castle, near to which their Main Body was posted: That so 1691.

Athlone taken.

General Ginkle deriv'd the Title of Earl of Athlone.

his good conduct and Proficiency.

Resolves to fight the Enemy.

Speech of Mons. St. Ruth.

Advance of the English towards the Irish Army.

1691. the Right Wing of the English might have an easier Passage over, to attack their Left; and then the whole English Army might have the opportunity to engage, which otherwise could not possibly be; and this Advice had its desired End. About half an hour after Four in the Afternoon, the English Left Wing moved towards the Enemy, and the Battel began afresh by Five. The Ditches were strongly lined by Irish Musqueteers, and their Horse advantageously posted to support them; and here the Irish behaved themselves like Men of another Nation, or at least as if they had been out of their own Country; defending their Posts with unparallel'd Obstinacy. Nor would they stir from one side, till the English put their Pieces over at the other; and then having Lines of Communication from one Ditch to another, they would presently post themselves, and flank the English; which occasion'd great Firings on both sides, and continu'd on the Left almost an Hour and half, before the Center and the Right Wing of the Army began to engage. In the mean time the main Army advanc'd, and Major General Mackay, and the other Officers, observing several Bodies of the Enemy's Horse and Foot draw off from the Left, and move towards the Right, where they were hard put to it by the English; our General laid hold of the opportunity, and ordered the Foot to march over the Bog which fronted the Enemies main Body. Now the Regiments of Erle, Herbert, Creighton, and Brewer, going over the narrowest Place, where the Hedges on the Enemies side ran farthest into the Bog, they had Orders to march to the lowest of the Ditches adjoining to the side of the Bog, and there to Post themselves till the Horse could come about by Aghbrim Castle, and sustain them; and till the other Foot had marched over the other Bog before, where it was broader; and were supported by Foulk's and Brigadier Stuart's Regiments. Erle's and the other Three Regiments, pursuant to their Orders, advanced over the Bog, most of them passing up to the middle in Mud and Water; and upon their near Approach to the Ditches, received the Enemies Fire; which yet did not hinder them from marching to the lowest Hedge, and to beat the Irish from thence; and so on from Hedge to Hedge, till they were got very near their main Body: But the Irish had so well ordered the matter, that they had an easy Passage for their Horse among all those Hedges and Ditches; which yet being observed by the valiant Colonel Erle, he encouraged his Men, by telling them, there was no way to come off, but to be brave. However, the English being both flank'd and fronted, and expos'd to all the Enemies Fire from the Neighbouring Hedges; they were forced from their Ground, and to retreat again to the Bog with considerable Loss. And among others, the brave Colonels Erle and Herbert being taken Prisoners, the former, after being twice taken and retaken, at last got clear of the Enemy; but the other, as was reported, was barbarously murdered by the Irish, when they saw he was like to be rescued.

While things pass'd after this manner on this side, Colonel St. John's, Colonel Tiffin's, the Lord George Hamilton's, the French Refugees in English Service, and several other Regiments, were marching over below upon the Bog; while the Irish lay so close in their Ditches, that many of the English were doubtful, whether they had any Men at that Place or no. But no sooner were the French Protestants and the rest got within Twenty Yards of the Ditches, but the Irish fired very furiously upon them; which the other sustained with intrepidity, and still bravely pre-fed forwards, though they could scarce see one another for Smoak. And now the Battel seem'd so doubtful for some time, that a Stander-by would rather have judg'd the Victory inclin'd to the Irish; for they had driven the English Foot in the Center so far back, that they were almost got even with the Great Guns, (planted near the Bog) of which the English had no Benefit in that Conjunction, because of the mixture of the Irish with their own Men.

We hear little all this while of the Horse; but while the Infantry was thus engaged, Major General Ruvigny's Regiment of French Horse, and Sir John Laniel's, being both posted on the Right, the latter was afterwards drawn to the Left, where they did great Service; and the Right Wing of the English Horse were in the mean time making the best of their way to succour the Foot; being sensible of the extrem danger they were in, and that all lay at stake. The Cavalry, besides the Showers of Bullets pour'd on them from a Body of the Enemies Dragoons and Foot, that were conveniently posted under a Cover'd Place, was likewise oblig'd to press and tumble over a very dangerous Pass; but having with incredible Bravery surmounted all these Difficulties, they lodged themselves at last in a dry Ditch, in the hottest of the Enemies Fire from Aghbrim Castle, and some old Walls and adjoining Hedges. It was reported, that St. Ruth observing the great Difficulties the English Horse encounter'd with upon this occasion, should say, They are brave Fellows, 'tis pity they should be so expos'd.

The English Foot all this while labour'd under very great Disadvantage in the Center; which being observed by the brave Talwash, he hasten'd with some fresh Men to their Relief; and ordered the broken Regiments to halt and face about: Which they immediately obeyed, and bravely charg'd the Irish, who had advanced upon them to the very Center of the Bog; killed above Three Hundred of them before they could retreat out of it; and then march'd boldly up to their old Ground from whence they had been beaten. At the same time Mackay fell upon the Enemy, with a good Body of Horse on their Left; and among the rest, the French Regiment of Horse had forc'd a Regiment of Irish Dragoons from an Advantageous Post, and put Tyrconnel's Horse to flight. Whereupon Ruvigny, at the Head of Oxford's Horse, supported by his own Regiment, went along the side of the Bog, and bore all down before him. And now the Horse and Foot of the English Right, and the Irish Left Wing, being mix'd, there was nothing but a continual Fire, and a very sharp Dispute all along the Lines: The Irish with great Resolution endeavouring to maintain their Ditches, and the English to beat them out from thence. However, the Fight did not appear much longer to be doubtful: For tho' St. Ruth, when he saw the English Foot in the Center repuls'd, in an Exstasy of Joy told those about him, he would now beat the English Army to the very Gates of Dublin; yet seeing with great Concern Oxford, Ruvigny, Langston, and Bierly's Horse, with Levison's Dragoons, pressing over towards the Castle; he order'd a Brigade of his own Horse to march up. Then riding to one of his Batteries, and giving the Gunners Orders where to fire; and afterwards leading on some Horse towards the Place where he saw the English endeavour to get over; as he rode down the Hill of Kilconmodon, the Place where the main Strefs of the Battel was fought, being just under the Irish Camp; he was killed with a Cannon Ball. As soon as he fell, his Body was removed behind the Hill, and his

The Battel.

Difficulties and Disadvantages to the English side.

1691. The Battel very doubtful.

St. Ruth kill'd.

Guard

1691. Guard going off at the same time, this was no sooner observed by the Irish Horse, but many of them drew off also, and in a short time their Army was driven to the top of Kilcommadon Hill, where their Camp had lain; which being level'd and expos'd to the English Shot more openly, they began now to betake themselves to an open Flight, the Foot towards a large Bog behind them on the Left, and the Horse on the Highway towards Loughbreach.

The Irish Army defeated.

While all this was doing in the Right Wing and Center, the English to the Left, that first Engaged, bravely maintained their Ground; and though the Irish once or twice did make themselves Masters of the Cheroux de Frise that covered the French Foot of Refugees, yet they courageously regained them again: However, little happened on their side for near Two Hours together; neither did the Danish Horse and Foot that were on the Left of all, disturb the Enemy as yet, but kept in Awe several Bodies of Horse and Foot that Faced them on the other side of the Rivulet: But then perceiving Mackay's Battalions in the Center to drive the Enemy before them, left those Bodies that Faced them should fall back to the relief of the Flying Party, they Engaged them very briskly, and were at first received with great Resolution; but the Irish being on the Decline, they all Fled out of the Field, their Foot being miserably Slaughter'd by the English Horse and Dragoons, and their Horse pursued near Three Miles; but the Night coming on, with a thick misty Rain, prevented the English from getting between them and a very advantageous Pass near Loughbreach, which gave many of them an opportunity to escape: However it was computed, that no less than Four Thousand of the Irish were Slain upon the Spot; and of the English Seven Hundred Killed, and as many Wounded: Which still makes the Victory to be the more considerable, since the English Army did not make up above Eighteen Thousand effective Men; whereas the Irish were computed at Twenty Thousand Foot, and Five Thousand Horse and Dragoons. As for the Honour of this great Day, the Renowned General Ginkle had ever the Modesty to confess, that it was principally owing to the Conduct and Bravery of the Marquess of Ruvoigny, and of the Oxford and French Regiments of Horse.

The Victory very great.

The English march to Galloway.

The English lay upon their Arms all Night, and then after a few Days of Refreshment, the General March'd them on to Galloway, the most considerable Place now left in the Hands of the Irish, next to Limerick, and having Posted his Troops about the Town, he sent them a Summons to Surrender. The Lord Dillon Governour sent Answer, that Monsieur D'Usson who Commanded in Chief, as well as himself, and the rest of the Officers, were resolv'd to Defend the Place to the last Extremity. But for all this Boast, the English had no sooner march'd part of their Forces over the River, and taken a Fort the Irish were then Building, but a Parly was Beat, and Hostages were immediately Exchanged. But the Irish demurring upon the manner of Surrender, the General grew Impatient, and sent once or twice to them to come to a speedy Conclusion. At last Lieutenant General Bourke, one of the Irish Hostages was allow'd to go in, to whom Major General Talmash, who seem'd rather inclined to lay the Treaty aside, and take the Town by Storm, said, When you are ready to begin again, give us a Sign by firing a Gun into the Air. But the other Reply'd, they would not fire a Gun from within, till they were Provoked from without. After some time, the Articles were Agreed on, and the Town deliver'd into the Hands of the

And take the Place.

English on July the 20th. The consequence of which was the Submission of Baldrick O'Donnell, with a considerable number of Men under his Command; and a March of the English Army towards Limerick; where Tyreconnel Died on August the 14th. as if the ill Condition of his Master's Affairs had broke his Heart.

1691. Death of Tyreconnel.

On August the 25th. the English Army reached Limerick, and that same Day made themselves masters of Ireton and Cromwell Forts, which were now order'd to be called Mackay and Nession's, because gained by those Commanders; Two Days after Castle Connell, and Castle Carruck a Gumel that stood upon the Shannon, Three Miles below the Town, were Attack'd, and the Garrisons of both made Prisoners of War. At the same time some English Ships came up the River, and Fired among the Irish Horse, that were Encamped near the Banks of it; who were much Surprized, because they had been made to believe that the English had no Ships there, or else that those they had must Fly or be Destroyed by the French Fleet which they Hourly expected. But though the Siege was vigorously carried on, and the Bombs did great Execution upon their Camp, and in their Town, yet on the 17th. of September it was warmly Debated in a Council of War, whether they should prosecute the Siege, or March over the River, and Destroy all the Enemies Forage in the County of Clare, and then turn the Siege into a Blockade. It was so far carried for the latter, that an Engineer was ordered to go with a Detachment towards Kilmalock, and Fortify that Place, But before he got out of the Camp he was countermanded, and a great many Pallisadoes were brought into Mackay's Fort, as if the Army intended to Winter there. On the 19th. it was resolv'd to pass the River with a great Party, either to press the Siege on that side, or at least to Burn the Enemies Forage. On the 22^d. General Ginkle with indefatigable Courage pass'd the Shannon over a Bridge of Boats with strong Detachments of Horse and Dragoons, Ten Battalions of Foot, and Fourteen Pieces of Cannon, leaving Prince Wirtemberg, Mackay and Talmash to command on this side. The Enemy continually Fired upon them all the Morning from several Batteries, but without any great harm; and in the Afternoon a Party of Colonel Marbous's Dragoons was vigorously Attacked by a stronger Detachment, till the English Foot coming up, the Irish retreated under their Cannon. Then all the English Grenadiers, sustained by Four Regiments of Foot, were commanded to Assault the Works that covered Thomon Bridge, wherein the Enemy had Posted above Two Hundred Men. The Dispute was Hot and Obstinate for a while, and the Attack extremely hazardous, the Besieged plying the Assaultants with their Cannon from the King's Castle, and Two or Three more Batteries, as also with their small Shot from the Wall; however the Irish being furiously press'd upon by the Grenadiers, were abandoning their Posts, when a strong Detachment was sent from the Town to support them; but the English advanced with such Courage and Bravery, that they Beat the Enemy and Pursued them over the Bridge into the Town. A French Major who commanded at Thomon Gate, fearing the English would enter into the Town pell-mell with the Run-aways, ordered the Draw-bridge to be drawn up, and left the whole Party expos'd to the Fury of their Pursuers, who Killed Six Hundred of them, and made above a Hundred and Sixty Prisoners, besides a great number were pushed into the Shannon.

Siege of Limerick.

English pass the Shannon.

And push on the Siege with great Bravery.

1691. Hereupon the English lodged themselves within Ten Yards of the Bridge, notwithstanding a high Tower that stood near the hither end of it; the Irish finding all Communication cut off between them and their Horse, and beginning to despair of the French Succours, entertained some thoughts of Surrendring; for Colonel Wac- hop looking out of the Tower, called to Lieuten-nant General Sarsfield, and desired leave to come and Speak with him, which was readily granted. After some Discourse he desired the same liberty for Sarsfield to Speak with Major General Ruvigny, which was likewise allowed him; and accordingly they both Discours'd about Offers and Terms of Surrendry, and towards the Evening they return'd into the Town;
the next Day Sarsfield and Wacshop came out again,
and desired a Cessation of Arms for Three Days, till they could send to Lieutenant General Shel- den, who lay with about fifteen Hundred Horse at Six Mile Bridge, to the end they might be included in the general Capitulation; which being granted, the Prisoners in the Town were thereupon released. On the 26th. Sarsfield and Wacshop Dined with the General, and it being then agreed that Hostages should be Exchanged in order to a farther Treaty, my Lord Cutts,
Sir David Collier, Colonel Tiffin and Colonel Piper, were sent into the Town in the room of the Lords Westmeath, Evagh, Timelstone and Louth, who remained in the English Camp; the next Day the Irish sent out their Proposals, but in such extravagant Terms, that General Ginkle returned Answer, That though he was a Stranger to the Laws of England, yet he understood that what they insisted upon was so far contradictory to 'em, that he could not grant any such thing. And thereupon ordered a new Battery to be raised; but upon the Request of the Irish, he sent 'em in Twelve Articles, which proved to be the sum of the Capitulation. On October the 1st. the Lords Justices of Ireland arrived in the English
Camp, and after some farther Conferences with the Commissioners, on the part of the Garison, and their Troops in the County of Clare, the Articles were finally concluded on October the 3d.
for a Surrendry of the Castle of Limerick, and the Castles of Refs and Clare, with all other Places and Castles that were still in the hands of the Irish. These Articles consisted of two parts, Civil and Military: The First being signed by the Lords Justices and General, but the Latter by the General only: By the Military Articles,
All Persons that were willing to leave the Kingdom, were to have liberty for passing into France, or to have Protection if they were willing to remain here; but General Ginkle receiving a Letter on the 5th. of October, from a Lieutenant Colonel in the Irish Army, wherein he complained of being Confined for refusing to go into France, he resent'd this Violence to that Degree, that he immediately order'd Four Guns to be planted on Bills Bridge, and said in some Passion, He would teach the Irish to play Tricks with him. Sarsfield thereupon came into the English
Camp, and some sharp Words pass'd between him and the General: Sarsfield said at last, It is true Sir, I am now in your Power. Not so (reply'd General Ginkle,) but you shall go in again, and do the worst you can. However, all things were calm'd at last, and the Prisoner enlarg'd, and as many of the Irish as were willing to go, were Shipp'd off for France; where upon their Arrival, they were welcomed with a Comforting Letter from King James, Directed to Lieutenant General
Shelden, then the Officer in Chief with them; the Substance of which was, "That having been K. James's Letter. "Informed of the Necessities which forced the

The Irish disposed to a Surrendry.

Hostages exchanging'd

Articles of Surrendry.

1691. "Lords Justices and the General Officers of his " Forces to Surrender Limerick, and the other " Places that remained to him in his Kingdom
" of Ireland; he would not defer to let him and " the rest of the Officers know, that he was ex" tremely satisfied with his and their Conduct,
" and with the Valour of the Soldiers, but most " particularly with their Resolution of coming
" to Serve where he himself was in Person; af-
" furing them that he should never forget this " Act of Loyalty, nor fail when in a Capacity
" to give them above others particular Marks of " his Favour. In the mean time he charged Shelden to Inform 'em that they were to serve under his Majesty's Command, and by his Commissions, and that his Brother the King of France had already given Orders to Cloath them, and furnish them with all Necessaries, and to give them Quarters of Refreshment.

Thus ended the Irish War with the Surrendry of Limerick, to the immortal Honour of General Ginkle, and with so much the more Glory to the English, in that the Irish were so powerfully supported by the King of France, who had sent out another Fleet of Men of War, and Store-Ships, for the Relief of Limerick, who happen'd to arrive in Dingle Bay, but a Day or Two after the Articles were Sign'd. The News of the Surrender of Limerick was carried over to King William at the Hague, by Mr. Henry Furnace, and His Majesty bestow'd the Honour of Knighthood upon the welcome Messenger.

There was nothing extraordinary done this Year at Sea, for the Fleets being now of almost equal Strength on both sides, the French as cautiously avoided an Engagement, as they fought it the Year before. Their chief Aim was to intercept our Turkey Fleet, which was exceeding Rich: And to that end they hover'd a long time about the Irish Coast; but through a particular Providence, they had but some few Days left the Offing of Kingsale before the Smyrna Fleet on July the 3d. came all safe into that Harbour, under a Convoy of Fourteen Men of War, Commanded by Captain Aylmer, having been held back Seven Weeks by contrary Winds, in their Passage from Cadiz. The English Grand Fleet all this while kept another Course, not for want of Zeal or Fidelity in the Commander in Chief, but of Intelligence; For as soon as the Brave Admiral Ruffel was inform'd that they were got into Kingsale, he Steer'd thither from Cape Clear, and afterwards took all imaginable Care for their being safely Convoyed into their respective Ports, and then stood over to Ushant, in quest of the Enemy, who, he was inform'd were return'd that way to their own Coasts.
Being come within some Leagues of Brest, he understood they lay at Belle-Ile, secured in such a manner, that it was impossible to Attack them;
whereupon he return'd towards the English Shore,
but met with such a violent Storm, that the Co- ronation, and One or Two more Ships of less Consideration were lost; and the Admiral himself had much a-do to get the rest of the Fleet safe into Plymouth.

On Thursday October 22. the Parliament met at Westminster; and His Majesty made this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,
" I Have appointed this Meeting of the Par" liament as soon as ever the Affairs abroad
" would admit of My Return into England, that " you might have the more time to Consider of " the Best and most Effectual Ways and Means
" for the carrying on of the War against France
" this next Year.

K. James's Letter.

1691.

End of the War in Ireland.

Affairs at Sea.

Parliament meet.

King's Speech.

1691.

" I am willing to hope, That the good Success with which it hath pleased God to Bless My Arms in Ireland this Summer, will not only be a great Encouragement to you to proceed the more Cheerfully in this Work, but will be look'd upon by you as an Earnest of future Successes, which your timely Assistance to Me, may, by God's Blessing, procure to Us all. And as I do not doubt, but you will take Care to Pay the Arrears of that Army, which hath been so Deserving and so Prosperous in the Reducement of Ireland to a Peaceable Condition; So I do Assure you, there shall no Care be wanting on My Part to keep that Kingdom, as far as it is possible, from being burthensome to England for the future.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" I do not doubt but you are all sensible, That it will be necessary, We should have a strong Fleet next Year; and as early at Sea as we had this Summer. And I must tell you, That the great Power of France will as necessarily require, that We should maintain a very Considerable Army ready upon all Occasions, not only to Defend Our Selves from any Insult, but also to Annoy the Common Enemy, where it may be most Sensible to them: And I do not see how it is possible to do this with less than Sixty five thousand Men.

" I shall only add, That by the Vigor and Dispatch of your Counsels and Assistance to Me in this Session of Parliament, you have now an Opportunity in your hands, which, if neglected, you can never reasonably hope to see again, not only to Establish the future Quiet and Prosperity of these Kingdoms, but the Peace and Security of all Europe.

Both Houses Congratulated His Majesty upon His Safe and Happy Return, after so many Hazards to which He had exposed His Royal Person; And upon the Success of His Majesty's Arms in Reducing of Ireland; And did assure His Majesty, that they would assist Him to the utmost of their Power, in carrying on a Vigorous War against France, in order to procure an honourable and lasting Peace to His own Dominions, and to secure His Neighbours from the Injuries and Invasions of the Common Oppressor; hoping with His Majesty, That the Victories of this last Summer were happy Prefages of the Prosperity of His future Enterprizes." Addresses were also Presented to the Queen, to acknowledge Her Prudent Care in the Administration of the Government during His Majesty's Absence. And on the same day the Parliament met, a Proclamation was Published for a General and Publick Thangsgiving, to be observed on November 26. Forasmuch as it had pleas'd Almighty God, of his Infinite Goodness, to Protect His Majesty from great and manifold Dangers in His late Expedition beyond the Seas, and bring Him back in Safety; and to Preserve Their Majesties and Their Government against all the wicked Machinations and Designs of open and secret Enemies; and by a wonderful Success of Their Arms to reduce the Kingdom of Ireland entirely to Their Obedience, whereby Their Majesties are now Established in the full Possession of Their Three Kingdoms, and in a Condition, with the Blessing of God, to settle the same in a firm and lasting State of Safety, Honour, and Prosperity.

On Octob. 28. The Commons receiv'd and read a Bill, For Abrogating the former Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance in Ireland, and instead thereof to Establish the Oaths of Fidelity and Allegiance taken here to Their Majesties. At the Second reading of this Bill, the Statute of 2. Eliz. made in Ireland, appointing the former Oaths to be taken, was also Read; after which the Bill was Committed, and upon the Third Reading Passed. When it was sent up to the Lords for their Concurrence, their Lordships made some Amendments to it, which occasion'd two Conferences between Both Houses. But the Result of the last, was Dec. 10. That the Lords gave their Concurrence without insisting on their Alterations.

A Motion for a Supply to His Majesty had been made on Octob. 30. but was not debated till Nov. 6. when it was unanimously Resolved, That a Supply be Granted to Their Majesties for the carrying on a vigorous War against France; and at the same time it was Ordered, That His Majesty be desired to cause the State of the War for the next Year's Service, in relation to both the Fleet and Land Forces, to be laid before the House.

On Nov. 9. An Estimate of the Charge of Their Majesties Navy for the Year 1692, was delivered in by the Commissioners of the Admiralty; which having been Examin'd, the Commons Voted the Sum of Fifteen hundred seventy five thousand eight hundred and ninety eight Pounds for those Uses, including the Ordnance, and the Charge of Building One Dry Dock and Two Wet Docks at Portsmouth. And the Lord Ranelagh, pursuant to His Majesty's Directions, having laid before the Commons a List of the Land Forces, It was Resolved Nov. 19. That an Army of Sixty four thousand nine hundred twenty four Men, without including Officers, was necessary for the Service of the Year 1692, in order to the securing the Peace of the Kingdom, and the carrying on a vigorous War against France. Much time was spent in stating and examining the Estimate of the Charge of the Army, General Officers, Hospitals, Train of Artillery, and Their Transport Ships; as also in considering how far the Kingdom of Ireland could contribute toward the Charge of the Forces there; But it was at last Resolved Jan. 4. That a Sum not exceeding 1935787 Pounds, together with the Sum of 165000 Pounds, to be answer'd out of the Revenue of Ireland, be the Sum for the Land Forces, for the Service of the Year 1692. So that the Money Granted this Year for the Fleet and Army, amounted to Three millions four hundred eleven thousand six hundred seventy seven Pounds.

Upon Ways and Means to raise these great Supplies, It was Resolved: First, " That the Duties of Excise for Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, which were payable for a Year from the 17. of Nov. last, be continued for another Year. Secondly, That the Sum of One million six hundred fifty one thousand seven hundred and two Pounds be Granted upon Land. And Thirdly, That the Salaries, Fees, and Perquisites of all Offices under the Crown should be to the Use of the War, except Five hundred Pounds to be allowed to such respective Officers, and except the Salaries of the Speaker of the House of Commons, the Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal, the Judges, Foreign Ministers, and the Pay of Commission Officers serving in the Fleet and Army." But many other incident Affairs obstructed the Business of the Supply, especially the Case of the East-India Company.

For on October 28. several Merchants, their Majesties Subjects, presented a Petition to the Commons against the East-India Company; and at the same time the East-India Company put up another Petition in behalf of themselves; the Consideration of both which was refer'd to a Committee of the whole House. About a Fortnight after, the Heads of the Complaints against the East-India Company, were deliver'd to their 1691.

Votes for a Supply

For the Admiralty.

For an Army.

Ways and Means.

Affair of the East-India Company

Proceedings of the House.

Publick thanksgiving.

Bill for the Oaths in Ireland.

Gover-

1691. Governor; to which they having put in their Answer, the same was communicated to the Petitioners, and the East-India Company order'd to make their Defence on the 20th of November. Not only the appointed Day, but several others were spent in examining the Accounts which Sir Joseph Herne, the Governor of the East-India Company, deliver'd in as a State of their Stock and Debts at Home and Abroad; and in considering several other Petitions relating to the East-India Trade; till at last the Commons agreed to the following Resolutions: "1. That a Sum not less than 1500000 l. and not exceeding Two Millions, was a Fund necessary to carry on the East-India Trade in a Joint-Stock. 2. That no one Person should have any Share in a Joint-Stock for the East-India Trade, exceeding 5000 l. either in his own Name, or any other in Trust for him. 3. That no one Person should have above one Vote in the said Company; and that each Person who had 5000 l. Stock therein, should have one Vote. 4. That the Company to Trade to the East-Indies, should be oblig'd to Export every Year in their Trade, Goods being the Growth and Manufacture of this Nation, to the Value of 200000 l. at least. 5. That no private Contracts should be made, but all Goods Sold at publick Sales by Inch of Candle, except Salt-Petre, for the use of the Crown. 6. That the East-India Company be oblig'd to Sell to the King yearly, Salt-Petre refin'd (the Refraction not exceeding Four or Five per Cent. out of 112.) Five hundred Tuns at the rate of 30 l. per Tun. 7. That no Lot should be put at any Sales in the East-India Company at one time, exceeding 500 l. 8. That no Person should be Governor or Deputy Governor of the Company to Trade to the East-Indies, who had less Share in the Stock than 2000 l. or Committee-Man that had less than 1000 l. 9. That the Election of Governor, Deputy Governor, and Committee for the Company to Trade to the East-Indies, be made every Year. 10. That all Dividends be made in Money. 11. That no Dividends be made without leaving a sufficient Fund to pay all Debts, and carry on the Trade. 12. That a Valuation of the Stock be made every Five Years by the Accountant of the Company upon Oath, to be seen by all such as are concern'd therein. 13. That no Ships, either with Permission or without, for the future, be allowed to go to the East-Indies, except only such as should be of a Company, or be Establish'd by Act of Parliament. 14. That no By-Laws should be binding to the Company, but such as were approv'd by a General Court of Adventurers, and were not repugnant to the Laws of the Land. 15. And Lastly, That the Joint Stock of a Company to Trade to the East-Indies, be for Twenty one Years and no longer." The next day the Three following Resolutions were added to the rest, viz. "That all Persons now having above the Sum of 5000 l. in the Stock of the present East-India Company, in their own or other Persons Names, be oblig'd to sell so much thereof as should exceed the said Sum of 5000 l. at the Rate of 100 l. for every Hundred: That the Members of the Committee of the East-India Company, be oblig'd to give Security, to be approv'd of by the House, that the Stock and Estate they now had should be made good 749000 l. all Debts paid; And Lastly, That (Security being first given) an Humble Address be Presented to His Majesty, to Incorporate the present East-India Company by Charter, according to the Regulations agreed upon by the House, that the "same might pass into an Act." On the 23d of December, Sir Thomas Cook, Sir William Langborne, Sir Thomas Rawlinson, and others, the Committee of the East-India Company, deliver'd in Proposals concerning Security to be given; which being disapproved, the said Committee was order'd to produce the Persons they propos'd to be Security; and an Account of the Sums for which each Person would be Security: Which being done accordingly, the Commons, after a long Examination of the whole Matter, approv'd of the Security propos'd; and appointed a Committee to prepare and bring in a Bill to establish an East-India Company, according to the Regulations and Resolutions agreed upon by the House.

On the 3d of November, the Commons having consider'd the State of the Nation, Resolv'd, That the paying the Army any other ways, than by Musters of effective Men, was a great waisting of Their Majesties Treasure: And a Bill was Order'd to be brought in for Paying of the Army accordingly; and for better Paying of Quarters; And likewise for preventing of false Musters, and Punishing Mutineers and Deserters. At the same time the Commons Resolv'd, That the Miscarriages of the Fleet should be enquir'd into by a Committee of the whole House. A Week after, Admiral Ruffel presented to the House the Instructions given by the Commissioners for Executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of England; a List of the Ships; and an Extract of several Letters and Orders, touching the Proceedings of the said Fleet, during the last Summer's Expedition: All which were compar'd and examined with the Copies of the Several Orders that had been issued by the Commissioners of the Admiralty to the said Admiral; and a List of the Ships that had been Lost or Damag'd since the Year 1688. Deliver'd to the House of Commons by the Lord Falkland, from the Commissioners of the Admiralty.

On the 12th of Nov. The Commons were acquainted, That Mr. Bridges, a Member of their House, could give an Account of an Information given him by a Captain in Their Majesties Fleet, That Sir Ralph Delaval had lately taken a French Boat going for Ireland, with Papers of dangerous Consequence to the Government. Whereupon Mr. Bridges was Order'd to name the Person: And he having nam'd the Lord Danby; a Conference was desired with the Lords upon Matters relating to the Safety of the Kingdom; but upon a full and tedious Examination of the whole Affair, it was found that there was not a Copy of any Letter from the Earl of Nottingham, to Sir Ralph Delaval, in the Packet taken on Board the said French Vessel; but only a Letter written by his Lordship to Sir Ralph, for sending up the Papers by him Intercepted. Upon this Occasion the Commons took into their Consideration the Confessions and Examinations of the Lord Proffon and Mr. Crone; which according to their Desire, the King had order'd to be laid before the House.

About this time Dr. Wellwood, a Doctor of Physick, to signalize his Affection to the Government, employ'd his Eloquent Pen in detecting and exposing the sinister Designs of Their Majesties Enemies, in a Weekly Paper, Entituled, Mercurius Reformatus, or the New-Observator; but his Zeal having carried him so far as to reflect on the Proceedings of the Commons, That House, ever Jealous of their Privileges, Order'd both the Author and Printer of the said Paper to be sent for in Custody of their Serjeant at Arms, from whence they were at last discharg'd, after having been Reprimanded for their Offence. However Dr. Wellwood was fully recompenc'd for the

1691

Regulations in Payment of the Army.

And of Miscarriages into Fleet.

Suspicion of Intercepted Papers.

Dr. Wellwood's question'd by the Commons.

1691. the Trouble and Charge of his Confinement, being soon after made one of the Physicians in Ordinary to His Majesty.

Several other Affairs amused the House of Commons to little purpose; as a Bill for Regulating Abuses in Elections and Returns to Parliament; which was rejected after a Third Reading; A Bill for the better improvement of the Woollen Manufacture of this Kingdom; which was also thrown out before a Second Reading; A Bill for the better Repair of the Harbour of Dover; which was likewise rejected; A Bill to Regulate the Hackney Coaches; another to Discourage the Exportation of Bullion, and Encourage the Importation of it, and converting the same into the Coin of this Realm; And a Third, to Encourage Privateers; wherein no Progress was made.

On Thursday December 24. His Majesty came to the House of Peers, and gave His Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for Granting to Their Majesties certain Impositions upon Beer, Ale and other Liquors for One Year. 2. An Act for Abrogating the Oath of Supremacy in Ireland, and appointing other Oaths. 3. An Act for Preserving Two Ships Lading of Bay-Salt taken as Prize, for the Benefit of their Majesties Navy. 4. An Act for the better ascertaining the Tythes of Hemp and Flax; and to several Private Acts. On the Thursday following, being the last day of the Year, His Majesty came again to the House of Peers, and gave his Royal Assent to the Act for Granting an Aid to their Majesties, of the Sum of Sixteen Hundred Fifty One Thousand Seven Hundred Fifty Two Pounds Eighteen Shillings, towards the carrying on a Vigorous War against France: As also to one private Act; after which His Majesty concluded with this Gracious Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,
I Must not lose this Occasion of returning you my hearty Thanks, for the great Proofs you continue to give me of your Zeal and Resolution, to Support and Assist me in the Vigorous Prosecution of the War against France next Year; And I do assure you it shall be my greatest Care, that the Assistances you give Me, may be so applied, as to render them most Effectual for the Aids you design them. But I must take notice to you at the same time, with some Trouble, that the New Year is already come, while our Preparations for it are not only more backwards, but those of our Enemies, as we have reason to think, in greater forwardness than they were the last Year: I find my self therefore necessitated from this Consideration, most earnestly to recommend to you Gentlemen of the House of Commons, the hastning such further Supplies as you design to enable me with, for the Prosecution of the War.

My Lords and Gentlemen,
The Season being so far advanced, this present Sessions cannot admit of a much longer Continuance, and therefore I must recommend to you the Dispatch of all such other Bills also, as you shall Judge necessary for the Publick Good.

Both Houses were now engag'd in a warm Dispute, rais'd by the Bill for Regulating Tryals in Cases of High Treason. This Bill having been laid aside by the Lords in the preceding Session, was now again brought in and passed by the Commons; and on Nov. 18. sent up to the Lords for their Concurrence. The Lords, besides other Amendments, added this Clause to it. That upon the Tryal of any Peer or Peeres, for any Treason or Misprision of Treason; All the Peers who have a Right to Sit and Vote in Parliament, should be duly Summoned Twenty Days at least before every such Tryal, to appear at every such Tryal: And that every Peer so Summoned, and appearing on such Tryals, should Vote in the Tryal of such Peer or Peeres so to be tryed; he and they first taking the Oaths mentioned in an Act of Parliament made in the First Year of King William and Queen Mary; Entitled, An Act for Abrogating the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance, and Appointing other Oaths; and Subscribing and audibly Repeating the Declaration mentioned in an Act of Parliament made in the Thirtieth Year of King Charles the Second; Entitled, An Act for the more effectual Preserving the King's Person and Government, by Disabling Papists from Sitting in either House of Parliament.

This Clause being disagreed to by the Commons, and at Two several Conferences insisted on by the Lords; a Free Conference was manag'd between Both Houses on Jan. 5. wherein Mr. Charles Mountague, the Chief of those who spoke for the Commons, argued, "That this Bill was begun by the Commons, for the equal Advantage of such Lords and Commons who had the Misfortune to be accus'd of Treason, or Misprision of Treason. That when it was first returned from their Lordships with very many Amendments, the Commons were so willing to comply with the desire of their Lordships, and to give the Bill a speedy Passage, that they Agreed to all those Amendments, except Two; That some of them were of a very nice Nature, and related to things of which the Commons have ever been most tender. That at the First Conference the Commons gave their Lordships the Reasons that induced them to make such Amendments; which did so far satisfy their Lordships, that they did agree to the First Amendment proposed by the Lower-House; though they did insist upon this other, for which they delivered their Reasons at the Second Conference. That those Reasons had been Solemnly and Deliberately considered by the Commons, and that they had not found them sufficient to convince them; so that they did still disagree with the Lords in the foremention'd Clause. That it was very unfortunate that no Bill for the Relief of the Subject in these Cases had been tendered for many Years last past, but either this Clause, or something of the like Nature had unhappily clogged it, and been the occasion of losing it; and as this was never thought reasonable to be admitted formerly; so neither could the Commons consent to so great an alteration of our Constitution as this would introduce; That such an Alteration was far beyond the Intent and Design which the Commenshad in preparing this Bill; That they were desirous that all Men should have a fair and equal way of making their Defence; They wished, that the Guiltless should by all necessary Provisions be Protected, and allowed all Just Means of making their Innocence manifest; but they did not design to subvert the Essence and Constitutions of the Courts, nor intend to disable the Crown in one of its most necessary Prerogatives, or to place a Jurisdiction in other hands, than those to whom the Laws of England, and the Custom of the Realm had committed it. That the Clause now in Dispute struck at no less than this, and in Consequence at the Alteration of the Government of England. That the Government of England is Monarchical, and the Monarch has the Power of Constituting Courts and Offices for Administration of Justice, tho' they are to proceed according to the known Rules and Limitations of Law. That the

1691. Conference and Debates on this Matter.

1691.

“ Judges are Constituted by his Commission, the “ Sheriffs are of his Nomination and Appoint“ ment, and these are to return the Pannel of “ Jurors, who are to pass on the Lives of the “ Commoners; and that in like manner 'tis the “ Prerogative of the Crown, to constitute a “ Lord High Steward, who by his Serjeant at “ Arms does Summon a competent Number of “ Peers to be Triers of their Lordships. But “ that this Clause took away these Powers from
 “ the High Steward, and therefore it took away
 “ so much from the Regal Authority; and it “ would amount to no less, than to render the “ Subjects Independent on the Crown, in the “ Pleas of the Crown; wherein above all other “ things, the Life, Peace, and Safety of the “ Government is concern'd. That the Com“ mons had still the same Opinion of the Ho“ nour and Integrity of the Lords, which they “ had received from the Experience of past
 “ Times; but that their design in passing that Bill,
 “ was to prevent those Abuses in Trials for “ Treason in Inferior Courts for the future; by “ means of which, during the Violence of the “ late Reign, they had observed many had lost “ their Lives. That the things to which the Bill “ extended, were of such a Nature, that ex“ cept only in one Instance, (that is, the “ time of the delivery of the Copy of the “ Pannel; for it was agreed even in my Lord “ Russell's Case, That the Subject hath a Right to “ have a Copy of the Pannel) the Lords had an “ equal Benefit with the Commons. That the “ Commons did not observe, that the Clause “ sent down by the Lords does relate to the like “ Grounds of Complaint; for no Instance could “ be given of any Peer who suffered during the “ late Reign, from whence a just Cause of Ob“ jection might arise to the present method of “ Trying Peers; That the only Two Persons “ Prosecuted, came off, though pursued with “ great Violence: The one, because the Grand “ Jury could not be prevailed upon to find the “ Bill; the other was Acquitted upon his Trial, “ by the Justice of his Peers. That by all the “ Circumstances of the Trial of the Lord De- “ lemere it is manifest, that if there was any un“ fairness in the method of Trial, it then would “ have appear'd; that the Violence of those “ times was such, that the Commons were not “ protected by that Innocency which has since “ been declared in Parliament; yet then the Lord
 “ Delemere was Acquitted by the Justice and Ho“ nour of his Peers; and it might seem strange
 “ to Future Ages, that the Commons should be “ contented, that the method of Trials should “ be continued, which was not sufficient to pro“ tect their Innocency; and their Lordships alter
 “ that which had proved a Bulwark to their “ Lives. That the Commons also thought the “ Clause to be of a different Nature from the “ Bill, because the Bill did not make any alteration
 “ in the Court, or in the Nature of the Trial,
 “ which the Commons apprehended was done
 “ by the Clause; for thereby the Court is no “ longer constituted by the Precept of the Lord
 “ High Steward, who receives his Commission “ from the Crown, but the whole Order of “ Peers have a Right to make up the Court, and “ all the Friends, Relations, and Accomplices
 “ of the Person are to be his Triers. That there “ was another great Alteration in the Consti“ tution of the Court, as the Clause was Penn'd;
 “ for this Method, prescribed by the Clause,
 “ was for the Trial of every Peer, and accord“ ing to that Method every Peer who had a “ Right to Sit and Vote in Parliament, was to “ be Summon'd, and might Appear and Vote.

1691.

“ Now it was agreed by the most learned Au“ thors, that the Lords Spiritual are Peers; and “ whosoever would go about to defend the con“ trary Opinion, would find it very difficult to “ answer the several Records of Parliaments,
 “ and other Authorities, where this Point is as“ serted; particularly the well known Claim in “ Parliament of Archbishop Stafford, in the Reign “ of Edward III. and the famous Protestation in “ the Second of Richard II. (when the Bishops “ thought fit to absent themselves from Parlia“ ment, because matters of Blood were to be “ agitated there) wherein their Right of Peerage “ is directly asserted; and this Protestation be“ ing Enrolled at the desire of the King, and
 “ with the Consent of the Lords and Com“ mons, seem'd to be of the Nature of an Act “ of Parliament. That if the Law Books might “ come in for Authorities in such a Point,
 “ there are Cases, where the Pleas of the Bi“ shops, as Peers, have been judicially allow'd;
 “ so that this Clause did directly let in the Lords
 “ Spiritual to Try and be Tried, as other Peers, “ who are Noble by Descent; not that the “ Commons were dissatisfied with this, if this “ were the only matter; for the Lords Spiritual “ in all probability, by their Learning and In“ tegrity would greatly assist at the Trial of “ Peers; and the Commons were well enough “ disposed to let in these Noble Prelates to any “ Privileges in Point of Trial, which should be “ propos'd by the House of Peers: But this “ was urg'd to make good the Position laid “ down before, that by this Clause the Consti“ tution of the Court was quite altered; it ha“ ving been taken for Law, that the Lords Spi“ ritual are to be Tried as other Peers, or to be “ present and Vote at the Trial of any other “ Peer, at least out of Parliament; for as to “ their Right in Parliament, how far they are “ restrained by the Canons Agitare Judicium, “ how far these Canons have been receiv'd in Eng- “ land, and what the usage of Parliament hath “ been, was not the present business. That had
 “ this Bill come down from the Lords first, and “ the Commons had added a Clause, *That no
 “ Commoner should be Tried for Treason, but before “ all the Twelve Judges, and a Jury of Twenty Four “ Persons, and to have taken away all Challenges for “ Consanguinity*, which if it was considered, was “ somewhat of the Nature of the Lords Clause, “ though it did not go so far; if the Lords had “ thought fit to have used the same Reason for “ disagreeing to such a Clause, as the Commons
 “ had done in the present Case, that it was different “ from the design of the Bill, it would have satisfied
 “ the Commons. And that the same Reasons, which “ the Commons received from the Lords at the “ last Conference, if they had been delivered
 “ by the Commons would not have been con“ vincing to their Lordships.

“ The Commons likewise observed, that the “ Lords in the Clause, or in their Reasons, had “ not stated any Cause of Objection to the pre“ sent Method of their Trials, and therefore the “ Commons wondred, that the Lords (as they ex“ press themselves in their Reasons) should con- “ ceive that they were distinguished, so as to be more “ exposed in their Trials than the meanest Subject;
 “ since the Commons did not find, but that they “ enjoy'd this great and high Privilege (upon “ which so great a Value has been justly put) as “ fully, as ever any of their Noble Ancestors did.
 “ That 'tis by this Privilege the Body of the “ Peers has been preserved so long; That if “ any Lord at any time, should be dispos'd to “ expose himself in defence of the common Li“ berties of the People, the Commons are secu“ rity

1691. " rity to him from being oppress'd by false Accu" sations; Twelve of them must agree to find
 " a Bill before he can be Indicted, and that Bill
 " cannot be found, but upon the Oaths of Two
 " Credible Witnesses. That the Commons
 " look'd upon the Method of Trials, which the " Lords would alter, to have been as Ancient as
 " the Constitution of the Government. That " it appears in the Year Books to have been prac" tised in the First Year of Henry IV. and to " have been well known at that time. That " indeed it could not be supposed to have been " an Innovation then; the Lords, who had just
 " before depos'd King Richard II. being too " great to suffer such an Innovation, and Henry
 " IVth's Title not sufficiently Established to at" tempt it. That the reason, why no older In" stances of Proceedings before the Lord High " Steward are to be found, is this, that this very
 " Henry IV. when Duke of Lancaster, was the last
 " High Steward who ever had any fix'd Interest in " the Office; so that the Office being so long since
 " ceased, all the Records are lost, and the very Nature
 " and Power of the Office, except in this Instance of " Trying Peers, and determining Claims at Coro-
 " nations, is likewise lost: But since that time the " High Steward being only Pro hac vice, the " Proceedings are commonly transmitt'd into
 " other Courts, and so come to be found.

" The Commons urg'd, that if there be any " Objection to that Method of Trying of Peers,
 " it must be founded on a supposition of Partia-
 " lity and Unfairness of Constituting a High " Steward, or in the High Steward himself, and
 " the Peers summoned by him, and that the " Commons were unwilling to enter into such
 " kind of Supposals. As to the Partial consti" tuting of the High-Steward, if that might be " supposed, it was an Objection to the Consti" tution which entrusts the Crown with the Ad" ministration of Justice. That that Supposal
 " might as well extend to the Constitution of " the Judges and Sheriffs, and every other part " of the Administration. And if upon such a " Supposal or Distrust, the Remedy must be to " take away that part of the Administration out " of the Crown (as was done in this Clause)
 " the Reason must carry the Thing so far, that
 " the Nature of the Government would be alter'd.
 " As to the Partiality of the Lord High Steward
 " and the Peers; the Commons were unwilling
 " to suppose that it is possible, That Twelve
 " Peers should be ever found (for that Number
 " must agree, or the Person Accused is safe)
 " who can so far forget their Honour, and the " Noble Order they are of, as for Revenge or " Interest to Sacrifice an Innocent Person. But " if the Lords would suppose that such a Num" ber of Peers might be capable of being enga" ged in so ill and so dishonourable Things, then
 " the Commons thought themselves excus'd, if
 " they suppos'd, that other Passions and Motives
 " might also prevail on the Peers; such as Pity
 " in Friends, Partiality in Relations, and the Con- " sideration of their Safety, in the Case of Accom- " plices. The Commons further Alledg'd, That " most Men, and especially English-Men, enter
 " unwillingly into Matters of Blood: That the " most indifferent Peers would be most likely to " absent themselves, either from a Consideration
 " of dissatisfying the Crown on the one hand,
 " or drawing on themselves the mischiefs of a
 " Breach with the Family of the Person accused
 " on the other; (for it is to be observ'd, that a
 " Restitution of the Family follows generally in a " short time); or at least the Love of Security,
 " and Care of not engaging too far (for those
 " Tryals for the most part happen in unquiet and " troublesome Times) would keep indifferent

1691. " Men away. But the Care for a Friend must " not fail to bring Friends to the Trials; The " Concern to preserve the Family from that
 " Stain, would bring Relations; and if there be " any Accomplices, they must be ready for their " own sakes to acquit the Accused: And proba" bly their Number must be considerable in these " Cases; for it is not to be imagin'd, that a Lord
 " can enter into those base and detestable Acti" ons, which may be performed by single Per" sons; such as Poysoning or Assassinating the " Prince. That the Treasons which it can be
 " imagin'd that Lords might be engag'd in, must
 " be such as arise from Faction in the State,
 " which many must be engag'd in; and if some
 " Accident discovers sufficient Matter for a
 " Charge against one of the Parties, the rest,
 " who are conceal'd still, would have as good
 " Right to try their Confederate, as any indiffe" rent Lord: And no doubt but it is their Inte" rest to Acquit him; and how far at some times
 " this alone might go towards turning the Scale
 " of Justice, might deserve to be consider'd; es" pecially in times which might happen hereafter,
 " because they happen'd heretofore, when there
 " might be several Titles set up to the Crown,
 " and great Parties form'd. That this was a Law
 " that was to have a perpetual continuance. And " that the same Loyalty, Wisdom and Zeal,
 " which appear'd now in their Lordships, should
 " be deriv'd down to all their Posterity, was a " thing rather to be wish'd than depended upon;
 " If therefore the Clause had a tendency towards " letting in an Impunity for Treason, the Com" mons look'd upon themselves as justifi'd in dis-
 " agreeing to it: For they thought it obvious to " every one, of what Consequence it would be " to the Constitution, if such a Body as the " Peers, who have already such Privileges of all " sorts, should have Impunity of Treason added,
 " and what that must naturally end in.

" The Commons Agreed with the Lords, That
 " a good Correspondence between the Two " Houses was necessary for the Safety, Honour,
 " and Greatness of the Nation; and could never
 " think, that it was to be interrupted by their re" fusing any thing, which might endanger the " Constitution; Assuring them, The Commons
 " would never fail in improving all true Interest
 " of the Lords; but they perswaded themselves,
 " that the Lords would be of Opinion, That to " introduce any thing which tended to an Im" punity for Treason, was neither the true Interest
 " of the Crown, the Lords, nor the Commons.
 " The Managers for the Lords who spake at
 " the Conference, were the Duke of Belton, the " Marquess of Halifax, the Earls of Pembroke, Ro- " chester, Mulgrave, Nottingham, Monmouth, and
 " Stamford; and the Substance of what they Al-
 " ledg'd, was, That the Lords were sorry to be
 " of any Opinion different from the Commons,
 " especially in a Clause of so great Importance,
 " which did concern not only their Well-being,
 " but their Being. That they had not differ'd
 " from the Commons in any thing propounded
 " for their Security; and hop'd the Commons
 " would have the same Consideration for theirs.
 " That nothing was so proper for a Parliament,
 " as to provide Defences for Innocency; that in
 " ill times, Necessity; in good, Prudence, puts them
 " upon it; and tho' these were good times, in " respect of the present Government, yet they " might say, they were Unquiet and Unsafe; and
 " since none but a good Prince would ever pass
 " such Laws as these are, this was the most pro" per time to provide for the Subjects; for a good
 " King would not only be willing to protect them
 " while he lives, but to provide for their Securi" ty after his Death. That this concerned not

Arguments of the Lords.

1691. " only themselves, and therefore they would " speak the more freely; That 'tis too narrow a " Consideration for a Parliament to seek only
 " their present Ends; that their Ancestors had
 " farther Thoughts, and the Lords did not doubt
 " but the Commons would have so too. That " there can be no good done in times of Trouble
 " and Invasion of Right, but by Agreement of " Both Houses; That there might come a Prince
 " that might endeavour to invade the Liberties of " the People, and then the Commons would be " glad to have the Concurrence of the Lords:
 " And they desired the Commons would consider
 " in such a Case, whether it would not be a
 " great discouragement for the Lords to Act, un" less they might be as secure, at least, as the " Commons. That if there might be such Prin" ces, was it fitting that Part of the Govern" ment, which is so necessary to their Concur-
 " rence, should be under such Terms for their " Lives, that they dare not Oppose them with " Vigor, nor Act, because they lye under " Shackles? That the Lords would do what is " Just, though this Clause should not pass, but
 " they would be loth that these Lords that are
 " eminent for their Publick Service, should be
 " eminent for their Suffering for it.

" That in the Case of Impeachments, which " are the Groans of the People; and for the " highest Crimes, and carry with them a greater
 " supposition of Guilt than any other Accusation,
 " there all Lords must Judge; but when there
 " comes a private Prosecution, which may pro" ceed from the Influence of particular Men,
 " then the Lord lyes under the hardship of being " tried by a few Peers chosen to Try him, when " all the People may Sigh and Wish for him, but " such a Clause would do him more good. That " suppose an ill Minister should apprehend an " Impeachment in Parliament, what manner of " way could that Man hope better to come off
 " by, than by being Try'd before a Parliament
 " Sits, where his Judges may be chosen so parti-
 " cially as he shall come off; and it shall be said
 " no Man can legally undergo Two Trials for
 " the same Offence?

" That this Way of Trial was not ancienter
 " than Henry VIII. and that it was introduc'd
 " then to take off those that he did not like.
 " That in his time the Duke of Bucks was taken " off in this manner by Cardinal Woolsey; and
 " Anne of Bullen was condemn'd by her own Fa" ther. And afterwards, a Party was chosen to " condemn the Duke of Somerſet, and the Duke of " Northumberland. That the Case of the E. of
 " H— is no good Case, nor truly reported.
 " For the Parliament-Rolls, 2. Richard 4. menti" on his being Beheaded by the Rabble in Es-
 " sex.

" That this Clause did not alter the Constitu" tion any more, than as in some sense, every
 " New Law may be said to alter the Constitu" tion: And if the Commons say it is altered,
 " because formerly it was by a select Number,
 " and now all must appear; that did not seem
 " to alter the Constitution, for the High Steward
 " might summon them all. That the Lord High " Steward formerly Summon'd the Court; and
 " he Summons it still. That the Nature of the " Court was not alter'd by the Magis or Minus,
 " any more than the King's-Bench ceases to be the " same Court, when there are Three or Four
 " Judges in it.

" That tho' this Clause did not (as was said)
 " pursue the Ends of the Bill, yet either House
 " has a Power of adding what they think may " make it better. And tho' this was of a differ" ent Nature, there had been Instances of Ad-1695. " ditions of different Natures: But this was so " far from it, that it agreed entirely with it, and

 " was as suitable and necessary as any Part of it.
 " That the Commons were not well satisfied,
 " when the Commissions of the Judges ran du-
 " rante bene placito: And could it be thought rea" sonable, that the Lords, who are the Supreme
 " Judicature, should not stay in their Lives,
 " Quam diu se bene gesserint? That tho' the King
 " did now appoint the Sheriffs, it was not al" ways so: And since the Crown has made them,
 " the Commons have this Security; that they
 " may Challenge Thirty Five of the Pannel pe" remptorily, and all the rest for Cause. But " that the Judges and Sheriffs are made before
 " the Crime committed; so that it is impossible
 " for the Judges or Sheriffs to have Prejudice a" gainst any Man; but the Lord High Steward
 " is appointed after they know the Prisoner, and
 " he shall be Try'd according to the Humour of " the Times they are in. There may be Lords
 " inclin'd one way or other: But in this Place
 " there is a strong Thing join'd with this Passi" on; which is, Making their own Fortunes by " Serving the present Times. That since the " Trial of the Peers in time of Parliament must " be by the whole House; where was the In" conveniency, that at all times they should be " Tried as in Parliament? That 'twas a little
 " Favour the Lords asked in this Clause, confi" dering the Privilege of Parliament for Three " Years last past had always been subsisting; and
 " was likely to continue so during this War: So " that the Objection was taken away, as to the " present Government. For they would have " the Advantage of a Parliamentary Trial, and
 " possibly in time to come, there might be an " Inquisition for what was done now; and it " would be well to have the fairest Way of Pro" ceeding in that Matter. That in the Case of " the Lord Duchmere, there were several Lords
 " then in Town, and there were a great many " of these Lords not chosen; and 'tis a greater
 " Question, whether that Noble Lord had come
 " off as he did, if he had not receiv'd such No" tice from the Grand Jury, and every thing had " been made out so plain. That the Argument
 " used by the Managers, that they would not " allow any thing that tends to an Impunity,
 " was a large Assertion, and ought to be an Ar" gument against the Bill: Because it might hap" pen, that by giving a Copy of the Indictment,
 " and Witnesses being upon their Oaths, a Guilty
 " Man might escape, and then he had an Im" punity, tho' this was not intended. That all " that could be done in these Cases, was to put
 " in such reasonable Caution, and as far as the " Bill could provide for. That this Clause could " not extend to the Bishops; for it related only
 " to Trials out of Parliament; and they are on" ly Peers in Parliament where they may take
 " their Privilege to hear, and then go out again,
 " and do not Vote in Blood: And by the Word
 " (Peers) it must be understood of such Peers
 " only, as are Peers in respect of their Blood.
 " That the Lords were of Opinion, Seven Peers
 " were sufficient to condemn a Peer; but this " made no Alteration in the Argument; for
 " there is not much more difficulty in getting " Twelve than Seven. Indeed, there might be " a greater Difference, where a Crown or Go" vernment was not concern'd. That the Ex" cellency of a Jury is that they are taken Ex N- " cititate. What is the reason of this? Why, in " Case of false Witnesses, it is his Neighbour
 " that is to save the Man. But what Security
 " have the Lords, when the Lords are pick'd out
 " to Try them who are not of their Acquaint" ance;

1691. "ance; and the Lords, that know the whole
"Course of their Lives to be contrary to what
"is sworn against them, shall not be chosen?
"That it is implied in the Commission of the "Lord High Steward, that all the Peers should "be Summon'd; for by the Commission, all the "Peers of the Realm are commanded to attend
"him, and be obedient to him: So that the King
"does not only give Liberty, but seems to com"mand it.

The Commons Reply.
"The Managers of the Commons by way of "Reply, said, That this Clause would alter the "Constitution of this Court, and thereby a very "considerable Part of the Constitution of the "Government, and that for the worse. That 'tis
"not to be granted, That any new Law does al"ter the Constitution. That a new Law may "be made to strengthen or restore the Consti"tution against Abuses; it may be Declaratory, it
"may Ascertain things, that were left to reason"able Discretion, which are the Circumstances
"and Accidents; and notwithstanding such new "Laws, the Substance of the Constitution re"mains the same. That so by this Bill the Per"son Indicted was to have a Copy of his In"dictment Ten Days before he should Plead;
"whereas now by the Common Law he was to "have the Indictment read to him as often as he "needs, and to have Copies of so much of it,
"as he hath occasion to use, and reasonable time
"to Plead. That by this Bill, he was to have "his Witnesses Sworn, which in some Learned
"Men's Opinion was the Law before; however,
"it was but a Circumstance added to the Testi"mony. That likewise by this Bill, he was to "have a Copy of the Pannel before the Trial,
"whereas by the Course used now, he hath a
"Copy a reasonable time before. And that by "the Law now he is to have a reasonable time
"to prepare for his Trial, which time, this Bill
"ascertain'd to a Number of days. But the Com"mons urg'd, That the Alteration by the Clause
"in Question, was in a most substantial Part,
"and which highly affected the Constitution of "the Government.

"That if a like Clause were brought in, That
"every Commoner should be try'd by all the "Freeholders of the County that would appear,
"(or such of them as they should depute), it
"could not be well deny'd, that this were a
"change to the Constitution of the Govern"ment. That it might as well be said, That it "is not any altering of the Constitution, to di-
"vest the Crown of the Power of making
"Judges in Courts of Law and Equity, and other "Courts; or making Justices of the Peace, or "other Officers. That it was Granted in Par"liament, 28. Edw. I. that the People of any "County should chuse the Sheriffs; but there-
"upon ensued such Factions, Confusions and "Mischiefs in the County, that by the desire of the "People in Parliament, 1. Edw. II. the Power of "making Sheriffs was settled in the Crown. That
"tho' the High Steward be said to be the Court,
"yet the Peers Triers are so necessary a part of "the Court, that the Conviction or Acquittal de"pends entirely on them; and therefore not only
"the Number of Triers, but the Nature of the "Court might be properly affirm'd to be alter'd
"by this Clause. That the Commons were Sur-
"priz'd when they heard it Alleg'd, That this "Court and course of Trial was first introduc'd
"in Henry VIII's time, by Cardinal Wolsey, in
"the Case of the Duke of Bucks; and that all
"Trials of Peers before were in Parliament.
"That the Statute made 15. Edw. III. manifestly
"proves the contrary; it ordain'd that Peers
"should be tried by the Peers in Parliament; but 1691. "provides, That if any Peer should chuse to be "Try'd elsewhere than in Parliament, he might

"That indeed, the Statute was Repeal'd, 17. Ed.
"III. (because it was so injurious to the Prero"gative) but yet it shews there was then such
"a Court and course of Trial as this out of Par"liament; for they could not in Edw. III's di"vine that there should be such a new Court and
"manner of Trial erected in Henry VIII's time.
"That the Trial of the Earl of H—, Henry IV.
"Reported in the Year Books, is no more to be
"question'd, than any other Case there: And it "is cited as Authentick, by Stampford, in his
"Learn'd Treatise of the Pleas of the Crown:
"And his Opinion also is, That this way of Tri"al was meant in the Judicium Parium, menti-
"on'd in Magna Charta; and Stampford is of greater
"Authority in this behalf, for that he was "Contemporary to the Reign of Henry VIII. and "could not have been unacquainted with this In"novation, if such there had been made, in that "time. That the very Clause now in Question
"did affirm the Legality of this way of Trial;
"for it distinguishes Treasons, which corrupt the "Blood, from others, and left all other Treasons
"and all Felony to be try'd by Peers, summon'd
"by the High Steward, as was now us'd; which
"shew'd too, that there was no great Danger ap"prehended to the Peers from this kind of Tri"al. That the Commons did not admit that a "Peer can be convicted by Seven Peers; that
"there must be Twelve at least to concur in the "Verdict: That it is not only said by my Lord
"Cook, but the Law is, That no Man shall suffer ca-
"pitally at the King's Suit, unless his Offence be form'd
"by Twenty four at least; that is, Twelve to find
"the Indictment, and Twelve to give the Verdict.
"That Twelve Peers must agree in the Verdict,
"was resolv'd in the Lord Dacres's Case, 26. Hen.
"VIII. which is remembred in Moor's Reports.
"And that the Case of every Peer that has been "Convicted, is a Proof of this; for it cannot be "shown that ever any Peer was Convicted by
"fewer than Twelve. That this Duodecim Virile
"Judicium, (sometime in use in Foreign Coun"tries) was always approv'd and establish'd by
"the Law of England, and understood to be that "Authority, to which the determination of con"tested Facts is entrusted.

"And therefore in all other Commissions and
"Precepts as well as these of the High Steward,
"wherein the Commission is in general Words,
"(viz.) To Return or Summon, tot & tales,
"such and so many Persons, by whom the Truth
"of the matter may be tried; it is to be answer'd
"and performed by the bringing of Twelve Per"sons, who are to agree in the determining of the "Matter enquired of. And as to that Clause
"which requires all Peers to be attending, it is "but a Clause of the same Form and Nature, as "in the Commissions of Oyer and Terminer, and "other Commissions; and imports no more than
"that all Persons should attend, that are re"quired to do so by Law; and it can be no
"more inferr'd from these Words, that the High
"Steward is to Summon all the Peers, than from
"the like Words in other Commissions, That all
"Freeholders are to be Summoned.

"That it is the common Notion of our Law,
"that no Man shall be Convicted of a Crime,
"but by the unanimous Judgment of Twelve un-
"exceptionable Persons, Summon'd by the King's "Officer; that the Commons have Liberty of "Challenging, because that Fear or Corruption,
"or other Cause of Partiality may be supposed
"among them. That the Lords have no Chal"lenge, but all Peers are esteem'd unexceptio-
"nable, because nothing so Mean and Disho-
"nora-

1691. honourable, is to be presumed among them. That their Lordships Ancestors chose to distinguish themselves from their Inferiors, and always claimed and enjoyed a Priviledge to be entrusted otherwise than the Commons are (viz.) They are upon Honour, not upon Oath; are not Changeable; give their Verdict Seriatim; may have more than Twelve on a Trial, and have claimed a Liberty to Eat and Drink before their Verdict; and they used to Value themselves upon these things, as Dignities and Privileges. That now the Commons that are forbid to speak otherwise of the present Peers than of their Ancestors, are to be excused, if they think no otherwise of them.

Moreover, the Commons observed, that what their Lordships had alledged concerning the Inconveniencies or Abuses that had been or might be in this way of Trial, was grounded upon undue suppositions concerning the Peers, or upon Mistakes, and not warranted by Experience. They said, they thought it a strange and foreign Supposition, that a great and Guilty Minister finding himself liable to an Impeachment next Session of Parliament, should by his Power procure himself to be Tried and Acquitted by an Inquest of Peers, on purpose by a Plea of Autre-faits to prevent a Second, and true Examination of his Crimes; for he must first be Indicted of the Treason, and then run a hazard, whether his Power will be and continue sufficient to oblige so many Peers to Acquit him by an untrue Verdict. That there is no Example in this kind, and if such an unheard-of Proceeding should ever happen, it is left to consideration, whether a Parliament could not vindicate a Kingdom against so gross and fraudulent a Contrivance. Besides, that the Court as it was ordered by this Clause, would be no less liable to such abuse. That their Lordships did not assign any sufficient Instances of any Injustice in this Court, and perhaps this Court has continued the most unblemished in point of Justice of any Court whatsoever. That in the few Trials which have been there for Treason, there have been Two Acquittals (viz.) of the Lord Dacres, and the Duke of Somerset, besides that of the Lord Delamere. That the Duke of Northumberland's Crime was Notorious, he having been in open Rebellion against Queen Mary. That if the Earl of Wiltshire had been forced to sit on the Trial of his Daughter Anne Bullen, it seems to shew a greater fairness; and if the Court had been constituted according to this Clause, he must have been Summon'd; and if the Trial had been in Parliament, he (as well as all other Peers) had been obliged to come. But that the Tradition about that Matter was rectified by the Discovery made by a Reverend Prelate, in his History of the Reformation, (a Book approved of by their Lordships) where it is made appear that that Earl did not sit upon the Trial of the Queen. That if all Power must be abolished, which is possible to be abused, there must be no Power left to the King, or Lords, or Commons; and perhaps there were no harder Cases to be found, than those wherein all Three have concurred, of which the Attainting Cromwell Earl of Essex, without suffering him to come from the Tower to be heard, is an Instance. That if any Inquisition might be made into what is now doing, 'twere better to lay aside the Clause, that no Body might have any Dependance, but upon the safety of the present Government.

1691. That the High Steward is made pro hac vice, or after the Crime, is no singular thing, for the Justices of Oyer and Terminer, and of Goal Delivery, are made so Twice a Year or oftner, and all hold all their Places during the King's Pleasure. That notwithstanding this Clause, the High Steward is still to be appointed by the King in the same manner as before; and in all Treasons, (but those mention'd) and in all Felonies, he continues to have the same power of Trying a Peer, by an Inquest of Peers, Summon'd by his Precept, as is now used; by which alone the Lives and Fortunes of the Peers will remain expos'd to as much danger, as they were (if any there were) before this Bill. The Commons acknowledged they had known, that when a Peer hath stood Indicted, sitting a Parliament, the Indictment hath been by the King's Writ of Certiorari removed into the House of Peers, there to be Tried by all Peers, but they did not know that of necessity that must be done, or that such Peers might not then be Tried in the Ordinary Court; and it would be highly inconvenient in Case of long Parliaments, if it might not be so. But that is no concluding Argument, that because there is this extraordinary way of Trial, therefore the ordinary should be taken away.

That there is also another way of Trial, which in other Capital Offences concerns the Peers too, that is, by a Jury of Freeholders; which their Lordships in this Debate discommend, because those Freeholders were of the Vicinage, and the Prisoner might Challenge Thirty Five without Cause, and by this the Peers as well as Commons are to be Tried in an Appeal of Rape, Murther or other Felony; but it was supposed that their Lordships would not allow it to be a good Argument, that therefore they should be order'd to be Tried so in Treason and Indictments of Treason, but they held it a Privilege to be Tried in such Cases by their Peers, in the manner now used.

That the Method of Tryal appointed by this Clause, was worse than this now in being, and it had nothing of the Nature and Virtue of a Trial in Parliament; for the Lords House hath Power to send for, and cause all the Peers to come (as they did upon the Trial of the late Lord Stafford) but to this intended Court none are to come, but such as voluntarily will, nor is it required, that there should be Twelve, or any certain Number; if but Two or Three appear it is enough, and probably none would come but the Complices, and Abettors, and Favourers, and Friends, and Relations of the Party; nor is it possible to bring together all the Peers there, as in Parliament, for in Parliament the House of Peers may appoint or adjourn the Proceedings at or to any time or times, and as often as they think fit, till the House be full, but the Proceeding in this Court before the High Steward is the Work but of one Day.

In the last place the Commons replied; That they did not find reason to pass this Clause from what was so much pressed by their Lordships, viz. That the Clause did provide such defence for the Peers, as would encourage them to adventure to join boldly with the Commons in asserting the publick Liberties. For the Commons did not find, by the present Constitution, the Lives and Fortunes of Innocent Peers were (as their Lordships intimated) expos'd to the Will of a great and Malicious Minister; and if they were, they did not see, that they would be protected by this Provision, since it extend-1691. " ed but to some Treason, and to no Felonies ;

 " and might say, It did not deserve the name of
 " Adventure for their Lordships to act only upon Terms
 " of perfect Safety. And on the other Hand,
 " the Commons apprehended it would afford too
 " great a Prospect of Safety to Guilty Peers, and
 " might embolden them to attempt against the " Crown or publick Liberties.
 " The Commons acknowledged, that these " were good times, and if they were unquiet or
 " unsafe, 'twas in relation to the Crown, and " not to the Peers, the Peerage was in no danger ;
 " the Peers had Power enough, and the Crown
 " had not too much, nor ought to be rendred
 " less safe ; therefore the Commons would insilt
 " upon the old ways, keep the Balance of the " Government as they found it, and not change
 " the Laws of England, which had hitherto been
 " used and approved."

This Conference occasion'd great Debates in both Houses, and was followed by Three other free Conferences ; the Result of all which was, that the Lords insilted upon their Clause, and that the Commons adher'd to their Disagreement to it.

Besides this Dispute between the Two Houses of Parliament, several other Affairs contributed to draw this Session into a greater length than the King desired. The Consideration of the Moneys due to the Orphans of the City of London, and the Bill brought in for their Relief, took up a great deal of time ; as did also the Additional Bill for appointing and enabling the Commissioners to Examine, Take, and State the Publick Accounts of the Kingdom ; which having passed the Lower House, was on Jan. 19. sent up to the Upper for their Concurrence : But the Lords having made some Amendments to it, which the Commons did not approve, the Bill was thereupon lost.

The Amusement given to Both Houses by one William Fuller, was another Cause of Delay and Interruption to Publick Business. The Conspiracy of the Papists in Lancashire to raise a Rebellion in this Kingdom, in order to Re-enthron the late King James, was attested by several Witnesses, and was abundantly confirm'd by the Papers taken with the Lord Preston and Mr. Ashton. Upon this moral Demonstration of a Plot, some Persons of Note were seized, and Search was made after others ; which brought the Business to be examin'd before the Commons. At this Juncture, the said Fuller being then a Prisoner in the Kings-Bench, set up for an Evidence, and at his own desire was brought to the Bar of the Commons ; where he produced several Papers, which were perused by the House ; and according to his Prayer, It was Resolved on Jan. 4. That an Application be made to His Majesty, That He would please to give to Mr. Fuller a Blank Pass for Two Persons, for their safe coming from beyond Sea or any other Place hither, to give their Evidence, for their Protection while they were here, and for their safe Return, if desir'd. About Six Weeks after, Fuller was order'd to attend the House of Commons with the Persons mentioned by him ; but he counterfeiting himself Sick, and not able to come abroad, several Members on Feb. 22. were order'd to repair to him to secure his Papers, and to take his Information upon Oath. The next day Fuller's Examination was presented to the House and read ; wherein he mention'd Mr. James Hayes and Colonel Thomas Delaval to be the Two Witnesses he intended to produce : Upon which, several Members, attended by Messengers, were order'd to go to the Places directed by Fuller, and bring the said Persons with 'em. They went, but found no such Persons : Whereupon Fuller 1691. was order'd to produce them himself, and also one Mr. Jones ; which he not being able to do, the Commons unanimously declared on Feb. 24. That William Fuller is a notorious Impostor, a Cheat, and a false Accuser ; having scandaliz'd their Majesties and their Government, abused this House, and falsly accused several Persons of Honour and Quality. And they farther Resolved, That an Address be presented to His Majesty, to command his Attorney-General to Prosecute the said Impostor. Fuller was accordingly prosecuted, and sentenc'd to stand in the Pillory : Which Ignominy he underwent with no Modesty or Remorse.

Censur'd for an Impostor, Cheat, and false Accuser.

The House of Commons having consider'd of Civil List. the Supply to be Granted to Their Majesties, order'd on Jan. 6. That a particular State of the Revenue, and a Computation of the Civil List, be laid before 'em : Which was accordingly done the next day by His Majesty's Vice-Chamberlain. On Jan. 12. a Committee was appointed to receive Proposals for raising a Sum of Money towards carrying on the War against France, upon a Fund of Perpetual Interest : And Three Days after, It was Resolved, That towards the making good the Sums of Money intended to be given by an Act made in the Second Year of Their Majesties Reign, For granting several Additional Duties of Excise, upon Beer, Ale, and other Liguors, for Four Years, &c. the Additional Duties granted by the said Act, be continued till the 17th day of May, 1697. for the Uses in the said Act mentioned.

The Commons having examin'd the Papers relating to the Revenue and Civil List, repealed the Resolution they had taken on the 12th of December, concerning the Salaries, Fees, and Perquisites of all Offices under the Crown ; and likewise Resolv'd on Jan. 19. That all Pensions granted by the Crown, except Pensions payable to the Queen Dowager, and the Princess Anne of Denmark, and such other Pensions as should be excepted by the House, be applied towards carrying on the War : And that towards raising the Supplies for the same Purposes, a Tax by a Quarterly Poll be granted to Their Majesties. By a Bill brought in for that purpose, all Persons (except such as received Alms of the Parish, poor Housekeepers and their Children,) were to pay 12 d. Quarterly for One Year : All Tradesmen and Artificers, having an Estate of the clear Value of Three hundred Pounds and upwards, Ten Shillings : All Gentlemen or reputed Gentlemen, having an Estate of Three Hundred Pounds or more, as also all Clergymen and Teachers who had any Ecclesiastical Benefice or Contribution, to the Value of Eighty Pounds per Ann. or upwards, Twenty Shillings : Every Lord of Parliament, either Spiritual or Temporal, the Sum of Ten Pounds : And all Persons who should refuse to take the Oaths to Their Majesties, double the Sums charg'd by the respective Heads.

A Poll-Tax.

Besides the Taxes already mentioned, the Commons again Resolved, That the Forfeited Estates in England and Ireland should be vested in Their Majesties, to be applied to the Use of the War : But the Two Bills which they had passed for that purpose on Feb. 12. lay neglected in the House of Lords, notwithstanding the repeated Messages sent to their Lordships to put them in mind of the same.

Bill for Forfeited Estates in England and Ireland.

On Jan. 4. The Commons order'd the Lord Castleton, Sir Henry Goodrick, and Five more of their Members, to attend upon General Ginkle with the Thanks of the House both to him and the Officers who under him had contributed to the Reduction of Ireland, for the great Services they had thereby performed to Their Majesties and these Kingdoms. General Ginkle made a very grateful

Thanks of the House to Gen. Ginkle.

Other Affairs in Parliament.

Case of William Fuller.

1691. ful Answer: He acknowledg'd this distinguishing Honour done him by the House of Commons, which he valued above a Triumph: Adding with a great deal of Modesty and Justice, That the Success of Their Majesties Arms in Ireland, was owing chiefly to the Valour of the English; and that he would take Care to communicate the Vote of that House to the Officers that serv'd in Ireland; and always endeavour the Prosperity of Their Majesties and the Government. And for a farther Mark of Honour, His Majesty was pleas'd on Feb. 20. to create this Brave General, Earl of Athlone in the County of Roscommon, and Baron of Agbrim in the County of Galloway in Ireland, for the great Services he had performed to Their Majesties, in the Reduction of that Kingdom. A Week after, that General, the Duke of Wirtemberg, the Lieutenant-Generals Scravenmore, Lanier and Talmarsh, Major-General Ruvigny, with other the General and Field-Officers in Town, who had signaliz'd themselves in the Irish Expedition, were Invited and Nobly Entertain'd at Merchant-Tailors-Hall, by Sir Thomas Stamp Lord-Mayor, the Aldermen, Sheriffs, and the most Eminent Citizens and Merchants of London; who upon this Occasion gave all imaginable Demonstrations of their Affection and Loyalty to the Government, and of Honour and Respect to those who had supported it by their Valour.

Petition of the Commons to dissolve the East-India Company

A Bill for the Establishment of an East-India Company, having been receiv'd by the Commons on Jan. 16. several Petitions were presented to the House against it: To which an unsatisfactory Answer being deliver'd by the Committee of the East-India Company, the House Resolved thereupon on Feb. 6. That an humble Address be made to His Majesty, to dissolve the present East-India Company, according to His Power reserved in their Charter; and to constitute another East-India Company, for the better preserving the East-India Trade to this Kingdom, in such manner as His Majesty in His Royal Wisdom should think fit. This Address being presented to the King on Feb. 10. His Majesty express'd himself to this effect: That it was a Matter of very great Importance to the Trade of this Kingdom: That He would consider of it, and in a short time give the Commons a positive Answer. In the mean time His Majesty on Feb. 8. conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood on Capt. John Goldsborough, who was going for the East-Indies, in the Quality of the Company's Commissary-General.

Case of the French Refugees.

About the middle of January, many of the French Protestants presented a Petition to the Commons, praying the Consideration of that House, in order to their Relief. This Petition having had but little effect, by reason of the multiplicity of Affairs that were depending in that House; those distressed Refugees apply'd themselves to the King, with their Case in Print, and their Majesties Declaration of the 25th. of April 1689. in their favour. Both which his Majesty commanded to be laid before the Commons on February the 17th. A Week after, the Commons considered his Majesty's Message, and the Motion already made for a Supply to be given towards the Relief of the Petitioners: But before they came to a Resolution, His Majesty's Affairs requir'd their Rising, by a sudden Adjournment, which prevented the Passing several Bills that were depending; such as first, A Bill for Lessening the Interest of Money; which the Commons had passed and sent up to the Lords for their Concurrence. Another, for Disabling Minors to Marry without the Consent of their Fathers or Guardians; and for preventing Clandestine Marriages; which the Lords had sent down to the Commons. A Third, for the Paying of the Army according to the Musters of effective Men, Punishing Mutineers and Deserters, and Preventing false Musters; to which the Lords had made some Amendments that occasion'd great Disputes. A fourth, for Ascertaining the Commissions and Salaries of the Judges; which, tho' it had pass'd Both Houses, was not confirm'd by the Royal Assent. A Fifth, against the Buying and Selling of Offices. A Sixth, for the better Apprehending of Highway-Men. A Seventh, To prevent Frauds by Clandestine Mortgages. And an Eighth, against Duelling. As for the Bill to empower the Courts of Chancery and Exchequer to accept of the Solemn Answer in Evidence of any of the People called Quakers: And another, for Confirming the Charters of the University of Cambridge: Both these came to the Question in the House of Commons, That they should pass; but in both it was carried in the Negative.

Bills Dropt.

His Majesty being desirous to be early in Holland, came on Wednesday February the 24th. to the House of Peers, attended with the usual Solemnity; and gave his Royal Assent to 1. An Act for raising Money by a Poll, payable Quarterly for one Year, for the Carrying on a Vigorous War against France. 2. An Act for Raising the Militia of this Kingdom for the Year 1692. altho' the Month's Pay formerly advanced be not repaid. 3. An Act to take away the Benefit of the Clergy from some Offenders, and to bring others to Punishment. 4. An Act against Corresponding with their Majesties Enemies. 5. An Act for the better Explanation and Supplying the Defects of the former Laws for the Settlement of the Poor. 6. An Act for the better Repairing and Amending the Highways; and for Settling the Rates of Carriage of Goods. 7. An Act for the better Ordering and Collecting the Duty upon Low Wines and Strong Waters, and preventing the Abuses therein. 8. An Act for the Encouragement of the Breeding and Feeding of Cattle. 9. An Act for the more effectual Discovery and Punishment of Deer-stealers. 10. An Act for Relief of Creditors against fraudulent Devises. And to several Private Acts. After which, His Majesty made this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I Return my hearty Thanks to you all, for the great Demonstrations you have given Me of your Affections in this Sessions, and for your Zeal for the Support of the Government.

And I must thank you, Gentlemen of the House of Commons, in particular, for the great Supplies you have granted for the Prosecution of the War. I assure you, I shall take Care so to Dispose of the Money you have given Me for the Publick Occasions; as that the Whole Nation may be entirely satisfied with the Application of it.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I think it proper to acquaint you with My Intentions of going beyond Sea very speedily; which I am afraid have been already retarded, more than is convenient for the present Posture of Affairs: And upon that Account I think it necessary to put an end to this present Meeting; The Season of the Year being now so very far advanced, that it may prove of the last ill Consequence to continue it any longer.

Then the Lord Chief Baron, Speaker of the House of Peers, signified to 'em His Majesty's Pleasure, That they should Adjourn themselves to the 12th. day of April next; and accordingly Both Houses so Adjourned. But on March 19. a Proclamation was publish'd for Proroguing the Parliament from the 12th. day of April, to the 24th. day of May next: At which day, Their 1691.

Majesties would expect the Attendance only of such Members, as shall be Resident in or near the Cities of London and Westminster; and that convenient Notice should be given by another Proclamation, of the time when the Parliament shall meet, and sit for the Dispatch of Business, to the end, that the Members of Both Houses may order their Affairs accordingly.

Honours and Preferments.

As to the Civil Honours and Preferments bestow'd this Year; on April 30. His Majesty was pleas'd as a mark of his Royal Favour, to confer the Honour of Knighthood on Abstrupus Danby of Massimshire in the County of Tork, Esq; On May 7. John Earl of Bridgewater was Sworn One of their Majesties most Honourable Privy Council; and soon after the same Honour was done to John Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, who on June 4. took his Place at that Board. On October 22. when the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London waited on the King to Congratulate His Majesty's safe Return into England, and the Happy Success of His Majesty's Arms, in the entire Reducing of the Kingdom of Ireland, His Majesty was pleas'd to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Richard Levett Esq; one of the Sheriffs. In the beginning of Michaelmas Term His Majesty was pleas'd to appoint Sir Edward Nevill one of the Barrons of the Court of Exchequer, to be one of the Justices of the Common Pleas, in the place of Peyton Ventriss Esq; Deceased, and John Powel Esq; Serjeant at Law to be in his room one of the Barons of the Exchequer, on whom his Majesty conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood on his Birth-Day, Nov. 4. About the same time the King was pleas'd upon the Death of Sir William Hussy, his late Ambassador at the Ottoman Port, to appoint William Harbord Esq; one of the Privy Council, to be his Ambassador Extraordinary to the Grand Signior, who Embarked for Holland, November 10. to proceed by the way of Vienna on his Journey towards Turkey. On Tuesday February 2d. at a Chapter of the most Noble Order of the Garret, held at Kensington, in the Presence of the Sovereign, His most Serene Highness John George the Fourth, Elector of Saxony, and the Right Honourable Charles Earl of Dorset and Middlesex, Lord Chamberlain of His Majesty's Household, were Elected Knights Companions of the said Most Noble Order. About the middle of February His Majesty was pleas'd to appoint Sir William Phipps Knight, to be Governour of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, and Commander in Chief of all the Militia of New England, as also Sir Edmond Andros Knight, to be Governour of Virginia, Benjamin Fletcher Esq; to be Governour of New York, and Samuell Allen Esq; to be Governour of New Hampshire in New England. On February 27th. James Johnston Esq; late Envoy Extraordinary from their Majesties to his Electoral Highness of Brandenburgh, Kiss'd Their Majesties Hands upon his being made Conjunct Secretary of State with the Lord Secretary Stair, in the Kingdom of Scotland. On March 1. Lawrence Earl of Rocheſter, Richard Earl of Ranlaugh, Charles Lord Cornwallis, and Sir Edward Seymour Bar^t. were Sworn of Their Majesties most Honourable Privy Council; and on the same Day William Earl of Bedford took the usual Oaths, as Lord Lieutenant of the County of Middlesex, and His Majesty delivering the Privy Seal to Thomas Earl of Pembrook, his Lordship's place of Commissioner in the Admiralty was given to Charles Lord Cornwallis, and at the same time Sir Edward Seymour Bar^t. and Charles Mountague Esq; were constituted Commissioners of Their Majesty's Treasury, in the Places of Sir John Loutber of Loutber Bar^t. Vice-Chamberlain of His Majesty's Household, and Tho. Pelham Esq; who had resign'd the same. On March 3d. Henry Lord Viscount Sidney, one of Their Majesties Principal Secretaries of State, delivered up the Seal to His Majesty, being prepared to go Their Majesties Lieutenant General, and General Governour of the Kingdom of Ireland. And on the same day, His Majesty was pleas'd to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Godfrey Kneller Esq; Principal Painter in Ordinary to Their Majesties. On March 17. Anthony Lord Viscount Falkland, and Robert Lord Levington were Sworn of Their Majesties most Honourable Privy-Council: And near the same time, His Majesty was pleas'd to create Thomas Coningsby Esq, one of the Lords Justices of Ireland, a Baron of that Kingdom, by the Name and Style of Thomas Baron Coningsby of Clanbrazile in the County of Armagh. On the last day of the Year, March 24. Vere Earl of Westmorland took the usual Oaths, as Joint Lord-Lieutenant of the County of Kent, with the Right Honourable Henry Lord Viscount Sidney; and Charles Lord Lansdown was Sworn likewise Joint Lord-Lieutenant of the County of Devon and Cornwall, with John Earl of Bath: And the same time John Dive Esq; was Sworn Clerk of Their Majesties most Honourable Privy-Council in Ordinary.

Among other Occurrences of this Year, it may be observ'd, That on Tuesday, July 20. His Excellency Don Pedro de Ronquillo, Conde de Gramedo, Ambassador Extraordinary from the King of Spain, after having resided many Years at this Court, and been employed in several Eminent Negotiations, in which he acquitted himself with great Zeal and Ability, Died; and on July 30. in the Evening, his Body was by Her Majesty's Order privately deposited in King Henry the Seventh's Chappel at Westminster, till it could be Transported to Spain. On Nov. 8. Signior Hain Tolledano, Envoy Extraordinary from the Emperor of Fesse and Morocco, had his publick Audience of Their Majesties, with the usual Ceremonies.

1691.

Death of Don Pedro de Ronquillo, the Spanish Ambassador.

In the Affairs of Religion, nothing seem'd more to disturb the Peace of the Church, and to threaten the Security of their Majesties Reign, than the Perseverance of the Nonjuring Bishops and Clergy: And therefore when a sufficient time had been allow'd to bring 'em into the settled Government, His Majesty was now resolv'd to fill up their Vacant Dignities: and therefore, among other Preparations for his going over to the Campaign in Flanders, he publish'd his Intentions of filling up the Vacant Dignities in manner following. Dr. Tilletson Dean of St. Paul's, was to be promoted to the Arch-Bishoprick of Canterbury, in the room of Arch-Bishop Sancroft; Dr. Patrick Bishop of Chichester, to be Translated to the Bishoprick of Ely, in the room of Bishop Turner; Dr. Beveridge Rector of St. Peter's Cornhill, was to be promoted to the Bishoprick of Bath and Wells, in the room of Bishop Kenn; Dr. Fowler to the See of Gloucester, in the room of Bishop Frampton; Dr. Cumberland to the See of Peterborough, in the room of Bishop White; Dr. Moor to the See of Norwich, in the room of Bishop Lloyd; and Dr. Grove to the See of Chichester, void by the Translation of Bishop Patrick; and Dr. Sherlock Master of the Temple, now reconciled to the Government, was Nominated to the Deanery of St. Paul's; Dr. Cumber to the Deanery of Durham, in the room of Dr. Greenwill; Mr. Talbot to the Deanery of Worcester, in the room of Dr. Hicks; and Dr. Woodward to the Deanery of Sarum. On May 9. His Majesty was pleas'd upon the Death of Dr. Lamplugh, late Archbishop of Tork, to

State of Religion.

The King resolv'd to fill up the vacant Dignities.

The several Promotions.

1691. to Nominate Dr. Sharp, Dean of Canterbury, to be Archbishop of that See. On May 16. in pursuance of Their Majesties Conge de Elire, and Letter Missive, Dr. John Tillotson was by the Dean and a full Chapter, unanimously Elected Archbishop of Canterbury; And in like manner, on May 21. Dr. John Moor, Rector of St. Andrew's Holburn, was Elected Bishop of Norwich. On May 27. Their Majesties were pleased, upon the Death of Dr. Herbert Crofts, late Bishop of Hereford, to Nominate Dr. Gilbert Ironside, Bishop of Bristol, to Succeed him in that See; and the next day, the Queen was pleased to Grant to Dr. George Hooper, Rector of Lambeth, the Deanery of Canterbury, Vacant by the Promotion of Dr. Sharp. On May 31. Dr. Tillotson was Consecrated Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, in the Church of St. Mary-le-Bow, in London, by the Bishops of Winchester, St. Asaph, Salisbury, Worcester, Bristol, and Oxford, appointed by Commission for that purpose, which was performed with the usual Order and Solemnity: All the Great Officers of State, and most of the Nobility in Town, with many other Persons of Quality, being present to express the great Esteem and Respect they had for his Grace, and the Satisfaction they receiv'd in his Promotion. Four days after, his Grace was Sworn of the Privy Council; and Their Majesties always reposed a most entire Confidence in his Prudence, Moderation, and Integrity. On June 9. The Dean and Chapter of York, with unanimous Consent, Elected Dr. John Sharp, Dean of Canterbury, to be Archbishop of that See. And the Dean and Chapter of Peterborough, unanimously Elected Dr. Richard Cumberland, Rector of Brampton in Northamptonshire, and Minister in Stamford in Lincolnshire, to be Bishop of Peterborough. The next day, the Dean and Chapter of Ely, Elected Simon Lord Bishop of Chichester, to be Bishop of Ely: The Dean and Chapter of Gloucester did also, with unanimous Consent, Elect Dr. Edward Fowler, Minister of Cripplegate in London, to be Bishop of that See. And because Dr. Beveridge, after some Consideration, thought fit to decline the Acceptance of the See of Bath and Wells, Their Majesties were pleased to Nominate Dr. Richard Kidder, Dean of Peterborough, to be Bishop of that See; and Dr. John Hill, Master of Pembroke Colledge in Oxford, to be Bishop of Bristol; and Dr. Samuel Freeman, Minister of Covent-Garden, London, was Promoted to the Deanery of Peterborough.

Consecration of New Bishops.

When all Preliminaries had been rightly adjusted, on Sunday July 8th. the New Prelates, Dr. John Sharp, Lord Archbishop of York; Dr. John Moor, Lord Bishop of Norwich; Dr. Richard Cumberland, Lord Bishop of Peterborough; and Dr. Edward Fowler, Lord Bishop of Gloucester, were Consecrated at St. Mary-le-Bow, by the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Bishops of Winchester, Salisbury, Worcester, Ely, and Bristol, with the usual Order and Solemnity. The Ceremony of the Bishop of Ely's Translation, with that of the Confirmation of the other Bishops aforementioned, had been performed the Thursday before in the same Church, with the accustomed Formalities. On August 30. Dr. Robert Greve, Bishop of Chichester; Dr. Richard Kidder, Bishop of Bath and Wells; and Dr. John Hill, Bishop of Bristol, were Consecrated at St. Mary-le-Bow, by the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Bishops of Salisbury, Worcester, Norwich, and Gloucester, with the usual Solemnity. On Nov. 25. His Majesty was pleased upon the Death of Dr. Thomas Barlow, late Bishop of Lincoln, to Nominate Dr. Thomas Tomison, Vicar of St. Martin's, to Succeed him in that See; being recommended (says a late Writer) to Their Majesties Favour and Esteem, by his Exemplary Piety, and his great Moderation towards Dissenters; whom Their Majesties still endeavoured, by all gentle (which indeed are the most effectual) Methods, to bring over to the National Church.

Their Majesties began the New Year with an Exemplary Care for the Publick Reformation of Manners; and for that purpose, Issued out this Excellent Proclamation against Vicious, Debauch'd, and Prophane Persons.

William R.

AS We cannot but be deeply Sensible of the great Goodness and Mercy of Almighty God (by whom Kings Reign) in giving so happy Success to Our Endeavours for the Rescuing these Kingdoms from Popish Tyranny and Superstition; and in Preserving Our Royal Persons, Supporting Our Government, and Uniting the Arms of most of the Princes and States in Christendom against Our Common Enemy: So We are not less touched with a Resentment, that (notwithstanding these great Deliverances) Impiety and Vice do still abound in this Our Kingdom: And that the Execution of many good Laws, which have been made for Suppressing and Diminishing thereof, have been grossly Neglected, to the great Dishonour of God and Our Holy Religion: Wherefore, and for that We cannot expect Increase or Continuance of the Blessings We and Our Subjects Enjoy, without providing Remedies to prevent the like Evils for the future; We judge Our Selves bound, by the Duty We owe to God, and the Care We have of the People Committed to Our Charge, to proceed in taking some effectual Course therein. And being therunto moved by the Pious Address of our Archbishops and Bishops, We have thought fit, by the Advice of Our Privy Council, to Issue this Our Royal Proclamation; and do declare Our Princely Intention and Resolution, to Discourage all manner of Vice and Immorality in all Persons, from the highest to the lowest Degree in this Our Realm. And we do hereby for that purpose, strictly Require, Charge, and Command, all and singular Our Judges, Mayors, Sheriffs, Justices of the Peace, and all other Our Officers Ecclesiastical and Civil, in their respective Stations, to Execute the Laws against Blasphemy, Prophane Swearing and Cursing, Drunkenness, Lewdness, and Prophanation of the Lord's day, or any other dissolute, immoral, or disorderly Practices, as they will Answer it to Almighty God, and upon Pain of Our Highest Displeasure. And for the more effectual Proceeding herein, We do hereby Direct and Command Our Judges of Assizes, and Justices of Peace, to give a strict Charge at the respective Assizes and Sessions, for the due Prosecution and Punishment of all Persons that shall presume to Offend in any the kinds aforesaid; And also of all Persons that, contrary to their Duty, shall be Remiss or Negligent in putting the said Laws in Execution.

Given at Our Court at Whitehall the One and twentieth Day of January 1692. In the Third Year of Our Reign.

This Royal Piety and Zeal laid the Foundation of the laudable and useful Societies for the Reformation of Manners; of which, this Account has been since given. "It is very well known, that in the late Times, Prophane Swearing and Cursing, Drunkenness, open Lewdness and Prophanation of the Lord's day, 1691. " day, were generally discouraged and suppressed. And it is as well known to our shame, " That these Sins have not only revived among " us, by reason of the Impunity of Offenders, " the Countenance and Preferment they have " met with, and the Contagion of great and ill " Examples; but have been committed with " great Impudence, and without Controul; " without either Shame or the Fear of the Laws: " So that they were seen and heard at Noon- " day, and in our open Streets. And, as if we " were resolved to out-do the Impieties of the " very Heathens, Prophaneness and even Blas- " phemy was too often the Wit and Entertain- " ment of our Scandalous Play-Houses; and " sincere Religion became the Jest and Scorn of " our Courts in the late Reigns.

" And even after the Accession of K. William " to the Crown, tho' Popery immediately vanish- " ed, Immorality and Prophaneness still kept " their Ground, as if they expected an Establish- " ment with our Liberties, after so long and " peaceable a Possession. Reformation was in- " deed talk'd of by some Persons, as an excel- " lent Thing; and as a proper Way of expres- " sing our Thankfulness to Almighty God for " his Mercies to this Nation; and to procure a " Continuance of 'em to us, and to our Posterity: " But Vice was look'd upon as too formidable " an Enemy to be provoked; and publick " Reformation was thought so difficult an Un- "dertaking, that those who gave it very good " Words, judged it not safe to set about it in the " Time of War, whilst there were so many in " Arms on the other side; and therefore they " seemed to decline the Thoughts of it, till we " should see the End of the Uncertain War we " were engaged in. When Things were in this " dismal and almost desperate State, it came in- " to the Hearts, it seems, of Five or Six private " Gentlemen of the Church of England, to en- "gage in this difficult and hazardous Enterprize: " Who considering, That the higher the Tide of " Wickedness was, the more need there was of " opposing it; That our crying Sins were our " greatest Enemies, and most threatned our Ru- " in; That they found Laws in force against " 'em; and that they should have the Laws of " God, with the Prayers of Good Men on their " side; resolved, whatever Difficulties they " met with, to make their Efforts, for promo- "ting the Execution of our Laws against Pro- "phaneness and Debauchery, and the Suppres- "sing of 'em by Advisable Methods.

Notwithstanding a furious Opposition from " Adversaries, the ill Offices of those from whom " better Things might have been expected, and " the unkind Neutrality of Friends; these Gentle- " men, who in a little time began to add some " others to their Number, not only kept their " Ground, but made further Advances. And this " Affair being laid before the Queen, in the Ab- " sence of His Majesty, by a Prelate of great " Learning and Fame, (the late Lord Bishop of " Worcester); She had just Sentiments of it; and " therefore thought it became Her to give it " Countenance. She graciously Condescended to " Thank those who were concerned in it, and " readily promised them Her Assistance: And af- "terwards, upon this Application made to Her " Majesty, She was pleased to direct this Gracious " Letter to the Justices of the Peace in the Coun- " ty of Middlesex, for the Suppressing of Prophan- " ness and Debauchery.

Mary R.

Queen's " T Rusty and Well-beloved, We Greet you " Letter. " well. Considering the great and in-1691. " dispensible Duty incumbent upon Us, to pro- " mote and encourage a Reformation of the " Manners of all Our Subjects; that so the " Service of God may be Advanced, and those " Blessings be procured to these Nations, which " always attend a Conscientious Discharge of " our Respective Duties, according to Our sever- " al Relations; We think it necessary, in or- " der to the Obtaining of this Publick Good, to " recommend to you the putting in Execution, " with all Fidelity and Impartiality, those Laws " which have been made, and are still in force " against the Prophanation of the Lord's-Day, " Drunkennes, Prophane Swearing and Cursing, and " all other Lewd, Enormous, and Disorderly Pra- " tices; which by a long continued Neglect, " and Connivance of the Magistrates and Offi- " cers concerned, have universally spread them- " selves, to the Dishonour of God, and Scandal " of Our Holy Religion; whereby it is now " become the more necessary for all Persons in " Authority, to apply themselves with all possi- " ble Care and Diligence, to the Suppressing " of the same. We do therefore hereby charge " and require you, to take the most effectual " Methods, for putting the Laws in Execution " against the Crimes abovementioned, and all " other Sins and Vices, particularly those which " are most prevailing in this Realm; and that " especially in such Cases where any Officer of " Justice shall be guilty of any of those Offen- " ces, or refuse or neglect to discharge the Du- " ty of his Place, for the Suppressing them; " that so such Officer, by his Punishment, may " serve for an Example to others. And to this " end, We would have you careful and diligent, " in encouraging all Constables, Church-War- " dens, Headboroughs, and all other Officers " and Persons whatsoever, to do their Part in their " several Stations; by timely and impartial Informa- " tions, and Prosecutions against all such Offenders; " for preventing of such Judgments which are " solemnly denounced against the Sins above- " mentioned. We cannot doubt of your Per- " formance hereof; since it is a Duty to which you " are obliged by Oath, and are likewise engaged to the " Discharge of it, as you tender the Honour of Al- " mighty God, the flourishing Condition of his Church " in this Kingdom, and the Continuance of his Holy " Religion among us, and the Prosperity of your Coun- " try. And so We bid you farewell.

Given at our Court at Whitehall, the Ninth " Day of July, One Thousand Six Hundred " Ninety One. In the Third Year of Our " Reign.

By Her Majesty's Command. Nottingham.

It is said of Her Majesty, That when there " was further Occasion, She show'd She was in " earnest to promote this Design, by taking more " effectual Methods for that purpose. The same " Writer asks leave to present the World with this " short Scheme of the Design, and this Account of " the Managers of it.

" I. There is a very large Body of Persons " compos'd of the Original Society before-men- " tioned, with the Additions that have been " since made of Persons of Eminency in the " Law, Members of Parliament, Justices of Peace, " and Considerable Citizens of London, of known " Abilities, and great Integrity; who frequent- " ly meet to Consult of the best Methods for car- " rying on the Business of Reformation, and to " be ready to advise and assist others that are al- " ready engaged, or any that are willing to join " in the same Design.

" This Society is at a considerable Yearly " Charge, for the effectual Managing their Bu- " siness;

1691.

ness; but takes no Contributions of any but their own Members; by whose Endeavours, as was said before, Thousands of Offenders in London and Westminster have been brought to Punishment, for Swearing, Drunkenness, and Profanation of the Lord's-Day: And a great Part of the Kingdom has been awakened, in some Measure, to a Sense of their Duty in this Respect; and thereby a very hopeful Progress is made towards a General Reformation.

A Second Society is of about Fifty Persons, Tradesmen and others, who have more especially apply'd themselves to the Suppression of Lewdness, by bringing the Offenders to Legal Punishment. These may have actually suppressed and routed out about Five Hundred Disorderly Houses, and caused to be punished some Thousands of Lewd Persons, besides Swearers, Drunkards, and Profaners of the Lord's-Day; as may appear by their Printed Lists of Offenders. These Persons, by their prudent and legal Management of their Business, have received great Countenance and Encouragement in our Courts of Judicature, and very particular Encouragement and Assistance for several Years past, from the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen; who are sensible of the great Service that is done by them, which they express upon proper Occasions.

III. A Third Society is of Constables, (of which Sort of Officers, Care is taken to form Yearly a new Body in this City) who meet to Consider of the most effectual Way to Discharge their Oaths; to acquaint one another with the Difficulties they meet with; to resolve on proper Remedies; to divide themselves in the several Parts of the City, so as to take in the whole to the best Advantage; for the inspecting of Disorderly Houses, taking up of Drunkards, Lewd Persons, Profaners of the Lord's-Day, and Swearers, out of the Streets and Markets; and carrying them before the Magistrates: And I must observe, that is found a very successful Method for Constables to take, for the Suppressing of the abominable Sin of Swearing; when Private Persons are negligent in giving Informations, and the Magistrate is careless of his Duty.

IV. A Fourth Rank of Men, who have been so highly Instrumental in this Undertaking, that they may be reckoned a Corner Stone of it, is of such as have made it some part of their Business to give Informations to the Magistrate, as they have had opportunity, of such Breaches of the Laws as were before mention'd. Many of these Persons have given the World a great and almost unheard-of Example, in this corrupt Age, of Zeal and Christian Courage, having underwent at the beginning more especially of these Proceedings, many Abuses and great Reproaches, not only from exasperated and hardened Offenders, but often from their luke-warm Friends, irreligious Relations, and sometimes from Unfaithful Magistrates, by whom they have been Reviled, Brow-beaten, and discouraged from performing such important Service, so necessary to the Welfare of their Country. And herein these brave Men have acted with so great Prudence as well as Zeal, that foreseeing it might one day be the Policy of the Enemy of all Goodness, and the Business of wicked Men, who are his Instruments, and who could not generally be brought to Shame and Punishment for their infamous Practices, but by their means to raise Prejudices in the Minds of bad and unthinking People against them, and to disparage their Proceedings, by whispering of 1691. Jealousies of their being influenced in what they did by worldly Considerations; that the World may be challenged to make appear, That these Societies have been so much as treated with by any Person whatsoever, to give Informations with any Promise of a Reward, or that they have ever received the least Advantage by any Convictions, upon these Statutes against Profaneness and Debauchery; the Money arising thereby, being wholly appropriated to the Poor, except the third part of the Penalty, upon the Statute against Profanation of the Lord's-day, which, in some Cases, the Magistrate hath a bare Power to dispose of; but was never, that we know of, received by any one of these Persons. Which I thought fit to observe, as a lasting Answer to any Objection of this kind, in Justice to them who have gone through Frowns and Reproaches for the sake of doing so much Good: And that all Men may see with how great Reason it is, both from the Character of the Persons concerned in the Discharging of this Service to Religion and their Country, as well as from the Nature and Necessity of it (which I shall hereafter enquire into), that the Name of an Informer is now become much more Glorious among wise and good Men, than it was grown Contemptible by the ill Practices of some in our days: And that it does therefore appear truly Honourable for Persons of the greatest Quality, to give Informations in these Cases for the Service of the most High God, as some among us of greater Ranks than the World does perhaps think of, have of late done, and which it hath been observed in divers Discourses lately Published, that even Princes under the Jewish Dispensation were not ashamed to do. Now when these things were done, the Princes came to me, saying, The people of Israel, and the Priests, and the Levites have not separated themselves from the People of the Lands, doing according to their Abominations, &c. Ezra 9. 1.

V. There are Eight other regulated and mixt Bodies of Housekeepers and Officers in the several Quarters of London, Westminster, and Southwark, who differ in their Constitution from those before mentioned, but generally agree in the Methods of inspecting the Behaviour of Constables and other Officers, and going along with them, and assisting them in their searching of Disorderly Houses, in taking up of Offenders, and carrying them before the Magistrate; and also in giving Informations themselves, as there is Occasion.

VI. Besides these before-mentioned, there are about Nine and thirty Religious Societies of another kind, in and about London and Westminster, which are propagated into other Parts of the Nation; as Nottingham, Gloucester, &c. and even into Ireland, where they have been for some Months since spreading in divers Towns and Cities of that Kingdom; as Kilkenny, Drogheda, Monmouth, &c. especially in Dublin, where there are about Ten of these Societies, which are promoted by the Bishops and Inferior Clergy there. These Persons meet often to Pray, sing Psalms, and Read the Holy Scriptures together; and to Reprove, Exhort, and Edify one another by their Religious Conferences. They moreover carry on at their Meetings, Designs of Charity of different kinds; such as relieving the Wants of Poor Housekeepers, maintaining their Children at School, setting of Prisoners at Liberty, supporting of Lectures and daily Prayers in our Churches.

These are the Societies which our late Gracious Queen, as the Learned Bishop that hath writ Her Life tells us, took so great Satisfaction in, that She enquired often and much about them, and was glad they went on and prevailed;

1691. ed, which, thanks be to God, they continue to do; as the Reverend Mr. Woodward, who hath obliged the World with a very particular Account of the Rise and Progress of them, hath lately acquainted us. And these likewise are Societies that have proved so exceedingly Serviceable in the Work of Reformation, that they may be reckoned a chief Support to it; as our late Great Primate, Archbishop Tillotson, declared upon several Occasions, after he had examined their Orders, and enquired into their Lives, That he thought they were the best Friends to the Church of England.

1692. The Queen being now in Administration of Affairs, began the Year with a seasonable Proclamation, dated March the 26th. for appointing a Publick and General Fast, to be observed throughout this Kingdom, on Friday April the 8th. and thenceforth on the Second Wednesday of every Month during the present War; for Imploing the Blessing and Protection of Almighty God, in the Preservation of their Majesties Sacred Persons, and Prosperity of their Arms both at Sea and Land.

Queen Dowager returns to Portugal. The Queen Dowager, who under all the Exigencies of Publick Affairs, had behaved Her Self, and govern'd Her Family, in a very prudent and inoffensive Manner; was now resolv'd to leave this Kingdom, and to retire to Her Native Country: And therefore, committing the Care of Her Palace, and Servants, and Estate, to the Charge of the Earl of Feversham, Her Majesty departed from Somerset-House on Wednesday March the 30th. and lay that Night at Rochester, the next at Canterbury, on Friday at Dover; whence She embark'd for Calais, from thence to continue Her Journey by Land to Portugal.

Sir Rowland Gwyn accused of Scandal. Sir Rowland Gwyn, Treasurer of their Majesties Chamber, was complain'd of, by the Lord Sidney, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland; for speaking some Words reflecting on his Lordship, as if he had been Guilty of Bribery and Corruption. Sir Rowland was requir'd before Her Majesty in Council, to show what Grounds he had for his Accusation: And not being able to make it out, he was turn'd out of his Place; tho' otherwise a Person who had been very much Instrumental to the present Settlement. And to vindicate the Honour of the Lord Sidney, this Order of Council was published from the Court at Whitehall, April the 7th. 1692.

Vindication of the Lord Sidney. A Complaint having been made by the Lord Sidney, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, against Sir Rowland Gwyn, for Words spoken on the 21st. or 22d. day of March last by him, reflecting upon his Lordship, as if he had taken Money for disposing of Places in Ireland; and Sir Rowland Gwyn having been required by Her Majesty to show what Grounds he had for speaking the said Words; (for doing whereof he had Time given him to this day;) And now being called in and heard, and not being able to make out the said Matter, or to show any Ground for speaking the said Words; Her Majesty thereupon in Council was pleased to declare, That the said Words were Groundless and Scandalous; and that Her Majesty is fully satisfied of the Falshood of the same.

The King in Holland. His Majesty had embarked for Holland on the 5th. of March, had arrived the next Morning in the Maeze, had landed at Orange-Polder, had gone the same day to the Hague, and not long after to Loo. But before he could begin the Campaign, the Jacobites in England began to be 1692. elevated with the Hopes of their Master's Restoration, and industriously to conspire for him. One Lunt who was employ'd to bring over and disperse King James's Commissions, having had the good Fortune to be discharg'd from Imprisonment, was again entertain'd in 1691. by the Lancashire Papists, to List Men, and Buy Arms; that if His Majesty should be taken off in Flanders, they might be ready for an Insurrection in England, as soon as the Blow was given. These Preparations having spent the Summer of the Year 1691. and the Campaign in Flanders being ended, without any News either of the Assassination or Invasion, Lunt was sent in November into France, to acquaint the Abdicated Monarch, That they were in a Condition to receive Him; and therefore desir'd Him to inform them, when His Affairs would permit Him to make a Descent into this Kingdom. Lunt return'd in December following, with Advice; That King James would be in England the next Spring; and that in the mean time Colonel Parker, and others, should be sent over with full Instructions how to put themselves into a Posture fit for His Majesty's Reception; for now the Descent from La Hogue was resolv'd upon.

Colonel Parker, and Johnson the Priest, who in Conjunction with some few others, had projected the intended Murder of the King, Landed in England about the latter end of Jan. last; and thinking the Assassination of His Majesty to be the only means to make the Invasion practicable, and the Conquest of England easy, they communicated this Design to as many as they could Trust: And (as Mr. Goodman depos'd) were in hopes to have done it before the King went to Holland; but they were so long in contriving how, by whom, when, and where it was to be done, that the time happily lapsed before their Consultations came to Maturity: However, Parker assur'd 'em that the Assassination Plot would be re-assum'd in Flanders, by the same Persons who had undertaken it last Campaign. While King James was preparing for a Descent, He was to leave His Queen Big with Child, and drawing near Her Time; upon which Occasion, He sent a Letter, dated April 2. to several Lords and others of His late Privy Council, requiring such of them as could possibly come, to pay their Attendance at St. Germain's; to be Witnesses of the Labour of His Royal Consort; which Letter was also Directed to the Duchesses of Somerset and Beaufort, the Marchioness of Halifax, the Countesses of Derby, Mulgrave, Rutland, Nottingham, Lumley, and Danby; the Ladies Brooke, Fitzharding, and Fretchville; and to the Wives of these following Commoners, of Sir John Trevor Speaker, Sir Edward Seymour, Sir Christopher Musgrave, Sir Thomas Pope Blount, Sir John Gynse, Thomas Foley, Esq; Sir Thomas Stamp, Lord Mayor, Sir William Ashburst, Sir Richard Levett, the Two Sheriffs; and in Conclusion, to Dr. Hugh Chamberlain, a Person Eminent for the Practice of Midwifry; but none of these Persons answer'd that Invitation. So that without their Appearance the Queen was said to be soon after deliver'd of a Daughter.

When the Scheme of a Descent was fully laid in France, Colonel Parker and others, were sent over to communicate it to the Jacobite Party here. This the Colonel did, by calling some General Officers, and other Confederates together, and acquainting 'em (according to the Depositions of Captain Blaire, before the Privy Council) That their Old Master had now obtain'd of the Most Christian King, Thirty thousand effective Men, and that when the Spring was a little more advanced, K. James, who was already marching into Normandy, would 1692. Plots of the Jacobites.

Letter of K. James, to attend at the Queen's Delivery.

Progress of the Jacobite Plot.

1692. be wast'ed over with them into England; with Assurance, that if that Number was not great enough to reduce His Rebellious Subjects, France would spare Him Thirty thousand more. Therefore He desir'd all to be in a readines with the greatest Speed and Secrecy imaginable: And addressing himself particularly to Captain Blair, (at the instance of Johansen the Priest) he told him, He was going to Command in Lancashire, but intended to move Southward at His Majesty's Landing; and therefore desired the Captain to join him, in regard his own Men were Raw, and the Captain's, for the most part, were all old Officers and Soldiers.

When Parker went into Lancashire, he took with him several good Officers; some of which staid with him in that County, and others he dispos'd of in Yorkshire, and the Bishoprick of Durham. His Head-Quarters were at Mr. Walmsley's at Dungan-Hall; from whence he issued out his Orders. And because their Arms were (for fear of Discovery) hid in Woods or Hedges, or buried between Walls, or laid up in Cellars and Out-houses, he order'd 'em all to be taken out and distributed among the Officers and Listed Men: While Mr. James Fountaine, a Lieutenant Colonel to the Lord Montgomery, and Colonel Hobman were Compleating each a Regiment of Horse in London to join the Late King at his Landing.

K. James prepares for a Defcent. For by this time K. James had left Paris, and was come to La Hogue with a considerable Army of English, Scottish, Irish, and French, ready to embark for England. And to prepare the way, he had sent over a very formal Declaration to this Effect.

Sends over a Declaration. "That whereas the French King according to his Promise, had put him into a way of endeavouring his Restoration, and to that end had lent him as many Troops as were enough to unty the Hands of his Subjects, and to make it safe for them to return to their Duty, and repair to his Standard; and yet purposely declined the sending over such numerous Forces, as might raise Jealousie in the Minds of any of his good Subjects; as if he intended to take the Work out of their Hands, and deprive them of so glorious an Action as the Restoration of their Lawful King (all which Troops he promised to send away, as soon as he was put into peaceable Possession) though the thing was obvious enough in it self, and that he did not think himself obliged to say any more upon that occasion, than that he came to assert his own just Rights, and to deliver his People from the Oppressions they lay under: Yet, considering how strangely they were deluded by the Prince of Orange's Declaration, and to prevent as much as in him lay, the same for the future, he was willing to look back, and take the Matter from the beginning. And it could not be forgotten, that as soon as he had notice of the Prince's Intentions to invade him, he put himself both by Sea and Land, into the best posture of Defence he was able; and seemed to have done the same so effectually, that tho' the French King offered him considerable Succours, he refused them, and threw himself wholly upon the Fidelity of the English Army; and at the same time applied himself to give reasonable Satisfaction to the Minds of his good Subjects, and undeceive them in respect to the Danger of the intended Invasion: But they perceiv'd it not till it was too late, and the Defection grown so general, that he was at length necessitated to retire into France, in order to avoid the present Danger which threatened him, and to preserve himself in his better Times, and a more happy Oppor-

1692. tunity, which was then put into his Hands. "Upon that Foundation of Justice or common Sense, the Prince's Faction in England, were pleas'd to Treat his Escape out of the hands of his Enemies, in the Style of an Abdication; which was never before used to signify any thing, but a voluntary Resignation: But upon which, they built such a Superstructure, as to make an Ancient Hereditary Monarchy become Elective. Then he goes on to shew the Miseries and Inconveniencies, which he supposes had already, and would still attend such unwarrantable Proceedings; insists upon the indisputable Title of his only Son, hoping his Queen was then with Child of another; sets forth the calamitous Condition of Europe, by reason of that War, an end of which there could be no reasonable Prospect of till his Restoration; he comes to prohibit his Subjects to pay any Taxes to support the present Usurpation; and to gain them all over to his Service, he declares he would pardon (except the Persons hereafter named) provided all Magistrates, upon notice of his Landing, made some publick Manifestation of their Allegiance to him, and Submission to his Authority: And he further declared, that if any of the Soldiery, who were in the Prince's Service, should come in to him, they should be Pardoned, and have their Pay and Arrears. Likewise He promised to Maintain the Church of England, and earnestly recommended to his Parliament the settling of Liberty of Conscience, and in a Word, to do every thing that might tend to the Honour and Welfare of the Nation.

But out of this offer of Pardon, he was pleas'd to except the Duke of Ormond, the Marquess of Winchester, the Earls of Sunderland, Bath, Danby and Nottingham, and the Lords Newport, Delamere, Wiltshire, Colchester, Cornbury, Dunblain and Churchill; the Bishops of London and St. Asaph; Sir Robert Howard, Sir John Worden, Sir Samuel Grimston, Sir Stephen Fox, Sir George Treby, Sir Basil Dixwell, Sir James Oxenden, Dr. John Tillotson, Dr. Gilbert Burnet, Francis Russel, Richard Leveson, John Trenchard Esq; and Charles Duncomb Citizen of London; together with all such as offered personal Indignities to him at Fever-sham, and those who as Judges, and Jurymen, had a hand in the Murder of Mr. Ashton, Mr. Cross, &c. and likewise all Spies and such as had betrayed his Councils during his late Absence from England.

The Queen being Informed of the designed Invasion, with a Masculine Courage and assiduous Care, gave Orders for hastning out the Fleet, and putting the Militia in readines. She sent over for Three Regiments of Foot, Colonel Schwin's, Beveridge's, and Lloyd's from Holland, under the command of Lieutenant General Talmish, which together with some other Troops remaining then in the Kingdom, did afterwards form a Camp near Portsmouth. To be the better secured from the dangers of an Insurrection, She Published a Proclamation May 4. "Commanding all Papists and reputed Papists, forthwith to depart from the Cities of London and Westminster, and from within Ten Miles of the same. And to provide for the Advice and Assistance of a sitting Parliament, She published another Proclamation May 5. requiring the Attendance of the Members of Both Houses, on May 24. the Day to which the Parliament had been Prorogued, declaring that they should on the said day Meet and Sit for the Dispatch of such Weighty and Important Affairs, Persons excepted out of K. James's Pardon.

The Queens Wife Conduct.

1692. "as may be requisite for the safety of the Kingdom, in a Time when it was threatned with a powerful Inv. sion from abroad." In the next place She caused a diligent Search to be made after several of the most Disaffected Persons, and ordered Warrants to be Issued out against them, upon which they withdrawing themselves from their usual Places of Abode, and being fled from Justice She published a Proclamation May 9. to Discover, Take and Apprehend Robert Earl of Scarisdale, Edward Henry Earl of Litchfield, Edward Lord Griffin, Charles Earl of Newbourg, Charles Earl of Middleton, Charles Earl of Dunmore, the Lord Forbs Eldest Son of the Earl of Granard, James Griffin Esq; Sir John Fenwick, Sir Theophilus Oglethorp, Sir Andrew Forester, Colonel Henry Slingsby, James Graham Esq; ----- Orby, Second Son of Sir Thomas Orby Deceased, Colonel Edward Sackville, Oliver St. George Esq; Son of Sir Oliver St. George, Major Thomas Soaper, Charles Adderly Esq; David Lloyd Esq; George Porter Esq; Son of Thomas Porter Esq; Deceased, and Edward Stafford Esq; And to be the better guarded, She order'd the Militia of Westminster, being Two Regiments of Foot of about Fifteen Hundred Men each, and a Troop of Horse to appear in Hyde Park on Monday May 9. under the Earl of Bedford Lord Lieutenant of Middlesex; and the next Day, the Train'd Bands of the City of London, in Six Regiments, under the Command of the Lord Mayor, and other their respective Colonels, consisting together of about Ten Thousand Men, were drawn out in the same place. Her Majesty was pleased to go in Person among 'em on both Days, and was extremely pleased with the good Order they appeared in, and the great Zeal and Readiness they shew'd for Her Majesty's Service.

Proclamation to apprehend suspected persons.

The Fleet set out.

Intelligence sent from France.

Prudence of the Queen.

The Fleet under the Command of Admiral Ruffel passed through the Downs on May the 8th. where they were joyned by Admiral Allemonde, with the Dutch Squadron under his Command, and soon after met the other part of our Fleet from St. Hellens, under Command of Sir Ralph Delaval, and Rear Admiral Carter. Some time before, the Jacobites had sent over Captain Lloyd Express to the Lord Melford, to acquaint his Lordship, "that they had corrupted several of the English Sea Commanders, particularly Rear Admiral Carter, and with that false Intelligence they transmitted to him an exact List of the Number and Rates of the English Fleet, and how long it would be before it was possible they could be joined by the Dutch; Praying his Lordship to lay it before the most Christian King, and procure his Command to Marechal de Tourville to seek and immediately to Fight the English, before they could be Reinforced by the Hollanders." Upon the receipt of this Message, the Lord Melford applied himself to the King of France, who immediately gave his positive Commands to Tourville to Engage the English Fleet, without waiting for the Thoulon Squadron, under Monsieur D'Estrees. Upon this Occasion a Report was spread abroad, as if some of the Officers of Their Majesties Fleet were Disaffected, or not hearty in Their Service, and that the Queen had thereupon order'd the Discharge of many of 'em from their Employments. Her Majesty was with great Wisdom sensible, that nothing could prevent the Truth of this Rumour, more effectually than to declare Herself convinc'd of the falshood of it. And therefore She Commanded the Earl of Nottingham to Write to Admiral Ruffel, and to let him know, that Her Majesty was satisfied that this Report was raised by the Enemies of the Government, and that She Reposed so entire a Confidence in their Fidelity and Zeal for Their Majesties Service, and the Defence of their Country, that She had Resolved not to displace any one of them. Which being communicated to 'em by the Admiral, they sent up a very Dutiful and Loyal Address, wherein say they, We Humbly presume to Address our selves to your Majesty at this juncture, to undeceive the World in these False and Malicious Reports that have been lately spread in prejudice of Your Majesty's Service, by People of an unreasonable Dissaffection to Your Majesty's Government, and an obstinate Aversion to the Quiet and Good of our Country; That there are some amongst us that are not truly zealous for, and entirely devoted to your Majesty's Service. We do therefore most humbly beg your Majesty's leave to add to our repeated Oaths this Assurance of our Fidelity, that we will with all imaginable Alacrity and Resolution, venture our Lives in the Defence of your Majesties undoubted Rights, and the Liberty and Religion of our Country, against all Foreign and Popish Invaders whatsoever. This Address was sign'd by Sir John Ashby Admiral of the Blue, Sir Ralph Delaval Vice Admiral of the Red, Mr. Rook Vice Admiral of the Blue, Sir Cloudesly Shovel Rear Admiral of the Red, Mr. Carter Rear Admiral of the Blue, and by other Commanders in the Fleet; and was presented on May 16. by the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty. Her Majesty accepted it very Graciously, being pleased to say, That She always had this Opinion of the Commanders, but was very glad, this was come to satisfie others.

Loyalty of the Seaman.

Upon this Assurance which the Queen gave and receiv'd from Her Fleet. She publish'd a Proclamation the same day; declaring that the Parliament should be Prorogued from May the 24th. to the 14th. of June next; giving this for the Chief Reason: Our Navy being now at Sea, and joined with that of our Allies, and in a Readiness (by the Blessing of God) to Resist and Repel the Designs and Attempts of our Enemies. Whereby Her Majesty expressed an Intrepid Temper, and indeed a Prophetick Spirit.

Parliament Prorogued.

Whilst the Jacobites were pleasing themselves with hopes of approaching Success, the first thing that put a Damp upon 'em, was the various Reports about the Joining of the English and Dutch Fleets. Once they had notice they were Joined, but this being contradicted the next Day, lest that Report should have Influence upon the French, they sent over Sir Adam Blaire to assure them that the Dutch were not yet come up; yet so it happen'd, that before the Gentleman could reach Dover, they had certain News that the Fleets were Joined indeed; and therefore one Mr. Clark was dispatched into France to acquaint them with this fatal Junction. But Mr. Clark was so far from gaining Credit to his Report, (Sir Adam Blaire averring the contrary) that he was Imprisoned as a spreader of False News, till several other Expresses confirm'd his Account. Thereupon the King of France sent Messenger upon Messenger to Tourville to decline Fighting; but these Counter-orders arrived too late.

For on the 19th. of May, whilst both France and England were at a-gaze in dubious Expectation of this important Event; about Eleven in the Morning, the French Admiral bore down and Engaged the Confederate Fleet off Cape Barfeur; and both Fleets continued Fighting till about half an hour past Four in the Afternoon, when the French towed away with all their Boats; the great Firing on both sides having soon occasion'd a Calm. But a fresh Gale springing up about Six, the Blue Squadron renew'd the Fight, and maintain'd it till Ten at Night; when the French being worsted, and having had Four Ships blown up, steer'd away for Conquet-Road.

French Fleet Engage the English.

All

1692. All that Night it was very Calm, and Foggy the next Morning; but about Eleven it beginning to clear up a little, the English saw the French Fleet about Two Leagues from them, very much less'n'd in their Number, not seeming to be above Thirty Eight Men of War; after whom they made all the Sail they could. But about Ten it grew Calm again; and at Three in the Afternoon the Two Fleets came to an Anchor, but weigh'd about Eleven at Night, and anchor'd next Morning. On the 21st. the English Sail'd again against the Enemy, the Admiral steering towards Barfleur, and the Dutch and Blue Squadron towards the Road of Alderney, thro' which Part of the French Fleet got safe to St. Malo's, the English not thinking it safe to pursue them that way; for which Sir John Ashby was question'd in Parliament. Sir Ralph Delaval had better Success: For off of Cherbourg he burnt the Royal Sun, a Ship of a Hundred and Four Guns, commanded by Admiral Tourville; the Admirable, a Ship of a Hundred and Two Guns; and the Conquerant, that carried Eighty Guns; with Three more of lesser Rate. Admiral Russel was no less successful in pursuit of Thirteen French Men of War, who haw'd in for La Hague: In which Bay he anchor'd the 21st. and next day flood in, and sent Vice-Admiral Rook with several Men of War, Frigats, Fire-ships, and Arm'd Boats, to endeavour to destroy that Part of the Enemies Fleet. But the French had got their Ships so very near the Shore, that not any of the Men of War, except their small Frigats, could do any Service. However, that Night Six of the Enemies Men of War were burnt, and the next Day the other Seven, besides several Transport-Ships. The Attempt was very difficult and dangerous, but was perform'd with that Conduct and Resolution, and the Seamen in the Boats were so animated by their Victory, that they took possession of several of the Enemies Ships, and drove the French with their own Guns, from their Platforms and Batteries, on Shore; and all this in the fight of the French and Irish Camp, that lay ready to invade England.

Relation of this Victory in Two Letters.

The most Authentick Relations of this Glorious Action at Sea, are given in Two Letters from our Fleet, which deserve to be here inserted. The First from Admiral Russel; the Second from Sir Ralph Delaval.

Admiral Russel's Letter, dated May 20. 1692.

Cape Barfleur, S. W. Distance Seven Leagues.

Y^Esterday about Three in the Morning, Cape-Barfleur bearing S. W. and by S. Distance Seven Leagues, my Scouts made the Signal for seeing the Enemy. The Wind West-ly, the French bore down to me, and at Eleven engaged me, but at some distance. We continued Fighting till half an hour past Five in the Evening, at which time the Enemy towed away with all their Boats, and we after them. It was Calm all day. About Six there was a fresh Engagement to the Westward of me, which I supposed to be the Blue. It continued Calm all Night. I can give no particular Account of Things; but that the French were beaten, and I am now steering away for Conquet Road, having a fresh Gale Easterly, but extream Foggy: I suppose that is the Place they design for. If it please God to send us a little Clear Weather, I doubt not but we shall Destroy their Whole Fleet. I saw in the night Three or Four Ships blow up, but I know not what they are. So soon as I am able to give you a more particular Relation, I will not be wanting.

Sir Ralph Delaval's Letter to the Earl of Nottingham; on Board the Royal Sovereign near Cherburgh, May 22.

I Believe it my Duty to acquaint you, That on the 21st. Instant, Admiral Russel having made the Signal for the Fleet to cut their Cables, I observed the French to be forced from the Race of Alderney, (where they anchor'd) to the Eastward; and finding that some of them endeavour'd for the Bay of Cherburgh, I stood in for that Place; where I found Three Three-Deck'd Ships of the Enemies, but so close to the Shore, and within some Rocks, that it was not safe for me to attempt them, till I had inform'd my self of the Road, they being hawled into Shoal-Water: I immediately took my Boats, and Sounded within Gun-shot of them; which they endeavoured to prevent, by Firing at us. And that no time might be lost, I went immediately on Board the St. Albans; where, for the Encouragement of the Seamen, I hoisted my Flag; and having ordered the Ruby, with Two Fire-ships, to attend me, I stood in with them, leaving the Great Ships without, as Drawing too much Water. But coming very near, they gall'd so extremely, and finding the Fire-ships could not get in; I judged it best to Retreat without Shot, and there Anchor'd; and immediately called all the Captains. Where it was resolv'd to attempt them on the Morning with all the Third and Fourth Rates, and Fire-ships. But after having drawn them into Four Fathom and a half Water, I found we could not do our Business, the Water being Shoal: Upon which I order'd Three Fire-ships to prepare themselves to attempt the Burning of them; going my self with all the Barges and Tenders, to take them up, if by the Enemies Shot they should miscarry. Indeed, I may say, and I hope without Vanity, the Service was warm; yet God be praised, so effectually performed, that notwithstanding all their Shot both from their Ships and Fort, Two of our Fire-ships had good Success, by Burning Two of them; the other by an unfortunate Shot was set on Fire, being just going on Board the Enemy. Indeed so brave was the Attempt, that I think they can hardly be sufficiently rewarded; and doubt not but Their Majesties will do them Right. The Third French Ship being run ashore, and observing the People on Board to go ashore by Boats full; I order'd the St. Albans, the Reserve, and others, to fire upon her, judging it might cause them to quit her: And after having Battered her some time, I observed she made no Resistance. I took all the Boats armed, and went on Board her. I found abundance of Men on Board, and several wounded, but no Officers: And having caus'd all the People, as well those that were wounded as others, to be taken out, I set her on fire; and had I not had notice by my Scouts, that Thirty Ships were standing with me, had sent all the French on shore, who are now very troublesome to me. The Ships we saw proved to be Sir John Ashby and the Dutch coming from the Westward. We are proceeding together to the Eastward to La Hague; where I am inform'd Three or Four of the Enemies Ships are; and if so, I hope God will give us good Success. I expect to see the Admiral to-morrow; where I hope to hear he has destroyed some of the Enemies Ships, having 1692. And are beaten.

De-struc-tion of French Ships.

1692

1692.

ing left him in Chase of them last Night, standing to the Eastward, and pretty near them, as I judged. My Lord, I hope you will excuse me, if I presume to pray, you will use your Interest with the Queen, That a Reward may be given to the Three Captains of the Fire-ships, and several of the others; for greater Zeal, and greater Bravery, I never saw. I pray your excuse for being thus Tedious, and thus Particular. Pray God preserve Their Majesties, and that Their Arms may be ever Crowned with Success by Sea and Land, shall be the Prayers and Endeavours of, &c.

P.S. Captain Heath burnt Tourville's Ship, the Royal Eur, which was the most difficult. Capt. Greenway burnt the other, called the Conquerant. The Admirable was burnt by our Boats. Captain Fowles attempted the Royal Sun, but was set on Fire by the Enemies Shot; yet deserves as well as the others.

After these two Relations, there came other Letters from the Fleet, which gave this further Account of prosecuting our happy Success. "On May 23d, in the Afternoon, Admiral Russell sent in Vice-Admiral Rook, with several light Frigates and Fire-ships, together with all the Boats of the Fleet well Armed, to Burn the French Ships which he had forced Ashore near la Hague. The Attempt was very Difficult and Dangerous; but it was made with such Conduct and Resolution, and our Men in the Boats behaved themselves so bravely, taking Possession of several of the Enemies Ships, and beating the French with their own Guns from their Platforms on the Shore, that Six of the said Ships were burnt that Night, and Six more the next Morning, in Sight of the French and Irish Camp who Fired upon us: Of these, Six were of Three Decks, and the other Six, from Sixty to Seventy Guns; and One Ship of Fifty six Guns was Overfet, and utterly lost; many of the French Seamen perished with their Ships, and a greater Number were taken Prisoners. From the latter we hear, That they lost Four or Five great Ships in the Fight, one of which was Monsieur Gabriel's, Admiral of the Blue Squadron, of Ninety odd Guns; so that we have destroy'd about 21 of their biggest Ships, besides the two Frigates, and other small Craft: And had it not been for the Foggy Weather, few of the rest would have escaped. On the other side, we have not lost one Ship, except Fire-ships, which were spent upon Action; and besides Rear-Admiral Carter, and Colonel Huffings, we have not lost one Commission Officer. As to the Number of Seamen that were Killed or Wounded in the Engagement, we can yet give no certain Account thereof.

"On the 25th, Admiral Russell set Sail from la Hague, and Anchored the 26th off of St. Helens, after having burnt twenty of the Enemies Transport Ships, (they having there about Fifty in all), and sent Sir John Ashby, with a Squadron of English and Dutch Men of War, and several Fire-ships, to make the like Attempt if he found it practicable, upon their Shipping at Harve de Grace. The Admiral had given Orders, That publick Prayers and Thanksgivings should be made to Almighty God on the 27th, throughout Their Majesties Fleet, for this Great and Signal Victory.

King James felt this to be so heavy a Blow, that he never recover'd the Impression of it; he seem'd now to recede from all hopes of His Restoration, and fell to writing the Melancholy Letter to the French King.

Monseur, My Brother,

I Have hitherto with something of Constancy and Resolution supported the Weight of all the Misfortunes, which it has pleas'd Heaven to lay upon Me, so long as My self was the only Sufferer: But I must acknowledge this last Disaster utterly overwhelms Me; and I am altogether Comfortless, in reference to what concerns Your Majesty, through the great Loss that has befallen Your Fleets. I know too well, that My Unlucky Star is, that has drawn down this Misfortune upon Your Forces, always Victorious, but when they Fought for My Interests. And this is that which plainly tells Me, That I no longer Merit the Support of so great a Monarch, and who is always sure to Vanquish when he Fights for Himself. For which Reason it is that I request Your Majesty, no longer to concern Your Self for a Prince so Unfortunate as My Self; but Permit Me to retire with My Family to some corner of the World, where I may cease to obstruct the usual Course of Your Prosperities and Conquests, which only My Misfortune could interrupt. It is not just, that the Potentest Monarch in the World, and the most Flourishing above all others, should share in My Disgrace, because You are too Generous: 'Tis better much, that I shall only Retire till it please Omnipotent Providence to be more propitious to My Affairs. But howsoever it pleases over-ruling Heaven to dispose of Me and Mine, or into whatsoever Recess I may be thrown, I can assure Your Majesty, That I shall always preserve, to the last Gasp of My expiring Breath, that due Acknowledgment which I still retain, of Your Favours and constant Friendship. Nor can any thing more contribute to my Consolation, than to hear, as I hope to do, when I have wholly quitted Your Dominions, of the quick Return of all Your wonted Triumphs both by Sea and Land, over Your Enemies and Mine, when my Interest shall be no longer intermixed with Yours.

I am,
Monseur, My Brother,
Yours, &c.
James Rex.

The Wise and Happy Queen was no sooner Inform'd of the Victory, but she sent a Gratuity of Thirty thousand Pounds, down to Portsmouth, to be Distributed among the Seamen and Soldiers; Order'd Medals to be made for Tokens of Honour to the Officers; and caus'd the Bodies of Rear-Admiral Carter, and Colonel Huffings, who were Slain in the Engagement, to be honourably Interr'd. At the same time, Her Majesty considering to what Advantage this Success might be improv'd, by making a Descent into France, before the Enemy had recover'd their Consternation, Order'd great Preparations to be made towards it. On the 23d of July, All the Forces design'd for this Expedition, were Ship'd off at Portsmouth: And on the 25. The Duke of Leinster, who commanded in chief, Embark'd on Board the Breda. The Orders, as tis usual, were not to be open'd till they were at a certain Distance at Sea; and in regard they set Sail with a fair Wind, in the most favourable Season of the Year, there was no small Expectation of some considerable Enterprize. But 4 or 5 Days after, Intelligence came, That all the Transport Ships had put into St. Helens Road, with part of the Fleet which they met off of Torbay. This unexpected Return occasion'd various Conjectures, but all that came to publick Notice, was, That the next day after the Fleets were join'd, Admiral

The Queen wisely improveth this great Success

K. James desponds, and writes a melancholy Letter.

1692. ral Ruffel and the rest of the Commanders went on Board the Breda, where the Duke of Leinster's Commission was open'd; and that on the 29th. a Council of War was held on Board the General, where it was Resolved, that they should Steer towards the Coast of England. On the 8th. of August the Transport Ships, and a Squadron of Men of War arrived in the Downs, from whence they Sailed on the 20th. and Two Days after Landed at Ostend; after having kept the French upon their own Coasts in continual Alarms.

The Queen and Her Three Kingdoms being now secured at Home; let us see how Affairs are carried on Abroad. The Duke of Bavaria through the Influence of King William, was this Year made Governor of the Spanish Netherlands; who put those Provinces into a far better State than formerly: Yet this did not hinder the King of France from attempting the Siege of Namur, one of the Strongest Places in all those parts, both by its advantagious situation on the Confluence of the Sambre and the Maese, and by the excellent Fortifications, especially a Castle built upon a Hill, in an Angle formed by those Two Rivers. His most Christian Majesty invested the Town in Person, May 25. N. S. open'd the Trenches on the 29th. and pursued the Siege with so much Vigor and Diligence, that in Four Days He made Himself Master of all the Out-works, next St Nicholas Gate. The Garrison seeing it was in vain to withstand an Army encouraged by the presence of their Momarch, Surrendred the City on June 5th. upon Articles, and retired into the Castle.

Namur taken by the French.

Upon the News of this Siege, King William with the Confederate Army under his Command, Decamped from Anderleck on the 27th. of May, N. S. Marched to Diegon, the next day towards Louvain, and pitch'd his Camp near Bethlem Abby, from whence he continued his March towards Namur, on the 3^d. of June. But before His Majesty removed, he gave the Enemy notice of His great Victory at Sea, by a Tripple Discharge of His Cannon, which were answered by Volleys of Small Shot from the Two Lines of the Army. 'Tis reported that the French King heard this Noise with a great deal of Unconcern; saying to this effect, Here's a mighty Pudder indeed about Burning Two or Three Ships. But what Face soever He put upon the Matter, the Consequence shew'd it was the unhappiest Blow He received during the whole Course of this War. For thereby His Sea-Coasts remained exposed to the Insults of the English; nor has he been ever able to put out a Fleet, to meet the Confederates in the Channel.

K. William attempts to raise the Siege.

The Duke of Luxemburgh who cover'd the Siege of Namur, with an Army of Seventy Thousand Men, upon Information that the King of England moved towards the Mebaigne, march'd that way; and on June 8. the Two Armies almost equal in numbers, advanced in fight of one another, the River only remaining between 'em. King William possessed himself of all the Posts upon the Mebaigne on his side, as Luxemburgh did of Two Villages surrounded with strong Hedges and Thickets on the opposite Banks. The Confederates had such an entire Command of the River by their Batteries, that the same Evening His Majesty ordered the Pontoons to be laid over it, in order to Attack the Enemy the next Day. All things were in a readiness for that Design; but the same Night and some following Days, the Weather proved so Rainy, that a stop was put to King William's Glorious Enterprize. The most remarkable Action before the Castle of Namur was the taking of Fort William, which was raised by that great Engineer Colonel Coeborne, and Defended by himself. The King of France being resolved to carry this Work at any rate, caused it to be Assaulted on June 21. And though all the Efforts of his Men prov'd unsuccessful, yet they return'd to the Storm the next Day. The Besieged made an incredible Resistance, Repulsing twice the Enemy with great Slaughter; but they return'd with fresh and redoubled Force, till they made themselves Masters of the Cover'd-way, and cut off the Besieged from their Communication with the Castle. Monsieur Coeborne being dangerously Wounded, the Garrison who thought themselves no longer in a condition to hold out, desired to Capitulate, reserving only so much time to themselves, as to send to the Prince of Barbanfon, Governour of the Castle, to give him notice of their Resolution, which he readily allow'd; and thereupon Fort William, which from this time was called Fort Coborne, was surrendered up to the French, and the Consequence of this Loss, was the Surrender of the Castle itself, on July 10.

At this time King William lay encamp'd at Melle, where He form'd a Design to Surprize Mons, but was disappointed in it. From Melle His Majesty Marched His Army to Genap, thence to Hall, and on August 1st. over the River Senne, when he was joined by the Hannover Troops, to the Number of Eight Thousand Men. On the other hand the King of France contenting himself with the Glory of having taken Namur in sight of the Confederate Army, left the Command of his Forces to Luxemburgh, who pitch'd his Camp in an Advantagious Post, covered by a Wood and thick Hedges, between Engbine and Steenkirk, where His Brittanick Majesty Resolved to Attack him, upon the information of some Persons that were thought to understand the Nature of the Ground.

Accordingly on Sunday August 3. our Army marched early in the Morning, the Heavy Baggage being ordered to repass the Senne at Hall. There were several Defiles to pass, and the ways to be made, which made it a tedious March; but however about Ten a Clock the Prince of Wirtemburgh with the Vanguard, which consisted of Four Battalions of English Foot, Two of Danes, and a Detachment of Churchill's Brigade, advanced towards the Enemy, and fell upon them with so much Vigor that he drove them from Hedge to Hedge, posted himself in the Wood that fronted the Right Wing of their Army; and erected Two Batteries of Cannon, on little Eminences, one on the Right, and the other on the Left of the Wood. Whilst these Batteries were playing upon the Enemy, the Confederate Army marched up to the head of the Defile, (about half an English Mile from the Wood) where it open'd in a little Plain, not above half a League over, which terminated upon the Right of the Wood, and upon several Rows of high Trees, planted in order. Upon the Right of this Plain, there was a Farm, which soon after the Engagement was set on Fire by the Enemy, to cover (by the Smoak) several of their Battalions that were order'd this way. From the head of the Defile, upon the Left of the Plain, there was a deep hollow Way with high Trees and Hedges upon the Banks of it, which reach'd as far as the Wood where the Van-Guard was posted, and where it branch'd it self into two other deep Ways, and going thro' the Wood upon the Left to the Panis Attack, and to that of the Guards; and the other upon the Right, going along the outside of the Wood. Between these two last, were posted the Regiments of Sir Robert

Forms a Design of surprizing
Mons.

Battle of Steenkirk.

1692. bert Douglas, Colonel Fitz-Patrick, and Colonel O Farrel.

When the Confederate Army was come up to the head of these Defiles, and just entering into the small Plain, they were order'd to halt, except the English Life-Guards, and Horse and Dragoons, and the Lord Cuts's, Lieutenant-General Mackay's, Sir Charles Graham's, and the Earl of Angus's Regiments; which being interlin'd with the Horse, were commanded at the same time to the Right Skirts of the Wood; whilst Prince of Hesse's, Collonel Lowther's, and the Earl of Leven's Regiments were also intermix'd with the Left-Wing of Horse, and posted upon the outside of the Wood. Things being thus disposed, and the Army continuing in their halt, Prince Wirtemberg, after he had Cannonaded for above two Hours, began the Attack with the Danes upon the Right, which was immediately followed by the other Four English Regiments, as compos'd the Van-Guard; and seconded by Cuts's, Mackay's, Angus's, Graham's, Lowther's, the Prince of Hesse's, and Leven's Regiments. Never was more terrible, and at the same time more regular Firing heard; for during the space of two Hours, it seem'd to be continu'd Claps of Thunder. The Van-Guard behav'd themselves with so much Bravery and Resolution, that tho' they receiv'd the Charge of several Battalions of the Enemies one after another, yet they drove them beyond one of their Batteries of Seven Pieces of Cannon; of which the Danes, and the second Battalion of the Regiment of English Guards possessed themselves, and which Colonel Wachop, who Commanded the English, would have sent away, had not the French cut off the Traces, and carried away the Horses. Sir Thomas Douglas with his first Battalion, charged several of the Enemies, and beat them from three several Hedges, and made himself Master of the fourth; when going through a Gap to get on the other side, he was unfortunately kill'd upon the Spot. All the other Regiments behav'd themselves with equal Bravery, firing Muzzle to Muzzle thro' the Hedges, they on the one side, and the Enemy on the other.

The King being made sensible of the Difficulties the Van-Guard had to Encounter, by one of Prince Wirtemberg's Aids de Camp, who had already sent two Messengers to Count Solmes, to no purpose, His Majesty dispatched away Count Paulin, one of his Aids de Camp, with positive Orders to Count Solmes, who Commanded the Main Body, to send more Foot to the Prince's Assistance: But Count Solmes, who ever was envious of the English, and who besides had a particular Jealousie of Prince Wirtemberg's Commanding the Attack, (an Honour which he would have had himself) instead of obeying his Majesty's Commands, order'd the Horse to March, and the Foot to Halt; which prov'd the loss of the Day: For the Ground was so straight, and the Enemy had such Hedges, Copses, and Ditches to cover them, that there was nothing to do for the Horse; so that when the Van-Guard began to Engage, they had none but part of the Infantry interlin'd with the Left-Wing of the Horse, to second them, the Body of the Foot being almost a Mile in the Rear. However, the King made all possible diligence to get the Infantry up, ordering a Brigade to march to the Wood, and forming a Line of Battel in the Plain, with such Foot as could come up. The eagerness of the Soldiers to follow their Royal Leader, and to engage the Enemy, was such, that they put themselves into some Disorder, and took more time to form their Battalions, than could now conveniently be spar'd; so that before they could reach the Wood, the Van-Guard and Infantry of the Left-Wing being over-power'd by Thirty Battalions of the Enemy, that charged them continually one after another, and by a fresh Body of Dragoons brought up by Boufflers, they were forc'd to retreat in great Confusion, and to leave the Wood to the Enemies Possession. The English Life-Guards ow'd their Preservation to the Danish Foot-Guards; and Baron of Pibrack's Regiment of Lunenburgers being in Disorder upon the Skirt of the Wood, and the Colonel himself being dangerously Wounded upon the Place, Sir Bevil Granville who Commanded the Earl of Bath's Regiment, march'd up to his Relief, receiving the Enemies Fire before he suffer'd any Person of his Battalion to discharge once. By this Method he lodg'd himself in the Hollow-way near the Wood, ordered his Serjeants to carry off the Baron of Pibrack, and maintain'd his Post, till he was commanded to leave it by the Prince of Nassau.

The King enrag'd at the Disappointment of the Van-Guard, for want of a timely Relief, express'd his Concern, by often repeating these Words: Oh! my poor English, how they are abandon'd! Nor would he admit Count Solmes to his Royal Presence for many Months after. And now, considering the Fight was not to be renew'd without endangering the loss of the whole Army, Luxembourg being considerably Reinforc'd by Boufflers; and besides, the Night drawing on, His Majesty commanded a Retreat, which was perform'd with admirable Order, and without any great disturbance, from the Enemy; who never durst engage the English in the Rear.

In this Battel the Confederates lost the Brave Lieutenant-General Mackay, Sir John Lanier, Sir Robert Douglas, the Earl of Angus, and divers other Gallant Officers; above Two Thousand Men kill'd, Three Thousand wounded, or made Prisoners, and several Pieces of Cannon. As for the French, bating the Honour of remaining Masters of the Field, they had not much reason to boast of any Advantage, having had the Prince of Tuvernne, the Marquis de Bellefonds, the Marquis de Tilladet, the Brigadier Stoupa, the Marquis de Firmacon, and several other Men of Distinction, and Two Thousand private Soldiers kill'd, and near as many wounded. Neither had they come off so cheap, had it not been for the Chevalier de Millevoix, one of the Elector of Bavaria's Domesticks, who had already given, and still endeavour'd to give further Intelligence to the Marechal de Luxembourg, of the King's Motion and Designs; for which he was hang'd on a Tree in the Right Wing of His Majesty's Army.

A more Infamous Criminal was about this time deliver'd up into the Hands of Justice: For the Chevalier de Granviale returning from Paris, where he had engag'd one Leefdale, a Person of a good Family near Boisleduc, to join with Dumont, in the hellish Design of Assassinating King William, he appointed a Meeting at Uden, whither Dumont was come from Hanover. There it was agreed, That when the King should pass along the Lines, or when the Army should decamp, Dumont should be in Ambush, and Shoot His Majesty; and that as soon as the Murder was committed, a Party of Three Thousand Horse from the Duke of Luxembourg's Army, and Headed by Monsieur Chamblays, and Colonel Parker, should rescue the Assassins, to colour the Villany with the shew of a Stratzgem of War. But Providence still watching for His Majesty's Safety, permitted the Black Conspiracy to be discovered by Leefdale and Dumont; who related all the Circumstances of the Contrivance, and who they were that put Granviale upon this Wicked 1692. Attempt. Thereupon Granvale was Taken at Eyndenboven; afterwards Tried by a Court Martial, and according to his Sentence, Hang'd, Drawn and Quartered, after he had made a full Confession of his Crimes, without being put to the Torture. At his Execution he seem'd very Penitent, and exprest some Resentment against those by whom he was undone. And 'tis with Horror that History is obliged to say, that if we may give Credit to this Criminal's Dying Words, and the Depositions upon Record; not only Ministers of State and Ambassadors, but even an Archbishop, nay, a Crown'd Head were at least Privy to that detestable Project.

Granvale
executed.

There was little more done this Campaign in Flanders, except the Defeat of a Party from Namur, by a Detachment from the Troops of Liege, commanded by Count Serclaes de Tilly; and the Bombarding of Charleroy by Monsieur de Boufflers. As for the English Forces, which landed at Ostend on the 1st. of September (N. S.), under the Command of the Duke of Leinster; they possessed themselves of Furnes and Dixmuyde, which they began to fortifie, and by which the King seem'd to have some Great Design that way: But whatever it was, all miscarried: Both these Places being abandoned to Boufflers by Count Horn, towards the beginning of the Year 1693. which King William much resented in him; who, till now, always had a great Share in His Majesty's Esteem. Perhaps the same touch'd the Count very near, for he did not live long after.

Actions
of the D.
of Savoy.

The Duke of Savoy, who had been brought into the Confederacy by the Powerful Interest of King William, and was supported in it by great Sums of Money, and by considerable Forces under the Duke of Leinster, now Duke of Schemberg; march'd in the Month of July at the Head of Twenty Thousand Men, invaded the Province of Dauphine: And having plunder'd La Roche, Chanteloue, and some other Villages; he made himself Master of the Castle and High-Lands of Guillestre. Whence on August the 5th. he cross'd the River Durance, and moved towards the City of Ambrun: Which, after a brisk Siege of about Nine Days, was surrender'd upon Articles on August the 15th. Here the Duke of Savoy found Twenty Pieces of Cannon, and considerable Quantity of Provisions; and the City presently granted him Forty Thousand Livres Contribution, which they Borrowed at Grenoble for that purpose. Besides which, his Highness seiz'd upon Sixty Thousand Livres in Gold, which was the French King's Money in the Hands of the Pay-Master of the Troops: And not only the City of Ambrun, but all the Neighbouring Towns and Villages, were at the same time put under Contribution. Here likewise the Duke of Schemberg publish'd a Declaration on August the 29th. in the Name of His Britannick Majesty, inviting People to join him; and assuring them, That the King of England had no other End in causing his Forces to enter France; but only to restore the Nobility and Gentry to their ancient Splendor, the Parliaments to their pristine Authority, the People to their just Privileges, and even to grant his Protection to the Clergy; and, in short, to cause the Edict of Nants to be revived, of which the Kings of England had been made Guarantees. Encourag'd by this Declaration, several of the French Protestants that had been forc'd to abjure their Religion, took this Opportunity to make their voluntary Recantation before Monsieur Du Bourdieu, the Duke of Schemberg's Chaplain. From Ambrun, the Army march'd directly to Gap, a City upon the Frontiers of Provence; whose Inhabitants open'd their Gates to Prince Eugene of Savoy, upon his first appearing before it; and gladly consented to Pay Contributions, to preserve their Houses from being burnt and pillag'd: A Treatment, which near Eighty Castles and Villages receiv'd from the Germans, in Retaliation of the Barbarities committed by the French in the Palatinate. Not only Grenoble, the Capital of Dauphinè, but the Neighbouring Provinces, and the Wealthy City of Lions, began already to tremble: And, indeed, never had the Allies a fairer Opportunity of shaking the immense Power of France. But the Duke of Savoy's falling sick of the Small Pox, and which was of more fatal Consequence, the Spirit of Division that crept among the Generals, not only hinder'd the Design that had been form'd of taking Briangon and Quieran, but likewise incapacitated them to keep what they had already conquer'd. Thus having plunder'd the Country, destroy'd all the Provisions they could not consume or carry away, burnt all that refus'd to contribute; they blew up the Fortifications of Ambrun, took Money to save the Houses, and so put an end to the Campaign. It is observ'd, that Monsieur Du Bourdieu carried away with him above Two Hundred French Protestants, who chose rather to expose themselves to Beggery and Contempt in Foreign Nations, than to live in Plenty and Honour in their Native Land; where they must be forc'd to join in Divine Worship with those whom they and their Fore-fathers did account to be Idolaters. It is farther observable, That Their Majesties improv'd the Duke of Savoy's Alliance, toward the Restoration of the Vaudois; who, thro' the Violence of their late Persecutions, were unable to keep up the Form of any Discipline, or even any Publick Worship; being unable to maintain a Minister, or a Schoolmaster, among 'em. Monsieur Du Bourdieu acquainted the Bishop of St. Asaph with their miserable Condition; desiring him to solicit Her Majesty's Bounty in their behalf. That worthy Prelate, eminent for Piety, Charity, and Learning, cheerfully laid hold on this Occasion to serve the Protestant Interest; and finding the Queen as ready to Grant as he was to Ask; a Fund was established out of Her Majesty's Privy Purse, for the Maintaining of Ten Preachers, and as many Schoolmasters, in the Valleys of Piedmont.

1692.

The Duke visited with the SmallPox.

Retires with his Army.

Good Offices to the Vaudois and other Poor Protestants.

To look home again: There was a famous Sham-Plot, invented with great Villany in Newgate, by one Robert Young; who had been committed to that Place till he discharg'd a Fine impos'd upon him for other Rogueries: And being very expert in Counterfeiting Hands, he was instructed by one Henry Pierston, a Prisoner in the same Place for Debt, to contrive a Plot, and Father it upon the Earls of Marlborough and Salisbury, the Bishop of Rochester, and some others. Pierston being soon after at Liberty, employ'd one Stephen Blackbeard to carry Letters between himself and Young. By a certain Stratagem, Young happen'd to see the Earl of Marlborough's Hand; which he counterfeited so cunningly, that it was very difficult to discern the true from the false. Afterwards he drew up an Association, and affixt to it the Hands of the Earls of Marlborough and Salisbury, as also Sir Bazil Firebrass's, the Bishop of Rochester's, and the Earl of Cornbury's; which Two last were writ by another Hand. And that the more Credit might be given to this pretended Plot, Young forg'd several Letters in the Name of the Lord Marlborough, supposed to be directed to himself; which Blackbeard used to bring to him again. In the Month of April, Blackbeard went three times to the Bishop of Rochester's House at Bromly, upon a Sham Errand from a suppos'd Divinity Doctor;

A Sham Plot by Young.

Bishop of Rochester falsely accused.

1692. Doctor; but with no other intent than to convey the forg'd Association into a secret Place, where it was afterwards found by the King's Messengers; Who, upon information given by Young against that Reverend Prelate, came first to secure his Person, and then to search his House. His Lordship was some Days under Confinement; but upon a strict Examination of the whole Matter before the Council, and the Confronting of Blackhead with Young, the Forgery was evidently discover'd, and his Lordship's Innocence made manifest.

On Thursday September the 8th. about Two in the Afternoon, there happen'd an Earthquake in London and other Parts adjacent, which lasted about a Minute, and was felt very sensibly, not only in England, but in Flanders and other Parts of the Continent. The King was then in his Camp at Dinner, in an old decay'd House; which shaking very much, and every one apprehending it was ready to fall, His Majesty was prevail'd with to rise from Table, and go out of the House: But the Surprize was soon over. On September the 13th. the Queen publish'd a Proclamation, for the better Discovery of Seditious Libellers; who endeavour'd not only to Traduce and Reproach the Ecclesiastical and Temporal Government of this Kingdom, and the Publick Ministers of the same; but also to stir up and dispose the Minds of Their Majesties Subjects to Sedition and Rebellion. And on the same day another Proclamation was publish'd, For the more effectual Discovery and Apprehending of Highway-Men and Robbers; by promising a Reward of Forty Pounds to the Discoverers or Apprehenders, after the Conviction of 'em.

His Majesty parted from the Camp at Grammen on Friday September the 27th. having left the Command in Chief of the Army with the Elector of Bavaria. On Saturday His Majesty arriv'd at Breda, and went thence to his Court at Loo, to divert Himself for some few days. After some Refreshment he went to Brussels, and held a Council of War: Wherein he gave Orders for the March of the Forces into Winter-Quarters; and went thence to the Hague. He soon after embarked on Board the Mary-Yatch, attended by Sir Cloudeley Shovel with several Men of War, and landed safe at Yarmouth on October the 18th. He lay the next Night at Sir John Duke's, next Sexmondham. On Thursday October the 20th. the Queen met Him near Newball; and about Eight in the Evening, Their Majesties came to Kensington, having pass'd thro' the City of London amidst the Acclamations of the People, and continued Illuminations of the Houses; which was follow'd with Bonfires, Discharging of Cannon, Fireworks, and other Demonstrations of an extraordinary Joy, for His Majesty's safe Return.

On the Saturday following, the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen, and Recorder of London, attended His Majesty at Kensington: Where they Congratulated His Majesty's safe Return; and declared their high Satisfaction in His Majesty's Great and Glorious Enterprizes, for the Preservation of these Nations, and the Good of Christendom: With Assurance of their steady Resolutions to Assist His Arms, and Support His Government to the utmost of their Power. His Majesty received them very Graciously; and, as a Mark of His Favour, was pleas'd to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Salustiel Lovel, Serjeant at Law, their Recorder. Who then in the Name of the rest, humbly invited the King and Queen to Honour the City at Dinner upon the Lord-Mayor's Day, at Guildhall. Their Majesties were pleas'd to accept the Invitation; and on October the 29th. the Day of Sir John Fleet's being Sworn Lord-Mayor, Their Majesties came into the City, attended by all the Great Officers of the Court, and a numerous Train of Nobility and Gentry in their Coaches; the Militia of London and Middlesex making a Lane for 'em. Their Majesties were pleas'd from a Balcony prepared for 'em in Cheapside, to see the Show. After which, They were conducted by the Two Sheriffs to the Guildhall; where Their Majesties, the Nobility, Privy Counsellors, the Judges, and the Ladies of the Chiefest Quality, Dined at several Tables. The Entertainment was Great and Magnificent, and Their Majesties were extremly well satisfied with it; and the King was pleas'd to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon John Wildman, William Gore, James Houblon, Aldermen; Leonard Robinson, Chamberlain; Rowland Aynsworth, William Scowen, Josiah Child, and John Foach, Citizens.

On Octob. 10. It had been ordered by Her Majesty in Council, That the Monthly Fast appointed by Their Majesties Proclamation, of the 24th day of March 1691. be for the present discontinued till further Order; And on Octob. 22. A Proclamation was publish'd for a Publick Thanksgiving, on Thursday Octob. 27. in London and Westminster, and within the Bills of Mortality; and on Thursday Nov. 10. in all other Parts of the Kingdom: Forasmuch as it hath pleas'd Almighty God of his infinite Goodness, to Preserve Their Majesties and Their Government, against the Designs and Attempts of Their open and secret Enemies, to give Their Majesties a great and signal Victory at Sea against the French Fleet; to Protect His Majesty's Person from the many and great Dangers of the War, in His late Expedition beyond the Seas: To disappoint and defeat the barbarous and horrid Conspiracy, for taking away His Sacred Life by Assassination, and to bring Him back in Safety to this Kingdom. On Friday Nov. 4. His Majesty's Birth-day, the Parliament met at Westminster, whither His Majesty went by Water, and being Seated on the Throne, made this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,
 " I Am very glad to meet you again in Parliament, where I have an Opportunity of Thanking you for the great Supplies you have given Me for the Prosecution of this War. And I hope by your Advice and Assistance, which has never fail'd Me, to take such Measures as may be most proper for Supporting Our Common Interest against the excessive Power of France.
 " We have great Reason to Rejoyce in the Happy Victory, which by the Blessing of God, We obtained at Sea: And I wish I could tell you, That the Success at Land had been answerable to it: I am sure my own Subjects had so remarkable a Part in Both, that their Bravery and Courage must ever be remembered to their Honour.
 " The French are Repairing their Losses at Sea with great Diligence, and do design to Augment their Land Forces considerably against the next Campaign; which makes it absolutely necessary for Our Safety, that at least, as great a Force be maintained at Sea and Land as We had the last Year; And therefore I must ask of you, Gentlemen of the House of Commons, a Supply suitable to so great an Occasion.
 " I am very sensible how heavy this Charge is upon My People; and it extremly Afflicts Me, that 'tis not possible to be avoided, without exposing Our Selves to inevitable Ruin and Destruction. The Inconvenience of sending out of the Kingdom great Sums of Money for the Payment of the Troops Abroad, is, indeed, 1692. King and Queen dine in the City.

Citizens Knighted.

Publick Thanksgiving.

Parliament meet.

King's Speech.

Earthquake.

The King withdraws from the Army.

Returns to England.

Congratulated by the Lord-Mayor & Aldermen.

1692. "very considerable; and I so much wish it could be Remedied, that if you can suggest to Me any Methods for the Support of them, which may lessen this Inconvenience, I shall be ready to receive them with all the Satisfaction imaginable.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"None can desire more than I do, That a Descent should be made into France; and therefore notwithstanding the Disappointment of that Design this last Summer, I intend to Attempt it the next Year, with a much more considerable Force; and so soon as I shall be enabled, all possible Care and Application shall be used towards it.

"And upon this Occasion I cannot omit taking Notice of that Signal Deliverance, which by the good Providence of God, We received the last Spring, to the Disappointment and Confusion of Our Enemies Designs and Expectations: This has sufficiently shewn us how much We are expos'd to the Attempts of France, while that King is in a Condition to make them; Let us therefore improve the Advantage we have at this time of being joyn'd with most of the Princes and States of Europe against so Dangerous an Enemy: In this surely all Men will agree, who have any Love for their Country, or any Zeal for Our Religion: I cannot therefore doubt but you will continue to Support Me in this War against the declared Enemy of this Nation; and that you will give as speedy Dispatch to the Affairs before you, as the Nature and Importance of them will admit, that Our Preparations may be timely and effectual for the Preservation of all that is dear and valuable to Us.

"I am sure I can have no Interest but what is yours; We have the same Religion to Defend; and you cannot be more concern'd for the Preservation of your Liberties and Properties than I am, that you should always remain in the full Possession and Enjoyment of them; for I have no Aim, but to make you a Happy People.

"Hitherto I have never spar'd to Expose My own Person for the Good and Welfare of this Nation; and I am so Sensible of your good Affections to Me, that I shall continue to do so with great Cheerfulness upon all Occasions, wherein I may contribute to the Honour and Advantage of England.

This Judicious Speech was received with the Universal Approbation it deserv'd, and made a proper Impression in the Minds of Both Houses of Parliament. The Commons by an Address to the King, Nov. 14. "Acknowledged the great Affection His Majesty shov'd to His Subjects, by taking Notice of their Bravery and Courage; by that sensible Concern He Express'd for the Charges on His People, and by that tender Regard for the Preservation of their Religion, Liberties, and Properties, as must ever be remembred with Gratitude, by all His Faithful Subjects. They likewise Acknowledged the Favour of God, in Restoring His Majesty in Safety to His People, after so many Hazards and Dangers, to which He had expos'd His Sacred Person, that there might be nothing wanting on His Part, to Oppose the Ambitious Designs of His Enemies, and to Maintain the Honour of England, and the Liberties of Europe. They also Congratulated His Deliverance from the secret and open Designs, which the Malice of His Enemies had form'd against Him. And assur'd Him, That they would always Advise and Assist His Majesty in the Supporting of His Government, against all His Enemies.

The Commons at the same time presented their Thankful Acknowledgment to the Queen, "For Her Gracious and Prudent Administration of the Government, whilst His Majesty was hazarding His Royal Person Abroad; and for the Blessings of Peace they enjoy'd at Home, under Her Auspicious Reign, at a time when the greatest Part of Europe was suffering the miserable Effects of War. They also Congratulated, not only the Signal Deliverance they received from a bold and cruel Design, form'd and prosecuted for Their Destruction, when it was just ready to be executed, but likewise the Return of Her Majesty's Fleet, with so compleat and glorious a Victory, as was not to be equall'd in any former Reign. Assuring Her Majesty, That the greatest Sense they had of their Happiness under Her Government, should be always manifested in constant Returns of Duty and Obedience, and a firm Resolution to do all that was in their Power, to render Her Reign Secure and Prosperous.

The first Business of Importance the Commons went upon on November 11. was the Bill formerly project'd, for Regulating Tryals in Cases of High Treason; which at the Second Reading on Nov. 18. was refer'd to a Committee of the whole House; and a Clause being presented Dec. 1. to be added to the Bill, a Debate arose thereupon; the Result of which was, That the Bill was Order'd to lye upon the Table; and no farther mention was made of it during this Session.

On the same day Nov. 11. The Thanks of the Commons, by Order of the House, were given by the Speaker to Admiral Russell, one of their Members, for his great Courage and Conduct in the late Victory obtain'd at Sea; and this seem'd to secure that Admiral against any Reflections on his Behaviour in that memorable Action. But through Envy or Prejudice, it was the next day suggest'd, that the Advantage gain'd upon the Enemy might have been much better Improv'd. Upon which, the House enter'd upon Examining the several Instructions, Orders and Results of Councils of War, touching the last Summer's Expedition, in relation to the Proceedings of the Fleet, and the Descent intended to be made upon France, after the Victory at Sea. Upon the 19. Nov. Sir John Ashby being examin'd, particularly in relation to the French Men of War that made their Escape into St. Malo; he gave the Commons an Account of the Proceeding of the Ships under his Command, in and after the Engagement; with which they were so well pleas'd, that the Speaker, by Direction of the House, acquainted him, That the House took notice of his ingenuous Behaviour at the Bar; and that he had given an account to the Satisfaction of the House; and was dismiss'd from farther Attendance. The next thing the House took into Consideration, was, Why a Descent had not been made into France? Admiral Russell was question'd about it; but he Excus'd himself, by saying, That Twenty Days had pass'd between his first Letter to the Earl of Nottingham, after the Fight, and his Lordship's Answer. And on the other hand, the Earl made it appear, That he had Acted according to the Orders he had receiv'd, which was all he could do, as Secretary of State. Whilst these things were in Agitation, the Lords at a Conference communicated to the House of Commons some Papers which their Lordships had receiv'd from the King, relating to those Affairs; which Papers being Read in the Lower House, it was Resolved, That Admiral Russell in his Command of the Fleet, during the last Summer's Expedition, had behav'd himself with Fidelity, Courage, and Conduct.

Proceedings of the Commons.

Thanks to Admiral Russell.

Sir John Ashby honourably acquitted.

1692. On the 14th of November, Sir Edward Seymour deliver'd to the Commons a Message from His Majesty, in Answer to their Address the last Session, in relation to the East-India Company. Upon occasion of this Message, the House took into Consideration the Matter relating to that Company; and after a great deal of time spent in it, a Bill was, Dec. 14. brought in for Preserving, Regulating, and Establishing the East-India Trade. The Bill was near Two Months depending, and occasioned several Debates; the Result of which was, That the Commons, March 3. presented an Address to His Majesty, That He would please to Dissolve the East-India Company upon Three Years warning to the said Company, according to the Power reserv'd in their Charter. To this, the King, with His usual Prudence and Reserve, made Answer, That He would always do all the Good in His Power for this Kingdom; and that He would consider of their Address.

The Supply which was mov'd for on the 15th of November, was unanimously Granted on the 22d of the same Month; and after Consideration of the State of War for the Year 1693. it was Dec. 2. Resolved, That the Sum of 1926516 Pounds be Granted to Their Majesties for the Charge of the Navy; (including the Charge of the Ordnance, and the Finishing Their Majesties Naval Yard at Hamose, near Plymouth; and the Building Four Bomb Vessels, and Eight New Ships of the Fourth Rate.) And Dec. 10. The Sum of Two millions and ninety thousand five hundred sixty three Pounds for the Land Forces; including the extraordinary Charge of the Office of Ordnance, in relation to the Land Service, and the Charge of the Transports, Hospitals, Contingencies, and other extraordinary Charges of the War. Besides which it was Resolved, Dec. 3. That for the making good the Sum of 1341700 Pounds intended to be rais'd by the Act for a Quarterly Poll, the Sum of 750000 Pounds be Granted to Their Majesties.

To levy these vast Sums it was Resolved, 13. Dec. First, That there be a Pound Rate of Four Shillings in the Pound for One Year, Charg'd upon all Lands, according to their yearly Value; as also upon all Personal Estates; and upon all Offices and Employments of Profit, other than Military Offices in the Army and Navy. Secondly, That there be a Fund of 70000 Pounds per Annum, set apart out of the Hereditary Excise till the 17th of May 1697. And afterwards by an Additional Excise upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, for the Payment of the Interest of a Million of Money, to be rais'd by Persons voluntarily paying in that Sum, the Principal paid in to be sunk, and the Persons paying in the same, to Receive during their Lives, their respective Proportions of the said 70000 Pounds, according to the Sums paid by them, with the Advantage of Survivorship, till all the Lives be determin'd. And Thirdly, Feb. 3. That certain Additional Impositions be laid upon Merchandise.

That part of the King's Speech, whereby His Majesty seem'd to desire the Advice of the Commons, took up a great deal of time. After several Debates, a Committee was appointed Dec. 12. to consider how the Army abroad, in Their Majesties Pay, might be supplied with Bread, Cloaths, and other Provisions of the Growth of this Kingdom, to prevent the Exportation of the Coin thereof. And as for the Navy, a Motion being made Jan. 11. That His Majesty be humbly advis'd to constitute a Commission of the Admiralty, of such Persons as were of known Experience in Maritime Affairs, it pass'd in the Negative: But however, it was carried, that His Majesty should be Advis'd by that House, That for the future, all Orders for the Management of the Fleet, should pass through the Hands of the Lords Commissioners for the Ex-cuting the Office of Lord High Admiral of England. 1692. Which Vote seem'd to be occasion'd by the Difference between the Earl of Nottingham, and Admiral Russell.

The Consideration of the Petition presented Nov. 7. by the Sheriffs, and several Aldermen of the City of London, in favour of the Orphans of the said City, being put off from time to time, the Orphan William Goodwin and Henry Goodwin, and others of the Distressed Orphans, presented also a Petition to the same Effect: Both which being considered, the Commons at length, Feb. 17. Order'd a Bill to be brought in for satisfying the Debts due to the said Orphans: But upon a Debate that arose at the second Reading, the Bill was committed to a Committee of the whole House, where it remain'd unfinished.

A Bill for the better Preservation of Their Majesties Persons, which by the unanimous Consent of the Commons, was order'd to be brought in on the 1st. of December, was nevertheless rejected at the second Reading, the 14th. of that Month. The same Fate, Dec. 17. attend'd the Bill to ascertain the Fees of Officers of Justice.

Not many Days before, Sir Edward Hussy presented to the House of Commons, a Bill touching Free and Impartial Proceedings in Parliament; which was Receiv'd, Read the first time, and some time after pass'd, and sent up to the Lords for their Concurrence. By this Bill several Persons in Employments, both Military and Civil, were incapacitated to Sit in the House of Commons: Which caus'd it to be very much oppos'd by the Lords that stood up for the Court; though on the other hand, several Peers spoke vehemently for it; and among the rest, the Earl of Mulgrave, who upon this Occasion, made this most Memorable Speech.

My Lords,
 " This Debate is of so great Consequence, that I resolv'd to be silent, and rather to be advis'd by the Ability of others, than to shew my own want of it: besides it is of so nice a Nature, that I who speak always unpremeditatedly, apprehend extremly, saying any thing which may be thought the least Reflecting; though even that ought not to restrain a Man here from doing one's Duty to the Publick, in a Business where it seems to be so highly concern'd.
 " I have always heard, I have always read, that Foreign Nations, and all this part of the World have admired and envied the Constitution of this Government. For not to speak of the King's Power, here is a House of Lords to advise him on all Important Occasions, about Peace or War; about all things that may concern the Nation; the care of which is very much intrusted to your Lordships. But yet, because your Lordships cannot be so Constant with the generality of the People, nor so constantly in the Country as is necessary for that purpose, here is a House of Commons also chosen by the very People themselves, newly come from among them, or should be so, to represent all their Grievances, to express the true Mind of the Nation, and to dispose of their Money, at least so far as to begin all Bills of that Nature; and if I am not mistaken, the very Writ for Elections sent down to the Sheriffs, does empower them to chuse; what? Their Representatives.
 " Now my Lords, I beseech you to consider the meaning of that Word Representative; is it to do any thing contrary to their Mind? It would be absurd to propose it: And yet how can it be otherwise, if they, after being chosen, change their Dependency, engage themselves

Affairs of the East-India Company.

Supply granted.

Ways and Means.

1692.

Bills Rejected.

Earl of Mulgrave's Speech.

102. " in Employments plainly inconsistent with that great Trust reposed in them? And that I will take the liberty to demonstrate to your Lordships they now do, at least according to my humble Opinion.

" I will instance, First in the least and lowest Incapacity they must be under, who so take Employments.

" Your Lordships know but too well what a general Carelessness there appears every Day, more and more in the publick Business; if so, how is it likely that Men should be as diligent in their Duty in Parliament, as that Business requires, where Employments and a great deal of other Business shall take up both their Minds and their Time?

" But then in some Cases 'tis worse, as in Commands of the Army, and other Employments of that kind, when they must have a Divided Duty: For it does admirably become an Officer to sit Voting away Money in the House of Commons, while his Soldiers are perhaps sitting it away at their Quarters, for want of his Presence to Restrain them, and of better Discipline among them; nay perhaps, his Troop or Regiment may be in some Action abroad, and he must either have the shame of being absent from them at such a time, or from that House where he is entrusted with our Liberties.

" To this I have heard but one Objection by a Noble Lord; That if this Act should pass, the King is not allowed to make a Captain, a Colonel, without disabling him to sit in Parliament.

" Truly, if a Captain has only deserved to be Advanced for exposing himself in Parliament, I think the Nation would have no great Loss in the King's letting alone such a Preference.

" But, my Lords, there is another sort of Incapacity yet worse than this, I mean that of Parliament-Mens having such Places in the Exchequer; as the very Profit of them depends on the Money given to the King in Parliament. Would any of your Lordships send and intrust a Man to make a Bargain for you, whose very Interest shall be to make you give as much as he can possibly?

" It puts me in mind of a Farce, where an Actor holds a Dialogue with himself, Speaking first in one Tone, and then Answering himself in another.

" Really, my Lords, this is no Farce, for it's no Laughing matter to undo a Nation: But 'tis altogether as unnatural for a Member of Parliament to ask first in the King's Name for such a sort of Supply; give an Account from him how much is needful towards the Paying such an Army, or such a Fleet; and then immediately give by his ready Vote, what he had before ask'd by his Masters Order.

" Besides, my Lords, there is such a Necessity now for long Sessions of Parliaments, and the very Privileges belonging to Members are of so great Extent, that it would be a little hard and unequal to other Gentlemen, that they should have all the Places also.

" All the Objections that have been made, may be reduc'd to these.

" First, 'Tis told us, that 'tis a Disrespect to the King, that His Servants or Officers should be Excluded.

" To this, I desire it may be consider'd, That 'tis in this Case, as when a Tenant lends up any Piece of Land for him: Would any of your Lordships think it a disrespect; nay, would the King himself think it any, if the " Tenant would not wholly refer himself to one of your own Servants, or the King's Commissioners in the Case of the Crown? And if he chuses rather some plain honest Friend of his own, to supply his Absence here, will any blame such a Proceeding, or think it unmanly?

" Besides, your Lordships know even this Act admits them to be Chosen, notwithstanding their Employments, provided the Electors know it first, and are not deceived in their Choice.

" All we would prevent, is, That a good Rich Corporation should not chuse to intrust with all their Liberties, a plain honest Country Neighbour, and find him within Six Months changed into a preferred cunning Courtier; who shall tie them to their Choice, tho' he is no more the same Man, than if he were turn'd Papist; which by the Law, as it stands already, puts an Incapacity upon him.

" Another Objection is, That this Act may by its Consequence prolong this Parliament; which they allow would be a very great Grievance, and yet suppose the King capable of putting it upon us; which I have too much Respect for him to admit of: Tho' I am glad however, that 'tis objected by Privy-Counsellors in Favour, who consequently, I hope, will never advise a thing which they now exclaim against as so great a Grievance.

" But pray, my Lords, what should tempt the King to so ill a Policy? Can he fear a freedom of Choice in the People, to whose Good Will he owes all his Power, which these Lords suppose he may use to their Prejudice?

" And therefore give me leave to say, as I must not suspect him of so ill a Design, as the perpetuating this Parliament, so he cannot, he ought not to suspect a Nation so entirely, I was going to say so fondly Devoted to him.

" My Lords, no Man is readier than my self to allow that we owe the Crown all Submission, as to the time of Calling Parliaments according to Law, and appointing also where they shall sit. But with Reverence be it spoken, the King owes the Nation entire freedom in chusing their Representatives; and it is no less his Duty, than 'tis his true Interest, that such a fair and just Proceeding should be used towards us.

" Consider, my Lords, of what mighty Consequence it may be, that so many Votes should be Free, when upon one single one may depend the whole Security or Loss of this Nation: By one single Vote such things may happen, that I almost Tremble to Think: By one single Vote a General Excise may be granted, and then we are all lost: By one single Vote the Crown may be Impower'd to name all the Commissioners for raising the Taxes, and then surely we should be in a fair only way towards it.

" Nay, whatever has happen'd, may again be apprehended: and I hope those Reverend Prelates will reflect, that if they grow once obnoxious to a prevalent Party, one single Voice may be as dangerous to that Bench, as a general dissatisfaction among the People proved to be once in a late experience: Which I am far from saying by way of Threatning, but by way of Caution.

" My Lords, We may think, because this concerns not the House of Lords, that we need not be so over-careful of the Matter; but there are Noblemen in Trust, at least such as were so before they were Enslav'd, who that they might dominate over others, and serve a present 1692. " present Turn, perhaps, let all things alone so long till the People were quite Master'd, and the Nobility themselves too, to bear them Company.

" So that I never met a Frenchman, even of the greatest Rank, (and some had Ten Thousand Pistoles a Year in Employments) that did not envy us here, for our Freedom from that Slavery which they groan under. And this I have observ'd universally; except just Monsieur de Louvois, Monsieur Colbert, or such People: Because they were the Ministers themselves, who occasion'd these Complaints, and thriv'd by the Oppression of others.

" My Lords, This Country of ours is very apt to be provok'd; we have had a late Experience of it. And tho' no wise Man, but would bear a great deal, rather than make a bustle; yet really the People are otherwise, and at any time change a present Uneasiness for any other Condition, tho' a worse: We have known it so too often, and sometimes repented it too late.

" Let them not have this New Provocation, in being debarr'd from a Security in their Representatives: For Malicious People will not fail to infuse into their Minds, that all those Vast Sums, which have been, and still must be rais'd towards this War, are not dispos'd away in so fair a manner as ought to be: And I am afraid they will say, their Money is not given, but taken.

" However, whate're Success this Bill may have, there must needs come some good Effect of it: For if it pass'es, it will give us Security; if it be obstructed, it will give us Warning.

The Courtiers being too numerous, the other Party took an occasion from an Objection they made, to wit, That this Act might by its Consequence prolong this Parliament, which they allow'd would be a very great Grievance; to bring in and pass another Bill, for the frequent Calling and Meeting of Parliaments; which they sent down to the Commons, January the 21st. for their Concurrence. But the King having no mind to part with this Parliament so long as the War lasted, refus'd His Assent to this Bill; although the Lords had agreed to the Amendments made to it by the Commons.

On Friday January the 20th. His Majesty came to the House of Peers, attended with the usual Solemnity; and gave His Royal Assent to 1. An Act for granting to Their Majesties an Aid of Four Shillings in the Pound for One Year, for carrying on a Vigorous War against France. 2. An Act that the Inhabitants of the Province of York may dispose of their Personal Estates by their Wills, notwithstanding the Custom of that Province. And to Eleven Private Bills.

January the 21st. A Complaint having been made to the House of Commons, of a Printed Pamphlet, entitled, King William and Queen Mary Conquerors; as containing Assertions of dangerous Consequence to Their Majesties, to the Liberties of the Subject, and Peace of the Kingdom: The House, upon Examination of the Matter, Order'd the said Pamphlet to be burnt by the Hands of the Common Hangman; and that His Majesty be desir'd to Remove Mr. Edmund Bobin, the Licenser, from his Employment, for having Allow'd the same to be printed. In this Debate it was suggest'd, that Dr. Burnet, Bishop of Sarum, had recommended this Notion of Conquest, in his Pastoral Letter to the Clergy of his Diocese; tho' he had done it only upon a favourable Supposition, not in a way of Assertion: However, the Majority in the Warnith of 1692. Debating, and some of 'em for the sake of Allusion to the Author's Name, pass'd the same Censure on that Excellent Letter, and Order'd it publickly to be burnt by the Common Executioner. On January the 24th. the Lords came to a like Resolution; That the Assertion of King William and Queen Mary's being King and Queen by Conquest, was highly Injurious to their Majesties, and inconsistent with the Principles on which this Government is found'd, and tending to the Subversion of the Rights of the People. Which Vote being communicated to the Commons; that House on the next day unanimously concurr'd with their Lordships, with the Remarkable Addition of some Words; viz. Injurious to Their Majesties Rightful Title to the Crown of this Realm.

On Thursday January the 26th. His Majesty came again to the House of Peers, and gave His Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for granting to Their Majesties certain Rates and Duties of Excise, upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors; for securing certain Recompences and Advantages in the said Act mentioned, to such Persons as shall voluntarily Advance Ten Hundred Thousand Pounds, towards carrying on the War against France. 2. An Act for taking Special Bails in the Country, upon Actions and Suits depending in the Courts of King's-Bench and Common-Pleas, and Exchequer at Westminster. And to One Private Act.

About this time, several Officers of the Army wanting Men to Compleat their Companies, agreed with those that had Warrants to Press for the Sea; who, under pretence of Pressing for the Navy, took up great Numbers of Young Men, whom they Shipp'd off for Holland, and there forc'd them into Land-Service: Among the rest, a Servant belonging to One of the Members of the House of Commons happen'd to be thus spirited away. Upon which the House Order'd this Grievance to be represented to the King by Sir Edward Seymour: And on February the 9th. His Majesty by the same Messenger return'd a Gracious Answer to the House, to let them know, How much He resented it, that His Subjects should meet with such Hard Usage; and that He would take all Care possible for the future to Punish the Authors of it. And that in the first place His Majesty had call'd before Him the Officers of the Army, and given them a strict Charge, that they should receive no Men that were impressed. And that He had given Orders to the Admiralty, to Examine the Press-Masters that had committed these Abuses; and that there should be such Exemplary Punishment inflicted on 'em, that others should be deterr'd from doing the like. And on the same day, His Majesty, to that Effect, published the following Order.

William R.
W Hereas We are informed of Abuses committed by Press-Masters, in the Impressing of Land-Men, whom they have delivered over to some Officers of Our Army, to Serve as Soldiers in Flanders: And for preventing the same for the future, We do hereby strictly Charge and Require all Colonels, Commanders of Battalions, and all other Officers whom it may concern, not to Litt, Receive into, or Detain in their Companies, any Man whatsoever that shall have been impressed; upon pain to any Commission-Officer Litt'ing, Receiving into, or Detaining such impressed Men, of being immediately Cashier'd; and to the Non-Commission Officers, of the severest Punishment that may be inflicted on 'em. We have likewise given Orders, that the Press-Masters offending herein, be punished with the utmost Rigor, according to their Demerits Given at Our Court at Whitehall, this 9th. day of February, 1692.

Bill for frequent Parliaments refused by the King.
 Acts passed.
 Pamphlet condemn'd.
 The Bishop of Sarum's Pastoral Letter.

In detestation of the Notion of Conquest.
 Acts passed.
 Grievances in Pressing Soldiers.
 Redress'd by the King.

1692. The good Correspondence which had hitherto appear'd between the King and Parliament, was likely to be disturb'd, by the Informations given to the Commons, of the ill State of Ireland. Upon which, the House Order'd an Address to be drawn up; which was presented to His Majesty on March 10. in this Form.

Address of the Commons upon the State of Ireland.

" We Your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects the Commons in Parliament Assembled, having taken into our Serious Consideration, the State of Your Majesty's Kingdom of Ireland, find our Selves Obliged by our Duty to Your Majesty, with all Faithfulness and Zeal to Your Service, to lay before Your Majesty the great Abuses and Mismanagements of the Affairs of that Kingdom.

" By exposing Your Protestant Subjects to the Misery of free Quarter, and the Licentiousness of the Soldiers, to the great Oppression of the People; which we conceive hath been occasion'd chiefly by the Want of that Pay, which we did hope we had fully provided for.

" By Recruiting Your Majesty's Troops with Irish Papists, and such Persons who were in open Rebellion against You, to the great endangering and discouraging of Your Majesty's Good and Loyal Protestant Subjects in that Kingdom.

" By Granting Protections to the Irish Papists, whereby Protestants are hindred from their Legal Remedies; and the Course of Law stopt.

" By Reversing Outlawries for High Treason against several Rebels in that Kingdom, (not within the Articles of Limerick), to the great Discontent of Your Protestant Subjects there.

" By letting the Forfeited Estates at under Rates, to the Prejudice of Your Majesty's Revenue.

" By the great Embezzlement of Your Majesty's Stores, in the Towns and Garisons of that Kingdom, left by the late King James.

" And by the great Embezzlements which have been made in the Forfeited Estates and Goods, which might have been employ'd for the Safety and better Preservation of Your Majesty's Kingdom.

" We crave leave also to represent to Your Majesty, that the Addition to the Articles of Limerick, after the same were finally Agreed to and Signed, and the Town thereupon Surrendered, hath been a very great Encouragement to the Irish Papists, and a weakening to the English Interest there.

" Having thus, most Gracious Sovereign, out of our Affectionate Zeal to Your Majesty's Service, with all Humble Submission to Your Great Wisdom, laid before You these Abuses and Mismanagements in Your Kingdom of Ireland, we most Humbly Beseech Your Majesty for Redress thereof,

" That the Soldiers may be paid their Arrears, and the Country what is due to them for Quarters; and that no Irish Papist may serve in Your Army there.

" And forasmuch as the Reducing of Ireland hath been of great Expence to this Kingdom, we do also Humbly Beseech Your Majesty, that (according to the Assurance Your Majesty has been pleas'd to give us) no Grant may be made of the Forfeited Estates in Ireland, till there be an opportunity of settling that Matter in Parliament, in such manner as shall be thought most Expedient.

" That a true Account of the Escheats and Forfeited Estates, both Real and Personal, and 1692. Stores left by the late King James, may be laid before the Commons in Parliament; to the end, that the said Escheats, Forfeitures, and Stores, and the Embezzlements thereof, may be Enquired into.

" That no Outlawries of any Rebels in Ireland may be Reversed, or Pardons granted to them, but by the Advice of Your Parliament; and that no Protection may be Granted to any Irish Papist, to stop the Course of Justice.

" And as to the Additional Article which opens so wide a Passage to the Irish Papists, to come and Repossess themselves of the Estates which they had Forfeited by their Rebellion; we most Humbly Beseech Your Majesty, that the Articles of Limerick, with the said Addition, may be laid before you Commons in Parliament, that the manner of obtaining the same may be Enquired into; to the end it may appear by what means the said Articles were so engaged; and to what Value the Estates thereby obtained do amount to.

" Thus, may it please Your Majesty, we Your most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, do lay these Matters in all Humility before You; and as Your Majesty hath been pleas'd to give us such Gracious Assurances of Your readiness to Comply with us, in any thing that may tend to the Peace and Security of this Kingdom, we doubt not of Your Majesty's like Grace and Favour to that of Ireland; in the Safety and Preservation whereof, this Your Majesty's Kingdom is so much concerned.

To which Address His Majesty returned this Prudent Answer; Gentlemen, I shall always have great Consideration of what comes from the House of Commons; and I shall take great Care that what is Amis shall be Remedied. The House seem'd to be well Satisfied with this Answer; and proceeded Vigorously in the remaining Part of the Supplies; being Sensible that His Majesty was desirous to go early into Holland.

And to shew the greater Expedition, some Bills were to be left unfinish'd: The Commons had pass'd One, To enable Their Majesties to make Grants, Leases, and Copies of Offices, Lands and Hereditaments, Parcel of Their Dutchy of Cornwall, or annexed to the same; and for Confirmation of Leases and Grants already made. To which the Lords made some Amendments, that were disagreed to by the Commons. As for the Bill for Prohibiting the Use of all Lotteries; which had also Pass'd the Lower House, the Patentees of the Royal Oak Lottery found means to have it stopt in the Upper. The Bill for preventing the Prophanation of the Lord's-day, lay neglected after the first Reading; As also the Bill for removing Doubts, and preventing Controversies, concerning Royal Mines; after it had been Ingrossed. Neither was any Progress made in the Bill for preventing the Exportation of Gold and Silver, and the Melting down of the Coin of this Realm.

On Tuesday March 14. His Majesty came to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Assent to,

1. An Act for Granting to Their Majesties certain Additional Impositions upon several Goods and Merchandizes, for the Prosecuting the present War against France.
2. An Act for Review of the Quarterly Poll, Granted to Their Majesties in the last Sessions of this Present Parliament.
3. An Act for continuing certain Acts therein mentioned, and for Charging several Joint Stocks.
4. An Act for preventing Suits against such as acted for Their Majesties Service, in Defence of this Kingdom.
5. An Act for Reviving Two former Acts of Parliament, for the Repairing the Highways in the County of Hertford.
6. An Act for encouraging the apprehending of Highwaymen.
7. An Act to prevent abuses committed by the Traders

1692

Bills left unfinish'd

Bills pass'd

1692. ders in Butter and Cheese. 8. An Act for Raising the Militia of this Kingdom for the Year 1693. although the Months Pay formerly advanced be not repaid. 9. An Act for Examining, Taking, and Settling the Publick Accounts of this Kingdom. 10. An Act for Prohibiting the Importation of all Foreign Hair Buttons. 11. An Act for delivering Declarations to Prisoners. 12. An Act for the more easy Discovery and Conviction of such as shall destroy the Game of this Kingdom. 13. An Act for the Regaining, Encouraging, and Settling the Greenland Trade. 14. An Act for Punishing Officers and Soldiers who shall Mutiny or Desert Their Majesty's Service; and for Punishing false Musters; and for the Payment of Quarters. 15. An Act to prevent malicious Informations in the Court of King's-Bench; and for the more easy Reversal of Outlawries in the same Court. 16. An Act to prevent Frauds, by clandestine Mortgages. 17. An Act for Reviving, Continuing, and Explaining several Laws therein mentioned, which are Expired and near Expiring. 18. An Act to make Parishioners of the Church United, Contributors to the Repairs and Ornaments of the Church to whom the Union is made. 19. An Act for Regulating Proceedings in the Crown-Office of the Court of King's-Bench at Westminster. 20. An Act for the better Discovery of Judgments in the Courts of King's-Bench, Common-Pleas, and Exchequer at Westminster. 21. An Act for Continuing the Acts for Prohibiting all Trade and Commerce with France; and for the Encouragement of Privateers. And to 22 Private Acts.

After which, His Majesty made this most Gracious Speech to Both Houses of Parliament.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

THE large Supplies which you have given Me this Session, are so great Testimonies of your good Affections, that I take this Occasion with great willingness to return My hearty Thanks to You: And I assure You, it shall be My Care, to see that that Money You have given, may be effectually applied to such Services as may be most for the Honour and Interest of England.

I must recommend to Your Care the Peace and Quiet of the several Counties to which You are now returning, and doubt not but by Your Care, the Supply which You have so freely given, will not only be effectually levied, but with the greatest Equality too, and the least Uneasiness to the People that is possible.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The Posture of Affairs does necessarily require My Presence Abroad; but I shall take Care to leave such a Number of Troops here, as may be sufficient for the Security of the Kingdom against any Attempts of our Enemies.

I shall add no more, but that as I shall continue to expose My own Person upon all Occasions, for the Good and Advantage of these Kingdoms, so I do likewise assure You, that my hearty and sincere Endeavours shall never be wanting in any other kind, to make this a Great and Flourishing Nation.

And then the Parliament was by His Majesty's Command Prorogued to the Second Day of May next.

As to the Honours and Preferments that were this Year the Marks of Royal Favour, About the middle of April His Majesty was pleas'd to create the Right Honourable Sir Henry Capell Baron Capell of Tewkesbury, in the County of Gloucester. On April 27. Sir George Treby, Knight, Samuel Eyre, Francis Purley, William Coward, George Prickett, Tho. Gooding, Henry Gould, Roger Moor, Reginald Brutland, John Darnel, Joseph Girdler, Littleton Powys, Nath. Wright, and Charles Bonython, Esq; were called by Their Majesties Writ to the State and Degree of Serjeants at Law. About the middle of June Their Majesties were pleas'd to appoint Nicholas Horne, Esq; to be their Consul at Alicante: The Lord Sidney was again appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and arriv'd at Dublin August 5th, where the Lords Justices resign'd the Sword to him, and the Lord Chancellor made a short Speech to this effect.

"That it being usual upon such Occasions as this was, to give his Excellency an exact Account of the Condition and Affairs of the Kingdom, They now thought it wholly unnecessary, being sensible his Lordship was thoroughly acquainted therewith. That their Majesties could not have fix'd upon a Person more to the Mind and general Satisfaction of the Kingdom, than his Excellency; and that they were in hopes the Work which was so successfully begun, in bringing this Nation out of the Ruin it was involved in, into an entire Peace, (to which his Excellency has been the greatest Contributor) would now be fully perfected". On Septemb. 28. Sir John Macklaine, Chief of the Macklains, and Proprietor of the Island of Mull, in the West Highlands of Scotland, having submitted himself to their Majesties Government, and delivered up his Castles to be governed by their Majesties Forces, came to Whitehall, and had the Honour to kiss the Queen's Hand, and went thence to Holland, to throw himself at His Majesty's Feet. In the beginning of October, their Majesties were pleas'd by Letters Patents to constitute and appoint William Broderick, Esq; Their Attorney-General of the Island of Jamaica, in the Place of Simon Musgrave, Esq; lately deceas'd. And on October 30. His Majesty was pleas'd to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Col. William Beeston, Lieutenant Governor and Commander in Chief of Jamaica, who kiss'd His Majesty's Hand in order to his going to that Government.

About the end of December His Majesty granted to Sir John Trevor, Speaker of the House of Commons, and First Lord Commissioner of the Great Seal, the Office of Master of the Rolls, in the Place of Henry Powle, Esq; lately deceas'd. On Jan. 12. William Bridgman, Esq; was sworn one of the Clerks of the Privy Council, in the Place of John Dyve, Esq; deceas'd. On Sunday Jan. 22. Colonel Edwin Stede, late Lieutenant Governor of Barbadoes, presenting an Address to His Majesty, from the Grand Jury of that Island, received the Honour of Knighthood. On Jan. 26. His Majesty confer'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Christopher Greenvil of Preston in Lancashire. His Majesty being now intent upon preparing His Fleet for the next Summer's Expedition, thought fit to lay aside Admiral Roffe, and put the Chief Command of the Fleet into the Hands of Henry Killegreen, Esq; Sir Ralph Delaval, and Sir Cloudesly Shovel, and constituted them to be Admiral by a Joint Commission; and on Feb. 8. His Majesty was pleas'd to appoint George Rook, Esq; to be Vice Admiral of the Red; John Lord Barclay, Vice-Admiral of the Blue; Colonel Matthew Aylmer, Rear-Admiral of the Red; and Captain David Mitchell, Rear-Admiral of the Blue. On Feb. 16. the King came to Portsmouth to see the Men of War at Spithead, and went on Board Vice-Admiral Rook, upon whom His Majesty confer'd the Honour of Knighthood. When His Majesty was setting Things in order for his Journey to Holland, to leave the Administration of Affairs upon a surer Bottom in His Absence, He was pleas'd on March 23d. (the 1692.

Admiral Roffe laid aside.

Commissioners appointed for the Fleet.

Honours and Preferments.

1692. Day before his departure) to Commit the Custody of the Great Seal to Sir John Somers, Attorney General, who was accordingly Sworn Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England, and one of their Majesties most Honourable Privy Council. The same Day Sir John Trenchard Knt. was Sworn one of their Majesties Principal Secretaries of State, and of the Privy Council. His Majesty ordered a new Commission to pass under the Great Seal, constituting Sir John Lowther of Whitehaven Bar^t. Henry Priestman Esq; Anthony Lord Viscount Falkland, Robert Austin Esq; Sir Robert Rich Bar^t. Henry Killebrew Esq; and Sir Ralph Delaval Knt. to be Commissioners for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of England. And at the same time His Majesty was pleased to grant to the Honourable Edward Ruffel Esq; the Office of Treasurer of Their Majesties Chamber.

On the Death of Dr. Thomas Wood Bishop of Litchfield and Coventry, Their Majesties were pleased to nominate William Lord Bishop of St. Asaph to be Translated to that See. On Sunday February 19th. Dr. John Hurstongue, Chaplain to his Grace the Duke of Ormond, Kiss'd Their Majesties Hands for the Bishoprick of Oserry in the Kingdom of Ireland, void by the Death of Dr. Thomas Otway.

William Mountford the famous Comedian, was set upon in the Street, in a Quarrel on the account of Mrs. Bracegirdle, an Eminent Actress, and was Barbarously Murder'd; the Lord Charles Mohun being unhappily in the Company, was Indicted for this Murder, and brought a Prisoner from the Tower, to his Tryal before the Peers in Parliament, in a Court prepared for that purpose in Westminster Hall, the Marquis of Carmarthen being Constituted Lord High Steward of England, pro hac Vice. The Court was open'd on Jan. 31. and the Tryal began between Twelve and One, and lasted till near Six in the Afternoon, when the Peers Adjourn'd to their own House, and after some Debate Adjourned there till the next Day; when after some further Debate they Adjourn'd to Friday February 3^d. when in the said Court in Westminster-Hall, several Questions were propos'd in Points of Law to the Judges then present, to which they gave their Resolutions. On the next Day their Lordships came into the Hall, and deliver'd their Judgment Seriatim, upon their Honours; and by a very great Majority the Lord Mohun was Acquitted of the said Murder.

Lord Mohun Indicted for the Murder of Mr. Mountford.

Acquitted by his Peers.

On the last Day of the Old Year His Majesty parted from Kensington very early, and came to Harwich that Night, but was not able to Embark by reason of the contrary Winds; so on Monday March 27. His Majesty came back to Colchester, and Dined and Lay that Night at the House of Mr. Isaac Rebow, upon whom His Majesty conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood, and return'd to Kensington on March 28th. and on the 31st. parted from thence again for Gravesend, where He Embarked and set Sail about Five that Afternoon, with a Fair Wind for Holland, being attended by several Yachts, and a Squadron of Men of War, under the Command of Rear Admiral Mitchell, and was accompanied by the Duke of Ormond, the Earl of Essex, and other Persons of Quality. He arrived safely in the Maese, on April 2^d. went to the Hague, and from thence to Loo, from whence he went to the Army, and with great Diligence possess'd himself of the Camp at Parke, by which He entirely broke the French King's Designs upon Brabant, who was thereby obliged to send a Strong Detachment under the Command of the Dauphin and the Mareschal de Boufflers into Germany, and

He Himself return'd to Versailles, without attempting any thing. The French under the Duke of Luxembourg, were all this while Encamped at Meldert, and though their Convoys were very much disturb'd by the Garison of Charleroy, yet it seem'd a Trial of Skill between both Armies, which should continue longest in their Posts; but at length the French July 13th. were forced to quit theirs first; Marching to Heilishheim in their way towards the Maese; which gave the King an opportunity to send a strong Detachment under the Command of the Prince of Wirtemberg, to Force the Lines which the French had made to cover their Conquer'd Countries, from the Scheld to the Lys, and so to Ipres, Birg St. Winox, and to the very Sea by Dunkirk. At the same time Count Tilly, General of the Troops of Liege, was marching with a Reinforcement to Joyn the King, of which Luxembourg being inform'd, he march'd immediately with a good Body of Troops to hinder that Conjunction; which he did effectually, surprizing the Count in the Hollow-Way, through which he was marching, and forcing him to Retreat to Maestricht, leaving near Two Hundred of his Men Killed, and all his Baggage behind him. The Prince of Wirtemberg's Forcing the Lines with good Success July 18. and Raising great Contributions, did not hinder the Duke of Luxembourg from laying Siege to Huy on the 19th. of July which made the King advance nearer the Country of Liege; But when His Majesty came to Tongres, He was Surprized to hear that the Castle of Huy had Capitulated. Upon further Information that Monsieur Luxembourg was drawn nearer Liege, His Majesty sent Ten Battalions thither, which, with great difficulty got at length into the Place; that now absolutely rejected the Neutrality Luxembourg offer'd. Thereupon the French General made a Feint of Besieging Liege, though his real Design was to Attack the King, now Encamped at Neerhespen, so much weaken'd by the several Detachments he had made to reinforce the Garisons of Liege and Maestricht, that it was generally computed that the French were at least Thirty Five Thousand Men Stronger. The King to know the certainty of the Enemies Designs, before he went farther off from the Maese, sent out daily some Parties of Horse, one of which returned on the 28th. of July, (N. S.) and gave His Majesty an account they could not go beyond Warem, because they met there with a great Party of French Horse; which was indeed the Left Wing of their Army upon the March. As soon as the King had notice of the Enemies Approach, he got on Horseback, with the Elector of Bavaria and Chief Officers of the Army, and finding by the Enemies Countenance, that 'twas the Vanguard of their whole Army that was coming to Attack him in his own Camp, His Majesty immediately order'd to Arms, and to draw in Battel, to expect the Enemy. Most of the General Officers were for repassing the Geet, but His Majesty chose to make the Advantage of the Ground he had, and venture a Battel, notwithstanding the vast disproportion of the Two Armies, rather than expose his Rear to the Enemies Charge. Besides, the French were now near the great and defenceless Towns of Brabant, which must feel the effects of their Fury, unless they had been stop't by venturing an Engagement; and as the Benefits of a Victory were great, so upon the worst supposition of the Event, the King had still Prince Wirtemberg's Victorious Army, ready to make up the Breaches of His own; an Advantage which the Enemy had not so ready on their side. The Right of the Confederates in this Camp was at Heylissen and 1693.

The French forced to Decamp.

Luxembourg resolves to Attack the King.

The King prepares for it.

Forms a Camp at Parke.

1693. and Wangen, upon the River Geet, and reach'd as far as Neerwinden, being covered with a small Brook, several Hedges and Hollow-Ways. The Elector of Bavaria had his Quarters at Wangen; the Body of Foot, and Left Wing of the Horse reached from thence as far as Dormal, upon the Brook of Beck, where Lewe remain'd in their Rear.

There are hereabouts Two Rivers, both which have the name of Geet, the greater and the less: The greater Geet comes from Judoign to Tillemont; the lesser, which did run upon the Right part of the Rear of the Confederates Camp at Neerbespen, has its Spring about Lens-les-Reguines, and so runs to Hannage, and several other Villages, to both the Heyliffems, to Neerbespen, and so to Lewe. The Brook of Beck rises about Putfay, runs to Landen, and so to the Lewe, where it joins with the lesser Geet, and all these Three small Rivers join in one below Lewe. About Six in the Afternoon the Marechal de Jeuasse came up with the Left Wing of Horse, and about Eight the Body of Foot, which for more Expedition the Prince of Conti had order'd to March, after they had pass'd the Jecker upon Four Columns, with the best part of the Artillery; but as 'twas too late then to Engage a Battel, Luxembourg contented himself to dispose his Army, in order to begin early the next Day; and for this end possess'd himself of the Villages of Landen, St. Gertruydenland and Ower-winden.

Battel of Landen.

As soon as the Enemy drew up by the Confederate Camp, the King order'd Brigadier Ramsay with his Brigade, then compos'd of Five Battalions, viz. O Farel, Mackay, Lowder, Lowen and Morroe, to the Right of all, to guard some Hedges and Hollow-Ways, upon the Right of the Village of Lare. The Brandenburgh Battalions were Post'd to the Left of this Village; and more to the Left, the Infantry of Hannover; Prince Charles of Brandenburgh, as Major General, commanding the Six Battalions of Brandenburgh, and Lieutenant General Dumont the Hannovarians, with whom he went to Defend the Village of Neerwinden, that cover'd part of the Confederate Camp, between the Right Wing of Horse, and their Main Body. These were afterwards reinforced by the First Battalion of the First Regiment of Guards, and a Second Battalion of Scotch Guards. Upon the Left at Neer-Landen, the King order'd the First Battalion of the Royal Regiment, Churchill's, Selwin's, and Trelawny's, Prince Frederick's Battalion of Danes, and Fagel's, to possess this Village that cover'd the Left of the Confederates Body of Foot; which upon the Enemies Approach had Wheel'd from the Left to the Right, to bring up their Left to the Brook of Beck, where 'twas cover'd by the Village of Neer-Landen. The Ground was open between the Villages of Neer-Winden and Neer-Landen; whereupon His Majesty order'd a Retrenchment to be made in the Night, from the one to the other, to cover the Body of Foot; which was indeed but a slight Breast-work, as may easily be judged by the short time they had to make it, and the small number of Men that Work'd about it, to wit, Thirty Men per Battalion. What remain'd of the Body of the Foot was drawn up in one Line, within this Intrenchment, to Defend it. The Dragoons upon the Left were order'd to the Village of Dormal, to guard that Pass upon the Brook of Beck, and from thence the Left Wing of Horse reach'd to Neer-Landen, where 'twas cover'd by this Brook; and from thence turned off to the Right behind the Body of Foot.

The King who had been on Horseback till late in the Evening, not only to give all the necessary Commands, but to see them executed, order'd His Coach to be brought to the Rear of Stanley's Regiment, where he repos'd himself about Two Hours; and early in the Morning sent for Dr. Manard, one of his Chaplains, into the Coach to Pray with him, suitable to the Occasion: A rare example to all Military Men, who from this may Learn, that the most Heroick Valour is that which is grounded on a good Conscience, and a true Christian Piety.

By Sun-Rising the French were drawn up within the reach of the Confederates Cannon, which play'd upon them with good Success, and which the French sustain'd with admirable Constancy, till about Six a Clock, when they made a Motion to draw nearer the King's Retrenchment. About Eight Luxembourg order'd a strong Body of Troops to Attack the Villages of Lare and Neer-Winden; which they did with great Fury, and various Success, having gain'd and lost these Posts once and again; but at length the Allies maintain'd their Ground; and here the Duke of Berwick was taken Prisoner by Brigadier Churchill. This ill Success did not discourage the French from trying their Fortune against the Confederates Left Wing at Neer-Landen. 'Tis true, this Post was not Weak, but it was Attack'd with a great disproportion of Forces, and the Fire was very smart on both sides. The First Battalion of the Royal Regiment was after a sharp Dispute forced to Retire, but was soon after encouraged by His Majesty's Presence (who Rode immediately from the Right to the Left) and sustain'd by Selwin's, who observing a Passage in this Place, where Horse could come upon his Rear, order'd Trees to be cut down, and stop it up. The House were Hamilton's Grenadiers had before been Post'd, was likewise set on Fire, and by this time the Two foremention'd Regiments being supported by Prince Frederick's and Fagel's, the Enemy after a sharp Dispute of about Two Hours, were entirely beaten off, and pursued quite out of the Defile into the very Plain, so that they attempted this Place no more.

Hitherto the Success of the Day was visibly on the Confederates side, and the French who continued a faint Fire at Neer-winden, seem'd by their Countenance as if they design'd to draw off: But Luxembourg having still several Brigades of fresh Men, resolv'd to gain the Village of Neer-Winden, and order'd the Prince of Conti to make the Attack. The Enemy had remain'd Masters of the outermost Hedges of this Village; for though our rally'd Forces had made the French give way considerably, yet they could not entirely clear the Village. The Prince of Conti with the best Foot in the French Army, charg'd the Confederates so vigorously, that the latter being already spent by the former Encounters, were soon oblig'd to yield to the Enemy the Avenues of Neer-Winden; upon which Success Luxembourg came to observe the Passages that led to the Confederates Camp for his Horse to march in. As the Marechal de Villeroy was marching with a strong Body of Horse this way, Count de Arco, General of the Bavarian Cuirassiers, charg'd them with so much Vigour, that notwithstanding their Brave Resistance, he repuls'd them quite within their Foot; the Count de Chertres who charg'd with them, narrowly escap'd being made Prisoner. Thereupon the Confederates endeavour'd to regain once more the Post of Neer-Winden; and the Elector of Bavaria order'd Two Battalions to charge the Enemy in Front, whilst Three others should charge them upon their Left Flank: but the French rallying, and being considerably Reinforced, the Attempt became impossible; the Dutch and the Scotch Guards having spent all their 1693.

The Kings Piety.

Success at first on Confederates side.

By degrees overpowered by the French.

1692. Ammunition by their continual Fire. The King, who had left Nieerwinden upon the Enemies fresh Attempt upon Nieerwinden, led Twice the English Battalions to the Charge, up to the Right of the Retrenchments (which was now flank'd, and under the Enemies Command) where they Fought with great Bravery. In the mean time Luxemburgh's, who had found a more convenient Passage for the Horfe, between the Posts of the Kings and Zurbeck's Brigades, came in himself with the Prince of Conti and Count de Maffi into the Plain of the Confederates Camp, with the Carabineers, and several other Regiments; whilst the Mareschal de Joyeuse pass'd between Nieerwinden and Lare, with Three Brigades. The first that had come in with Prince Conti, join'd with the Kings Horfe, and fell upon the Hannover Horfe and broke them; whilst part of the Enemies second Line of Horfe, and the Reserve, came in upon their Left, along the Hedges of Lare. The Marquess of Haycourt, who had been sent for from Huy, with his Detachment of Twenty two Squadrons, came time enough to have his Share of the Day: He join'd these, and made his Dragoons alight to Chase our Foot out of the Village of Laire. The Duke of Villeroy came in upon our Right of the Retrenchments, which Place the English Foot disputed with undaunted Resolution, till being over-powered, the French remain'd Masters of this part of the Retrenchment, which they levelled, to make room for a Body of Horfe to come, after the Hannover Horfe had been broken; the rest of the Confederates Right Wing of Horfe being cut off from the Body of Foot, was soon overthrown by the Enemy, who now had the opportunity to Charge them both Front and Flank. The Elector of Bavaria did what he could to resist the numerous Multitude of the Enemies Horfe that Charged him thus; but finding it impossible, with no small difficulty he Retreated over the Bridge, and rally'd on t'other side, as many of the scatter'd Horfe and Foot as could get over, to favour the Retreat of those who were ready to pass. The King did what he could to remedy this Disorder; Riding to the Left, to bring up the English Horfe, for the Relief of the Right Wing. But the Enemy had now got another Body of Horfe in our Camp, Commanded by the Duke d'Elbœuf. At the same time the Duke de Montmency, Luxemburgh's Son, fell upon the Right Flank of the Dutch Horfe, and put them in Disorder, before the English Horfe, which were led on by the King, could come up and form their Squadrons; so that they were forced to charge the Enemy in the same order they rid up to them; (and most of them had rid as fast as their Horses could gallop) but that did not hinder them from doing extraordinary Service. The King himself charged at the head of my Lord Galloway's Regiment, which distinguish'd it self very much on this Occasion. Colonel Hyndham, at the head of his Regiment, charg'd several times through and through the Enemies Squadrons. Colonel Langstone was made Prisoner; and the Duke of Ormond having charged at the head of one of Lumley's Squadrons, received several Wounds, and had his Horfe shot under him, was rescued by a Gentleman of the French Kings Guards, from the hands of a Villain who was offering to stab him.

The King
Retreats.

The King seeing the Battel lost, order'd the Infantry to retreat to Dornil, upon the Brook of Laik, which Post had hitherto been kept by the Dragoons of the Left Wing, who had nothing to do this Day; and finding that the Enemies were Surrounding him on all sides, His Majesty order'd the Regiments of Hyndham, Lumley, and Galloway, to cover His Retreat over the Bridge at Nieerbessen, which He gain'd with great Difficulty. There was now nothing but Confusion and Disorder in the Confederates Camp; all those who could not get the Passes for the Retreat, being pressed by the Enemy, were forc'd to fling themselves into the River, where abundance were drowned; the Earl of Athlone narrowly escaping the same Fate. Lieutenant General Talmash brought off the English Foot with great Prudence, Bravery, and Success; but some of the English Live-Guards were so fear'd with the Fury of a pursuing Enemy, that they did not think themselves secure till they reach'd Breda. Sixty Pieces of Cannon, and Nine Mortars were lost; but all the Baggage had been sent to Lewe the over-Night, where it was safely brought off in respect of the Enemy, but generally plunder'd by our own Soldiers. As for the Loss of Men, the Confederates owned but Six thousand killed, wounded, or taken Prisoners; and the French could not deny, but that they had above Two thousand Officers killed or wounded: Let the Reader guess how many private Soldiers they lost in proportion.

The King in the day of Battel shew'd Himself, as he had always done, a Hero and a Commander: And it was by a wonderful Providence, that He escap'd Three Musquet Shots, one through His Peruke; another through the Sleeve of His Coat; and a third, which carried off the Knot of His Scarf, and left a small Contusion on His Side. In short, His Majesty gain'd so far the Respect and Admiration of His very Enemies, that 'twas a common saying amongst them, That they wanted but such a King to make them Masters of Christendom. And the Prince of Conti, in his Intercepted Letter to the Princess his Wife, said; He saw the King Exposing Himself to the greatest Dangers; and that surely so much Valour very well deserv'd the peaceable Possession of the Crown He wore.

The Confederates gave it out, That the French had lost 18000 Men in the Battel; which Assertion seem'd to be confirm'd by Luxemburgh's not pursuing his Victory; and his continuing Fifteen Days together at Waren, without attempting any thing. However, after they had been reinforc'd with some Troops from the Sea-Coast, and a great Detachment under Bouffler's from the Rhine, they sat down before Charleroy, Sept. 10. The Place was Attack'd with great Fury, but the Garrison made such a vigorous Resistance, that tho' they had litt'e or no Prospect of Relief, yet they held out Six and twenty Days, from the opening of the Trenches; and then made an Honourable Capitulation Octob. 10. The French were not less Successful in Catania, where so early as the 29th of May, they invest'd Reses both by Sea and Land; and carried the Siege of it on with that Diligence, that they made themselves Masters of the Place in Seven Days.

On the other hand, the Germans were so slow, and the French so forward on the Rhine, that the latter pass'd that River about the middle of May at Philipsburg; and, without any Opposition, the Marquis of Chamilly invest'd the City of Heidelberg. At the same time the Duke de Lorge cross'd the first Mountains, to oppose the Prince of Baden; who was not yet in a Condition to act but defensively: So that the Town must now shift for it self. But besides its natural Weakness, there was at this time such a Division between the Garrison and the Towns-men, about the Money that was call'd in, and which the former would have go Current again; that when the Regiment of Seanbeck was ready to enter the Place to reinforce the Garrison, the Towns-men would not suffer them to come in; which gave Mon-

The King's Courage and Conduct.

The French
take Charleroy.

Actions
on the Rhine.

1693. Monsieur de Melac an opportunity to seize a Redoubt which commanded that part of the Town. In short, the French on the 21st of May made themselves Masters of the Suburbs with little Opposition; and their Grenadiers drove the Besieged with so much Fury to the Castle-Gate, that the latter left above 600 of their Soldiers without, who were all put to the Sword. The Governor of the Castle apprehending the same Fate, accepted the Conditions which Monsieur de Lorge impos'd upon him, June 2. and was contented to be conducted to Wimpel with the rest of his Garison, consisting of 1200 Men, 2 Pieces of Cannon, and 12 Wagons laden with Baggage. The Imperialists were no sooner out of the City, but the French set both that and the Castle on Fire, and committed several other Barbarities in the Palatinate, not sparing so much as the sacred Repositories of the Ashes of the Deceased Electors. Fledg'd with this easy Success, the Marechal de Lorge advanced towards the Neckar, with a design to attack the Prince of Baden, who lay encamp'd with his Army on the other side of the River; which the French twice endeavour'd to pass, but were forced to abandon their Enterprize, with the Loss of near a Thousand Men. Some time after this, the Dauphin in Person join'd the Army, which consisted of near 70000 Men; and having cross'd the Neckar, made a shew of Attacking the Prince of Baden; but found his Highness so well posted, that he repass'd the River without attempting anything; and having put a Garison into Stugard, and sent a Detachment into Flanders and Piedmont, he returned in the Month of August to Versailles.

Affairs of Italy. Let's now take a short View of the Affairs of Italy: The Duke of Savoy was no sooner recover'd of his long Indisposition, but he put himself at the Head of the Army; which being considerably strong, made the Inhabitants of Dauphiné apprehensive of a worse Irruption into their Country than the last: But the Confederates seem'd now chiefly to aim at the Driving the French out of Italy, by dispossessing them of Cazal and Pignerol; neither of which was effected this Year. 'Tis true, Cazal was block'd up for some time, and the Fort of St. George carried by Assault, which compleated the Blockade of that Place; but Things went no farther: And the Duke of Savoy, with the Main Army, laid Siege to Pignerol, took the Fort of St. Bridget, that cover'd the Place; but paid so dear for this Post, that after all, it was debated, Whether they should carry on the Siege, or only Bombard the Town? While the Allies were thus deliberating among themselves, Monsieur Catinat being considerably reinfor'd, descended into the Plains, and gave the Duke such Umbrage for Turin, that he drew off from about Pignerol, and encamp'd at Marsaglia, having first blown up the Fort of St. Bridget. The Army was presently drawn up in Battalia: The Marquis de Leganes commanded the Left Wing, compos'd of the King of Spain's Troops: His Royal Highness, and under him the Count of Caprava, commanded the Right Wing; and Prince Eugene the Main Battel, having under him the Marquis de la Parelle, and the Count de las Torres: As for the Duke of Schomberg, being denied the Post due to him, he resolv'd to fight on foot at the Head of his own Regiment, like an ordinary Colonel. The Confederate Army being thus dispos'd, march'd on the 3^d. of November into the Neighbourhood of Orbasson; from whence they perceived the Enemy towards the Hills, between Orbasson and Piofisque. Early the next Day the French advanced towards the Confederates, making use of the Advantage they had in the Ground, which was full of Wood and Vineyards; and soon after the Cannon began to play on both sides. About half an hour after Eight, the French fell upon the Confederate Left Wing with near Twenty Thousand Men, without Firing a Shot; having their Bayonets at the end of their Fuzees, and their Swords in their Hands. They were received and driven back with great Vigor; but renewing their Attack, they took in Front and Flank the Neapolitan and Milanese Horse; who, after having courageously withstood the Fury of their Enemy, were at last overpower'd by their Numbers, and push'd upon the German Horse. These being at the same time Charg'd by the Little Gendarmerie, were no longer able to maintain their Ground, but fell upon the Infantry, which was put also into Disorder. The Second Line was brought on to oppose the Enemy, while the First Line rallied; but the Horse giving way, the Foot was quickly routed.

While Things pass'd thus on this side, the French were thrice repuls'd with great Loss by the Confederates Main Battalia, and Right Wing; till their Horse, which had made the Left Wing give way, attack'd the Confederate Infantry behind and in Flank, who had no longer any Horse to cover them, and were at the same time attack'd by the Enemies Foot. All the Troops fought with great Courage, and the Dispute was desperate on both sides. His Britannick Majesty's Forces, which were posted in the Main Battalia, particularly distinguished themselves; and the Duke of Schomberg, their General, was desired by the Count de las Torres, after the Enemies Third Attack, to take upon him the Command, and cause a Retreat to be made by the Body of Foot, and the Right Wing. But his Grace being piqu'd at the Usage he had met before, told him, that it was necessary first to have his Royal Highness's Order; and until it came, he would bear the Enemies Fire; adding, that he found Things were gone so far, that they must now either Vanquish or Die. The Confederates resist'd the repeated Efforts of the Enemy with extraordinary Resolution; but were at last forc'd to abandon the Field of Batrel, and to retire with the Loss of the greatest part of their Cannon, and of Seven or Eight Thousand Men. The Duke of Schomberg having fought with unparallel'd Valour, received a Wound in the Thigh, of which he died not many days after. With this Action ended the Campaign in Piedmont.

Our Affairs at Sea were as unfortunate as those at Land; the English and Dutch Fleet was large and strong, and set out early. There was also a great Fleet of Merchant-men, making in all near 400 Sail of English, Dutch, Hamburgers, &c. bound for the Streights, under the Convoy of 23 Men of War, commanded by Sir George Keck, with whom the Grand Fleet was to keep company till they came to such a Latitude; or as some reported, till they had certain Intelligence where the French Fleet was. Sir George at the appointed time left the Main Fleet, and sail'd on, leaving by the way the Vessels bound for Bilboa, Lisbon, St. Ubes, and other Ports, under Convoy of Two Men of War, and so pursued his Voyage towards the Streights. On June 15. being come within 60 Leagues of Cape St. Vincent, he discover'd part of the French Fleet, which made him call a Council of War; wherein it was resolv'd, That the Wind being fresh Westwardly, and giving a fair opportunity to hasten their Passage to Cadiz, the Merchants should make the best of their way. Upon the discovery of the Enemies whole Fleet, commanded by Monsieur de Tourville, and consisting of Eighty Sail, Sir George 1693.

Our Fleet of Merchantmen surprized
by the French.

Rook brought to, and stood off with an easie Sail, to give what time he could to the Heavy Sails to work away to the Windward, sending away the Sheerness to order the Small Ships that were under the Shoar to get in the Night into Faro, St. Lucar, and Cadiz. About Six in the Evening, June 16. the French Admiral, and Vice-Admiral of the Blue came up with the Leeward, and stern'd most of the Confederate Fleet, which were Three Dutch Men of War, who fought first Eleven, and then Seven French Men of War, but were at last forc'd to yield. This made the Dutch Merchantmen that were there, rack for the Shore, and the Enemy after them, which gave an opportunity for the Ships to Windward, and a-head, to make Sail off, and saved a great part of the Fleet: And yet the Loss was very considerable; for besides four of the greatest Smyrna Ships, and one Dutch Man of War, which Monsieur Coetlegen burnt or sunk at Gibraltar, and seven which he took, Monsieur de Tourville, and Count de Estrees took Two Dutch Men of War, burnt a rich Pinnace, and an English Man of War, took 29 Merchantmen, and destroyed about 50 more. Upon this Disaster Sir George Rook with the Men of War, and some Merchantmen, made the best of his way for Ireland. This Misfortune lay heavy upon the Hearts of the Merchants, and indeed upon the Minds of all the People of England; and therefore at the next meeting of the Parliament, the first thing they did, was to enquire into the Miscarriages of the Fleet the last Summer, and to consider how best to preserve the Trade of the Nation. Some time was spent in examining the Instructions and Orders given to the Fleet; the Number of Ships for the Line of Battel, and of the Convoys and Cruisers; the Admirals that commanded both, and the Results of the several Councils of War held by 'em; and then on Nov. 17. the Commons Resolved, It was the Opinion of that House, That there had been a Notorious and Treacherous Mismanagement in the Miscarriage of the Smyrna Fleet. Their next Enquiry was, Why the Streights Fleet was stopt till the Main Fleet went out? And then, Why the Main Fleet did not convoy Sir George Rook's Squadron, and the Merchant Ships, out of danger of the French Fleet? And it being alledged, That the Main Fleet was not sufficiently victualled, the Commons examin'd the State of their Stores at sailing from Spithead, and thereupon Resolved, Nov. 27. That there were sufficient Beer and other Stores on Board the Main Fleet, when Sir George Rook separated, to have convoy'd his Squadron, and the Merchant Ships out of danger of the Breft Fleet. But though the Miscarriage was very notorious, they knew not where to fix the particular Blame: For on Nov. 29. the Question being put, That it did appear to that House, that the Admirals that Commanded the Fleet the last Summer, had, on the 11th of May last, Information that part of the Breft Fleet was going out to Sea; it pass'd in the Negative: And on the 6th of December, another Question being put, That the Admirals, by not sending into Breft for Intelligence, before they left the Streights Squadron, were guilty of a high Breach of the Trust that was reposed in them, to the great Loss and Dishonour of the Nation; it was likewise carried in the Negative. Before this Enquiry in Parliament, the Admirals had been examin'd before the Council-Board; but nothing could be made appear to the prejudice of their Honour, only some flying Reports which gave occasion to this Order of Council, on Oct. 25. Whereas a Report has been raised and spread by Henry Killegrew, Esq; Sir Ralph Delaval, and Sir Cloudfly Shovel, Knt. Admirals of Their Majesties Fleet, That the Right Honourable the Lord Viscount Falkland, one of the Lords of Their Majesties most Honourable Privy Council, did upon Reading a Paper at the Board, stiffe something that was material to their Justification: The Lords of the Council having considered of, and examined into the Matter, are satisfied, and do declare, That the said Report is false and scandalous: Although upon the said Examination it did also appear, that something happened which might mislead the Admirals into that Error. And it is Ordered in Council, That this be Printed and Published in the Gazette. But however, His Majesty to show His Just Resentments of these Unhappy Proceedings at Sea, immediately upon His Return declared in Council, That He had appointed Edward Russel, Esq; to be Admiral of the Fleet.

And yet for all these Victories and Triumphs of France, that Monarch saw His own Countrey so oppress'd with Famine, and his Troops abroad so intolerable a Burthen on Him, that in the midit of His Glories, He was glad to make Proposals of Peace to the Emperor; which being rejected, a Memorial was presented to K. William by the Minister of the K. of Denmark, dated London December 19. 1693. wherein great Offers were made of Restitution and Satisfaction to the Empire, Spain, and Holland; concluding thus: Upon the whole Matter the King my Master is persuaded, that no Body has more Reason to contribute to this Peace than Your Majesty, since it will confirm to You the Glory and Advantages You have gain'd during the War; and will, besides, make Europe to be eternally beholden to Your Majesty for the Peace she groans after. If Your Majesty thinks that there is any thing defective, in relation to the Security of the Peace, or that wants to be either alter'd or explain'd; the King my Master, engages to procure to Your Majesty all the Satisfaction imaginable. And if You are pleas'd to confide in His Mediation, He will manage it to Your Majesty's entire Satisfaction. Lastly, the King my Master has commanded me to assure Your Majesty, That being, upon several Accounts, concern'd in the Prosperity of Your Royal Family, He will, to the utmost of His Power, promote its Interest and Advantage: And desires Your Majesty to be persuaded, That all the Advantages He has made in this Affair, have no other Aim, and are grounded upon no other Principle.

On March 30. Edward Southwell, Esq; was, by His Majesty's Command, Sworn Clerk of the Council Extraordinary. On the same day, Edward Ward, of the Inner Temple, Esq; kiss'd His Majesty's Hand for the Place of Attorney-General, in the room of Sir John Somers; And on April 4. He was Sworn before his Predecessor then Lord Keeper. About the same time, His Majesty Granted to John Lord Cutts, the Office of Captain and Governor of the Isle of Wight, in the Place of Sir Robert Holmes deceased. On April 13. Thomas Lord Coningsby, was by Her Majesty's Command, Sworn of the Privy Council, and took his Place at the Board. On May 3. Their Majesties Granted by Letters Patents to Samuel Travers, Esq; the Office of Surveyor General, vacant by the Death of Mr. Harbord, Their Majesties late Ambassador in Turkey. In the beginning of July, my Lord Capel, Sir Cyril Hych, and William Duncomb Esq; were constituted Lords Justices of Ireland, in the room of the Lord Sidney; who return'd to London on July the 19th, and for a Reward of his good Services, was on July 22. made Master-General of the Ordnance. Richard Earl of Bellamont, and James Hamilton Esq; did in July Petition Her Majesty, That a stop might be put to the passing of Pardons to the Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter K^t, late Lords Justices of Ireland until the Petitioners, and many other of Their Majesties Subjects of Ireland, might be permitted to produce their Proofs against them. The Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter, upon hearing of such Petition, did likewise Request Her 1693.

Accusation against Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter.

Enquiry in Parliament into this Miscarriage.

1693. Her Majesty to put a stop to the said Pardons, till their Accusers might be heard in the most publick manner, before Her Majesty in Council. Thereupon it was order'd in Council, the 27th of July, That the Matters of the said Petitions should be heard the next Council Day; at which time the Earl of Bellmont and Mr. Hamilton deliver'd a Paper, excusing their giving in any Charge against the Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter; which being Read, it was order'd that the Matter should be farther Examind at the Board that Day Six Weeks; and that in the mean time the Accusers should deliver their Charge against the late Lords Justices in Writing to the Board, on the 17th of August. The Earl of Bellmont and Mr. Hamilton exhibited several Accusations on the appointed Day; but still declining to be heard to make good the same; and on the contrary, the Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter offering to prove their Innocency, the Queen order'd the said Petitions and Charge to be dismissed.

The King arrived at the Hague from Loo, on Octob. 1. and persuaded the States of Holland to agree to the raising of Fifteen thousand Men for Augmenting their Land Forces; and likewise to the Addition of a considerable Number of Ships to their Navy. For which His Majesty Thank'd them in their Publick Assembly. The King had waited almost a whole Month for a fair Wind; and at last embark'd on Saturday Octob. 28. on the Mary-Yatch, and Sail'd that Morning out of the Maese, being attended by a Squadron of Men of War, under the Command of Rear Admiral Mitchel. On Sunday about 4 in the Afternoon, His Majesty lunded at Harwich, and staid that Night at Sir Isaac Rebow's in Colechester; and about 11 the next Night came to Kensington. On November 2. A Proclamation was publish'd, for a Publick Thanksgiving: Inasmuch as it had pleased Almighty God, to preserve Their Majesties and Their Government against the Designs and Attempts of Their open and secret Enemies; and to protect His Majesty's Person from the many and great Dangers of the War in His late Expedition beyond the Seas; and to bring him back in Safety to this Kingdom. On the same day the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen waited upon His Majesty at Whitehall, humbly to Congratulate His wonderful Preservation and happy Return. His Majesty gave 'em a Gracious Answer; and as a Mark of His Royal Favour, was pleased to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Thomas Abney, Esq; one of the Sheriffs.

According to the last Prorogation from Octob. 26. the Parliament met at Westminster on Tuesday Nov. 7. And His Majesty made this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,
 I Am always glad to meet you here, and I could heartily wish that Our Satisfaction were not lessened at present, by Reflecting upon the Disadvantages We have received this Year at Land, and the Miscarriages in our Affairs at Sea. I think it is Evident, that the former was only occasion'd by the great Number of Our Enemies, which exceeded Ours in all places: For what relates to the latter, which has brought so great a Disgrace upon the Nation, I have Repented it extremely; and as I will take Care that those who have not done their Duty, shall be Punished, so I am Resolved to use my utmost endeavours, that Our Power at Sea may be rightly Managed for the Future. And it will well Deserve Your Consideration, Whether We are not defective both in the Number of Our Shipping, and in proper Ports to the Westward, for the better Annoying 1693. Our Enemies, and Protecting Our Trade, which is so Essential to the Welfare of this Kingdom.

My Lords and Gentlemen,
 I am very sensible of the good Affection wherewith you have always Assisted Me to Support the Charges of this War, which have been very Great; and yet I am perswaded that the Experience of this Summer is sufficient to convince Us all, that to arrive at a good End of it, there will be a Necessity of Increasing Our Forces both by Sea and Land the next Year. Our Allies have Resolved to add to theirs; and I will not doubt, but you will have such Regard to the present Exigency, as that you will give Me a suitable Supply to Enable Me to do the like. I must therefore earnestly Recommend it to you, Gentlemen of the House of Commons, to take such timely Resolution, as that your Supplies may be Effectual, and Our Preparations so forward, as will be necessary both for the Security and the Honour of the Nation.

In Answer to this Speech, the Commons unanimously Resolved, That they would Support Their Majesties and their Government, and Grant a sufficient Supply for the Vigorous Prosecution of the War. On Nov. 25. They Agreed that the Sum of 500000 l. be raised towards the Discharging the Wages due to the Seamen; and that a further Sum of Two millions be granted to Their Majesties in full, for the Maintenance of the Fleet, including the Ordnance; by reason of the Revenue now falling short. As for the Army, the Commons having examin'd the Offensive Treaties and Alliances His Majesty was now under with the Confederates, and the Proportions of Forces that the Confederates were obliged to make, for the carrying on this present War; unanimously Resolv'd on Dec. 22. That the Number of the Land Forces in Their Majesties Pay, be increased by the raising Six new Regiments of English Horse, Four new Regiments of English Dragoons, and Fifteen new Regiments of English Foot, to be Comanded by Officers that were Their Majesties Natural Born Subjects; That 82121 Men, including Commission and Non-commission Officers, were necessary for the Service of the Year 1694. to be employ'd in England, and beyond the Seas; and that the Sum of Two millions five hundred thirty thousand five hundred ninety Pounds be Granted, for the Maintenance of the Land Forces; to wit, 210773 Pounds for the Office of Ordnance; 32808 Pounds for the Pay of the General Officers; 11060 Pounds for Levy Money; 40808 Pounds for the Transports; 147000 Pounds for Hospitals and Contingencies; and 190781 Pounds for the Pay of the Horse, Dragoons, and Foot.

Besides these large Supplies, it was found, that the Sum of One Hundred Eighteen Thousand Pounds was wanting to compleat the Sum of One Million Granted to Their Majesties, by an Act made in the last Session of this present Parliament, for securing Recompences to such Persons as should voluntarily advance the said Money: And likewise that the Sum of Two Hundred Ninety Three Thousand Six Hundred Ninety Two Pounds was wanting, to compleat the Sum of Three Hundred Thousand Pounds, Granted by a late Act for the Review of the Quarterly Poll. The First of which Defective Funds the Commons resolv'd, on December 9th. to make good by enlarging the Term for Persons to Pay in the next of the Sum of One Million. And that towards the raising of Money for the maintenance of the Fleet, any Persons be at liberty to add a Second Life to the

The King returns to England.

Publick Thanksgiving.

Parliament meet.

King's Speech.

Proceedings of the Commons

Resolved to Augment our Forces.

And give proportionable Supplies.

1693. Life that was or should be nominated upon the Act for securing the Revenues by remission, upon paying the sum of Thirty Five Pounds for every One Hundred Pounds of duty, to be paid in upon the said Act; and for adding a Third Part, the Sum of Twenty Pounds, for every the said One Hundred Pounds, and so for ever greater Proportion.

Towards raising the Two Millions Granted for the Fleet, it was Resolved on December 21st. That the Sum of One Million be charg'd upon Land; And that a Duty of Three pence per Gallon be laid upon all Foreign Salt imported; and a Duty of One Penny Half Penny per Gallon, upon all English Salt, except all Salt employ'd in the curing Fish and Flesh to be exported.

The Commons being very much embarrassed how to Levy the rest of the vast Sums they had already Granted; on December 26th. Resolved That a further Sum of One Million be charged upon Land; And on December 29. That an Aid, not exceeding Four Shillings in the Pound, be Granted to Their Majesties, by charging each respective County with double the Sum returned, charged by an Act made in the First Year of Their Majesties Reign, for a Grant of Two Shillings in the Pound. But because the Committee of the whole House appointed to draw up the Bill, met with great Difficulties in framing it after that manner; the House gave them Power to alter the same, and to Frame it into a Bill of Four Shillings in the Pound.

Bill for frequent Parliaments rejected.

A Bill for the more frequent Elections of Parliaments, having, after the Third Reading, been Rejected by the Commons, on November 28th. Another Bill to the same purpose was sent down to 'em by the Lords, which being Read the Third time was likewise rejected.

Acts passed.

On Thursday January 25th. His Majesty came to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Assent to, First, An Act for Granting to Their Majesties an Aid of Four Shillings in the Pound for One Year, for carrying on a Vigorous War against France. Second, An Act for Repealing of such parts of several former Acts, as Prevent or Prohibit the Importation of Foreign Brandy, Aquas-vitæ, and other Spirits, and Bacon, except from France. Third, An Act for the Repeal of a Clause in the Statute made in the 34. and 35. Years of K. Henry VIII. by which Justices in Wales are limited to Eight in each County. Fourth, An Act for the Importation of Fine Italian, Sicilian, and Naples Thrown Silk. Fifth, An Act to enable John Vivian Esq; and Thomas Vivian his Son, to Sell some part of their Estate for Payment of Debts, and making Provision for Younger Children, and for settling other part of their Estate in lieu thereof. There was another Bill lay ready for the Royal Assent touching Free and Impartial Proceedings in Parliament, which had been prepar'd the last Year, and was now again brought in and Pass'd by Both Houses; But His Majesty thought fit again to refuse his Assent to it; which the Commons took so ill, that the next Day upon considering the State of the Nation, they Resolved that whosoever advised the King not to give the Royal Assent to that Act, was an Enemy to Their Majesties and the Kingdom; and a Representation was Drawn up by a Committee, and Agreed to by the House, wherein they humbly laid before His Majesty, "That what Bills had been Agreed by Both Houses for the Redress of Grievances, or other Publick Good, had, when Tender'd to the Throne, obtain'd the Royal Assent. And that there were very few Instances in former Reign, where such Assent in such Cases had not been given; and these attended with great great Inconveniencies to the Crown of England; especially where the same had been withheld by Intimation of particular Persons, without the Advice of the Privy Council,

Act for impartial Proceedings in Parliament rejected by the King.

Representation of the Commons.

1693. "thereby creating great Dissatisfaction and Jealousies in the Minds of the People. That the Commons therefore, out of their sincere desire of the Wellfare of His Majesty and His Government, could not without Grief of Heart, reflect, that since His Majesty's Accession to the Crown, several publick Bills, made by Advice of Both Houses of Parliament, had not obtain'd the Royal Assent; and in particular one Bill, Entitled, An Act touching Free and Impartial Proceedings in Parliament, which was to Redress a Grievance, and take off a Scandal relating to the Proceedings of the Commons in Parliament, after they had freely Voted great Supplies for the Publick Occasions; which they could impute to no other cause than the Insinuations of particular Persons, who took upon them for their own particular Ends, to Advise His Majesty contrary to the Advice of Parliament; and therefore could not but look on such as Enemies to His Majesty and his Kingdoms. Upon which Considerations they humbly Pray'd, That for the future His Majesty would be pleased to hearken to the Advice of His Parliament, and not to the Secret Advices of particular Persons, who might have private Interests of their own, separate from the true Interest of His Majesty and His People." To this Representation the King Answer'd January 29. "That He was very Sensible of the Good Affections the Commons had express'd towards Him upon many occasions, and of the Zeal they had shewn for the common Interest. That no Prince ever had a higher Esteem for the Constitution of the English Government than Himself, and that He should ever have a great Regard to the Advice of Parliaments. That He was perswaded that nothing could so much conduce to the Happiness and Wellfare of this Kingdom, as an entire Confidence between the King and People, and that He should look upon such Persons to be His Enemies, who should advise any thing that might lessen it." Three Days after, the Commons took His Majesty's Answer into Consideration, and the Question being propounded, That an Humble Application be made to His Majesty for a farther Answer, it pass'd in the Negative.

1693.

The East-India Company having obtain'd a Charter, whereby they were empower'd to raise the Sum of Seven Hundred Forty Four Thousand Pounds to be added to a General Joint Stock, and Subscribed by Their Majesties Natural born Subjects, Naturalized, or Indenized; the Subscriptions of each Person not exceeding Ten Thousand Pounds: Several Merchants and others, in and about the City of London, Petitioned the Commons December 7. for Erecting a New East-India Company. The House did thereupon Examine the Charters of the East-India Company, the Book of New Subscriptions, the State of their present Stock, and the Petition abovementioned; and after mature deliberation, January 19th. Resolved, That all the Subjects of England have equal Right to Trade to the East Indies, unless Prohibited by Act of Parliament; and this gave Occasion to the Erecting of a New East-India Company, more to the Division of the Merchants, than to the Benefit of Trade.

State of the East-India Company

A Complaint was made to the Commons of a Blasphemous Pamphlet, entitled, A Dialogue concerning the Deity; and a Brief, but Clear Confutation of the Doctrine of the Trinity; which had been dispers'd, and sent enclosed under Covers, directed to several Members of that House. It was thereupon Resolv'd on December the 16th. That the said Pamphlet should be Burnt by the Common Socinian Pamphlet Burnt.

1693. mon Hangman; and an Enquiry made after the Author, Printer, and Publisher.

The Earl of Beilmont, who had not succeeded in his Application to the Queen and Council, did now present to the House of Commons, Articles of Impeachment of High Treason, and other Crimes and Misdemeanors, against the Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter, late Lords Justices of Ireland. This Matter was taken into Consideration on December the 29th. and the Debates upon it, together with the Examination of Witnesses, having taken up a great deal of time; the House agreed at last to this Resolution, January the 29th. That considering the State of Affairs in Ireland at that time, the House did not think fit to ground an Impeachment against the Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter, for the Matters charg'd upon them.

Case of Lord Beilmon and Sir Charles Porter.

Project of Lotteries.

The Humour of the Nation run much upon Lotteries; and some private Projectors had enriched themselves that way. Some Members therefore of the House of Commons propos'd a like Method of Adventures, to raise a Million Sterling for the Government. This Design having been communicated to the House, it was Resolv'd on February the 6th. 1. That a Fund of 1400000 l. per Ann. be Rais'd, and Vested in Their Majesties, for the Term of Sixteen Years, for Recompening such Persons as shall Advance the Sum of One Million. 2. That the Impositions, lately Resolv'd by the House to be laid upon Salt, be Part of the said Fund. 3. That towards the further Answering of the said Yearly Fund, One Moiety of the Duties of Excise, Granted to Their Majesties by an Act made in the Second Year of Their Majesties Reign, be Granted and Continued to Their Majesties, after the Moneys charg'd upon the said Duties shall be satisfied. And 4. That a Bill be brought in upon the said Resolutions.

Acts passed.

On Thursday February the 8th. His Majesty came to the House of Peers, and gave His Royal Assent to, 1. An Act to supply the Deficiency of the Money raised by a former Act, entitled, An Act for Granting to Their Majesties certain Rates and Duties of Excise, upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors; for securing certain Recompences and Advantages in the said Act mentioned, to such Persons as shall voluntarily Advance the Sum of Ten Hundred Thousand Pounds, towards carrying on the War against France. 2. An Act to prevent Disputes and Controversies concerning Royal Mines. 3. An Act to Indemnify the Trustees of James Clayton, Esq; for joining with him in selling Lands for Payment of his Debts.

Case of Lord Falkland.

While the Commons were Debating of greater Supplies, the Commissioners they had appointed for Taking the Publick Accounts, were Order'd to lay before the House an Account of what Money had been paid for Secret Service, and to Members of Parliament, out of the Publick Revenue. Upon Examination of the whole Matter, it was Resolv'd on February the 17th. That the Lord Falkland being a Member of that House, by Begging and Receiving Two Thousand Pounds from His Majesty, contrary to the ordinary Method of Issuing and Bestowing the King's Money; was Guilty of a high Misdemeanour and Breach of Trust; and that he be committed to the Tower of London, during the Pleasure of the House. Accordingly his Lordship was sent to the Tower; from whence on February the 19th. he presented a Petition to the House, setting forth, That he was highly sensible of their Displeasure; and that a longer Continuance of his Confinement would be extremely prejudicial to him. Whereupon it was Order'd, That he should be discharg'd from his Imprisonment in the Tower.

Among other Ways and Means to raise a sufficient Supply, the Commons laid a Duty upon Leather, Soap, Wine, and the Tonnage of all Ships and Vessels. And, because even all these Impositions came short of Answering the Moneys to be Levied within this Year, They Resolv'd to Grant a Poil-Tax to Their Majesties, as also a Duty upon all Hackney and Stage-Coaches; and lastly upon Paper and Parchment.

1693. Ways and Means.

On Friday March the 23^d. His Majesty came to the House of Peers; and, with usual Solemnity, gave his Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for Granting to their Majesties certain Rates and Duties upon Salt, and upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors; for securing certain Recompences and Advantages in the said Act mentioned, to such Persons as shall voluntarily Advance the Sum of Ten Hundred Thousand Pounds, towards carrying on the War against France. 2. An Act for Relief of the Orphans, and other Creditors of the City of London. 3. An Act for Repeal of a Clause in the Statute of the Fifth Year of Queen Elizabeth, (containing divers Orders for Artificers and others); which relates to Weavers of Cloth. 4. An Act to take away the Process for the Captivity Time, in the several Courts at Westminster. 5. An Act to Repeal the Statute made in the Tenth Year of King Edward the Third, for finding Sureties for the good Abearing by him or her that hath a Pardon for Felony. 6. An Act to prevent Delays of Proceedings at the Quarter Sessions of the Peace. 7. An Act for the Explaining, and for the more Effectual Execution of a former Act, for Relief of Poor Prisoners. 8. An Act to Enable Roger Whitley the Elder, Esq; and Thomas Whitley, Esq; to exchange certain Lands of equal Value within the County of Chester. 9. An Act for Payment of the Debts of George Turner, Esq; deceased. 10. An Act to Enable Sir Charles Barrington, Bar^t. to Settle a Jointure on Dame Bridget his Wife, and to make Provision for their Younger Children. 11. An Act for Settling the Inheritance of some Parts of the Estate of Charles Turner, Esq; (which lie dispersed) in him and his Heirs; and Settling an Entire Estate of greater Value in Lieu thereof, to the Uses that the said other Parts of his Estate were settled. 12. An Act to Enable John Whitehall to Charge certain Lands with the Sum of Fifteen Hundred Pounds, towards Portions for his Younger Children. 13. An Act to Enable Thomas Earl of Thannet, and the Honourable Sackville Turton, Esq; his Brother, to make a Lease of Sixty Years of Thannet-House, in the Parish of St. Botolph's Aldersgate; to Commence after the Remainder of a Term of One and Thirty Years now in being. 14. An Act for Sale of Part of the Estate of Henry Frere an Infant, to raise Moneys for Inning and Recovering other Parts thereof, now under Water; and for Payment of Debts Charged thereon. 15. An Act for making a Bridge over the River Axe, in the County of Somerset. 16. An Act for Sale of the Estate of Susan Chaplin, and Dorothy Chaplin her Daughter; for Payment of Debts, and making Provision for the said Susan and Dorothy. 17. An Act to Enable the Trustees of Alice Turner, Widow, and her Children, to make Sale of certain Houses or Ground, in or near Lincolns-Inn-Fields, in the County of Middlesex, during the Minority of the Younger Children. 18. An Act to Enable Thomas Edwards to Sell Part of his Estate, for Payment of Debts; and to Restrain and Dissolve him in making Waste upon the Residue of the said Estate. 19. An Act for Sale of the Estate of William Stovers, deceased, for Payment of the Mortgages made by him, and Applying the Overplus for the Benefit of his Sons, who are Infants. 20. An Act to settle the Estate of Mary, Elizabeth, and Jane Mildmay, and Edward Dixy, and Arabella his Wife, and Lucy and Anna

Acts passed.

27. All may, in this, to be, did for Satisfaction of His Majesty's Pleasure, and Preserving the Obedience for this Realm. And afterwards, His Majesty made a most Gracious Speech to Both Houses; as follows.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King
Speech.

When I consider how far the Year is advanced, what Preparations our Enemies make to be ready in the Field, and how necessary it is that we should be ready to meet them both by Sea and Land, I must earnestly recommend to You the Dispatch of those Important Affairs which You have under Your Deliberation.

I am very sensible of the Good Affection which You have shewn in this, as well as former Seasons, by enabling Me to carry on the War we are engaged in for our Common Safety: There is nothing I have so much at My Heart, as the Peace and Happiness of My People; and it is with great Reluctance that I am forced to ask such large Supplies: But since Our Present Circumstances make this unavoidable, it shall be my Endeavour, that the Sums which are given shall be laid out in the best manner to the Uses for which they are designed.

Members of the House of Commons,

I take this Occasion to mention to You the Distress on the Transport Ships which were used in the Reducing of Ireland: It grieves Me exceedingly to see such a number of Persons, who came so freely in for so good a Service, brought to the last Extremities for want of what is due to them. It is not possible for Me to discharge this Debt without Your help; and as I doubt not but You have a just Commiseration of their Case, so I hope you will find out some Way for their Relief.

Case of the Duke of Norfolk

During this Session the Town was entertained with the Trial of an Indecent Cause in Westminster-Hall. The Duke of Norfolk bearing with impatience the suspected Commerce which Mr. Gerraine had maintained with his Dutcheffs; had the last Winter lodged a Bill of Divorce in the House of Peers; but their Lordships being unwilling to proceed in that Affair before there were some Proofs of the Fact made in the Course of the Common-Law, his Grace did thereupon bring an Action of Adultery against Mr. Gerraine, before the Court of Kings-Bench: This Notorious Cause was tried on the 24th of November, and upon a full hearing of many Obscene Evidences, the Jury found for the Plaintiff, and allowed his Grace
One hundred Mark Damages, with Costs of Court:
Where the slightness of Satisfaction was almost as great a Reproach as the Crime it self.

Affairs at Sea.

Towards the middle of November Capt. Bemben with a Squadron of Men of War, bombarded St. Malo four days together, though without any great success, having only destroyed some few Houses, and thrown down part of the Town-Wall. Towards the end of the Month we had much worse News from Sea; a Fleet of Merchant Ships under a Convoy of Men of War commanded by Sir Francis Wheeler, having sailed on the 17th of February from Gibraltar up the Streights, met the next day with a most violent Storm, which continued all that Day, and the following Night;

Violent Storm

so that on the 19th about 5 in the Morning, Sir Francis Wheeler's own Ship the Suffin was foundered, and himself with all his Men, except two Moors, drowned; the Cambridge and Lunley-Castle Men of War, the Serpent Bomb Ketch, and the Mary Ketch, together with the Italian Merchant, the Albano Factor, the Great George, and the Bark, bound for Turkey, the William for Great Loss.

Venice, and the Golden Merchant for Leghorn, all English, were driven ashore on the East side of Gibraltar, and most of the Men lost. The same Fate attended three Dutch Ships richly laden; but Rear-Admiral Neuill, with two Dutch Men of War, had the good Fortune to be blown out of the Streights, and put safe into Cadix, as did the rest of the Fleet, on the 19th, into Gibraltar. This Loss, how great soever, was soon after repaired,
His Majesty having caused the Men of War on the Stocks to be finished with extraordinary Diligence.

Prince
Lewis of Baden comes into England.

On Sunday, Decemb. 31. Prince Lewis of Baden
arriv'd at Greenwich, and on Tuesday he came up the River in the King's Barge, and was conducted to the Apartment prepared for him at Whitehall; he was splendidly entertained and diverted not only by His Majesty, but by several Peers of the Realm, and especially by the Generous Duke of Ormond, who treated him with a Magnificent Banquet, and a very splendid Ball.

Honours
and Pre-ferments.

On Nov. 22. His Majesty was pleased to grant to the Earl of Abington the Office of Chief Justice in Eyre, on this side Trent, vacant by the Death of the Lord Lovelace; and was also pleased to appoint the Right Honourable the Lord Viscount Sidney Master General of the Ordnance, to be Colonel of Their Majesties First Regiment of Foot Guards, in the Place of the late Duke of Scombergb. On Nov. 24. His Majesty conferred the Honour of Knighthood upon Charles Lloyd, Esq; one of the Deputy-Lieutenants of the County of Cardigan. On Decemb. 2. His Majesty did the like Honour to John Buckworth, Esq; On Nov. 30. The Duke of St. Albans was sworn Captain of Their Majesties Band of Pensioners, in the Place of the Lord Lovelace, deceased. Upon the Death of the Duke of Scombergb., His Majesty appointed the Lord Viscount Galloway to command His Forces in Piedmont, in the Quality of Lieutenant-General, and to give him likewise the Character of Envoy Extraordinary to the Duke of Savoy. His Lordship set out on Decemb. 6. in order to embark for Holland, and thence to continue his Journey by Land to Piedmont. Toward the end of the Month His Majesty was pleased to nominate Colonel Francis Nicholson to be Governor in Chief of the Province of Maryland, in the Place of Colonel Copley, lately deceased. About the middle of January, His Majesty was pleased to create the Honourable Mr. Charles Butler, Brother to His Grace the Duke of Ormond, a Baron of England by the Name and Style of *Charles Lord
Butler*, Baron of Weston, in the County of Huntington; and a Baron, Viscount, and Earl of Ireland, by the Name and Style of Baron of Clogh-grenan, Viscount Tullo, and Earl of Arran. On Feb. 19. Peregrine Bortie, Esq; was sworn Vice-Chamberlain to His Majesty, in the Place of Sir
John Lowther of Lowther, Bart. who had desir'd
His Majesty's Leave to resign the same. His Majesty was pleased to appoint Samuel Eyre, Ser-jeant at Law to be one of the Judges of the King's-Bench, in the room of Mr. Justice Doiben deceas'd; and Henry Gould, Esq; to be one of the King's Serjeants; and on Feb. 22. His Majesty conferred upon them the Honour of Knighthood. On March 4. His Majesty was pleased to constitute Charles Earl of Shrewsbury, Principal Secretary of State in the room of the Earl of Nottingham.

The Oxford Historian and Antiquary, Mr. Anthony a Wood, had lately published two useful Volumes, entituled, Athene Oxonienses: An Exact History of all the Writers and Bishops who have had their Education in the most Ancient and Famous University of Oxford, from the Year 1500 to 1690.
Wherein he gave Characters of Men with great Freedom, though to the best of his own Opinion,

1693. on, and often with great Truth and Impartiality. Among other Things, in the Life of Judge Glynne, he takes notice, That after the Restoration of King Charles II. he was made his Eldest Serjeant at Law, by the corrupt Dealing of the then Lord Chancellor; meaning, Edward Earl of Clarendon. It was chiefly for this Expulsion, that the present Earl, as Eldest Son and Heir of the said Chancellor, preferred an Action in the Vice-Chancellor's Court against the Author, for Defamation of his Deceased Father. The Issue of the Process was a hard Judgment given against the Defendant; which to be made the more publick, was put in the Gazette in these words: Oxford, July 31. 1693. On the 29th. Instant, Anthony a Wood was Condemn'd in the Vice-Chancellor's Court of the University of Oxford, for having Written and Published, in the Second Volume of his Book, Entituled, Athenæ Oxonienses, divers Infamous Libels against the Right Honourable Edward late Earl of Clarendon, Lord High Chancellor of England, and Chancellor of the said University; and was therefore Banished the said University, until such time as he shall subscribe such a Publick Re-antation, as the Judge of the Court shall approve of, and give Security not to Offend in the like Nature for the future; and his said Book was therefore also De-reed to be Burnt before the Publick Theatre: And on this Day it was Burnt accordingly, and publick Programmas of his Expulsion are already affixed in the Three usual Places.

This Censure was the more grievous to the Blunt Author, because it seem'd to come from a Party of Men, whom he had the least disobligh'd. His Bitterness had been against the Dissenters; but of all the Zealous Church-Men, he had given Characters with a singular Turn of Esteem and Affection: Nay, of the Jacobites, and even of the Papiists themselves, he had always spoke the most favourable Things; and therefore it was really the greater Mortification to him, to feel the Storm coming from a Quarter where he thought he least deserv'd, and might least expect it. For the same Reason, this Correction was some Pleasure to the Presbyterians, who believ'd there was a Rebuke due to him, which they themselves were not able to pay.

On Nov. 24. Died Dr. William Sancroft, the depriv'd Archbishop of Canterbury, who had retir'd to the Place of his Birth and Estate, Frechingfield in Suffolk, where by his own Order he was Buried in the Church-Yard, with this Inscription on his Tomb.

P. M. S.

Leſtor; Wilhelmi nuper Archipraefulis
(Qui Natus in Vicinia)
Quod Morti cecidit prope hunc Murum jacet;
Atque Resurgit. Tu interim
Semper paratus esto; Nam hora quam non Putas
Dominus venturus est.

Obijt XXIV. No- { Nat. Dom. MDCLXXXIII. vemb. Anno { Aet. sue LXXVII.

P. M. S.

William Sancroft. Born in this Parish, afterwards by the Providence of God, Archbishop of Canterbury; and at last depriv'd of all that he could not keep with a good Conscience, return'd hither to end his Life, where he begun it; and professeth here at the Foot of his Tomb, That as he Naked came forth, so he Naked must return; The Lord giveth, and the Lord hath taken away; As the Lord pleaseth, so Things come to pass; Blessed be the Name of the Lord. — And over his Effigies was wrote this Text, St. Matth. 24. v. 27. As the Lightning cometh out of the East, and shineth even unto the West, so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be.

We left the Parliament Sitting, but the King was impatient for their Dispatch of Business, that he might have Liberty to begin an Early Campaign: So on April 14. the Second Troop of Guards Commanded by the Duke of Ormonde, and the Regiment of Horse-Guards Commanded by the Earl of Portland, with a great Number of Recruit-Horses, were shipp'd in the River, and Sail'd that Day, together with the Train of Artillery, for Flanders. On April 16. His Majesty came to the House of Peers, and with the usual Solemnity, gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for Raising Money by a Poll payable Quarterly for One Year, for carrying on a Vigorous War against France. 2. An Act for continuing the Act for Punishing Officers and Soldiers, who shall Mutiny or Desert Their Majesties Service; and for Punishing of False Messengers, and for the Payment of Quarters for one Year longer. 3. An Act for the Exportation of Iron, Copper, and Muslick Metal. 4. An Act for the Importation of Salt-Petre for one Year; and to several Private Acts.

Some Bills were depending that were left unfinished: Such as, A Bill to Regulate Tryals in Cases of High Treason, which the Commons had sent to the Lords for their Concurrence. A Bill for Naturalizing of all such Protestants as should take the Oaths to Their Majesties, and Protest against Popery. A Bill concerning the Forfeitures, both in England and Ireland. A Bill for Registering of Wills: Another against Stock-Jobbers, and another for the Encouragement of Privateers. But all other Bills being now ready for the Royal Assent, His Majesty came on Wednesday, April 25. to the House of Peers, and pass'd the following Acts. 1. An Act for Granting to Their Majesties several Rates and Duties upon Tonnage of Ships and Vessels, and upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, for securing certain Re-compences and Advantages in the said Act mentioned, to such Persons as shall voluntarily advance the Sum of Fifteen Hundred Thousand Pounds towards carrying on the War against France. 2. An Act for Granting to Their Majesties several Duties upon Vellum, Parchment, and Paper, for Four Years, towards carrying on the War against France. 3. An Act for Licensing and Regulating Hackney-Coaches, and Stage-Coaches. 4. An Act for Enabling Their Majesties to make Grants, Leases, and Copies of Offices, Lands, and Hereditaments, part of their Duchy of Cornwall, or annexed to the same, and for Confirmation of Leases and Grants already made. 5. An Act for raising the Militia of this Kingdom, for the Year 1694. although the Months Pay formerly advanced be not Paid. 6. An Act for Appointing and Enabling Commissioners to Examine, Take, and State the Publick Accounts of the Kingdom. 7. An Act for Building Good and Defensible Ships. 8. An Act for the better Discipline of Their Majesties Navy Royal; and to Two Private Acts. After which, His Majesty made a Gracious Speech to both Houses, as follows.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

THE Proofs you have given of your Affection to Me, and the Zeal you have expressed for the Support of the Government, oblige me to return you Thanks before I put an End to this Session; and in particular, to Thank You, Gentlemen of the House of Commons, for the Large Supplies you have provided to carry on the War.

I will endeavour to do My Part; and it is from the Blessing of God that We must all expect such Success as may answer our Desires.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The Posture of Affairs making it necessary for Me to be absent for some time out of this Kingdom, I Recommend it to you, That in your several Stations you be careful to preserve the Publick Peace;

1694. Then the Lord Keeper by His Majesty's Command Prorogued the Parliament to Tuesd. the 18th Day of September next.

The King goes for Holland & is forc'd to return

Honours and Preferments.

The same Day about Four in the Afternoon His Majesty went for Gravesend, in order to Embark for Holland; but finding the Wind contrary, He return'd to Kennington the next day. To leave Things in the better Order, and the People in greater Content and Satisfaction, His Majesty gave the Garter, vacant by the Death of William Duke of Hamilton, to the Right Honourable Charles Earl of Shrewsbury, lately made Principal Secretary of State; who in a Chapter held at Westball April 25. was Elected, Invested, and Knighted with the usual Ceremony; and on the same day was Created a Marquis and Duke of this Kingdom, by the Name and Stile of Marquis of Alton, and Duke of Shrewsbury. His Majesty was likewise pleas'd to Create the Right Honourable John Earl of Mulgrave, Marquis of Normanby; and Henry Herbert of Ribisford in the County of Worcester, Esq; a Baron of this Kingdom, by the Name and Title of Baron Herbert of Cherbury in the County of Salop. At the same time His Majesty was pleas'd to appoint the Right Honourable Edward Russell, Esq; Sir John Lowther of Whitehaven, Bar. Henry Priestman, Esq; Robert Austin, Esq; Sir Robert Rich, Bar. Sir George Roek, and Sir John Houblon, Knts. Commissioners for Executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of England and Ireland, and the Dominions thereunto belonging. On April the 26th. His Majesty was pleas'd, upon the Death of Sir Thomas Duppa, Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, to confer that Place upon Fleetwood Shepherd, Esq; Gentleman Usher Daily Waiter to His Majesty; and conferr'd upon him the Honour of Knighthood. On April the 30th. His Majesty was pleas'd to Create Thomas Lord Marquis of Carmarthen, President of the Council, Duke of Leeds; William Earl of Bedford, Marquis of Tarvisock, and Duke of Bedford; William Earl of Devonshire, Lord Steward of Their Majesties Household, Marquis of Hartington, and Duke of Devonshire; John Earl of Clare, Marquis of Clare, and Duke of Newcastle; Francis Lord Viscount Newport, Treasurer of Their Majesties Household, Earl of Bradford in the County of Salop: And soon after, Henry Lord Viscount Silby, Lord Warden of the Cinque-Ports, was Created Earl of Romney in the County of Kent. On May the 2d. His Majesty was pleas'd to Constitute Sidney Lord Godolphin, Sir Stephen Fox, Knight, Charles Mountague, Esq; Sir William Trumbal, Knight, and John Smith, Esq; Lords Commissioners of the Treasury: And, for a Reward of Eminent Services done in the House of Commons with great Dexterity and Industry; His Majesty granted to Charles Mountague, Esq; one of the said Commissioners of the Treasury, the Offices of Chancellor and Under-Treasurer of the Exchequer. On May the 3d. John Lord Marquis of Normanby, and Charles Lord Viscount Dunfley, were, by His Majesty's Command, Sworn of the Privy Council; and took their Places at the Board.

When Persons were thus wisely softened; On Thursday in the Evening, May the 3d. the King and Queen went down to Gravesend, where His Majesty embarked about Five the next Morning, the Wind being then fair; but it changing soon after, His Majesty came aboard again at Gravesend about Ten; and for better Expedition, went the same day with the Queen to Cantwary, and on May the 6th. went early from thence to Margate; where he embarked on the Blue Yatch, and set Sail about Eleven with a fair Wind for Holland; being attended by Eight

Dutch Men of War who came about from the Duins. His Majesty Landed the next Day at the Hock of Holland, over against the Brill, at Six in the Evening; and having Supp'd with Monsieur Renningburgh, He came about Midnight to the Hague; and next Morning He went first into the Assembly of the States of Holland, and afterwards that of the States-General, and made a short Speech in each of them; and receiv'd their Compliments on His safe Arrival: And after a few days, His Majesty went to Lee, for some Diversions of that Place.

Here leaving His Majesty, we shall first observe the Motions of the Confederate Fleet; which was out early this Year, but yet were not able to Block up the French Fleet in Brest, nor to meet 'em for a Fight at Sea: For the French industriously avoided an Engagement; and were no sooner out of Harbour, but they made all the Sail they could toward the Mediterranean; having form'd great Designs against Spain this Campaign. In order to break their Measures, and to prevent the Loss of Catalonia, K. William thought fit to order His Fleet into those Seas. But before Admiral Russell left the Coast of France, being inform'd that there was a Fleet of Merchant-Men in Bertram Bay, bound to the Eastward; he sent Captain Pickard, and the Rock Fireship, either to Take, or Destroy 'em. These Orders the Captain executed with so good Success, that of Fifty Five Sail of them, he burnt or sunk Thirty Five, besides the Man of War that was their Convoy, the which run among the Rocks, and soon after blew up with her Two Sloops, of between Ten and Fifteen Guns.

The same good Fortune did not attend the Design of destroying the Harbour of Brest; the Execution of which desperate Attempt was committed to Lieutenant General Talmash, who sell a Sacrifice in it; and therefore, as some pretend, was desin'd to that Fall by the Envy of some of his pretended Friends; this is certain, that the French had time to provide themselves against a Design that was become a Town-Talk in London some Months before it was put in Execution. But to give an Account of this unfortunate Attempt; on the 5th of June, The Lord Berkeley, Admiral of the Blue Squadron, parted from Admiral Russell with Twenty nine Men of War of the Line of Battel, English and Dutch, besides small Frigates, Fire-ships, Bomb-ketches, and Transport Ships; and upon the 7th he came to an Anchor between Cannet and Bertram Bay, though continually plaid upon by the Enemies Bombs; first from Cannet Western Point, then from a Castle on a high Rock in Bertram Bay, and lastly from two Ports on each side of the Isthmus going into Brest Road. The same day the Lord Cannet, and the Marquis of Carmarthen in his own Gally, stood in a considerable Way into the Bay, and having taken a good view of it amidst the Enemies Fire, they return'd and gave the Lord Berkeley an Account of the Posture of the Bay, and the Situation of the Castle; which they found very advantageous to defend the Landing Places. It was at first ordered, That the Mack, a Ship of 60 Guns, and the Diamond of equal force, should go in; but the Marquis represent'd that those Two Men of War would not be sufficient to cover the Boats at their Landing, because the Enemy were better Prepared and more Numerous than was expected, and ready to be seconded by Fourteen Squadron of Horse. Hereupon on June 8. in a Consultation of the English and Dutch Flags, and the General Officers of the Land Forces, it was Resolved, That Six other Men of War should be added to the Two former; which the Marquis 1694.

The Confederate Fleet.

The French Fleet destroy'd in Bertram Bay.

Unsuccessful Attempt on Brest.

1694. undertook to Post so as to bear upon the Castle to the best Advantage, and to cover the Descent of our Land Forces. This was a work of great Difficulty and Danger, for no sooner was the Musk come within reach of the Enemies Mortars, but they began to throw at her from Point Des Filletes, and the Western Point of Camaret Bay; and the rest of the Ships that followed, were Surpriz'd with Three Batteries more, which they never perceived till they felt their Shot: But under all these Difficulties, the brave Marquis made a shift to Post the Eight Ships in such a manner, as gave great Succour to the Landing Forces, and did the French considerable Mischief; dropping their Anchors, and Firing with so much Resolution, that they forc'd the French to run Twice out of Camaret Fort; but they could easily perceive the Enemy very advantageously Intrenched at every place where there was any possibility of Landing, and great Numbers of Foot were drawn behind the Trenches.

Amidst these Difficulties, there could be no Prosecution of that regular Landing which was propos'd by my Lord Cutus, and had been Agreed on. However, the undaunted General Talmash was resolute in the Enterprize, though unlikely to Succeed; and therefore with a small Number of Well-boats, and about Nine hundred Men, went Ashoar in a confused manner, under a little Rock on the South-side of the small Bay; but immediately a Detachment of French Marines fell in upon 'em with so much Fury, that the English were forc'd to retire to their Boats in great Disorder; and it happening at the same time to be Ebbing Water, most of the Boats stuck fast; so that the Men on Board 'em were either miserably Slaughter'd, or forc'd to beg Quarter. The Signal being now given to bring off the Ships who had all their Rigging cut to pieces, and most of their Sails and Yards disabled, the Marquis of Carmarthen, with incredible Labour and Hazard, brought off all the Ships except the Hesper, a small Dutch Man of War of 30 Guns. The brave Talmash soon after died of his Wounds: Four hundred Men were lost in the Ships under the Marquis's Command; and of the Land Troops, they reckon'd at least Seven hundred of 'em either Slain, Wounded, or taken Prisoners.

To make some Amends for this disappointment the Lord Berkley Sail'd towards Diepe; and on the 12th of July, threw One thousand one hundred Bombs and Carcasses into the Town, which set it on Fire in several Place. The Townsmen despairing to quench the Flames, began to run away in great Consternation; whereupon Two Regiments of the Militia of Britany were sent to encourage them; but the Disorder was so great, and the Fire so dreadful, that the Soldiers themselves fled with the rest: Had the English known what had pass'd, they might in all probability have possess'd themselves of the place: However they so ruin'd it, that the greatest part of the Houses were reduc'd to Ashes, and scarce any left unshatter'd. From Diepe the Fleet alarming all the Coast of France, Sail'd toward Havre-de-Grace; and on the 16th they began to Bombard the Town, under the direction of Captain Bombow; which they continued to do till the next Morning, when the Wind blowing hard, they gave over Shooting. The 18th towards the Evening, the Weather being Calm, the following Night was spent in throwing in Two hundred and fifty Bombs more into the Town; but the Wind growing high, the Bomb-ketches stood off again; and on the 24th. my Lord Berkley sail'd from Havre-de-Grace, leaving it considerably Damag'd.

But these Misfortunes at Brest were in great measure requir'd by the Glory of our Grand Fleet in the Mediterranean, under the Command of Admiral Russel, who rode there in Triumph, and Coast up the French Fleet in the Harbour of Toulon; and though Marschal de Touville once adventur'd out to Sea, with a Design to slip by the English Admiral, yet he quickly found so watchful an Eye upon him, that he was forc'd to return to his Port again. Indeed nothing is more illustrious in the whole Course of King William's Reign, than his Fleet riding thus Triumphantly in the Mediterranean; for by this means the English Dominion of the Streights was added to that of the Narrow Seas, a stop was put to the Conquering Arms of France in Catalonia; all the French Coasts were expos'd to the Insults of the Confederates; and even all the Italian Princes were kept in Awe; and the Venetians began now to think of sending a Solemn Embassy into England, to Court the Friendship of His Britanick Majesty.

We must now look to the Campaign in Flanders: The Confederate Army under the King's Command, was encamp'd at Mont St. Andre, consisting of Thirty one thousand Horse and Dragoons and Fifty one thousand Foot; besides a Body of Seven thousand Men, under the Command of Count Thyan near Ghent. The French were not much inferior in Number: But the Dauphin who Commanded them in Person, declar'd, That he had receiv'd Orders from His Father, not to stir from his Camp near Huy as long as the Confederates continued in theirs at Mont St. Andre. The King made a show of Attacking them more than once; and the Duke of Luxemburg being at one time more particularly apprehensive of it, is said to have gone in great haste to the Dauphin, and to have Expostulated with him, That he should be prepared for Battel in that dangerous Conjunction; while the Dauphin having Cæsar's Commentaries in his hand, told the Marschal, He had been Reading that Book, and considering of it; as if he were a Prince fitter for Study than Action.

It seem'd to be a new Trial of Skill between the Two Armies, who should continue longest in their respective Camps; But the French being not able to subsist any longer, had resolv'd to Decamp, but thought to have conceal'd their Design, by sending out divers small Bodies of Horse, under the pretence of Foraging, to reinforce the Marquis of Harcourt's Body, on the other side the Meuse, who was to seize the Advantageous Post of Picton, and by that means to get before the Confederates: yet the King who was apprehensive of it, prevented their Design, and Decamping on the 8th. of August, He soon gained the Post of Picton, where there was not Forage for above Four Days. So that being inform'd of the Enemies March, His Majesty moved on the 10th. from Sembres to Nievelle, on the 11th. to Soignes, on the 12th. to Cheroy, and on the 13th. to Grames near Aeth. On the 14th. the Elector of Bavaria was detach'd with a considerable Body of Horse and Foot, and some Pieces of Cannon, to possess himself of a Post upon the Scheld, and the Army follow'd with an Intention to have pass'd that River at Pont-Elfevries; but though the Confederates made great diligence to get thither, yet the French made more to prevent them; for on the 15th. the Elector having advanced towards Pont d'Eschauffe, in order to force the Passage of the River, he found the French, to the Number of Thirty Thousand, so well Entrench'd on the other side, that he did not think it Prudence to pursue his Enterprize. This hasty March cost the French a bundance of Men and Horses, but that Loss was inconsiderable in comparison of the Advantage 1694. Triumphs on both sides in the Mediterranean.

Campaign in Flanders.

The French forc'd to Decamp.

The King prevents their design.

The Bombing of Diepe.

And of Havre-de-Grace.

1694. they might by hindring the Allies from Penetrating into French Flanders, where, considering their Strength, they would, in all probability have made some important Conquest, or, at least secured Winter Quarters. The King of Prance was so sensible of it, that He writ a Letter, which He order'd to be Read at the Head of the Army, wherein he return'd Thanks, in the first place, to the Princes of the Blood, next to the Marschal de Luxembourg, as having a principal share in the Conduct; then to the rest of the Marschals of France, and all the General Officers; and lastly to all the French and Swiss Infantry, Regiment by Regiment, acknowledging how much he was beholding to their Zeal and incredible Diligence.

Stage of Eng.

Whilst the French were deeply Intrench'd near Courtray, from whence they had sent strong Detachments to Cover Ipruss, Menin, Berg St. Winoc, Furnes and Dunkirk; the King finding it impossible to attempt any thing on that side, resolv'd to lay hold on this Occasion, to dispossess the Enemy of the Town and Castle of Huy. In pursuance of this Design, the Prince Tserclaes de Tilly pass'd the Muse, and invested the Place with all the Horse and Dragoons of the Bishoprick of Liege, a Party of Brandenburgh Horse, and some Battalions of Foot. The next Day arriv'd Sixteen Regiments of Foot, with the Duke of Holslein Phcen, who was appointed to command the Siege, and at whose approach the Town immediately Surrendred. By the 19th. of September, N. S. the Batteries were rais'd against the Castle; the 21st. the Trenches were open'd; and the following Days the Attacks carried on with so much Vigour, that all things being ready for an Assault by the 27th. the French Governor beat a Parley, and surrendred that Fortres the next Day. By this Conquest the French were totally expell'd out of the Bishoprick of Liege: Dinant at the same time being a part of France: And thus ended the Campaign in Flanders.

The Queen's great Prudence.

During the Kings Absence there was little remarkable in England, but the eminent Prudence of the Queen, in preserving the Peace of the Nation. On May 10. Thomas Earl of Stamford, and Charles Mountague Esq; were by Her Majesty's Command Sworn of the Privy Council, and took their Places at the Board. On June 5th. his Electoral Highness Frederick the Third, Marquess of Brandenburgh, Prince Elector, and Great Chamberlain of the Sacred Roman Empire; His Serene Highness George William Duke of Brunswick and Lunenburg, Prince of the said Empire; and his Grace Charles Duke of Shrewsbury, being Knights Elect of the most Noble Order of the Garter, were Intall'd in St. George's Chappel at Windsor; the two former by their Proxies, and the latter in Person. The Achievements of the late Elector of Saxony and of Duke Hambour, Two Defunct Knights of the Order, having been first offer'd at the Altar. The Jacobites were industrious and implacable in their Plots against the Government, though the Vigilance of the Queen, and the Hearts of the People, prevented the Success of their Hopes and Projects. Colonel John Parker had been committed to the Tower for High Treason, and a Bill of Indictment was found against him in Archie's Term, but on Saturday Novemb 11th. by a singular Stratagem he made his Escape in the Night, and fled from Justice; and though there was a Proclamation for the Discovering and Apprehending of him, with a Reward of Four hundred Pounds for so doing, yet he safely got to France, where his Treasonable Designs were not only not taken.

9- 1694
Plots.

On Thursday November 8th. the King Embark'd on the William and Mary Yatch in the Moose, being attended by a Squadron of Men of War, under the Command of the Lord Marquess of Carmarthen, and the next Day about Twelve a Clock His Majesty Landed at Margate, and lay that Night at Canterbury; the Queen met him next Day at Rocheſter, and between Eleven and Twelve at Night Their Majesties came to Kensington. As they went through the Cities of London and Westminster, Illuminations, Bonfires, Ringing of Bells, and the continual Acclamations of vast Numbers of People shew'd a universal Joy for His Majesty's safe Return.

1694.
The King returns to England.

On Monday November 12th. the Parliament met at Westminster, and with usual Solemnity the King made this Speech to Both Houses.

Parliament
meets.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's
Speech.

I Am glad to meet you here, when I can say Our Affairs are in a better Posture both by Sea and Land than when we parted last.

The Enemy has not been in a Condition to Oppose Our Fleet in these Seas, and Our sending so great a Force into the Mediterranean, has disappointed their Designs, and leaves Us a Prospect of further Success.

With Respect to the War by Land, I think I may say, That this Year a stop has been put to the Progress of the French Arms.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons, I have had so much Experience of your good Affection to Me, and of your Zeal for the Publick, that I cannot doubt of your Assistance at this time; I do therefore earnestly Recommend to you, to Provide such Supplies, as may Enable Me to prosecute the War with Vigor; which is the only means to procure Peace to Christendom, with the Safety and Honour of England.

I must likewise put you in Mind that the Act of Tonnage and Poundage Expires at Christmas; and I hope you will think fit to continue that Revenue to the Crown; which is the more Necessary at this time, in regard the several Branches of the Revenue are under great Anticipations, for extraordinary Expences of the War, and subject to many Demands upon other Accounts.

I cannot but Mention to you again, the Debt for the Transport Ships employed in the Reducing of Ireland, which is a Case of Compassion, and deserves Relief.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I should be Glad you would take into your Consideration the Preparing some good Bill for the Encouragement of our Seamen: You cannot but be sensible, how much a Law of this Nature, would tend to the Advancement of Trade, and of the Naval Strength of the Kingdom, which is Our great Interest, and ought to be Our principal Care.

The Commons Adjourn'd to the 19th. of November, when the first thing they did was to order Mr. Harley to prepare and bring in a Bill for the frequent Meeting and Calling of Parliaments, which they had been so Earnest for in former Sessions, and were resolv'd to insist upon in this. The bill was easily Drawn up, and presented November the 22d. and Read with Dispatch the 13th time, and Pass'd December the 13th. and sent up to the Lords, who on December the 18th. gave it their Concurrence, without any Amendments.

Proceedings of
the Com-
mons.

1694. November 21. the Commons unanimously Voted a Supply to Their Majesties, and examin'd the Estimate for the next Year's Service for the War; the Accounts of the Moneys paid to the Fleet, to the Army, to the Allies, and for Forage: and enquir'd into the Quota's that the Confederates were severally to Furnish. After this Review, they Resolved on November 30th. That the Sum of Two Millions Three Hundred Eighty Two Thousand Seven Hundred and Twelve Pounds be Granted for the Maintenance of the Navy; and that of Two Millions Three Hundred Eighty Two Thousand Pounds, for the support of the Land Forces, for the Service of the Year 1695.

Supply granted.

Ways and Means.

To raise these immense Sums, it was Resolved on December 4th. to take these Ways and Means. First, That an Aid of Four Shillings in the Pound be Granted to Their Majesties, to be Laid and Levied in the same manner as formerly. Secondly, That the Subsidies of Tonnage and Poundage be continued for the term of Five Years Longer, beginning on the 26th. of this Instant December.

Acts passed.

To lose no time, His Majesty came to the House of Peers on December 22d. and with the usual Solemnity gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for Granting to their Majesties a Subsidy of Tonnage and Poundage, and other Sums of Money, payable upon Merchandizes Exported and Imported. 2. An Act for the frequent Meeting and Calling of Parliaments. The same Day one Dyer a very Impudent Writer of News-Letters, was justly Reprimanded by the Speaker, for presuming to misrepresent the Proceedings of that House. But such a gentle Rebuke could not reform a Fellow, who Wrote for Two very necessitous Causes, for the Fac. Party, and for Bread.

Death of the Queen.

On Friday December 21. the Queen was taken Ill at Kensington, and Her Distemper proved to be the Small-Pox, with incurable Symptoms; So that in Spight of the most exquisite Care and Consult of Physicians, Her Majesty departed this Life on Friday 28. Decemb. about one in the Morning; leaving the King under an unexpressible Grief and Affliction; and the whole Kingdom under the deepest and most sensible Sorrow for the loss of a Princess of so much Piety, Clemency, Goodness, and other great and exemplary Virtues.

The manner of Her dying is thus delivered by the Archbishop of Canterbury in Her Funeral Sermon. "Some few Days before the Feast of our Lord's Nativity She found Her self indispos'd. I will not say, that of this Affliction She had any Formal Prefage, but yet there was something that look'd like an immediate Preparation for it; I mean, Her chusing to hear read more than once a little before it, the last Sermon of a Good and Learned Man (now with God) upon this Subject; What, shall we receive good from the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil? This Indisposition speedily grew up into a dangerous Distemper: As soon as that was understood, the earliest Care of this Charitable Mistress was for the removing of such immediate Servants as might by distance be preserved in health. Soon after this She fix'd the Times of Prayers in that Chamber to which Her Sickness had confined Her.

"On that very day, She shew'd how sensible She was of Death, and how little She fear'd it. She required him who officiated there, to add that Collect in the Communion of the Sick, in which are these Words, — That whensoever the Soul shall depart from the Body, it may be without spot presented unto thee. I will, said She, have this Collect read twice every day. All have need to be put in mind of Death, and Princes as much as any body else.

1694. "On Monday the Flattering Disease occasioned some Hopes, though they were but faint ones. On the next day, the Festival of Christ's Birth, those Hopes were raised into a kind of Assurance; and there was Joy, a great Joy seen in the Countenances of all Good People: That Joy endured but for a Day, and that Day was clos'd with a very dismal Night: The Disease shew'd it self in various Forms, and small Hopes of Life were now left. Then it was that he who performed the Holy Offices, believed himself obliged to acquaint the Good Queen with the Apprehensions all had of an unlikelihood at least of her Recovery. She receiv'd the Tidings with a Courage agreeable to the Strength of Her Faith: Loth She was to terrifie those about Her; but for her self, She seem'd neither to fear Death, nor to covet Life. It was, you may imagine, high Satisfaction to hear Her say a great many most Christian things, and this among them: I believe I shall now soon die, and I thank God I have from my Youth learned a true Doctrine, that Repentance is not to be put off to a Death-Bed. That Day She call'd for Prayers a third time, fearing She had slept a little when they were the second time read; for She thought a Duty was not perform'd, if it was not minded.

"On Thursday She prepared Her self for the Blessed Communion, to which She had been no Stranger from the 15th Year of Her Age. She was much concerned that She found Her self in so dozing a Condition; so She expressed it. To that, She added, Others had need Pray for Me, seeing I am so little able to pray for my Self. However, She stirred up Her Attention, and prayed to God for his Assistance: And God heard Her, for from thenceforth, to the end of the Office, She had the perfect Command of Her Understanding, and was intent upon the great Work She was going about; and so intent, that when a second Portion of a certain Draught was offer'd Her, She refus'd it, saying, I have but a little time to live, and I would spend it a better way.

"The Holy Elements being ready, and several Bishops coming to be Communicants, She repeated piously and distinctly, but with a low Voice, (for such Her Weakness had then made it) all the Parts of the Holy Office, which were proper for Her, and received with all the Signs of a Strong Faith, and Fervent Devotion, the Blessed Pledges of God's Favour, and thanked him with a Joyful Heart, that She was not deprived of the Opportunity. She own'd also that God had been good to Her beyond Her Expectation, tho' in a Circumstance of smaller importance; She having without any Indecency or Difficulty taken down that Bread, where it had not been so easie for Her, for some time, to swallow any other.

"That Afternoon She call'd for Prayers somewhat earlier than the appointed Time, because She fear'd, (that was Her Reason) that She should not long be so well compos'd. And so it came to pass; for every Minute after this, 'twas plain, Death made nearer and nearer Approaches: However, this true Christian kept Her Mind as fix'd as possibly She could upon the best things; and there were read by Her Directions, several Psalms of David, and also a Chapter of a Pious Book concerning Trust in God. Toward the latter end of it, Her Apprehension began to fail, yet not so much, but that She could say a Devout Amen to that Prayer in which Her Pious Soul was recommended to that God who gave it.

1694. " During all this Time, there appear'd nothing
" of Impatience, nothing of Frowardness, nothing
" of Anger; there was heard nothing of Murmur-
" ing, nothing of Impertinence, nothing of Ill
" Sound, and scarce a Number of Disjointed
" Words.

" In all these Afflictions the King was greatly
" afflicted; how sensibly, and yet how becoming-
" ly, many saw, but few have skill enough to de" scribe it; I am sure I have not. At last the Helps
" of Art, and Prayers and Tears not prevailing,
" a quarter before One, on Friday Morning, af" ter two or three small Strugglings of Nature, and
" without such Agonies, as in such Cases are com" mon, She fell on sleep.

On Monday, Decemb. 31. the House of Peers went in a Body to Kensington, and presented His Majesty the following Address on this sad Occasion.

" We Your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal
" Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in
" Parliament Assembled, do with inexpressible
" Grief, humbly assure Your Majesty of the deep " Sense we have of the Loss Your Majesty and
" the whole Kingdom doth sustain by the Death
" of that Excellent Princess, Our Sovereign La" dy the Queen: Most humbly beseeching Your " Majesty, that You would not indulge Your
" Grief upon this Sad Occasion, to the prejudice
" of the Health of Your Royal Person, in whose " Preservation not only the Welfare of Your own
" Subjects, but of all Christendom is so much con" cerned. We farther beg leave upon this sad Oc" casion, humbly to renew to Your Majesty, the
" Heartly and Sincere Assurances of Our utmost " Assistance against all Your Enemies, both at " Home and Abroad, and of all other Demon" strations of the greatest Duty and Affection that " can possibly be paid by the most Faithful Sub" jects.

To this Address His Majesty gave this Decent Answer; I heartily thank You for Your Kindness to Me, but much more for the Sense You show of Our Great Loss, which is above what I can express.

On the same Day His Majesty was attended by the House of Commons, who presented this Address of Condolence.

Most Gracious and Dread Sovereign,

" We Your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal
" Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Assem" bled, being deeply sensible of the great Misfor" tune which hath befallen Your Majesty and this " Kingdom, by the Death of Our most Gracious
" Queen, do with unspeakable Grief of Heart,
" humbly beg leave to condole the irreparable
" Loss of that Most Excellent Princess, the best
" of Women; to enumerate whose Virtues, were
" to aggravate our Sorrow.

" We cannot, at the same time, but bless God
" for the Preservation of Your Majesty to Us, on " whose Life the Welfare and Happiness of this " Kingdom, and the Liberties of Europe, do in so " great a measure depend; humbly beseeching
" Your Majesty so to moderate Your Grief under
" this Affliction, as not to prejudice or endanger
" Your Health: And that Your Majesty would
" please to take such further Care of Your Roy" al Person, that We may All enjoy the Blessing
" of Your Majesty's Long Life, and Happy
" Reign.

" We do also look upon it as a Duty We owe
" to Your Majesty, to Our Selves, and to those
" We Represent, to take this Occasion of assu-
" ring Your Majesty, that We Your Faithful " Commons will always, to the utmost of Our 1694. " Power, stand by, support and defend Your Ma" jesty and Your Government against all Your E" nemies both at Home and Abroad.

To which His Majesty was pleased to Answer,
Gentlemen, I take very kindly Your Care of Me, especially at this time, when I am able to think of nothing but our Great Loss.

The City of London, and most of the Corporations in England, presented the like Addresses upon this sad Occasion. But next to the King himself, the Death of the Queen was most Affectionately Lamented by Her Royal Sister the Princess Anne of Denmark; who at this lamentable Juncture, was willing to forget the Reasons that had oblig'd Her to leave the Court, and to live in an obscure Retirement, more like a Private Person in Dilgrace, than like the next Heir to the Crown.

Under the deepest Impressions of Grief, She wrote a most Kind and Respectful Letter to the King; wherein " She begg'd His Majesty's " favourable Acceptance of Her Sincere and Hear-
" ty Sorrow for His great Affliction in the Loss
" of the Queen: And did assure His Majesty,
" She was as sensibly troubled with His Misfor-
" tune, as if She had never been so Unhappy,
" as to fall under Her Displeasure. She did ear" nestly desire His Majesty to give Her Leave to " wait upon Him, as soon as it could be, with
" no Inconveniency to Him, and without dan" ger of increasing His Affliction; That She " might have an opportunity in Person, not on" ly of Repeating this, but of Assuring His Ma" jesty of Her Real Intention to omit no Occa" sion of giving Him constant Proofs of Her
" Sincere Respect, and Concern for His Person" al Interest and Safety." This Generous Affection of Her Royal Highness, was suitably received by the King: And His Grace the New Archbishop of Canterbury, laying hold on this favourable opportunity to Reconcile the Royal Family, Represented to His Majesty the Prudent and Loyal Conduct of Her Royal Highness and the Prince of Denmark, during their Reces from Court. That they had been so far from giving any Obstruction to His Majesty's Affairs, that they were alway in the same Publick Measures with Him; and those Members of either House of Parliament, who had Places under their Highnesses, had always appeared forward in promoting His Majesty's Interest. These Reasons being offer'd as a Comment on the Letter of the Princess, work'd so effectually on the Heart of the King, that as a Mark of His Favour and Affection, He did immediately Present Her Royal Highness with most of the late Queen's Jewels;
and His Sorrow for the Loss of so Good a Wife,
was in some Measure Alleviated by the Reconcilement of so Kind a Sister.

Towards the beginning of this Session of Parliament, the Popish Leicestershire Gentlemen, instead of Blessing God for their late Deliverance, and acknowledging the Lenity and Mercy of the present Government, Endeavour'd to represent their Legal Prosecution, as a Trick of the State, and the Court's Plot against them, rather than their Plot against the Government. They thought they had an Interest sufficient to submit this Matter to the Examination of the House of Commons; who, after the Reading of several Papers, disappointed the Petitioners, and justly Resolved on February 6. First, That there does appear to this House, that there was sufficient Grounds for the Prosecution and Trials of the Gentlemen at Manchester. Secondly, That upon the Informations and Examinations before This House, it does appear, that there was a dangerous

1694. rous Plot carried on against the King and Government. The House farther Ordered, That Mr. Standish of Standish-Hall in Lancashire, should be taken into Custody: And their Messenger reporting, he was not to be found, they Address'd the King to Issue out His Royal Proclamation for the Apprehending of him. This Repulse in the House of Commons, did not discourage that bold Party from laying their Complaint also before the House of Peers; where, after Examining some Witnesses, and entering into proper Debates, the Question being put, Whether the Government had sufficient Cause to Prosecute the late Persons accused of a Plot in Lancashire and Cheshire? It was carried in the Affirmative.

Lancashire Plot.

Acts Passed.

The Commons look back into Abuses and Corruptions.

Offenders Punish'd.

The Commons had proceeded on the Ways and Means of raising Money, to answer the great Occasions of the War: And had agreed on a Land-Tax, with appropriating some part of the Customs to the same Publick Uses. So on Monday, February 11. His Majesty came to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for granting to His Majesty an Aid of Four Shillings in the Pound, for One Year; and for applying the Yearly Sum of Three Hundred Thousand Pounds, for Five Years, out of the Duties of Tonnage and Poundage, and other Sums of Money, payable upon Merchandize, Exported and Imported, for carrying on the War against France with Vigour. 2. An Act for Exempting Apothecaries from serving the Offices of Constable, Scavenger, and other Parish and Ward Offices, and from serving upon Juries. 3. An Act for Rebuilding the Town of Warwick, and for Determining Differences touching Houses Burnt or Demolished, by reason of the late Dreadful Fire there. There seem'd to be a particular Providence that directed the King to the Wisdom of Passing the Popular Bill, for the frequent Meeting of Parliaments, before the Death of the Queen; for if it had been deferr'd to this time, some People would not have fail'd to say, that he had been forc'd to it by the Necessity of his Affairs.

While the Commons were raising Money for the future, they wisely enquired into the Disposal of former Taxes; and discovered so much Corruption, as was high time to punish and prevent. The occasion of looking back, was given by a Petition of the Inhabitants of Royston, complaining of the great Abuses committed by Officers and Soldiers, in Exacting Subsistence-Money. This Petition was Read in the House on Jan. 12. and after Examining Mr. Tracy Pouncefort, Agent of Colonel Hastings's Regiment, and the Officers complained of; it was Resolved, That the Officers and Soldiers of the Army Demanding and Exacting Subsistence-Money in their Quarters, or upon their March, is Arbitrary and Illegal, and a great Violation of the Rights and Liberties of the Subject. And it was thereupon Ordered, That the Commissioners for Taking and Stating the Publick Accounts, do upon Friday Morning next, lay before this House their Observations of the Abuses and Ill Practices committed by the several Agents of the Regiments of the Army. And that the Commissioners should lay before them the Names of such Agents as have neglected to attend them upon Summons. And that Agent Pouncefort lay before the House a particular Account of all the Moneys receiv'd from the Earl of Ranelagh, and how he has paid or disposed of the said Money.

Pursuant to this Order, on Jan. 25. Mr. Harley, from the Commissioners for Taking and Stating the Publick Accounts, presented to the House their Observations of the Abuses and Ill Practices committed by the several Agents. On Jan. 28. Mr. Tracy Pouncefort presented his Accounts, and was Examined to the Truth of them. Agent Roberts, Agent Wallis, Lieutenant Turner, Colonel Hastings, and Major Montall, were likewise Examined; the two latter were Discharged, the others were taken into Custody. Mr. Pouncefort was brought in Custody to the House on Feb. 12. where refusing to answer to several Questions demanded by the House, it was Resolved, That by obstinately refusing to answer to a Matter of Fact, demanded of him by this House, he had thereby violated the Privilege, and contemned the Authority of this House, and the Fundamental Constitution thereof. For which he was brought to the Bar, and upon his Knees received the Judgment, of being committed Prisoner to the Tower of London. On February 15. upon his Petition, acknowledging his Offence, and expressing his Sorrow, he was again brought to the Bar of the House; but not giving satisfactory Answers, he was Remanded back to the Tower.

1694.

His Brother Mr. Edward Pouncefort was likewise called in and Examined; and on February 16. it was Resolved, That Mr. Edward Pouncefort, for contriving to Cheat Colonel Hastings's Regiment of Five Hundred Guineas, and for giving a Bribe to obtain the King's Bounty, be taken into Custody. And that Mr. Henry Guy, a Member of the House, for taking a Bribe of Two Hundred Guineas, be committed Prisoner to the Tower of London. And the House at the same time Agreed, That a Committee be Appointed, to prepare an Humble Representation to be made to His Majesty, laying before Him the several Abuses, Ill Practices, and Intolerable Exactions of the Agents of the Regiments of the Army, upon the inferior Officers and Common-Soldiers, whereby they have been forced to raise their Subsistence on the People.

This Humble Representation of the House of Commons to His Majesty, was Presented on Monday, March 4.

Representation of the Commons.

" We Your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons in this present Parliament Assembled, do from a true and unfeigned Zeal for Your Majesty's Person and Government, (which God long preserve) and from the Obligation that lieth upon Us in behalf of those whom We Represent, most Humbly lay before Your Majesty the Grievance We lie under, by some of the Officers and Soldiers of the Army, in Raising Money upon the Country, under pretence of Subsistence; which is such a Violation of the Liberty and Property of Your Subjects, that it needeth no Aggravation.

" This is, in great Measure, occasioned by the undue Practices of some of the Agents and Officers; the Particulars of which, We beg leave to lay before Your Majesty, in order to the more effectual Preventing the like Miscarriages for the Future.

" I. Some of the Agents, amongst other their Ill Practices, have Detained the Money due to the Soldiers, in their Hands; and made use of it for their own Advantage, instead of immediately applying it to the Subsistence of the Officers and Soldiers, for whom they were Intrusted.

" II. Their intolerable Exactions and great Exactions upon the Officers and Soldiers, for Paying Money by way of Advance; Their charging more for the Discours of Tackles, than they actually Paid: By which fraudulent Imposing upon those who serve in Your Majesty's Armies, it appeareth, That notwithstanding they have a greater Pay than is given in any other Part of the World, they are yet reduced to Inconveniences and Extremities, which ought not to be put upon those who 1694. " venture their Lives for the Honour and Safety " of the Nation.

" III. In Particular, Colonel Hastings hath
" Compell'd some Officers of his Regiment to " take their Cloaths from him at Extravagant
" Rates, by Confining and Threatning those that " would not comply therewith: By which, the " Authority that may be necessary to be lodged
" in the Colonel over the Inferior Officers in " some Cases, is Misapplied, and Extended so as " to promote a Private Advantage of his own,
" without any Regard to Your Majesty's Ser" vice, or to the Discipline of the Army.

" IV. Colonel Hastings's Agent hath presumed " fraudulently to Detain Five Hundred Guineas,
" out of a Bounty given by Your Majesty to the " Officers of that Regiment, under Pretence of " giving them as a Bribe to obtain the same, to
" the Dishonour of Your Majesty, and Injury
" to the Officers thereof. And hath taken Two" pence per Pound out of the Money due to the " Officers and Soldiers; for which Deduction,
" there being no Warrant, the Colonel, whose
" Servant the Agent is, is Answerable.

" V. Colonel Hastings's Agent hath Refused or " Neglected to give an Account of the Pay due to
" the Captains of his Regiment, and their Com" panies; which tends apparently to the De-
" frauding the Officers and Soldiers.

" VI. Some of the Agents assume to them" selves the Liberty of making great Deducti" ons; which, since they know not how to justifi-
" fy, they endeavour to cover, by putting them
" under the Shelter of the uncertain Head of " Contingencies; which giveth them the better
" opportunity of hiding the Frauds and Abuses,
" that would otherwise be more liable to be De" tected.

" VII. Colonel Hastings hath Discharged an
" Ensign, by putting another in his Room, con" trary to the true Discipline of an Army; from " which the Colonels have no Right to Exempt
" themselves, to enlarge their own Authority,
" to the Prejudice of Your Majesty's Service,
" and of the Officers who serve under them.

" VIII. Colonel Hastings hath taken Money
" for the Recommending to Commands in his " Regiment, to the great Discouragement of the " Officers who are to serve in Your Majesty's " Armies; who ought to be such as deserve their " Commands, and not such as Pay for them.

" These Things We most Humbly Represent
" to Your Majesty, in Confidence of having " them Redress'd by Your Majesty's Justice and " Wisdom.

" Your Loyal Commons, as they have been " always ready to Supply Your Majesty, cannot
" but be sensible of such Miscarriages, as may
" either Diminish the Strength of Your Armies,
" or the Affections of Your People: And it is
" from a Principle of the highest Duty, That
" We take this Way of Applying Our Selves to " Your Majesty for Redress; having an entire " Assurance, That this Our most Humble Re" presentation will not only be Graciously Ac" cepted, but that Our Expectations from it will " be fully Answered.

His Majesty was pleas'd to give this soft and " prudent Answer: Gentlemen, I will Consider Your
" Representation, and take all Care possible to have the " Grievances Redress'd. Accordingly Colonel Hastings
" was immediately Cashier'd, and his Regi" ment given to Sir John Jacob, his Lieutenant Col" onel. And while the Complaint was depending,
" the King in Council was pleas'd to Order, Fe" bruary 19. That the Chief Officers of the Army
" should Meet twice a Week in the Great Chamber at the House-Guards, to Receive and Examine

" all Informations and Complaints that should be " brought before them, of any Wrong or Injury
" done by any Officer or Soldier of His Majesty's " Land-Forces, in order to redress the same: And
" on March 11th. His Majesty Issued out a Declara- " tion for the strict Discipline of the Army, and due
" Payment of Quarters; strictly forbidding to Exact
" or Demand any Subsistence-Money, or to com" mit any Spoil or Disorder, or to use any Vio" lence or Threatning Words, or otherwise to mis-
" behave themselves, under Pain of Cashiering,
" and Loss of their Pay.

To Prosecute the Discovery of Ill Practices,
" Mr. James Craggs, one of the Contractors for
" Cloathing the Army, was Summoned to Attend
" the House: And after he had given in his An" swer to the Commissioners for Taking and Sta" ting the Publick Accounts, it was demanded of " him, March 7th. Whether he would produce his " Books, and be Examined before the said Com" missioners upon Oath: He excused himself, and " refused to produce his Books. Upon which it " was Resolved, That for Refusing, and there-
" by obstructing the Enquiry of the House into
" the Disposal of the Publick Moneys, he be com" mitted Prisoner to the Tower of London. Soon
" after, Mr. Harley reported the further Examina" tion of Mr. Edward Pauncefort, and acquainted
" the House, That Mr. Richard Harnage, another
" of the Contractors for Cloathing of the Army,
" had refused to be Examind upon Oath, before
" the Commissioners: Whereupon it was Ordered,
" That a Bill be brought in to oblige Mr. Edward
" Pauncefort to discover how he disposed the Moneys
" paid into his Hands, relating to the Army, and for " Punishing him in case he should not make such Discov" ery; and that Mr. Tracy Pauncefort, Mr. James
" Craggs, and Mr. Richard Harnage, be included in " the said Bill.

Amidst the Noise of Bribery and Corruption,
" there was a Petition to the House of Commons,
" of Thomas Kemp and others, on behalf of them" selves and others, the ancient Four Hundred Li" censed Hackney-Coach-Men; which being re" ferred to a Committee, it was their Opinion,
" That the Petitioners the Hackney-Coach-Men,
" had proved the Substance of their Complaint,
" and were worthy the Consideration and Relief
" of the House: And that several of the Commis" sioners for Licencing and Regulating Hackney-
" Coaches, and Stage-Coaches, had, by receiving
" Bribes, and by other undue Means, acted Cor-
" ruptly and Arbitrarily, contrary to the Authori" ty and Trust reposed in them by Act of Parliament.
" Thereupon the House ordered the Committee to " distinguish the Commissioners, which they ac" cordingly did; and by their Report on March 20.
" Henry Ashurst and Walter Overbury Esquires, were
" Honourably Clear'd, and the others were de-
" clar'd Guilty; and an Humble Address was made
" to His Majesty, that He would remove Henry
" Killegrew, Henry Vilters, and Richard Gea, Esquires,
" from the Commission for Licencing Hackney-
" Coaches: And they were accordingly Re" moved.

From these Discoveries a common Murmur a" rose, that an Universal Corruption had over-
" spread the Nation; that Court, Camp, City,
" nay, and the Parliament it self were infected.
" Hereupon, to wipe off the Suspicion from the " Honourable Members, and to expose the Guilty,
" On March 7. the House Appointed Paul Foley
" Esquire, Sir Richard G. Jones, John Pollesfen Esq;
" Sir John Tompson, Foot O'Brien Esq; Thomas Tekham
" Esq; Sir Samuel Bennet, Thomas Wharton Esq;
" and Francis Gwynne Esq; as a Committee to In" spect

1694. spect the Books of the East-India Company, and also the Books of the Chamberlain of London.

East-India Company.

On March 17. Mr. Foley Reported from the said Committee. That as soon as they came to the East-India House, they called for an Account of all Moneys Paid for the special Service of the Company; upon Perusal of which, observing, That the greatest Payment was in the Year 1693. they search'd for the Orders for the Issuing of that Money; the chief of which were, One Dated the 13th of April, 1693. Another Dated the 24th of November, 1693; and another the 22^d. of January, 1694. In Pursuance of which, the Sums of 22275 l. 24583 l. and 30000 l. were severally Paid out of the Cash, amounting in all to 77258 l. besides several smaller Sums, amounting in the whole to 10144 l. which with the former Sum, makes 87402 l. All Issued in the Year 1693. while Sir Thomas Cooke was Governor, and Francis Tyffin Esq; Deputy-Governor, for the special Service of the House, and obtaining a New Charter. That they found by Examination of most of the Persons present at the Committees of the East-India Company, where the said Orders were made, That the Governor in the said Committees, did only in general Inform what Sums he hath Disburst, without naming the Particulars to whom, or to what Service; which several of them said was a New Course, since Sir Thomas Cooke came to be Deputy-Governor, or Governor. That in a State of the Company's Cash, Dated at the East-India House the 7th of March, 1694. and drawn up by several Members of the Company, empower'd for that purpose, near all the aforesaid Sums were observed to be Paid, and placed to the Company's Account of Charges General, paid out of Cash, viz. In 1688, and 1689. Sir Benjamin Batburst Governor, and Sir Josiah Child Deputy-Governor, 2230 l. 14 s. In 1690, and 1691. Sir Joseph Herne Governor, and Sir Thomas Cooke Deputy-Governor, 13532 l. 9 s. In 1692, and 1693. Sir Thomas Cooke Governor, and Mr. Tyffin Deputy-Governor, 87402 l. 12 s. in the whole 103165 l. 15 s. That upon Examination of the Company's Cash-Book, having found the Balance of the 31st of October, 1694. was 124249 l. they demanded of Mr. Portman the Cashier, if he had the same in Cash? That he replied, he had not; but instead thereof, hid before them in Writing that 90000 l. was Lent upon Sir Thomas Cooke's Notes, (which he produced) with other Particulars, which made up the above-mention'd Balance. That in his Note, Sir Thomas Cooke own'd the Receipt of 90000 l. which he had Disburst and Paid for 99197 Pounds Stock in the East-India Company for their Account; tho' they did not find any Warrant for the said Sum, or any of that Stock transfer'd in the Company's Books for their Account, exceeding 18300 l. Stock, the 16th of January, 1695. The Committee of the House of Commons further Reported, That they found a Contract Dated the 26th of February, 1693. for 200 Tun of Salt-Petre, to be brought Home in the Ship Seymour from India, to Pay 12000 l. for the same, and 25 l. Freight per Tun, besides all Charges here. That 2000 l. which was the Sum sent out to Purchase the said Salt-Petre, was actually Paid out of the Company's Cash, and that a Bond for the remaining 10000 l. was given under the Seal of the Company, payable the 31st of March, 1695. whether the Ship arrived in Safety or not: With this Limitation only, That if Two Hundred Tun of Salt-Petre be not Laden upon the said Ship, then to Repay in proportion to the want thereof. So that the Result of this Contract was, That the Company ran the Adventure of 12000 l. for that which Cost only 2000 l. and must consequently lose 12000 l. 1694. if the Ship miscarried: And on the contrary, the Seller on the other hand, got Ten Thousand Pound clear, without disbursting, or running the hazard of one Penny; and what is yet more, a certain Loss of 9 or 10000 l. would attend it, if the Ship arriv'd in safety. That the Committee having Examind the Members of the Company, concerning this Contract, they own'd it to be true, That the 2000 l. was Paid, and the 10000 l. Bond given to Mr. Tho. Colyton. That about the same time this Contract was made, so many of the Interlopers as would Sell their Shares in the Interlopers to the East India Company, were allow'd their first Cost, and 25 l. per Cent Advance; which was done by giving them Credit for so much in the East-India Books. That the Committee found Sir Samuel Dashwood, Sir John Fleet, John Perrey Esq; Sir Joseph Herne, and Sir Thomas Cooke, were present at the Court of Committees, when the Orders above-mention'd were made; but they being all Members of the House of Commons, the Committee did not think fit to Examine them. That the rest of the Committees, who were present at making those Orders, and most of whom had been Examind, could give no Account of the Disposal of the Money Issued out, during the time of Sir Joseph Herne, and Sir Thomas Cooke's Government; but only that the same was Paid for special Service, and that a great part thereof was put into the Hands of Sir Basil Firebrass. That one of them, viz. Sir Benjamin Batburst said, Sir Joseph Herne had the greatest part of the 13922 l. 9 s. to dispose of; and Sir Benjamin Batburst would have call'd for an Account thereof, but Sir Thomas Cooke desir'd he would not. That the Company's Committee of Nine, had often call'd upon Sir Thomas Cooke to give an Account to whom he had distributed the Money he received, which he had some time promis'd, and afterwards declined to do: So that the Secret of that Service, and the placing of that Money, lay principally with Sir Thomas Cooke, and Sir Joseph Herne. That Sir Benjamin Batburst finding so great a Sum as 30000 l. charg'd for Secret Services, he had some warm Discourse with Sir Thomas Cooke about it, to know how it was Disburst: But Sir Thomas refus'd to give him any Particulars; and told him, he should remember he was bound by his Oath to the Company, to keep their Secrets. To which Sir Benjamin replied, He was under the same Obligation, to be true to the Interest of the Company. Sir Benjamin Batburst further said, That about April, 1694. understanding that they were in want of Money, he look'd into the Cash-Book, which Casting up, he found a considerable Sum in Cash; and taking some Persons with him, discours'd Sir Thomas Cooke about it, who said, *The 50000 l. he had received, was to gratify some Persons in case the Bill should pass.* As for the Contract about Salt-Petre, Sir Benjamin Batburst said, that it was made by Sir Thomas Cooke, and Sir Basil Firebrass; but he knew nothing of it, till it came into Court.

The Committee likewise reported, that Sir Basil Firebrass being examin'd, own'd he had receiv'd upwards of 16000 l. which was for buying Shares of Stocks, and of which the Company had allow'd: But said he knew no ground the Committee of Nine had to say, that a great Part of the other Sums were put into his Hands. He confess'd he invited several Persons to come into the Company; and offer'd to lay down Money for several; and that if they liked it not at the Years end, he would then take it off their Hands; which Offer he made to Members of the House of Commons, among others, and gave an Account 1694. Account to the Company of his doing so, who promised to indemnify him. That concerning the Accommodation with the Interlopers, the Company had a Letter from the Lord Nottingham, That it was the King's Pleasure, that they should come to an Agreement with the Interlopers: That the Proposal to them was 25 per Cent. for bringing in their Stock to the Company, and one half of the Profit besides; which one half of the Interlopers accepted; but Mr. Godfrey and some others, standing upon 30 per Cent. Mr. Colston went off with them, and did not come into the Company. That Mr. Ward said it was agreed by the Interlopers that only 2000 l. should be employ'd in buying of Salt Petre; That Mr. Colston was to have the Advantage of it, which he believed was not for Mr. Colston himself, but for some other Gentleman; and lastly, that the original inducement to the leave of the Interlopers going out, was that Agreement with Mr. Colston.

The same Committee of the House of Commons reported, That having Inspected the Chamberlain of London's Books; they found an Order made by a Committee of the Common Council for the City of London, (appointed to consider of Ways and Means for satisfying the Debts due to the Orphans of the said City) and dated the 12th. of February, 1694. by which Mr. Chamberlain was directed to pay to Sir John Trevor, Speaker of the House of Commons, the Sum of 1000 Guineas, so soon as a Bill were passed into an Act of Parliament, for satisfying the Debts of the Orphans, and other Creditors of the said City; which Sum was Paid and Deliver'd to Sir John Trevor, on the 22d. of June, 1694, in the Presence of Sir Robert Clayton and Sir James Houblon. That they observed, that the Order of the Committee of the Common Council, which now stood Dated the 12th. of February, was at first Dated the 13th. of February, and that the Person named therein, was put in a different Hand: That examining who first Writ the Warrant, Mr. Borret the City-Solicitor, own'd it was his Hand-Writing; and at first said, that he believed the Blank at first left therein, was fill'd up with the Speaker's Name, before the Committee Sign'd it, because he believed they would not set their Hands to a Blank. But all the Committee who Sign'd it, and who appear'd upon Summons, declared most of them positively, that there was a Blank for the Person's Name, when they sign'd it; and the rest being doubtful, Mr. Borret then said the Blank might be filled up afterwards, though he could not tell the time; however, he own'd he fill'd it up with another Pen. That they found another Order of the said Committee, Dated the 26th. of April, 1693. directing the Chamberlain to Pay to Paul Jodrell Esq; the Sum of 100 Guineas, for his Pains and Service in Assisting the Orphans Bill to Pass in Parliament; which Sum was paid him the 22d. of June, 1694. That in the Chamberlain's Books were entered several Sums paid to Mr. Borret, to defray the Charge of Drawing the Bill, making Copies thereof, and of the Petitions and Orders relating to the same; amongst which Payments they found 5 Guineas paid to Mr. Solicitor General, for his Advice therein, 5 Guineas to Mr. Harcourt, 20 Guineas to Mr. Hungerford, Chairman of the Grand Committee, for his Pains and Service, and 60 l. 9s. to Mr. Jodrell. That they understood, that the Orphans, for the procuring of this Bill, had given Bond to Mr. Smith and Mr. Charles Nois to allow them 12d. in the Pound, when the Bill was Pass'd, for their Pains and Charges in that matter; which Contract being made Void in that Bill, the Court of Aldermen were empower'd to satisfy them their real Expences. That upon this Smith and Nois applied themselves to the Court of Aldermen, and got a Petition to be Sign'd by many of the Orphans, that they were willing, notwithstanding the Act of Parliament, they should be allow'd 12d. in the Pound. That the said Nois and Smith brought in a Bill to the Committee of the Common Council, of their Charges, amounting to 3457 l. 16s. but as was alledg'd they pretended to be more than 10000 l. out of Purse; by which Argument they got Subscriptions to the said Petition; in which Bill there was charg'd 1650 l. paid to Mr. George Finch, for carrying on the Act. That Mr. Nois and Mr. Smith being examin'd, they did utterly deny that they had given any Money to any Member of Parliament, on the Account of the said Bill, or knew of any to be given; but they were willing to get what they could, having taken a great deal of Pains in long Solliciting the same; and that they did say, that notwithstanding they did charge 1650 l. to be paid Mr. George Finch, yet they had not paid him any Money; but having deliver'd up his Bond for the 12d. in the Pound, they valued his Share of the Orphans Debt to amount to that Sum. That Mr. George Finch being Examined, did deny to have receiv'd any thing from Mr. Nois and Mr. Smith, or his paying any Money to any Member of Parliament: But wavering in his Discourse, and being again ask'd if he ever did distribute, or know of any Money distributed on Account of the Orphans Bill? he said, it was a hard thing to be asked such Questions; That however he own'd, that upon Suggestion that there were Obstructions to the Bill, which must be removed by Money, he apply'd himself to several of the Orphans, and did receive 100 l. from Mr. John Chadwick, 100 l. from Mr. Harvey, 100 l. from Mr. Scott, 50 l. of Mr. Herne, and had a Promise of 100 l. from Sir John Smith, which was not yet paid. And Lastly, they reported that Mr. Chadwick and Mr. Herne proved the payment of the Money to Mr. George Finch, but could give no Account what he had done with it.

The Commons having Debated and weigh'd these Reports, came to this Resolution on March 12. That Sir John Trevor Speaker of this House receiving a Gratuity of a Thousand Guineas from the City of London, after Passing of the Orphans Bill, is guilty of a High Crime and Misdemeanor. Upon this Sentence, Sir John did not think fit to Justifie himself, but sent the Mace to the House, and wisely absented himself. So on March 14. the Commons resolv'd to proceed to the Election of a New Speaker; Sir Thomas Littleton and Paul Foley Esq; were propos'd; the Majority inclin'd to chuse the former; but Mr. Wharton Comptroller of the King's Household, speaking up for him with more than ordinary Zeal, the Majority did from thence presume that Sir Thomas Littleton was too much in the Court Interest, and upon that prejudice only they Elected Mr. Foley; who on the next Day, Friday March 15. was approved by His Majesty on the Throne, who then gave His Royal Assent to these Two Bills, 1. An Act for Supplying certain Defects in the Directions made in and by a Deed of Trust, and the Last Will of George Pitt Esq; Deceased, for settling his Estate. 2. An Act for Naturalizing of Bernard Cossart alias Meuse, and Alexander Ringley, and Others.

On March 16. the Commons proceeded upon the Report from their Committee, and Resolv'd, That Sir John Trevor Speaker of this House, being Guilty of a High Crime and Misdemeanor, by receiving a Gratuity of a Thousand Guineas from the City of London, after Passing the Orphans

1694.

The Speaker charg'd with Corruption.

Leaves the House.

Mr. Foley chosen Speaker.

Acts Pass'd.

1691. Bill, be Expell'd this House; And so he retired to enjoy his other Beneficial Place, the Mastership of the Rolls On March 18. Mr. Bird made his Excuse for offering of Money to a Member of the House, to present a Petition against a Bill depending in the House, and upon his Knees had a Reprimand from Mr. Speaker. And it was then Resolved, that Whoever shall discover any Money or other Gratuities given to any Member of the House, for matters Transacted in the House relating to the Orphans Bill, or the East-India Company, should have the Indemnity of the House for such Guilt. And to carry on the needful Inquisition, they order'd, that Mr. Charles Nois, Mr. James Smith, Mr. George Finch, Mr. Dowse, Mr. Hern, Mr. Chiswell, and Mr. Chadwick, should attend the next Morning. They did so, and it was then Resolved, That Mr. Charles Nois having to several Persons pretended he was out of Purse, or engaged to give great Sums of Money to several Members of this House, in order to pass the Orphans Bill; which on his Examination he denied to have given or promised, has been an Occasion of Scandal to this House and the Members thereof; for which he was taken into the Custody of the Serjeant at Arms. And the House proceeding to clear and purge themselves, did soon after Resolve, That Mr. Hungerford a Member of the House, having received Twenty Guineas for his Pains and Service, as Chair-Man of the Committee of this House, to whom the Orphans Bill was committed, is Guilty of a high Crime and Misdemeanour; for which he was Expell'd the House.

This Humour of Complaining and Accusing was likely to have been carried too far; for now several Persons betrayed a mighty Dissatisfaction that our Fleet was sent into the Streights; and pretended a Jealousy, that they were there to be Sold, or Sacrificed to the French. This ill-natur'd Rumour got into the House of Lords; and some of the Peers began to argue for the recalling of our Fleet, for fear of the many Inconveniences that might attend that Voyage. But upon debating this Matter, the Majority of the Lords were of very different Sentiments; and instead of a Remonstrance, they thought it proper to make this Address of Thanks to His Majesty, for sending His Fleet thither.

Address of the Lords. " We the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament Assembled, having Resolved, by the Unanimous Vote of this House, That the sending to great a Fleet into the Mediterranean, and continuing it in those Parts, has been to the Honour and Advantage of Your Majesty and Your Kingdoms; and having spent some time upon Consideration of the Condition of the Fleet both at Home and Abroad, and of the great Increase of the Naval Force and Strength of our Neighbours, conceive it to be our Duty to Your Majesty and the Kingdom, Humbly to Represent, That the Honour and Safety of this Nation, under the Providence of God, chiefly depends upon Your Strength at Sea. And whereas by the long continuance of this War, the Number of Your Ships must have been Diminished, and those remaining greatly Impaired; we think it of the highest Importance to Your Majesty's Service, and the Security and Interest of Your People, That You would be pleased to give such speedy and effectual Directions for the Repair and Increase of Your Royal Navy, as may Enable Your Majesty, not only to continue a Strength in the Mediterranean during this War, which may be Superiour to that of our Enemies, but likewise to Maintain such a Force here at Home, 1694. " and in the West-Indies, as shall be a Security for our Coasts and Plantations, and a Protection of our Trade; and sufficient both for the Annoying of our Enemies, and for the Protecting and Convoying all such Stores and Provisions as must be sent to the Fleet in those Parts; upon the effectual and timely Providing whereof, the Safety of that Part of Your Majesty's Navy does so much depend.

To which His Majesty was pleased to Return a most Gracious Answer to the Effect following:

I am very Sensible how much Our Safety depends upon Our Strength at Sea; and therefore cannot but Desire the Increase of it.

And I shall not be wanting to do what is in My Power, as to the Matters mentioned in your Address.

As to the Honours and Preferments during this Session of Parliament: On the first day of their Meeting, Nov. 12. His Majesty, as a Mark of His Royal Favour to the City of London, conferred the Honour of Knighthood on Sir John Swetapple and Sir William Cole, the present Sheriffs; And on Nov. 28. He conferr'd the like Honour upon Thomas Day, Esq; Mayor, and William Dames, Esq; Sheriff of Brissel. On Dec. 20. Captain Eliot, Commander of a Ship belonging to Jamaica, having made his Escape from the French, and giving timely Intelligence of the Design of the French upon that Island, received from His Majesty a Medal and Chain of One hundred Pounds Value, and Five hundred Pounds in Money, as a Reward of his Service; and His Majesty was pleased to order, that he should be recommended to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty for an Employment in His Majesty's Service.

The Church this Year lost the great Ornament of it, Archbishop Tillotson, who died at Lambeth on Friday November. 22. His Sickness and Death are thus delivered in his Funeral Sermon. " He kept nothing in Reserve for his last Hours; " he was still ready waiting for them, so he could " not be Surprized, though every Body else was. " The first Attacks came upon him while he was " in that Employment in which he delighted " most, at Church. and in the Worship of God: " He bore them with the usual Neglect of himself; and though his Countenance shew'd he " was ill, he would neither interrupt nor break " off from those Sacred Exercises, nor make " haste to look after his Health. Ah, the unhappy neglect of a Life that deserv'd so well to be " carefully preserved! The Fit came on slowly, " but seem'd to be Fatal: All Symptoms were " Melancholy: It soon turned to a Dead Palsy. " The Oppression was so great, that it became " very uneasy for him to Speak; but it appeared " that his Understanding was still clear, though " others could not have the Advantage of it: " He only said, That He had no Burden on his Conscience. All Remedies proved ineffectual: He " expressed no Concern to Live, nor Fear to Die, " but patiently bore his Burden, till it sunk him " on the Fifth day, and in the Sixty fifth Year of his Age.

His Body was interred at his own Desire, in the Church of St. Lawrence Jewry, in London, where he had been the Tuesday Lecturer for many Years: The Funeral Sermon was preach'd by the Right Reverend Gilbert Lord Bishop of Sarum, whose Account and Character of him deserve to be remembered. " His first Education and Impressions were among those who were then called Puritans, but of the best sort. Yet even before his Mind was opened to clearer thoughts, 1694.

Honours and Preferments.

State of Religion.

Death of Archbishop Tillotson.

Account of his Sickness.

His Character given by the Lord Bishop of Sarum.

1694. " he felt somewhat within him, that disposed him
 " to larger Notions and a better Temper. The " Books which were put in the hands of the " Youth of that time were generally heavy; he " could scarce bear them, even before he knew " better things: He happily fell on Cbilingworth's
 " Book; which gave his Mind the Ply that it
 " held ever after, and put him on a true Scent.
 " He was soon freed from his first Prejudices, or " rather he was never Mastered by them; yet
 " he still stuck to the Strictness of Life to which " he was bred, and retained a just Value, and
 " a due Tenderness for the Men of that Persua" sion; and by the Strength of his Reason, to" gether with the Clearness of his Principles, he " brought over more serious Persons from their
 " Scruples, to the Communion of the Church,
 " and fix'd more in it, than any Man I ever
 " knew. — That which gave him his last Fin" ishing, was his close and long Friendship
 " with Bishop Wilkins. He went into all the best " Things that were in that Great Man; but so,
 " that he perfected every one of them: For
 " though Bishop Wilkins was the more Universal
 " Man, yet He was the Greater Divine: If the
 " one had more Flame, the other was more Cor" rect. Both acted with great Plainness, and
 " were raised above regarding Vulgar Cen" sures. —

" Having dedicated himself to the Service of " the Church, and being sensible of the great
 " Good that might be done by a Plain and Edi-" fying Way of Preaching; he was very little
 " disposed to follow the Patterns then set him,
 " or indeed those of former times: And so he
 " set a Pattern to himself; and such a one it " was, that 'tis to be hoped it will be long and " much followed. He begun with a deep and " close Study of the Scriptures, upon which he " spent Four or Five Years, till he had arrived
 " at a true Understanding of them. He studied " next all the Ancient Philosophers and Books of " Morality: Among the Fathers, St. Basil and " St. Chrysostom were those he chiefly read. Up-
 " on these Preparations, he set himself to com-
 " pose the greatest Variety of Sermons, and on
 " the best Subjects, that perhaps any one Man
 " has ever yet done. His joining with Bishop
 " Wilkins in pursuing the Scheme of an univer" sal Character, led him to consider exactly the " Truth of Language and Style; in which no
 " Man was happier, and knew better the Art of " preserving the Majesty of Things under a
 " Simplicity of Words; tempering these so e" qually together, that neither did his Thoughts
 " sink, nor his Style swell; keeping always the " due Mean between a low Flatness, and the " Dresses of false Rhetorick. — He read his " Sermons with so due a Pronunciation, in so
 " sedate and solemn a manner, that they were
 " not the feebler, but rather the perfecter, even
 " by that way which often lessens the Grace, as " much as it adds to the Exactness of such Dis" courses.

" He look'd on the whole Complex of Pope-
 " ry, as such a Corruption of the whole Design
 " of Christianity, that he thought it was incum" bent on him to set himself against it with the " Zeal and Courage which became that Cause,
 " and was necessary for those Times. He thought
 " the Idolatry and Superstition of the Church of " Rome did enervate true Piety and Morality;
 " and that their Cruelty was such a Contradi" ction to the Meekness of Christ, and to that
 " Love and Charity which he made the Chara" cter and Distinction of his Disciples and Fol" lowers; that he resolv'd to sacrifice every " Thing, except a good Conscience, in a Cause

1694. " for which he had resolv'd, if it should come " to Extremities, to become a Sacrifice him" self.

" His Enemies were not wanting in the Arts
 " of Caluniny. — His endeavouring to make " out every thing in Religion from Clear and
 " Plain Principles, and with a Fulness of De" monstrative Proof, was laid hold on to make " him pass for One that could Believe Nothing
 " that lay beyond the Compass of Human Rea" son. And his tender Method of Treating " with Dissenters; his Endeavours to extinguish
 " that Fire, and to unite us among our selves, a" gainst those who understood their own Inter" est well, and pursued it closely, enflaming
 " our Differences, and engaging us into violent
 " Animosities, while they shifted Sides, and still " gained Ground, whether in the Methods of " Toleration, or of a strict Execution of Penal " Laws, as it might serve their Ends; those
 " calm and wise Designs of his, I say, were re" presented as a Want of Zeal in the Cause of " the Church, and an Inclination towards those " who departed from it. But how unhappily
 " successful soever they might be, in infusing those
 " Jealousies of him into some warm and unwar-
 " ry Men, he still went on in his own way:
 " He would neither depart from his Moderati-
 " on, nor take pains to cover himself from so
 " false an Imputation. —

" After the Restoration of the Church, An" ger upon those Heads was both more in fashi-
 " on, and seem'd more excusable: Men coming
 " then out of the Injustice and Violence by " which they had been so long ill used, and were
 " so much provoked; yet neither that, nor the " Narrowness of his Fortune, while he needed
 " Supports, and saw what was the shortest Way
 " to arrive at them, could make him change his " Strain. A Benefice being offer'd him in the " Country, he once intended to have left this " great Scene, and gone to that Retirement;
 " where he spent almost a Year: But he was
 " happily recalled by that Honourable Society,
 " for whom he always retained just Impressions
 " of Gratitude. And though in the Intervals of " Terms, he could have given a large Part of " the Year to his Parish; yet so strict he was to
 " the Pastoral Care in the Point of Residence,
 " that he parted with it even when his Incomes
 " here could scarce support him.

" I need not tell you for how many Years,
 " and with what Labour and Success, he divided
 " himself between that Society and this Place.

" — The Numerous Assembly that this Le-
 " ture brought together, even from the remo-
 " test Parts of this wide City, the great Con" course of Clergymen, who came hither to " form their Minds; the Happy Union that " thereby the Clergy of this great Body grew
 " into, and the Blessed Effects this had; are " Things which it is to be hoped an Age will " not wear out of Men's Minds. Some great " Charity, some Publick Service, or good De" sign, was the Work of most of those Days. —

" Those great Preferments, to which his ex" traordinary Worth seem'd to have forced some
 " who had no kindness to him, to advance him
 " afterwards, had no other effect on him, but
 " to enlarge his Capacity of doing Good: He " neither slackned his Labours, nor advanced his
 " Fortunes by them: He did not content himself
 " with such a Residence as answer'd the Statute;
 " considering his Obligations to attend at Court:
 " but gave as much of his Time and Labours to
 " his Cathedral, as could agree with his Obliga" tions here. He neither aspir'd nor hearken'd
 " to the Motions of a further Advancement;
 " and 694.

“ and all that he desired upon this Happy Revolution, was such a Change as did considerably lessen his Income, but deliver'd him from the invidious Load of having Two Dignities. He bore this in the former Reigns, because the Practice was common; and he was enabled by it to go far in his Charities: But as he intended to put a Stop to that Abuse, so he resolved to set an Example to others in it.—

“ He did truly rejoice in the Happy Deliverance of these Nations: He could not but observe those amazing Steps of Providence that accompanied it; and hoped it was a Beginning to great Blessings that were to follow it. Many of those who had longed for it, and wish'd well to it, did of a sudden start back: And some in high Stations of the Church, would neither openly declare for it, nor act against it, according to the Authority of their Characters; one of which they certainly ought to have done. If they did then judge it so unlawful as they would now represent it, they ought to have Thundred, both with their Sermons and Censures, against it.—

“ Our Sovereigns, after a long Forbearance, beyond the Term prefixed by Law, resolved at last to Fill the Vacant Sees: And that great Judgment which They have shewed upon other Occasions, made them soon settle on Him as the fittest Person to Steer this Church. It is well known how long, and how earnestly he withstood this.— That which went the deepest in his own Mind, and which he laid out the most earnestly before Their Majesties, was, That those Groundless Prejudices with which his Enemies had loaded him, had been so industriously propagated, while they were neglected by himself; that he believed, that He, who (as his Humility made him think) could at no time do any great Service, was less capable of it now than ever. But Their Majesties persisting in Their Intentions, he thought it was the Voice and Call of God to him, and so he submitted.— But he formed Two settled Resolutions, from which he never departed. The One was, That whenever the State of Their Majesties Affairs was such, that he could hope to be dismiss'd from that Post; he would become a most importunate Suitor to be delivered from it. The other was, That if the Infirmities of Age should have so overtaken him, that he could not go through the Fatigue and Labours of it; then he would humbly offer it up to Their Majesties.

“ — He had one great Encouragement in that High but Invidious Station; which was, not only the constant Favour of Their Majesties, but that which gave him a Support of another Nature, since the other was only Personal, and so was less regarded by One that considered himself very little; was, That he perceived in Them such Serious Designs, so True a Zeal, and so Right a Judgment in all the Concerns of Religion and of this Church; that he often said, He did not think that any Age had produced Princes who understood the True Interests of Our Church so well, and were so much set on Promoting them, as Their Majesties were. A Zeal he observed in Them, that was so Tender, and yet so well Guided, that he did indeed expect greater Blessings from it, than so corrupt an Age is either capable of, or can well deserve and hope for.—

“ But as this was the greatest, so it was almost the single Satisfaction that he enjoyed in his Elevation; while he was from other Hands afflicted with the most Boisterous, the most In-

1695.

“ jurious, as well as the Falsest Calumnies that Malice could invent. And yet how false forever these were generally known to be, the Confidence with which they were averred, joined with the Envy that accompanies a High Station, had a greater Operation than could have been imagined; considering how long he had lived on so publick a Scene, and how well he was known. It seem'd a new and unusual Thing, That a Man who in a Course of above Thirty Years had done so much Good, so many Services to so many Persons; without ever once doing an Ill Office, or a Hard Thing to any One Person: Who had a Sweetness and Gentleness in him, that seem'd rather to lean to Excess, should yet meet with so much Unkindness and Injustice.— Nor had this any other Effect on him, either to change his Temper or his Maxims; though perhaps it might sink too much into him, with relation to his Health. He was so exactly true in all the Representations of Things, or Persons, that he laid before Their Majesties; that he neither rais'd the Characters of his Friends, nor sunk that of those that deserved not so well of him; (I love not to say, Enemies;) but offered everything to Them with that Sincerity that did so well become him, that Truth and Candor was almost perceptible in every Thing he said or did: His Looks and whole Manner seem'd to take away all Suspicion concerning him; for he thought Nothing in this World was worth much Art, or great Management. With all these Things he struggled, till at last they overcame him, or rather he overcame them, and escap'd from them.

“ His Life was not only free from Blemishes, which is but a Low Size of Commendation, it shined in all the Parts of it. In his Domestick Relations, in his Friendships, in the whole Commerce of Business; he was always a Pattern, easy and humble, frank and open, tender-hearted and bountiful, kind and obliging, in the greatest, as well as in the smallest Matters. A Decent but Grave Cheerfulness made his Conversation as Lively and Agreeable, as it was Useful and Instructing. He was ever in good Humour; always the same, both accessible and affable: He heard every thing patiently; was neither apt to mistake, nor to suspect: His own great Candor disposing him to put the best Constructions, and to judge the most favourably of all Persons and Things. He pass'd over many Injuries, and was ever ready to forgive the greatest, and to do all good Offices, even to those who had used him very ill. He was never Imperious, nor Assuming: And tho' he had a superior Judgment to most Men, yet he never dictated to others. Few Men had observed Human Nature more carefully, could judge better, and make larger Allowances for the Frailties of Mankind, than he did. He lived in a due Neglect of his Person, and Contempt of Pleasure; but never affected Pompous Severities. He despis'd Wealth, but as it furnished him for Charity; in which he was both Liberal, and Judicious.

“ Thus his Course in the private Virtues and Capacities of a Christian, was of a Sublime Pitch: His Temper had made him incapable of the Practices, either of Craft, or Violence.

“ In his Function, he was a constant Preacher; and diligent in all the other Parts of his Duty: For tho' he had no Care of Souls upon him, yet few that had, laboured so painfully as he did, in Visiting the Sick, in Comforting the 1694. " Afflicted, and in settling such as were either shaking in their Opinions, or troubled in Mind. He had a great Compass in Learning, what he knew, he had so perfectly digested, that he was truly the Master of it. But the largeness of his Genius, and the correctness of his Judgment, carried him much further than the leisure he had enjoyed for Study, seem'd to furnish him; for he could go a great way upon " general Hints."

There needs nothing to be added to this Character, but that a greater was given to him by King William, who understood Mankind, and could not Flatter. His Majesty after the Archbishop's Death, never mention'd him but with some Testimony of His singular Esteem for his Memory: He us'd often to tell his Son-in-Law Mr. Chadwick, I Loved your Father; I never knew an Honester Man, and I never had a Better Friend. The Queen was sensibly afflicted with the Loss of him, and though She did not Survive him above a Month, She found a way to Reverence his Memory, by settling an Honourable Pension on his Relict, who by her Lord's generosity and Charity had the less Provision made for her.

Care to fill up the See of Canterbury It was the Sollicitous Care of the Court to fill up the See of Canterbury; the first Person that seem'd to be offer'd to the Eye of the World, was Dr. Stillingfleet Bishop of Worcester; but his great Abilities had rais'd some Envy and some Jealousies of him; and indeed his Body would not have bore the Fatigues of such a Station. Even the Bishop of Bristol was recommended by a great Party of Men, who had an Opinion of his Piety and Moderation. But the Person most esteem'd by Their Majesties, and most universally approved by the Ministry, and the Clergy, and the People, was Dr. Tenison Bishop of Lincoln, who had been Exemplary in every Station of his Life, had restored a neglected large Diocese to some discipline and good Order; and had before in the Office of a Parochial Minister done as much Good, as perhaps was possible for any one Man to do. It was with great importunity, and after the rejecting of better Offers, that he was prevail'd with to take the Bishoprick of Lincoln; and it was with greater Reluctancy, that he now received Their Majesties Desire and Command, for his Translation to Canterbury; to which he was Nominated December 8. soon after Elected by the Dean and Chapter, and that Election Confirm'd in the Church of St. Mary-le-Bow in London, on January the 16th. He obtain'd the favour of recommending his Successor in the See of Lincoln, the Wise and Good Dr. James Gardiner, Sub-Dean of the Cathedral Church of Lincoln, who was Nominated by His Majesty on January the 18th. and Consecrated on the 10th. of March following.

The New Archbishop of Canterbury Preaches the Queen's Funeral Sermon. The first distinguishing Duty which was laid upon the new Archbishop, was to Preach a Solemn Sermon at the Funeral of the Queen. The Parliament had taken into consideration the Respect due to this sad Occasion; and on February 19. an Order of Council was Publish'd, that Tuesday the 5th. of March being appointed for the Funeral of Her late most Gracious Majesty of Blessed Memory, the biggest Bell in every Cathedral, Collegiate, and Parochial Church of England and Wales, should be Tolded from the Hour of Nine till Ten in the Forenoon, and from Two of the Clock till Three, and from Five till Six in the Afternoon of the said Day.

The Funeral Procellion begun from the Royal Palace of Whitehall, to the Collegiate Church of St. Peter Westminster, all the way being boarded, rail'd in, and cover'd with Black Bays. The Proceeding, was First the Knight Marshals Men and Deputy, Three Hundred Poor Women in Mourning Gowns and Hoods; after whom follow'd the Banner of Union, several Classes of Their Majesties Servants, the Children and Gentlemen of the Chappel Royal, more of Their Majesties Servants, Chaplains to Their Majesties, Aldermen of London, other of Their Majesties Servants, the Lord Mayor of London, the House of Commons in long Cloaks, with their Speaker and the Mace born before him, and his Train carried up; and the House of Peers in their Robes, with their Speaker the Lord Keeper, having the Mace and Purse carried before him, and his Train carried up; the Banners of Chester, Cornwall and Wales, born by the Lord Spencer, the Lord Willoughby of Eresby, and the Lord Viscount Longueville; the Banners of Ireland and Scotland by the Earls of Montrath and Selkirke; the Banners of England and France, quarterly, of England, and the great Banner born by the Earl of Denbigh, the Earl of Stamford, and the Earls of Bridgewater and Suffolk; then followed the Mourning Horse led by the Lord Viscount Villers, Master of the Horse to Her late Majesty, attended by two Equeries; the Helmet and Crest, Targer and Sword, and Surcoat of Arms, born by Officers at Arms, followed by the Lord Marquis of Winchester, Lord Chamberlain to Her late Majesty; then the Queen's Body in a Purple Velvet Coffin, with a rich Cloth of Gold Pall, and thereon the Crown, Orb, and Scepters on a Cushion, one of the Queen's Bed-Chamber Women sitting at the Feet, and another at the Head, in an open Chariot, richly Adorn'd, drawn by Eight Horses close covered with Purple Velvet, and adorn'd with Escutcheons and Feathers, Six Bannerolls on each side born by Baronets, the Pall being supported by the Earls of Derby and Kent, Lord Marquess of Normanby, Dukes of Northumberland, Somerset and Norfolk; the Dutcheffs of Somerset chief Mourner, supported by the Lord Privy Seal, and the Lord President of His Majesty's Council; the Dutcheffes of St. Albans and Southampton Supporters to the Trains, assisted by the Queen's Vice-Chamberlain; Assistants of the Chief Mourner were Two Dutcheffes, Twelve Countesses, and Four Baronesses; then the Ladies of the Bed-Chamber, then the Maids of Honour, then the Bedchamber-Women all in the deepest Mourning. The several parts of the Proceeding were attended by the Kings and other Officers of Arms, with Drums and Trumpets; and the whole clos'd with the Band of Gentlemen Pensioners, and Yeomen of the Guard; and when the Body was taken out of the Chariot at the Door of the Church, a Canopy of Purple Velvet was carried over it by the Gentlemen of the Privy Chamber, and the Crown, Orb and Scepters on the Cushion, carried by Clarenceaux King of Arms. The Dean and Prebendaries with the Choir of Westminster, attended at the entrance of the Church, which was Illuminated with a great Number of Lights, and proceeded before the Body, which was deposited under a magnificent Mausoleum, erected in the middle of the Cross of the said Church, and there remain'd during the Service and Sermon Preach'd by the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury: the Chief Mourner and the rest of the Ladies that went in the Proceeding, were placed about the Body; and the House of Peers and House of Commons were Seated on each side. After Sermon, the late Queen's Secretary and Treasurer, Master of the Horse, and Lord Chamberlain, the Dean and Prebendaries of Westminster, and both Choirs, with the Officers of Arms, 1694. Arms, and those that bare the Achievements and Regalia, proceeded before the Body to King Henry VII. Chappel, which was attended by the Supporters of the Pall, and follow'd by the Chief Mourner. The Dean of Westminster perform'd the Office of Burial; which ended, Garter proclaimed the Royal Styles, and the Body was Interr'd in a Vault on the South side of the said Chappel.

The Archbishop in a Grave and Pathetical way, gave these agreeable Characters. "This incomparable Princess was endow'd with more than common Accomplishments of Mind, whether we have respect either to Her Knowledge or Her Wisdom.

Character of the Queen given by the Abp.

"Towards Her Knowledge Nature had done a great deal; Education and Conversation of the best kind, more still; and most of all the Grace of God. Her Understanding was clear and steady, and there was a great Compass and Comprehension in it. It reach'd both to the greater things of Religion, and the lesser of Oeconomy. It was perpetually fed and improved by Reading, by Hearing Books Read, by Discourting, by Meditation.

"Her Books were many, and well chosen; much delighted in, and therefore well studied, and well remembred: For Her Majesty's Memory was great, and it was properly Exercis'd by Books of History. One I may name, which She much valued, and often took into Her Hands, Father Paul's Celebrated History of the Council of Trent.

"But the Holy Scriptures were the Oracles which She chiefly Consulted. In them, if any thing occur'd which was not at first so well understood, it was by Her noted down, as a Subject for After-Thoughts, and to be clear'd by them, or by some Comment, or some Person of Especial Ability.

"Neither was Her Wisdom and Prudence inferior to Her Knowledge: And of these there are many Instances, and of which I shall select a few.

"1. Her Wisdom shew'd it self in the Governing of Her Knowledge. She troubled not Her Self or others, with such Curious Questions, which the Prudent neither Ask, nor think themselves concern'd to Answer. Neither was She wrought up to any Bigottry in unnecessary Opinions: She was most Conversant in Books of Practical Divinity; of which some of the latest us'd by Her, were certain Sermons, and some Discourses concerning Happiness, Death, and Judgment. She knew Good Things, in order to the doing of them. It is true, She Read many Volumes of Controversies betwixt the Reformed, and those of the Church of Rome; but it was for the sake of Necessary Defence, not of Vexatious Dispute.

"2. Her Wisdom was made known by the wonderful Art She had attained to, for the Governing of Time; upon which all Managements do much depend. Her Hours were so adjust'd to the several Affairs of Her own, and others, that notwithstanding the Multiplicity of them, She found a season for every Thing; and frequently, a time for dispatching many Things together. Dressing did not wholly prevent Reading, or Hearing, or Working; and nothing prevented the Service of that God, who gives all Time, and expects an Account of it. It was well understood by this Wise Princess, that in the Current of Time, Affairs meet at last with a stop, if by dispatch some of them are not taken out of the way, but all are suffer'd to float down together.

"3. Her Wisdom shin'd very gloriously in Her Administration of Publick Affairs; for which She has received deservedly the Publick

"Thanks, having conducted them with Wisdom and Temper, and unwearied Application; Application which was made a Jest in a late Age, and the want of which is a Lamentation in this. It was an Observation of some, who were in Circumstances to make it, That when Secret Difficulties occur'd, this Wise Princess had a due sense of them; and together with that, such a command of Her Passions, that there appear'd few Signs of Trouble, none of Dejectedness in Her Countenance; lest either the Friends of the Government should be Disheartned, or its Enemies Encourag'd. Add to all this, That the Wisdom of this Princess, was that true Wisdom which chuseth the best Things, in the first Place; the Honour of God, before the Pomp of Life; the Salvation of the Soul, before the Gaining of the World.

"She was a Princess Eminent for Piety: Her Private Devotions were Extraordinary; and tho' She shut out the World, yet in Her high Circumstances, Her very Retirements could not pass wholly unobserv'd: And it has at last been understood, that Her Exercises of Devotion which were known, were not the half of those which were then not known. If all were as diligent in Examining, and Noting down the Condition of their Souls, and comparing the former and the present Estate of them, Heaven would in some Measure be upon Earth.

"In Publick, how Pious an Observer of the Lord's-Day, was this Religious Princess! How constant at Prayers, at the Blessed Communion, at Sermons! And at all of them, how Reverent, how Attentive! Infomuch, that those who gave themselves any Diversion from their own Duties, to observe the manner in which She perform'd Hers, found Her Intent upon them; and no further drawn off, than by a solemn Look to check any Interruption which might sometimes happen. So Judicious and Devout a Saint, the Degenerate Church of Rome can by no means shew us; the Zeal of their most Pious Recluses being from the very Rules of their several Orders, Embas'd with Superstition; whilst in Hers, appear'd no Alay of it.

"The Genuine Fruit of the True Devotion of this Princess, was Christian Charity. Her Charity was as great as Her Power, and as Discreet as it was Great: The Distressed French, and Scotch, and Irish, and the Needy at Home, were daily Refreshed by it. It extended to Persons of Condition, who were fallen into Decay, and to a very great Number of meaner People, and especially (as I am well assur'd) to the Wives and Widows of Inferior Soldiers and Seamen. Her Charity was Generous and Unconstrain'd. When it was ready, nothing was denied which was fit to be asked: It could not be Extorted by the Unworthy, and by the Worthy it needed not.

"In granting Charities, there appear'd in Her Countenance an Air of Satisfaction; and when Supplies were not at hand, it was a Grief to deny, but the manner of it was Obliging; whilst many others, almost as often as they give a Denial, create an Enemy. If God had thought us worthy of Her Life, She had done more publick and lasting Charities; and particularly in an Hospital for Seamen at Greenwich, in which the Wisdom and Goodness of the King concurr'd with Hers, whilst She was Alive; and which at this time His Majesty is going on with, for the Encouragement of Navigation, the English Nerve of War and Peace.

"To all these Graces, She gave Ornament by Humility. In this Princess, Austerity, Majesty

1694

“ and Humility met together ; that dwelt in Her
 “ to such a degree, that in Her Presence, or “ within Her Hearing, the speaking of this which “ I have said, or any thing like this, would have “ been exceedingly Offensive. But the Justice “ of Nations gives those Praises to the Merit of “ Good Princes, which their own Modesty would “ not bear. An ordinary Instance may suffice, “ for the shewing Her Averseness not only to “ Flattery, but to Praise : Of a Book Address'd
 “ to Her, She said She had Read it, and lik'd it “ well ; but much the better, because the Epistle
 “ was a bare Dedication. This Grace of Humility “ did eminently discover it self, when at any “ time Her Publick Administration was to cease :
 “ It was laid down with the like Unconcerned“ ness, as one uses when he puts off his Gar“ ments, and goes to Rest.

“ It is true, this Grace was accompanied with “ a remarkable smoothness of Demeanor ; but it was “ not such as the Artificial use ; It was the Effect
 “ of an Excellent Spirit, and not of Worldly “ Craft : It was also attended with Familiarity ;
 “ but with such a good sort of it, as bred rather “ Veneration than Contempt ; and increas'd the “ Love and Duty even of Her Servants, tho' She “ treated them as Her Children. It procur'd that “ Regularity, and good Order, and Diligence in “ Her greater Family, which in private Ones is “ so much to be desired.

“ Such Accomplishments as these are usually “ increas'd by Fame, but diminish'd by Presence ;
 “ which discovers those Imperfections that at a “ distance are not discerned. But here, the more
 “ this Queen was understood, the more She was “ admir'd ; and those who knew Her best, could “ not but most Esteem Her.

“ After this Excellent Princess had been very “ well known for several Years in a Neighbouring “ Country, She was so extremely valued, that Her “ Removal from it was Lamented as a Death, and “ occasioned a deep and universal Sorrow.

“ These Graces and Virtues were not blemish'd
 “ by Vanity or Affectation. Had that been so,
 “ She would scarce have made such a Profession
 “ as this a little before Her Death : I know, said
 “ She, what Loose People think of those who pretend
 “ to Religion ; They think it is all Hypocrisy : Let “ them think what they will, I may now say, and I “ thank God I can say it, I have not Affect'd to appear
 “ what I was not.

“ She was a Wife and Good Queen, an Incom“ parable Wife, and One who (I am well assur'd)
 “ had all the Duty in the World for other Rela- “ tions, which after long and laborious Consid“ eration, She judg'd consistent with Her Oblig“ ations to God and Her Country. She was like“ wise one of the great Supports of God's Church “ Etablised among us ; and not without due “ Temper towards the Scrupulous : A Patroness of “ Religion and Learning ; A Mistress whose “ Service was a Pleasure ; A True and Certain “ Friend ; and a Christian Mild and Merciful to “ Her Enemies : Marvel not that She had some,
 “ the Son of God himself was not without them.

“ In fine, there was in Her Life a perpetual “ Course of Christian Practice. She was not di“ stemper'd with Fits of unsubstantial Piety,
 “ which are suddenly raised, and as suddenly va“ nish. The Spring was in the Judgment and
 “ the Heart ; and from thence the Exercises of “ Holy Living were regular and constant. O,
 “ how good how happy a Life was this ! &c.

As soon as the Archbishop was settled in his great Charge, he wisely suggested to the King the great Necessity of preserving and restoring the Discipline of the Church : And prevailed with His Majesty to Issue out these Injunctions, given by the King's Majesty to the Archbishops of this Realm, to be Communicated by them to the Bishops and the rest of the Clergy. 1694.

William Rex,

“ MOST Reverend Father in God, Our Right “ Trusty and Right entirely beloved Coun- King's In“ sellor, and most Reverend Father in God, We junctions.
 “ Greet you well. We being very Sensible, that “ nothing can more effectually conduce to the “ Honour and Glory of God, and the Support “ of the Protestant Religion, than the Protect“ ing and Maintaining of the Church of England
 “ as it is by Law Etablised ; which We are re“ solved to do to the utmost of Our Power ;
 “ have therefore, upon mature Deliberation with “ you and other Our Bishops, by Virtue of Our “ Royal and Supreme Authority, thought fit,
 “ with the Advice of Our Privy Council, to Or-“ dain and Publish the following Injunctions.

“ I. That the 34th and 35th Canons concerning Ordinations, be strictly observed. Anno Dom.
 1603.

“ II. That every Person to be admitted to Holy Orders, do signify his Name and the place of his Abode to the Bishop Fourteen Days before he is Ordained, to the end that Enquiry may be made into his Life and Conversation.
 And that he appear at the furthest on Thursday
 in Ember-Week, that so such, who upon Examination shall be found fit, may have time to prepare themselves by Fasting and Prayer, before the Day of Ordination.

“ III. That every Bishop shall be well satisfied, that all Persons that are to be Ordained have a real Title with a sufficient Maintenance, according to the 33th Canon ; in which Matter
 We Require the Bishops to use an especial Care. Anno Dom.
 1603.

“ IV. That a Certificate of the Age of the Person to be Ordained, be brought, if it can be, out of the Parish-Register, or at least, a Certificate very well Attested.

“ V. That the Part of the 34th Canon, which relates to the giving Certificates, concerning the Lives and Manners of those who are to be Ordained, be strictly looked to. And that the Bishops lay it on the Consciences of the Clergy, That they Sign no Certificates, unless, upon their own Knowledge, they judge the Persons to be duly Qualified.

“ V. That every Bishop shall transmit, between Michaelmas and Christmas to the Archbishop of the Province, a List of all such Persons as have been Ordained by him during that Year, according to the Constitutions in the Year 1584. Articuli in order to be put in a Publick Register, which pro Clero.
 shall be prepared by you for that use.

“ VII. That the Bishops shall reside in their Dioceses ; and shall take care to oblige their Clergy to such Residence as the Laws of the Land and the Canons do require, particularly the 41st Canon. Anno Dom.
 1603.

“ VIII. That they who keep Curates, have none but such as are Licensed by the Bishop of the Diocese, or in exempt Jurisdictions, by the Ordinary of the Place, having Episcopal Jurisdiction, as is required both by the Act of Uniformity, and the 48th Canon ; that so when the Incumbent does not Reside, the Bishop or such Ordinary, may know how the Cure is supplied : And that no Person shall presume to serve any Cure without License from the Bishop or such Ordinary, upon pain of Suspend-tion. Anno Dom.
 1603.

“ IX. That you use the most Effectual Endeavours to suppress the great Abuses occasioned by Pluralities, and restrain them as much as you

1694. " you can, except where the Parishes lie near one another, and the Livings are small : That all Qualifications be carefully examined : We being determined to have no Chaplains to be Qualified by Us, but such as are admitted to attend upon Us. And that due Caution be taken before any Faculty is Granted. And that such Persons as are legally Qualified, shall reside at least Two Months in the Year in each of their Livings ; and provide a Curate to serve where they are not in Person ; with a due Maintenance, to be determin'd by the Bishop of the Diocese ; unless the Two Parishes lie so near, that the Incumbent can constantly serve both Cures.

Anno Dom. 1603. " X. That the Bishops shall look to the Lives and Manners of their Clergy, that they may be in all things Regular and Exemplary, according to the 75th Canon.

" XI. That the Bishops do use their utmost Endeavours to oblige their Clergy to have Publick Prayers in the Church, not only on Holidays, but as often as may be ; and to celebrate the Holy Sacrament frequently.

" XII. That the Bishops shall require the Clergy to use their utmost Endeavours, That the Lord's-day be religiously Observed. That they set a good Example to their People, and Exhort them frequently to their Duty herein.

Anno Dom. 1603. " XIII. That the Bishops remind their Clergy to visit the Sick frequently ; and require them to perform that Duty with great Care and Diligence, according to the 67th Canon.

Anno Dom. 1603. " XIV. That Catechizing be duly performed, according to the 59th Canon.

" XV. That the Bishops be careful to Confirm, not only in their Triennial Visitations, but at other convenient Seasons.

" XVI. That care be taken, that the Archdeacons make their Visitations personally ; and that as much as may be, they live within the Bounds of their Jurisdiction, and do their Duty according to the Canons.

" XVII. That no Commutation of Penance shall be made, but by the express Order and Directions of the Bishop himself which shall be declared in open Court. And that the Commutation-Money shall be applied only to Pious and Charitable Uses, according to the Articuli pro Clero, made in the Year 1584. and the Constitutions made in the Year 1597.

Anno Dom. 1603. " XVIII. That no License for Marriage without Banes shall be granted by any Ecclesiastical Judge, without first taking the Oaths of Two sufficient Witnesses ; and also sufficient Security for performing of the Conditions of the Licence, according to the 102d and 103d Canons.

" These Injunctions We do require you to transmit to the Bishops of your respective Provinces, to be by them communicated to their Clergy, and to be strictly observed, and often enquired after, both by you and them. For as We Esteem it the chief Part of Our Princely Care to Promote true Religion, as it is Established in this Church ; and in order thereunto, We have determin'd not to dispose of any Church Preferments in Our Gift, but to such of Our Clergy as We shall have reason to believe do live most Exemplary, and Preach and Watch most faithfully over the People Committed to their Charge : So We assure Our Selves, that these Our Pious Intentions will be effectually Seconded by you and the rest of Our Bishops ; And that you will without Favour or Partial Affections, study to Suppress Impiety and Vice, and to reform all Disorders as far as in you lies ; well knowing that nothing will 1694. " so much advance the great Ends of Religion, and so certainly Secure and Establish this Church, as the Exemplary Lives and Faithful Labours of those who Minister in it. And so We commend Our Self to your Prayers, and bid you very heartily Farewel.

Given at Our Court at Kensington the Fifteenth day of February 1693. In the seventh Year of Our Reign.

By His Majesty's Command.
S H R E W S B U R Y.

We left the Parliament Sitting, and enquiring into the Bribery and Corruption of their own Members.

On March the 26th. the Commons proceeding on the Report relating to the Members of This House taking Money ;

Resolved, That Mr. Hungerford a Member being Guilty of a High Crime and Misdemeanor, by receiving Twenty Guineas for his Pains and Service, as Chairman of the Committee to whom the Orphans Bill was Committed, be Expelled the House. And Order'd, that Sir Thomas Cook a Member, having refused to give an Account of the Money of the East-India Company by him distributed, be committed Prisoner to the Tower ; and a Bill be brought in to oblige him to give such Account. This Bill was presented by Mr. Bridges on March the 28th. and Received and Read the First time : the next Day it was Read a Second time, and the Cashier to the East-India Company, according to Order, produced the Warrants for the Sums Paid for Special Service or Charges General.

On March the 30th. Sir Basil Firebrass delivered in an Account of Moneys by him Paid for the Service of the East-India Company ; and Sir Thomas Cook Petition'd the House, that he might be heard by Council before the Bill do Pass, which was Granted.

On April the 2d. the Commons in a Grand Committee went through the Bill, and made Amendments, which were reported the next Day.

On April the 6th. Sir Thomas Cook's Council were Heard, and the Bill was Read a Third time and Pass'd, and sent to the Lords for their Concurrence.

At the First Reading of this Bill in the House of Peers, the Duke of Leeds, President of the Council, made a serious Speech against it, and introduced his Discourse with a solemn Protestation of his own Innocence and Disinterest in the Matter.

On April the 13th. their Lordships sent a Message to the Commons, desiring that Sir Thomas Cook might be permitted and order'd to appear at their Bar ; and the Commons did accordingly order by Warrant from the Speaker, that Sir Thomas should attend the Lords at their Bar : He declared himself Ready and very Willing to make full Discovery, and said, he would have done it before in the House of Commons, if he could have obtain'd there an indemnifying Vote. It was demanded of him, what he would be indemnified from ? he Answered from Scandalum Magnatum, and all Actions and Suits, except from the East-India Company, whom if he had Injur'd, he would be bound to Satisfie in the utmost rigour.

Sir Thomas Cook being withdrawn, the Duke of Leeds stood up and declared, " He was very glad that Gentleman was come to such a temper, as to be willing to discover, and thereby to prevent a Bill, which he thought to be of a pernicious Nature." Then his Grace minded their Lordships, how the Commons took care

Proceedings of the Commons.

About Bribery and Corruption

Bill against Sir Tho. Cook.

Oppos'd by the D. of Leeds.

1695. care of the Reputation of their House, in asking Sir Thomas Cook, Whether he had distributed any Money among any of their Members? who Purged them by a Solemn Protestation, that he had not. His Grace therefore thought it seasonable, that the Lords should have some Regard to their own Honour, and that Sir Thomas might be called in and asked whether he were willing upon Oath to Purge all that sat there? This Motion was rejected, and the Lords Resolved, that the Bill sent up from the Commons against Sir Thomas Cook should not be proceeded upon: but that a Committee should be appointed to draw up a Bill to Indemnify him upon due Discovery. This Committee being withdrawn, and having made some Progress, notice came from Sir Thomas Cook, that he was afraid he might be Misapprehended as to what he had said concerning a Discovery, by having Express'd himself that he was Ready and Willing, for by Ready he only meant the more Willing; and that he should need at least four Months to make the Discovery he promised. This was highly resent'd by some of the Lords of the Committee, who immediately mov'd, that the Committee might rise and report to the House this fresh matter, and the trifling of Sir Thomas Cook, that so the Bill design'd to oblige him to give an Account, might now proceed; But some other of the Lords Mollified the Meaning of Sir Thomas Cook, and prevail'd with him to beg a favourable Treatment, and engage to discover within Seven Days; upon which the Committee went on with the softer Bill, to Indemnity him from any Actions he might be liable to, by reason of his Discovery, &c. And Sir Thomas had leave to go abroad in Custody to inspect his Papers, that he might the better prepare for such Discovery. This Bill of Indemnifying had some Amendments made to it by the Commons, to which the Lords Agreed on April the 19th.

Excuses of Sir Thomas Cook.

The King for dispatch of Affairs.

Acts passed.

The King was uneasy at the long Session, and therefore to quicken the Dispatch of Affairs, on Monday April 22. His Majesty came to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Assent to,

1. An Act for enabling such Persons as have Estates for Life in Annuities, payable by several former Acts therein mentioned, to Purchase and Obtain further or more certain Interests in such Annuities: and in default thereof, for admitting other Persons to Purchase or Obtain the same, for Raising Moneys for carrying on the War against France.
2. An Act for Granting to His Majesty certain Rates and Duties upon Marriages, Births and Burials, and upon Bachelors and Widowers, for the term of Five Years, for carrying on the War against France with Vigor.
3. An Act for Granting to His Majesty several additional Duties upon Coffee, Tea, Chocolate and Spices, towards satisfaction of the Debts due for Transport Service for the Reduction of Ireland.
4. An Act for Appointing and enabling Commissioners to Examine, Take and State the Publick Accounts.
5. An Act for the more effectual suppressing Prophanes Cursing and Swearing.
6. An Act for continuing two former Acts for Punishing Officers and Soldiers, who shall Mutiny or Desert His Majesty's Service; and for Punishing of false Musters, and for Payment of Quarters for one Year.
7. An Act for explaining and regulating several Doubts, Duties and Penalties in the late Act for Granting several Duties upon Vellum, Parchment and Paper; and for ascertaining the Admeasurement of the Tonnage of Ships.

8. An Act for raising the Militia of this Kingdom for the Year 1695. and for Repealing the Statute of the 2d. and 3d. Years of King Edward IV. intituled, An Act against Shooting in Hail-Shot.

9. An Act for continuing several Laws therein mention'd.

10. An Act for the better Admeasurement of Keels and Keel Boats in the Port of Newcastle, and the Members thereunto belonging.

11. An Act to indemnify Sir Thomas Cook from Actions which he might be liable to, by reason of his Discovering to whom he Paid and Distributed several Sums of Money therein mentioned, to be Received out of the Treasure of the East-India Company, or for any Prosecution for such Distribution.

12. An Act to prevent Exactions of the Occupiers of Lakes and Wyers upon the River of Thames Westward, and for ascertaining the Rates of Water-Carriage upon the said River.

13. An Act for Settling divers Mannors and Lands upon the Marriage of the Marquis of Tavestock, Grandson of William Duke of Bedford.

14. An Act for Enabling the Inhabitants of the Parish of Christ-Church in the County of Surrey, to make Rates for raising a Maintenance for a good and able Minister; and for the Impowering the Trustees of the Will of John Marshall Deceased, to employ Moneys for the Finishing the said Parish Church: And to severall other Private Bills. After which, His Majesty made this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I Take this Occasion to tell You, That the Season of the Year is so far Advanced, and the Circumstances of Affairs are so Pressing, that I very earnestly Recommend to You, the speedy Dispatching such Business as You think of most Importance for the Publick Good, because I must put an End to this Session in a few Days.

King's Speech.

On April 23. Sir Henry Goodrick Acquainted the House, That according to Order, their Address had been Presented to His Majesty; "That He would please to give such Effectual Directions, that the Colonels and other Officers of the Army employed for the Reduction of Ireland, might speedily Account with, and Satisfie their Inferior Officers and Soldiers, as far as they have Received Money from His Majesty." And that His Majesty was pleas'd to say, That He had already given Orders, as well in Flanders, as in England, for the doing what is mentioned in the Address; and that some Officers who neglected to comply with the Directions, have been Cashier'd: However, that He will Repeat those Orders under the several Penalties, to such as shall disobey them.

Address of the Commons.

And Answer of the King relating to the Accounts.

Of Officers.

On the same Day, Mr. Comptroller Acquainted the House, That according to Order, their Address had been Presented to His Majesty; "Praying that His Majesty, in His Great Wisdom, would please to take care for the future, that this Kingdom be put upon an Equal Foot and Proportion with the Allies, in bearing the Charge of the present War." And that His Majesty was pleas'd to Answer in these words; In this, as in every thing else, I shall always endeavour to have a due Regard to the Interest, and to the Honour of this Nation.

Address and Answer about our Allies.

In pursuance of the Act to Indemnify Sir Thomas Cooke, a Committee of Both Houses was Appointed to Receive the Discovery to be made by him. He appear'd before them on April 23. and being Sworn, he deliver'd in Writing an Account of the Disposal and Application of several large Sums: As of 10000 l. deliver'd to Francis Tjffen, Esq.

Sir Thomas Cooke's Account

1695. Esq; 12000 l. to Mr. Richard Acton, 338 l. to Mr. Nathaniel Molineux, 220 l. to Sir John Chardin, 350 l. to Paul Dominique, Esq; 382 l. to Captain John Germain, 1000 Guineas to Colonel Fitz-Patrick, 545 l. to Charles Bates, Esq; and 40000 l. to Sir Basil Firebrass. All which Sums were said to be paid for special Service of the East-India Company, to defray the Charges, and acknowledge the Pains and Services of those Persons and their Friends, on solliciting to prevent a Settlement of a New East-India Company, and to endeavour to Establish the Old; besides 500 Guineas paid to the Attorney-General, 200 to the Solicitor, and 200 more to Mr. Sambrook.

The Original being Read by Sir Thomas Cooke, the Committee conceived it was Imperfect, and not such as the Act required; and therefore they acquainted Sir Thomas, that they expected a more particular Account from him. Upon this, Sir Thomas began to be more plain, and said; "That as to the first Sum of 10000 l. paid to Mr. Tyssen, he gave him no Directions how it should be Disposed, but it was in Expectation to have the Charter of the East-India Company Confirmed; that it was intended for the Service of the King, tho' he could not say the King had it; but he believed, that Mr. Tyssen told him, that he deliver'd it to Sir Jesiah Child, who Presented it to His Majesty, as a Customary Present; for the like had been done in former Reigns, as by the Books of the Company might appear. That as to the 12000 l. next mentioned, it was paid to Mr. Richard Acton, who declared, He had several Friends capable of doing great Service to the Company's Affairs, and several of them would speak with Parliament-Men; That he could not particularize who they were, but the End aimed at, was to get an Act of Parliament. That Mr. Acton did again say, He could tell some Persons employ'd in that Affair; That he did understand that this Money was to be laid out for promoting their Affairs in Parliament: That he could not say to whom it was given, but understood it went no further than the House of Commons; and that he found no good Fruit by such Distribution. As to the 338 l. paid to Mr. Molineux, Sir Thomas said, that Mr. Molineux told him, this Money was to be dispos'd of to the Lord Rivers; but since his Confinement, Molineux had told him, that my Lord never had it, but he had made use of it himself. As to the 1000 Guineas paid to Mr. Fitz-Patrick Deceased, Fitz-Patrick told him, he had a great Interest with the Lord Nottingham, that he would try what he could do, and he did not doubt but he might do great Services, provided he had such a Sum of Money: Yet he believed, Fitz-Patrick kept the Money himself; and that there was a Promise of a further Sum, if the Act for a New Company did not pass. That the 545 l. was to be paid to Mr. Charles Bates when the Charter was settled, and was paid accordingly in October 1693. That he had no Acquaintance with Mr. Bates: But Sir Basil Firebrass told him, that Bates had Acquaintance with several Lords, and named the Marquis of Carmarthen, now Duke of Leeds. That as to the first 10000 l. paid to Sir Basil Firebrass in November, 1693, it was always his Apprehension, that Sir Basil kept it for himself, to recompence his Losses in the Interloping-Trade: And as to the several other Sums, completing the Sum of Thirty Thousand Pounds paid to Sir Basil, he presumed he had occasion to distribute it to several Persons. As to the Sums paid to Sir John Chardin and Mr. Dominique, he believ'd they were expended in the Company's Service. As to the 382 l. to Captain Germain, it was paid to bring him off from the Interlopers, and engage him in the Company's Interest. 1695.

On April the 24th. Mr. Comptroller reported this Examination to the House of Commons; upon which the Debates were very warm. One Member said, No man is Innocent, if every Man be Guilty: We cannot be Innocent, if we do not lay our hands upon these Men that have betray'd Us, and the Company, and, I hope, Themselves. Let Us go as far as we can, and then the Devil will not lie at our doors. In the middle of these Debates, a Message came from the Lords, desiring a present Conference in the Painted Chamber; which was immediately had. Their Lordships propos'd, That all future Examinations of any of the Persons mentioned in the Report of Sir Thomas Cook, be had before a Committee of Both Houses. To which the Commons Agreed.

This Committee met the same Day; and Sir Basil Firebrass there depos'd, That the first Ten Thousand Pounds were given to him, as a Gratuity for his Losses, some time before the Charter for the East-India Company pass'd: That Ten Thousand more was received by him, by Virtue of a Contract with Sir Thomas Cook; for Favours and Services done. That the Stock at the Time of the Contract valued at 150 l. per Cent. falling afterwards to 100 per Cent. the Difference was Thirty Thousand Pounds; which they made up to him. He was positive, the 10000 l. and 30000 l. were for himself, and for the Use of no other Person; except 500 l. paid to Mr. Powell, because he had good Interest amongst the Interlopers. — The Committee ask'd Sir Basil, What particular Service he did, or was to do, for Procuring a New Charter? To which he answer'd, That he was unwilling to take too much upon himself; That he thought he did great Service to the Company, in solliciting their Cause; but wish'd he might be excus'd to another time, being now much indispos'd.

The next day Sir Basil Firebrass being again Examined, further depos'd, "That having had a Treaty with Mr. Bates, whom he thought able to do Service in Passing the Charter, and to have Acquaintance with several Persons of Honour; He gave Two Notes for 5500 Guineas to Mr. Atwell, payable to Mr. Bates or Bearer; One Note for 3000 Pounds, the other for 2500 Guineas, intended for the doing Business. That he had these Notes from Sir Thomas Cook, and was accountable to him for the same. That he believed, Sir Thomas did not know how these Notes were to be dispos'd of; but that he had told Sir Thomas, that Mr. Bates had acquaintance with several Lords; naming the Lord President, and others. That the Depo- nent could not tell who this Money was design'd for, or what Bates did with it; for that Bates would not deal on such Terms of Telling Names. That Bates did introduce him several times to the Lord President; who made some Scruples in point of Law, which were remov'd by the Attorney-General. That one day last Week, the Five Thousand Guineas were offer'd by Bates back again to him; Bates saying, that this might make a Noise. That on Tuesday last, 4400 Guineas were brought to this Depo- nent; and that the other 400 Guineas were still in Bates's hands. — That they found great Stops in the Charters, which they apprehended proceeded sometimes from my Lord Nottingham, and sometimes from others. That Colonel Fitz-Patrick received a Thousand Guineas on the same Terms as was with others; if the Charter pass'd. That he pretended great Interest with the Lord Nottingham; and that he could get Information from the Lady Derrence of Both Houses.

Confere-

Examination in a Committee of
Both Houses.

Foul Practices discovered.

1695.

ly, how the Queen's Pleasure was. That Colonel Fitz-Patrick said, he would try to prevail with the Lord Nottingham, for Five Thousand Guineas upon Passing the Charter, and Five Thousand Pound on the Act of Parliament: But that the Earl of Nottingham absolutely refused to take it. That the Deponent heard, a Note Sign'd by Sir Jesiah Child and Sir Thomas Cook, for Fifty Thousand Pounds, was lodged in Tyssen's hands for about a Year, to be paid in case the Act passed; and that it was refus'd, as he understood, by my Lord Portland to whom he had offer'd it.

Deposition of Mr. Acton.

Mr. Richard Acton being Examined before the same Committee, depos'd, That he received the Sums of Ten Thousand, and Two Thousand Pounds of Sir Thomas Cook: That he told Sir Thomas, he had Friends who would take pains to do the Company Service; but they would have Ten Thousand Pound. That he had Two Thousand Pound for his Trouble in attending Two Sessions; and that if the Bill for a New Company had passed, he was to have had Nothing. That he did not distribute the Ten Thousand Pounds to Members, but to those who had Interest with Members. That some of them to whom he gave Money to be distributed, were Mr. Craggs, with whom this Deponent was concern'd in Clothing the Army, Mr. Wells, Mr. Ridley, Mr. Dominique, &c. and that Colonel Geldwell, and Colonel Dean, (who were since dead) were the only Persons which he himself gave Money to.

Deposition of Mr. Acton.

The next day, April 26th, the Committee of Both Houses proceeded upon the Examination of the rest of the Persons mentioned in their Report; and Mr. Bates being Sworn, Depos'd, That Sir Basil Firebrass did apply himself to him, to use his Interest for obtaining a Charter for the East-India Company, the old Charter being Forfeited; and told him, they would be Grateful: That the Deponent did use his Interest with the Lord President; who said, He would do what Service he could. That the Lord President had deliver'd his Opinion publickly, for confirming the Charter; and thought the Forfeiture an hardship. That having received Notes for Five thousand five hundred Guineas, he told the Lord President what Sum he had; and would have pass'd it upon my Lord, but he refus'd it. That thereupon in regard he could not very well tell Money himself, he did ask leave of my Lord, that his Servant might tell the Money; to which my Lord Answered, He gave leave; and accordingly Monsieur Robart did receive the Money. That after Monsieur Robart had received it, he brought the same to the Deponent, in whose Possession it remain'd, till he paid 4000 Guineas thereof back again to Sir Basil. That as to the 600 Guineas remaining of the 5000, he said he had spent some of them: That the Reason he paid back the 4000 Guineas, was the Noise that it made; and that People might think that he did not deserve them; and that the whole 5500 Guineas were for his own private use." However being soon after Re-examin'd he own'd, That the 4000 Guineas which he paid back, were brought to him by Monsieur Robart.

Sir Basil Firebrass being once more Examined, Depos'd, That Sir Thomas Cook, and others, observing him active, and to have Interest among Noblemen, applied themselves to him to endeavour the procuring a new Charter. That Sir Thomas Cook was apprehensive, That it stuck with the Duke of Leeds; and told the Deponent, That some way must be found out to the Duke. That he thereupon applied himself to Mr. Bates, who would not pretend to talk with the Duke; but said, the Deponent must tell him what the Company would do. That he told Mr. Bates, he thought a Present might be made of 2, or 3000 l. That Mr. Bates told him, he went to St. James's, and said, he had spoke with his Friend; and that more had been offer'd him by the other side: And that at another time Bates said, That 5000 l. had been offer'd him by another Hand on the same side. That it was at last agreed, That if the Duke did act in Favour of the Company, he should have 2, or 3000 Guineas, and Bates 500 Guineas to himself. That from the time the Notes for the 5500 Guineas were given to Bates, they had free Access to my Lord President; and found him easy and willing to give the Company his Assistance. That Mr. Bates was shy, and call'd it, His Friend at St. James's. That the Condition of one Draught of a Counter-Note, which Mr. Bates brought, was worded, In case the Lord President did not assist the Company in passing the Charter; to which this Deponent made an alteration, by putting out my Lord's Name, and making it not payable, in case the Charter should not Pass. That about a Week before the Money was brought back again, this Deponent went to Bates about it, who then told him, it was all for himself. That the Deponent did intend a Distribution of the abovementioned Sum of Thirty Thousand Pound, in manner Following: To Sir Edward Seymour, Sir John Trevor, and Mr. Guy, Ten Thousand Pound, in case the Charter and Act of Parliament Pass'd; to the Merchants Interlopers Ten Thousand Pound, and to himself Ten Thousand Pound. That as to five Thousand Pound, part of the said Thirty Thousand Pound, he did design one third thereof to Sir Edward Seymour, one third to Sir John Trevor, and one third to Mr. Guy. That Mr. Guy, to whom he made the Proposal told him, they did not desire to meddle with the Stock, but would do any service they could to promote getting the Charter. That Sir Edward Seymour afterwards meeting this Deponent, Chid him for making that Proposal; and told him, he would never have any thing to do with him, if he ever made any such Offers. That the Deponent thought himself obliged in Honour, to pay two thirds of the Five Thousand Pound, when received, to Sir John Trevor and Mr. Guy; and intended to keep the other third, (which Sir Edward Seymour refused) for himself. And that Sir John Trevor did some time afterwards give him some hints of his Expectation.

1695.

Sir Jesiah Child being Examined, said, "He never dispos'd of Ten Pounds of the East-India Company's: That he did recommend it, that a Present of Fifty Thousand Pounds should be made to the King, if His Majesty would so far wave His Prerogative, that an Act of Parliament might be pass'd for settling the Company; that Mr. Tyssen had told him, the King would not meddle in that matter, as he had been inform'd from my Lord Portland.

These Examinations being reported to the House of Commons, April 27. one of the Members stood up and urg'd the necessity of searching this Matter to the bottom; and to provide Laws for the future to prevent the Members of the House taking Money. That Ten Thousand Pound had been pretended to be given to the King; and Fifty Thousand Pound offer'd to buy an Act of Parliament or gain their Charter. That the Facts prov'd themselves, and that Mr.

Debates of the Commons

1695. Mr. Bates appear'd an unfortunate Person, whom the Care of his Friend (the Duke of Leeds) and the sense of his Oath, had caused to make such Contradictions. Another Member said, That there were never greater, and more general Instances of Corruption: He insisted on the necessity of a speedy Remedy, and that it was very fit the House should let the World see that they were in Earnest. He put them in mind of the Practices and Arts that had been us'd to stop their Discovery; so that what they had, was got as it were, by the utmost Force and Constraint; at which they could not wonder, when they found so great a Man at the Bottom. But there is, added he, no Person in a Post so high that this House cannot reach; no Man's Practice or Art so deep, that this House cannot discover. Here have been all imaginable Endeavours us'd to obstruct the Enquiry. First, His Majesty's Name was made use of at the Committees, with hopes, perhaps, that that might stop any further search; and if it were made use of there, you may reasonably expect it was made use of elsewhere. But that appear'd to be so far from being a Reflection on the King, that Sir Josiah Child often complain'd of it as a Rudeness to His Majesty, that what other Kings had yearly as a Present, they had not offer'd to His Majesty in Three Years: It was indeed, if not a Matter of Right, a Matter of Custom. As for the Earl of Portland, who may be nam'd for his Honour upon this Occasion, when the great Sum of Fifty Thousand Pound was press'd upon him, he did absolutely refuse it, and told them, He would for ever be their Enemy and Opposer, if they offer'd any such thing to him. Having this mention'd the Innocent, I must, continued he, say somewhat of the Guilty. A stop having been put, the Duke of Leeds must be apply'd to. Certainly there never was a more Notorious Bribery; and that in a Person, whom we might have expected to have been free from such a Crime, if you respect either the greatness of his Place, or of his former Obligation. It is fit to speak plainly on such Occasions; the House ought to endeavour to remove such a Person from the King's Council and Presence: What Security can the Nation have, when we are bought and sold to one another? We have seen our Designs defeated, our Attempts betrayed; and what Wonder is it? Can any Man think it more strange, that our Counsels should be Sold abroad, than that Charters should be Sold at home? Certainly a Man may reasonably believe, that he who will Sell the Subjects, will Sell the Kingdom, if he can have a sufficient Bribe. What Prince can be safe in such Counsels which are given for Private Advantage? Several Proposals, said he, in the Conclusion, may here be offer'd for Remedy. One, That this House should Address His Majesty to remove the Duke of Leeds; but, with Submission, an Address is too mean, too low a thing for this House to do at this Time, and upon such an Occasion; I therefore move we may lodge an Impeachment.

Tho' this Speech was approved in the main, yet some Expressions in it were thought too reflecting; and another Member stood up and said, He wondred the Gentleman who spoke last, should say that, which he hop'd he did not believe, That that Lord should have Sold our Counsels to France. Thereupon the other rose again, and said, It was with some uneasiness he stood up, for he did not take Pleasure to rake in a Dunghill: That he was far from saying the Duke had betrayed our Counsels, but argued only from Possibility, that it was as reasonable to believe one as the other; and that when Honour and Justice were not the Rule of Men's Actions, there was nothing incredible that might be for their Disadvantage.

Several Members seconded the Motion for an Impeachment; adding, That such Actions as these were a Blemish, if not a Scandal to the Revolution it self. And it being demanded, By what Law it was a Crime to take Money at Court? It was answer'd, That if there was not a Law, it was time there should be a Law to prevent it; that the Law of God was against the Duke, and that there were Parliaments to punish such Crimes. It was again suggested, That it seem'd doubtful whether there was Matter in this Report for an Impeachment; and therefore, before the House went to an Impeachment, they ought to put the Question upon the Report, and see whether it be a Crime. Thereupon, some of the Duke's Friends objected, That there was no Law, and so no Transgression, and mov'd for Excusing him. But the Question being put, that there did appear, that there was in the Report made from the Committee of both Houses, sufficient Matter to Impeach Thomas Duke of Leeds of High Crimes and Misdemeanors, it was carried in the Affirmative; and Mr. Comptroller was order'd to go up to the Lords, and at their Bar, in the Name of the House, and of all the Commons of England, to lodge the said Impeachment, which in due time they would make good.

Resolution on to Impeach the Duke of Leeds.

About the same time that Mr. Comptroller made the Report to the Commons from the Committee of both Houses, the Lord Privy-Seal made the Report to the Lords; after the Hearing of which, the Duke of Leeds said, "That as he had formerly protested himself to be clear in this Matter, so he still denied upon his Faith and Honour, that he was Guilty of any such Corruptions as were suggested against him; and that if the whole Truth were laid open, it would tend to his Honour and Advantage. That he would be very free in telling their Lordships now before-hand all that pass'd, in which he was any ways concerned. That Mr. Bates introduc'd Sir Basil Firebrass to him, and that he had Conferences with Sir Basil upon the Subject of the East-India Company, which Firebrass was concern'd for. That some time after, Mr. Bates informed him, that he was to have a Sum of Money of Sir Basil Firebrass, and desired his Lordship to lend him one of his Servants, (Mr. Bates keeping but a Footman) to receive the Money; and so he lent him Monsieur Robart. That he knew nothing of the Sum; but afterwards Mr. Bates came to him and told him, he had Received 5000 Guineas, and that in Acknowledgment of the many Favours he had received from his Lordship's Hands, he humbly desir'd him to accept the same; which he refusing, Mr. Bates press'd him earnestly to take one half, or a quarter; which he still refused, declaring he would not touch a Penny of them: That however he told him, since he had taken them, he thought there was no need of returning them; that they were his own, and wish'd him good Luck with them. And thus, concluded his Grace, I was but a Shadow to Mr. Bates.

Defence of the Duke in the House of Lords.

The Duke of Leeds had scarce ended his Speech, when private Notice came to the House of Lords, that the Commons were proceeding to an Impeachment against him; whereupon he left the House in great haste, and going to the Door of the House of Commons, desir'd to be admitted to be Heard. This being granted, and a Chair placed for him within the Bar, his Grace sat down, put on his Hat; then rose, uncover'd himself, and made a Speech to the House; wherein in the first place, "He thank'd them heartily for this Favour of Hearing him, and then proceeded, declaring his Innocence, and that he had attended sooner, if he had had the least Intimation what the House was upon. That the occasion of his coming, was from the Two Votes upon the Report from the Committee,

The Duke's Plea in the House of Commons.

1695.

“ of Both Houses ; That he had done all he “ could to be inform'd of the Particulars, but “ could not. That hearing of a Report, a mon“ strous long Report, and finding himself con-“ cern'd, he was earnest to be heard, to the end
 “ he might not lie under the Displeasure of ei“ ther, or Both Houses. He said, It is a bold “ Word, but 'tis a Truth. This House had not now been “ sitting but for me. He added, That he was “ formerly pursued by this House in two Points:
 “ For being for the French Interest, and for Po“ pery ; that he had then, if he might have been “ heard, justified himself, and hoped he had “ since, and would by all the Actions of his Life.
 “ That one Firebrass, by the means of Mr. Bates,
 “ was introduced to him : That he had long “ known Mr. Bates, and if he was not much de“ ceived in him, he could not believe that Gen“ tleman would have transacted such a Matter, if “ put upon it. That the Evidence was but a “ Hear-say, and he hoped they would not con“ demn on Hear-say. That as well as a Money-“ Part, there was also a Treaty-Part. That as “ to the Money-part, much of it was false ; and “ what was true, he made no Secret : That he “ could, and did say, Upon his Faith and Ho“ nour, that neither directly nor indirectly, He “ never touch'd one Penny of the Money. That he “ observed a great deal of Pains had been taken “ to hook in this Matter by a Side-Wind : That “ this Firebrass thought his Merit would deserve “ 10000*l.* and 30000*l.* That this 5500 Guineas
 “ was no part of the 40000*l.* That the Witnes“ ses were called in by the Committee ; but that “ Firebrass, after his first Hearing, desired to be “ called in again himself, contrary to all Rules ;
 “ which shew'd him at least a very willing Witness.
 “ That he had a Thread which he hoped to spin “ finer, and make it appear, that this was a De“ sign laid against him long before the naming of “ this Committee ; that warning was given him
 “ some time since, That this Matter would be im“ proved against him ; and that Firebrass had been “ told, He should be excus'd if he should charge the “ Duke. His Grace in the Conclusion said, “ He “ asked no Favour, but their Favourable Justice ;
 “ and that no Severe Sense might be put on what “ would bear a Candid one. That if it might be,
 “ the House would reconsider what was done, or “ at least, preserve him from Cruelty, and not “ let him lie on the Rack, and be blasted until a “ Parliament should sit again ; and that if they “ would not reconsider, that then he might have “ speedy Justice ; for he had rather want Coun“ sel, want Time, or want any Thing, than lie
 “ under their or the Nation's Displeasure.

This Speech being ended, and the Duke withdrawn, Mr. Comptroller, attended by many Members, went up to the Lords with the Impeachment, and at the same time it was propos'd in the House, that the Articles should be forthwith drawn up ; and thereupon the Committee which were joined with the Lords, were order'd to withdraw, and prepare the same.

The Duke's
 Speech
 consider'd

Afterwards the House of Commons took the Duke's Speech into consideration, and one of the Members stood up and said, “ That by this Noble “ Lord's Speech, the Point was now, Whether
 “ the House would arraign the Committee of “ Both Houses, or go on with their Impeach“ ment ? That the Duke when he came to the “ Matter, would not enter into Particulars, but “ pass'd it over with Excuse of wanting Time ;
 “ That he made no Excuse as to the Facts ; That “ His Arguments of a Contrivance was, that the “ 5000 Guineas charged on him, was no part of “ the 40000*l.* Firebrass was to account for : That “ this was rather an Aggravation of the Crime ;

1695.

“ for Sir Tho. Cooke had a double Account, one
 “ with, and another without the 5000 Guineas ;
 “ which was an Indication, that if there was a “ Contrivance, it was not by the Committee,
 “ but with Sir Thomas Cooke, to stifle the Enquiry,
 “ and conceal the Corruption. That the speedy “ Justice of the House was to be wish'd and de-“ sir'd ; and that if there was such a Contrivance,
 “ such a Thread as was mention'd by that Noble
 “ Lord, 'twas not to be doubted, but that House, “ where he was impeached, would clear him.
 “ Another Member mov'd, That a Committee “ might be appointed to withdraw, to consider “ what was to be done in order to gratifie that “ Noble Lord by speedy Justice ; and observ'd
 “ that his Friend Mr. Bates contradicting him“ self, was more than the Evidence of Firebrass.
 “ That Monsieur Robart was a Servant of my “ Lord President's, and was Fled ; that Mr. Bates
 “ said he kept the Money in his House ; that some“ times he had spent it, that sometimes it was in his “ Closet : That he did own the Money was not
 “ in his House on Sunday, but on Tuesday Mor“ ning Monsieur Robart brought it to him, but “ he would never declare from whom he brought “ it.

In the middle of these Debates a Message was sent from the Lords, to acquaint the House of Commons, that it was the Opinion of their Lordships, that the Discovery made by Sir Thomas Cooke was not Satisfactory, nor so full as to entitle him to the Benefit of the Act to Indemnify him, and that their Lordships desired the Concurrence of the Commons. They thereupon pass'd a Vote, as the Lords had done, and sent it up by the Lord Coningsby.

On Monday April 29. the Lords acquainted the Commons that they had Pass'd a Bill entitled, An Bill for Act for Imprisoning Sir Thomas Cook, Sir Basil Imprison-Firebrass, Charles Bates Esq; and James Craggs, Imprison-and for restraining them from Alienating their Estates, ing Sir to which they desired the concurrence of the Thomas Commons. After the Reading of this Bill, Cooke, &c.
 Mr. Comptroller repeated the Articles of Impeachment against the Duke of Leeds, for Contracting and agreeing with the Merchants Trading to the East-Indies, or their Agents, for 5500 Guineas, to procure them a Charter of Confirmation, and a Charter of Regulation ; or by his Agents and Servants, with his Privy and Consent. These Articles were agreed to by the Commons, and by their Order sent up to the House of Peers, where upon Reading of them the Duke of Leeds made another Vindication of himself much to the same purpose ; adding, “ That this Storm “ which was now fallen upon him, was some “ time a gathering ; and it was promoted by a “ Faction and a Party who had a Pique against “ him, and an intention to delay the King's Bu“ siness ; that he had an Original Letter which “ gave him an account of this some time before
 “ it brake out, and it appear'd only levell'd a“ gainst him, because none else were Prose“ cuted ; that there appear'd a Joy they could “ catch at this Pretension ; and that Sir Basil Fire-brass was treated with to discover only this “ Part, and so he should be excus'd from any “ further Discovery.” His Grace concluded with praying a Copy of the Articles of Impeachment, and of the Report of the Committee of Both Houses, which was readily Granted.

April 30. the Commons were acquainted by a Message from the Lords, that the Duke of Leeds had put in his Answer to the Articles Exhibited against him, of which their Lordships had sent a Copy to them. Whereupon the Commons Order'd, “ That the Committee who were appointed

Duke of Leeds Answers the Articles.

1695. " pointed to prepare the Articles against the Duke, should draw up a Replication to his Answer.

On May 1. The Ingrossed Bill from the Lords for Imprisoning Sir Thomas Cooke, &c. was Read the Third time by the Commons, and sent up to the Lords by Sir Herbert Crofts, with some Amendments. At the same time, a Message was brought from the Lords, That their Lordships conceiving the Session may not continue much longer, they think themselves obliged in Justice to put the House of Commons in mind of the Impeachment brought up against the Duke of Leeds; to which the Answer of the Duke of Leeds having been transmitted to the Commons, the Lords desire they may be acquainted when this House can be ready to make good the Articles of the said Impeachment, to the end a certain Day may be appointed by the Lords for that purpose. The Commons Resolved to send an Answer by Messengers of their own, and to proceed according to the Course of Parliaments.

On May 2. The Duke Complained in the House of Peers, of the Delay of the Commons in not Replying to his Answer; alledging, " That the Impeachment was only to load him with Disgrace, and that they never intended to Try him: That a Set of Men used great Partiality towards him, and did not intend to enquire after Others; and that they shew'd their Partiality and Spleen in their Amendment to the Bill for Imprisoning Sir Tho. Cooke, Sir Basil Firebrass, and the Others; whereby Sir Basil was to be Bailed, because he was the Witness against him." The same Day the Commons Resolved, That the Offer of any Money, or other Advantage to any Member of Parliament, for the promoting any Matter whatsoever depending, or to be Transacted in Parliament, was a High Crime and Misdemeanor, and tended to the Subversion of the English Constitution. Then Mr. Comptroller Reported from the Committee, That Monsieur Robart, who was a Material Witness for making good the Articles against the Duke of Leeds, had been Summon'd to Attend the Committee, but could not be found; and it not being yet known where he was, they were of Opinion not to make any further Progress in the Matter to them referred, until they had the further Direction of the House. Upon this Resolution agreed to by the House, it was Ordered, That Monsieur Robart should Attend the House to be Examined, and should be Summon'd by the Serjeant at Arms.

On Friday, May 3. A Motion being made in the House of Lords, to Read the Bill for Granting to the King a Duty upon Glass, &c. the Duke of Leeds rose up and spoke to this Effect, " That it grieved him to think, that he who was as much as any Man for the Dispatch of the Money-Bills, and never opposed any, should be now Constrain'd to do it: But he hoped their Lordships would consider his Case, not only as His, but the Case of any of their Lordships; for, it was in the power of a Tinker to Accuse at the End of a Session, and one might lie under it without Remedy. But since the Commons by Mismanagement, had delay'd this Money-Bill for Six Weeks, it would not be of mighty ill Consequence, if it should lye a Day or two longer. In the mean time, he must earnestly press, that if the Commons did not Reply, the Impeachment might be Discharg'd; for if it were not, he might lie under the Reproach of it all his Life. He had reason to believe the Commons would do nothing in it; for tho' they had Appointed a Committee to Meet, they had met but once, and that for Form sake.

On the same Day, Mr. Speaker of the House of Commons acquainted them, That the Serjeant at Arms had informed him, that his Messenger had been at the Duke of Leeds's, and spoke to his Porter, and enquired for Monsieur Robart, to Summon him to Attend this House: And that the Porter said, he was not within, nor could tell when he would be; and that he had not seen him for three Days past; and that he believed he was in the Country, but could not tell where. Upon this, the Commons desired a Conference with the Lords, to which they agreed immediately in the Painted Chamber; where the Managers delivered a Paper to their Lordships, importing, That the Commons will make good the Charge against the Duke of Leeds, in manner and form as in the Articles mentioned; that the Committee appointed to draw the said Articles, had been daily employed in looking into the Evidences against the said Duke, but had met with an Obstruction, in that Monsieur Robart, a Material Witness, was withdrawn since the Impeachment carried up, which hath been the Reason the Commons have not yet acquainted their Lordships when they can be ready to make good the said Impeachment, the Commons being desirous that Justice be done without any manner of delay. This Paper being Read in the House of Lords, it was moved and agreed to without any Objection made by the Duke of Leeds, That an Address should be made to the King, to Issue a Proclamation for Stopping the Ports, and Seizing Monsieur Robart; which was accordingly done. Then the Duke rose up, and blamed the Commons for doing an Unprecedented Thing, " To charge a Man with Crimes before they had all the Evidences to make it good: That it was strange they should say they wanted a Material Witness, and lay it upon him to produce this Witness. As if a Person were obliged to produce Evidence to accuse himself. He would be very Ingenuous and tell their Lordships, that in truth he had sent Monsieur Robart to see his Daughter Lempter, and ordered him to call at Minns to see his Daughter Plymouth; where the Messenger of the House of Commons might have known he was gone, if he had asked. That he had sent a Messenger on purpose for Robart; that Robart return'd about Two of the Clock on Sunday Morning; but being inform'd that his Lord was Impeach'd, and Mr. Bates in Prison, he was frighted, and went towards Harwich, designing for his own Country, Switzerland, through Holland. That his Grace knew by the Temper of the Man, and by a particular knowledge he had of him, that he would not be seen here again in haste. So that my Lords, said his Grace, if this Man be insisted upon as a Material Evidence, and that my Tryal is to be delay'd till this Person is forth-coming, Where am I likely to be Tryed? I humbly move your Lordships that you will come to some Resolution, that if this Matter be not immediately proceeded upon, so that I may be Tryed before the Ending of this Session, the Impeachment may be Discharg'd." To which some Lords Cried, Well Moved; but the King's coming to the House, prevented any farther Resolution.

On the same Day, the House of Commons having Read a Report of the Committee of Both Houses, proceeded towards the Impeaching other Persons therein mentioned, and in particular, Sir John Trevor: But they were interrupted by the Black Rod, and commanded to attend the King in the House of Peers; where His Majesty was come to Reconcile the Fatal Differences, by the only Method, that of putting an End to the Session.

The Lords desire the Commons to make good their Articles.

Duke of Leeds complains of the Delay of the Commons.

1695. Monsieur Robart not to be found

The Duke's Vindication of Himself.

1695.

Ill State
of the
Com.

We must first observe, that amidst all these Difficulties, a Great Thing was done for the Honour and Interest of the Nation, by Redressing the bad State of the common Coin of the Kingdom. This Difficulty lay so heavy upon the Government, that a stop was almost put to Trade and Taxes: The Current Silver Coin had for many Years began to be Clipp'd and Adulterated, and the Mischief of late had been so secretly carried on by a Combination of all People concerned in the Receipt of Money, and so industriously promoted by the Enemies of the Government, that all Pieces were so far diminish'd and debas'd, as that Five Pounds in Silver Specie was scarce worth Forty Shillings, according to the Standard; besides an infinite deal of Iron, Brass, or Copper wash'd over, or Plated. The Nation had suffer'd most grievously by this Evil, and the Cure of it could be no longer delay'd, without apparent and inevitable Ruin to the Publick, and an Obstruction to all Private Commerce. Under this Necessity, the House of Commons on Jan. 8. Appointed a Committee to receive Proposals, How to prevent Clipping of the Coin of this Kingdom for the future, and the Exportation of Silver. This Committee having Sat several times, Mr. Scobel at last reported their Opinion: 1. That the best way to prevent Clipping the Silver Coin, was to New-Coin the same into Mill'd Money. 2. That 1000000*l.* was a sufficient Sum to make good the Dencency of the present Clipped Coin of this Kingdom. 3. That the Money hereafter to be Coined, should be of the present Weight and Fineness. 4. That the Crown-Piece should go for 5*s.* and 6*d.* and the Half-Crown for 2*s.* and 9*d.* 5. That all Money to be Coined under the Denomination of the Half-Crown, should have a Remedy of Sixpence in the Ounce. 6. That for as much of the present Coin as any Person brought into the Mint, he should have Weight for Weight, and the Overplus by a Bill or Ticket at -- per Cent. on a Fund to be appropriated for that purpose. 7. That the present Laws against Clipping be Enforced by some Additions. 8. That all Persons whose Professions require sack-like Tools or Engines, as may be made use of for Coining or Clipping, be oblig'd to Register their Names and Places of Abode, and that it should be Penal on such as should neglect to do the same. 9. That it be Penal on all such Persons as give more for any Silver Coin than it ought to go for by Law. 10. That it be Penal on all such Persons on whom Clippings are found. 11. That no Presses, such as are used for Coining, be in any other Place than His Majesty's Mint. 12. That it be Penal in all such Persons as shall Import any Clipp'd or Counterfeit Money. 13. That it be Penal in any Person to Export English Bullion, and the Proof to lie upon the Exporter. 14. That it be Penal in any Person to Counterfeit any Foreign Mark upon Bullion.

This Report lay some time neglected in the House of Commons, till the Lords having pass'd an Act to prevent the Counterfeiting and Clipping the Current Coin of this Kingdom; and on March the 19th. sent it down to the Commons for their Concurrence. Then the former Resolutions of the Committee were taken into Consideration, and out of them several Amendments were Inserted in the Lords Bill; to which Amendments the Lords Agreed, and so made the most Expedient Act ready for the Royal Assent.

Several Bills were left Unfinish'd in this Session; such as, 1. A Bill touching free and impartial Proceedings in Parliament, which was begun in the House of Commons, and there Rejected after the Third Reading. 2. A Bill for Regulating Trials in Cases of High Treason; which having pass'd the Lower House, was Amended by the Lords, and occasion'd several further Conferences and Debates between Both Houses. 3. A Bill for Registering Memorials of Deeds, Conveyances, and Wills; which was Obstructed by the Lawyers in the House of Commons, as tending to Abridge Law-Suits, and so to prejudice their Profession. 4. A Bill for the Encouragement of Privateers. 5. A Bill for the better Encouragement of Seamen. 6. A Bill to Disable Persons from Voting in Elections of Members to serve in Parliament, who should refuse to take the Oaths to the Government; which never came to a Second Reading. 7. A Bill for the better Discovery of Bankrupt Estates; which was only Read Twice. 8. A Bill to Vest the Forfeited Estates in Ireland in His Majesty; wherein as little Progress was made. 9. A Bill to Regulate Printing-Presses. 10. A Bill requiring certain Persons to take the Oaths to His Majesty; which having pass'd the Lords, and coming down to the Commons, was by them Rejected after the Second Reading. 11. A Bill for Naturalizing Foreign Seamen; which being sent from the Lords, was likewise Rejected by the Commons. 12. A Bill to Ascertain the Assize of Bread. 13. A Bill to oblige James Craggs and Richard Harnage, to Discover how some of the Moneys for Cloathing the Army had been disposed of. And Lastly, A Bill for Punishing Tracy Pauncefort, and his Brother Edward Pauncefort, for Corrupt Practices; which having been Read Three times by the Commons, was order'd to lie upon the Table.

Bills left Unfinish'd.

In the midst of the Debates in Both Houses, upon the same Subject of Impeachments, as before observ'd, on Friday, May 3. the King came to the House of Peers, attended with the usual Solemnity, and gave the Royal Assent to,

1. An Act for Granting to His Majesty certain Duties upon Glass Wares, Stone and Earthen Bottles, Coals and Culm, for carrying on the War against France. Acts Pass'd.

2. An Act for the King's most Gracious General and Free Pardon.

3. An Act to prevent Counterfeiting and Clipping the Coin of this Kingdom.

4. An Act for Imprisoning Sir Thomas Cooke, Sir Basil Firebrass, Charles Bates, Esq; and James Craggs, and Restraining them from Alienating their Estates.

5. An Act for Reversing the Attainder of Jacob Leister, and Others.

After which, His Majesty made this Speech to the Two Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I Am come to give You Thanks for the Supplies provided for carrying on the War in which We are Engaged; and at the same time to conclude this Session, which cannot be continued longer, without manifest Prejudice to the Ends for which these Supplies are given: The Season of the Year making it so necessary for Me to be Abroad, that it were to be wish'd Our Business at Home, would have Allowed Me to have been there sooner.

I will take Care to Place the Administration of Affairs, during my Absence, in such Persons on whose Care and Fidelity I can entirely Depend: And I doubt not, My Lords and Gentlemen, but every one of You, in Your several Stations, will be Assisting to them. This is what I Require of You, and that You be more than ordinarily Vigilant in Preserving the Publick Peace.

Then the Lord Keeper, by His Majesty's Command, said,

My

1695.

King's
Speech

1695. My Lords and Gentlemen,

Parliament Prorogued.

Lords Justices in His Majesty's Absence.

Honours and Preferments.

King goes to Holland.

King opens the Campaign.

It is His Majesty's Royal Will and Pleasure, That this Parliament should be Prorogued to Tuesday the Eighteenth Day of June next, and this Parliament is accordingly Prorogued to Tuesday the Eighteenth Day of June next.

On the same Day the Parliament was Prorogued, His Majesty was pleased to declare in Council, That he had appointed Thomas Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, Sir John Sommers Kt. Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, Thomas Earl of Fembroke, Lord Privy-Seal, William Duke of Devonshire, Lord Steward of His Majesty's Household, Charles Duke of Shrewsbury, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, Charles Earl of Dorset, Lord Chamberlain of His Majesty's Household, and Sidney Lord Godolphin First Commissioner of His Majesty's Treasury, to be LORDS JUSTICES of England, for the Administration of the Government, during the King's Absence: And at the same time His Majesty was pleased to constitute Sir William Trumbull one of the Principal Secretaries of State, in the room of Sir John Trenchard lately Deceased; the next Day His Majesty was pleased to declare, that He had thought fit to appoint Henry Lord Capel to be Lord Deputy of Ireland. And within Four Days after, William de Nassau Seigneur de Zulestein, was created a Baron, Viscount, and Earl of this Kingdom, by the Name and Style of Baron of Enfield, Viscount Tarbridge, and Earl of Rochford; and Ford Lord Guy of Werke was created Viscount Glendale and Earl of Tinkerhill. On the next Day May 9th. the Duke of Schomberg, the Earl of Tankerhill, and Pergrine Bertie Esq; Vice-Chamberlain to His Majesty, were Sworn and Admitted of the Privy Council.

May 12th. the King went in the Morning from Koningsbron to Gravesend, and went Aboard the William and Mary Yatch about Six that Evening, attended by the Duke of Ormond, the Earls of Essex and Portland, and too few other Persons of Quality. On Monday about Four in the Morning His Majesty Sailed from the Buoy in the Nore, with a Fair Wind, Convoy'd by Sir George Rook, who lay at the Gunfleet with a Squadron of Eighteen Men of War; and by Nine the next Morning His Majesty Landed at Orange Polder, Dined with Montieur Regenburg, and came that Evening to the Hague, being there received with great Acclamations of Joy. On the Morrow being Wednesday May 17th. His Majesty was Complimented upon his Safe Arrival, by the States General, the States of Holland, and the Council of State, and by all Foreign Ministers; after which His Majesty went into the several Assemblies, and having concern'd the proper Measures of the Campaign, He Diverted Himself some Days at Loo, and then appear'd at the Head of the Army.

The King was resolv'd to form some considerable Enterprize either in Flanders or on the Maese, according as the best opportunity should offer to put it in Execution on either side. In order to this, before His Majesty left Holland, he had given Directions for the setting up and storing of great Magazines in several Places, and for the making all other necessary Preparations; and order'd Two Armies in the Field, to keep the French in Awe on both sides, and draw their whole Strength on that for which their Jealousie should be the greatest, and afterwards fall on the other with more probability of Success. A Siege in Flanders seem'd to be attended with less difficulty than on the Maese, where the only Place that could be Attempted was Namur, the strongest of all the Low-Countries; and therefore as most People look'd upon such an Undertaking to be impossible, so the French themselves did least suspect it, and turned their greatest Precautions towards Flanders, where they drew a new Line from the Lys to the Scheld, before the Allies could form a Body of Troops to oppose them. By this Act of Security, it seem'd probable, that the French would content themselves to act defensively this Summer; to which they might be the more dispos'd by the loss of their best General, the Duke of Luxemburgh, whose Place was unequally supplied by the Mareschal de Villeroy.

While the French were perfecting their Lines, the Confederates who were grown superior to them by near Two thousand Men, formed two great Armies in Flanders and Brebant; the first consisted of Seventy Battalions of Foot, and 82 Squadrons of Horse and Dragoons, most English and Scotch, and the rest Dutch, encamped between Shields and Deynse, to be commanded by the King in Person, and under Him, by the Old Prince of Faudement; to be reinforc'd upon occasion by Twenty Battalions, and Ten Squadrons that lay near Dixmuyde, under the Command of Major General Ellenberg: The other Army consisted of Thirty six Battalions of Foot, and 130 Squadrons of Horse, of Spain, Holland and Bavaria, encamp'd on the Road from Brussels to Dendermond, to be headed by the Elector of Bavaria, and under him by the Duke of Holstein Ploen. There was another little Army, which was call'd the Body of the Maese, incamp'd on the Meuhaigne, consisting of Eighteen Battalions of Brandenburghers, and Seven Dutch, and of 17 Squadrons of Brandenburgh, and 15 of Liege, commanded by the Baron de Heyden, Lieutenant General of Brandenburgh, and Count de Barlo, General of the Liege Cavalry. On the other hand the Mareschal de Villeroy, who commanded the French Forces in chief, had drawn his Army together at Leuze, between Conde, Tournay, and Aeth. Mareschal de Boufflers, and Count Guiscard, with a Body of 12000 Horse and Foot, lay encamp'd about the Sambre, and Montieur Montal, with another small Body, lay near Ipres, to observe Major General Ellenberg.

This was the Posture both Parties were in, when the King arriv'd at Gbant, on June 5. N. S. where the Elector of Bavaria, and the Duke of Holstein Ploen waited on him, and the Governor and Burghers received His Majesty with the like Respects that are usually paid to a King of Spain. His Majesty went that Evening to His Army at Arsele, and upon a Review of His Forces, finding 'em in a very good Condition, He detach'd on June 11. Three Brigades of Horse, to reinforce the Elector of Bavaria in his Camp at Ninove, from whence the Earl of Athlone had by the King's Order, march'd with Forty Squadrons, to observe Boufflers, who had Pass'd the Sambre, and was now advanced to Florus. On June 12. the King de-camp'd from Arsele, and march'd His Army to Bourseluer, having sent all the heavy Baggage to Bruges. On the 13th. he incamp'd at Bereher, from whence a Party was sent out that Routed two Parties of the Enemy, and pursued them to the very Walls of Ipres. Mareschal de Villeroy march'd at the same time from Efrancheffe, and retired behind the Lines between Minin and Ipres, having detach'd Ten Thousand Men to Reinforce Boufflers, who was advanced to Pont-Espierre. The same Day in the Evening, the King went to View the Enemies Lines, and found the main Body of their Army Encamp'd within them, standing to their Arms, as expecting to be Attack'd; buttho' there was little Probability of Success in attempting to force their Lines, yet it was highly convenient for His Majesty's Project, to give the 155.

The Confederates Superior to the French.

Opening of the Campaign.

French

1695. French such Umbrage, as to oblige them to bring all their Forces to defend them. Therefore the Body of the Muse advanced towards Namur, and the Elector of Bavaria marched the 12th from Ninove, pass'd the Scheld on the 16th, posted himself at Hockhoven near Hanterine, facing the new Lines, and forced Marschal Boufflers to retreat within them.

Siege of Namur.

The King sent the Duke of Wurtemberg to make an Attempt upon the Fort Kenoque to encrease the Enemies Jealousie for Flanders, and draw their Force the more on that side, sending Orders at the same time to the Baron de Haden to advance towards Flanders, with the Troops under his Command, but directed him soon after to make a Counter-March. By this and several other Stratagems, the King brought on his Design of besieging Namur, and directed the Earl of Athlone, and the Baron de Haden to invest it, and by an Express communicated the whole Scheme of the Siege to the Duke of Bavaria, who highly approved it: The Earl of Athlone being join'd by the Brandenburg Troops on June 28, marched toward Charleroy, and the King Himself leaving His Army at Reuselaer, under Command of Prince Vaudemont, advanced with a strong Guard towards the Muse. These Motions put the French in suspence whether the Confederates designed to attack Namur or Charleroy; the latter was most feared by the Marquês d'Harcourt, who therefore reinforced that Garison with a good Body of Dragoons. But the Earl of Athlone having pass'd the Sambre at Casselet below Charleroy, marched again down that River, towards Namur; so that his Lordship being by this time reinforced by a Body of Horse and Dragoons from the Elector of Bavaria's Army, took all the Posts from the Sambre to the Muse, whilst the Baron de Haden, with the Brandenburg and Dutch Forces, invested the Place between the Muse and the Sambre. Another Detachment was order'd to surround Namur on the Condros side, but their not coming in time, by the reason of the difficulty of the Ground, and the vast extent of the Circumvalation, gave Marschal Boufflers an Opportunity to throw himself into the Place, with several Regiments of Dragoons, and many Engineers; so that with this Reinforcement, the Garison consisted of near Fifteen Thousand Men, and most of them the best Troops of France.

Boufflers throws himself into Namur.

Condition of the Town.

The King came to the Castle of Falaise on July 2. and the next day the Elector of Bavaria having brought up the rest of his Army with great expedition, the Town and Castle of Namur were entirely invested, and His Majesty disposed the Troops into three General Quarters. The French prepared themselves for a Vigorous Resistance, and depended on the Strength of the Place, which had always been accounted impregnable, and by the advantage of its Situation, as well as the Nature of its Fortifications, was the best Bulwark of Brabant. And the Strength of the Place was very much improved since it fell into the Hands of a Monarch who never spared Charges to put his Frontiers and Conquered Cities into the best defence they are capable to receive from Art and Nature; and the Castle was so situate upon a Hill, in an Angle formed by the Confluence of the Sambre and the Muse, that it was hardly possible to make so much as an Attack upon it: Besides, the Place was provided with all Necessaries for many Months, so that the King's Enterprize of this Siege was look'd upon by the French as a Rash Project, that must needs be fatal in breaking the Confederate Army. But all these Obstacles, however to appear invincible, were not able to shake the Resolution of King William, they served only to keep up His Fortitude, Prudence and Vigilance, and to make Him concert Effectual Measures to surmount all Difficulties; which He did to His own Immortal Glory, the Astonishment of His Enemies, and the Admiration of all Europe. 1695.

To raise this Siege, the Marschal de Villeroy attempted to raise the Siege. marched toward the Prince of Vaudemont, to attack him in his Camp at Aersfeele: The Prince had Fifty Battalions of Foot, and Fifty one Squadrons of Horse and Dragoons; Villeroy with double the number came up to him on July 14. but found the Prince's Camp so strongly fortified, that he would not hazard a Battel till Montal had taken his Post in the Rear of the Prince's Right, so to inviron him, as to fall on all sides the next Morning. The Prince found it necessary to provide for a Retreat, which he manag'd with so much Conduct and Bravery, that the Honour of it was equal to a Victory; and this Sense the King express'd in a Letter to him in these Words:

Retreat of Prince Vaudemont.

Cousin,

"You cannot believe how much your Letter of yesterday Noon, which I received this Morning by break of Day, disturbed Me: On the other side, how joyful I was upon the Receipt of the other Letter, Dated from Mary-kirk, near Ghent, this Day at Three in the Morning. I am much obliged to you, for in this Retreat you have given greater Marks of a General consummate in the Art of War, than if you had gain'd a Victory. I absolutely approve of your Conduct upon this Occasion, and I hope it will hinder the Enemy from undertaking any more of the same nature: Nevertheless, I shall be impatient till I know which way they bend their March, since this Blow has fail'd them.

Letter of K. William.

I remain always, &c.

The Siege of Namur was carried on with great Application; the Besieged had made two or three small Sallies with no success, and made another more considerable on July 18, with Twelve hundred Horse, and Four Squadrons of Dragoons, but after a sharp Encounter were beaten back, with the loss of 200 Men. On the same Day the King resolv'd to storm the advanced Works and Traverses of the Enemy; and accordingly Major General Ramsay, and the Lord Cutts, at the head of Five Battalions of the Foot Guards, English, Scotch and Dutch, began the Onset on the Right, while Major General Salisb, with Eight Regiments, and Nine thousand Pioneers, insulted the Enemy on the Left. To defend themselves from this Attack, the Besieged brought out Eight Battalions, a great Detachment of Dragoons, and all their Grenadiers to defend their Retrenchments; the Dispute was obstinate for two Hours, but at last the French were beaten back, and pursued to the very Gates of the Town. The King, who according to His Custom remain'd upon the Place during the whole Action, was so well pleas'd with the Bravery and Excellent Order of His Men, that laying His Hand over the Duke of Bavaria's Shoulder, He told him several times, in a way of Transport, See my Brave English, See my brave English.

Bravery of the English.

The great Rains that fell about this time very much incommoded the Besiegers, and interrupted their Approaches: However, on the 25th. they ply'd their Batteries with Success, rais'd new ones, set on Miners to the Redoubt of Bailart, near St. Nicholas Gate, and the next day forc'd the Captain that Commanded in it, to Surrender at discretion. On the 27th. the King went into the Trenches, and perceiving the Batteries had made great Breaches in St. Nicholas Bastion, the Demi-Bastion of St. Roche, and at the end of the Counterscarp of the Town; His Majesty

The progress of the Siege

1695. General Attack. Majesty dispos'd all things for the general Attack of the first Counterscarp, which was perform'd towards Five a Clock that Afternoon, in this manner: The English and Scotch, commanded by Major-General Ramsley, and Brigadier George Hamilton, came out of the Trenches to the Right, and attack'd the Point of the foremost Counterscarp, which enclosed the Sluys, or Water-stop: The Enemy receiv'd them with a furious Discharge; which however did not hinder them to go on briskly; and maugre the dismal Eruption of Three or Four Fougades of Bombs, that lay buried in the Glacis, which put them at first into some Disorder, they return'd more animated to the Charge, and drove the Enemy from that Counterscarp. But it unluckily fell out, that whilst the Workmen were making a Lodgment, some Sacks of Wool took fire, whereby Part of the Lodgment was consum'd, and the English expos'd to the Shot of the Counter-guard, and Demi-Bastion of St. Roche: Which they sustain'd and answer'd with incredible Resolution, till the Fire was extinguish'd, and some Traverfes cast up. On the other hand, the Hollanders seeing the English in so hot a Place, immediately went up along the Maese, towards the Breach of the Counter-guard, and so vigorously Attack'd the Enemy with their Hand-Granado's, that the latter thought it safer to Retreat than to Defend themselves; which very much eas'd the English. Thereupon the Dutch lodged themselves upon the Counter-guard; and thus both they and the English preserv'd the foremost Covered Way, before St. Nicholas Gate, from the Maese to the Water-stop, with part of the Counter-guard. The Valour and Firmness of the Confederates Infantry in this Action, is scarce to be parallel'd: And it must also be acknowledg'd, that the French Officers behaved themselves like Men of true Courage, exposing themselves on the Glacis of the Counterscarp, and on the Breach of the Counter-guard, with their Swords in their hands, in order to encourage their Soldiers. The Enemy did not throw many Bombs, but they fir'd incessantly into the Trenches, with Five or Six Pieces of Cannon; which kill'd several Persons about His Majesty; particularly Mr. Godfrey, Deputy-Governor of the Bank of England; who being come into the Camp to wait on the King, about Money for the Payment of the Army, had the Curiosity to see this Attack; and sought his Death, where he should have only minded his Profit.

Death of Mr. Godfrey.

In the mean time, the Elector of Bavaria, Posted between the Sambre and the Maese, commanded an Attack to be made toward the Abby of Salzines; which was performed with so much Vigor, that he not only forc'd the Retrenchments next the Sambre, but made himself Master of the Fort of La Balance, repuls'd Four Squadrons of Horse that came out of the Castle, laid a Bridge over the Sambre, pass'd that River amidst the Enemies continual Fire, and possess'd himself of the said Abby; a Post of great Importance, and which favour'd the Attack of Vauban's Line, that surrounded the Works of the Castle. This Line the Elector resolv'd to storm, and order'd General Coeborn to dispose all things for that purpose towards Salzines, and General Fleming to do the same on the other side of the Maese. On the 30th of July, by break of Day, his Electoral Highness, with the Spanish and Bavarian Generals, and General Coeborn, began the Attack towards Salzines; and assaulted the Retrenchment in Flank with about 3000 Foot, sustain'd by some Battalions, and 1000 Spanish and Bavarian Horse. Major-General Swerin attack'd the Line in Front, with 500 Granadiers, as many Musqueteers, and 1000 Pioneers; and the Brandenburgh Generals, with 500 Granadiers, supported by 2000 Foot, and their Grand Musqueteers, Gens d'arms and Horse-Granadiers, insulted the Enemies Flank on the Maese side. The Besieged at first made some Resistance, by the favour of a Line of Communication, of one Redoubt and two Trenches; but being assailed on all sides, and that too with extraordinary Bravery, they were driven to the Counterscarp of Coeborn Fort. Animated with this Success, the Besiegers pursued the Runaways as far as the Devil's House; where the French had several Cannon laden with Cartouches, and about 900 Men laid flat upon their Bellies; who now standing up on the sudden, pour'd in Volleys of Shot upon the Assailants. The latter receiv'd the Fire with incredible Undauntedness, forc'd the French to quit the Counterscarp of the Fort, and made themselves Masters of it; however, it being impossible for them to lodge themselves there, they retired in pretty good Order. By this brave Action, at the Expence of about 200 Men kill'd or wounded, the Besiegers gain'd a Lined Redoubt, some Advanc'd Batteries, and Vauban's Retrenchments from the Sambre to the Maese; which, with immense Labour, the French had cut through the Rock, and which they boasted would cost the Allies 5000 Men, before they should take it. This Attack on the Castle-side, where the King was present, being over, His Majesty went to view the Trenches of the Town-side; and finding that a Mine had been sprung, which had overturn'd a good part of the Water-stop into the Ditch, whereby the Water was lower by two Foot; He order'd the Miners to work on, in order to drain the Moat, and all things to be ready to make a Lodgment on the Demi-Bastion. The two following Days, the Besiegers batter'd the Works before St. Nicholas Gate with great Fury, and threw many Bombs, which did considerable Execution; and particularly one fir'd by Lieutenant-Colonel Brown; which set on fire the Enemies Magazine in the Demi-Bastion. On the 2d. of August, towards Evening, my Lord Cutts with 200 English Granadiers, and Brigadier Dedem with a like Number of Dutch, both which were to be sustain'd by the Battalions in the Trenches, were order'd to attack the Saillant Angle, and the other the Demi-Bastion; which they perform'd with great Bravery, and after some resistance lodg'd themselves on the Second Counterscarp. The Cannon having by this time widen'd the Breaches, and all things being ready for a General Assault, Count Guiscard, the Governor, demanded to Capitulate for the Town: Which being readily granted, the Articles were agreed upon, and Sign'd on the 4th. of August, by the Elector of Bavaria for the Allies, and by Count Guiscard for the Besieged. The same day the Iron Gate was deliver'd to the Besiegers; and on the 6th. the French Evacuated the Town, and retired into the Castle.

Fresh Attacks.

The Town-Cas-titulates.

To wait a while upon the Mareschal d'Villeroy after he fail'd in his Design upon Prince Vaudemont, and left his opportunity of Surprizing Noyon, he march'd towards Dixmude, and order'd M. de to lay Siege to it. The Town was indeed but weak; yet considering the strength of the Garrison, it might have held out a Fortnight, or at least have Surrendred with less Ignominy; but Major General Ellenburgh the Governor, being a Soldier of Fortune, was so far disappoint'd, that after a slight Resistance of 36 Hours, he yielded himself and his whole Garrison Prisoners of War. Deynse follow'd the Example of Dixmude, which Colonel O'Flaherty Surrendred to the French at Discretion;

Motion of M. de Villeroy

He takes Dixmude
& Deynse

1695. cretion, without Firing a Gun. Villeroy order'd the Fortifications of these Two Places to be raz'd, and then pass'd the River Lys at Warke, and March'd up the Lines to the Scheld, which he cross'd at Eschanaff, in order to continue his March to Ninove; giving out, That he was going to the Relief of Namur. Upon Advice of this Motion, the Prince of Vaudemont decamp'd on Aug. 4th from Ghent, and passing the Canal at Vilvoerd and the Burnt-Bridge, pitch'd his Camp at Digheem, having his own Quarters at the Castle of Beaulien. His Highness sent to the French to demand the Garrisons of Dixmude and Deynse, according to the Agreement about the Exchange of Prisoners; but the Marschal of Villeroy, upon frivolous pretences, refus'd to send them back: And contrary to the Cartel, most of the Soldiers were forced to List themselves in the French Service, or were sent to Catalonia, and other remote Parts.

English Fleet.

The English Fleet this Summer, Commanded by the Lord Berckley, was spreading Terror and Cousternation all along the Coasts of France. On July 4. They Bombarded St. Malo, that Nest of Privateers, which of all others, had most infested the Channel, and molested our Merchants, and now felt a Retaliation severe enough. Colonel Richards, and Captain Bembo, who had the direction of the Bomb Ketches, on July 6. came before Granville, a little Town on the Sea-shore, which they set on Fire in several Places: But we fail'd in our Attempts upon Dunkirk, and were able only to Burn some few Houses at Calais. These repeated Insults could not but be Resented by the King of France, who thereupon sent Orders to Marschal Villeroy to Bombard Brussels. Upon the French marching to Enghein, with a great number of Waggons Laden with Bombs and Fireworks, Prince Vaudemont immediately guess'd their Design; which could not be prevented, unless the Confederate Army, which might be reinforced by the Detachments under the Command of the Earl of Atblone and Count Nassau, should advance and encamp in the Plain of Gigot and St. Anne Pee; but because this could not be done neither, without giving Villeroy an opportunity to post himself between the Prince's Army and Namur, whereby he might have been able to raise that Important Siege: His Highness did prudently leave the Earl of Atblone and Count Nassau with the Forces under their Command, between Water-Loo and Genap, and maintain'd a Communication with 'em, by passing his Infantry on the Eminences about Brussels, between Fort Montera and the Countersearp of Iksel, extending his Horse and Dragoons along the Canal to hinder the Enemy from passing it.

Villeroy Bombards Brussels.

After several Marches and Counter-marches Villeroy appear'd before Brussels on August 13. and taking his Quarters at Anderlock, he wrote a Letter to the Prince of Bergin the Governor, to acquaint him, "That the King his Master seeing the Prince of Orange had sent his Fleet upon the Coasts of France to Bombard His Sea-port Towns, and endeavour to ruin them, without getting any other Advantage by it; had thought that He could not put a stop to such Disorders, but by using Reprisals; which was the Reason that his Master had sent him an Order to Bombard Brussels; and at the same time to declare, That 'twas with Reluctancy his Majesty had put himself upon it; and that as soon as He should be assur'd, that the Sea-Ports of France should be no more Bombarded, the King his Master would not Bombard any Places belonging to the Princes against whom he was at War; reserving nevertheless the Liberty on both sides, to do it in such Places as should be Besieged. That His Majesty had resolv'd upon 1695. the Bombarding of Brussels, with so much the more Pain that the Electorefs of Bavaria was there. That if the Governor would let him know in what part of the Town she was, the King his Master had commanded him not to Fire there: Concluding that he should stay for his Answer till Five of the Clock in the Evening; after which time he should obey His Orders without delay." The Prince of Bergben after having communicated this Letter to the Elector of Bavaria, who was come in great haste to Brussels upon this Occasion, sent an Answer to Monsieur Villeroy; "That the Reason the King of France assigned for His Orders to the Marschal to Bombard Brussels, did solely regard the King of Great Britain, who was before the Castle of Namur; That his Electoral Highness would acquaint the King with it, to have an Answer in 24 Hours, if Monsieur Villeroy would agree to it. And that as for the Consideration His most Christian Majesty had for the Electorefs, that she was at the Royal Palace." It soon after appeared that Villeroy's Message was but an insignificant Compliment; for instead of allowing the Governor time to get his Britannick Majesty's Answer to the French King's Proposal, he began that very Evening to Fire upon the City with 25 Mortar Pieces, and 18 Pieces of Cannon, that shot red hot Bullets. It was not long before the Fire broke out in several Places, especially about the Town-House. The Enemy continued Firing without intermission all that Night, the Day following, and the next Night after that; during which arose a high Wind, which would have spread the Conflagration throughout the whole City, if the Inhabitants had not wisely blown up several Houses on the 15th of August; The same day about Noon the French gave over Firing, and soon after drew off towards Enghein. The Lower-Town suffer'd the most by the Enemies Bombs; and several Houses near the Market-place were quite laid in Rubbish: And as for the Electorefs of Bavaria, though she was remov'd to the Suburbs, beyond the reach of the Cannon, yet she was so Frighted with its continual Roaring, that she Miscarried upon it.

In the mean time the Siege of the Castle of Namur was carried on with steady Resolution; the Besiegers broke Ground on August 12. and carried on their Trenches about an 150 Paces before the Coehorne Fort towards the Sambre, and made a good Lodgment. Besides the Batteries already erected between the Sambre and the Maeße, some others were order'd to be rais'd, both of Cannon and Mortars, as well in the Ramparts as in the Gardens of the City, in order to Batter Terra Nova and Fort Coehorne, both at once. On the 13. the Besiegers began to play from no less than Twelve Batteries; and one of their Bombs falling upon the Magazine of the Devil's-House, blew up above 1000 Granadoes charg'd, ruin'd a great quantity of Arms, and killed and wounded several Persons. Boufflers himself being unused to this unequal way of Fighting, began to wish himself in the open Field, and form'd a Design to break through the Confederates Camp with his Cavalry; but the King having notice of it, ordered strong Guards to be placed at all the Passes of the Sambre, and the same was done along the Maeße by General Fleming; so as Boufflers was forced to share the Fate of his Garrison: However on the 18th towards Midnight, they made a Sally with 200 Dragoons mounted, and 500 Granadoes: Of the latter 150 made the Attack on the Right Hand, but were repulld by the Count de Rivera; and the rest on the Left, where my Lord Cutts had just posted the Advanced Guards, to se-

Sally of the Besieged.

1695. cure the Workmen : The Dragoons fell upon Lieutenant Colonel Sutton, who being posted in the Plain of Salsine, with about Forty Fusileers, let them come on till they were very near him, then gave them a round Volley, and retreated to his Body; but the Dragoons pressing upon him, he commanded his Men to fire upon them: The French being little daunted at it, advanced boldly on, and had their Granadeers charged at the same time, they would undoubtedly have caused a great Confusion in the Trenches; but the Spanish and Bavarian Horse, who were near at hand, fell upon the Enemy with so much Viger, that they drove them to the very Palisadoes of the Castle, killing some, and making others Prisoners.

Villeroy pretends to raise the Siege. After the Bombardment of Brussels, the Mareschal de Villeroy being considerably reinforced with all the Troops that could be spared out of the Garisons and the Forces from the Sea-Coasts, marched directly towards Namur with an Army of Ninety thousand Men, with which they confidently boasted to raise the Siege of the Castle; when they were come as far as Flerus, they gave the Besieged a Signal of their Approach, by the discharge of 90 Pieces of Canon, which was answer'd by a great Light set upon the highest part of the Castle. This obliged the King to leave the Care of the Siege to the Elector of Bavaria, and the Duke of Holstein Ploen, and on Aug. 26. to repair to the Army strongly encamped at Mazy, within Five English Miles of Namur. On Aug. 29. the Mareschal de Villeroy advanced towards the Confederates Camp, but found them so well posted, that he thought fit to retire in the Night without Noise: The next Day he moved along the Mebaigne, extending his Right to Perwys, and his Left to the Abby of Boneffe; whereupon His Britannick Majesty caused His Army to move towards Ostin and Longchamp, to observe the Enemy, who durst not make any nearer Approaches to raise the Siege.

General Assault appointed. Aug. 30. was appointed for a General Assault of the Castle, when the Besiegers began early to batter the Breaches of Cochorn Fort, and Terra Nova, and continued till 11. of the Clock, when His Electoral Highness sent Count de Horn, accompanied by the Earl of Portland, to summon the Besieged. The Batteries having given over firing, Count de Horn called to the Enemy, and told Count de Lanmont, Commander of the French Foot, who answer'd him from the next Bastion, attended by the Marquess of Grammont, and St. Hermine, That the Mareschal de Villeroy after having been three Days in sight of the Confederate Army, had thought fit to retire towards the Mebaigne without fighting: That the Garison could not expect now to be relieved; and that his Electoral Highness being willing to spare the Lives of so many Brave Men on both sides, had charg'd him to offer Honourable Terms to Count Guiscard, if he would surrender; but that he gave him but a quarter of an Hour to deliberate upon the Proposals. Thereupon Count Lanmont took upon him to acquaint Count Guiscard, and Mareschal de Boufflers, with Count de Horn's Message, and promised to bring back a speedy Answer; but not returning in half an Hour, Count de Horn grew impatient, and told the Marquess de Grammont that he had already outstay'd his Time, and therefore desir'd him to send some body to the Governor for an immediate Answer: A Second Messenger was thereupon dispatch'd away, but he tarrying also above a quarter of an Hour, and several Officers of the Garison being come to view the Breach of Terra Nova, the Earl of Portland did not think it convenient to wait any longer. Thus the Parley was broke, and the Batteries play'd incessantly against the Breaches till between One and

Two, when the General Assault began in the following manner.

1695. As soon as the Signal was given, my Lord Cuts General Assault made. at the head of Three hundred Granadiers, rushed out of the Trenches of the Second Line, which were 7 or 800 Paces distant from the Breach of Terra Nova, where he was commanded to lodge himself; and Colonel Marsigly marched on his Right, to possess himself of the Line of Communication next Cochorn Fort; Count de Rivera, Major General of the Bavarians, with 3000 Men march'd out of the Trenches of the first Line, in order to attack the Breaches of Cochorn Fort; Major General le Carve advanced to attempt the same Fort at the Point, and Major General Swerin march'd against the Casotte with 2000 Brandenburghers. The English Granadiers under my Lord Cuts, born away by their own Native Ardor, and animated by the Example of their Brave Leader, and of Colonel Windsor, Colonel Stanhope, Mr. Thompson, and several other English Gentlemen, who exposed themselves as Volunteers, ran faster toward the Enemy than they could be followed by the Battalions of Coutbort, Buchan, Hamilton, and Mackay, who mov'd from Salsine to support them. The Granadiers mounted the Breach without opposition, the Enemy not expecting to be attack'd on that side, by reason of the great distance of the Trenches; but as soon as the French saw that these Bold Adventurers were not sustained, they brought down 2000 of their best Foot and Dragoons, into the Space between the Cochorn and the Terra Nova, to fall on the English in Flank and in Rear, which obliged the latter to make a speedy Retreat. The Besieged made a shew of pursuing them, but by this time three of the foremention'd Regiments being come up to their assistance, the French retired through the Breach of Terra Nova, after having surpriz'd and defeated the 500 Men under Colonel Marsigly. The Colonel himself being wounded, was made Prisoner, and soon after kill'd by a Canon Ball from the Besiegers Batteries, with the French Officer that carried him into the Castle. The English having born six several Discharges, had several kill'd and wounded; and among the latter was my Lord Cuts himself, who received a Shot in his Head, which disabled him for some time.

Whilst this pass'd on the side of Terra Nova, Count de Rivera, with the Bavarians, instead of marching to the left of the Platform, went a little too much to the Right, towards the Cover'd Way, which was well Palisado'd, and thick set with Musqueteers, who made a terrible Fire. Through this Mistake, instead of storming the two small Breaches of the Angle of the Platform, according to the Scheme made for this Attack, the Bavarians attempted to force the Cover'd Way before the great Breach, whereby they remain'd exposed for two Hours to the Enemies Double Fire, which killed them abundance of Men, and amongst them Count Rivera himself, with most of the Officers of the Bavarian Guards.

The Lord Cuts was scarce dress'd of his Wounds, Hard Service. when growing impatient to be idle, while others were still engaged, he put himself again at the head of his Brave Countrymen; but finding the Assault of the Terra Nova not possible to be retrieved, and observing that the Bavarians notwithstanding the loss of their Leader, had fix'd themselves upon the uttermost Retrenchment of the Point of Cochorne, next to the Sambre, and maintain'd that Post with a great deal of obstinacy, but could not gain any more Ground; he thereupon resolv'd to make good their Attack. To effect this, he order'd that a Detachment of 200 Men should be made out of such as were most forward to signalize themselves, whom he still en-1695. raged by Promises of distinguishing Rewards : That take should be sustain'd by the Regiment of M. K. ; and that the other English Forces should rally, and follow as soon as possible. Being come to the Place of Action, his Lordship detach'd a Party of the forementioned chosen Men, headed by Lieutenant Cockle of Mackay's Regiment; whom he order'd to attack the Face of the Palisado, next to the Breach, Sword in Hand, without Firing a Gun; to pass the Pallisado's, and enter the Cover'd Way; and there to make a Lodgment, if they found any Place capable of it. And at the same time, his Lordship commanded the Palisado's of Mackay's Regiment to march straight to the Pallisado's, and place their Colours upon them. All this was so well executed, that Lieutenant Cockle breaking thro' the Pallisado's, beat the Enemy from the Cover'd Way, lodg'd himself in one of their Batteries, and then turn'd their own Cannon against themselves. On the other hand, whilst Mackay's Ensigns advanc'd to the Pallisado's, the Bavarians renew'd their Attack with undaunted Vigour, and so this Post was made good. The Troops were already so fatigu'd by an Assault that had lasted several Hours, that the Besiegers contented themselves to have gain'd the Cover'd Way before the Breach of Coborn, and the Sailleur Anglé towards the Sambre, and to make a Lodgment there, without any further Attempt upon the Breach. However, this seasonable Reinforcement which the Lord Curtis brought to the Bavarians, had this further good effect, that it kept the Enemy employ'd in the Defence of this most important Post; which very much facilitated Major-General L. Carter's Enterprize upon the Cover'd Way before the Ravelin, and upper Point of the Coborn, and so up towards the Casern; where he lodg'd himself without any considerable Loss. On the other hand, Major-General Spencer, who commanded the Right Attack of all before the Casern, made up boldly towards the Cover'd Way and Retrenchment between the Casern and the Mackay; overcame the Enemies Resistance, drove them from their Posts, secur'd all the Avenues, and made a very good Lodgment all along this Cover'd Way and Retrenchment, of about 200 Paces; which he extended to the Left, turning in towards the Casern about 120 Paces more, to join it to that of Major-General L. Carter, that reach'd to the Ravelin of the Coborn. Thus, altho' for want of a due Correspondence among the several Attacks, the Besiegers miscarried in the great Design of this general Storm; which was to have taken the Castle, with all its prodigious Outworks, all at once; yet they were now Masters of one of the greatest Lodgments that ever was made in one Assault, being near an English Mile in extent. Such a vast Lodgment could not be done in a moment; neither could the Assault, which lasted till Evening, be maintain'd, without considerable Loss on both Sides. The Besiegers, by their own Confession, had Two Thousand Men kill'd or wounded; and among them many Persons of Note. Count L. Rivin, Major-General; the Colonels Cantrep, M. G. G., Lindrecht; the Baron H. H. H.; Lieutenant-Colonel Fabian, of DeTill's Regiment; and Captain M. B. B. of the English Guards; were counted among the slain: And among the Wounded were reckn'd, the Prince of H. H. H., and the Lord Curtis, Lieutenant-General; the Prince of H. H. H., Eppe, Z. Z., C. C., H. H., Count D. D., L. L., M. M., Count D. D., and H. H.; all Ten Colonels. Several Officers of His Majesty's English Guards; particularly Colonel W. W., Colonel S. S., 1695. Colonel E. E., and Mr. Thompson; besides a great many Lieutenant-Colonels, Majors, Captains, and Subaltern Officers of other Regiments. The Loss of the Besieged in this Action did not exceed 600 Men, either kill'd or wounded. The Elector of Bavaria expos'd himself to a Degree not to be imagin'd; riding from Place to Place, and giving his Orders where the Dispute was most obstinate; insomuch that several Persons were killed and wounded about him. Neither was his Electoral Highness contented to encourage the Officers and Soldiers by his own Example, but animated the First by extolling their Valour; and the latter, by the more powerful Incentives of immediate Rewards; distributing Handfuls of Gold amongst them. All the Troops of the several Nations behaved themselves with equal Intrepidity: However, it may be said, that the English were the most bold and pushing, the Bavarians the most firm, and the Brandenburgers the most successful. In Acknowledgment of which Service, His Majesty writ with His own Hand the following Letter to the Elector of Brandenburgh, now King of Prussia.

Crease
Loss.

“ You Interest your self so far in the Publick
“ Good, that you must needs receive a particu“ lar Satisfaction in hearing of the Surrender of “ the Castle of Namur, especially considering “ what share you had in that Enterprize; which “ could not possibly have succeeded without the “ Assistance of your Troops, whom I cannot “ enough commend; nor can be less pleas'd
“ with the admirable Conduct of your Generals.
“ They have gain'd to themselves the greatest “ Glory and Reputation by this Action: And I “ assure you, 'tis impossible for any one to be “ more sensible of an Obligation, than I am of
“ that you have laid on Me, by Assisting Me in “ an Undertaking of such Consequence, which “ God has vouchsafed to bless; and which, I “ hope, will be a considerable Advantage to all
“ the Allies. And you may assure your self,
“ I shall omit no Occasion of giving you effe“ ctual Proofs of my Gratitude. K. William's Letter to the Elector of Brandenburgh

The 31st of August (N. S.) was wholly spent by the Besiegers in perfecting the Lodgments they had made the Day before, and in preparing all things for a Second General Assault: But the next day, the Besieged having demanded a Cessation of Arms to Bury their Dead, which was readily granted; the Count de Guiscard came upon the Breach a little before the Truce was over, and desired to speak with the Elector of Bavaria. His Electoral Highness having mounted the Breach, the Count offer'd to Surrender the Casern Fort: But the Elector answering, That if he would Capitulate, it must be for the whole: Count Guiscard replied, That the Marschal de Bussy Commanded in the Castle, and that he would let him know; and desired, that in the mean while the Cessation of Arms might be continu'd: To which his Electoral Highness having agreed, Marschal de Bussy contented to Treat for the whole. Thereupon an Adjutant was immediately dispatch'd to give the King an Account of it at Orléans: Which Express met His Majesty, with the Prince of Vaudemour, then coming to the Siege in His Coach, to give Directions concerning a further Attack. Upon His Majesty's Arrival, Hostages were exchang'd, and Propositions brought from the Castle; the chief of which was, That they might have Ten Days to expect Succours. This being absolutely denied, the French, after some Debates amongst them-

The Besieged demand a Cessation of Arms.

Treaty of Surrender.

1695. themselves, were contented to receive such Terms as the Elector, with his Majesty's Consent, would grant them; being such as are usual upon the Surrender of a Strong Fortrefs, whose Garison has made a Gallant Defence. The Capitulation was agreed on that very Night, and sign'd the next Morning; and part of the Outworks were given up presently after to the Allies; the Be-lieged having three days more allow'd them to evacuate the Castle. 'Tis remarkable, that the Count de Guiscard oblig'd the Marechal de Boufflers to Sign the Articles, because he had commanded in the Castle during the Siege; whereas the Count had only Commanded in the Coehorne, and the Outworks; and that perhaps this was the first Capitulation that was ever Sign'd by a Marechal of France; which was so much the more to the Honour of the Confederate Arms, that they took this almost impregnable Place in Sight of another Marechal of France, who was advanc'd to relieve it with 100000 Men, but was only a Spectator of the Bravery in the former, and of a consummate Prudence in the King of Great Britain, under whose Conduct and Direction all was happily Atchieved; it being universally acknowledged, that no Siege was ever carried on with more Regularity.

Capitulation Sign'd.

Motion of the Two Armies.

The 1st of September the Two Armies observed one another, but the next day the Marechal de Villeroy being informed of the Surrender of the Castle of Namur by a triple Discharge of all the Artillery, and three Salvoes in a running Fire along the Lines of the Confederate Army, he retired from his Camp at Gemblours, and pass'd the Sambre near Charleroy with great Precipitation. Upon Advice of this Motion, the King order'd several Brigades towards Salfines, and a Bridge to be laid over the Sambre, to oppose the Enemy in Case they should make any Attempt between the Sambre and the Maeſe, whilst the French Garison was still in Possession of the Terra Nova. But it seems, Monsieur de Villeroy had quite laid aside all thoughts of Fighting; for having sent 2000 Men to reinforce the Garison of Dinant, he march'd with the rest of his Army towards the Lines near Mons.

The French retire.

Surrender of the Castle of Namur.

On the 5th of September, the day prefixed for the French to evacuate the Castle, the Horse and Foot that were encamp'd between the Sambre and the Maeſe were commanded to make a Lane on both sides, from the Breach of Terra Nova, thro' which the Garrison was to march out up the Hill, and so down again to the Maeſe, to the way that leads to Givet, whither it was agreed they should be safely conducted. About Ten of the Clock in the Morning, the Garison, which from 14000 was reduced to 5538 Men, began their March. The Marechal de Boufflers's Guard de Corps went out first; then his Domesticks, and next himself, with Mr. de Guiscard the Governor, at the head of the King's and Alseld's Dragoons, as many as were mounted, that is, between 80 and 90 in all. The King was Incognito in a Coach, and the Elector of Bavaria, the Landgrave of Hesse, and the Chief Officers of the Army on Horse-back, to see them pass, within 200 Paces of the Breach, and were saluted by the French Marechal and Count with their Swords. This Civility was hardly over, when Monsieur Dyckvelt Accoited Boufflers with a Message which somewhat discomposed his Countenance; and as they were Riding up to the top of the Hill, Monsieur de Leuang, Brigadier General of the Brigade of the Life-Guards, made up boldly to the Marechal, with about Twelve of the Gentlemen of the Life Guard, and Arrested him, in his Britannick Majesty's Name, by way of Reprisal for the Garisons of Dinamoyde and Deynſe, which were de-tain'd and ill treated by the French, contrary to the Cartel. The Marechal seem'd at first very much Incens'd; alledging in a broken speech, That the Laws and Customs of War were violated, and particularly the Capitulation lately sign'd by the Duke of Bavaria, wherein he was expressly mention'd. That the King of France his Master will resent this Treatment of a Man of his Character, and revenge it to the utmost of His Power; and that for his part he had defended the Place like a Man of Honour, and did not deserve it. To this Monsieur Dyckvelt reply'd, "That the French King his Master, by detaining the Garisons of Dinamoyde and Deynſe, contrary to their Capitulation by which they were made Prisoners of War, and consequently should have been discharged within the limited time, paying their Ransom, which was offer'd) had forced his Britannick Majesty to that way of demanding Satisfaction for that infraction: That the Marechal's being Arrested, was not out of any Disrespect to his Person, but rather the contrary; for when it was propos'd to the King of Great Britain to detain the whole Garison by way of Reprisal, His Majesty had exprest so much value of his Person, that he look'd upon him as a sufficient Caution to answer for 6000 Men, the number of the Two Garisons of Dinamoyde and Deynſe: But that at the same time, he had his Majesty's Order, to offer him his Liberty, if he would pass his Word for sending back the said Garisons, or return himself a Prisoner, within a Fortnight." To which Boufflers answer'd, That he could not pass his Word of Honour in a Matter which he could not execute himself; That if he were at the head of 50000 Men, he would not suffer himself to be Arrested, but now he must submit. Thereupon he put up his Sword, and went back with his Domesticks to Namur, where the Earl of Portland gave him a Visit, and told him as from himself, That he made no doubt of his Release upon his Parole of Honour: But the Marechal answer'd, That in regard he knew not the Reasons why his Master detain'd those Garisons, he could not engage for any thing. From Namur he was conducted to Maeſtricht, and treated in both Places with all the Civility and Respect due to his Quality. His Confinement was not long; for upon the Return of the Captain of his Guard, whom he sent to give the King of France an Account of what had happen'd; and the Marechal engaging his Word that the Garisons of Dinamoyde and Deynſe should be sent back, as soon as he himself should be set at Liberty; His Britannick Majesty order'd the Governor of Maeſtricht to release him, and give him a Guard to conduct him safe to Dinant.

Marechal Boufflers Arrested.

1695.

The News of the Surrender of the Castle of Namur no sooner reach'd England, but it fill'd the Hearts of all the Well-affected to the present Government with an unspeakable Joy; and King William's expressing his just Resentment for the affront lately put upon His Majesty, by the detaining the Garisons of Dinamoyde and Deynſe, was highly Applauded by a Nation, which of all others, is impatient of Injuries, and jealous of the Honour of their Sovereign. The Lords Justices having appointed a Day of Publick Thanksgiving for the Glorious Success of his Majesty's Arms, the same was religiously observed at London, and throughout all England. On this occasion, on Sep. 9. the Earl of Roxborough, Master General of the Ordnance, order'd a Firework to be prepared in St. James's Church, which being fired to the general Satisfaction, His Majesty gave a great Entertainment to several Persons of Quality: The Night ending with Bonfires, Illuminations, and Ringing of Bells. Thus these Publick Rejoycings, the Dismissal of the said 1695. were Thunder-struck : And indeed their Disappointment seem'd to allow their Concern ; for not only their Hopes of seeing the Confederates Attempt upon Namur baffled, were frustrated, but a great many of them were totally ruin'd by the loss of considerable Wagers they had laid upon it.

The King leaves the Campaign. In the mean time the King having left the Command of the Army to the Elector of Bavaria, His Majesty went to Dieren, and from thence to Loo, His usual Recess for Diversion and Business, whilst both Armies continued in the Field till the 25th of September, and then began to separate. The French King's Household return'd into their Quarters, and most of the rest of His Troops retir'd within the Lines. As for the Allies, their Forces were distributed into several Neighbouring Garrisons, except some Detachments which march'd towards Newport, under the command of the Prince of Wurtemberg, for the security of that Place. And thus the Campaign in Flanders ended on both sides, much about the close of the Month of September.

Affairs in Ireland. To cast an Eye upon Ireland, we must observe, That on Aug. 27, the Parliament was opened in Dublin Castle, and the Lord Capel, Lord Deputy, being attended with all the usual Ceremonies, made this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

Many and great are the Obligations You owe to His Majesty ; I shall mention but a few of them. His Majesty has appear'd Himself in your Cause ; He has fought your Battels, and at His own Personal Hazard, has restored you to your Religion and Estates : And that every thing may concur to make you happy, His Majesty has now called you together in Parliament, that by reasonable and necessary Laws you may prevent the like Dangers for the time to come, and secure your selves and your Posterity upon the best and surest Foundations.

I shall not, I am sure I ought not to doubt, but you will make Returns of Loyalty and Affection suitable to the extraordinary Benefits you have received ; which cannot be better expressed, than by a Dutiful and Grateful Comportment towards His Majesty, and by shewing a perfect and forward Zeal in such things as tend to His Honour, and your own Advantage.

I must acquaint you, that His Majesty's Revenue has fallen short of the Establishment, which has occasion'd great Debts to the Civil and Military Lists : That it is with difficulty, and stopping of all manner of Payments, but what are absolutely necessary, that the Army hath hitherto been subsisted. There are also several other Debts due from the Crown ; a State whereof I have ordered to be laid before you, Gentlemen of the House of Commons ; by which you will see that Supplies are necessary for discharge of those Debts, and for the support of the Government.

For raising some part of this Money, His Majesty has sent you a Bill for an Additional Duty of Excise, and he expects from you, Gentlemen of the House of Commons, that you will consider of Ways and Means for raising such other Sums as are requisite for His Service, and prepare Heads of Bills to be pass'd into Laws in due form. And you will be the more cheerfull in giving, when I assure you, that what Money you give shall be applied to the Use for which it is given.

One thing I must recommend to you ; That you will take some Care for the rebuilding and 1695. repairing of Churches in the several Parts of your Country ; that the People having Decent Publick Places of Worship, may be better instructed in their Duty to their God, and Obedience to their King. It is a Tribute due to Almighty God for Our late Preservation and Deliverance, and will, I am verily perswaded, be one of the best Means you can think of, to preserve the true Established Religion, and to provide against future Rebellions.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I must inform you, that the Lords Justices of England have with great application and dispatch considered and retransmitted all the Bills sent to them. That some of these Bills have more effectually provided for your future Security, than hath ever heretofore been done ; and in my Opinion, the want of such Laws has been one of the great Causes of your past Miseries : And it will be your Fault, as well as Misfortune, if you neglect to lay hold of the Opportunity now put into your hands, by our Great and Gracious King, of a making such a lasting Settlement, that it may never more be in the Power of your Enemies to bring the like Calamities again upon you, or to put England again to that vast Expence of Blood and Treasure it hath so often been at for securing this Kingdom to the Crown of England.

His Majesty has been pleas'd to appoint Me His Deputy in this Government : I am truly sensible of my Unfitness for this great Station, and the Difficulties which attend it ; yet I assure you, I have, and will discharge the Trust reposed in me, with a stedfast Loyalty and Truth to His Majesty's Interest and Service ; and with a perfect Sincerity to yours ; and that I have no other End or Ambition than to see you settled under His Majesty's most Happy Government in Peace and Prosperity.

The Lords and Commons return'd their Thanks in Addressees to his Excellency for his Speech ; and pass'd this Vote, That they would to the utmost of their Power, stand by, and assist His Majesty and His Government against all His Enemies, Foreign and Domestic. After this Both Houses proceeded with great Unanimity and Dispatch to the Consideration of the Matters before them ; so that on the 6th of September the Lord Deputy gave the Royal Assent to an Act for an Additional Duty of Excise upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors. Another, For taking away the Writ de Heretico Comburendo. A Third, Declaring all Attainders, and all other Acts made in the late Pretended Parliament to be void. A Fourth, To restrain Foreign Education ; which was principally design'd to hinder the Growth of Poverty. A Fifth, For the better securing the Government, by disarming Papists : And a Sixth, For the better settling of Intestates Estates. Three days after the House of Commons, by unanimous Consent, granted to His Majesty a Supply of 163325 l. to be rais'd partly by a Poll-Tax ; and on the 18th of the same Month having consider'd the State of the Nation, they resolv'd, That the great Interest and Countenance the Irish had in the Court of England, during the two last Reigns, had been the chief Cause of all the Miseries and Calamities that had since befallen this Kingdom. On the 12th of October the Commons proceeded upon the farther Consideration of Ways and Means to raise the Supply, and having agreed upon a Computation of what the Excise and Poll-Tax might amount to, they pass'd a Vote, That the Excise should be continued two Years longer, after expiration of the present Act : And afterward resolv'd to lay a Duty upon Tobacco, Old and New Drapery, Muslins, Calicoes, and all 1695. all sorts of Linnen; and on Wine; to compleat the Supply granted. Which done, both Houses Adjourn'd themselves for some time.

State of Scotland.

As to the State of Scotland, A Parliament met there according to Summons, on May 9. when the Marquess of Tweeddale, His Majesty's Commissioner, went thither, attended in the usual manner; and His Majesty's Letter to the Lords Temporal, and Shires, and Burghs, was to this Effect.

King's Letter.

"That the Continuation of the War still hindered Him from pursuing His Resolution of being amongst them in Person, and so obliged Him to call them together once more in His Absence. That therefore He had appointed the Marquess of Tweeddale to be His Commissioner, and to Represent His Person and Authority among them. That the Marquess had given Proofs of his Capacity and Experience in Business, as well as of his Fidelity and Zeal, by his many and long Services to the Crown and Nation, particularly since his being Lord Chancellor; which would render him very acceptable to them. That His Majesty had fully entrusted him with His Mind, and given him Powers to pass all such Laws for the good of that His Majesty's ancient Kingdom, as had been Proposed to His Majesty at this time. That the Marquess was to Ask nothing of them in His Majesty's Name, but that which the Interest of the Country made necessary to be done: That therefore His Majesty need not mention to them, that the Subsidies for Paying the Forces were now Expired, and that their Peace and Safety required the Renewing of them during the War. That His Majesty was glad of any Appearances of a Disposition to Moderation and Union about Church-Matters; and He hop'd they would Encourage it, and Promote it, by removing the Subjects of Differences as much as they could. That He was not unmindful of the Letter to Him in the Close of the last Session. That the known Interruptions He had had in Business this Winter, had been a great hindrance to Him; but He was resolv'd to do whatsoever might be for the Security of the Government, and the Satisfaction of His good Subjects. In the Conclusion, His Majesty recommended to them Calmness and Unanimity in their Proceedings; not doubting but they would Act suitably to the Confidence He had put in them, in calling them again in His Absence.

This Letter was back'd by the High Commissioner's Speech, who told that Great Assembly, "That His Majesty's tender Care and Concern for their Safety and Welfare did evidently appear, in minding every thing that might contribute thereto: Particularly as to the Church, That all Differences might be Compos'd; it being His Majesty's Purpose to Maintain Presbyterian Government in the Church of Scotland; and that the Peace and Security of the Kingdom against Foreign Invasion, and Intestine Commotion, be provided for. That if they found it would tend to the Advancement of Trade, that an Act be pass'd for the Encouragement of such as should Acquire and Establish a Plantation in Africa or America, or any other part of the World, where Plantations might be lawfully acquired, His Majesty was willing to declare, That He would grant to the Subjects of this Kingdom, in favour of these Plantations, such Rights and Privileges, as he granted in like Cases to the Subjects of His other Dominions: And that the Judicatories, higher and Subaltern, be so Regulated in their Proceedings, as that Justice might be Administr'd 1695. "with the greatest Dispatch, and least Charge to the People. That these things had taken up some part of His Majesty's Time and Thoughts these Months past, and had been frequently Discours'd by Him; and then put in the Method of Instructions, and Directions for his Grace's Behaviour. That therefore it only remain'd for them to take these Weighty Affairs into Consideration, and to consult of the best Ways and Means to enable His Majesty to perfect so good Designs, by Granting him Supplies for Maintaining the present Land-Forces, and for Providing and Entertaining a Competent Naval Force, for the Defence of the Coast, and Securing of Trade: In order to which, His Majesty had Granted a Commission of Admiralty for Managing the Affairs thereof; not omitting to take Care for the other unavoidable Contingencies of the Government, wherein the Civil List came short; concluding that the Dispatch of these Great Affairs with Cheerfulness and Alacrity, would perfect a good Understanding, and perpetuate a Confidence between the King and them." The Earl of Amundale, Lord President of the Parliament, made likewise a Speech to them on this Occasion. He acknowledged His Majesty's Gracious Letter, wherein He asked nothing for Himself, but only prevented their necessary Cares for the Peace, Welfare, and Advanrage of this Kingdom. He took notice of the fresh Assurances they had of His Majesty's firm Resolutions to Maintain the "Presbyterian Government of this Church; and said, He hop'd the Moderation and Calmness that should at this time appear in all their Proceedings in Church-Matters, would satisfy the World, That this is the Government most agreeable to the Temper and Inclination of this People, and most suitable for the Interest and Support of their King, the Civil Government, and Peace of this Kingdom." And in the Conclusion, he Enforced all that had been said, "by one thing which did justly challenge a more than ordinary Zeal and Vigour in their Duty at this time, which was the sad and irreparable Loss they had sustained of the Best of Queens; wishing they might all of them make this use of it, that as now the whole Sovereignty was lodg'd in His Majesty, it might appear by their Actings, that they had doubled their Forwardness and Endeavours to serve Him; which was the only way now left them to shew their just Sense of their inexpressible Loss, and to make it in some Measure more supportable by His Majesty.

These Speeches had the desired Effect; the Parliament ordered an Answer to His Majesty's Letter, and an Address of Condolence for the Death of the Queen, to be drawn up and sent to His Majesty; and appointed a Committee for the Security of the Kingdom, and another for Trade. The first of these Committees having made their Report concerning the Supplies to be given to the King, it was unanimously Resolv'd, That the Sum of 1440000 Pounds Scots, be Granted for Maintenance of the Land-Forces, and for Providing and Maintaining Cruisers and Convoys for Defence of the Coasts and Trade; towards the Raising of which Sum, they made an Act for a General Poll, another for a Supply of Six Months Cels out of the Lands Rents, and a third for an Additional Excise; and a fourth for Three Months Cels more. The other Committee, after several Sittings, prepared an Act for settling a Trade in the Western Plantations; which was Approved and Pass'd. Several other good Laws were made by this Parliament; As an Act against Popish Parents making Deeds, or Dispositi-1695. ons, in prejudice of their Heirs who turn Protestants. An Act in favour of the Linnen Manufactory. An Act for Obviating the Frauds of Apparent Heirs. An Act for a Manufactory of Paper. An Act for Settling the Post-Stages within the Kingdom of Scotland. An Act for Sale of Bankrupts Estates, for the use of their Creditors. An Act for the Regulation of the Mint. An Act against Intruders into Churches, without a Legal Call and Admission. An Act against Blasphemy: Another against Prophaneness: Another against Irregular Baptisms and Marriages; and another concerning the Church. An Act to Raise 1000 Men Yearly, to Recruit the Scotch Regiments now Abroad. An Act for Burying in Scotch Linnen. And Lastly, An Act for Erecting a Publick Bank in this Kingdom.

Case of Glencoe.

But this Session of the Scotch Parliament is chiefly remarkable in this piece of History, for their strict Enquiry into a Passage that made a great noise in the World. In January 1692. the King sent Instructions to the Commanders of his Forces in Scotland, touching the Highland Rebels, who did not in due time accept of the Benefits of His Majesty's Indemnity; and which contain'd a Warrant of Mercy to all, without exception, who should offer to take the Oath of Allegiance, and come in upon Mercy, tho' the first day of January, 1693. prefix'd by the Proclamation of Indemnity was past. Contrary to His Majesty's Intention, 38 of the Inhabitants of Glencoe, a Town in the North of Scotland, after they had laid down their Arms, were Inhumanely Butcher'd in their Beds, their Houses Plunder'd and their Cattle carried away in February 1693. Which piece of Barbarity having given the King's Enemies a seemingly just occasion of Reflecting on His Government, the Committee for Security of the Kingdom, made a Motion for enquiring into that Matter. Thereupon His Majesty's Commissioner acquainted the Parliament, that the King had given Commission to several Persons to make enquiry into that Affair; which Commission being produced, Read, and agreed to, it was unanimously Voted, that the High Commissioner should be desired to transmit their humble Thanks to His Majesty, for his Care to Vindicate the Honour of the Government, and the Justice of the Nation, by granting such a Commission.

The Commissioners appointed by the King to enquire into the Slaughter of the Glencoe Men, having spent some Weeks in that Affair; on June 10. presented to the Parliament the private Articles agreed in July 1691. between the Earl of Brodalbine, and Major-General Buchan, with several of the Highland Clans; as also the Depositions of the Laird of Glengarnie and Colonel Hill, containing Informations of High Treason against the said Earl of Brodalbine; which being Read, after some Debate, an Order was made for his Prosecution before the Parliament, and for his Commitment to the Castle of Edinburgh. A Fortnight after, the Report of the Commissioners was communicated to the House, and the same being Read, with the Depositions of Witnesses, the King's Instructions, and several Letters from the Master of Staires, Secretary of State, it was Voted by unanimous Consent, That His Majesty's Instructions to Sir Thomas Livingstone, and Colonel Hill, contained no Warrant for the Execution of the Glencoe Men; that the said Execution was a Murder; that the Master of Staires Letters did exceed the King's Instructions, and that Sir Thomas Livingstone had reason to give the Orders he had given. On the Second of July the Parliament went upon the same Affair, and Colonel Hill and Lieutenant Hamilton were call'd: the first appear'd, was Examind and Clear'd;

Vindication of the King's Honour.

but the Latter not appearing, was order'd to be 1695.
Apprehended, and afterwards on July the 8th. Voted Guilty of the Murder of the Glencoe-Men. Then the House Proceeded against the other Persons that were Actors therein; and agreed upon an Address to His Majesty that He would send them home to be Prosecuted, or not, as His Majesty should think fit; and that he would take into His Princely Consideration the Case of the Glencoe Men. This Address was on July the 10th. recommended to the King's Commissioner to be Transmitted to His Majesty, with Duplicates of His Majesty's Instructions, and the Master of Staires Letters. At the same time His Majesty's Commissioners received the unanimous Thanks of the Parliament, for laying the Discovery of the matter of Glencoe before them, and for their careful procedure in their Commission; and a new Protection was Granted to the Glencoe Men.

On the First of July, the Earl of Brodalbine being brought to the Bar of the Parliament in order to his Tryal, delivered in a Petition, Praying he might be allowed some competent time for bringing of Witnesses from remote Places, and for recovery of such Documents, as he was to make use of for his Vindication, both from the Secretaries Office at London, and his House in the Country. The Advocates on both sides, having been heard upon this Petition, it was put to the Vote, whether the Day for his Lordship to give in his Defence, should be the 8th. or 15th. of the Current Month; and it was carried the 15th. and that in the mean time he might raise Letters of Exculpation. Then the Indictment against him was Read, and he remanded to Prison. The same day the Process of Treason, at the Instance of the King's Advocate, against the Earl of Melfort, and others in France, being call'd, the King's Advocate produced his Warrant from the Privy Council, for raising this Process against them, and desired that it might be Recorded. Afterwards the Indictment was Read, and the King's Advocate declared he insist'd at that time only against the Earls of Middleton and Melfort, and Sir Adam Blair, and on that part of the Indictment which recited, that by the Act of Parliament 1693. it was declared Treason to be in France after the 1st. of August 1693. and therefore craved the Indictment might be found to be Good in Law; which being put to the Vote, it was carried in the Affirmative. The next day the House Pass'd Sentence against the Earls of Middleton and Melfort, and Sir Adam Blair, to Forfeit Life and Fortune; and Order'd the rest who adhered to His Majesty's Enemies, and were then in France, to be Prosecuted before the Lords of the Justiciary. On the 15th. of July, the Earl of Brodalbine, being again brought to the Bar, begg'd more time to make his Defence, which was granted him till the 25th. of the same Month; but all the Publick Affairs being happily concluded by the 17th. it was moved and agreed to, that the Process of Treason against him should be continued till the next Session of Parliament: After which His Majesty's Commissioner gave the Parliament Thanks for their Real and Hearty Compliance with His Majesty's Demands; Recommended to them the Preservation of the Publick Peace in their several Countries, and Adjourn'd them till the Seventh of November next.

Whilst the Parliament of Scotland was Sitting, Mr. Crazen, Mr. Burnet, and Mr. Thompson, Three of the Ministers in the Synod of Aberdeen, who protest'd against the Commission of the late General Assembly, were call'd before 1695. the House, and Examind. After some Debate, the Churches of the said Ministers, were on July the 1st. declared to be Vacant; and they debarred from the Exercise of their Ministerial Function, until they had qualified themselves by taking the Oath of Allegiance to His Majesty, and Subscribing the Assurance; and Imprison'd till they gave caution not to go on the North side of the River Forth, under the Penalty of 100*l.* Sterling. However the said Ministers were Four Days after set at Liberty, upon their single Promise not to go beyond that River.

The King returns to England. We now return to England with His Majesty, who on October the 9th. Embark'd in the Marse, on Board the William and Mary Yatch, and the next Day landed safely at Margate, Convoy'd by a Squadron under Command of Sir Cloudesly Shovel. That Night His Majesty lay at Canterbury, and on the 11th. came to Kensington, the People expressing a singular Joy for His Safe and Glorious Return.

Places and Honours. From the time of his Majesty's Absence, these Honours and Preferments were well bestowed. On May 23. John Smith, Esq; one of the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, was Sworn of the Privy-Council, and Christopher Musgrave, Esq; was Sworn Clerk of the Council in Extraordinary. On June 8th. Sir Edward Ward, His Majesty's Attorney-General, was made Serjeant at Law, and in the Evening was Sworn Lord Chief Baton of the Court of Exchequer and receiv'd his Patent. In his room, Sir Thomas Trevor, on June 11. was Sworn His Majesty's Attorney-General; and on July 13. John Hawles, Esq; of Lincolns-Inn, was Sworn His Majesty's Solicitor-General. The same Evening His Majesty came to Kensington;

Parliament Dissolved. He held a Council, and therein Ordered a Proclamation to be Issued for Dissolving the present Parliament, and Issuing out of Writs for the calling of a New Parliament, to begin at Westminster on Friday, Nov. 22. In the mean time, His Majesty took a Progress, and went first to Newmarket on Thursday, October 17. where He receiv'd the Compliments of the University of Cambridge.

The King's Progress. He went thence to Althorp in Northamptonshire, the Seat of the Earl of Sunderland, whose Counsels and Conversation began to be more and more acceptable to His Majesty. While He lay here, He made a Visit to the Earl of Northampton at Castle-Ashby, and to the Earl of Mountague at Boughton; and was Entertain'd at both these Places with a Splendid Dinner. From Althorp the King went to Stamford, October 28. and in His way took a View of Burleigh-House, without seeing the Owner of it. On October 30. His Majesty went to Lincoln, and having heard Prayers at the Cathedral, pursued His Journey to Welbeck, the Duke of Newcastle's Seat in Nottinghamshire. Here the Archbishop of York, with his Clergy, waited upon His Majesty on November 2. to Congratulate His happy Success and safe Return, expressing their Gratitude for His Majesty's Care of the Church, and for shewing Himself truly a Defender of the Faith. On November 3. the King left Welbeck, and came that Evening to the Earl of Stamford's House at Broadgate. On November 4. He went to the Lord Brook's at Warwick Castle: Next Day He Dined with the Duke of Shrewsbury at Eyford, and came that Evening to Burford, and three Days after to Woodstock; from whence, on November 10. His Majesty came to Oxford, being met by the Duke of Ormond, Chancellor of the University, Dr. Adams, Vice-Chancellor, with other Doctors and Masters in their Academical Habits. The King alighted at the East Gate of the Schools, and passed directly to the Theatre, where a Noble Banquet was provided, with great Variety of Musick. Mr. Cadrington, Fellow of All-Souls, Expressed the Publick Thanks of the University, in an Elegant Oration. The Chancellor on his Knees Presented His Majesty with a Large English Bible and Common-Prayer-Book, the Cuts of the University, and a Pair of Gold-Fring'd Gloves. It was expected that His Majesty should have sat down to the Banquet; but whether He was indispos'd to eat, or whether discouraged by an idle Letter dropt in the Street, and intimating the Designs of Poison, His Majesty rose up, and immediately took Coach for Windsor; declaring as a Reason of His short Stay, and His not going to see the Colledges, That this was a Sign of Kindness, not of Curiosity, He having seen the University before.

Meeting of the New Parliament. On Friday, Nov. 22. The Parliament met according to the Writs of Summons, and the King being seated on the Throne. the Commons were sent for up, to whom my Lord Keeper signified His Majesty's Pleasure, That they should forthwith proceed to the Choice of a Speaker. After which, the Commons return'd to their House, and unanimously made Choice of Paul Foley, Esq; who being Presented the next Day, His Majesty did Graciously Approve of him, and then made this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,
 "IT is with great Satisfaction that I Meet you here this Day, being assured of a Good Disposition in my Parliament, when I have had such full Proofs of the Affection of my People, by their Behaviour during my Absence, and at my Return.
 "I was Engaged in this present War by the Advice of My First Parliament; who thought it Necessary for the Defence of Our Religion, and the Preservation of the Liberties of Europe. The Last Parliament with great Cheerfulness did Assist Me to carry it on; and I cannot doubt but that your Concern for the Common Safety will oblige you to be unanimously zealous in the prosecution of it: And I am glad that the Advantages which We have had this Year, give Us a Reasonable Ground of hoping for further Success hereafter.
 "Upon this Occasion I cannot but take notice of the Courage and Bravery which the English Troops have shewn this last Summer; which I may say, has answer'd their highest Character in any Age: And it will not be denied, that without the concurrence of the Valour and Power of England, it were impossible to put a stop to the Ambition and Greatness of France.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,
 "I think it a great Misfortune, that from the beginning of my Reign, I have been forced to ask so many, and such large Aids of My People; and yet I am confident you will agree with Me in Opinion, That there will be at least as great Supplies requisite for carrying on the War by Sea and Land this Year, as was granted in the last Session; the rather, because Our Enemies are augmenting their Troops, and the Necessity of increasing Our Shipping does plainly appear.
 "The Funds which have been given, have proved very deficient.
 "The Condition of the Civil List is such, that it will not be possible for Me to subsist, unless that Matter be taken into your Care.
 "And Compassion obliges Me to mention the Miserable Circumstances of the French Protestants, who suffer for their Religion.
 "And therefore, Gentlemen, I most earnestly recommend to you to provide a Supply suitable to these several Occasions.

1695.

“ I must likewise take notice of a great Difficulty We lie under at this time, by reason of the ill State of the Coin, the Redress of which may perhaps prove a further Charge to the Nation; but this is a Matter of such general Concern, and of so very great Importance, that I have thought fit to leave it entirely to the Consideration of My Parliament.

“ I did recommend to the last Parliament the Forming some good Bill for the Encouragement and Increase of Seamen; I hope you will not let this Session pass without doing somewhat in it; and that you will consider of such Laws as may be proper for the advancement of Trade, and will have a particular regard to that of the East-India, lest it should be lost to the Nation. And while the War makes it necessary to have an Army Abroad, I could wish some Way might be thought of to raise the necessary Recruits, without giving occasion of Complaint.

“ My desire to meet My People in a New Parliament, has made the Opening of this Session very late; which I hope you will have such regard to, as to make all possible dispatch of the great Business before you; and will call to mind, That by the long Continuance of the last Session, We did not only lose Advantages which We might have had at the beginning of the Campaign, but gave the Enemy such an Opportunity as might have proved very fatal to Us. And I am the more concern'd to press this, because of the great Preparations which the French make to be early in the Field this Year.

My Lords,

“ I have had such Experience of your Good Affections; and I have such an entire Satisfaction in the Choice which My People have made of You, Gentlemen of the House of Commons, that I promise my self a Happy Conclusion of this Session, unless you suffer your selves to be misled into Heats and Divisions; which being the only Hope Our Enemies have now left, I make no doubt but you will entirely disappoint by your Prudence and Love to your Country.

Addresses of the Two Houses.

Both Houses in their respective Addresses, with great Zeal and Unanimity, congratulated the Glorious Success of His Majesty's Arms Abroad, and His Safe Return Home; and likewise return'd His Majesty Thanks for the Trust and Confidence He repos'd in their Affections; assuring Him, That they would support His Majesty and His Government against all His Enemies Foreign and Domestick, and effectually assist Him in the prosecution of the present War in which He was engaged for the Safety of England, and Liberty of Europe. The Commons Address being presented by the whole House, His Majesty gave them this Answer.

Gentlemen,

I heartily thank You for the Marks You give Me of Your Affection: Our Interests are inseparable, and there is nothing I wish so much as the Happiness of this Country where God has plac'd Me.

The next Business of the Commons was to address the King, That He would please to appoint a Day of Fasting and Humiliation for imploring the Blessing of Almighty God upon the Consultations of this present Parliament; and His Majesty was pleas'd to appoint Wednesday, Dec. 11. to be strictly kept and observed within the Bills of Mortality; and Wednesday 18. in all other Places. Dr. Till being appointed to preach before the Commons in the Morning; and Dr. Williams in the Afternoon.

1695.

The many Protections given to the Servants of Parliament Men, and the taking Men into Custody upon Complaints of the Breach of those Protections, was really become a Grievance to the Subject; and therefore on Nov. 30. it was Ordered, “ That all Protections and Written Certificates of the Members of this House be declared void in Law, and be forthwith withdrawn, and called in, and that none be granted for the future; and that if any shall be granted by any Member, such Member shall be liable to the Censure of this House; and that the Privileges of their Menial Servants be observed according to Law: And that if any Menial Servant shall be arrested and detain'd contrary to Privilege, He shall (upon Complaint thereof made to the Speaker) be discharged by Order from him. And that no Person shall be taken into Custody upon complaint of any Breach of Privileges of this House, before the Matter be first examined; which Order was not to extend to any Breach of Privilege upon the Person of any Member of this House.

Order for no Written Protections.

The next thing considered, was a Supply to be granted to His Majesty, which was referred to a Committee; from which Sir Thomas Littleton reported these Resolutions, which were agreed to by the House. They granted the Sum of Two Millions, Five hundred thousand Pounds Sterling for the Navy: Sixteen thousand, Nine hundred, Seventy and Two Pounds for the Officers of the Two Marine Regiments. Two Millions, Seven Thousand, Eight Hundred Eighty Two Pounds for the Pay of 87440 Men, including Commission and Non-Commission Officers, making up the Horse, Dragoons and Foot, which according to the List of the Land Forces, deliver'd into the House, they had voted necessary for the Service of the Year 1696. And lastly, 500000 l. for the Office of Ordnance, the Pay of the Great Officers, Transports, Hospitals, Contingencies, and other extraordinary Charge of the War: In all, Five Millions, Twenty Four Thousand Eight Hundred Fifty Three Pounds.

Resolutions for Supply.

The Bill for regulating Tryals in Cases of Treason, and Misprision of Treason, which had been several times lost in the former Parliaments, was again brought into the House of Commons, Nov. 26. and in a short time read three times there, and sent up to the Lords for their Concurrence, by which many Hardships upon the Liberty of the Subject were removed, or mitigated: For it was hereby Enacted, “ That all Persons indicted for High-Treason, or Misprision of it, shall have a Copy of the Indictment five Days before their Tryal, and shall be admitted to make their Defence by Counsel learned in the Law, not exceeding two. That no Person shall be indicted or attainted, but by the Oaths of two Lawful Witnesses. That no Person shall be prosecuted, unless the Indictment be found within three Years after the Offence committed. That all Persons indicted shall have Copies of the Jury two Days before their Tryal; and shall have like Process to compel their Witnesses to appear for them, as is usually granted to Witnesses against them. To this Bill the Lords added the Clause they had always insisted upon; “ That upon the Tryal of any Peer or Peeres for Treason or Misprision, all the Peers who have a Right to sit and vote in Parliament, shall be duly summoned twenty Days at least before such Tryal, and shall not vote without first taking the Oaths appointed by the Act 1^o Will. and Mary, and subscribing and repeating

Bill for regulating Tryals in Cases of Treason

1695. "the Declaration mentioned in the Act made
 "30 Car. II. which Clause was agreed to by the "Commons. It is remarkable, that whilst this Bill was depending in the House of Commons,
 the Lord Shaftsbury rose up in order to speak for it; and having begun his Speech, he seemed to be so surpriz'd, that for a while he could not go on; but having recover'd himself, he took occasion from his very Surprize, to Enforce the Necessity of allowing Counsel to Prisoners who were to appear before their Judges, since he who was not only innocent and unaccus'd, but one of Their own Members, was so dubt when he was to speak before that August Assembly. This Turn of Wit did Service in promoting that Expedient Bill.

III State
 of the Coin.

The Lords were considering that part of the King's Speech that related to the ill State of the Coin, and had drawn up an Address, to which in a Conference they desir'd the Concurrence of the Commons; who chose rather to proceed in their own Way, by appointing a Committee, who should have Power to consider of a Fund to make good the Deficiency of the Clipt Money.
 And here the great Question was, Whether it was necessary or expedient to recoin the Silver Money? The Country Party held the Negative; the Court Party the Affirmative; and the Arguments were weighty on both sides. The Reasons against calling in, and recoining the Money were; "That
 "this was no fit Juncture for it, while the Nati"on was engaged in a burthenfome and doubt"ful War, by which the Kingdom had already
 "greatly suffer'd, and of which it grew every Day
 "more sensible. That therefore the People, on "whose Good Affection the Government so "much depended, should not be provoked by
 "fresh Grievances, greater than any they had
 "yet felt, as those would certainly be, that "must arise from the calling in the Silver Coin.
 "That if this was done, however Things might "be managed and accommodated at home, it
 "were impossible to maintain either the Com"merce or the War abroad; for neither the "Merchant could be paid his Bills of Exchange,
 "nor the Soldier receive his Subsistence. That "this was to lay the Ax to the Root, and to dig
 "up the Foundation of the Government. That "if this Design was prosecuted, Trade must "stand still for want of mutual Payments; whence
 "such Disorder and Confusion would certainly "follow, as would discourage and dishearten the "People in the highest measure, if not drive
 "them to a perfect Despair, as Despair would "be the most terrible Extremities. That there"fore the recoining the Money at this time was
 "by no means to be attempted without hazard-
 "ing All.

Arguments for recoining the Silver
 Money.

'Twas alledged by those of the contrary Opinion, at the Head of whom appear'd Mr. Charles Mountague, Chancellor of the Exchequer, "That
 "the Milchief would be fatal, if a present Remedy
 "was not found out and apply'd. That by "Reason of the ill State of the Coin, the "Change abroad was infinitely to the Nation's
 "Prejudice. That the Supplies that were rais'd
 "to maintain the Army would never attain their
 "End, being so much diminish'd and devour'd
 "by the unequal Change, and exorbitant Premiums before they reach'd the Camp. That this "was the unhappy Cause that the Guineas ad-
 "vanc'd to Thirty Shillings, and Foreign Gold
 "in proportion: That therefore to the Nation's "great loss, not only the Dutch, but indeed all
 "Europe sent that Commodity to this Market,
 "and would continue to do so, till the Nation
 "should be impoverish'd and undone by plenty
 "of Gold. That we must exchange for their

"Gold our Goods, or our Silver, till at last we "should have only Guineas to trade withal;
 "which no body could think our Neighbours
 "would be so kind to receive back at the value
 "they were at here. That therefore this Disease
 "would every Day take deeper root, infect the "very Vitals of the Nation, and if not remedied,
 "would soon become incurable. That our E"nemies must be mightily intimidated by so "great an Action, and would sooner be induc'd
 "to agree to Honourable Terms of Peace, in "case they saw us able to surmount this Difficul"ty, by the retrieving the ill State of the Coin,
 "on which their Hopes of the Nation's speedy
 "Ruin so much depended; and that it would
 "justly create a mighty Esteem abroad, of the "Greatness and Wisdom of the Parliament of "England, which was able to conquer such an
 "obitinate and almost insuperable Evil in such
 "a Juncture of Affairs.

1695.

These Matters being fully debated, the Parliament resolv'd to call in, and recoin the Silver-Money, chusing rather to run the hazard of some great Inconveniencies, than by a longer Neglect to expose the Kingdom to apparent Ruin. The next Step was to consider, Whether the several Denominations of the New Money should have the same Weight and Fineness as the Old; or, Whether the Establish'd Standard should be rais'd? This Question produced many Debates: Those who were for raising the Standard, did Argue, "That the "Price of an Ounce of Silver Bullion was ad"vanced to Six Shillings and Three Pence, and
 "therefore the Standard ought to be rais'd to an "Equality. That the raising the Standard would "prevent the Exportation of our Coin, and the "melting of it down, which of late Years has "been much practis'd, to the great prejudice of "this Kingdom; and that it would encourage "People to bring in their Plate and Bullion into
 "the Mint." The Court Party, who were for preserving the Old Standard, urged, "That
 "as to the Price of Bullion, now rais'd to Six
 "Shillings and Threepence, it was impossible
 "the Price of Silver could rise and fall in respect
 "of its self, but the alteration of the Value of "Bullion was merely in relation to Diminish'd
 "Money; for it was still Matter of Fact, That
 "with Five Shillings and Twopence of New
 "Mill'd Money, they could buy an Ounce of "Bullion; whilst those who bought it with Clipt
 "Pieces, paid Six Shillings Threepence.

Question.
 Whether the Standard should continue?

As to the Argument of preventing the Exportation of Money by raising the Standard, it was answer'd, "There was no way possible to keep "our Money at home, but by out-trading our "Neighbours; that is, by sending them more "Commodities, or of greater value than those
 "we received from them, &c.

After these Debates, the Commons resolv'd on Dec. 10. "That all Clipt Money be recoin'd
 "according to the Establish'd Standard of the "Mint, both as to the Weight and Fineness.
 "That the Loss of such Clipt Money shall be "born by the Publick. That a Day be appoint"ed, after which no Crowns or Half-Crowns be "allowed in any Payment. That another Day
 "be appointed for all Persons to bring in their
 "Clipt Money to be recoin'd into Mill'd Mo"ney: And that a Fund be settled for supplying
 "the Deficiencies." After this Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer reported the Form of an Address, to desire His Majesty to regulate the Currency of Clipt Money, according to the foregoing Resolutions; which Address being presented to the King, He caus'd His Royal Proclamation to be issued out for that purpose. And Resolutions about the Coin.

1695. the Lords had already Address'd His Majesty to the same Effect.

Some time before, the Commons having considered, that the maintaining an Army Abroad occasioned the Exportation of the Coin, which could not be prevented, but by supplying the said Army with Necessaries out of this Kingdom; on Dec. 13. Ordered an Address to be presented to His Majesty, That He would please to procure, that all Commodities and Provisions, that should be Transported from England for the Use of the Forces in His Majesty's Pay abroad, might be exempted from any Duty or Excise, throughout the Spanish and United Netherlands. To which the King Answer'd, That what was desired by the Commons, had been done in a good Measure for several Years; and that he would see what could be further done in it.

Bill for regulating Coinage.

The Commons having considered the Bill for Regulating the Coinage of the Silver Money, which the Chancellor of the Exchequer had prepared, and presented to the House on Dec. 17. ordered on Dec. 23. a Clause of Loan to be inserted in it, in favour of such as would advance Money on Credit of the Exchequer in general, transferrable to such Funds as should be settled by Parliament, towards making good the Deficiencies of the Clipp'd Money; and likewise order'd the same Committee to take care, that all Persons who should bring in Clipp'd Money (above what was for Taxes) should have a Recompence for the same. This Bill was amended accordingly, and four days after pass'd, and sent up to the Lords for their Concurrence.

On the 31st of December the Commons resolv'd to raise the 1200000*l.* for supplying the Deficiency of the Clipp'd Money, by a Duty laid upon all Dwelling-Houses, except Cottages; to wit, Two Shillings Yearly upon each House; Four Shillings upon every House having Ten Windows; and Eight Shillings upon such Houses as have Twenty Windows, over and above the said Two Shillings; which Duty was to be paid by the Inhabitants of the said Houses, and to be continued for the space of Seven Years, and no longer.

The days appointed by the King's Proclamation for putting a Stop to the Currency of Clipp'd Money, were so short, that an immediate Stop was thereby put to Trade: So as the House of Commons were oblig'd in a Grand Committee to consider the State of the Nation, and how to prevent the Stop of Commerce during the Re-coining of the Clipp'd Moneys. After some Debates for several days, the Commons Resolv'd on Jan. 9. First, That the Recompence for supplying the Deficiency of Clipp'd Money, should extend to all Clipp'd Money which was Silver, although of a course Alloy than the Standard. Secondly, That the Collectors and Receivers of His Majesty's Aids and Revenues, be enjoined to receive all such Moneys. Thirdly, That a Reward of Five Pounds per Cent. be given to all such Persons as should bring in either Mill'd or Broad Unclipp'd Money, to be applied in Exchange of the Clipp'd Money throughout the Kingdom. Fourthly, That a Reward also of Three pence per Ounce be given to all Persons who should bring in wrought Plate to the Mint to be re-coined. Fifthly, That for the sooner bringing in the Clipp'd Money to be re-coined, any Persons might pay in their whole next Year's Tax of Four Shillings in the Pound, in the said Clipp'd Money, at one convenient time appointed for that purpose. Lastly, That Commissioners be appointed in every County, to pay and distribute the Mill'd and Broad Unclipp'd Money, and the New Coin'd Money, and to receive the Clipp'd Money. And at the same time appointed a Committee to prepare and bring in a Bill upon the said Resolutions. This Bill was accordingly presented, and after a Second Reading on

Jan. 21. committed to a Committee of the whole House; who Resolved, That a further Encouragement be given for bringing in Plate to be Coin'd, and Broad Money in order to be exchange'd for Clipp'd Money: And that a Clause be inserted in the said Bill, to prevent the Melting down and Exportation of Coin, or any Bullion; and another Clause to prohibit the use of Plate in Publick Houses; which at last prov'd the best Expedient to supply the Mints with Bullion.

The Lords having made several Amendments to the Bill for Regulating the Coinage of the Silver Money of this Kingdom; most of 'em, after several Debates and Conferences, were disagree'd to by the Commons: Whereupon Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer according to Order presented to the House another Bill for Remedying the Ill State of the Coin of this Kingdom: Which was receiv'd, and after some Amendments, order'd to be Engross'd, and sent up to the Lords, who gave their Concurrence to it.

On Dec. 14. the Lords in a Conference communicated to the Commons an Address to His Majesty, in relation to an injurious Act of Parliament made in Scotland, for Erecting a Company Trading to Africa and the East-Indies: To which Address the Commons gave their Concurrence; and on the 17th they appointed a Committee to examine what Methods were taken for obtaining that Scotch Act; and who were the Subscribers for Establishing that East-India Company, and who were the Promoters and Advisers of it. On the same Tuesday Afternoon, Both Houses attended the King with that Address: To which His Majesty was pleas'd to make this Answer; I have been Ill Served in Scotland; but I hope some Remedies may be found, to prevent the Inconveniencies which may arise from this Act.

This Business did not stop here: For the Committee appointed by the Commons to examine by what Methods the said Act was obtained, having made their Report, and delivered a Copy of an Oath de Fideli, taken by the Directors of the Scotch East-India Company, and of the Journal of the Proceedings of the said Directors; and the said Report, Oath, and Journal being Examind; as also the Petition presented to the House, by the English East-India Company, it was resolv'd on Jan. 26. "That the Directors of the Company of Scotland, Trading to Africa and the Indies, administering and taking here in this Kingdom, an Oath de Fideli; and under colour of a Scotch Act of Parliament, styling themselves a Company, and acting as such, and raising Moneys in this Kingdom, for carrying on the said Company, were guilty of a high Crime and Misdemeanor; and that the Lord Bullbarren, William Paterson, David Nairne, James Smith, James Cheisty, William Shepberd, Robert Blackwood, James Balfour, James Fowles, Thomas Contts, Abraham Wilmer, Daniel Van Mildert, Robert Williamson, Anthony Merry, Paul Dominique, Robert Douglas, Thomas Skinner, Hugh Fraizer, James Bateman, Walter Stewart, and Joseph Cohen D'Azavedo, be Impeached of the said high Crimes and Misdemeanors."

Whilst a Committee was drawing up the Impeachments, Roderick Mackenzie endeavour'd to suppress the Evidence he had given against the said Persons, for which he was order'd to be taken into Custody; but he made his Escape; nor could he be apprehended, although the King, at the Request of the Commons on Feb. 13. had issued out a Proclamation for that purpose. However, the worth of this Affair, was, That the Commons having several times in a Grand Committee consider'd the State of the Nation, in re-1695.

Address against the Scotch East-India Company.

This Business pursued in other Resolutions.

1695. Resolutions for Trade. lation to Trade; and Resolved, First, "That a Council of Trade be established by Act of Parliament, with Powers for the more effectual Preservation of the Trade of this Kingdom. Secondly, That the Commissioners constituting the said Council, be Nominated by Parliament. Thirdly, That none of the Commissioners be of this House. Fourthly, That the said Commissioners should take an Oath, acknowledging that King William was Rightful and Lawful King of this Realm; and that the late King James had no Right or Title thereunto; and that no other Person has any Right or Title to the Crown, otherwise than according to the Act of Settlement, made in the First Year of His Majesty's Reign, &c." And these and Ten more Resolutions relating to the said Council, being Reported to the House on Jan. 13. the First and Second, with some others, were indeed approv'd, but several others, and especially the Fourth, whereby King William was to be Acknowledg'd Rightful and Lawful King; and which occasion'd a warm Debate, were rejected by the House. And a Bill was ordered to be brought in upon the Resolutions agreed unto.

Ways and Means. Amidst these Important Affairs, the Commons did not forget the Ways and Means of raising the Necessary Aids for the War. They Tax'd Land Four Shillings in the Pound, and laid the same Imposition upon all Personal Estates, and upon all Offices and Employments of Profit other than Military Offices in the Army, Navy, and Ordnance. They proceeded to these further Resolutions. 1. "To enlarge the Times for Persons to come in and purchase certain Annuities, mentioned in a former Act. 2. To continue the Duties formerly charg'd on Low Wines and Spirits of the First Extraction. 3. To continue the Duties upon all Wines, Vinegar, and Tobacco, from the 24th of June, 1698. to 29th Sept. 1701. 4. To continue the Duties upon all East-India Goods and Manufactures, and upon all Wrought Silks, and several other Goods, from the 10th of Nov. 1697. to 29th Sept. 1701. 5. To settle a Fund, by continuing the Duties upon Salt, for the Payment of Interest, not exceeding 7 l. per Cent. redeemable by Parliament. And 6. That the Duties of 25 l. per Tun be laid upon all French Wine, 30 l. per Tun upon all French Brandy, and 15 l. per Tun on all French Vinegar, and 25 l. per Cent. ad Valorem, upon all other Goods of the Growth, Product, or Manufacture of France, Imported after the 12th day of March, 1697. for the Term of 21 Years, over and above the Duties already charged thereupon; and several Bills were prepared and brought in according to the said Resolutions.

Acts passed. On Tuesday Jan. 21. His Majesty came to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for Enlarging the Times to come in, and Purchase certain Annuities therein mentioned; and for continuing the Duties formerly charg'd on Low Wines, or Spirits of the First Extraction, for carrying on the War against France. 2. An Act for Regulating of Tryals in cases of Treason, and Misprision of Treason. 3. An Act for Remedying the ill State of the Coin of the Kingdom. 4. An Act for Preventing Charge and Expence in Elections of Members to serve in Parliament. 5. An Act for Enabling Sir Thomas Parkins, Bart. to sell certain Messuages, Londs and Hereditaments in Huby and Easingwoud in the County of York; and for Settling other Lands and Hereditaments of greater Value in lieu thereof. 6. An Act to enable Sir Thomas Pope Blount, Bart. to make a Settlement upon the Marriage of his Eldest Son. 7. An Act for Vesting the Manor of Madeley in the County of Salop, in Trustees, for certain Purposes therein mentioned. 8. An Act for Enabling the Lady Katherine Fane to sell the Reversion of certain Fee-Farm Rents, given to her by her Grandfather, John Bence, Esq. 9. An Act for Enabling Thomas Stoner, Esq; (Son and Heir of John Stoner, Esq; Deceased) to make a Jointure and Settlement of his Estate in Marriage, notwithstanding his Minority. 10. An Act for vesting several Messuages and Lands belonging to Samuel Powell, Esq; in Trustees for Payment of his Debts.

There was another Affair depending in this Session, which very sensibly concern'd His Majesty. The Earl of Portland had begg'd of His Majesty the Lordships of Denbigh, Bromfield, and Tulle, and other Lands in the Principality of Wales; which His Majesty readily Granted to him and his Heirs for ever: The Warrant coming to the Lords of the Treasury, the Gentlemen of the County upon short Notice were heard on May 10. before their Lordships. Sir William Williams then allעד'd, That these Lordships were the Ancient Demesnes of the Prince of Wales; That the Welsh were never Subject to any but God and the King. That in the Statute for Granting Fee-Farm Rents, there was an Exception of the Rents belonging to the Principality of Wales; which Imported, That the Parliament took those Revenues to be unalienable; That upon Creation of a Prince of Wales, there were many Acknowledgments payable out of those Lordships; and though there were at present no Prince of Wales, yet he hop'd to see one of the King's own Body, &c. Sir Roger Puleston allעד'd, That the Revenues of these Lordships did Support the Government of Wales, by paying the Judges and other Officers their stated Salaries; and if given away there would be a Failure of Justice. And Mr. Price, a Gentleman of great Parts, (since one of the Barons of the Exchequer) did boldly urge, "That the Grant was of a large Extent, being Five Parts in Six of a whole County, which was too great a Power for any Foreign Subject to have; and that the People of the Country were too great to be Subject to any Foreigner: Let it be considered, (says he) Can it be for His Majesty's Honour or Interest, (when the People hear this and understand it,) That He daily gives away the Revenues of His Crown, and what is more, the Perpetuity of them to his Foreign Subjects? Good Kings after a long and chargeable War were wont to tell their People, That they were Sorry for the Hardships the Nation underwent by long War and heavy Taxes; and that now they would Live upon their own: But it is to be fear'd, if Grants are made so large and so frequent, there would be nothing for the King or His Successors to call their own to Live upon. He concluded thus: It is to be hop'd your Lordships will consider, That we had but one Day's Notice of this Attendance, and must come therefore very much unprovided; yet we doubt not, these Hints and broken Thoughts we have offer'd to your Lordships, you will, by your great Judgments, improve, whereby the ill Consequences of this Grant may truly be represented to His Majesty. The Lord Godolphin, the First Commissioner of the Treasury, ask'd for Satisfaction, Whether the Earl of Leicester had not those Lordships in Grant to him in Queen Elizabeth's time? Sir Robert Cotton answered, He believ'd he could give the best Account in that Case; That the Earl of Leicester had but one of those Lordships; and that was Denbigh: That he was so Oppressive to the Gentry of the Country, that he occasion'd them to take up Arms, and to oppose him; for which Three or Four of his (Sir Robert Cotton's) Relations were hang'd; but that it ended not there, for the Quarrel was kept still on foot, and the Earl glad to be in Peace, and to Grant it back to the Queen; since which time it had ever been in the Crown. Whereupon the Lord G. Godolphin said, 1695. Grants to the Earl of Portland.

Offensive to the Gentry of Wales.

1695. They had offer'd many weighty Reasons, which they should represent to His Majesty. From the Treasury the Gentlemen of Wales attended the Grant to the Privy-Seal, where their Reasons and Complaints against it were heard and receiv'd with all Candor and Goodness. Yet notwithstanding all this, the said Grant being only superseded, but not recalled, Sir Thomas Gresvener, Sir Richard Middleton, Sir John Conway, Sir Robert Cotton, Sir William Williams, Sir Roger Puleston, Edward Vaughan, Edward Brereton, and Robert Price, Esq; address'd themselves by Petition to the Commons. Upon this Occasion the same Mr. Price, a Member of that House, made a Memorable speech; wherein he said, "That this Petition, though subscribed by a few Hands, had the approbation of many Thousands who were not influenced by their own Interest, but acted for the Honour of the Crown, and Welfare of the British Nation. That if he could conceive how the Glory and Grandeur of England was, or could be upheld by a poor Landless Crown, and a miserable necessitous People, he could be then easily persuaded to believe that His Majesty was well advised to grant away all the Revenues of the Crown; and that His Government thereby would be well secured, and His People best protected, when they had little or nothing left; but he was sure they were not English, but Foreign Politicians, who might revere the King, and yet hate His People. That the Kings of England always reigned best when they had the Affections of their Subjects, of which they were secure when the People were sensible the King was entirely in their Interest, and lov'd the English Soil as well as the People's Money, &c." When he had represented to 'em the Nature of that mighty Grant to this Noble Lord, the Ill Consequences that must attend the Publick, and more particularly the Dominion of Wales, and especially the County of Denbigh, by the passing of it, he concluded thus: "I must needs confess that my Thoughts are troubled with strange Apprehensions of our deplorable State: We are in a Confederacy in War, and some of those Confederates our Enemies in Trade, though planted amongst us; some of the King's Council; some in the Army; and the Common Traders have possess'd themselves of the Out-Skirts of this great City: We find some or other of them naturaliz'd, and others made Denizens: Every Parliament we find endeavours for a General Naturalization, and that warmly solicited from Court. We see our Good Coin all gone, and our Confederates openly coining base Money of Dutch Alloy for us. We see most Places of Power and Profit given to Foreigners. We see our Confederates in Conjunction with the Scotch, to ruin our English Trade. We see the Revenues of the Crown daily given away to one or other, who make sale of them, and transmit their Estates elsewhere: We do not find any of them buy Lands or Estates amongst us; but what they can get from us, they secure in their own Country. How can we hope for Happy Days in England, when this Great Lord, and the other Foreigners, (though Naturaliz'd) are in the English, and also in the Dutch Councils? If these Strangers, though now Confederates, should be of different Interests, as most plainly they are in point of Trade, to which Interest is it to be supposed those Great Foreign Counsellors and Favourites would adhere? So that I foresee that when we are reduced to extremum Poverty, (as now we are very near it) we are to be supplanted by our Neighbours, and become a Colony to the Dutch.

1695. "I shall make no severe Remarks on this Great Man, for his Greatness makes us little, and will make the Crown both Poor and Precarious: And when God shall please to send us a Prince of Wales, he may have such a Present of a Crown made him, as a Pope did to King John, who was surnam'd Sans Terre, and was by His Father, King Henry the Second, made Lord of Ireland: Which Grant was confirm'd by the Pope, who sent Him a Crown of Peacocks Feathers, in derision of His Power, and the Poverty of His Revenue. I would have us to consider, that we are Englishmen, and must, like good Patriots, stand by our Country, and not suffer it to become tributary to Strangers. We have rejoiced that we have beat out of this Kingdom Popery and Slavery; and do now with as great Joy entertain Socinianism and Poverty; and yet we see our Properties daily given away, and our Liberties must soon follow.

— "I desire Redress rather than Punishment, therefore I shall neither move for an Impeachment against this Noble Lord, nor for the Banishment of him, but shall only beg that he may have no Power over us, nor we any Dependance upon him: And so conclude with this Motion, That an Address be made to His Majesty, to stop the Grant that is passing to the Earl of Portland, of the Lordships of Denbigh, Bromfield and Yale, and other Lands in the Principality of Wales, and that the same be not granted but by Consent of Parliament.

This Stout and Eloquent Speech made so great an Impression, that Mr. Price's Motion was carried by an unanimous Consent, and on Jan. 22. this Address was presented to the King by the Speaker, attended by the whole House.

May it please Your Most Excellent Majesty,

"We Your Majesty's Most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Knights, Citizens and Burgeses in Parliament assembled, humbly lay before Your Majesty, That whereas there is a Grant passing to William Earl of Portland and his Heirs, of the Manors of Denbigh, Bromfield and Yale, and divers other Lands in the Principality of Wales, together with several Estates of Inheritance, enjoyed by many of Your Majesty's Subjects, by virtue of Ancient Grants from the Crown.

Address
of the Commons.

"That the said Manors, with the large and extensive Regalities, Powers and Jurisdictions to the same belonging, are of great Concern to Your Majesty and the Crown of this Realm: And that the same have been usually annexed to the Principality of Wales, and settled on the Princes of Wales for their Support: And that a great number of Your Majesty's Subjects in those Parts hold their Estates by Royal Tenure, under great and valuable Compositions, Rents, Royal Payments and Services to the Crown and Princes of Wales, and have by such Tenure great Dependance on Your Majesty and the Crown of England, and have enjoy'd great Privileges and Advantages with their Estates under such Tenure.

"We therefore most humbly beseech Your Majesty to put a stop to the passing this Grant to the Earl of Portland of the said Manors and Lands; and that the same may not be disposed from the Crown but by Consent of Parliament. For that such Grant is in diminution of the Honour and Interest of the Crown, by placing in a Subject such large and extensive Royalties, Powers and Jurisdictions, which ought only to be in the Crown, and will sever that Dependance which so great a number

"ber

1695. "ber of Your Majesty's Subjects in those Parts
"have on Your Majesty and the Crown, by rea"son of their Tenure, and may be to their great "Oppression in those Rights which they have "purchased and hitherto enjoyed with their Es"tates, and also an Occasion of great Vexation
"to many of Your Majesty's Subjects, who have "long had the Absolute Inheritance of several "Lands (comprehended in the said Grant to the "Earl of Portland) by Ancient Grants from the "Crown.

His Majesty in Answer was pleased thus to express Himself.

Gentlemen,

I have a Kindness for my Lord Portland, which he has deserved of Me by long and faithful Services; but I should not have given him these Lands, if I had imagined the House of Commons could have been concerned; I will therefore recall the Grant, and find some other way of shewing My Favour to Him.

On Thursday, Feb. 13, His Majesty went to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for granting to His Majesty an Aid of Four Shillings in the Pound for One Year, for carrying on the War against France. 2. An Act to prevent False and Double Returns of Members to serve in Parliament. 3. An Act for the more easie Recovery of Small Tythes. 4. An Act to enable Anthony Earl of Kent, and Henry Gray his Son and Heir apparent, to make a Jointure for Jemima, Wife of the said Henry Gray. 5. An Act to enable the Lord Francis Pawlett to charge his Estate with Provisions for his Younger Children. 6. An Act for Vesting the Estate late of Sir Nicholas Stoughton, and Sir Lawrence Stoughton, Baronets, deceased, in Trustees, to be sold for Payment of their Debts, and raising Portions for the Daughters of the said Sir Nicholas Stoughton. 7. An Act to enable Richard Haynes, Esq; to settle a Jointure on his own Wife, and to exchange Lands with the Trustees of Thomas Stevens, Esq; deceased. 8. An Act for enabling Trustees to sell part of the Estate of Edward Warner, deceased, for Payment of his Debts, and for preserving the rest for the benefit of his Heirs. 9. An Act to enable John Aunger an Infant, and his Mother, to make a Lease of his Estate for the Improvement thereof. 10. An Act to enable Trustees to sell part of the Manor of Barkhamsted, and to pay off the Incumbrances charged upon the same, and to lay out the Overplus in an Estate to be settled, as the said Manor is now vested.

Acts passed.

The horrid Assassination Plot.

And now broke out the Horrid Conspiracy of Assassinating the King's Person; a Villany that was first laid beyond the Seas: For Capt. Waugh of Brentford, who in Nov. 1694. was sent over by the Jacobites to concert their Affairs in France, addresses to Col. Parker, Mr. Caryl, and other Confederates of that Party; who telling him, The French were not yet at leisure to furnish them with so many Men as were desired for the Invasion, they fell upon what they thought would more speedily accomplish the Restoration of their Master, and that was the taking off King William. These Persons had been long in the Secret, and had agreed upon the Methods, but because many of the Jacobites abhorred such a Black and Detestable Enterprize; and even others refused to engage in it, unless they had a Special Order; a Commission must be had from the Abdicated King for the doing of it, under the Phrase of Attacking the Prince of Orange in his Winter Quarters. Now least the Year 1695, should be left without putting this Wicked Design in execution, Mr. Waugh was sent into England from the Court of St. Germain, to give the Jacobites here Assurance, that those who would engage in the Assassination, should have such a Commission sent them as was desired; and those who were for the Invasion only, should have their Spirits kept up with the hopes of a Powerful Assistance from France, as soon as the Blow was given. And Major Crosby came over with assurance, as was deposed by Sir John Fenwick, in a Paper annexed to his Lady's Petition for his Reprieve; That he saw the Commission signed, and under Seal in France: That it was sent away before him, and if not already come, he was certain it was upon the Road, and would be here in a few Days. This was privately communicated to the Jacobites, in order to cut off King William before He went to Holland; but Providence convey'd His Majesty safe thither, and home again.

1695.

At His Majesty's Return they carry'd on the Double Plot of Invasion and Assassination; several Meetings were appointed and held by the Ringleaders of the Party; particularly in May 1695, at the Old King's Head Tavern in Leadinball-street, London; there met there the Earl of Aylsbury, the Lord Montgomery, Sir John Friend, Sir William Perkins, Sir John Fenwick, Mr. Charnock, Captain Porter, Mr. Cook, and Mr. Goodman: There they consulted on the best way to restore the late King, and all agreed that the most proper Method was, to send a Special Messenger to His Majesty, and desire Him to procure of the French King Ten Thousand Men: Mr. Charnock was the Person they pitch'd upon to manage this Affair; who said, He would not go on a Foolish Errand, and therefore would know what the Company would do, if Foreign Forces could be procur'd: Whereupon they all unanimously promis'd, That if King James would come over with such a number of Men as was desired, they would meet Him at the Head of Two Thousand Horse, where-ever He would appoint them. At the latter end of June they had another Meeting, where, after many Discourses upon that Subject, Mr. Charnock received a further Confirmation of their Resolutions, and thereupon took his Journey into France.

The Invasion being thus promoted, that the Assassination might keep pace with it, some of the Conspirators calling to mind, that nothing of that kind could be attempted, without a Commission from King James to do it, (which Crosby said was coming;) Captain Porter and Mr. Goodman communicated this Scruple to Sir George Barclay, who was then in England, and upon his Departure for France; telling him what Difficulties they laboured under for want of a Commission; and that a longer delay of sending it over, would certainly put a Stop to the Affair. Sir George not only approves, but commends the Design; and that such a hopeful Project might not miscarry, promises to use all his Interest at St. Germain, that the Commission might no longer be wanting. The beginning of August, 1695, brings Mr. Charnock again to London, with the unwelcome News, That the King of France was not in a Condition to spare King James so many Men; which being communicated to the Party, the Design was laid aside till Winter.

But notwithstanding this positive Answer, the French at the same time were taking such Measures as might suit with the Jacobites Request, tho' they durst not trust them with the Secret: Nay, not King James Himself; till a Squadron of Men of War, and near Four Hundred Transport-Ships were fitted out; and the French Army, consisting of Thirty Battalions, were ready to embark; and Money and Directions sent His Majesty, to go on Board, and take Possession of England.

1695. In December, 1695. Sir George Barclay, who had formerly been a General Officer, and was then in France an Officer in King James's Guards, came over into England; and brought with him a Commission from the late King, To attack and seize the Prince of Orange in his Winter-Quarters; or, as others report, to levy War upon the Prince of Orange, and all his Adherents. Before him, with him, or after him, Two and twenty of King James's Guards and Officers, who had all Instructions to obey the Orders of Sir George, came also into England.

Several Projects of Villany.

Sir George Barclay and his Men being arriv'd at London, they endeavour'd to strengthen their Party by the Addition of Major Lowick, Mr. Knightley, Mr. Bertram, Mr. Rookwood, Mr. La Rue, Mr. Goodman Captain Porter, Chambers, Durant, Cranburn, Kendrick, Grimes, and Waugh; some of which were engaged in the Assassination the Year before. Those that came from France knew not the Particulars of what they were sent about, being kept in a blind Obedience to Barclay's Orders; but some in England were privy to the whole Design: And tho' some of them started at its first being propos'd to them, yet the Authority of King James's Commission, and their imaginary Prospects of large Rewards at His Return, made them consent to hazard their Lives in it. Several Consultations were held, and several Ways propos'd to effect what they aim'd at: Some were for Seizing His Majesty, and carrying Him alive into France; and to that purpose a Feint was made, That a Castle on the Sea-side was secur'd, to detain the King, till a Ship was ready to Transport Him over: But the more wicked among them, that understood what was meant by Seizing the Prince of Orange's Person, laugh'd at this as a meer Chimera. Others propos'd to kill His Majesty at Kensington, by attacking His Guards, and forcing His Palace in the Dead of Night: But this, upon weighing the Difficulties, was found wholly impracticable. Others again were for Murdering the King, as He came on Sunday to St. James's Chapel: For which purpose, Forty Men well Arm'd were to attack His Majesty's Guards, (which before the Discovery of the Plot did not exceed Twenty Five;) whilst Six Men on foot should shut Hide-Park Gate, and the rest Assassinate His Majesty. It was propos'd also, to kill the Coach-Horses as they were entering into the Park; that the Passage being stop't, the Guards might not be able to come up till the Assassines had done their Work. Another Proposal was to Murder the King as He returned from Hunting, in a narrow Lane by a Wood-side near Richmond, leading to the Thames, on the other side the Water, about a Hundred and fifty Paces long; in which there is a Gate, that when shut hinders Coaches and Horses from coming that way. One of the Conspirators was sent to view this Ground, and another to survey the Lane above-mentioned; but Sir George Barclay, the chief Director of this wicked Enterprize, did not approve that Place; and so that Project was also laid aside. At last they all fix'd upon a Place between Turnham-Green and Brentford, in a Moorish Bottom, where there is a Bridge, and divers Roads that cross one another: On the North-side there is a Road which goes round Brentford, and on the South, a Lane that leads to the River; so that Passengers may come thither several Ways. After you have pass'd the Bridge the Road grows narrow, having on one side a Foot-path, and on the other a high thick Hedge; here the barbarous Parricide was to be committed. And indeed, all Circumstances consider'd, a fitter Place could hardly have been found, for His Majesty often return'd late from Hunting, and usually pass thro' this Lane after His Landing at Queens-Ferry, with no greater Attendance than Five or Six of His Guards. It was also His Majesty's Custom to enter the Ferry-Boat in His Coach, and as soon as He landed on this side the Water, the Coach drove on without expecting the rest of his Guards, who could not cross the Thames till the Boat return'd to Surrey-side to bring them over; and so the rest of his Guards could not have come to His Assistance. For this purpose, the Conspirators were divided into Three Parties, and were to make their Approaches Three several Ways: One of which was to Attack the Guards in the Front, the other in the Rear, whilst Ten or Twelve of the bloodiest amongst them were to Assassinate His Majesty in His Coach.

The 15th. of February was the Day appointed to act this barbarous Tragedy; and the Conspirators having long kept Two Men at Kensington, to watch the King's going to Hunt, which was commonly every Saturday; one of these Orderly Men (for so they call'd them) brought them word, that the King did not go abroad that Day. This Disappointment was some Alarm to their Fears of a Discovery; and thereupon Plouden, Kendrick, and Sberburn, began to be timorous, declin'd the Action, and withdrew themselves. But the boldest of the Plotters, Sir George Barclay, Sir William Perkins, Captain Porter, and Mr. Goodman, had another Meeting; and there resolv'd to execute their bloody Project on Saturday, February the 21st. That Morning was spent in an eager Expectation of the News, that the King was gone abroad; but instead of that Account, Keys, one of their Orderly Men at Kensington, brought advice, That the Guards were all come back in a foam, and that there was a Muttering among the People, That a Damnable Plot was discover'd. This astonishing News alarm'd and dispers'd all the Conspirators, and drove them to shift for themselves by a speedy Flight.

Nor were Keys's Report, and their Apprehensions Groundless: For the Plot, and every step of it from time to time, had been discover'd by Richard Fisher, and something of it by Mr. Grimes, to the Earl of Portland. Fisher had his knowledge of it from Harrison the Priest, who took him to be one of their Party; and Grimes had some dark Hints from another: But both refusing to give his Lordship the Names of the Conspirators, little Credit was given to their Informations, till they were confirm'd by other Testimonies.

Mr. Pendergrass, who was wholly ignorant of the Design till he was sent for to London, being struck with horror at the first Proposal of it, even then took up a Resolution to save His Majesty's Life; though the better to manage his intended Discovery, he seem'd willing to engage in the Hellish Enterprize. This Gentleman on the 14th of February at Night went to the Earl of Portland, and being admitted to Privacy with his Lordship, though wholly a Stranger, without further Address, accosted his Lordship with this surprizing Request; Pray, my Lord, persuade the King to stay at Home To-morrow; for if He goes abroad to Hunt, He will be Murder'd. The same Night, though late, he was introduc'd to His Majesty, and discovered the whole Plot; and his whole Deportment shewing him to be a Man of Honour, a great Strefs was laid upon his Information.

The next day after, Mr. De la Rue made the same Discovery; which he would have done before, but that his Friend Brigadier Louison, who design'd to introduce him to the King, was gone out of Town. Upon his Return to London, Brigadier 1695.

The Day appointed for Assassination of the King.

The Plot discover'd.

Chiefly by Mr. Pendergrass.

Mr. De la Rue.

1695. gadier Lenfon acquainted the King, That Mr. De la Rue had inform'd him of a Design carrying on to Assassinate His Majesty; and propos'd a way, if the King thought fit, how all the Conspirators might be taken in Arms. Though Pendergrafs and De la Rue acted upon a separate Bottom, yet they punctually agreed in all the Circumstances of the Conspiracy; which rendred their Discovery unquestionable: But yet both peremptorily refus'd to Name the Conspirators; which might have been of fatal Consequence, if the Earl of Portland had not found the happy Expedient to prevent it, by persuading his Majesty to give himself the Trouble of examining them separately in His Closet. The King having accordingly on Feb. 21. examin'd Mr. Pendergrafs before the Earl of Portland, and the Lord Cuts; and Mr. De la Rue, before the same Earl and Brigadier Lenfon, His Majesty shew'd himself extremely well satisfied in the Truth of their Discoveries; and in a very obliging manner express'd His Resentment for their Generosity, in the great Care and Zeal they shew'd for the Preservation of His Life, and the Safety of the Kingdom; and at last, gave them such unanswerable Reasons, why as Men of Honour and Lovers of their Country they should compleat their Duty and Affection, by naming the Conspirators, as quite overcame their former Unwillingness; and prevail'd with them, to tell the Names of the Assassins, under the Promise of not being made use of as Evidences. But not many days after, Mr. Pendergrafs hearing that Mr. Porter, who engaged him in the Plot, had, by an allowable Stratagem, been frighted into a Discovery, and Accus'd him; he thought himself discharg'd from any Obligation of Honour in concealing it: and therefore afterwards came in as an Evidence at Charnock's Trial.

This execrable Murder of the King was to have been seconded by a dreadful Invasion of the Kingdom: New Levies had been made in France this Winter; and a great Number of Forces were drawn toward Dunkirk and Calais, which gave no small Umbrage to the Confederates, and especially to the Dutch, who feared those Troops were to Insult their Coasts with the Shipping prepar'd for them. But the Design was quickly unravell'd; for towards the beginning of February, it was a publick Discourse in France, That His most Christian Majesty was now fully resolv'd to re-establish King James; and had concerted Measures so well, that nothing remain'd but a fair Wind, and a few Days to compleat the Glorious Work. And indeed the Posture of Affairs in England seem'd favourable enough for such a daring Enterprize: For at this time a very inconsiderable Number of Troops were left in England; the great Ships, that were some Months before returned from the Mediterranean with Admiral Russel, were laid up; and such as were fitted out, had Orders to sail (with a great Fleet of Merchant-Men) to the Streights, in order to enable Sir George Rook to defend that Passage against the Toulon Fleet.

On February the 18th. King James came in a Post-Callish to Calais; and immediately upon His Arrival, the Troops, Artillery, and Stores, were order'd to be put on Board with the utmost Diligence; whilst the Signal was impatiently expected from the Jacobites in England, to set Sail. And so confidently sure they were in France of a successful Expedition, that the Duke of Orleans urg'd it as an Argument to the Duke of Savoy, to make his separate Peace, before the total overthrow of the Confederates, which of Necessity must attend the Restoration of King James. Upon the first News of King James's coming to Calais, the Duke of Wirtemberg dispatch'd one of his Aids de Camp to King William, to give His Majesty Notice of it; and to Acquaint Him, That the Duke had stopp'd all the Ships in the Harbour and Canal of Ostend, as well as of Bruges, in order to Transport the Forces under his Command, for His Majesty's Service: And that in case he did not quickly hear from His Majesty, he would run the hazard of bringing them over; which he accordingly did with great Affection and Honour. This Messenger narrowly escaping the French at Sea, got to the English Court on Feb. 22. And immediately after, the King received other Expresses from the Duke of Bavaria, and the Prince of Vaudemont, who were then at Brussels.

King William now having a perfect knowledge of the Double Blow from Abroad and at Home, on Feb. 23. Publish'd his Proclamation, To Discover, Take, and Apprehend James Duke of Berwick, Sir George Barclay, Major Lowick, George Porter, Captain Stow, Captain Walbank, Captain James Courtney, Lieutenant Sherburn, Brice Blair, — Dinant, — Chambers, — Boise, George Higgens, and his two Brothers, Sons to Sir Thomas Higgens, — Davis, Cardell Goodman, — Crambourne, — Keys, — Pendergrafs, — Bryerly, — Trevour, Sir George Maxwell, — Durance a Fleming, Christopher Knightley, Lieutenant King, — Holmes, Sir William Perkins, and — Rookwood, as Wicked and Traiterous Persons, who had entred into a horrid and detestable Conspiracy, to Assassinate and Murder His Majesty's Sacred Person, &c. With a Promise of one Thousand Pounds Reward for every Offender that should be taken and brought to Justice. The Forces in England were ordered to be in a Readiness to march; a Train of Artillery was prepar'd to attend them. Admiral Russel repair'd immediately to Deal, to take upon him the Command of the Fleet; which by a particular Providence had been detain'd many Weeks in the Downs by contrary Winds, and which was soon reinforc'd by other Men of War from the River, and Twelve Dutch Ships from Spithead: So that in Five or Six days time, this industrious Admiral had near Sixty Men of War; with which he stood over directly for the Coasts of Calais and Dunkirk, and struck Terror and Amazement on the Enemy, who could now trust to nothing but their Harbours.

Immediately after the Royal Proclamation was out, Mr. George Hains, one of the Persons that was sent out of France, to obey the Orders of Sir George Barclay, and was actually engag'd in the Assassination-Plot, resign'd himself to Sir William Trumbal; and confess'd the Double Designs, tho' he was not able to tell the particular Circumstances that were to attend them. So that every Day producing fresh Evidences of the Jacobite Conspiracy, the King thought it time to communicate the Discovery of it to the Two Houses. Hence, on Monday, February the 24th. the King, with usual Solemnity, came to the House of Peers; and sending for the Commons, gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for Taking, Examining, and Stating the Publick Accounts. 2. An Act for Repairing the High-Ways, between the City of London and Town of Harwich in the County of Essex. 3. An Act for Naturalizing of Henry de Nassau, and other Children of Henry de Nassau, Seignior de Overquerque. 4. An Act to enable John Fowne, Esq; to Sell certain Lands in the County of Devon, which were settled on his Marriage; and to Settle other Lands of an equal Value to the same Uses. And afterwards His Majesty was pleas'd to make this Speech to Both Houses.

1695. Proclamation against the Traytors.

Murder of the King to have been seconded by an Invasion.

K. James at Calais in Expectation of Success.

The King communicates his Deliverance to the Two Houses.

1695.
King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" I Am come hither this Day upon an Extraordinary Occasion, which might have proved Fatal, if it had not been disappointed by the Singular Mercy and Goodness of God; and may now, by the Continuance of the same Providence, and Our own Prudent Endeavours, be so Improved, as to become a sufficient Warning to Us, to provide for Our Security against the Pernicious Practices and Attempts of Our Enemies.

" I have received several concurring Informations of a Design to Assassinate Me, and that our Enemies at the same time are very forward in their Preparations for a sudden Invasion of this Kingdom; and have therefore thought it necessary to lose no time in acquainting My Parliament with those Things in which the Safety of the Kingdom, and the Publick Welfare are so nearly concern'd, that I assure My Self nothing will be omitted on Your Part, which may be thought proper for Our present or future Security.

" I have not been wanting to give the necessary Orders for the Fleet; and I hope We have such a Strength of Ships, and in such a Readiness as will be sufficient to disappoint the Intentions of Our Enemies.

" I have also dispatch'd Orders for bringing home such a Number of Our Troops as may secure Us from any Attempt.

" Some of the Conspirators against My Person are already in Custody, and Care is taken to apprehend so many of the rest as are discovered; and such other Orders are given, as the present Exigency of Affairs does absolutely require at this time for the Publick Safety.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" Having now acquainted you with the Danger which hath threatned Us, I cannot doubt of your Readiness and Zeal to do every thing which you shall judge proper for Our Common Safety: And I persuade My Self We must be All sensible how necessary it is in our present Circumstances, that all possible Dispatch should be given to the Business before you.

Upon this Excellent Speech the Two Houses immediately agreed to wait upon the King that very Evening at Kensington with this Humble Address.

Die Luna 24 Feb. 1695.

Address
of Both
Houses.

" We Your Majesty's most Loyal and Dutiful Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, having taken into our Serious Consideration what Your Majesty hath been pleased to communicate to us this Day, think it our Duty, in the first place, to give your Majesty most Humble Thanks for having acquainted Your Parliament with the great Danger Your Sacred Person hath been so nearly exposed to, and the Design of an Invasion from our Enemies Abroad: We heartily Congratulate Your Majesty's Happy Preservation, and thankfully acknowledge the signal Providence of God in it; and at the same time declare our Detestation and Abhorrence of so Villanous and Barbarous a Design: And since the Safety and Welfare of Your Majesty's Dominions do so entirely depend upon Your Life, we most humbly beseech Your Majesty to take more than ordinary Care of Your Royal Person. And we take this Occasion to assure Your Majesty of our utmost Assistance to defend Your Person, and support Your Government against the late King James, and all other Your Enemies both at Home and Abroad; hereby declaring to all the World, That in case Your Majesty shall come to any Violent Death (which God forbid) we will revenge the same upon all Your Enemies, and their Adherents: And as an Instance of our Zeal for Your Majesty's Service, we will give all possible Dispatch to the Publick Business: And we make it our Duty to Your Majesty, to seize and secure all Persons, Houses and Arms, that Your Majesty may think fit to apprehend upon this Occasion.

His Majesty gave the Two Houses this agreeable Answer.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I thank you heartily for this Kind Address: On My Part you may be assured, that I will do all that is within My Power, for the Conservation of this Kingdom, to which I have so many Obligations. I will readily adventure My Life for the Preservation of it, and recommend My Self to the Continuance of Your Loyalty and Good Affections.

The House of Commons dropt the sense of all former Animosities, and generously fell into the immediate Measures of Respect and Loyalty to the King; giving a new Proof of this Observation, That Plots when discover'd strengthen the Government they were design'd to ruin. On the same Day with the Speech and Address, they Order'd, That Leave be given to bring in a Bill to empower His Majesty to secure and detain such Persons as His Majesty shall suspect are conspiring against His Person or Government." They gave several Instructions for the more effectual raising the Militia. They Resolved, "That Leave be given to bring in a Bill, That whenever it shall please God to afflict these Realms by the Death of His Present Majesty, the Parliament then in being shall not be dissolved thereby, but shall continue until the next Heir to the Crown in Succession, according to the late Act of Settlement, shall dissolve the same. And that an Humble Address be presented to His Majesty, That He will please to issue His Royal Proclamation, to banish all Papists from the Cities of London and Westminster, and Ten Miles from the same: And give Instructions to the Judges going the Circuits, to put the Laws in Execution against Papists and Non-Jurors." And as the greatest Test of Loyalty, they drew up this Form of Association, to be subscribed by all the Members.

" Whereas there has been a Horrid and Detestable Conspiracy formed and carried on by Papists and other Wicked and Traiterous Persons, for Assassinating His Majesty's Royal Person, in Order to encourage an Invasion from France, to subvert our Religion, Laws and Liberty; We whose Names are hereunto subscribed, do heartily, sincerely and solemnly profess, testify and declare, That His Present Majesty King William is Rightful and Lawful King of these Realms. And We do mutually promise to engage to stand by and assist each other to the utmost of our Power, in the Support and Defence of His Majesty's most Sacred Person and Government, against the Late King James and all His Adherents. And in case His Majesty come to any Violent or Untimely Death (which God forbid) we do hereby further freely and unanimously oblige our selves, to unite, associate, and stand by each other, in revenge-1695.

This Plot had a good effect on the Two Houses.

Form of Association.

1695. "ing the same upon His Enemies, and their Adherents; and in supporting and defending the Succession of the Crown, according to an Act made in the First Year of the Reign of King William and Queen Mary; Entitled, An Act declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, and settling the Succession of the Crown.

To be subscribed by all Members.

This Association was on the three following Days sign'd by all the Members that came to the House; and because some others had absented themselves upon pretence of Health or Business, but in reality to avoid setting their Hands to an Acknowledgment of King William being Rightful and Lawful King: It was therefore Ordered on Feb. 27. " That such Members of the House who had not already sign'd the Association, should do it by Monday Fortnight, or declare their Refusal, notwithstanding their Leave to be absent." On the appointed Day, March 16. the Names of such Members were called over as were absent upon the last Call of the House; and several of 'em being still absent, in the Country, or ill in Town, signifying their Intentions to sign the Association, were excused their Attendance: And the Speaker was ordered to write to such Members as are in the Country, and have not signed the Association, or declared their Refusal so to do, to know what they will do, and to return their Answer by the first Opportunity. And at the same time the Clerk of the House was to attend such Members as were ill in Town with the said Association, in order to their signing the same, or receiving their Answer of Refusal. The Absent Members seeing themselves so press'd, and the Nation at this time in so great a Ferment against the Disaffected, thought it Prudence to yield to the Times, and either to subscribe the Association, or to promise to do it upon their first coming up to Town, though it was against the Inclination of some, and perhaps against the Principles of others.

Honours and Preferments.

As to the Honours or Preferments disposed since the King's Return. On Octob. 14, when the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Lieutenancy of London came to congratulate His Majesty's safe and happy Return, and the Glorious Success of His Arms, with hearty Wishes for His Long and Prosperous Reign, His Majesty was pleased to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Edward Wills and Owen Buckingham, the present Sheriffs. On Oct. 29. His Majesty was pleased upon the Death of Sir Giles Eyres, one of the Justices of the Court of King's-Bench, to appoint Sir Tho. Rokeby one of the Justices of the Common-Pleas to succeed him; and Sir John Powell, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, was made one of the Justices of the Common-Pleas; and Sir Littleton Powys, Serjeant at Law, and one of the Justices of Chester, came into his Place in the Exchequer. Some few Days before, the King at Althorp conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon John Combs, Esq; Chief-Justice of Chester; and on Nov. 8. His Majesty was pleased to grant to Sir Salathiel Lovell, Serjeant at Law, Recorder of London, the Office of Second Justice of the Counties of Chester, Flint, Denbigh and Montgomery, in the room of Sir Littleton Powys. At Kensington, Jan. 6. his Highness the Duke of Gloucester, to whom the King paid a particular Affection and Respect, was elected into the most Noble Society of the Garter, and Knighted and Invested with the Ensigns of that Order. On Jan. 10. His Majesty was pleased to create the Lord George Hamilton, Earl of Orkney, in the Kingdom of Scotland, in consideration of his Services in Ireland and Fllanders, upon many Occasions, during this War. On Jan. 12. His Majesty was pleased to declare John Lord Murray, Eldest Son to the Marquess of Athol, one of the Principal Secretaries of State for the Kingdom of Scotland, in the Place of the Lord Stairs. On Feb. 6. the King conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Col. Willoughby, Chamberlain of Barbadoes, for his good and faithful Services in that Island. On March 22. His Majesty bestow'd the like Honour of Knighthood upon Charles Turner, Esq; one of the Members of Parliament for the Corporation of Lynn Regis.

The last thing done in the Parliament this Year, was His Majesty's coming to the House of Peers on Saturday, March 7. and giving the Royal Assent to these several Publick and Private Bills:

1. An Act for continuing several Duties granted by former Acts upon Wine and Vinegar, and upon Tobacco and East-India Goods, and other Merchandizes imported, for carrying on the War against France.
2. An Act for empowering His Majesty to apprehend and detain such Persons as He shall find cause to suspect are conspiring against His Royal Person and Government.
3. An Act for taking off the Obligation and Encouragement for coining Guineas for a certain Time therein mentioned.
4. An Act for Relief of Poor Prisoners for Debt or Damages.
5. An Act for making Navigable the Rivers of Wye and Lugg, in the County of Hereford.
6. An Act to Enable Trustees to Exchange Lands of Sir James Chamberlain, Baronet, an Infant, lying in the Common Hill or Fields of Selsford, in the County of Oxford, for like quantities of Lands there, in order to the making an Inclosure.
7. An Act for Naturalizing James Stanhope, Esq; and others.
8. An Act to Enable the Parish of St. James's within the Liberties of the City of Westminster, to raise upon themselves so much Money as will discharge their Debt for building their Parish-Church, Rector's House, Vestry, and other Publick Works there.
9. An Act to Ascertain and Settle the Payment of the Improper Tithes of St. Lawrence Old Jewry, in London, to the Master and Scholars of Baliol Colledge in Oxford, and for confirming an Award made concerning the same.
10. An Act to enable Trustees to make and fill up Leases of the respective Estates of Bluet Wallopp, Esq; and John Wallopp, Gent. during their Minorities, and to purchase other Lands by the Fines thereby to be received, to the same Uses as the Estates so to be leased are already settled.
11. An Act for Naturalizing Solomon Lyme, and others.
12. An Act for Enabling Trustees to sell the Manor of Pespoole, in the County of Durham, part of the Estate of William Midford, an Infant, for Payment of Debts and Incumbrances charged thereon; and for preserving the rest of the said Infant's Estate.
13. An Act to Confirm and Establish an Exchange made between Thomas Ryder, Esq; and Christopher Clichtero, Esq; of certain Messuages in London, for the Manors of Bilsington, and other Lands in Kent of the like value.

Acts passed.

In the State of Religion, the pestilent Sect of the Socinians, by the Countenance of the Act of Toleration, and the Loose Sentiments of some of our own Divines, had gotten considerable Ground in England since the Revolution, and being favour'd by the Licentiousness of the Press, they publish'd many of their Pamphlets, enough to provoke any Christian Government: To check their Insolence, Dr. Sherlock, Dean of St. Paul's, undertook the Vindication of the Orthodox Doctrine concerning the Trinity; but because Mysteries of Faith, being above Reason, are not to be explain'd by Reason, else they would cease to be Mysteries; it sav'd with the Doctor, that whilst he endeavour'd to prove Three Distinct Persons, he was charg'd with proving Three Essential Subs; having asserted That there were in the Godhead, Three

The Socinians were very diligent.

Unhappy Dispute between Dr. Sherlock and Dr. Clarke.

1695. Minds, Three Beings, and Three Intelligences. This New Explication giving the Unitarians occasion to Triumph, Dr. South, one of the Prebends of Westminster, and a Divine of great Parts, undertook to confute Dr. Sherlock's new Way of Vindicating the Trinity: His Antagonist was not silent, but by way of Recrimination, attempted to prove that Dr. South's Doctrine favour'd of Sabellianism. The Quarrel grew hot, the Two Doctors were Learned and Witty in their several Answers and Replies, and some of their Seconds began to come in to each side. On the Feast of St. Simon and Jude, this Year, at Oxford, a Fellow of University-Colledge, in a Publick Sermon before the University, fell in with the Notions of Dr. Sherlock, and asserted; That there were Three Infinite Distinct Minds and Substances in the Trinity; and also, That the Three Persons in the Trinity, are Three Distinct Minds or Spirits, and Three Individual Substances. The Friends of Dr. South made a Complaint of these Words, and procured them to be Censur'd by a Solemn Decree in Convocation, November 25. wherein they Judge, Declare, and Determine, the aforesaid Words lately deliver'd in the said Sermon, to be False, Impious, and Heretical, disagreeing and contrary to the Doctrine of the Catholick Church, and especially to the Doctrine of the Church of England, publickly received. This Solemn Decree was so far from composing the Differences, that it serv'd rather to irritate the Parties, and to let the Socinians make their Advantage of it. It was now therefore high time for the King to interpose His Royal Authority, by giving these Excellent Directions to the Archbishops and Bishops, for the preserving Unity in the Church, and the Purity of the Christian Faith concerning the Holy Trinity.

Preacher
in Oxford
Censur'd.

The King's Injunctions for Unity in the Church.

William R.

“MOST Reverend, and Right Reverend “Fathers in God, We Greet you well.
“Whereas We are given to understand, That “there have of late been some Differences a“mong the Clergy of this Our Realm, about “their Ways of Expressing themselves in their “Sermons and Writings, concerning the Do“ctrine of the Blessed Trinity, which may be
“of dangerous Consequence, if not timely pre“vented: We therefore, out of Our Princely “Care, and Zeal for the Preservation of the “Peace and Unity of the Church, together “with the Purity of the Christian Faith, have “thought fit to send you these following Dire“ctions, which We straightly Charge and Com“mand you to Publish, and to see that they be “Observed within your several Diocesses.

“I. That no Preacher whatsoever, in his Ser“mon or Lecture, do presume to deliver any “other Doctrine concerning the Blessed Trinity,
“than what is contain'd in the Holy Scriptures,
“and is agreeable to the Three Creeds, and the “Thirty Nine Articles of Religion.

“II. That in the Explication of this Doctrine,
“they carefully avoid all new Terms, and con“fine themselves to such ways of Explication,
“as have been commonly used in the Church.

“III. That Care be taken in this Matter, e“specially to observe the Fifty Third Canon of “this Church, which forbids publick Opposition “between Preachers; and that above all things,
“they abstain from bitter Invectives, and scur“rilous Language against all Persons whatso“ever.

“IV. That the foregoing Directions be also “observed by those who Write any thing con“cerning the said Doctrine.

“And whereas We also understand, That di“vers Persons who are not of the Clergy, have
“of late presumed, not only to Talk and Dispute against the Christian Faith, concerning

“the Doctrine of the Blessed Trinity, but also “to Write and Publish Books and Pamphlets a“gainst the same, and industriously spread them
“through the Kingdom, contrary to Our known “Laws Established in this Realm: We do there“fore strictly Charge and Command you, to“gether with all other Means suitable to your “Holy Profession, to make use of your Autho“rity according to Law, for the Repressing and “Restraining of all such Exorbitant Practices.
“And for your Assistance We will give Charge
“to Our Judges, and all other Our Civil Offi“cers, to do their Duty herein, in Executing
“the Laws against all such Persons as shall by “these Means give Occasion of Scandal, Dif“cord, and Disturbance in Our Church and “Kingdom.

Given at Our Court at Kensington the Third Day of February, 1695. In the Seventh Year of Our Reign: By His Majesty's Command.

SHREWSBURY.

Archbishop Tenison, who in all his private Stations had been an Eminent Example of doing Good, was now careful to serve the Church in a more publick Manner; and therefore he had not only prevail'd with the King to send out those Injunctions, that Reinforced the wholsome Discipline of the Church and Clergy, and likewise to give those Directions, for the preserving Unity and Purity of Faith; but his Grace sent Abroad his own Circular Letter to all the Suffragan Bishops of his Province, Dated July 16.
1695. to Recommend such Rules and Orders, as (if well observed) would mightily tend to the Peace and Honour of the Established Church.
The Letter run thus.

The Archbishop's
Letter.

My very Good Lord,

“Having well Consider'd the following Par“ticulars, together with such of our Brethren,
“as were in or near London, and believing them
“to be Means very proper for the promoting
“the Glory of God, and the Edification of his “Church; I do hereby Recommend them to “you, as I have also done to the rest of the Bi“shops of this Province, desiring you and them,
“to see them carefully observ'd in your respe“ctive Diocesses.

“In the first place, It is the King's Pleasure, “That you take especial Care concerning the “late Act against Prophanes Cursing and Swear“ing; not only, that it be publickly Read as
“the Law has in that Case provided, but that
“the Clergy be directed both in their Catechi-“zing and Sermons, to insist often upon those “Points, to the end, that by God's Blessing up“on their Faithful Endeavours, a Stop may be “put to those Execrable Wickednesses, which,
“if they be suffer'd to continue, will bring “down God's heavy Judgments upon this “Church and Nation.

“Secondly, There are also other Acts to be “Read publickly in Churches, which yet are “not Read (as I understand) in many Places.
“I desire you to remedy that Neglect.

“Thirdly, It seems very fit, that you require
“your Clergy in their Prayer before Sermon,
“to keep to the Effect of the 55th Canon: It “being commonly reported, that it is the man“ner of some in every Diocess, either to use
“only the Lord's Prayer (which the Canon
“prescribes as the Conclusion of the Prayer,
“and not the whole Prayer) or at least to leave
“out the King's Titles, and to forbear to Pray
“for the Bishops as such.

“Fourthly, I commend to your Care the “Preaching of your Clergy in the Afternoons, “upon

3 Jac. 7.
c. 1, &c.
See the King's Letter.
An. 1689.
Sect. 7.

Canon 55.
An. 1603.

1695. upon Catechetical Heads, both that the People may be the better rooted and grounded in the Faith, and also kept from other Assemblies.

Art. An. 1564. for certifying Orders in Ecclesiastical Polity. " A Fifth Particular Recommended to you, is, That you be very careful in the giving of Institutions; and particularly, That you use good and diligent Examination and Care to foresee and prevent all Simoniack Pacts or Covenants with the Patrons, or the Presentors, for the Spoil of their Glebe, Tythes, or Mansion-Houses; and in especial manner, those Artificial Bargains, which are made by Bonds of Resignation.

" A Sixth is, The causing of Stipends of Curates to be proportioned to the Value of the Benefice, and the Greatness of the Duty required of them; especially where the Incumbent is a Pluralist, and cannot constantly reside in Person. That the Service of God may not suffer by the Employing of such Ignorant and Scandalous Men as these Incumbents generally procure, who chuse to have such for their Curates as will serve for the meanest Salaries.

" A Seventh is, The preventing of Dilapidations, especially where Pluralists do not keep constant Residence: Towards which, frequent Views of Chancels, and Parsonage and Vicaridge-House, by your Arch-Deacon or Arch-Deacons, or other Officers, and Reports made to you upon those Views, will much conduce. And as for such, who upon any Preerences whatsoever, desire a Dispensation of Non-Residence, I intreat you not to grant it to any of them, without their giving sufficient Security to keep their Chancels, and Parsonage or Vicaridge-Houses in good Repair, if they be so already; or if not, to put them in good Repair with all convenient speed, and to keep them so for the future.

" The Eighth is, Your causing the Clergy to pursue very carefully- the End of the Eighty Seventh Canon, relating to Terriers of Glebe-Lands, and other Possessions belonging to Churches; for want of which, great Controversies daily arise, and the Rights of the Church are often lost.

Can. 128. An. 1603. Vid. Art. pro Clero. Sect. 3, 4. & Can. An. 1571. Sect. Formæ Sent. Excommun. " The Ninth is, Your hindring (as much as in you lies) all such from being Surrogates, who are not qualified by the Canon; and to see that none be Instrumental in dispatching Licenses of Marriage, and Solemnization of Matrimony Illegally, or in pronouncing the Sentences of Excommunication and Absolution, without such Solemnity as that great and weighty Affair requires.

" Tenthly, When any Minister removes out of your Diocese into another, to any Cure of Souls, I desire you in a Letter to the Bishop, into whose Diocese he is going, to give a just Character of him. Also when any such Minister comes into your Diocese, not to admit him, but with the like Letter from his former Diocesan; or in a Vacancy, from the Guardian of the Spiritualities.

" Eleventhly, I beseech you to think of, and to use all proper Methods, for the time to come, for the preventing of such from being admitted into Holy Orders, who are not likely to pursue the Sacred Ends of them. Some such Methods I here lay before you, desiring you to take them into your Consideration.

" 1st. That you take all possible care, that there be good School-Masters in the several Publick Schools within your Diocese, not Licensing any but such as upon Examination shall be found of sufficient Ability, and do exhibit very satisfactory Testimonials of their Temper and good Life; that so in the Education of Youth, especially such as are design'd for Holy Orders, there may not be an ill Foundation laid.

" 2^{dly}. That you Ordain no Man Deacon or Priest, who hath not taken some Degree in School in one of the Universities of this Realm, unless in some Extraordinary Case.

" 3^{dly}. That you accept of no Letters Testimonial brought by Persons to be Ordained, unless there be a Clause Inserted in them by the Testifiers, to this Effect, That they believe them to be Qualified for that Order, into which they desire to be admitted.

" 4^{thly}. That as soon as any can apply to you, for Holy Orders, you give timely Notice of this at the place where the Person resides, or lately resided, that so the Exceptions against him, (if any such there be) may come timely to your knowledge.

" 5^{thly}. That when any Person comes to you to be Ordained, you lay it upon his Conscience, to observe such Fasting as is prescribed upon Ember Days, and to give himself in most serious manner to Meditation and Prayer. After some compleat time after every Ordination, whether intra or extra Tempora, at least between Michaelmas or Christmas, I desire you to send a Return under your Hand, attested by the Arch-Deacon, and such other Clergymen as assisted at the Ordination, containing the Names and Sir-Names of all the Persons then Ordained; the place of their Birth, their Age, and College where they were Educated; with the Degree they have taken in the University, the Title upon which they were Ordained, and upon whose Letters Dimissory, if they came out of another Diocese: And to subjoin a particular Account of all such as then offer'd themselves to Ordination, and were refused; as also of the Reasons for which they were refused. All which I undertake and promise, to cause to be Entered into a Leiger Book for that purpose. By this means Counterfeit Orders may be detected, Men who come up for Preferment may be the better understood and distinguish'd; and such who have had the Misfortune either to lose their Orders, or to want them here, upon any Emergent Occasion, may be in some Measure helped.

" And that the King may be the better Enabled to give you His further Assistance, in these and other Affairs of the Church, you are desired and required to comply with His Majesty's Command to me signified, in giving me an Account of what has been done in your Diocese, in pursuance of His Injunctions, when you come next to Parliament; as also of the present State of it, in as particular Manner as you well can; that such Accounts may be laid before Him, in order to the Supplying of what is Wanting, and Rectifying of what is Amis. Not doubting of your Lordships Care and Zeal in these weighty Matters, I Recommend you, and all your Affairs to the Blessing of God Almighty, and Remain

Your very Loving Friend and Brother,
Tho. Cantuar.

We left the Parliament sitting, and the Commons taking the needful Association, the Form whereof with their Subscriptions to it, they presented to His Majesty in a Body, on Friday April 3. and at the same time requested His Majesty, that he would be pleased to Order, " That the said Association and all other Associations 1695.

Can. 34. An. 1603.

Vid. Art. An. 1564. for certifying Orders in Ecclesiastical Polity.

1696.

Parliament Sitting.

1696. " by the Commons of England, might be lodg'd among the Records of the Tower. Upon which occasion His Majesty was pleas'd to say,

Gentlemen,
 " I take this as a most Convincing and most Acceptable Evidence of your Affection: And as you have freely associated your selves for our Common Safety, I do heartily enter into the same Association, and will be always Ready with you and the Rest of my Good Subjects, to venture My Life against all who shall endeavour to subvert the Religion, Laws and Liberties of England. And I will take care, that this and all other Associations presented to Me, be lodged among the Records in the Tower.

Upon Report of this Gracious Acceptance, the next day the House Resolved, " That whoever shall by Word or Writing affirm, That the Association entered into by any Member of this House, or any other Person, is Illegal, such Person shall be deem'd a Promoter of the Designs of the late King James, and an Enemy to the Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom." Soon after, the House of Lords agreed in the same Association, and presented it to the King; and the Example of Both Houses of Parliament was followed by all the Corporations of the Three Kingdoms.

On April 2. Upon a Report of the Examination and Confession of Sir William Perkins and Sir John Friend, it was Resolved, That a Bill be brought in for the better Security of His Majesty's Person and Government; and that the Heads of the Bill should be, 1. That such as shall refuse to take the Oaths to his Majesty, shall be subject to the Forfeitures and Penalties of Popish Recufants Convict. 2. To inflict a Penalty on such as shall by Writing, or otherwise, Declare, That King William is not Lawful and Rightful King of these Realms; Or that the late King James, or the Pretended Prince of Wales, or any other Person, than according to the Act of Settlement of the Crown, hath any Right to the Crown of these Realms. 3. To Ratify and Confirm the Association enter'd into by all His Majesty's good Subjects, for the Preservation of His Majesty's Person and Government. 4. That no Person shall be capable of any Office of Profit or Trust, Civil or Military, that shall not Sign the said Association. 5. That the same Penalties be Inflicted on such as come out of France, as upon those that go thither.

The Commons had Consider'd that part of His Majesty's Speech at the Opening of this Parliament, wherein He recommended to 'em the Civil List, and the Distressed French Protestants. And the Committee of the whole House having sat several times on that Affair; it was at last Resolved on March the 17th. That the Sum of Five hundred thousand Pounds be Granted for defraying the Expences of the First, and Fifteen thousand Pounds for the Relief of the Latter. Which Sums on March the 28th. they Resolved to raise by a Duty upon all Low Wines, and Spirits of the First Extraction, and also upon all mixt Liquors, commonly call'd Sweets, for the space of Five Years, from the 25th. of March, 1696. And the Committee who were to prepare this Bill, were instructed to receive a Clause for preserving the Revenue to her Royal Highness the Princess Anne of Denmark.

The Bill for continuing several Duties upon Salt, for taking off those of Tonnage upon Ships, and upon Coals, and for Establishing a National Land-Bank having been Read a Second time, the Committee of the whole House, to whom it was committed, were Instructed on March 18. to Restrain the Bank not to lend Money but upon Land-Security, or to the Government into the Exchequer; and to receive a Clause, That if the Money did not come in by a certain time, His Majesty might be enabled to Borrow the same. The next Day the Bank of England presented a Petition against this Bill, and were afterwards by Order of the House heard by their Council, but without Success, so that the House went on with the Bill, and Resolved on April 9. First, That towards the Supply to be Granted to His Majesty for making up the Fund of Interest of Seven per Cent. for Two Millions five hundred sixty four thousand Pounds, the Capital Stock of the intended National Land-Bank, certain Duties upon Glass-Wares, Stone and Earthen Bottles, granted before to the King, for a Term of Years, be granted to His Majesty, His Heirs and Successors. Secondly, That a Duty be laid upon Tobacco-Pipes; and Thirdly, That a further Duty be laid upon all Stone and Earthen Ware: Which Resolutions were order'd to be inserted in the Bill for Settling the National Land-Bank.

On Friday April the 10th. His Majesty came to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Assent to these several Bills. 1. An Act for Granting to His Majesty several Rates or Duties upon Houses, for making good the Deficiency of the Clipp'd Money. 2. An Act for Granting to His Majesty an Additional Duty upon all French Goods and Merchandizes. 3. An Act for the Continuing, Meeting and Sitting of a Parliament, in Case of the Death or Demise of His Majesty, His Heirs and Successors. 4. An Act for Continuing Four former Acts for Preventing Theft and Rapine upon the Northern Borders of England. 5. An Act for Raising the Militia for the Year One Thousand Six Hundred Ninety Six, although the Months Pay formerly Advanced be not Repaid. 6. An Act for further Regulating Elections of Members to serve in Parliament, and for the preventing Irregular Proceedings of Sheriffs, and other Officers in the Electing and Returning such Members. 7. An Act for Continuing several former Acts, for Punishing Officers and Soldiers, who shall Mutiny or Desert His Majesty's Service, and for Punishing false Musters, and for Payment of Quarters for One Year longer. 8. An Act for the Increase and Encouragement of Seamen. 9. An Act for Preventing Frauds, and Regulating Abuses in the Plantation Trade. 10. An Act to Encourage the bringing Plate into the Mint to be Coined, and for the further Remedying the Ill State of the Coin of the Kingdom. 11. An Act Requiring the Practisers of the Law to take the Oaths, and Subscribe the Declaration therein mentioned. 12. An Act for the Repair of the Highways between Wymondham and Attleborough in the County of Norfolk. 13. An Act for Impovering the most Noble Anne Dutcheß of Burcleuch, and the Right Honourable James Earl of Dalkeith, her Son, of the Kingdom of Scotland, to Grant Leases for Improving a Piece of Ground in the Parish of St. Martins in the Fields, in the County of Middlesex. 14. An Act to Enable Trustees to raise Money for the making a Wet Dock, and Improving the Estate of the Marquess and Marchioness of Tavistock at Rotherhich in the County of Surry. 15. An Act to Naturalize William, commonly called Viscount Tunbridge, and other Children of the Earl of Rochfort. 16. An Act for the better Improvement of a House and Ground in Great Queen-street. 17. An Act to Enable Trustees to sell a Messuage, Garden and Out-Houses in Lincolns-Inn Fields, late of Sir Robert Sawyer Knt. Deceased, and for Purchasing other Lands and Tenements, to be settled to the same Uses. 18. An Act for Settling divers Lands.

1696.
 Bill for a Land Bank.

Acts Passed.

King's Speech on the Association.

A Bill for Security of His Majesty's Person,
 &c.

Civil List
 and French Protestants

1696. Lands and Rent Charges on the Rector of the Church of Maydwell, in the County of Northampton, and his Successors; and in lieu thereof, for Settling other Lands, and Discharging Titles belonging to the said Church, according to several Agreements between the Patron and the said Rector, made upon the Enclosing of Lands in Maydwell; and afterwards with the Consent of the Ordinary, Confirm'd by several Decrees in the Court of Chancery. 19. An Act for Settling the Personal Estates of Richard Jones Esq; and Mary Gifford Spinster, Minors, in Trustees, for the Purposes therein mentioned. 20. An Act for the better Supplying the City of Bristol with Fresh Water. 21. An Act for Erecting of Hospitals and Work-Houses within the City of Bristol, for the better Employing and Maintaining the Poor thereof. 22. An Act for making Good the last Will of Sir William Barkham Baronet, Deceased, and Vesting of Lands in Trustees, to be sold for Payment of his Debts, and making Provision for his Children. 23. An Act to Enable Sir Charles Heron Baronet, to Sell Lands for Payment of a Portion and Debts. 24. An Act to Enable Sir Thomas Wagstaff Knt. to Raise and Secure a Portion for Frances his only Daughter and Heir Apparent. 25. An Act for Vesting a Moiety of the Mannor of Shepton Mallett, in the County of Somerset; and a divided Moiety of the Mannor of Wells, in the said County, in Trustees, to be Sold for Payment of a Mortgage charged thereon; and for making a Provision for the Maintenance of Mary, the Wife of William Sands, Esq; and her Children. 26. An Act for making the Towns of Stretton and Princethorp, a separate Parish from Woolston in the County of Warwick. 27. An Act for Vesting part of the Estate of Joseph Dawson, Esq; in Trustees, for Payment of Debts, and for a Provision for the Maintenance and Marriage of his Daughters. 28. An Act for the Sale of the Lands in Horlington, in the County of Somerset, part of the Estate of William Ridout, an Infant, for Payment of Incumbrances Charged thereon, and for Preserving the Residue of the said Estate for the Infant. 29. An Act for Vesting certain Lands of Thomas Bigg and his Wife, in Chillett, in the County of Kent, in Trustees, for Payment of Debts, and making Provision for their Children.

Bill for Regulating Elections not passed.

There was another Bill that had Pass'd Both Houses, for the Regulating Elections of Members to serve in Parliament; To which His Majesty did not give His Royal Assent. This Omission was ill relented by some of the Commons, who valued themselves on the projecting of it; and they hop'd on this occasion, to make an open Rupture, which must have been fatal at this Juncture: Therefore, on Tuesday, April 24. a Motion was made, and the Question was put, That whatsoever Advised His Majesty not to give the Royal Assent to the Bill for further Regulating Elections of Members to serve in Parliament, (which passed Both Houses) is an Enemy to the King and Kingdom? But the Majority were so wise as to decline the occasion of any Difference; and therefore for the Affirmative of the Question, there were but 70 Voices; while for the Negative, there was no less than 219. And it was Order'd, That the Speaker do with the Votes Print this Question, together with the Numbers of the Affirmative and Negative.

Other Acts pass'd.

On Monday, April 27. The King came to the House of Lords, and gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for laying several Duties upon Low Wines, or Spirits of the first Extraction; and for Preventing the Frauds and Abuses of Brewers, Distillers, and other Persons chargeable with the Duties of Excise. 2. An Act for Continuing to His Majesty certain Duties upon Salt, Glass-Wares, Stone and Earthen Bottles; and for Granting several Duties upon Tobacco-Pipes, and also Earthen Wares, for Carrying on the War against France, and for Establishing a National Land-Bank, and for taking off the Duties upon Tonnage of Ships, and upon Coals. 3. An Act for the Enforcing the Laws which Restrain Marriages, either without License or Banns; and for the better Registering Marriages, Births and Burials. 4. An Act for the better Security of His Majesty's Person and Government. 5. An Act for the more Effectual Preventing the Exportation of Wool, and for Encouraging the Importation thereof from Ireland. 6. An Act for Encouraging the Linnen Manufacture of Ireland, and Bringing Flax and Hemp into, and Making of Sail-Cloth in this Kindom. 7. An Act for Continuing several Acts of Parliament therein mentioned. 8. An Act for Taking away the Custom of Wales, which hinders Persons from Disposing their Personal Estates by their Wills. 9. An Act for the Ease of Jurors, and better Regulating of Juries. 10. An Act for the better Repairing and Amending the High-Ways, and Explanation of the Laws relating thereunto. 11. An Act for Encouragement of Charitable Gifts and Dispositions. 12. An Act for the better Encouragement of the Green-Land Trade. 13. An Act that the Solemn Affirmation and Declaration of the People call'd Quakers, shall be accepted instead of an Oath, in the usual Form. And Lastly, An Act for Re-vesting in His Majesty the Honour of Tutbury, Forest of Needwood, several Mannors, Parks, Lanes, and Offices, and other Profits thereunto belonging, and for Vacating certain Letters Patents therein mentioned. Then His Majesty made this Speech to Both Houses.

1696.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech.

“ YOU have shewn so great Concern for My Person, and Zeal for My Government; and have done so much for the Preferment of the one, and for the Strengthening of the other, by the Good Laws which have been made, and by the Supplies you have provided for the several Occasions of this Year, That the late Designs of Our Enemies are, by the Blessing of God, like to have no other Effect, than to let them see how firmly We are United, and to give Me this Occasion to acknowledge your Kindness, and to assure you of all the Returns which a Prince can make to His People.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

“ The Necessity of Affairs requiring My Absence out of the Kingdom for some time, I do earnestly Recommend to you, That in your several Stations, you will be Assisting to those whom I shall leave to Administer the Government, and that you will be careful in preserving the Publick Peace of the Kingdom.

Then the Lord Keeper, by His Majesty's Command, Prorogued the Parliament till Tuesday the 16th. Day of June next.

Besides the Bills that were pass'd this Session, several others were begun, and lost upon various Accounts: Such as a Bill for Regulating Printing and Printing-Presses. Secondly, A Bill for Reversing a Judgment given against Sir William Williams, in 2 Jac. II. for what he did as Speaker of the House of Commons, and for Ascertaining the Rights and Freedoms of Parliaments. Thirdly, A Bill for Settling and Regulating the East-India Trade. Fourthly, Another to Regulate the Trade of Africa. Fifthly, A Bill to Confirm the Earl of Torrington's Grant. Sixthly, Two Bills to Vest in the Crown all Forfeited Estates in England and Ireland, and to Vacate all Grants made thereof. Seventhly, A Bill to prevent Stock-Jobbing: And Eighthly, A Bill for preventing Papists from Disinheriting their Protestant Heirs.

Other Bills dropt and lost.

1696.
Execution of Conspirators.

We have already given an Account of the Discovery of the Horrid Conspiracy against the King's Life, and for invading the Kingdom; we must now give an Account of the Apprehension and Execution of the Chief Conspirators. Great Diligence was us'd by the Government to apprehend the Conspirators: In this Service none shew'd more Zeal and Activity than the Lord Cutts, Colonel of His Majesty's Foot-Guards; and the Powerful Allurement of a Thousand Pounds Reward, inciting others to imitate his Lordship's Example; most of the Plotters, who had not committed their Safety to a speedy Flight beyond Sea, were in a few Days secur'd. Porter, Harris, Bertram, Boys, Goodman, Pendergrafs, and De la Rue, came in voluntarily. The first of the Prisoners that were try'd was Mr. Robert Charnock, a late Popish Fellow of Magdalen College, a Man of Parts and Bigotry, and one who next to Sir George Barclay was the chief Manager and Promoter of the Intended Assassination. He did with a good Presence of Mind, and Competent Knowledge of the Laws, and a Readiness of Speech make a Long, but a Frivolous Defence. With Charnock were try'd Lieutenant King, and Thomas Keys, formerly a Trumpeter, and lately Capt. Porter's Servant, who had little to say for themselves; so that upon a full Hearing of the Evidence, they were all Three found guilty of High-Treason, and Executed at Tyburn upon the 18th of March. Before the Executioner did his Office, the Malefactors delivered each a Paper to the Sheriffs, wherein they confessed the Crime they were accused of, but which they endeavour'd to palliate, and at the same time to justify both King James, the Jacobites, and Roman-Catholics. Mr. Charnock particularly own'd, That to facilitate King James's Invasion upon England, himself and some others did agree to attack the Prince of Orange and his Guards: That as for any Order or Commission of King James's for Assassinating the Prince of Orange, he neither saw nor heard of any; but had had frequent Assurances of His Majesty's having rejected such Proposals when they had been offer'd: That he did hear that there was a Commission arriv'd for Levying of War; which was natural to believe, if the King was in such readiness to come over, as was reported, but that he never saw it. And as to what regarded the Body of the Roman-Catholics, he must do them the Justice, that they had no manner of knowledge of this Design, nor did he believe it was communicated to any other Party of such as were reputed the King's Friends, but carried on meerly by a small number, without the Advice, Consent or Privity of any Parties whatsoever.

Tryal of Sir John
Friend and Sir William
Perkins.

Sir John Friend and Sir William Perkins were brought to their Tryal at the Old-Baily on March 23 and 24, and were both brought in guilty of High-Treason, and received Judgment. While they lay under Condemnation, a Committee was appointed by the House of Commons to examine them: And on April 2. the Lord Marquis of Winchester reported to the House, That the Committee had gone Yesterday to Newgate, and had sent for Sir William Perkins, and Sir John Friend severally, and acquainted them with the Order of the House, and according thereunto did examine them; and That Sir William Perkins own'd his being privy to the intended Assassination, and of being in Company when it was discours'd of at two or three Meetings, and thinks it was a Fault that he did approve of it: That he had received Hints several times of King James's Design of coming over, and particularly now; and was resolv'd to serve Him whenever He came, with himself and Friends, thinking that he had Wrong done Him; and that it was his Duty to help Him whenever he could. That he consulted not with any, but those that he could engage, and he had an Influence upon. That he guessed he could have been able to have brought in to the number of a Troop, but that he would never redeem his own Blood at the Expence of theirs that he had drawn in. That since Christmasts he did see a Commission, which he understood to be King James's, directed to His Loving Subjects, to levy War against the Prince of Orange and all his Adherents. He believes it was signed by King James: That it had a Seal to it, and that he saw it in the Hands of a Friend, which he desired not to name, but he believes he is not in England.

And that Sir John Friend, on his Examination, disown'd knowing any thing of the Intended Assassination, but expressed his Abhorrence of it. He confessed he was at the two Meetings mentioned at his Tryal, and that the Persons named to be present were there likewise; and that Charnock was sent to France from one of those Meetings, to acquaint King James, That if He would come over with Eight Thousand Foot, and Two Thousand Horse, that Three or Four Thousand Horse would be ready to join Him here, of which he did engage to furnish about Two hundred.

On April 3. Sir William Perkins and Sir John Friend were drawn on an Hurdle to Tyburn, and executed, according to the Sentence pronounc'd against them. Sir John Friend, though he had sufficiently own'd his Guilt, yet he now endeavour'd to justify the Merit of his Cause, by saying, "That the Cause he suffer'd for, he did firmly believe to be the Cause of God and True Religion, and agreeable to the Laws of the Land, which he had ever heard to require a firm Duty and Allegiance: That as no Foreign, so neither any Domestick Power can alienate our Allegiance; for it was altogether new and unintelligible to him, that the King's Subjects can depose and dethrone Him on any Account, or constitute any that have not an immediate Right to His Place; and that as they ought not to do this, so when it was done, to assist Him in the Recovery of His Right, was justifiable, and their Duty. He profess'd himself a Member of the Church of England, which he heartily besought God Almighty to bless and preserve; to deliver this Sinful Nation from the Guilt of Rebellion, Blood and Perjury; to comfort the Distressed King, restore Him to His Right, and His mis-led Subjects to their Allegiance; and to bless His Royal Consort, and his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, That he might grow in Stature, and in Favour with God and Man." As for Sir William Perkins, he confess'd, "That he was privy to a Design upon the Prince of Orange, but was not to act in it; and he was fully satisfied, that very few or none knew of it but those who undertook to do it. That he had seen the Commission from King James, to levy War against the Prince of Orange, but as for any Commission particularly level'd against his Person, he neither saw nor heard of any such. That he thought it for his Honour to say, That he was entirely in the Interest of King James, being always firmly persuaded of the Justice of His Cause; and look'd upon it as his Duty, both as a Subject, and an Englishman, to assist Him in the Recovery of His Throne, which he believed His Majesty to be deprived of, contrary to all Right and Justice; in which Opinion he took the Laws and Constitution of his Country for his Guide. And lastly, That he died in the Communion of the Church of England, in which he was educated. It's remarkable, that Mr. Jeremy Collier, a Non-juring Divine, who assisted Sir William Perkins at the Place of Execution, pronounc'd both to him, and to Sir John Friend, the Absolution of the Church,

Their Execution.
Absolved
at the Gallows.

1696. Church, as it stands in the Visitation of the Sick, and accompanied this Ceremony with a Solemn Imposition of Hands. The Court, and indeed the Body of the Nation, were very much offended at this Formal Act of Absolution, which at first blush seem'd to justify the Conspiracy, and to recommend the Traitors; a Practice more becoming the Church of Rome, where many such Criminals have been reputed Saints.

And therefore Fourteen of the Archbishops and Bishops, who were all of that Order that were then in Town, publish'd a Declaration; Wherein they Censur'd the Performance of this Office of the Church, without a previous Confession made, and Abhorrence express'd by the Prisoners of the Heinous Crime for which they died; as extremely Insolent and without Precedent in the Manner, and altogether Irregular in the Thing it self: It being a manifest Transgression of the Church's Order, and prophane Abuse of the Authority of Christ; since Mr. Collier, Mr. Snatt, and Mr. Cook, (the Three Nonjurors who attended the dying Malefactors) must look on the Persons absolv'd as Impenitents, or as Martyrs. An Account whereof was published in Quarto, printed for John Everingham; and Entitled, A Declaration of the Sense of the Archbishops and Bishops now in and about London, upon the Occasion of their Attendance in Parliament; concerning the Irregular and Scandalous Proceedings of certain Clergymen, at the Execution of Sir John Friend and Sir William Perkins. On April the 7th. the Lord Chief Justice of the King's-Bench did likewise represent to the Grand Jury the shameful and pernicious Practices of those Three Absolving Priests. Whereupon the Jury made a Presentment to the Court; "That Collier, Cook and Snatt, Clerks, did take upon them to pronounce and give Absolution to Sir William Perkins and Sir John Friend, at the time of their Execution at Tyburn; immediately before they had severally deliver'd a Paper to the Sheriff of Middlesex; wherein they had severally endeavour'd to justify the Treasons, for which they were justly Condemn'd and Executed: And that they, the said Collier, Cook and Snatt, had thereby Countenanced the same Treasons, to the great Encouragement of other Persons to commit the like Treasons, and to the Scandal of the Church of England Established by Law, and to the Disturbance of the Peace of the Kingdom. Upon which, the Court order'd an Indictment to be prefer'd against them; and on April the 8th. Mr. Cook and Mr. Snatt were committed to Newgate, for Suspicion of High Treason and Treasonable Practices: But such was the Lenity of the Government, that no manner of Punishment was inflicted on 'em; and Mr. Collier, with great Assurance, publish'd several Papers to justify his Practice.

The Non-juring Absolvers presented.

And indicted.

Trial of other Traitors.

On Tuesday April the 21st. Brigadier Rookwood, Major Lowick, and Mr. Crambourn, Three other Conspirators were brought to their Tryal, and were the first that had the Benefit of the Statute made this very Session, to Regulate Trials in Cafes of High-Treason: But neither the Copy of the Indictment which was deliver'd to them, nor the Advantage of being Defended by Sir Bartholomew Shower, and Two other eminent Lawyers, did avail them much; the Evidence against them being so plain and positive, that they were all Three found guilty, and received Sentence accordingly. Great Intercession was made by some Noblemen for the Life of Lowick; and Crambourn Petitioned to be Transported; but both to no purpose. Crambourn died on April the 29th. a Protestant; read a Paper, and spoke much to the Spectators; and said, He suffer'd for his Loyalty; pretending what he would have done was his Duty. Rookwood and Lowick died on the same Day, Roman Catholicks, and deliver'd each a Paper to the Sheriffs; wherein they partly own'd their Crime, but justified King James as to the pretended Commission for Murdering the Prince of Orange. Mr. Cooke and Mr. Knightley were the Two last that were Try'd this Year: But tho' they received Sentence of Death; the first upon his being convicted, and the other upon his freely confessing the Fact; yet upon His Majesty's Unparallel'd Clemency, Mr. Cooke was only Banished England, and Mr. Knightley was graciously Pardoned.

1696. Cooke and Knightley pardoned.

As soon as the News came into Flanders, That the Conspiracy was happily discover'd, the King safe, and England freed from the Apprehensions of an Invasion; the Prince of Vaudement, and other Generals, bethought themselves of making an extraordinary Bonfire for Joy at the expence of the French. In order to which, having drawn together a Body of Troops from several Garisons, the Earl of Athlone and Lieutenant-General Coborn marched from Namur on the 13th of March, (N. S.) with 40 Squadrons, 30 Battalions, 15 Pieces of Canon, and 6 Mortars: While the Earl, with the greatest part of these Forces invested Dinant, and kept in that Garison, the Engineer advanc'd with the rest of the Troops and all the Artillery to Givet, where the Enemy had laid up a vast Magazine; and having got his Batteries in readines by the 16th in the Morning, he began to fire into the Town with Bombs and red-hot Bullets, which set both the Forage and Houses on fire. At the same time a Detachment of Soldiers were commanded to enter the Town with large Flambeaux in their hands; which they performed with great Bravery, firing the Cazerns and Granaries where the Oats and other Provisions lay, so that the whole Town and Magazine were utterly consumed; and all this executed with the inconsiderable Loss of Nine or Ten Men. Not long after, Sir Cloudesty Shovel sail'd out of the Downs with several Men of War and Bomb-Vessels; and being come to Calais, Captain Bembow, notwithstanding the vigorous Opposition from the Enemies Boats and Half-Gallies, threw between 3 and 400 Bombs; most of which fell in the Town, and among the Embarkations, and set fire in three or four Places, and in some of the Vessels in the Port. Tho the Success of this Bombardment did not answer either the Expence or Expectation of the English, yet the Damage was not so inconsiderable as the French gave it out; it being certain, that several Houses were burnt and spoiled, besides the Church and Convent, and some part of the Cazerns: And 'tis remarkable, that the French have raised a Cross and Oratory near a Shell, which to this day sticks in the Market-place at Calais; where they often pray against the Fury of English Bombs; and which is no less a Monument of their Deliverance than of their Fears.

Joy in Flanders for the King's Safety.

Before His Majesty left England, He bestowed Marks of His Royal Favour on several Persons. On March the 31st. He conferr'd the Honour and Dignity of a Baronet upon Mr. Richard Blackham, an eminent Turkey-Merchant, in Consideration of his Loyalty and Services. And upon the Occasion of presenting the Associations, His Majesty bestow'd the Honour of Knighthood upon the Presenters of 'em; as on Alexander Pigby, Esq; who presented the Association of Wigan in Lancashire: On William Milard, Esq; High Sheriff of the County of Bedford: On Charles Morley, Esq; one of the Representatives in Parliament of the Borough of Hindon in the County of Wilts: On George Hanger, Esq; High Sheriff of the County of Gloucester; On John Elwill, Esq; one Honours and Favours.

1696. of the Representatives of Beeralston; On John Robinson Esq; one of the Burgesses for Sudbury; And the Dignity of a Baronet upon Thomas Wheat of Glampton, in the County of Oxford, Esq; On May 1. His Majesty was pleased to Declare in Council, That He had Appointed the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Keeper, the Lord Pembroke, the Duke of Devonshire, the Duke of Shrewsbury, the Earl of Dorset, the Lord Godolphin, to be Lords Justices of England, for the Administration of the Government during His Majesty's Absence. At the same time His Majesty created Sir John Lowther of Lowther, Bar^t. Baron Lowther of Lowther, and Viscount Lonsdale in the County of Westmorland. His Majesty was also pleased to create Sir John Thompson, Bar^t. a Baron of this Kingdom, by the Stile and Title of Baron Harversham of Harversham, in the County of Bucks; and to constitute Sir Thomas Littleton, Bar^t. one of the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury: And to give to Christopher Musgrave, Esq; the Office of Clerk of the Ordnance; and to James Lowther, Esq; that of Clerk of the Delivery of the Ordnance. The same Day His Majesty was pleased to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Theodore Fansen, Esq; for his good Services, and the Zeal he had on all Occasions express'd for His Majesty's Government. And the same Evening, when the Venetian Ambassadors took their Leave of the King at Kensington, His Majesty knighted Seignior Soranzo, the Eldest of the Ambassadors, (as had been Practised by His Royal Predecessors) and made him a Present of His Sword. Not long after, His Majesty was pleased to constitute and appoint the Lord Keeper, the President of the Council, the Lord Privy-Seal, the First Commissioner of the Treasury, the First Commissioner of the Admiralty, the Two Principal Secretaries of State, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer, for the time being; and the Earls of Bridgewater, and Tankerville, Sir Philip Meadhouse, William Blathwaite, John Pollexfen, John Lock, Abraham Hill, and John Methuen, Esquires, to be Commissioners for Encouraging, Improving, and Protecting the Trade of this Kingdom, and the Plantations, Manufactures, and Fishery of the same.

The King goes for Holland. On Saturday, May 2. The King went from Kensington, and Lay at the House of Capt. Ball near Margate. The next Day about 2 in the Afternoon, His Majesty went on Board His Yacht, the Wind being then at S. S. E. but it veering in the Evening to the Eastward, and there being an appearance of foul Weather, His Majesty came on Shoar again. Two Days after, the Wind being more favourable, and the Weather very fair, He went on Board the Elizabeth, Commanded by Vice-Admiral Aylmer, and on May 7. Landed safely at Oranie Polder, and about Midnight arrived at the Hague; and with all possible Expedition put Himself at the Head of the Confederate Forces in Flanders. Tho' the French took the Field before the Allies, to whom they were at first superior in Number, yet the latter being soon Reinforced by the coming up of the *German*s, and both Armies suffering equally for want of Pay; the French by reason of the general Poverty of their Kingdom, and the English on account of the calling in the Money to be Re-coined: The Generals on both sides spent the whole Campaign in observing one another, and endeavouring to possess themselves of the most convenient Camps, for the Subsistence of their indigent Troops. The Straits to which the Armies were reduc'd, seem'd to favour Monsieur Catthens Negotiation; who before the King arriv'd at the Hague, was come thither from France, with Proposals towards concluding a General

Peace, by settling such Preliminaries as might be a sufficient Basis to ground a Treaty upon. 'Tis generally believed, that hitherto there was little disposition in the French Court to a General Peace, wherein they foresaw they must Sacrifice the Interest of King James, on whose account chiefly the War was undertaken and carried on: But the loss of Namur, Cazal, and other Disadvantages, without all doubt prevail'd on his most Christian Majesty to make these Advances; and nothing could have delay'd them so long, but the plausible hopes of Success in the intended Invasion of England, and that in such a favourable Conjunction as the badness of our Coin rendred it. Now the former failing, and England having a fair Prospect of overcoming all Difficulties in relation to the Money, there was no room for a longer delay. The King of France address'd himself to the Dutch, because he suppos'd that they could not but be weary of a tedious War, that had almost ruin'd their Trade, the only Spring of their Riches and Subsistence; and would therefore sooner hearken to Peace, than either the Emperor, or the King of England, whose Power and Authority daily encreas'd, at least among their respective Subjects, by the continuance of the War. It's true, the Hollanders had an absolute Dependence upon His Britannick Majesty; not only because He was their Stadtholder, but also because since their first Settlement they always found it, and esteem'd it their Interest to keep closely united to England, in order to maintain a Balance between the Houses of Bourbon and Austria, and preserve themselves from being crush'd by either: Yet, as the French King was at last resolv'd to acknowledge King William's Title to the Crown of England, so he believ'd that what Ties soever there might be between His Britannick Majesty and the Dutch, the latter would never coldly entertain the Proposals which he design'd to make them; since by removing this great Obstacle, the Way seem'd to lie fair and open to a General Peace.

The States of Holland finding by the French King's Proposals, and his Offers to deliver up so many Places, that there was room for an Honourable and lasting Peace, made Monsieur Cailliere a favourable Reception; but yet refus'd either to grant him a Passport, but by the concurring Allowance of King William; or to Treat with him without the Consent of His Britannick Majesty, and their other Allies. This was no more but what Monsieur Cailliere expected; for tho' at the Treaty of Nimeguen, the French Plenipotentiaries found a way to draw the Dutch to a separate Peace, by making them Jealous of the then Prince of Orange; yet he was persuaded that the Hollanders were by this time too sensible of their former Mistake, to suffer the French to play the same Game over again. However, Monsieur Cailliere having positive Orders from His Master not to acknowledge King William till he had good assurances of the Peace, he found out an Expedient; which was, That the States and he should not come to a final Conclusion; but if they found reason to agree upon any Point, that the same should be Communicated to their Allies. To this Medium the Dutch readily consented; and amongst other Particulars, demanded as Preliminaries of this Treaty, the Restitution of Lorraine, and of the Towns of Strasbourg and Luxemburg. Monsieur Cailliere granted both, in his Master's Name; but upon condition, That Lorraine should be restor'd to the Duke of that Name, on such Terms only as had been agreed to at Nimeguen. This was oppos'd by the President Canon, who took care of the Duke of Lorraine's Interest in Holland, under pretence that 1696. when his Master enter'd into the Grand Alliance, the Confederates engag'd never to conclude a Peace, till he had full Satisfaction done him; Urging, that if the Duke's Dominions were not restor'd to him but upon the Terms of the Peace of Nimwegen, he should rather be a Loser than a Gainer by the Confederacy; since he could have made a better Bargain with the French King, before he enter'd into the War. But as in most Alliances great Potentates seldom regard the Concerns of those Petty Princes they have engag'd in their Quarrel, when they have no need of them; so the Allies, after having spoke once or twice in the Duke of Lorraine's behalf, thought it not worth their while to insist any longer upon that Affair: Tho' President Canon gave in several Memorials, which were some time back'd by the Imperial Ministers; whose Master was desirous to prolong the Conclusion of the Treaty, which would lessen the Dependance of the German Princes upon him. Things being thus far advanc'd on the part of the Dutch, and the English being rather inclin'd than averse to a Peace, by reason of their great Losses at Sea, their heavy Taxes at Home, and the disheartning Prospect of getting nothing by the War; It was agreed on all hands, thro' the Mediation of the King of Sweden, and the wise Management of the Baron de Lillienroot, his Ambassador in Holland, That Plenipotentiaries should be nam'd to bring that to perfection, which as yet was only begun.

To make the Spaniards the more willing to put an end to the War, the Duke of Vendosme, who this Year commanded the French Forces in Catalonia, resolv'd to make them feel the power of His most Christian Majesty's Arms, by attacking them in their Camp near Ostabrick. In order to that, he pass'd the River Ter; and understanding that the Spanish Cavalry commanded by the Prince of Hesse Darmstadt, had advanc'd out of the Lines to observe him, he fell upon them first with great Vigor. The Spaniards seeing none but Horse appear against them in the beginning, resolutely stood their ground, and forc'd some of the French Squadrons to recoil; but when they saw the number of the Enemy increase, and a strong Body of Infantry come up to support them, they retreated in very good order, under the Cannon planted on their Lines; where the French, greedy of Pursuit, met with such a warm Entertainment, as quickly oblig'd them to retire in their turn. In this Fight, which was the only Action worth remark, that happen'd this Year on this side, the Spaniards by their own Confession, lost near 300 Men, and the French about 200.

The Campaign on the Rhine was still more inconsiderable. Indeed the French in the beginning of the Spring, boasted their passing that River, and forc'd Prince Lewis of Baden to intrench himself, to avoid an Engagement: But now towards the end of the Year, the Prince in his turn, crosses the Rhine near Mentz; and being join'd by the Hessian Troops, advances to Newstadt, where the French were so strongly intrench'd, that all he could do was to Cannonade them for several Days. It was at the same time contriv'd, that General Thungen should have pass'd the Rhine, not far from Philipsburg, in order to have attack'd the French in the Rear; but they having notice of that Design, detach'd the Marquis d'Uxelles to disappoint it: So that the Germanus, after they had got some Booty, and divers Hostages for Contribution, repass'd the Rhine towards the beginning of October, and then march'd into Winter Quarters.

The main Business of this Year, in relation to the Grand Confederacy, was manag'd on the side of Italy. During the Winter, the Court of France renew'd their Intrigues with the Duke of Savoy, to engage him to a separate Peace: The Pope's Nuncio, and the Venetian Envoy, seconded the Designs of that Crown; and in His most Christian Majesty's Name, made such large and advantageous Offers to his Royal Highness, that he at last resolv'd to accept them. 'Tis true, he was tyed by his Word and Honour to the Confederates, but now-a-days the Signification of these Terms among Princes, seems to be restrain'd to Policy and Interest; and not to mention the Example of his Predecessors, his Royal Highness had often seen this Maxim confirm'd by the Practice of some of his Neighbours. But besides, he wanted not plausible Reasons to justify his Conduct: For tho' England and Holland had ever punctually paid in the Subsidies they had promis'd him, and even something more, yet the Emperor and King of Spain were much behind-hand in their Contributions and Supplies. Indeed the Allies did not fail to assure his Royal Highness, that they would procure him Conditions at the General Treaty, as much, if not more advantageous than those France offer'd him at present: But those were loose and distant Promises, and those of France certain and at hand; and supported besides, by Threats from that Crown, to Invade the rest of the Duke's Country next Summer with a formidable Army. However, tho' his Royal Highness urg'd the Probability of the Effects of this Measure to justify his Conduct to the Allies; Yet 'tis certain, a stronger Motive inclin'd him to a separate Peace; and that was the Matching his Eldest Daughter to the Dauphin's Eldest Son. It was not safe to conclude this Treaty at Turin, where the Duke was narrowly observ'd by the Vigilant Lord Galloway; and therefore his Royal Highness, to avoid the prying Sagacity of that Minister, went towards the Close of the Winter, with a small Retinue of his own naming, to our Lady of Loretto, concealing a Political Journey under the pretence of a Religious Vow. This gave no small Umbrage to the Lord Galloway, who knowing the Prince to be more a Statesman than a Bigot, and being refus'd to accompany him, sent Spies after his Royal Highness: But notwithstanding all their Watching, they could never get the least notice of the Treaty of Peace; which the Duke Sign'd at Loretto, by the Mediation of the Agents of Rome and Venice, and a private Messenger from the Marschal de Catina. By this Treaty the French restor'd to his Royal Highness all the new Conquests they had made; as also Pignerol demolish'd: Gave him Four Millions of Livres, towards the Reparation of the Damages he had sustain'd during the War; Engag'd to assist him with 8000 Foot, and 4000 Horse, to be Maintain'd at the Charge of the King of France; and that a Marriage between the Duke of Burgundy, and the Princess, his Royal Highness's Daughter, should forthwith be treated on, to be consummated as soon they should be of Age. As for the Princess's Portion, it was agreed that the Duke should give her Two Hundred Thousand Crowns of Gold; toward the Payment of which, his Royal Highness was to give a Discharge for One Hundred Thousand Crowns of Gold which remain'd due by France to the House of Savoy, as part of the Dutchess's Royal's Portion: And the Remainder the King of France promis'd to remit, in consideration of this present Treaty; of which the Pope and Venetians were Guarantees, and which was soon after Ratified in France.

Duke of Savoy makes a separate Peace.

Match of the Duke of Burgundy with a Daughter of the Duke of Savoy 1696.

Affairs at Sea.

Nor were our Affairs at Sea much more successful than at Land. All things betray'd on all sides a weakness and weariness of War. At the first breaking out of the Plot, Sir George Rook Commanding the Fleet at Cadix, had Orders sent him to return home; and he safely came upon our Coasts towards the latter end of April. This dissipated the Fears of England, lest the French Fleet from Thoulon should overtake and ruin our inferior number of Ships. And indeed the French were not far behind. For before Sir George could pursue the Orders of joyning with some Men of War that lay in the Downs, and then bearing for the Coast of Brest to Intercept and Fight them, they were got safe into that and other Neighbouring Ports of France. Hereupon Sir George Rook left the French Coast and went into Torbay May 23. from whence he set out for London, to assist at the Admiralty Board, having resign'd the command of the Fleet to the Lord Berkley; who about June 24. Sail'd out of Torbay, steering his Course towards Ushant, in order to insult the Coast of France. On July the 3d. his Lordship commanded the Burford and the Newcastle Man of War, with a Fireship, to land on the Island of Groy, and at the same time some small Vessels were sent along the Shore. The next day the Fleet came to an Anchor about two Leagues off Belle-Isle, and the Barges and Pinnaces were immediately Mann'd, and order'd to land upon Horeal one of the Islands call'd the Cardinals, which they did without any opposition either from the Inhabitants, or the Garison of the adjacent Fort; made themselves Masters of the whole Island, and Burnt the Town of Horeal: they afterwards did the like upon the Island of Hodicke. On the 5th. Three more English, and Two Dutch Men of War, with the Long Boats of divers other Ships, and seven Hundred Soldiers and Mariners, were sent to joyn the Burford and Newcastle at Groy, who finish'd what Captain Fitzpatrick had begun: having Destroyed there about Twenty Villages, Kill'd and carried away 1300 head of Black Cattle and Horses, and taken Twenty Boats and small Vessels. While this was doing near Belle-Isle, Sir Martin Beckman with the Bomb-Vessels and a Squadron of Ten Men of War under the Command of Captain Mees, arriv'd on July 5th. before St. Martin's, a Trading and Wealthy Town in the Isle of Rhee, going in with French Colours, which they took down when they Anchor'd. In the Evening Sir Martin Beckman began the Bombardment, and that Night and the next Day fired about Two Thousand Bombs and Carcasses with such success, that the greatest and richest part of the Town was Burnt down, or miserably Shatter'd; the French at last recover'd their Surprize, and brought down Cannon and Mortars to the front of the Town towards the Sea, and began to Fire upon the English, who contenting themselves with the Damage already done to St. Martins, bore away towards Clonne, where they had but little Success, through a mistake of the Situation of the Place. The French thought the Mischief done upon their Coasts to be in some manner reveng'd by the Bold and Famous Du Bart, who on June 8th. with Eight Men of War, and Four Privateers fell in with a great Fleet of Dutch Merchant Ships, bound home from the Scound, under Convoy of Six or Seven Frigats, about Six Leagues off the Ulie, and having taken the said Frigats and Burnt four of them, he destroy'd about Thirty of the Merchant Ships, and took several of the Rest.

In the next Session of Parliament the Commons in considering the State of the Nation, took notice of the late Miscarriages of the Fleet; 1696. and on November the 4th. Ordered Sir George Rook to attend the House to give an Account, Why the French Thoulon Squadron was not Intercepted in going into Brest? That Admiral attended accordingly, and produced Copies of his Journal, and of the Orders he had received from the Admiralty; which being Examin'd, Sir Cloudsley Shovel was likewise Order'd to lay before the House the Copies of all such Instructions as he had received from the Admiralty, in order to the joyning Sir George Rook. Soon after Sir Robert Rich from the Commissioners of the Admiralty, presented to the House of Commons Copies of all Orders sent both to Sir George and Sir Cloudsley, in relation to the Fleet in General, between January the 1st. 1696. and the time the French got into Brest; as also an Account of what Intelligences they received of the Thoulon Squadron's fitting out, and their Motion towards Brest. When nothing of discovery was made by the Commons, the Lords appointed a Committee to make an Enquiry concerning the Thoulon Squadron's getting into Brest, without any Opposition? But neither could their Lordships tell where to lay the Blame.

The Parliament of Scotland met at Edinburgh State of Scotland. on September 8. and the Lord Murray lately created Earl of Tullebarine, His Majesty's High Commissioner, made a Speech to them on occasion of their Meeting; as did likewise the Lord Polwarth, Lord High Chancellor of Scotland. Two Days after, the King's Letter to the Parliament was Read; after which, Committees were appointed, as usual, for the Security of the Kingdom, for Trade and Controverted Elections. Then all the Members Sign'd an Association, being the same in substance with that which the Parliament of England had Subscribed. They soon Resolved to give His Majesty a Supply of 1440000 Pound Scots, to be raised by a Land-Cels, and an additional Excise, for maintaining the Standing Forces both by Sea and Land. They order'd an Act to be brought in for securing their Religion, Lives and Properties, in case His Majesty should come to an untimely Death; and another for obliging all in Publick Trust to Sign the Association. On the 20th. of September the Parliament Read and Approved the latter of the said Acts, as also their Answer to the King's Letter; and on the 25th. the Lord Commissioner gave the Royal Assent to the Act for the Supply, and to some others. On October the 9th. his Grace return'd to the Parliament, and touch'd with the Scepter, An Act for the Security of the Kingdom. An Act in favour of Preachers at Vacant Churches. An Act in favour of the Universities, Schools and Hospitals. An Act for the Levy of 1000 Men. An Act against Protestant Servants in Popish Families. An Act for better providing of the Poor. An Act against Prophaneness; and several other Acts. And on the 12th. of October, the Parliament was Adjourn'd to the 8th. of December following.

In Ireland, the Lord Capel, Lord Deputy, after State of Ireland. a long Sickness Died on May the 30th. whereupon the Council in pursuance of an Act made 33. Henry VIII. Elected the Lord Chancellor Porter to be Lord Justice and Chief Governor of that Kingdom, till His Majesty's Pleasure was known. On June the 27th. the Irish Parliament met at Dublin: In the Lords House the King's Commission was Read, appointing the Lord Chief Justice Hely to be their Speaker; who being Sworn, a Motion was made and unanimously agreed to, that the whole House with their Speaker, should wait on the Lord Justice Porter, to Congratulate his being placed in the Government

Our Insulting
the French Coasts.

1696. ment of that Kingdom; the Commons at the same time having first expell'd Mr. Sanderfon, the only Member of their House who refus'd to sign the Association, made the same Unanimous Vote; and in the Afternoon both Houses attended the Lord Justice, and then adjourned to the 4th of August; upon which Day Sir Charles Porter, Lord Chancellor, and the Earls of Montrath and Drogheda, lately appointed Lords Justices, and General Governors of Ireland, signified His Majesty's Pleasure to the Parliament, That they should further adjourn themselves. On Dec. 8. in the Evening Sir Charles Porter was seized with an Apoplectick Fit, and died immediately; and the 10th at Night his Corps was privately interr'd at Christ-Church.

Proceedings of the Lords Justices in England.

The Lords Justices of England during His Majesty's Absence, did all that was possible to preserve the Peace, and to improve the Honour of the Nation. By Proclamation dated the 18th of May, they prorogued the Parliament from June 16 to July 28. and so on by short Intervals till His Majesty's Return. By another Proclamation dated May 23. they appointed a General Fast to be observed on Friday, June 26. for a Special Blessing on His Majesty's Righteous Undertakings, and that God would consummate the Deliverance of these Nations, by settling the same in a firm and lasting State of Peace, Security and Prosperity. On May 30. They gave an Order in Council, That Mr. Attorney General should prosecute all such Persons who had enter'd into Unlawful Confederacies and Agreements, whereby they had engag'd and oblig'd each other under Penalties, not to employ any Persons in making the Woollen and other Manufactures of this Kingdom. On July 2. They made another Order in Council, That the Justices of Peace should frequently meet in their Divisions, and consult how they may relieve the Labourers and poorer sort of People, who suffer Hardship by the great Difficulty in the Exchange of Money. On July 17. they issued a Proclamation for apprehending the Famous Pyrate Henry Every and his Crew, who had committed several Depredations in the East-Indies, to the great prejudice of the English Company and Trade. On August 31. they publish'd a Proclamation for apprehending William Birkenhead, who being committed to Newgate for High-Treason, had made his Escape out of the said Prison. On Sept. 10. another Proclamation for apprehending Captain William Wintour of Dymock, in the County of Gloucester, and several other Clippers and Coiners. On Sept. 24. they made an Order in Council for encouraging the Coining of New Money in Gold and Silver.

The King leaves the Army.

King William being weary of a Campaign that afforded him no Opportunity for Action, left the Army towards the latter end of August, under the Command of the Elector of Bavaria, and went to His usual Diversion of Stag-hunting, about His Royal Palaces of Dieren and Loe. On the 14th of September His Majesty set out from this Place, accompanied by the Duke of Zell (a Prince whom he ever respected as a Father, and lov'd as a Bosom Friend) and the next Day went to Cleves, where he was magnificently entertain'd by the Court of Brandenburgh, who were come thither on purpose to receive His Visit. Having spent two Days at this Agreeable Place, His Majesty and His Dear Companion, the Duke of Zell, went back to Loe, where three Days after he was followed by the Electoral Prince of Brandenburgh, in return of His Majesty's Visit at that Court. Having staid three Weeks longer at this Place, His Majesty went to the Hague, and on the 14th of October, (N. S.) embarked on board the William and Mary Yatch, attended by several other

The King returns to England.

1696. Yatches, and a Squadron of Men of War, under the Command of Vice-Admiral Aylmer. Two Days after, His Majesty landed at Margate, and arriv'd the same Evening at Kensington, where on the 8th of the same Month (O. S.) the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen of London attend'd His Majesty, and Mr. Recorder, in the Name of the City, "Did Congratulate His Majesty's Safe Return, and gave Him their Hearty Thanks for His Princely Care, and Indefatigable Pains for the Safety of His Own Kingdoms, and the Security of Christendom; with the Humble Assurance of the City's Sincere Affection, and Constant Loyalty, which they would upon all Occasions effectually demonstrate to the utmost of their Power." His Majesty received their Compliment very graciously, and on that Occasion conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon John Johnson, Esq; one of the Aldermen, and upon John Wolfe, and Samuel Blewett, Esquires, the Present Sheriffs. No other Honour had been conferr'd during the King's Absence, save only that the Duke of Gloucester on his Birthday, July 24. being now seven Years of Age compleat, was Install'd Knight of the Garter, in the Chapel of St. George at Windsor, with great Order and Magnificence. And all the Companions and other Nobility there present, were splendidly entertain'd by her Royal Highness the Princess Anne of Denmark; the Evening concluded with a Ball at Court, and an Excellent New Ode and Musick in Honour of his Highness's Birth-day, and with Ringing of Bells, Bonfires and Illuminations. On Sep. 18. Mr. Serjeant Blencowe was appointed by the King to be one of the Barons of the Exchequer, in the room of Mr. Justice Turton, who was removed to the Court of Kings Bench, upon the Death of Mr. Justice Gregory.

Duke of Gloucester Knight of the Garter.

On Tuesday, Octob. 20. the Parliament met at Westminster, and the King being seated on the Throne, with the usual Solemnity, made this Speech to both Houses.

Parliament meets.

My Lords and Gentlemen,
 "I Have called you together as soon as was possible; and I think it a great Happiness that this Year has pass'd without any Disadvantage Abroad, or Disorder at Home, considering Our great Disappointment in the Funds given at your last Meeting, and the Difficulties which have arisen upon the Re-coining of the Money.
 "This is so Convincing a Proof of the good Disposition of My Army, and of the Steady Affections of My People, that I cannot but take notice of it with great Satisfaction.
 "Our Enemies have not been without hopes, that such a Conjunction might have prov'd fatal to us: But as they have failed in those Expectations, so I am fully persuaded that your Unanimous Proceedings in this Session will make them for ever Despair of an Advantage from any Disagreement among Our Selves.
 "It must be confessed, that the Business which you have before you will be very great, because of the necessity of supplying former Deficiencies, as well as making Provisions for the next Year's Service.
 "And upon this Occasion it is fit for Me to acquaint you, that some Overtures have been made in order to the entering upon a Negotiation for a General Peace: But I am sure We shall agree in Opinion, That the only Way of treating with France, is with Our Swords in Our Hands; and that We can have no reason to expect

King's Speech.

1696. "pect a Safe and Honourable Peace, but by shewing Our Selves prepar'd to make a Vigorous and Effectual War: In order to which, I do very earnestly recommend to you, Gentlemen of the House of Commons, That you would consider of raising the Necessary Supplies, as well for maintaining the Honour of Parliaments in making good the Funds already granted, as for carrying on the War the next Year; which I think ought not to be less than what was intended to be raised for that purpose the last Session.

"I must also put you in mind of the Civil List, which cannot be supported without your Help; and the Miserable Condition of the French Protestants does oblige Me to mention them to you again.

My Lords and Gentlemen.

"It may deserve your Consideration, whether there do not still remain some Inconveniencies relating to the Coin, which ought to be remedied: And I hope you'll find out the best Expedients for the recovery of Credit, which is absolutely necessary, not only with respect to the War, but for carrying on of Trade.

"I am of Opinion, that there is not one good Englishman, who is not entirely convinc'd how much does depend upon this Session; and therefore I cannot but hope for your Unanimity and Dispatch in your Resolutions, which at this time are more necessary than ever for the Safety and Honour of England.

Proceedings of the Commons.

The Commons having appointed their Grand Committees, for Religion, for Grievances, for Trade, for Courts of Justice, and for Privileges and Elections, resolv'd Nemine contradicente, "That they would support His Majesty and His Government against all His Enemies both at Home and Abroad, and that they would effectually assist Him in the Prosecution and carrying on the present War against France: And that an Humble Address should be prepared to be presented to His Majesty pursuant to the said Resolution." Which Address was drawn up by Mr. Mountague, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and presented to His Majesty on October 23. by the whole House in these Words:

May it please Your Most Excellent Majesty.

Address to the King.

"This is the Eighth Year in which your Majesty's Most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons in Parliament assembled, have assisted Your Majesty with large Supplies for carrying on a Just and Necessary War, in Defence of our Religion, Preservation of our Laws, and Vindication of the Rights and Liberties of the People of England; which we have hitherto preserved; and, by the Blessing of God, upon Your Majesty's Conduct and Good Government, will steadfastly maintain and entail on our Posterity.

"This has cost the Nation much Blood and Treasure, but the Hopes of accomplishing so Great and Glorious a Work, have made Your Subjects cheerfully support the Charge. And to show to Your Majesty, and all Christendom, that the Commons of England will not be amused or diverted from their Firm Resolutions of obtaining by War a Safe and Honourable Peace, we do, in the Name of all those we represent, renew our Assurances to Your Majesty, That this House will support Your Majesty and Your Government against all Your Enemies both at Home and Abroad; and that they will effectually assist You in the prosecution and carrying on the Present War against France.

His Majesty in Answer was pleased to express Himself thus kindly. 1696.

Gentlemen,

The continuance of Your Zeal and Affection is the Thing of the World I value most, and I will answer it by all the Ways I can think of; and will make your Good, and the Safety of the Nation, the Principal Care of my Life.

These Assurances of Affection on the one side, of Loyalty on the other, and of Mutual Confidence on Both, being happily given, the Commons enter'd with great Alacrity upon the Three Great Affairs that had been recommended to 'em from the Throne: To wit, The further remedying the Ill State of the Coin: The providing a Supply for the next Year's Service: And the restoring of Publick Credit. All which had a near dependance one upon the other, and made the Difficulties more intricate and hard to compose.

In order to remove the First and the Last, the Commons resolv'd on their very first Day of meeting, That They would not alter the Standard of the Gold or Silver in Fineness, Weight or Denomination; and that they will make good all Parliamentary Funds since His Majesty's Accession to the Crown, that have been made Credits for Loan from the Subject. And because the Circulation of Guineas was obstructed by reason of the want of other Coin, and by reason of the Act made the last Session, to take off the Obligation of Coining Gold, a Bill was Order'd to be brought in Oct. 22. For the giving leave to import Guineas, and to Coin Gold at the Mint: And that they might proceed in their Debates with the less Reflection from Abroad, they censur'd a Printed Pamphlet, Entituled, An Account of the Proceedings in the House of Commons, in relation to the Receiving the Clipp'd Money, and Falling the Price of Guineas; as False, Scandalous and Seditious, and Destructive of the Freedom and Liberties of Parliament; and order'd the said Pamphlet to be burnt by the Common Hangman, and address'd His Majesty to issue His Proclamation, promising a Reward of 500 l. for the Discovery of the Author of that Libel. And two Days after the House being inform'd of a Printed Paper, Entituled, A Summary Account of the Proceedings upon the Happy Discovery of the Jacobite Conspiracy, They resolv'd, "That the Printing the Names of the Members of their House, and reflecting on them for their Proceedings in Parliament, was a Breach of the Privileges of that House, and destructive of the Freedom and Liberties of Parliament." On Octob. 28. two other Bills were likewise order'd to be drawn up; One, For the further Remedying the Ill State of the Coin; and the other, For encouraging the bringing in Plate into the Mint to be Coin'd: Which at last with great Application were put into one Bill; and on Dec. 3. the King came into the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for Importing and Coining Guineas and Half-Guineas. 2. An Act to Explain that Part of the Act passed the last Session of Parliament, for laying several Duties on Low Wines, and Spirits of the first Extraction; and for preventing the Frauds and Abuses of Brewers, Distillers and other Persons chargeable with the Duties of Excise, which relates to the Payment of Tallies, and the Interest thereof. 3. An Act for the further remedying the Ill State of the Coin of the Kingdom.

As for the Supply, the Commons having consider'd the State of the War for the Year 1697, both in relation to the Navy and Land Forces, which at their Desire, His Majesty order'd to be laid before them, they granted the Sum of Two Millions Three Hundred Seventy Two Thousand One Hundred Ninety Seven Pounds, for the main-

The Commons proceed to Business.

State of the Coin.

Acts passed.

Supply.

1696. Maintenance of Forty Thousand Seamen, and of the Two Marine Regiments; and for the Ordinary of the Navy, and the Charge of the Regillery of Seamen; And the Sum of Two Millions Five Hundred Seven Thousand Eight Hundred and Eighty Two Pounds, both for the Maintaining Eighty Seven Thousand Four Hundred and Forty Men, which according to the List of the Land-Forces delivered into the House, they Voted necessary to be employ'd in England, and beyond the Seas; and for the Extraordinary Service of the Office of Ordnance, the Pay of the General Officers, and the Charge of the Transports, Hospitals, and other Contingencies of the War. Besides which, they afterwards on December 23. Voted a Supply of One Hundred Twenty Five Thousand Pounds, for making good the Deficiency in ReCoining Hammer'd Money, and the Recompence to be given for bringing Plate into the Mints to be Coined.

Ways and Means. The Ways and Means of raising this Supply, were, First, A General Capitation or Poll-Tax: Secondly, A Tax of Three Shillings in the Pound upon Land: And Thirdly, A Duty upon all Paper, Pallboard, Velum and Parchment, Imported or made in this Kingdom.

Lofs of Credit to be Retriev'd. But still the greatest Difficulty of all, was the Lofs of Publick Credit: For the Tallies struck, or Funds settled by Parliament, especially such as were remote, were exchange'd for ready Money, at a mighty Lofs: And the Government was oblig'd to make excessive Discounts and Allowances to bring Treasure into the Exchequer. This great Lofs of Credit, which was like to prove fatal to our Affairs abroad the last Summer, arose chiefly from two Springs: First, the Deficiencies of Parliamentary Funds, particularly the unhappy Project of the Land-Bank, which proved wholly Abortive, and did not produce one Penny of above Two Millions and a half with which it was charged: Secondly, The ReCoining of our Silver. The first created Trust, and the latter destroy'd it, by making Money to be very scarce. 'Tis easie to imagine what perishing Circumstances the Nation was in, when the Notes of the Bank of England, which had been a mighty help to the Publick, were discounted at Twenty, and Tallies at Forty, Fifty, or Sixty per Cent. The Government had Contracted a great Debt; some Funds were wholly taken away, and the rest proved Deficient; great Numbers of Tallies were on Funds very remote, and many had no Funds at all. Hereby the Trust and good Opinion of the People were so far lost, that those few who had any Money to lend, shew'd the greatest backwardness imaginable to bring it into the Exchequer, when they could Stock-job it to so great Advantage upon the Royal-Exchange; and therefore all Loans to the Government were procured on Exorbitant Premiums.

Great Difficulty. All Men were amaz'd and confounded at this Obstruction to Trade and Credit, and hardly believ'd that the Wit of Man was able to find out any Expedient, that could be effectual to retrieve so great a Mischief. The Nation is more oblig'd to the Wisdom, Sagacity, and Eloquence of Mr. Mountague, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who Animated the whole Design, and Projected the most happy Methods to bring it to a happy Effect. On November 25. the Commons Resolved, That a Supply be Granted to His Majesty to make good the Deficiencies of Parliamentary Funds; and afterwards order'd an Estimate to be laid before them, of what Sums were, or would be wanting to satisfy and discharge all Principal and Interest due, or to become due on the several Aids, Duties, or Funds, over and above all

To make good the Deficiencies.

1696. Arrears, standing out upon them which were determin'd; and besides all Moneys to be rais'd by such as were then unexpir'd. And the Computation of all the particular Sums that were wanting to make good all the Deficient Funds, being made, the whole amounted to Five Millions, One Hundred and Sixty Thousand, Four Hundred Pounds. Having now got to the bottom of the Disease, they Resolved on a thorough Cure. For being sensible, that had some Deficiencies been taken care of, and others neglected, publick Credit must have continued lame, and the Government have Halt-ed, if it had not fallen to the Ground, they judg'd it of absolute necessity to make Provision for the whole; that so there should remain no Tally without a Fund, nor any Tally on a Deficient Fund, but what in its course of Payment should be satisfied and discharged. In order to this, they continued divers Duties arising not only by the Customs, but by continued and additional Impositions; Paper and Parchment, Births, Marriages, and Burials, Windows, the Subsidy of Tonnage and Poundage, after the Day on which they would otherwise have expir'd, to the 1st. Day of August, 1706. and appointed all the Moneys which should arise, and be brought into His Majesty's Exchequer from any of these Taxes or Duties, from the Day on which they were otherwise to Expire, to the said First Day of August, 1706. to be the General Fund for making good all the Deficient ones, by the Satisfaction and Payment of the Principal and Interest due, or become due thereupon. And that all occasion of Complaint might be remov'd, and equal Provision made for all, the Parliament directed that all Moneys arising from the Duties, so as before continued and appropriated for the General Fund, should be distributed and applied to pay Principal and Interests upon every one of the Deficient Funds, in proportion to the Sum of which they were deficient; and that all the Money which should be in such a due Proportion distributed or placed to the Account of each deficient Tax or Fund, for the discharge of Principal and Interest, should be paid out to all who were intitled to receive the same, in such Course and Order, as if the same were Moneys really arising by the respective deficient Funds, and that without being Diverted, Misapplied, or Postpon'd; and made the Officers of His Majesty's Treasury liable to great Penalties, in case this Method were not observed. Moreover, to remove all Doubts about the Security intended to be given, in case on the 1st. of August, 1706. or within Three Months, then next ensuing, the whole Produce of the several Funds and Revenues appropriated for a General Fund, together with other Grants then in being, should not be sufficient to discharge the Sum of Five Millions, One Hundred and Sixty Thousand Four Hundred Pounds, intended to be discharged, that then what was deficient, should be made good out of such Aids or Revenues as should be granted in the next Session of Parliament. Thus the Commons, by an admirable Stroke of Wisdom, as well as a noble Act of publick Justice, provided a sufficient Security for this great Debt that lay heavy on the Nation; which was all that could be demanded or expected, at a time when Money was not in being, and therefore not to be had. And because all the Branches of Publick Credit did plainly depend on, and mutually support one another, the Parliament took into Consideration, by what means they might Buoy up the Credit of the Bank of England, which was then ready to sink.

Great Honour and Justice.

1696. In order to this, the Parliament on February 3. Agreed to augment the common Capital Stock of the Bank of England, by admitting new Subscriptions; which new Subscriptions should be made good in Tallies and Bank-Notes. The Proportion was Four Fifths of the First, and one Fifth of the Last, and an Interest of Eight per Cent. was allow'd, as well for such Tallies that should be brought in to enlarge their Stock by new Subscriptions, as for those Tallies which the Company was then possessed of; provided they did not exceed the Value of those Bank-Notes which should be paid in upon this Engraftment on their Stock; and for securing the Payment of this Interest of Eight per Cent. the Additional Duty on Salt was afterwards granted and appropriated. The time of the continuance of the Bank of England, they thought fit to extend to the Year 1710. and Resolv'd likewise, "That before the Day were fix'd for the beginning of New Subscriptions, the old Stock be made One Hundred per Cent. and that what should exceed that Value, should be divided among the old Members. That all the Interest due on those Tallies which should be subscribed into the Bank-Stock, at the time appointed for Subscriptions, (to the end of the last preceding Quarter, on each Tally) be allow'd as Principal. That Liberty be given by Parliament to enlarge the Number of Bank-Bills, to the Value of the Sum which should be so subscribed, over and above the 1200000 l. provided they be obliged to answer such Bills at Demand; and in Default thereof, to be answer'd by the Exchequer out of the first Money due to them. That no other Bank be Erected, Permitted, or Allow'd by Act of Parliament within this Kingdom, during the Continuance of the Bank of England. That on such new Settlement, the Bank of England be exempted from all manner of Parliamentary Taxes. That no Act of the Corporation should Forfeit the particular Interest of any Person concerned therein. That Provision be made for the effectual preventing the Officers of the Exchequer, and all other Officers and Receivers of the Revenue, from diverting, delaying, or obstructing the Course of Payments to the Bank. That Care be taken to prevent the Abetting, Counterfeiting, or Forging any Bank-Bills or Notes; as likewise against the Defacing, Rasing, or Altering any Indorsement upon any such Bill or Note. That the Estate and Interest of each Member in the Stock of the Corporation, be made a Personal Estate. And Lastly, That no Contract or Agreement made for any Bank-Stock to be Bought or Sold, be Valid in Law or Equity, unless the said Contract be actually Registered in the Books of the Bank within Seven Days, and actually transferr'd within Fourteen Days next, after the making such Contract." Upon which Encouragements, a Million was Subscribed and paid in Tallies and Bank-Notes, as the Parliament had directed. This Expedient was the Result of Mr. Charles Mountague's Skill and Prudence; and tho' many Persons who were Interest'd in it, could not presently apprehend the Reasonableness of it, yet the Advantages they afterwards receiv'd, did fully convince them, that no other way could have been found to call back their sinking Credit: For the Value of Two Hundred Thousand Pounds in Bank-Notes being sunk by the New Subscription, the rest, as it was reasonable to believe they would, began presently to rise in worth; and so likewise did the Tallies, after so many as amounted to Eight Hundred Thousand Pounds were paid in to enlarge the Bank. Upon this, the Credit of the Bank recover'd apace; till in a short time their Notes, which bore no Interest, were equal with Money; and their Bills that bore Interest, better than Money: And by this means the Face of Affairs was quickly much changed for the better; Credit began to revive, and Money to circulate on Moderate Terms; Foreign Exchange was less to our Disadvantage, and soon after came to an Equality: And whatever Hardships the People had undergone by reason of a long and expensive War, and the ReCoining the Silver Money, which could not but occasion many Complaints, yet the greatest part attributed this to the Necessity of Affairs, and began to hope, both from the Prospect of a Peace, and the Wisdom of those at the Helm, that they should enjoy more favourable Times.

Another Evil of no less Difficulty or Importance than the loss of Credit, (and which, as was hinted before, was one of the Springs of the latter) remain'd still to be removed; and that was the great Scarcity of Money. The Parliament to prevent Disappointments, by settling Funds which might be Deficient, came to a Resolution on November 20. That the Supplies for the Service of the Year 1697. should be rais'd within the Year. But how could above Five Millions be rais'd within the Year, while the Silver Money was called in, and ReCoining, and there was not Current Coin enough in the Nation, to answer the Occasions of Trade, and scarcely the Conveniencies and Necessaries of Life? This Vote of Parliament seem'd impracticable; the Enemies of the Government made themselves Merry with it; and instead of raising their Spleen, 'twas the Entertainment of their pleasant Humour: And many, even of the best Friends of the Government, imagin'd that the Parliament by this, rather express'd their Zeal and Willingness, than their Ability to support the State, and maintain the present Settlement. But this Parliament, for whose Wisdom it was reserv'd to surmount Difficulties that were look'd on as Invincible, made Money without Bullion, and distributed great quantity of Coin without the help of the Mint. This they did by Authorizing the Lords of the Treasury, to Issue out Bills from the Exchequer, to the Value, first and last, of above Two Millions; which Bills were first appointed to be brought in and sunk upon the Capitation-Tax. But before the Session ended, the Parliament being convinc'd by the first Collection of that Duty, that it would prove very deficient; they appointed the Exchequer Bills to be brought in, on any other of the King's Duties or Revenues, excepting the Land-Tax; and allow'd an Interest of Seven Pounds Twelve Shillings per Annum, upon the second Issuing the said Bills out of the Exchequer, whereas at first they bore no Interest. By this the Parliament laid a good Foundation for Paper Money to supply the Place of our Silver Coin; for so many Payments were at this time to be made into the Exchequer, that when the People had assurance given them, that the Exchequer Notes should be received back again in payment of the King's Taxes, they were very well satisfied to take them, at first indeed at small Discount, but not long after at an Equality. A great number of these Notes were only for Five or Ten Pounds, which answer'd the necessity of Commerce among the Meaner People, for the Common Conveniencies of Life. And that those who had advanced Money on Loans on any part of the King's Revenues, might not be obliged to receive it back in Notes that were under the Value of Money, to strengthen the Reputation of these Bills, the Parliament authorized the Lords of the Treasury to contract with any Corporation, 1696.

Ways and Means.

1696.

Want of Money in Specie.

Supplied by Exchequer Bills.

1696. on, or Numbers of Private Men, and to allow them a competent Premium, provided they oblig'd themselves to exchange those Notes for Ready Money, when tender'd to them for that purpose; which the Lords of the Treasury did accordingly. The Credit of the Exchequer Notes being thus secur'd, they daily arose nearer to Par, till at last they exceeded the Value of Money: And whereas the Trustees, with whom the Government had contracted to exchange them, were at first allow'd Ten per Cent, as a Premium, they were since contented to do it for Four. These Bills pass'd as so many Counters, which the People were satisfied to receive, because they knew the Exchequer would receive them again as so much Ready Money: And these State-Counters so well supply'd the want of Money, till New Coin was issued from the Mint, that Trade and Commerce were maintain'd, and Mutual Payments well enough made, to answer the Necessities of the Government and the People. This Project (which proved an Effectual, though a Paper Prop to support the State, when its Silver Pillars, if I may so speak, were for a time remov'd) was likewise owing to the Prudence and Industry of Mr. Charles Mountague, as well as that of recoining the Money; which those very Men, who envied most his Success in the House of Commons, and Growing Power at Court, were afterwards contented to call a Fortunate Temerity.

Cafe of Sir John Fenwick.

The greatest Interruption to the more Publick Affairs, was the Cafe of Sir John Fenwick, a Person concern'd in the late Conspiracy, who endeavouring to fly over into France, under the Name of Thomas Ward, was seized at New-Romney in Kent, and from thence brought up to London, and on June the 11th. committed Prisoner to the Tower, and afterwards to Newgate. As soon as he was Apprehended, he Wrote a Letter with a Black-Lead Pencil to his Lady, in these Words.

His Letter to his Lady.

* Meaning King William.

“ What I Fear'd is at last happen'd; had I gone alone, I had done it; but the other was Betray'd from London. It is God's Will, so we must submit; I know nothing can save my Life, but my Lord Carlile's going over to * Him, back'd by the rest of the Family of the Howards to Beg it; and offering that I will be abroad all His Time, where I cannot Hurt Him, and that I will never Draw Sword against him. I must leave it to you what else to say. All Friends must be made. My Lord Devonshire may perhaps by my Lady; my Lord Godolphin and my Lord Pembroke by my Lady Montgomery. Mr. Nelson by the Bishop of Canterbury. My Lord Arran might engage his Brother Selkirk to use his Interest with Keppel. I believe if my Lord Carlisle would go, it were best before my Tryal, or else they will cut me short for want of Time; If he can prevail with Him for a Pardon, He will procure it as well before my Tryal, as after; at least He may prevail for a Reprieve, 'till some can come over to Him. My Lord also will have an opportunity to engage † Benting, and get my Lord of Essex to joyn with him. I cannot think what else to say, but the great Care must be the Jury; if Two or Three could be got that would Starve the rest; That or nothing can Save me. Money I know would do it; but alas! that is not to be had, nor shall I get enough for Counsel. I beg of you not to think of being shut up with me; I know it will Kill you, and besides I have no such Friend as you to take care of my Business: Though it would be the Comfort of my Life, the little time it lasts, to have you will

† The Earl of Portland.

me: and I have this only Comfort now left, that my Death will make you easy. My Dearest Life, grieve not for me, but Retign me to God's Will. You will hear as soon as they bring me to Town, where they put me, and then I would have a Servant or some-body with me. I am Interrupted, so can say no more now. Engage Sir John Lowther, the new Lord, who has more Interest than any Body. Let my Lord Scarsdale engage Fermaine, to engage Overkirk for me. Speak to my Lady Arlington. If my Tryal could be put off till the King comes back, there would be more Opportunity to Sollicite him.

This Letter being delivered to Mr. Webber, the Companion of Sir John Fenwick's Flight, was Intercepted by the Mayor of Romney, and brought to the Lords Justices. Sir John, who was Ignorant of the Miscarriage, at his First Examination before their Excellencies denyed every thing he was Charged with. Whereupon the Lords Justices producing the Letter, told him, He was not of the same Mind when he Wrote that Paper; To which Sir John made no Reply; but laying it down, was confounded into Shame and Silence.

There was another Expedient of double Dealing, suggested to Sir John Fenwick, by a Person, who though he had been a great Instrument in the late Revolution, yet to gratifie a private Resentment, advised Sir John to set up a Counter-Plot, by Impeaching several of the King's Best and Heartiest Friends, as Guilty of Conspiring against His Majesty. Accordingly Sir John deliver'd a Paper to the Government, wherein he said in general, there were in England a settled number of Persons to manage the Affairs of King James. And being afterwards put upon to name those Persons, and to descend to Particulars, he gave in another Writing, wherein among other things he pretended, that the Duke of Shrewsbury came again into the Office of Secretary of State by the Operation and Consent of King James; and that his Grace was in Treaty with that Monarch, before he laid down the Seals. That the Lord Marlborough had promised King James some Service, which had inclined His Majesty to promise him his Pardon. That the Earl of Bath was to Betray Plimouth into the Hands of the French King. That Admiral Ruffel, and the Lord Godolphin, were likewise in King James's Interest: And that Commissary Crawford had sent over to France a List of the Forces in England. These Informations at first startled not only the Court, but the King Himself, and gained Sir John Fenwick some time: But being sensible that this Sham must at last be discover'd, he at the same time endeavour'd to get off, at least, one of the Two Evidences who swore the Treasons against him at the Sessions; well knowing, that according to the late Act, One was not sufficient in a Capital Accusation.

1696. Sir John Fenwick makes a Sham-Plot

This Success was fully accomplish'd in the Person of Cardell Goodman; who, for a large Sum of Money given him, withdrew himself into France: And tho' by that means there seem'd to be no more Danger for Sir John's Life; yet both he and his Friends could have wish'd that Captain Porter, the other Witness, had likewise been spirited away; and to that end they made large Offers to him by an Irish Peruke-Maker, call'd Clawcey. The Captain, who had a good Pension from the King, and was loth to trust a Party he had lately betray'd, discover'd the whole Intrigue to the Government: Who finding themselves abus'd by these clandestine Practices of the Jacobites, and having no room left to bring the Criminal to 1696. Punishment by the ordinary Course of Law; the King gave Admiral Ruffel leave to acquaint the House of Commons with these Proceedings, and lay before them the several Papers which were given in by Sir John Fenwick, in the Nature of Information against himself, and several other Persons of Quality. This the Admiral on November the 6th. did accordingly, and desir'd that the said Papers might be read, that so he might have the Opportunity to justify himself; or, if he did not, to fall under the Censure of the House.

Justice

Sir John brought to the Bar of the Commons.

Those Papers being delivered by Mr. Secretary Timbal, were read in the House; and Sir John Fenwick was brought to the Bar, and acquainted, That the House understood he had shew'd some Inclinations to make a Discovery of the Practices and Designs of the Enemies of the Government, and that now he had an Opportunity for the same; and they did require him to make a full and ingenuous Discovery to them. But Sir John returned such Answers, as the House conceived to be only Excuses. And being called in again, and required peremptorily to make such Discovery; he refus'd to do it. Upon which the House Resolved, That the Papers read as Sir John Fenwick's Information, reflecting on the Fidelity of several Noble Peers, divers Members of this House, and Others, only by Hear-say; are false and scandalous, and a Contrivance to undermine the Government, and to create Jealousies between the King and his Subjects, in order to stifle the real Conspiracy. And therefore Resolved, That a Bill be brought in, to Attaint Sir John Fenwick of High Treason.

A Bill of Attainder against him.

This Bill was to be read the Second time on Friday November the 13th. when Sir John Fenwick and his Council were called to the Bar; where they insisted, That no Evidence should be produced against Sir John, but what related to the Proof of the Allegations in the Bill: And that Sir John Fenwick might be allow'd further time to produce Witnesses in his Defence. To both which Motions the House complied, to shew a tender Regard to the Prisoner. But when Sir John and his Council were again at the Bar, on Monday November the 16th. and were demanded, Whether they had any Witnesses to produce; The Council declared, That they had no Witnesses, but only in relation to a Record. The next day, Sir John Fenwick being brought in without Council, Mr. Speaker, by Direction of the House, required him to give an Account of what he knew, in relation to the Persons of Quality that have been in this Government; against whom he had given Information. Whereunto Sir John replied, That he was under a double Prosecution for his Life, and did not know, but what he might say might be to his own prejudice: And since the House had done him the favour to hear him by his Council, he hoped they would please to consider of what they had said. And being pressed again by Mr. Speaker, to give the House satisfaction in what they required; He insisted on what he had said before; and that he did not do it out of any Obstinacy, but for his own Preservation. After which, the Bill was read a Second time, and Committed by 182 Votes, against 123.

Speeches for and against the Bill.

On Wednesday November the 25th. the Bill was read the Third time, and the Debates upon it ran very high. The Arguments for it and against it, were best summ'd up in those Two Speeches, of Mr. Atterton, and Sir Godfrey Copley.

Mr. Atterton. "Mr. Speaker, I have not troubled you in any of those long Debates you have had upon this Occasion, and do it unwillingly now; but I do think it every Man's Duty, in a Case of this great Importance, to set forth his own Opinion, and give his Reason therefor."

"The greatest Part of the Debate hath run upon Two Things: On the one side, the Inconveniency of Bills of Attainder, or at least the having them too frequent; On the other side, That it is necessary to have them sometimes, that no Persons might think they were out of Reach, if they could evade the Laws that were made to Punish Ordinary Offenders."

"I think both these Points too general, and that this Bill (as every other) ought to have its Fate upon the particular Circumstances of the Case before you; and whoever gives his Affirmative to this Bill, ought to be convinced that Sir John Fenwick is guilty of High Treason; and also, that there are extraordinary Reasons why the Nation does prosecute him in so extraordinary a Manner: And I do think neither of these is sufficient alone."

"If between the Indictment and Arraignment or Tryal, Goodman should have dyed, and there had been no other Reason for Attainting Sir John Fenwick, but only the want of his Evidence; I should not have thought it a sufficient Reason, though we should have an Opportunity of being inform'd of his particular Evidence, and believed him guilty: And if Sir John Fenwick does not appear guilty, I do not think any Reason of State can justify this Bill, though he hath prevaricated and behaved himself to the dissatisfaction of every body; therefore, I think, there must be both these."

"You have heard the Evidence; I shall not repeat it, but rather come to those Things that distinguish Sir John Fenwick's Case; only thus, you have received the Evidence against Sir John Fenwick, and given him liberty to make his Defence, and have fully heard him; which, I think, hath alter'd the Reason of a great many Precedents, cited from my Lord Coke and other Authors."

"That which distinguishes this Case, is, the great Danger the Nation was in from this Conspiracy, and the Sense the Nation hath had of it; and I find, by the general Opinion of all Persons, this Danger is not thought yet at an end."

"There seems likewise to be an Opinion as general, That Sir John Fenwick could have contributed to your Safety by a Discovery."

"The next Circumstance is, That Sir John Fenwick knowing this, and the Expectation the Nation had from him, that he could have contributed to your Safety, hath made use of that to put off his Trial; and at last, has made such a Paper, as does shew an Inclination to do you all the Prejudice he can; pretended to the Creating of New Dangers; and by this means Sir John Fenwick, against whom there was Two Witnesses when he was indicted, hath delayed his Tryal, so that now there is but One; and there is a violent Presumption that this Person is withdrawn by the Practice of Sir John Fenwick's Friends."

"There remains yet with me as great a Consideration as any of these, The Publick Resentment of the Nation for such his Behaviour, is the only means his Practice has left you to prevent the Danger that yet remains; and it seems necessary for your Safety, to come the next best way to what he could have done for you by his Discovery. Against the Evidence that hath been given, there have been great Doubts raised, not so much whether it be such Evidence as ought to incline us to believe him guilty: But whether it be such, as you should hear in the Capacity you are in; and whether after it is found such as it is, that is to say, not such, 1696. "such, as would convict him upon another Tryal, Whether you ought to credit it, and that it should influence you to give your Vote for this Bill of Attainder? This is a Doubt that I find weighs generally with them that differ from me in Opinion about this Bill; and therefore I desire leave to speak to that Particular.

"Tis said, That you are trying of Sir John Fenwick, that you are Judges, and that you are both Judges and Jury, and that you are obliged to proceed according to the same Rules, though not the Methods of Westminster-Hall, Secundum allegata & probata.

"But the State of the Matter, as it appears to me, is, That you are here in your Legislative Power, making a New Law for the attainting of Sir John Fenwick, and for exempting his particular Case from being tryed in those Courts of Judicature, and by those Rules which you have appointed for the Tryal of other Causes, and trying of it your selves (if you will use that Word, though improperly) in which Case the Methods differ from what the Laws made by your selves require in other Cases; for this is never to be a Law for any other.

"Methinks this being the State of the Case, it quite puts us out of the Methods of Tryals, and all the Laws that are for limiting Rules for Evidence at Tryals in Westminster-Hall, and other Judicatures: For it must be agreed, the same Rules of Evidence must be observed in another Place, as well as Westminster-Hall, I mean in Impeachments, and it has always been so taken.

"The Notion of two Witnesses being necessary, has so much gained upon some Gentlemen, that we have had it said, That this is required by the Law of Nature, the Universal Law of Nations; nay, by the Eternal Law of God. And I think, if it was so, there would be no doubt but it would oblige us.

"And therefore to go to the bottom of the Matter: That any Man deserves to be punished, is because he is Criminal: That this or that Man deserves it, is because he is guilty of a Crime, let his Crime be made evident any way whatsoever: For whatsoever makes the Truth evident, is, and is accounted in all Laws to be Evidence.

"Now the Rules for examining whether any Person is guilty, or not, and the Evidence that is allowed as sufficient, is different in all Nations: No two Nations agree in the same Evidence for the Tryal of Criminals, nor in the manner of giving the Evidence against them.

"Your Tryals differ from all other Nations, not only that you are tried by a Jury, which is particular to you, but that the Witnesses are to be produc'd Face to Face before the Offender; and you have made Laws, that there shall be two Witnesses in Cases of High-Treason; and herein you are the Envy of all other Nations.

"Sir, The Evidence that is to be given against Criminals, differs in the same Nation, when the Offence differs; there is a difference between the Evidence that will convict a Man of Felony, and the Evidence that is to convict a Man of Treason; and the Evidence to convict a Man for the same Crime, hath been different in the same Nation at different times. No doubt, by the Canon-Law of England, that Evidence which was sufficient to convict a Man of any Crime, was sufficient to make the Jury believe the Person guilty. Thus before the Statute of

Edw. VI. a Man might be convicted of Treason by one Witness; though that Statute was made upon great Reason, and appears to be for the Publick Good, by the General Approbation it hath received; but I don't think in your Proceedings here you are bound by it.

"But Sir, it is said, shall we that are the Supreme Authority, (as we are part of it) go upon less Evidence to satisfy our selves of Sir John Fenwick's Guilt than other Courts? And shall we resort to this Extraordinary Way in this Case?

"Truly, if it did shake the Manner of Trials below, I should be very unwilling to do it; but I do take it clearly, that it cannot make the least Alteration in the Proceedings of any Court; but on the contrary, I think there is no stronger Arguments for your resorting to this Extraordinary Way, than that of the Care and Caution with which your Law hath provided for Defence of the Innocent. For if we consider all those Laws that have been made for that purpose, 'tis plain it must have been in the view of our Ancestors, that many Criminals might by this means escape. Your Laws are made for your Ordinary Trials, and for those things that happen usually; and there is no Government we know in the World, where there is not Resort to Extraordinary Power, in Cases that require it. Your Government indeed hath this Advantage, That you can keep to Rules which others cannot: For in a very Wise Government (as was observed by a Person that was in this House the last time this was debated) all the ways of punishing Crimes of this nature, are extraordinary. Persons are condemned there, not only unheard, but they are condemned before they are accused, and that is thought necessary there, which will not be endured here: And yet that Government hath continued so many Hundred Years, and no Endeavours have been to alter it, though so many Noble Families have suffered by it, because they are convinced, as to their Constitution, 'tis necessary.

"The next Argument is from the Precedent you are about to make; and you have been told, Whatever the other Precedents have been, what you do now will be a Precedent for you and your Posterity: And whilst that Argument is used only to make you cautious, and to make you consider well, whether it is according to the Duty to your Country, to pass this Bill, (which no doubt is the only Question before you) 'tis a good Argument.

"Sir, If this Precedent shall appear to Posterity to be a Precedent of an Innocent Man, or a Person whose Guilt was doubted of, or one whose Guilt did plainly not appear, and this Bill should be carried by a Prevailing Party, I do agree it was a very Ill Precedent: But if the Case be, that this Precedent will appear to Posterity upon the Truth of the Thing, to be a Precedent made of a Man notoriously guilty, of a Man that had deserved this Extraordinary Way of Proceeding, and this general Resentment of the Nation, and that nothing could have hinder'd this Man from the Common Justice of the Nation but his having endeavour'd to elude it in this Matter; and if it appears that you would not be put off so, but that your Indignation made an Example of this Man, I shall not be sorry it should appear to Posterity; but I believe Posterity will (as I think they ought) thank you for it.

"Sir, I do say for my own Particular, while I am innocent, I should not think my Life in danger to be judged by 400 English Gentlemen, and 1696. " the Peerage of England, with the Royal Assent: " And when I reflect, I can't be of Opinion, That " the Government could have procured a Parlia- " ment to have pass'd a Bill of Attainder against " my Lord Ruffel, or Mr. Cornish, or Mr. Colledge: " I don't think all the Power of the Government " could have prevail'd to have done that, altho' " they could prevail to have them condemned " by the Forms of Law. And here I see that a " great many Gentlemen have oppos'd every " Step of this Bill, for fear of making an ill Pre- " cedent: Yet these Gentlemen do believe in " their own private Consciences that he is guilty: " And I can't think that any Innocent Person " can be in danger by such a Bill, when Gentle- " men oppose this Bill only upon the Prudential " Part, though they still confess him to be guilty.

" The Conclusion I make for my self is, That " I am convinced in my Conscience (which I " think is sufficient. when I act in the Capacity " I now do) that Sir John Fenwick is guilty of " High-Treason, and that there are Reasons so " Extraordinary to support this Bill of Attainder, " that I do not see how any Person that is so con- " vinced, can refuse to give his Affirmative to " this Bill.

Sir Godfrey Copley's
Speech against the Bill.

Sir Godfrey Copley. " Sir, I am very sensible " a great deal hath been said upon this Subject, " but I think there is something in Duty incum- " bent upon every Man, especially upon me, " who can't concur with the general Sense of the " House, to give my Reasons for my Disagree- " ment; and I will make use of no Arguments, " but such as I can't answer my self. A great " deal hath been said upon this Debate by Gen- " tlemen learned in the Law; and many of these, " though they have said they would not speak " against the Power of Parliaments, yet the great- " est part of their Arguments have touch'd upon " your Method of Proceedings; and to shew you " how they interfere with the Rules of Westmin- " ster-Hall: So great is the Force of Custom and " Education; but I acknowledge some have " brought us Arguments quite of another " Strain.

" I take the Punishment of Offenders to be one " of the Necessary Supports of all Governments; " and all Societies of Men have laid down to " themselves some Rules, by which they judge " whether Persons accused are innocent or guilty: " Therefore in a Matter of this Extraordina- " rily Importance, it is proper to consider what " Rules we have to go by.

" It is the Custom and Law of our Nation to " require two positive Witnessess to prove Treas- " on; and though I think without the utmost " necessity it is not prudent to deviate from that " Rule, yet I will not argue from thence that we are " tied up to it: No, it is most certain on the other " hand, that the Legislative Authority which " hath Power, if they think good, to abrogate all " Laws now in being, cannot be tied up to any " Rules of Human Prescription. But Sir, there " are the Eternal Rules of Equity, and Justice, " and Right Reason, and Conscience; and these " I think are unalterable, and never to be swer- " ved from: And therefore I shall take the li- " berty to see how far agreeable our Proceedings " are to these Rules.

" Sir, I look upon it as a Fundamental Breach " of these Rules, for an Accusation to be given " in against any Man behind his Back, by he " knows not whom, or by any with whom " he is not confronted, and brought Face to " Face.

1696. " I am one of those that look upon Sir John Fenwick " to be guilty, and there is a Proof of " it by one Witness; and to this you have added " an Indictment that is proved. Now I must " needs own, that I think that to be so far from " giving any Credit or Strength to the Evidence, " that in my Opinion the Injustice which at- " tends it, makes the Scales lighter than they were " before. For if any Bill or Writing sworn be- " hind a Man's Back, may be used as part of E- " vidence, I do by parallel Reason argue, that " the like may make up the whole at one time or " other; and then the Information of any Two " Profligate Knaves before a Secretary of State, " or a Justice of Peace, shall be sufficient, with- " out any Living Testimony, to make a Man run " the Hazard of his Life.

" Then Sir, I am not at all convinced of the " Necessity of this Proceeding: I must confess, " that those that brought this Matter before us, " are much wiser than I, and therefore I will " not examine what Reason they had to do it; " but it is so little agreeable to me, I wish it had " not come here. But is it to be supposed that " your Government is in hazard by any Man " that is fast in Newgate? Can any Man think " that Sir John Fenwick can do any thing in his " Condition to hazard it? Can you expect that " a Man that hath been Six Months in Prison, " and no body came at him, that he may make " such a Discovery as may be worth your while? " But suppose you had a Man of Invention and " Practice, what a Spur do you put to it? May " not a Man of Parts, when he hath no other " Way to save himself, may not he form such a " Plot, as (should it gain Belief) might make " the best Subjects in England tremble?

" 'Tis not Sir John Fenwick's Life which I ar- " gue for; I do not think it of so great Value to " deserve so long and Solemn a Debate in this " House, nor the Consideration of so great an " Assembly after this Manner. But I do say, If " this Method of Proceeding be warranted by an " English Parliament, there is an end to the De- " fence of any Man living, be he never so inno- " cent.

" Sir, I remember I heard it mention'd on the " other side of the Way, by an Honourable Per- " son, who never lets any Argument want its " weight, That King James Attainted a great " Number of Persons in a Catalogue, in a Lump. " Sir, I am not afraid of what Arbitrary Princes " do, nor an Irish Parliament; but I am afraid " of what shall be done here: I am concerned " for the Honour of your Proceedings, that it " may be a Precedent to a future Parliament in " an Ill Reign, to do that which I am satisfied " you would not do. I had some other Thoughts, " which I cannot recollect, though these Rea- " sons are sufficient to convince me.

The other Members who spoke for the Bill, were Mr. Mountague, my Lord Curtis, Sir William Strickland, Sir Herbert Crofts, Mr. Vernon, Mr. Smith, Mr. Boscawen, Mr. Comper, Mr. Sloane, Col. Wharton: Those who spoke against the Bill, were Sir Charles Carteret, Mr. Manley, Mr. Dolben, Sir Edward Seymour, Sir Robert Cotton, Lord Norreys, Mr. Hammond, Mr. Bramley, Mr. Harcourt, Sir Richard Temple, Mr. Paget, Mr. Jefferies, Mr. Edward Harley. After the Arguments had been offer'd on both sides, the Question was put for passing the Bill; whereupon the House divided, and it was carried in the Affirmative by 189 Voices against 156, and sent up to the Lords by Mr. Norris.

This Bill found the Lords divided in their Opinions. All who were dissatisfied to the Govern- ment, divided on the same side.

1696. vernment, fell in to the Negative; and even some of the best Friends to the Revolution and Establishment, were very averſe to any extraordinary way of Proceeding: Yet the Bill was at laſt carried by a Majority of Seven Voices only, there being 68 for it, and 61 againſt it. Thoſe Lords who were for the Negative, entred their Proteſtation in the Journal of the Houſe; which they grounded on theſe Reaſons. " 1. Becauſe " Bills of Attainder againſt Perſons in Priſon, " and who are therefore liable to be tryed by " Common-Law, are of dangerous Conſequence " to the Lives of the Subjects, and may tend to " the Subverſion of the Laws of the Kingdom. " 2. Becauſe the Evidence of Grand Jury-Men, " of what was Sworn before them againſt Sir " John Fenwick, as alſo the Evidence of the Petty-Jury-Men was admitted here; both which " are againſt the Rules of Law, beſides that they " diſagreed in their Teſtimony. 3. Becauſe the " Information of Goodman in Writing was re-ceiv'd, which by Law was not admitted; and " the Priſoner for want of his appearing Face to " Face, (as is by Law requir'd) could not have " the Advantage of Croſs-Examining him: And " it did not appear by Evidence, that Sir John " Fenwick, or any other Perſon employ'd by " him, had any way perſuaded Goodman to withdraw himſelf: And it would be of very dangerous Conſequence, That any Perſon ſo Accus'd, ſhould be Condemn'd; for by this means, " a Witneſs who ſhould be found inſufficient to " Convict a Man, ſhall have more power to hurt " a Man by his Abſence, than if he were produced Viva Voce againſt him. 4. Becauſe if " Goodman had appeared againſt him, he was Infamous in the whole Courſe of his Life; and " could not be a good Witneſs, eſpecially in Caſes " of Blood. 5. Becauſe in this Caſe there " was but one Evidence, viz. Porter, and he a " very doubtful one. 6. Laſtly, Becauſe Sir John " Fenwick was ſo inconsiderable a Man as not to endanger the Peace of the Government, that there " was no Neceſſity of proceeding againſt him in " ſo extraordinary a Manner.

Reasons of Pro-teſting a-gainſt it.

On Monday, January 11th. His Ma-jeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act to Attain Sir John Fenwick, Baronet, of High Treason. 2. An Act to Attain ſuch of the Perſons concerned in the late Horrid Conſpiracy to Aſſiſinate His Majeſty's Royal Perſon, who are fled from Juſtice, unleſs they render themſelves to Juſtice; and for continuing ſeveral other of the ſaid Conſpirators in Cuſtody. 3. An Act for Naturali-zing Frederick Chriſtiaan de Rhede, commonly called Lord Aghram, and others. 4. An Act for the Settlement of the Mannor of Tregagoe in the County of Hereford, and other Lands, late of Crompton Mynors, Eſq; Deceased; and for Raiſing and Increaſing of the Portion of Theodoſia Mynors, the Daughter of the ſaid Crompton, ſhe being an Infant of the Age of Seventeen Years.

Acts pas-
ſed.

On Thursday, January 28. Sir John Fenwick was brought by the Sheriffs of London and Middleſex, under a Guard from Newgate to Tower-Hill, where he was Beheaded on a Scaffold erected for that purpoſe. Before his Execution, he deliver'd this Paper to the Sheriffs.

Sir John
Fenwick
Executed.

" Speaking nor Writing was never my Talent.
" I ſhall therefore give a very ſhort, but faithful
" Account, Firſt, of my Religion; and next,
" what I ſuffer moſt Innocently for; to avoid
" the Calumnies I may reaſonably expect my " Enemies will caſt upon me when Dead; ſince
" they have moſt falſly and maliciously Aſperſed
" me, whiſt under my Miſfortunes.

His Paper
to the Sheriffs.

" As for my Religion, I was brought up in the " Church of England, as it is by Law Eſtabliſh-

ed, and have ever profeſſed it; though I con-
" feſs, I have been an unworthy Member of it,
" in not living up to the ſtrict and excellent Rules
" thereof; for which I take Shame to my ſelf,
" and humbly ask Forgiveneſs of God. I come
" now to Die in that Communion, truſting as
" an Humble and Hearty Penitent, to be Receiv'd
" by the Mercy of God, through the Merits of
" Jeſus Chriſt my Saviour.

1696.

" My Religion taught me my Loyalty, which
" I bleſs God is Untainted; and I have ever en-
" deavour'd in the Station wherein I have been " placed, to the utmoſt of my Power, to ſup-
" port the Crown of England, in the True and " Lineal Courſe of Deſcent, without Interrup" tion.

" As for what I am now to Die, I call God to
" Witneſs, I went not to that Meeting in Leadon-
" Hall-Street, with any ſuch Intention as to In" vite King James by Force to Invade this Na" tion; nor was I my ſelf provided with either
" Horſe or Arms, or engaged for any Number " of Men, or gave particular Conſent for any
" ſuch Invaſion, as is moſt falſly Sworn againſt
" me.

" I do alſo Declare in the Preſence of God,
" That I knew nothing of King James his com" ing to Calais, nor of any Invaſion intended
" from thence, till it was publickly known: And
" the only Notion I had that ſomething might
" be attempted, was from the Thoulon Fleet com" ing to Breſt.

" I alſo call God to Witneſs, That I receiv'd
" the Knowledge of what is contained in thoſe
" Papers that I gave to a Great Man, that came " to me in the Tower, both from Letters and " Meſſages that came from France; and he told
" me when I read them to him, that the Prince " of Orange had been acquainted with moſt of
" thoſe things before.

" I might have expected Mercy from that
" Prince, becauſe I was Inſtrumental in ſaving
" his Life: For when about April 95. an At" tempt formed againſt him, came to my know" ledge, I did partly by Diſſuaſions, and partly
" by Delays, prevent that Deſign; which I ſup-
" poſe was the reaſon that the laſt Villanous
" Project was concealed from me.

" If there be any Perſons whom I have injur'd
" in Word or Deed, I heartily pray their Par" don; and beg of God to Pardon thoſe who " have injur'd me; particularly thoſe who with " great Zeal have fought my Life, and brought
" the Guilt of my Innocent Blood upon this " Nation, no Treason being proved upon
" me.

" I return my moſt Hearty Thanks to thoſe
" Noble and Worthy Perſons, who gave me
" their Aſſiſtance by oppoſing this Bill of At-
" tainder; without which it had been impoſſible
" I could have fallen under the Sentence of " Death. God Bleſs them and their Poſterity;
" though I am fully ſatisfied they Pleaded their
" own Cauſe while they Defended Mine.

" I pray God to Bleſs my True and Lawful " Sovereigns King James and the Queen, and
" Prince of Wales, and Reſtore Him and His
" Poſterity to this Throne again, for the Peace
" and Proſperity of this Nation, which is impoſ-
" ſible to Proſper till the Government is ſettled
" upon a right Foot.

" And now, O God, I do with all Humble De" votion Commend my Soul into thy Hands, the Great
" Maker and Preſerver of Men, and Lover of Souls,
" beſeeching Thee, that it may be always dear and " precious in thy Sight, through the Merits of my " Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. Amen.

J. FENWICK.

1696. On Friday January the 29th. His Majesty came again to the House of Peers, and Pass'd these Bills. 1. An Act for Granting an Aid to His Majesty, as well by a Land Tax, as by several Subsidies and other Duties payable for one Year. 2. An Act for Vesting the Mannors of Holme, alias East-Holme and Swannage in the County of Dorset, part of the Estate of Sir John Hanham Baronet, in Trustees to be Sold for Discharging a Mortgage thereupon, and upon the Residue of the said Sir John Hanham's Estate; and for Payment of his other Debts. 3. An Act for Enabling Oliver Neve of Great Witchingham in the County of Norfolk Esquire, to Sell Two Houses in London, and for Vesting other Lands in the said County, of greater Value, to the same use.

On February the 9th. the Commons Estimated and Computed the Aids Granted to His Majesty for the Service of the Year, 1697. at Three Millions, which fell short of what was necessary to answer those Occasions, and to make good the Defective Funds, which for the last Year fell short Eight Hundred and Forty Thousand Pounds; for Supplying whereof they laid a farther Duty upon Leather, of 15*l.* per Cent. for Three Years. While they were considering of other ways, they were put in Mind of a new Occasion of Supply, by this Message from the King in Writing, delivered by Mr. Secretary Trumbal.

William R.

King's Message
to the
Commons.

" His Majesty finding Himself under very " great Difficulties for want of Money to Supply
" the Occasions of the Civil List, has thought
" it necessary to remind the House of That " part of His Speech, which relates to that
" Head; desiring that speedy Care may be taken
" to make effectual Provision for it.

The Civil List supp-
ted.

This Message and that Part of His Majesty's Speech to which it refer'd, were taken into due Consideration, and within a few Days it was Resolved, that a Supply of 515000 Pounds be Granted to His Majesty for the support of the Civil List; and that the said Sum be raised by laying a Duty of Sixpence per Bushel upon Malt, for Two Years and a Quarter. And because the Impositions before-mentioned did not fully answer the Sums already Voted, the Commons Resolve on March the 3d. That towards Raising the Supply Granted to His Majesty for carrying on the War against France, for the Service of the Year 1697. and for the Support of the Civil List, a further Duty be laid upon all Cyder and Perry, Mum, Wines and Sweets; and upon all Goods made or mix'd with Wool, Silk or Hair. And for the last occasion of doing Justice, by making good the Deficiency of the Provision for the Payment of the Interest of the Transport Debt for the Reducing of Ireland, they Resolved to lay a Duty upon all Hawkers and Pedlars.

Acts Passed.

On Monday March the 8th. the King came to the House of Peers and gave the Royal Assent to these several Bills. 1. An Act for Granting to His Majesty several Duties upon Paper, Vellum, and Parchment, to encourage the bringing of Plate and Hammer'd Money into the Mint to be Coin'd. 2. An Act to encourage the bringing in of Wrought Plate to be Coin'd. 3. An Act for continuing certain Additional Impositions upon several Goods and Merchandizes. 4. An Act to Enable the Returns of Juries as formerly, until the First day of November, 1697. 5. An Act for the better preventing Frivolous and vexatious Suits. 6. An Act to Restore the Markets at Blackwell-Hall to the Clothiers, and for Regulating the Factors there. 7. An Act for Enabling James Duke of Ormond, to raise Money by Sale of Woods, and making Leases for Lives, renewable for ever, for Payment of Debts, and for Encouraging English Plantations in Ireland; and for Charles Lord Weston Earl of Arran, in the Kingdom of Ireland, to make Leases of his Estate in the said Kingdom. 8. An Act for the Exchange of certain Advowsons, between the Bishop of London, and the Earl of Nottingham. 9. An Act for the speedy satisfying of the Debtors of Francis late Lord Holles Deceased. 10. An Act to Enable Sir Ralph Ashton Baronet, to supply an Omission of a Limitation, intended in his Marriage Settlement, for the Benefit of his Issue Male. 11. An Act for the Sale of the Estate late of Francis Griffith, late of London, Scrivener, Deceased, for Payment of his Debts. 12. An Act for the settling the Estate of Mary Savile, an Infant, upon her Marriage. 13. An Act to Enable the Sale of Lands, late of Jeffery Stockley in the County of Chester, Deceased, for Payment of his Debts, and for making Provision for Mary his Daughter. 14. An Act for Vesting certain Messuages, Lands and Tenements, late of Charles Milson, Deceased, in Trustees, to Sell for Payment of Debts and Legacies, and lay out the Surplus Money in a Purchase of Lands for the use of Edward Milson and his Heirs, according to the Will of the said Charles Milson. 15. An Act to Enable Nicholas Goodwin the Elder, and Nicholas Goodwin the Younger, to sell the Mannor of Winslow, in the County of Bucks, and with the Money arising thereby, and other Moneys to be advanced by the said Nicholas Goodwin the Elder, to Purchase Lands of a greater Yearly Value, to be settled to the same uses as the said Mannor is now settled. 16. An Act for the Vesting of certain Lands of William Milward in the County of Hereford, Clerk, in Trustees, for Payment of Debts. 17. An Act for Vesting the Estate of Edward Kerry Esq; lying in the Bin-Weston in the County of Salop, in Trustees, to discharge Incumbrances therein, and to raise Portions for Younger Children, and for Confirming the Marriage Settlement of the said Edward Kerry. 18. An Act for Vesting part of the Estate of Thomas Panton Esq; in Trustees, to be Sold for payment of Debts, and securing a Jointure to Mary his now Wife. 19. An Act for Naturalizing of John Keyser, and others. 20. An Act to Enable Edward Leigh Esq; and Jane his Wife, and their Trustees, to Sell the Mannors of Waxham and Horsey, and certain Lands and Tenements in the County of Norfolk, and to Purchase and Settle other Lands to the same uses. 21. An Act for Vesting and Settling certain Estates of William James Gent. in and upon Trustees, to be Sold for Payment of Debts, and making Provision for himself, his Wife and their Children.

As to Honours and Places bestow'd during this Session; On November the 19th. Sir Joseph Williamson was by His Majesty's Command Sworn of the Privy Council; and with the Lord Privy Seal Earl of Pembroke, and the Lord Viscount Willars, was on December the 12th. named by His Majesty as Plenipotentiary for the Treaty of a General Peace. On February the 6th. His Majesty was pleased to constitute the Lord Viscount Galway, one of the Lords Justices of Ireland, and John Methuen Esq; Lord Chancellor of that Kingdom. On February the 19th. in a Chapter held at Kensington, the Earl of Portland was elected a Knight of the Garter; and invested with the Ensigns of that Noble Order. On March the 3d. His Majesty was pleased to make Sir Claudfley Shovel a Colonel of the Marine Regiment, lately Commanded by the Lord Berkley, Baron of Street-ham, who after commanding our Fleet in the Channel upon several Expeditions, Died on February the 27th. after a few Days Sickness of a Fever and Pleurisie. On March the 17th. the King conferr'd the Dignity of a Baronet upon
Edward

Honours
and Pre-
ferments.

1696. Edward Mansel of Trimfaram in the County of Carmarthen Esq; And on the next day His Majesty, in his Bedchamber, conferred the Honour of Knighthood upon Richard Blackmore, M. D. having before been pleased to order him to be Sworn one of his Physicians in Ordinary: He being a Person of great Reputation for his Practice in Physick, for his excellent Performance in Heroic Poems, for his universal Wit and Learning, and for his Affection to the King and the present Government: and what is most Laudable, for his Reforming and Sanctifying Poetry, by casting out the Images of Heathen Theology, and writing like a Christian.

State of Religion. The Church of England had a great Loss in the Death of Dr. Robert Grove, Lord Bishop of Chichester; who, by the Misfortune of unruly Horses, was thrown out of his Coach, and in the Fall broke his Leg, and lost his Life by it. To fill his Place with a worthy Successor, His Majesty immediately after His Return from Holland, was pleased to name Dr. John Williams, Rector of St. Mildred's Poultry in London, to that Bishoprick: A sound Divine, a general Scholar, and a Man of singular Probity and Humility. He was Consecrated on Sunday, Dec. 13th. His Prebend of Canterbury was given to the Learned Dr. William Beveridge.

Act for Rebuilding of St. Paul's Church. It was a particular Honour to the House of Commons, that while they were under so great Difficulties in raising Money for the Exigence of the War, they did receive and pass a Bill, for the Compleating, Building, and Adorning of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul's, London, by a further Imposition upon Coals. And they seem'd so well dispos'd to that Work of Piety, that it encourag'd many Parishes to make solemn Petitions to them, for some Assistance towards Repairing or Rebuilding their decay'd and ruin'd Churches. As, from the Minister, Church-Wardens, and Parishioners of St. Botolph without Aldersgate, London, on February the 5th. From the Vicar, Church-Warden, Justices of the Peace, Vestry-Men, and other Inhabitants of St. Martin in the Fields: As also from the Parishioners of St. Helen's, London; on February the 8th. From the Inhabitants of Kensington, on February the 9th. and of Spittle-Fields, for some Supply towards Building a Chappel for the said Hamlet. From the Parish of St. George in Southwark, towards Repairing their Church, and Rebuilding their Steeple. From St. Thomas's Hospital in Southwark, for Rebuilding that Church; on the same day, from the Rector, Church-Wardens, and other Officers and Inhabitants of St. John Wapping; for Raising their Church, Erecting a Steeple, and compleating the Building of the Rector's House; February the 16th. From the Rector, Church-Wardens, and Members of the Vestry of St. Botolph Bishopsgate, for Rebuilding of that Church; February the 19th. From the Rector, Church-Wardens, and principal Inhabitants of St. Andrew's Holborn; for Rebuilding the Steeple, and Church-yard Walls and Gates; February the 23d. From the Parish of St. Olave's in Southwark; for Rebuilding their Parish-Church; on March the 2d. Nothing so much obstructed the Answering of those Petitions, as the Multitude of them: It might have been thought partial, to oblige any One or Two Parishes, and it was impracticable to gratify them All. Tho' possibly, had they all agreed in One Joint Petition, for one common Bill of Relief; at least in Reversion, after the expiring of the Term allow'd for the Service of St. Paul's Church; they might have gain'd a Provisional Act for Rebuilding or Repairing those old Churches; which had been then Reasonable, and must be Necessary some time or other.

1697. The long Sessions of Parliament were owing to the Multiplicity of Publick Affairs, rather than to the dilatory Proceedings of either House, or to any Obstruction given by the King or the Court. The great Business was to retrieve and maintain the publick Credit; and to supply the Want of Money by the Currency of Exchequer Bills, and to support the Bank of England. The Commons were so intent upon these wise Ends, that when in a Paper entitled the Flying-Post, publish'd on Thursday April the 1st. there was this Advertisement: *We hear, that when the Exchequer Notes are given out upon the Capitation Fund, who-soever shall desire Specie on them, will have it at Five Pound and half per Cent. of the Society of Gentlemen that have subscribed to advance some Hundred Thousands of Pounds: They Voted this Passage to be a Malicious Insinuation, in order to destroy the Credit and Currency of the Exchequer Bills. They ordered the Printer, John Salisbury, to be sent for in Custody; and gave leave to bring in a Bill, to prevent the Writing, Printing, or Publishing any News without License. And yet when such a Bill was presented by Mr. Poulney, it was thrown out before a Second Reading; because tho' they saw the Mischiefs of the Liberty of the Press, they knew not where to fix the Power of Restraint. On the same day, April the 1st. His Majesty came to the House of Lords, and gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for making good the Deficiencies of several Funds therein mention'd; and for Enlarging the Capital Stock of the Bank of England; and for Raising the Publick Credit. 2. An Act for Repealing of a Clause in a former Act, relating to Party-Guiles; and for the better preventing Frauds and Abuses of Brewers, and others chargeable with the Duties of Excise. 3. An Act for Enlarging common High-Ways. 4. An Act for continuing several former Acts; for Punishing Officers and Soldiers, who shall Mutiny or Desert His Majesty's Service; and for Punishing false Musters; and for Payment of Quarters for One Year longer. 5. An Act for the Compleating, Building, and Adorning the Cathedral-Church of St. Paul, London; and for Repairing the Collegiate Church of St. Peter, Westminster. 6. An Act for Relief of Creditors, by making Compositions with their Debtors, in case Two Thirds in Number and Value do agree. 7. An Act for Paving and Regulating the Hay-Market, in the Parishes of St. Martin in the Fields, and St. James within the Liberty of Westminster. 8. An Act for Repairing the High-Way between Ryegate in the County of Surrey, and Crawley in the County of Suffex. 9. An Act for Explaining a former Act of Parliament, entitled, An Act for Enabling Trustees to Sell Part of the Estate of Edmund Warner, deceased, for Payment of his Debts, and for preserving the rest for the Benefit of his Heir. 10. An Act to Enable William Fallows, an Infant, to Sell an Estate in the County of Chester, to Pay Debts secured by Mortgages. 11. An Act to Vest certain Lands late of Samuel Trotman, Esq; deceased; lying in Barking, East-Ham, West-Ham, and Woolwich, in the Counties of Kent and Essex, in Trustees, to be sold; and to settle other Lands in lieu thereof. 12. An Act to supply a Defect in an Act, for Enabling Olive Neve, Esq; to Sell Two Houses in London, and for Settling Lands in the County of Norfolk, of greater Value, to the same Uses. 13. An Act for Vesting Part of the Estate of Roger Crowe, Esq; deceased, in Trustees; for Raising Portions for his younger Children; in regard he being a Lunatick, could not execute a Power in his Marriage-Settlement, for that Purpose. 14. An Act for Importing several Goods and Merchandizes, laden in Turkey on Board the Ship call'd the Success and Dragon-Galley; paying Customs, as if Imported by English Ships.*

Parliament intent on the publick Credit.

A Bill against News-papers.

1697.
Grievance of Privileged Places.

There had been a Publick Grievance of long standing. Several Places in and about London, which in the Times of Popery were allowed as Sanctuaries to escaping Criminals, had ever since the Reformation pretended a Privilege to protect absconding Debtors: One of these, call'd White-Friars, was become a Notorious Nest of broken and desperate Men, in the very Heart of the City, whither they resorted in great Numbers; and to the Reproach of the Government, as well as to the Defrauding of the People, defended themselves with Force and Violence against the Law and Publick Authority. This intolerable Insult upon the Justice of the Nation the Parliament laboured to redress, in a Bill, for the more effectual Relief of Creditors in Cases of Escapes; and for preventing Abuses in Prisons and pretended Privileged Places: Wherein such effectual Provision was made to reduce those Outlaws, that immediately after the Act was publish'd, they abandon'd their Posts of Refuge, and left room for better Inhabitants. There was another reigning Scandal in the New Art of Stock-Jobbing, that was grown up into such a Mystery of Deceit and Impudence, that it obstructed all other Trade, and taught Men the Trick of living by their Wits, without any visible Industry, or any known Ability. This Mischief too was in some Measure remov'd, by a Bill to restrain the Number and ill Practices of Brokers and Stock-Jobbers. There were some other Bills depending, to rectify many other Abuses. As, 1. A Bill to prevent the Buying and Selling of Offices, and Places of Trust. 2. A Bill to prevent the undue Marriage of Infants; and for better securing the Guardianship of them. 3. A Bill for further Regulating Elections of Members to serve in Parliament. 4. A Bill to settle and regulate the Trade to Africa. 5. A Bill to encourage the Woollen-Manufacture in England; and to prevent the Exportation of it from Ireland to Foreign Parts. 6. A Bill to restrain the Wearing of all wrought Silks and Bengalls, imported into this Kingdom from Perna and East-India, and all Callicoes Printed and Stained there. To press on this last Bill, a Tumultuous Croud of Weavers came in so riotous a manner, to the very Lobby of the House of Commons, that the House were oblig'd to Defend themselves, by ordering the Sheriffs and Justices of London and Middlesex, to suppress the said Tumult; and by making a Vote, That the locating and Encouraging any Number of Persons to come in a Riotous, Tumultuous, or Disorderly Manner to this House, in order to hinder or promote the Passing any Bill, being against the Constitution and Freedom of Parliament, is a High Crime and Misdemeanor. But to make some Atonement, within few Days after, the Bailiffs, Wardens, and Assistants of the Corporation of Weavers of the City of London, presented an Address to His Majesty; wherein they declar'd their Detestation of the late Riotous and Tumultuous Behaviour of the Poorer Sort of Weavers and other Persons; and that neither they, nor any Master-Weavers, were the Inviters or Encouragers thereof: And assur'd His Majesty, That they would not only use their utmost Endeavours to prevent the like Disorders for the future, but on all Occasions would sacrifice their Lives and all that was dear to 'em in the Defence of His Majesty's Sacred Person and Government.

On Friday, April 16. His Majesty came to the House of Lords, to put an end to this long continued Session, He gave the Royal Assent to these several Bills. 1. An Act for laying a Duty upon Leather, for the Term of Three Years, and making other Provision for answering the Deficiencies, as well of the said Duties upon Coals and Culm, as for paying the Annuities upon the Lottery, and for Lives, charged on the Tunnage of Ships, and the Duties upon Salt. 2. An Act for granting to His Majesty certain Duties upon Malt, Mum, Sweets, Cyder and Perry, as well towards carrying on the War against France, as for the Necessary Expence of His Majesty's Household, and other Occasions. 3. An Act for Licensing Hawkers and Pedlars for a farther Provision for Payment of the Interest of the Transport Debt for the Reducing of Ireland. 4. An Act for granting to His Majesty a farther Subsidy of Tunnage and Poundage upon Merchandizes imported, for the Term of Two Years and Three Quarters, and an Additional Land Tax for One Year, for carrying on the War against France. 5. An Act for the lessening the Duty upon Tin and Pewter exported, and granting an Equivalent for the same, by a Duty upon Drugs. 6. An Act to make Perpetual and more Effectual an Act Entitled, An Act to prevent Delays at the Quarter Sessions of the Peace. 7. An Act to enforce the Act for the Increase and Encouragement of Seamen. 8. An Act for raising the Militia for the Year One Thousand Six Hundred Ninety Seven, although the Month's Pay formerly advanced be not repaid. 9. An Act for Explaining and Inforcing the Act for Paving and Cleansing the Streets within the Cities of London and Westminster, and Borough of Southwark, and Weekly Bills of Mortality, and Streets adjoining thereunto; and for Widening the Street at the South End of London-Bridge. 10. An Act for the farther Encouragement of the Manufacture of Lustrings and Alamodes within this Realm, and for the better preventing the Importation of the same. 11. An Act for the Repair of the Peers of Bridlington, alias, Burlington, in the Last-Riding of the Count of York. 12. An Act for the better Observation of the Course anciently used in the Exchequer. 13. An Act for the easier obtaining Partitions of Lands in Coparcenary, Joint-Tenancy, and Tenancy in Common. 14. An Act for supplying some Defects in the Laws for the Relief of the Poor of this Kingdom. 15. An Act to restrain the Number and ill Practices of Brokers and Stock-Jobbers. 16. An Act for the better preventing the Counterfeiting the Current Coin of this Kingdom. 17. An Act for the more Effectual Relief of Creditors in Cases of Escapes, and for preventing Abuses in Prisons and pretended Privileged Places. 18. An Act for annulling the Marriage of Hannah Knight, an Infant, and directing the Guardianship of the said Infant. 19. An Act for the Speedy Payment of the Debts of Sir William Thompson, Knight, Serjeant at Law, deceased. 20. An Act for enabling the Sale of the Minor of Rowling in Kent, which by Mistake was by General Words comprized in the Marriage Settlement of the said William Hammond, Gent. contrary to the Meaning of the Parties.

After which His Majesty made this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

HAVING given My Assent to the several Bills you have presented to Me, I am now to return you my hearty Thanks for what you have done this Session, which has been carried on with great Prudence, Temper and Affection.

At the Opening of the Session, I told you how sensible I was of the Difficulties to be struggled with, which were of such a Nature, that I will freely own the Hopes I had of our being able to overcome them, were founded only upon the Wisdom and Zeal of so Good a Parliament.

My Expectation has been fully answered, you entred upon the Business with so much Cheerfulness, proceeded so unanimously, and have at last brought Things to such a Conclusion, that We may hope to carry on the War with Success, in case Our Enemies do not think 1697.

Act passed.

1697. " it their Interest to agree to an Honourable " Peace: And so Effectual a Provision being " made for supplying the Deficiencies of former
" Funds, (which is the best Foundation for re-
" establishing of Credit) I doubt not but in a " short time it will have a very happy Effect, to
" the Universal Ease and Satisfaction of my Peo" ple.

" The Circumstances of Affairs making it ne" cessary for Me to be out of the Kingdom for " some time, I shall take care to leave the Admi" nistration of the Government during My Ab" sence, in the Hands of such Persons as I can " depend upon.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" I have nothing more to ask of you, but that
" you would carry down the same Good Dispo" sition into your several Countries, which you
" have express'd in all the Proceedings of this Ses" sion.

And then the Parliament was, by His Majesty's Command, prorogued until the Thirteenth Day of May next.

Upon the Plenipotentiaries going to negotiate a General Peace, the King was pleased to constitute Sir Thomas Mompesson, Sir Charles Cottrell, Jun. and James Tyrrell, Esq; Commissioners for executing the Office of Lord Privy-Seal, during the Absence of the Earl of Pembroke, and His Majesty delivered the Seal into their Custody on Apr. 11. at Kensington. Within three Days after His Majesty was pleased to appoint Charles Earl of Manchester to be His Ambassador Extraordinary to the Republick of Venice; Sir James Rushout, Bart. His Ambassador to the Grand Signior; and Lambert Blackwell, Esq; His Envoy to the Great Duke of Tuscany; upon whom He conferred the Honour of Knighthood, on Apr. 23. On Apr. 16. His Majesty was pleased to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Charles Isaac, Esq; one of the Officers of the Board of Green-Cloth, for his Faithfull Services. On Apr. 19. the Earl of Dorset having resigned the Office of Lord Chamberlain of His Majesty's Household, His Majesty conferred that Place on the Earl of Sunderland, who had now great Favour and great Influence at Court; and was soon after sworn of the Privy-Council. On Apr. 22. His Majesty in Council received the Seal from the Hands of Sir John Somers, Lord Keeper, and returned it to him again, with the Title of Lord Chancellor of England, who within few Days after was created a Baron of this Kingdom, by the Stile and Title of Lord Somers, Baron of Evesham, in the County of Worcester: His Services to the King and the Nation were truly great and good. On the same Evening, Apr. 22. His Majesty declared in Council, that he had appointed Thomas Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, Sir John Somers, Kn^t. Lord Chancellor of England, Thomas Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, Lord Privy-Seal, William Duke of Devonshire, Lord Steward of His Majesty's Household, Charles Duke of Shrewsbury, one of His Principal Secretaries of State, Robert Earl of Sunderland, Lord Chamberlain, Charles Earl of Dorset, Henry Earl of Romney, and Edward Russel, Esq; to be Lords Justices of England, for the Administration of the Government during His Majesty's Absence. At the same time His Majesty was pleased to constitute Godwin Wharton, Esq; one of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, in the Place of Colonel Austin, deceased. Before His Majesty's Departure for Holland, He was pleased to bestow several other Titles and Honours; Edward Russel, Esq; was created Baron of Shingey, Viscount of Barfleur, and Earl of Orford, in the County of Suffolk: The Lord Viscount

Galloway was made Earl of Galloway, and was appointed to be one of the Lords Justices of the Kingdom of Ireland, with the Marquis of Winchester, and the Lord Viscount Villiers. The Earl of Stamford was made Chancellor of the Duchy and County Palatine of Lancaster. The Lord Wharton was made Chief Justice in Eyre on this side Kent, and Lord Lieutenant of the County of Oxon: And Ralph Grey, Esq; was appointed to be Governor of the Barbadoes.

Before the publick declaration of these Honours, His Majesty had left Kensington on Saturday Morning April the 24th. and lay that Night at Captain Ball's House near Margate; and on Monday about Eleven in the Morning went on Board the William and Mary Yatch, and under a Convoy, Commanded by Sir Cloudesly Shovel, Landed safely the next day in Holland; being at first much Indisposed, but after losing some Blood, He took the Air, and went from Hague to Zulstein, and thence to Loo: and there waited the Opening of the Congress and Treaty at Reswick.

The first Difficulty that arose upon this Treating for a General Peace, was about the Place of Meeting. The Emperor proposed either Mentz or Frankfort; the Dutch insisted upon a Place in Holland; and most of the Allies were either for Maestricht, Nimeguen or Breda: but towards the middle of January, M. Callier by his Masters Order moved, that the Plenipotentiaries of the Allies should reside at the Hague, and those of France at Delft; and that the Conferences should be held at Reswick, a Place belonging to his Britanick Majesty, and equally distant from both those Towns; which was agreed to by the Confederates. This Point being thus settled, the Preliminaries after several Debates were also concluded and Sign'd on the 10th. of February, by which the King of France agreed, " I. That the " Treaties of Westphalia and Nimeguen should be " the Basis of this to be negotiated at Reswick. " II. That Strasburg should be restored to the " Empire, in the same Condition as the French " took it. III. And Luxemburg to the Spaniards, " in its present Condition, (but here the French " offer'd the Allies an Equivalent for both those " Places.) IV. That Mons and Charleroy should " be Surrender'd as they were. V. That all " Places taken by the French in Catalonia, since " the Peace of Nimeguen, should be Restor'd in " the same manner. VI. That Dinant, both " City and Castle, should be given up to the " Bishop of Liege, as they were when taken. " VII. That all Reunions since the Treaty of " Nimeguen should be made void. VIII. That " Lorraine should be Restored according to the " Condition of that Treaty; But further agreed, " that in Case the Conditions made in respect to " that Country should not please, that Article " should be refer'd to the General Treaty, and " that it should be the first Point Debated in the " Negotiation. Here it was likewise farther " agreed more particularly, that upon conclu- " sion of the Peace, the King of France should " acknowledge the Prince of Orange as King of " Great Britain, without any manner of Diffi- " culty, Restriction, Condition, or Reserve; but " as for other Princes, whether they were in " the Confederacy or not, their Pretensions " should be refer'd to the General Negotiation, " under the Mediation of the King of Sweden. " IX. That the Duchy of Deux-Ponts should be " restor'd to Sweden. X. That Philipsburg should " be given up to the Bishop of Spire. XI. That " the Fort of Keel and other Fortifications made " on the Rhine, should be raz'd. XII. That the " same should be done by Fort-Louis and Hun- " tinghen.

1697.

King goes for Holland

Treaty of General Peace,

At Reswick.

Articles of it

Places and Honours.

1697. "ninghen. XIII. That Trarbach and Montroyal should be given up; the first Dismantled, but upon Condition never to be Fortified again. XIV. That the Electör Palatine should not only be restor'd to all the Electorate, but also to the Dutchies of Simmeren and Lautern, with the Earldom of Mainheim; as also other Places, whereof he had been dispossest'd to the present time. XV. That the Dutchess of Orleans should not have Recourse to open Force to maintain her Pretensions, but might bring her Actions according to Law, in relation to the Electör. XVI. That the Castle and County of Veldens should be restor'd to their Lawful Owner. XVII. That Bisweiler should be given to the Count of Hennau. XVIII. That the Seignories of Mareb, Marmosy and Dagstein, and the County of Dagsburg, should be deliver'd up to the Count of Overstein. XIX. That the Seignories of Salms and Valkenstein should be given up to the Prince of Salms, or to their Proprietors, seeing the same was still in Question. XX. That the Seignories of Latzenstein and Altheim should be Surrendered to their Owners. XXI. That Otweiler should be given up to the House of Nassau. XXII. That the City and County of Mombelliard, Harcourt, Bainont, and Chattelette, should be put into the Possession of the House of Wirtemberg. XXIII. That Germsheim should be given up to the Electör Palatine, notwithstanding any former Treaties to the contrary. And XXIV. That the Principality of Orange should be given up to its Sovereign."

Farther Demands of the Allies.

Some of the Ministers of the Allies, after having consulted their Masters upon these Preliminaries, declar'd, That as to what concern'd the First Article, they fully agreed to it; but as for Strasbourg, they farther insisted it should be Restor'd, with its Fortifications and Dependencies, and that no Equivalent should be accepted. They allow'd of the Third, Fourth, and Fifth Articles; only they insisted, that not only the City, but the County of Luxembourg, and that of Chinay, should be given up; as they did, that the City and Castle of Dinant should be yielded, together with the Dutchy of Bouillon, in the same State they were. They likewise own'd themselves satisfy'd as to the Seventh Article concerning the Reunions; but not so with the Agreement made about Lorain, which they would have restor'd to the Duke its Sovereign, without any manner of Restriction.

Besides these Pretensions, the Death of Charles XI. King of Sweden, by whose Mediation the Treaty was set on Foot, was like to put a stop to the Progress of it. His Swedish Majesty having been ill for some time, Died at Stockholm on the 5th. of April, 1697. (O. S.) in the 42d. Year of His Age, and 37th. of His Reign, leaving His Crown to His Son Charles XII. then scarce Fifteen Years old; and appointing by His Will, both the Queen, and Five of the Senators, to Administer the Government, during His Son's Minority, which would be till he was entering upon the 18th. Year of his Age. However, this Accident made no manner of Alteration in the Affairs of Europe; for the Regents of Sweden, among whom the Queen had Two Voices, having full power to make Treaties, and perform all other Acts of Sovereignty, as should be agreed on by the major part of them, sent immediately Expresses to several Foreign Courts, to acquaint them with their Intentions to pursue the Mediation began by the late King, for the Tranquillity of Christendom; and dispatch'd a new Commission to Monsieur Lillienrot for that purpose. Some time before, it was agreed by the Plenipotentiaries at the Hague, that for the easier carrying on the Treaty, all Ceremonies should be laid aside, and the Titles any Princetook, be of no Consequence; That the several Ministers should have free and secure Correspondences with the Princes their Masters. That in order to that, Blank Passports should be given to each Party, for the Couriers dispatch'd by them; as also for the Paquet-Boats to and from England; and that the Powers of the respective Plenipotentiaries should be on the same Foot they were at Nimeguen.

In pursuance of these Preliminaries, Monsieur Lillienrot, the Mediator, appointed the First Conference to be held at Ryswick, on the 9th. of May; and accordingly, the Allies being met together in the Apartments on one side of the Palace, the French in the Apartments on the other side, and the Mediator in the middle between Both; the Allies and the French shew'd him their Powers, and gave him Copies of the same; which he communicated to the respective Ministers, and left the Copies with them. This and the settling Part of the Ceremonial, in order to further Proceedings, took up near Three Hours; and then the Conference was adjourn'd to Saturday the 11th. of the same Month: When being met again in the same manner as they did at first, the Powers of the Allies were by the Mediator exchanged with the French Ambassadors. Moreover, they agreed to meet constantly on Wednesdays in the Morning, and Saturdays in the Afternoon; and that, to prevent the Inconveniences that might arise from Crowds of Attendants, each Ambassador should go thither only with One Coach with Six Horses, Two Pages, and Two Footmen. On the 15th. and 18th. the Mediator and Plenipotentiaries met again; but all they did at those Two Conferences, was only to regulate several Points of Ceremony; in which, for the most part, they follow'd the Rules that were observ'd at the Treaty of Nimeguen.

On the 22d. of May, the Imperial Plenipotentiaries deliver'd to the Mediator their Demands, in the Name of the Emperor and Empire; and some of the German Ministers at the same time, gave in the particular Pretensions of the Princes their Masters: After which, the Allies drew up a large Deduction, in Justification of their Claims; of which however, they resolv'd to give the French Ambassadors no Copy, till they had the King's Orders to propose theirs. But the French Plenipotentiaries having declar'd, that they had nothing to ask, or pretend to, and that they were ready to answer the others, the Allies chang'd their Thoughts; and the French in the mean while, had several separate Conferences with the Dutch, about Commerce, and a Cessation of Arms. This last Point the French seem'd very eager for, and the same was much press'd by the Mediator; who, upon the Spanish Ministers declaring their Grievances, declar'd, That he was of Opinion, that nothing could more contribute to the Advancement of the Peace, than the agreeing on a Truce by common Consent; Mens Minds being so much the less compos'd and fit for a calm Negotiation, by how much they were distracted and put out of order, elevated or cast down, by the good or bad Successes of War. Tho' this Motion seem'd then to be approved by Silence, yet other things interven'd, which caused it to be laid aside. About the same time, the Brandenburg Ambassadors did very much insist, that all the Names of the Confederate Princes should be Express'd, and particularly Inserted in the Treaty; and some of the Allies took it very ill, that the Pretensions of the Empire were propos'd by 1697.

First Conference at Ryswick

1697. the Emperor's Ambassadors, only in his Imperial Majesty's Name. To silence which Complaints, it was replied, That every one of the Allies was free to propose separate Articles concerning his own Affairs. Whereupon several Princes gave in their Grievances to their Mediator.

King of France makes Peace with Sword in Hand. The King of France wisely foreseeing that the House of Austria would insist upon the Treaty of the Pyrenees, resolv'd to make his last Efforts in Flanders and Catalonia, to bring down the Spanish to his own Terms; and to advance the Prince of Conti to the Crown of Poland: Not doubting but that Warlike Prince, who both by Inclination, and out of Gratitude, would ever promote the Interest of France, would soon make the Emperor more tractable. His most Christian Majesty's Army was very numerous and formidable this Year in the Low-Countries; and having besides, the Advantage of being earlier in the Field than the Confederates, both by reason of the remoteness and slow March of the German Troops, and of His Britannick Majesty's Indisposition, they boasted of Attacking a no less considerable Town than Namur; but having reflected on the Difficulties of that Enterprize, they were contented to Besiege Aeth, a Place the French had yielded to Spain by the Treaty of Nimeguen. There were no less than Three Marshals of France in that Army; to wit, Villeroi, Boufflers, and Catinat; but the last being without Dispute the greatest General of the Three, 'twas to him the King of France gave the Direction of the Siege, and order'd Monsieur Vauban to assist him in it; whilst Villeroi and Boufflers should observe the Confederates. Upon Intelligence of the French having Invested Aeth, King William, who by this time was perfectly recover'd of His late Illness, immediately repair'd to His Army in Brabant, and had an Interview with the Duke of Bavaria, who commanded another Army at hand, to join His Majesty upon Occasion. But besides the great Superiority of the French, which would have made the Attempt very difficult, His Britannick Majesty openly declar'd, He would not sacrifice One Man for the Relief of a Place which the French must be oblig'd to give up by the Peace. 'Tis true, His Majesty might easily have laid Siege to Dinant, while Marshal de Camat was besieging Aeth; but then Brussels had been left expos'd to Villeroi and Boufflers, who had a Design upon that City, and which His Majesty utterly disappointed by His Prudence. As for Aeth, it was so vigorously press'd by the Besiegers, and so faintly defended by the Governor, for the same Reasons which induc'd King William not to attempt its Relief, that it surrender'd after Twelve Days of open Trenches.

Crown of Poland desired by Pr. Conti. The Successes in Flanders and Greater Catalonia would in all probability have made the French sole Masters of the Peace, and given their Ambassadors a fair Occasion to speak the Language of Nimeguen; had not their Expectations from Poland been miserably disappointed. It was the general Opinion, that Prince James, Son to the King, was the only Competitor that could oppose the Prince of Conti's Advancement to the Throne; and the former being universally disliked, upon account of his Father's Avarice; who, in order to fill his Coffers, made open Sale of his Favours, more like a penurious Trader, than a Generous Sovereign; the Abbot of Polignar, who manag'd the French King's Affairs there, did confidently assure his Master, that Prince Conti would certainly carry the Election, if he did but come in Person, and send him a sufficient Sum of Money to Bribe some Palatines that oppos'd the French Interest. Upon this Encou-1697. ragement, the Prince of Conti set out for Poland, and great Remittances were made to the Abbot of Polignar, which he lavish'd away with much Ostentation, and as little Success.

In the mean time the Elestor of Saxony, whom no body suspected to have any Thoughts towards the Crown of Poland, being supported by the King of England's Powerful Recommendation to the Emperor, took a Journey in the End of the Spring to Vienna, under the pretence of Settling Matters in relation to the Campaign in Hungary, where 'twas given out he would command the Imperial Army again this Summer. But the Event shew'd, that his real Intention was to concert Measures with that Court, in order to ascend the Throne he had in view; to which his Religion could be no Obstacle, since he had already privately reconciled himself to the Church of Rome, or at least did pretend he had done so afterwards. This Design was carried on with wonderful Secresy and Address: For all of a sudden the Elestor left Vienna; and this was attended with various Reports, industriously spread abroad, of some Misunderstanding between the Emperor and him; which no body could assign a Cause for. But when People saw the Elestor muster up a Body of his Troops, they entertain'd several Suspicions; and the Brandenburgers so far took the Alarm, as immediately to gather all the Forces they could, to oppose any Attempt that might be made that way. The Elestor's sudden March towards Silesia, and the Frontiers of Poland, quickly occasion'd other Speculations; and 'twas not long before it was publickly declar'd, that he put in for the Crown of Poland: Which he at last obtain'd, by outbidding the Prince of Conti's Agent, both in ready Cash and Promises; and so he was proclaim'd King by the Bishop of Cujavia, and all the Partizans of the House of Austria, which made up the Majority of the Polish Dyet. 'Tis true, the Prince of Conti was also proclaim'd by the Cardinal Primate, and some Palatines that were in the French Interest; but his Competitor having an Army at hand to support his Claim; and his Highness, who soon after arrived in Poland, nothing but a great deal of Personal Merit to maintain his Title; the latter was, at last, necessitated to return to France.

Obtain'd by the Elestor of Saxony.

To quicken the slow Advances of the Treaty, the Ministers of Sweden and Denmark did both declare to the French, that their Masters would be constrained to join their Forces to those of the Allies, to cut off by the Sword all the unnecessary Difficulties, which France rais'd to protract the Negotiation. Whereupon, the French, on July the 20th. gave in their Project of Peace, founded on the fore-mentioned Treaties of Westphalia and Nimeguen: The main Articles of which, as to the Empire, were; "An Offer to make void several Reunions made on that side, by the Chambers of Metz and Besangon, and the Sovereign Council of Brisac, since the Treaty of Nimeguen. To restore the City of Strasburg, or to give as an Equivalent for it the City and Castle of Eriburg, and the Towns of Brisac and Philipsburg, with the Fort of Kiel, in the Condition they were at present. To demolish the Fortifications of Hunningben, on the other side of the Rhine. To restore Lorain to the Duke of that Name, in the same manner as it was offer'd at the Treaty of Nimeguen; that is, in the same Condition it was possessed by Duke Charles in 1670. and the City of Nancy, upon certain Considerations; with the Demolishing of divers Places, such as Mont-Royal, Traerbach, &c. As for the Spaniards, the French offer'd to give them the Ci-

Slow Advances of the Treaty.

1697. "ty and Country of Luxemburgh, and the Country of Obinay; or in Lieu of them, some other Places hereafter to be named; for which there was a Blank left in the Project. That all Reunions since the Treaty of Nimeguen should be made void. That the City and Castle of Dinant should be delivered to the Bishop of Liege. And that all other Places taken on both sides during the War, should likewise be restored." The Spaniards seem'd in the main to be pretty well satisfied with the French Concessions: But the Imperial Ministers made a tedious, and as some thought, an unreasonable Answer to the Project; which the French did not much regard, their chief Aim being to satisfy the rest, upon what Terms they were willing to give them, in order to break off the Grand Confederacy, and by that means to preserve part of their Acquisitions on the Rhine, since there was so little Prospect of having any thing elsewhere. After the Delivery of the Project of Peace, the King of France, finding much time spent to little purpose, by Carrying on a Treaty in Writing, order'd His Plenipotentiaries to agree to the Proposals the Imperialists had made not long before, of Treating by Word of Mouth: and tho' the 10th of September was the utmost the French would give, to accept their Offers; yet 'tis remarkable, that since their Disappointment in Poland, they began to be more tractable than before.

Upon the 17th. of August an extraordinary Conference was held at Ryswick, which lasted almost a whole Day, and wherein the Method agreed on of Treating by Word of Mouth was first put in practice. Not many Days after came the News of taking Barcelona by the French, after one of the most vigorous Sieges that had been known in any Age. This made the Spaniards very uneasy, and very pressing to have the Peace sign'd upon the Conditions offer'd by France; and more especially, since by the Memorial given in to the Mediator on the 1st. of September, there had been an Offer made to restore this Place also to the Catholick King, upon a slight Consideration of a few Villages belonging to the Chateleine of Loth, to be yielded to the French, for the Convenience of the Trade of the Inhabitants of Tourmay. But by how much the more condescending the French seem'd to be with the Spaniards, the stiffer they became with the Empire; now positively insisting upon the keeping of Strasbourg, and that the Emperor should rest satisfied with the Equivalent; which, they said, would be more considerable to him, since he would have the entire Sovereignty of those Towns that France quitted; whereas Strasbourg, if restor'd, must have been set at its own liberty, as a Free Imperial City. If the Imperialists were startled at this New Project, they were not less surpriz'd at the short time prefix'd by France for their Answer; which was the 20th. of August, and after which the most Christian King would no longer be oblig'd to those Offers. This was still the more mortifying to them, since they began now to be superior in Force to the French, and to act offensively on the Rhine; not to mention their Jealousies, lest some of the Allies should sign a Separate Peace and leave them out; which occasion'd some Heats amongst the Confederates.

On the other hand, the French Plenipotentiaries were amaz'd at the profound Silence of the Ministers of the Allies, concerning their last Memorial: But it seems the Conclusion of the Peace was to be owing to the same Genius, who had been the Soul of the War; I mean, King William. His Majesty wisely considering, that the final Terms and incident Chismeries of a solemn 1697. Negotiation, were no small Hindrance to the Progress of the Treaty; thought fit to commit his Personal Interests and those of his Dominions, to the Arbitration of Two Men of the Sword; to wit, the Earl of Portland on His Britannick, and the Mareschal de Boufflers on His most Christian Majesty's Part. Accordingly, the Royal Confederate Army being encamp'd at Cockleberg, near Brussels; and the French, under Villeroi, Catinat, and Boufflers, not far from thence, at Issingue Five St. Eloi, and Pepinge; the Earl of Portland, as from himself, demanded a private Interview with Montieur de Boufflers: Which being readily granted, the Two Generals, on June the 10th. N. S. met at an equal Distance from their respective Camps, attended by the same Number of Guards, and accompanied by several Officers of Note. This Preliminary Conference was soon followed by Three others; at the last of which, on July the 26th. the Two Negotiators, after they had been some time in the open Field, retir'd into a House in the Suburb of Hull; where they had Pen, Ink, and Paper, and in an Hour adjust'd several Points, that the Plenipotentiaries at Ryswick would not have agreed upon in a Year. On the 2d. of August, Portland and Boufflers sign'd the Paper they had drawn up some Days before. Whereupon His Majesty, on August the 3d. left the Army, and went to Dieren: From whence He dispatch'd that Earl to the Hague, to acquaint the Congress, That as for what concern'd His Majesty and His Kingdoms, all Matters were so adjust'd with France, that this would occasion no Delay in the General Peace; and therefore He earnestly press'd the other Allies, and particularly the Emperor, to contribute all that in them lay towards the concluding so great a Work.

The frequent Interviews between King William's Favourite and Mareschal de Boufflers, occasion'd divers Speculations. On the one hand, the Jacobites, who, against all reason, flatter'd themselves, that tho' a Treaty of Peace was carry'd on at His Majesty's own Palace, yet He should be left out of it; saw by these Conferences their Hopes entirely baffled: And on the other hand, a great many People, and even some of His Majesty's best Friends, began to suspect that His Majesty had enter'd into a private Agreement with the King of France, in favour either of King James, or His Issue; upon account of His Britannick Majesty's having the peaceful Enjoyment of His Dominions during Life, and being acknowledged as King of Great Britain by His most Christian Majesty: Which ill grounded Suspicion was Three Years after fully remov'd by King William's effectual promoting the Settlement in the Protestant Line. Others gave out, that my Lord Portland and Montieur Boufflers had only agreed, that King James's Queen should have Her Dowry paid Her by England, in such a manner, as if Her Husband was really dead; but that afterwards She refus'd to accept it. And others again have since imagin'd, not without some Probability, that in these Interviews was laid the first Foundation of the Famous Treaty of Partition, which was afterwards concluded between King William, and the King of France. But these are meer Conjectures, and will remain such, till the Earl of Portland, or the Mareschal de Boufflers, are pleas'd to reveal what pass'd betwixt them; which has been hitherto kept secret.

The Critical Day appointed by France being come, when either a Happy Peace, or a long and Bloody War, was to determine the Fate of Christendom; the English, Spanish, and Dutch Plenipotentiaries, after a long Conference with those of France, having adjust'd all Matters remaining 1697. Conferences between the E. of Portland and Mareschal Boufflers.

Part taken by the French.

The Peace owing to King William.

The Treaty Signed.

1697. maining in difference between any of them, did respectively Sign the Treaty a little after Midnight, and then Complimented each other, upon the Finishing that important Negotiation. The Imperial and Electoral Plenipotentiaries, who most of them were all the while present in the Hall, were so far from consenting to what was done, that on the contrary, they required the Mediator to enter a Protestation, "That this was a Second Time that a separate Peace had been concluded with France, (meaning that of Nimeguen for one) wherein the Emperor and Empire had been excluded: And that the States of the Empire, who had been impos'd upon thro' their own over-credulity, would not for the future be so easily persuaded to enter into Confederacies." The Spanish Plenipotentiaries, and particularly Don Bernardo de Quiros, by way of Excuse, replied, That he had a long time been made acquainted with His Catholick Majesty's Pleasure, not to delay the Signing of the Treaty, which had been agreed on before; And if he had obey'd those Orders, the French would not have taken Barcelona: But that having deferr'd the Conclusion of that Treaty, at the Persuasion of the Imperial Ministers, he had given the French time to make themselves Masters of that important Place; which Success embolden'd their Plenipotentiaries to change their Language, and thereby he had himself run the hazard of incurring his Master's Displeasure.

The truth is, the Spaniards could not but perceive, that the English and Dutch could have sav'd Barcelona this Year, if they had pleas'd; but that they rather declin'd it, with an Intention to bring the Spaniards the more readily to accept the Offers of the French. And indeed those two Powers having in a manner born the whole Burden of the War, both by Sea and Land, whereby their respective Subjects were reduc'd to great Streights, especially as to their Trade; it could not seem strange that they were forward to Sign a Glorious and Advantageous Peace.

All this while the Abdicated King of England made but an indifferent Figure in his Melancholy Retirement at St. Germain's: The French King's Promise to that Unfortunate Prince, and open Declaration to all Europe, that He would never lay down Arms till He had restor'd Him to His Throne, had rais'd His late Britannick Majesty's Hopes to a great height. But He found by sad Experience how little the Promises of Sovereigns are to be rely'd on, when their own Interest comes in Competition. After a tedious War, dubiously maintain'd, the King of France being exhausted both of Men and Money, thought it Prudence to clap up a Peace, and restore to His Neighbours all the Conquests He had made upon them since the Treaty of Nimeguen; which He was the more inclin'd to do, in hopes, that having disarm'd and broke the Confederacy, He might get all again at the Death of the King of Spain, who for many Years had been in a pining, lingring State of Health; and who at the Conclusion of the Peace of Ryswick, was in so desperate a Condition, that the French Court thought He could not live a Month longer. On the other hand, His most Christian Majesty being sensible that a Treaty could not be set on Foot, not only without owning King William, but also (as a Consequence of that Acknowledgment) without Abandoning King James; He neither did insist that a Minister from that Unfortunate Monarch should be admitted to the Conferences at Ryswick; which Proposal was unanimously rejected by the Allies, nor would the French Plenipotentiaries meddle with that Prince's Manifesto. King James's Expectation of the French King's Protection being thus disappointed, and His Majesty finding that His Parliament, as well as His Treaties, had no effect upon His Subjects. He was persuaded to draw up a Manifesto or Memorial, containing both a Summary Account of the Reasons that should engage the Conscience Catholick Princes to promote His Restoration; an Exposition of the Injustice done Him; and a Protestation against what was due at Ryswick, as Null, in respect to the Violation of His Rights. There were two of these Memorials offer'd by order of King James; the One to all the Plenipotentiaries of His Majesty's Princes, and the Other to those from Great Britain. In Both He asserted His own Right, and claimed the Observance of all the Treaties which any of them had made with Himself, and mix'd with it a severe Invektive against King William. Upon which it was thought necessary to prepare a Memorial in Answer to these, which was intended to be given in the Name of King William to all the Ministers. Accordingly such a Memorial was drawn up by King William's own Direction: He explaining Himself upon every Particular, and examining the Draught, and sending it to some of His wisest Ministers, by whom it was carefully Revised and Corrected. But when it was Resolv'd to Translate it into Latin and French, in order to the Communicating it, the King had Advice from the Hague, that those Memorials were so little consider'd there, that the offering an Answer to them would give them some Credit, and that without that, they had none at all. So the Draught was order'd to be Writ over again in another Stile, not in King William's Name, but as the Answer of a Private Hand to the Memorials of King James, and so to be Printed: Yet before this could be done, another Advice came to let the Matter quite alone, and to leave the Memorials of King James to sleep in that Neglect under which they were fallen. And so the Answer of King William rested in the Dark, till it was Publish'd by the Lord Bishop of Sarum at London, 1705. 4to. under this Title; A Memorial drawn by King William's Special Direction, intended to be given in at the Treaty of Ryswick, justifying the Revolution and the Course of His Government: In Answer to Two Memorials that were offer'd there in King James's Name.

As to the late King's Friends in England, they were so enrag'd to see Him forsaken by the King of France, that they could not forbear venting their bitter Invektives against His most Christian Majesty; for which some of them were committed to Prison, and Fined; the same being a Violation of the late Treaty between the Crowns of England and France.

The Protestant French Refugees in England, Germany, and Scotland, were at this time no less disappointed than the Royal Exile in France. King William having on all occasions declar'd Himself their Protector, they reasonably expected that He would also prove their Deliverer; and never conclude a Peace with France, without obliging their Natural Sovereign to restore them both to their Estates, and the free Exercise of their Religion, in their own Country. Upon this Presumption, several Consultations were held in London by the French Ministers, and the most considerable Persons among the Refugees there, wherein it was debated, in what Method they should make their Applications to the Plenipotentiaries at Ryswick; and upon what Terms they should agree to their Restoration, which some amongst them look'd upon as Infallible. The Result of these Assemblies being transmitted to Monsieur Jurieu, the Head of all the French Refugees in Holland, He, with his usual Zeal for the Protestant Cause, address'd himself to King 1697. William, who directed the Dutch Plenipotentiaries to open that Matter at a Distance to the French Ambassadors. The Dutch Ministers follow'd His Majesty's Orders; but the King of France, to whom this Overture was communicated, expressing an insuperable Averseness to it, and urging, that as he did not pretend to prescribe K. William any Rules about His Subjects, so He expected the same Liberty as to His own, which He look'd upon as the great Prerogative of a Sovereign; His Britannick Majesty insisted no farther upon it.

Treaty sign'd between France and the Empire.

To make an end of this Memorable Negotiation, the Conferences continu'd at Ryswick between the Imperial and French Plenipotentiaries, till the 30th of October, when all Things were agreed on, and the Treaty sign'd, two Days before the Time limited by France was expir'd. And though this Peace with the Empire was not so advantageous to it, nor the Restitution of Lorrain, in so ample a manner as was expected, yet it must be own'd, that the Power of France was now extremely reduc'd, if it be consider'd, That She gave up many Considerable Towns in Germany, which She had been long possess'd of, particularly the Important Place of Brifac: That by the taking of Cazal, and the Peace of Savoy, she had entirely lost her Footing in Italy: That the same Barrier was left in Catalonia as before; and that there was a stronger Frontier in the Low-Countries, by her Restitution of all she took since the beginning of the War, with the Addition of Luxemburg and Dinant. The French themselves, who did not enter into the Views of their Monarch, were so sensible of this, and so little pleas'd with the Treaty of Ryswick, that they made very severe Reflections on Messieurs Harlay, Crecy, and Cailliere, their Plenipotentiaries, whom they traduc'd in their Lampoons, which were publickly sung in Paris, and over all the Kingdom of France; whilst the Courage, Resolution, and Wisdom of King William, to which this great Work was principally owing, were celebrated and admir'd throughout all the World.

Czar of Muscovy comes to England.

'Twas the Admiration of those Eminent Virtues, that drew the Czar of Muscovy, the most Potent Prince of the North, out of his own Dominions, and made Him traverse vast Tracts of Land to receive His Majesty's Instructions; wherein He prudently imitated the Queen of Sheba, who, many Ages before, had done the same, to hear the Wisdom of Solomon: And because He could not appear in other States with that Majesty and Splendor which He had in His Own Empire, He condescended to go incognito, among the Ambassadors, whom to cover His Journey, He sent to Holland and England. After these Ambassadors had had their Audience of the States General at the Hague, they were admitted to that of His Britannick Majesty at Utrecht; which being over, His Majesty and the Czar met in a small Gallery, into which they entered, both at a time, out of the adjoining Rooms, and hearty Embraces and Compliments being pass'd on both sides, they had a long Conference together about the Posture of Affairs; wherein the Czar highly applauded His Majesty's Indefatigable Endeavours, and constant Aim to reduce France within His Ancient Limits. The Russian Emperor's Esteem for King William being highly encreas'd by this Interview, and confirm'd by several other Conferences He had with His Majesty, He resolv'd to visit that Happy and Powerful Nation who had so great a Prince to their Sovereign. Accordingly the Czar followed King William into England, where He was magnificently entertain'd with all His numerous Retinue, at His Majesty's own Charge, and had Private Conferences not only with His Majesty, but with the Princess and Prince of Denmark, who contributed not a little to His Diversion, and at the same time rais'd His Surprize by a Splendid Ball, at which were present the Brightest Beauties in England. During His Stay in London, His Czarish Majesty endeavour'd to instruct Himself in the Knowledge of several Useful Arts, unknown to His Barbarous Subjects, and more particularly, in that of Navigation; with design to build a Fleet both on the Baltick, to advance the Trade of His Empire, and on the Black-Sea to annoy the Turks: Which Project, however, has not been yet put in execution. There were not wanting those who censur'd that Prince for leaving His Dominions after this manner: I will not altogether excuse Him, but content my self to say, That His Example is never to be followed, till there arise again so Great a Man as King William, whose Merit may in some measure justify the Curiosity of seeing Him.

Honours and Preferments

During His Majesty's Absence, there had little happen'd that deserves our Notice. At the beginning of the Campaign, the King was pleas'd to make the Earl of Rivers Lieutenant General, and Brigadier Lumley Major General of the English Forces. On July 19, His Majesty was pleas'd to confer the Dignity of a Baronet of this Kingdom upon William Lowther of Mask in Yorkshire, Esq; Toward the end of the Campaign, upon Colonel Coy's quitting his Regiment of Horse, His Majesty was pleas'd to give it to the Earl of Arran; and his Lordship's Regiment in England to Colonel Daniel Harvey. On July 27, John Powey, Esq; was sworn Clerk of the Privy-Council in Ordinary, in the Place of Richard Cooling, Esq; deceas'd: And at the same time James Vernon, Jun. Esq; was sworn Clerk of the Council in Extraordinary. In the Beginning of October, Edward Lord Viscount Villiers, one of His Majesty's Ambassadors Extraordinary, and Plenipotentiaries for the Treaty of Peace, was created Earl of Ferfey, and soon after received the Character of His Majesty's Ambassador to the States General; and on Nov. 25. was sworn of His Majesty's Privy-Council. When the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen attended His Majesty to congratulate His Safe Return, and Happy Conclusion of the Peace, His Majesty conferred the Honour of Knighthood upon the two Sheriffs, Bartholomew Gracedieu, and James Collet, Esquires, and upon Robert Beddingfield, Esq; Alderman, and Thomas Cudden, Esq; Chamberlain of London.

On Friday, Dec. 3. the Parliament met at Westminster, and the King in His Robes made this Speech to the Two Houses. Parliament meets.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

THE War which I enter'd into by the Advice of My People, is by the Blessing of God, and their Zealous and Affectionate Assistance, brought to the End We all propos'd, an Honourable Peace; which I was willing to conclude not so much to ease My Self from the Trouble or Hazard, as to free the Kingdom from the Continuing Burthen of an Expensive War.

I am heartily sorry My Subjects will not at first find all that Relief from the Peace which I could wish, and they may expect; but the Funds intended for the last Years Service, have fallen short of answering the Sums for which they were given; so that there remain Considerable Deficiencies to be provided for.

“ There's

1697. "There's a Debt upon the Account of the Fleet and the Army. The Revenues of the Crown have been Anticipated by My Consent for Publick Uses; so that I am wholly destitute of Means to Support the Civil List; and I can never distrust you'll suffer this to turn to My Disadvantage, but will Provide for Me, during My Life, in such a manner as may be for My Honour, and for the Honour of the Government.

"Our Naval Force being increased to near double what it was at my Accession to the Crown, the Charge of Maintaining it will be proportionably augmented; and it is certainly necessary for the Interest and Reputation of England, to have always a great Strength at Sea.

"The Circumstances of Affairs Abroad are such, that I think my self oblig'd to tell you My Opinion, That for the present, England cannot be Safe without a Land Force; and I hope We shall not give those who mean Us Ill, the opportunity of Effecting that, under the Notion of a Peace, which they could not bring to pass by a War.

"I doubt not but you Gentlemen of the House of Commons, will take these Particulars into your Considerations, in such a manner as to provide the necessary Supplies, which I do very earnestly Recommend to you.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"That which I most delight to think of, and am best pleased to own, is, That I have all the Proofs of My People's Affection, that a Prince can desire; and I take this Occasion to give them the most solemn Assurance, That as I never had, so I never will, nor can, have any Interest separate from theirs.

"I esteem it one of the greatest Advantages of the Peace, that I shall now have Leisure to rectify such Corruptions or Abuses as may have crept into any part of the Administration during the War; and effectually to discourage Prophaneness and Immorality: And I shall employ My Thoughts in promoting Trade, and advancing the Happiness and Flourishing Estate of the Kingdom.

"I shall conclude with telling You, That as I have, with the Hazard of every Thing, Rescued your Religion, Laws and Liberties, when they were in the Extremest Danger; so I shall place the Glory of My Reign in Preserving them Entire, and leaving them so to Posterity.

Lords Address. This Speech seem'd to be most acceptable to the Lords, who made an Address to His Majesty. Congratulating His Happy Return, accompanied with the Blessings of a Safe and Honourable Peace; which next under God they were sensible was owing to His Courage and Conduct: That after the Hazards and Labours He had so long sustained for the good of Europe, there wanted nothing but this to compleat the Glory of His Reign. They should never be wanting in their Endeavours to assist His Majesty in Maintaining that Quiet which He had so gloriously restored to these Kingdoms, and in contributing all they could to the Safety of His Person, and the securing the Peace and Prosperity of His Government." His Majesty in Return assured their Lordships of His Kindness; and told them, He hoped this Peace would be so Bless'd, that they might long enjoy it.

His Majesty's Speech did more variously affect the Commons: Some thought some Expressions in it too Magisterial; Others seem'd to be offended at His Majesty's putting them in mind of what He had done for the Nation; Others again

1697. trusted the great Promises of what He would do for them; and most began to be Jealous of the Expression, That England could not be Safe without a Land Force. By which they understood that odious thing, a Standing Army. However, on Dec. 9th, the Commons presented this Humble Address to the King.

"We your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Asssembled, who have so frequently waited on Your Majesty with the tender of our Assistance for carrying on the War, come now to Congratulate Your Majesty upon the Happy Conclusion of it, in a Peace so Honourable and Advantageous to the Nation, as sufficiently justifies the Wisdom of the Commons in Advising, and Your Majesty's Conduct in the Prosecution of it.

"The Prospect of the Benefits Your People will receive from this Peace, is very pleasing. The Honour Your Majesty has restor'd to England, of holding the Balance of Europe, gives Your Subjects great Content. But what Your Commons are most Affected and Delighted with, is, That Your Majesty's Sacred Person will now be Secure from those many and great Dangers, to which You have so often Expos'd it for our Sakes. Nothing being so Evident, as that Your Majesty's Return in Safety, was a Blessing more welcome to Your People than Peace, and received with greater Demonstrations of Joy.

"We therefore with Hearts full of Affection, Duty, and Gratitude, do assure Your Majesty in Name of all the Commons of England, That this House will be ever ready to Assist and Support Your Majesty, who by putting a Period to the War, has confirm'd us in the quiet Possession of our Rights and Liberties, and so fully compleated the Glorious Work of our Deliverance.

The King Answered thus: Gentlemen, nothing that relates to the Peace pleases Me so much, as the Satisfaction you have in it: And as you have assisted Me in the War beyond all expression, I do not doubt, but you will be as Zealous in maintaining the Peace. King's Answer.

Standing Forces, however established and regulated by Law, or however necessary to Maintain the Peace, were thought Intolerable; and therefore upon entering into a Consideration of His Majesty's Speech, the first Resolution of the Commons, was on Dec. 11. That all the Land Forces of this Kingdom that have been raised since the 29th of September 1680, shall be Paid and Disbanded. The Friends of the King and His Government had well argued, that the Nation was still Unsettled, and not quite delivered from the Fear of King James; that the Adherents to that Abdicated Prince were as Bold and Numerous as ever; and He Himself still Protected by the French King, who having as yet dismiss'd none of His Troops, was still as formidable as before. That if our Army was entirely Disbanded, the Peace which was obtained at the expence of so much Blood and Treasure, would be altogether Precarious: And not only England but all Europe lie once more at the Mercy of that Ambitious Monarch, an Inveterate Enemy to King William, the Protestant Religion, and the Liberties of Christendom. On the other hand, the Countrey-Party who valued themselves upon opposing any Motions of the Court; the Disaffected Party who never heartily approved the Revolution; the Commonwealth-Party who were secretly driving at a Change of Government into their own Scheme and Interest; and even many worthy Commons Address.

The grievance of Standing Forces.

1697. thy Patriots, who had no worse View than the Rights and Liberties of their Country: All upon different thoughts agreed in the same Aversion to a Standing Army; and labour'd to represent it as absolutely destructive to the Constitution of the English Government. And it was no wonder that their Objections prevail'd, when they were more Popular, and had this Weight in them, That Standing Forces would want a continual Tax; and Disbanding would relieve the People from the Burden of the War, which they would never be willing to bear in a Time of Peace. The King hoped that He had prevented the Warmth of these Debates at His last coming over, when He had caus'd several Regiments of Horse, Dragoons, and Foot, to be Disbanded; and even others to be reduced, and sent away (most of them either to Scotland or Ireland. And therefore He resent'd it as the greater Hardship upon Him, that He must have no Troops remaining, but be left so Naked and Exposed, as if the Peace were only to encourage His Enemies to surprize Him with another War.

Commons for Disbanding the Army.

The Commons however persist'd in their Resolutions of Disbanding; but to make it the more plausible, they pass'd a Vote, December the 13th. That it be an Instruction to the Committee who were to consider of the Supply, that they should likewise consider of a Gratuity to be given to such Officers and Soldiers of the English Army, who were or should be Disbanded: And at the same time, order'd Mr. Hammond and Mr. Moyle, to bring in a Bill, To enable Soldiers who should be Disbanded, to exercise their Trades in any Town or Corporation throughout this Kingdom. And, to seem to provide for the Security of the Kingdom, when the Army should be Disbanded, on December the 17th. they appointed several Members to prepare and bring in a Bill, To regulate the Militia, and make them the more useful. And on December the 18th. they resolv'd, That Ten Thousand Men are necessary for a Summer and Winter-Guard at Sea, for the Year One Thousand Six Hundred Ninety Eight.

Supply

On December the 20th. the Commons took the Supply into Consideration, and resolv'd, "That in a just Sense and Acknowledgment of what Great Things His Majesty has done for these Kingdoms, a Sum not exceeding Seven Hundred Thousand Pounds be granted to His Majesty during His Life, for the Support of the Civil List. On Friday January the 14th. to encourage the Dispatch of Business, His Majesty came to the House of Peers, and sending for the Commons, gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act to prevent the further Currency of any Hammer'd Silver Coin of this Kingdom; and for ReCoining such as is now in being; and for the making out New Exchequer-Bills, where the former Bills are, or shall be, fill'd up by Indorsements. 2. An Act against Corresponding with the late King James, and His Adherents. 3. An Act for continuing the Imprisonment of

Acts pass'd.

Counter, and others, for the late Horrid Conspiracy to Assassinate the Person of His Sacred Majesty. 4. An Act to give farther Time for the administering of Oaths relating to Tallies and Orders; and for the easier Dispatch of Publick Business, in the Exchequer, and in the Bank of England. 5. An Act for Festing in Sydenham Barker, Gent. an absolute Estate of Inheritance in Fee-Simple, in a certain Rent, Messuages, Lands and Hereditaments in the County of Devon; and securing to John Baker, Gent. and Henry Baker, an Infant, his Son, Moneys in Lieu of their Claims thereunto. The same day, the House of Commons agreed to the Resolutions which had been taken in a Grand Committee about the Supply: First, That a Sum not exceeding Three Hundred Fifty Thousand Pounds, be granted to His Majesty, for Maintaining Guards and Garisons for the Year 1698. Secondly, That a supply be granted to His Majesty, which together with the Funds already settled for that purpose, should be sufficient to Answer and Cancel all Exchequer-Bills, issued, or to be issued, not exceeding Two Millions Seven Hundred Thousand Pounds. Thirdly, That a Supply be granted to His Majesty, for the speedy Paying and Disbanding the Army. And then they Order'd, That a Bill be brought in for reducing the Discount upon Exchequer-Bills, and giving them a better Currency. On January the 18th. they came to other softning Resolutions. First, That upon Disbanding the Army, over and above what is due to them, there be allow'd by way of Bounty, Fourteen Days Subsistence to each Foot-Soldier and Non-Commission Officer; and to each Foot-Soldier Three Shillings more, in Lieu of his Sword, which he is to deliver up. Secondly, That upon Disbanding the Army, over and above what is due to them, there be allow'd by way of Bounty, Six Days full Pay to each private Trooper and Non-Commission Officer of the Horse and Dragoons. Thirdly, That of the Supply to be granted to His Majesty, the Sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Pound be allow'd upon Account, towards defraying the Charge of Disbanding the private Troopers, and Centinels, and Non-Commission Officers, of the Horse, Dragoons, and Foot. Thirdly, That Provision be made for giving Half-Pay to the Commission-Officers, (His Majesty's Natural-born Subjects of England) till the said Officers shall be fully paid off and cleared, and be otherwise provided for.

To proceed in the softer ways, the Commons resolv'd to make good the Deficiencies of former Funds; and therefore on January the 22d. they Voted the Sum of Four Hundred and Seven Thousand Pounds, for making good the Deficiency of the Aid of Three Shillings in the Pound granted to His Majesty the last Session of Parliament: And Nine Hundred and Forty Thousand Pounds, for making good the Deficiency of the Subsidies, and other Duties granted at the same time. And One Hundred Twenty Nine Thousand Pound, for making good the Deficiency of the Aid of One Shilling in the Pound. And they order'd a Committee to consider of Ways and Means for making good the said Deficiencies. On February the 1st. having taken the Arrears of the Army into Consideration, They resolv'd, that the Sum of 1254000 l. was necessary to clear the Arrears of Pay, due to the Land-Forces, according to the Establishment from the 1st. of April 1692, to the last day of September 1697. besides 940815 l. for Subsistence, 28295 l. for Contingencies, 5000 l. for the General Officers, and 75000 l. for the Guards and Garisons; in all 2348102 l. And that there was but 855502 l. remaining in the Hands of the Pay-Matter of the Army, the first Day of January, 1698.

For making good Deficiencies.

To raise the Sums which the Parliament had Voted necessary for Disbanding the Army, paying off of Quarters, and paying of Seamen, and towards making good of Loans, and the Deficiencies of former Funds; they resolv'd on February 9. to lay an Aid of Three Shillings in the Pound upon Land, by way of Assesment upon every County, in Proportion to the Rates of the first Four Shillings Aid granted in 1691. by which means they prevented any future Deficiency of this Fund. The next day they consider'd the Account of what was due to some of His Majesty's Allies, both for Arrears of Subsidies, and for Payment of Auxiliaries; and resolv'd, That 180000 Rix-Dollars were due to the Elector of Brandenburgh;

Uses of Supply.

1697. burgh; 250000 Rix-Dollars to the Landgrave of Hesse Cassel; 121223 Rix-Dollars to the Dukes of Welfenbutel; 149997 Rix-Dollars to the Bishop of Munster; 50000 Rix-Dollars to the Dukes of Hannover and Zell; 25000 Rix-Dollars to the Duke of Holstein, and 200000 Rix-Dollars to the King of Denmark, both upon the foremention'd Account, and in consideration of an entire Prohibition of Commerce between that Crown and France. They also Resolv'd, That there was due the Sum of 170000 Pounds to the Contractors for Bread and Forage. Four Days after, they further examin'd into the Debt of the Nation, and Resolv'd, That the Sum of 1392742 l. was due upon the several Heads of the Estimate of the General Debt of the Navy; 204157 l. to the Office of Ordnance; 340708 l. for Transports for reducing of Ireland; 125785 l. for other Transport-Service; and 49929 l. for Quartering and Cloathing the Army rais'd by Act of Parliament in 1677, and Disbanded by another Act in 1679.

For paying all Arrears of Debt.

It being impossible for the Nation to acquit this vast Debt at once, the Commons resolv'd to do it by Degrees; and therefore Voted, First, That the Debt due for clearing the Army, from the 1st. of April, 1692. to the last Day of September, 1697. amounting to 1254000 l. the Sum of 139066 l. be rais'd in the Year 1698. which would clear the Army to the 1st. Day of April, 1693. Secondly, That the Sum of 203450 l. be rais'd for the clearing the Arrears of Subsistence to the Troops in England, between the 1st. Day of January, 1696. and the 1st. Day of August, 1697. Thirdly, That 450816 l. be rais'd for clearing the Arrears of Subsistence to the Troops in Flanders, to the 4th. Day of October, 1697. Fourthly, That the Sum of 50000 l. be rais'd for the General Officers. Fifthly, That 137990 l. be rais'd for clearing the Arrears of Subsistence due to the Troops in Flanders, from the 4th. of October, 1697. to the last Day of December. Sixthly, That the Sum of 1100117 l. be rais'd for the Navy; to wit, 100000 l. for Wear and Tear; 600000 l. for Seamen's Wages, in part of 1862849 l. due on that Score; 16389 l. due to the Registred Seamen; 24000 l. for the Salaries of the Commissioners of the Admiralty, and other Officers, and for Contingencies; 28663 l. for the Half-pay Sea-Officers; 90073 l. for Pensions to Superannuated Sea Officers and Widows; 15927 l. for the Charge of the Yards; 848 l. for the Muster-Masters of the Out-Ports; 43399 l. for Wages to Ships and Vessels in Ordinary; 19608 l. for Victuals of the Ships in Ordinary; 32558 l. for Harbour-Moorings; 35848 l. for Ordinary Repairs of the Navy; 55520 l. for the Two Marine Regiments; and 37286 l. for the Charge of the Office for Registering Seamen. Seventhly, That the Sum of 60000 l. be allowed for the Ordnance: And Eighthly, That Provision be made towards Payment of the Principal and Interest of the Transport-Debt. All which Sums they resolv'd to raise in the Year 1698.

Exchequer-Bills.

The false Endorsement of Exchequer-Bills was such a scandalous Practice, that it took up much of the Commons time to enquire into it, and reform it. These Exchequer-Bills were of mighty use in the Nation, by supplying the Scarcity of Money during the Re-coining of the Silver Species. Now because there was an Interest of Seven Pounds Twelve Shillings per Annum allowed upon the Second Issuing the said Bills out of the Exchequer, after they had been paid in, on any of the King's Taxes; whereas at their first issuing out of the Exchequer, they bore no Interest; this encourag'd several of the King's Officers, both in the Exchequer, the Customs, and the Excise, to contrive together to get great Sums of Money by false Endorsements on these Exchequer-Bills, before they had circulated about, and been brought into any Branch of His Majesty's Revenue. The most considerable Persons that had carried on this unwarrantable Practice, were Mr. Charles Duncumb, Receiver-General of the Excise; Mr. John Knight, Treasurer of the Customs; Mr. Bartholomew Burton, who had a Place in the Excise-Office; and Mr. Reginald Marryat, one of the Deputy-Tellers of the Exchequer, which last, to get his Pardon, compounded to accuse the rest. Upon a full Proof of the Matter, Duncumb and Knight, who were Members of the House of Commons, were first Expell'd the House, and Committed Prisoners to the Tower; Burton sent to Newgate, and Bills order'd to be brought in to punish them. The Bill against Mr. Duncumb, whereby a Fine of near half his Estate, (which at that time was judg'd to be worth 400000 l.) was set upon him, did quickly pass the House of Commons, notwithstanding the Opposition that was made to it, particularly by the Attorney-General: But being sent up to the House of Lords, and their Lordships being equally divided, the Duke of Leeds gave his Casting Vote for the Rejecting of the Bill. It was then the Common Report, That Mr. Duncumb dispell'd the impending Storm by a Golden Sacrifice; which however History cannot relate as a Truth, because it never came to publick Notice: But we must not pass over in Silence, that Mr. Duncumb being set at Liberty by the Order of the House of Lords, without the Consent of the Commons, the latter resent'd it to that degree, that they caus'd him to be remanded to the Tower of London, where he continu'd to the end of the Session. The Bills against Knight and Burton had the same Fate; and so all those threatening Clouds that seem'd ready to crush the false Indorsers, spent themselves in Vapour and Noise.

The Commons did this Year design to apply part of all the Forfeited Estates to the Use of the Publick; in order to which, they enquir'd into the Grants made by King Charles II. and King James II. and order'd a Bill to be brought in to make them Void. Afterwards they examin'd the Grants made by His present Majesty in Ireland; and because a Grant was found made to Mr. Roylton, which Mr. Mountague, Chancellor of the Exchequer, own'd to be for his Benefit, a warm Debate arose thereupon; and the Enemies of the latter, who were not few, (for the Reasons I hinted before) mov'd, That he should withdraw; which passing in the Negative, it was Resolv'd by a great Majority, That it was the Opinion of this House, That the Honourable Charles Mountague, Esq; Chancellor of the Exchequer, for his good Services to this Government, did deserve His Majesty's Favour. A Vote that will render his Name famous to all succeeding Ages.

The Earl of Maclefeld, to Vindicate the Honour of his Family, was forc'd to publish the Shame of his Marriage-Bed, and to prefer a Bill in the House of Lords to be Divorc'd from his Wife. It seems his Lady, about Ten Years before, being weary of living with the Earl's Father, under whose Care her Husband left her, during his Absence beyond Sea, did retire to her Mother the Lady Mason's House: The Earl being return'd Home, and resenting this Step of his Lady, which she had made without his Privy, instead of recalling her, suffer'd her to live in a State of Separation; during which it is no Wonder she was tempted to break her Matrimonial Vows, since her Husband did not perform his; and since we daily see both Sexes prove unfaithful to one another, without any Just Provocation. However, we ought to account the La-1697.

Earl of Maclefeld's Bill of Divorcement

1697. dy Maclesfield Virtuous, till the Fruits of her Amours prov'd her otherwise; which was towards the latter end of the Year 1696, when she was deliver'd of a Daughter. The Death of this Child, before the Earl had heard any thing of the Matter, with the Belief that this might be a sufficient Warning against Liberties that carried such Visible Effects with them, with-held him from attempting publick Satisfaction; and moreover, at the Solicitation of his Wife's Relations, who undertook for her Conduct, for the future, his Lordship consented to allow her 500 l. yearly, for a Separate Maintenance. This Treaty was hardly concluded, when the Earl being inform'd of his Lady's being deliver'd of another Child, he commenced his Suit in the Spiritual-Court, for such a Divorce as might be given by that Law: But being disappointed in his Prosecution through the Dilatoriness of Ecclesiastical Proceedings, his Lordship apply'd himself to his Peers for a Remedy, which nothing but a Parliament could give: All the Relief which he could expect from a Sentence in Doctors-Commons being no more than that State of Separation, in which he and his Lady had long liv'd. He alledg'd, That it is evident, that the Divine Law admits of Second Marriages in such Cases, and there had been Acts of Parliament for them, as well as for Bastardizing Spurious Issue: That those Canons which have prohibited Second Marriages in like Cases, were so manifestly an Effect of the Papish Doctrine of Marriage being a Sacrament, and of the Avarice of the Court of Rome to get Money for dispensing with them, that in the Reformation of Ecclesiastical Laws, prepar'd and intended in the Time of Edward VI. in pursuance of an Act of Parliament of Hen. VIII. there was express Liberty given by those Canons, to marry again; which by virtue of that Act of Parliament, would have become a General Law, or at least, have occasion'd one: That whatever Objection might be against a General Law, from the Temptation it might give Ill People to seek groundless Dissolutions of Marriages, yet upon Extraordinary Cases such as this was, such Relief had been granted; and where it had been denied, either the Fault was not fully prov'd, or the Parties had cohabited; or, after the Grounds of Dissatisfaction, had been reconciled: That if in such a Concurrence of Circumstances as were in his Case, he must still be thought to have a Wife, and the Children she had had, must be look'd upon as his, from the Common Presumption, till Contrary Proof, in that they were born within the Four Seas; besides, that it could not but be too great an Encouragement to Women, to make an ill Use of a Separate Maintenance, which is provided for in most Marriage-Settlements, it would be a most unreasonable Hardship upon him, that the Standing Law, which is design'd to do every Man Right, should by the Rigor of the Letter, be to him the cause of the greatest Wrong; and that for his Wife's Fault, he should be deprived of the Common Privileges of every Freeman in the World, to have an Heir of his own Body, to inherit what he possess'd either of Honour or Estate: Or that his own Brother should lose his Claim to both, and have his Birth-right sacrific'd to the Lady Maclesfield's Irregular Life.

While this Affair was depending in the Spiritual-Court, the Lady Maclesfield insisted upon her Innocence, and her Agents industriously spread a Report, That the Earl her Husband had been surprized into a Private Meeting with her, (by a Woman of Intrigue) at which time he got her with Child: But this Story being confuted by the Earl's Positive Evidence to the contrary, her Ladyship gave up that Point now, and only endeavoured to make her Husband the Author of her Miscarriages. She alledg'd, That the late Earl of Maclesfield had turn'd her out of Doors: That the present Earl, notwithstanding the Obligation she had laid upon him, by petitioning King James for his Life, had maliciously secluded her from Bed and Board: And therefore if the Lords thought fit to pass this Bill of Divorce, she demanded her Fortune to be refund'd; both because a Divorce dissolves the whole Frame of the Marriage Contract; and because it were the highest pitch of Injustice, that a Man who was guilty of making his Wife commit Adultery, should be rewarded out of the same Wife's Fortune. This Affair occasion'd great Debates in the Upper House; some Peers representing the Danger of granting Divorces; and others, amongst whom Dr. Burnet, Bishop of Salisbury, spoke the longest, shewing the Necessity and Lawfulness of such Extraordinary Proceedings in some particular Cases. Upon the whole Matter, the Lords pass'd a Bill for Dissolving the Marriage between Charles Earl of Maclesfield, and Anne his Wife, and to illegitimate her Children; but with a Proviso, that the Earl should refund her Fortune. This Bill being sent down to the Commons, the Parties concern'd were both heard by their Council, but notwithstanding the Lady Maclesfield's Opposition, the Bill was read the Third Time, and pass'd without any Amendment.

On Monday, March 7. the King came to the House of Peers, and pass'd these Publick and Private Bills:

1. An Act for Explaining an Act made the last Session of Parliament, for granting to His Majesty certain Duties upon Malt, Mum, Sweets, Cyder, and Perry.
2. An Act for Satisfying and Discharging the Arrears of several Annuities which incurred between the Seventeenth Day of May, One Thousand Six Hundred and Ninety Six, and the Seventeenth Day of May, One Thousand Six Hundred and Ninety Seven.
3. An Act, That all Retailers of Salt shall sell by Weight.
4. An Act for rendering the Laws more effectual, for preventing the Importation of Foreign Bone-Lace, Loom-Lace, Needle-Work, Point and Cut-Work.
5. An Act to prevent the Throwing and Firing of Squibs, Serpents and other Fire-Works.
6. An Act for Enabling Simon Lord Bishop of Ely, and his Successors, to Lease the Mannor-House, and Demesne-Lands of Downham in the Isle of Ely, and for confirming a Lease lately thereof made by the said Bishop, and for clearing the said Bishop and others from Dilapidations there.
7. An Act to enable Sir Francis Guybon, and Dame Isabella his Wife, and their Trustees, to sell the Mannor of Avenals, and other Lands in, or near Gunthorp, in the County of Norfolk, and for settling other Lands in lieu thereof.
8. An Act for the Naturalization of Gerrard Maefacker, and others.
9. An Act to enable Rebecca Laffels, Widow, to sell Copyhold-Lands and Houses in Ealing, in the County of Middlesex.
10. An Act for Vesting in Trustees certain Lands of George Farrington, Esq; lying in the Counties of Middlesex and Surrey, (settled upon the Marriage of William Farrington his Nephew) and with the Money arising thereby, for Purchasing of other Lands in Lancashire, where the Ancient Estate of the Family lies, to be settled to the same Uses.
11. An Act to enable the Trustees of William Knott, Gent. and his Wife, to sell a Lease of Houses in Breadstreet, London, for Payment of Debts, and to settle another Estate of better Value in lieu thereof.
12. An Act to enable Thomas Kynnetley, Esq; an Infant, to make a Jointure and Settlement of his Estate.
13. An Act for Naturalizing Dudley Vesey, an Infant.
14. An Act to enable John Lewin to sell certain Messuages in Southwark, for Payment of Debts.

1697.
Honours
and Pre-
ferments.

Since the beginning of this Session, these Places and Honours were well bestowed by the Favour of His Majesty. On Dec. 5. upon the resignation of Mr. Secretary Trumbull, the King made choice of James Vernon, Esq; to succeed him in the Office of Principal Secretary of State, and that Evening he took the usual Oaths of Secretary and Privy Counsellor. On Dec. 12. His Majesty was pleas'd to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon John Blencow, one of the Justices of the Common-Pleas; Henry Hatsel, Esq; one of the Barons of the Exchequer; Joseph Jekel, Esq; Chief-Justice of Chester; and William Sympson, Esq; Curfitor Baron of the Court of Exchequer. In the Christmas Holydays, the Earl of Sunderland resigned his Office of Lord Chamberlain, in a Prudent Fear that the Commons would address the King for the removal of him. About the end of December, the Duke of St. Albans was sent into France, to compliment the King and the Dauphine, upon the Marriage of the Duke of Burgundy: And soon after the Earl of Portland went over Ambassador Extraordinary to that Court; And Mr. Prior was Secretary of that Embassy. On Feb. 16. His Majesty conferr'd the Dignity of a Baronet upon Thomas Tipping of Wheatfield, in the County of Oxon, Esq; in consideration of his constant Loyalty and good Services. The Count de Tallard came Ambassador from His Most Christian Majesty, landing at Greenwich on March 18.

State of Religion.

It was a great Honour to the House of Commons, that on Feb. 9. a Committee was appointed to draw up an Humble Address to His Majesty, upon the Debate of the House, to suppress Prophaneness and Immorality, and all Books which endeavour to undermine the Fundamentals of the Christian Religion, and to punish the Authors. So that on Feb. 17. this Address was presented to the King by the whole House.

Address
of the Commons
against Prophan-
eness and Immorality.

My it please Your Majesty,

" We Your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons in Parliament assembled, do with great Joy and Comfort remember the many Testimonies which Your Majesty has given us of Your Sincerity and Zeal for the True Reformed Religion, as establish'd in this Kingdom: And in particular, we beg Leave to present to Your Majesty our most Humble and Thankful Acknowledgments for the late Gracious Declaration Your Majesty has made to us from the Throne, That You would effectually discourage Prophaneness and Immorality, which chiefly by the Neglect and Example of too many Magistrates, are, like a General Contagion, diffused and spread throughout the Kingdom, to the great Scandal and Reproach of our Religion, and to the Dishonour and Prejudice of your Majesty's Government.

" Therefore in concurrence with Your Majesty's Pious Intentions, we do most humbly desire, That your Majesty would issue out Your Royal Proclamation, commanding all Your Majesty's Judges, Justices of the Peace, and other Magistrates, to put in speedy Execution those good Laws that are now in force against Prophaneness and Immorality, giving due Encouragement to all such as do their Duty therein: And that Your Majesty would be pleas'd to require from Your Judges and Justices of Assize, from time to time, an Account of such their Proceedings.

" And since the Examples of Men in High and Publick Stations have a Powerful Influence upon the Lives of others, we do most humbly beseech Your Majesty, that all Vice, Prophan-ness and Irreligion may in a particular manner be discouraged in all those who have the Honour to be employ'd near Your Royal Person; and in all others who are in Your Majesty's Service, by Sea and Land; appointing Strict Orders to be given to all Your Commanders, that they not only shew a good Example themselves, but also inspect the Manners of those under them; and that Your Majesty would upon all Occasions distinguish Men of Piety and Virtue, by Marks of Your Royal Favour.

" We do further, in all Humility beseech Your Majesty, that Your Majesty would give such effectual Orders, as to Your Royal Wisdom shall seem fit for the suppressing all Pernicious Books and Pamphlets, which contain in them Impious Doctrines against the Holy Trinity, and other Fundamental Articles of our Faith, tending to the Subversion of the Christian Religion, and that the Authors and Publishers thereof may be discountenanc'd and punish'd.

" And we do also most humbly beseech Your Majesty, that Your said Proclamation may be Ordered to be Read at least Four Times in the Year, in all Churches and Chappels, immediately after Divine Service; and at the Assizes and Quarter-Sessions of the Peace, just before the Charge is given.

" We present to Your Majesty this our most Humble Address, proceeding from our Duty and Zeal for the Glory of God, and to the end that all our Counsels may be blessed by his Divine Assistance, and may produce Honour, Safety and Happiness, with all the Blessings of a Lasting Peace to Your Majesty and Your People.

His Majesty receiv'd this Address with a Singular Satisfaction, and gave this Agreeable Answer.

Gentlemen,

I cannot but be very well pleas'd with an Address of this Nature; and I will give immediate Directions in the several Particulars you desire: But I could wish some more Effectual Provision were made for the Suppressing those Pernicious Books and Pamphlets which your Address takes notice of.

Upon this Seasonable Intimation of His Majesty, Leave was given Feb. 26. to bring in a Bill or Bills for the more Effectual suppressing Prophaneness, Immorality and Debauchery; and Sir John Philips, and Mr. Edward Harley were order'd to prepare and bring in the said Bill or Bills. In the mean time an Ingross'd Bill from the Lords came down to the Commons, Entituled, An Act for the more Effectual Suppressing of Atheism, Blasphemy and Prophaneness: which being committed at second Reading to a Committee of the whole House, was, after some Amendments and Conferences, happily agreed to. And in the mean time His Majesty with immediate Compliance to the Request of the Commons, publish'd this Proclamation for Preventing and Punishing Immorality and Prophaneness.

Act for suppressing Atheism, &c.

William R.

" Whereas we cannot but be deeply sensible of the great Goodness and Mercy of Almighty God, in putting an end to a Long, Bloody and Expensive War, by the Conclusion of an Honourable Peace, so we are not less touch'd with a Resentment, that notwithstanding this and many other great Blessings and Deliverances, Impiety, Prophaneness and Immorality do still

Proclamation against Immorality and Prophan-
eness.

1697. "abound in this our Kingdom: And whereas "nothing can prove a greater Dishonour to a
 "well-ordered Government, where the Christi"an Faith is professed, nor is likelier to provoke
 "God to withdraw his Mercy and Blessings from "us, and instead thereof to inflict heavy and se"vere Judgments upon this Kingdom, than the "Open and Avowed Practice of Vice, Immora-
 "lity and Prophaneness, which amongst many "Men has too much prevail'd in this Our King"dom of late Years, to the high Displeasure of "Almighty God, the great Scandal of Christiani"ty, and the Ill and Fatal Example of the rest
 "of our Loving Subjects, who have been soberly
 "educated, and whose Inclinations would lead
 "them to the Exercise of Piety and Virtue, did
 "they not daily find such frequent and repeated
 "Instances of Dissolute Living, Prophaneness and "Impiety; which has in a great measure been
 "occasion'd by the Neglect of the Magistrates
 "not putting in execution those good Laws
 "which have been made for suppressing and pun"ishing thereof, and by the Ill Example of ma"ny in Authority, to the great Dishonour of "God, and Reproach of Our Religion: Where-
 "fore, and for that we cannot expect Increase "or Continuance of the Blessings We and Our "Subjects enjoy, without providing Remedies to "prevent the like Evils for the future, We think
 "our selves bound by the Duty We owe to God,
 "and the Care We have of the People commit"ted to our Charge, to proceed in taking effectual "Course, that Religion, Piety and Good Man-
 "ners may, according to Our hearty Desire, flour-
 "ish and increase under Our Administration
 "and Government. And being thereunto moved
 "by the Pious Address of the Commons in Parli"ament assembled, We have thought fit, by the "Advice of Our Privy-Council, to issue this Our "Royal Proclamation, and do declare our Roy"al Purpose and Resolution to discountenance
 "and punish all manner of Vice, Immorality and "Prophaneness in all Persons from the highest to
 "the lowest Degree, within this Our Realm; and "particularly in such who are employ'd near Our
 "Royal Person; and that for the greater Encou"ragement of Religion and Morality, We will,
 "upon all Occasions, distinguish Men of Piety
 "and Virtue by Marks of Our Royal Favour.
 "And We do expect that all Persons of Honour,
 "or in Place of Authority, will to their utmost
 "contribute to the discountenancing Men of "Dissolute and Debauched Lives, that they being
 "reduced to Shame and Contempt, may be en"forced the sooner to reform their Ill Habits and "Practices, that the Displeasure of Good Men to"wards them, may supply what the Laws (it may "be) cannot wholly prevent. And for the more
 "effectual reforming these Men, who are a Dis-
 "credit to Our Kingdom, Our further Pleasure
 "is, and We do hereby strictly charge and com"mand all Our Judges, Mayors, Sheriffs, Justi-
 "ces of the Peace, and all other Our Officers
 "and Ministers, both Ecclesiastical and Civil,
 "and other Our Subjects whom it may concern,
 "to be very vigilant and strict in the Discovery,
 "and the effectual prosecution and punishment
 "of all Persons who shall be guilty of Excessive
 "Drinking, Blasphemy, Profane Swearing
 "and Cursing, Lewdness, Prophanation of the "Lord's Day, or other Dissolute, Immoral or "Disorderly Practices; as they will answer it to "Almighty God, and upon pain of Our highest "Displeasure. And for the more effectual Pro"ceeding herein, We do hereby direct and com"mand Our Judges of Assizes, and Justices of "Peace, to give strict Charges at the respective "Assizes and Sessions, for the due prosecution and 1697. "punishment of all Persons that shall presume to "offend in any kinds aforesaid; and also of all "Persons, that contrary to their Duty, shall be-

 "remis or negligent in putting the said Laws in "execution; and that they do at their respective
 "Assizes and Quarter-Sessions of the Peace, cause
 "this Our Proclamation to be publicly read in
 "Open Court, immediately before the Charge
 "is given. And We do hereby further charge
 "and command every Minister in his respective
 "Parish or Chappel, to read or cause to be read
 "this Our Proclamation at least four times in e"very Year, immediately after Divine Service,
 "and to incite and stir up their respective Audi-
 "tories to the practice of Piety and Virtue, and
 "the avoiding of all Immorality and Prophan-
 "ness. And to the end that all Vice and De"bauchery may be prevented, and Religion and
 "Virtue practis'd by all Officers, private Soldiers,
 "Mariners or others, who are employed in Our "Service, either by Sea or Land, We do hereby
 "strictly charge and command all Our Com"manders and Officers whatsoever, That they do
 "take care to avoid all Prophaneness, Debauche-
 "ry and other Immoralities, and that by the Pi-
 "ety and Virtue of their own Lives and Conver"sations, they do set good Examples to all such "as are under their Authority; and likewise to "take care and inspect the Behaviour and Manners
 "of all such as are under them, and to punish all "those who shall be guilty of any the Offences
 "aforesaid. And whereas several Wicked and "Profane Persons have presumed to print and
 "publish several pernicious Books and Pamphlets,
 "which contain in them Impious Doctrines against
 "the Holy Trinity, and other Fundamental Arti"cles of Our Faith, tending to the Subversion of "the Christian Religion; therefore for the pun"ishing the Authors and Publishers thereof, and
 "for the preventing such Impious Books and "Pamphlets being publish'd or printed for the "future, We do hereby strictly charge and pro"hibit all Persons, that they do not presume to
 "write, print or publish any such Pernicious
 "Books or Pamphlets, under the Pain of incur-
 "ring Our High Displeasure, and of being pun"ish'd according to the utmost Severity of the "Law. And we do hereby strictly charge and "require all Our Loving Subjects to discover and "apprehend such Person and Persons whom they "shall know to be the Authors or Publishers of "any such Books and Pamphlets, and to bring "them before some Justice of the Peace, or Chief "Magistrate, in order that they may be proceed-
 "ed against according to Law.

Given at our Court at Kensington the Four and Twentieth Day of February, 1697, in the Tenth
 Year of Our Reign.

This Good Example of the King and Parliament gave a new Zeal to the Worthy Persons who had engag'd themselves in Voluntary Societies for the Reformation of Manners; who had soon after their Publick Sermons and Assemblies at Bow-Church, to animate the good Work: And to make the World the more sensible of their Intentions,
 Methods and Progress, they publish'd a Discourse
 Entituled, An Account of the Societies for Reformation of Manners, in London and Westminster, and other Parts of the Kingdom; with a Persuasive to Persons of all Ranks to be zealous and diligent in promoting the Execution of the Laws against Prophaneness and Debauchery, for the effecting a National Reformation.
 To which Book was prefix'd this Laudable Testimony of many of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal.

Societies for Reformation of Manners.

1697.

To the Author.

“ SIR, We have perused the Book you sent us, Entituled, An Account of the Societies for Reformation of Manners; the design of which is so truly Great and Noble, so much for the Honour of God, the Advancement of Piety and Virtue, and the publick Good both of Church and State, that it cannot fail of being approved by all good Men. The Method likewise propos'd, in order to the promoting and accomplishing the said Design, is, We conceive most proper, and (by the Blessing of God attending it) most likely to prove effectual. And that pious Men of all Ranks and Qualities may be excited by this good Book, to contribute in their respective Places and Stations, their best Endeavours towards a National Reformation of Manners, is the most humble and hearty Prayer of, Sir, your very Loving Friends,

- Pembroke. P.
- Lansdale.
- Leeds.
- Bedford.
- Lindsey.
- Kent.
- Bridgewater.
- Thames.
- Radnor.
- Abingdon.
- Portland.
- Falconberg.
- Warrington.
- Rochford.
- Say and Seal.
- Longvile.
- Bergavenny.
- Eures.
- Willoughby of Parham.
- Brook.
- Maynard.
- Berkley of Stratton.
- Dartmouth.
- Guilford.
- Haverham.
- Barnard.
- Digby.
- Allington.
- Cutts.

- T. Carliol.
- H. Bangor.
- N. Cestriens.
- E. Gloucestr.
- S. Eliens.
- J. Brisfol.
- P. Bath & Wells.
- J. Cestriens.
- J. Oxon.

Judges.

- Ed. Ward.
- Ed. Nevill.
- Ri. Lechmore.
- Tho. Rokby.
- John Turton.
- John Blencove.
- Hen. Hatfell.

Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts.

There was about the same time another excellent Design laid, and chiefly manag'd by one active Divine, Dr. Thomas Bray, for propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts, by sending over Missionaries, Catechisms, Liturgies, and other useful Books for the Instruction of the People, too Ignorant and Prophane in our West-India Colonies and Plantations. The worthy Doctor had taken incredible Pains to promote this Evangelical Undertaking, and had procured the Contributions of many excellent Persons to enable him to proceed in the Burden and growing Expences of it. And to take all Opportunities of establishing a Fund for so glorious a Project, on March 3. upon the Second reading of a Bill in the House of Commons, For the better Discovery of Estates given to Superstitious Uses, the said Doctor presented a Petition to the House, Praying that some part of the said Estates may be set apart for those Pious Uses, in order to the Propagation of the Reformed Religion in Maryland, Virginia, and the Leeward Islands; or else that some other Provision may be made for that purpose.

The Parliament continued sitting; and the Commons having address'd to His Majesty, that

He would please to cause to be Printed a List of the Persons Names to whom License have been granted, pursuant to the Act lately pulled; Entituled, An Act against Corresponding with the late King James and His Adherents: His Majesty was pleas'd to say, That He would cause a List to be made, and to be sent to the House.

On Saturday, April 2. the King coming to the House of Peers, and commanding the Commons to Attend Him, gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for granting to His Majesty the Sum of One million four hundred eighty four thousand and fifteen Pounds one Shilling and Eleven-pence three farthings, for disbanding Forces, paying Seamen, and other the Uses therein mentioned. 2. An Act for explaining an Act made the last Sessions of Parliament; Entituled, An Act for supplying some defects in the Laws, for the Relief of the Poor of this Kingdom. 3. An Act for the Enlarging, Repairing, and Preserving the Bridge and Key of the Borough of Bridgewater in the County of Somerset. 4. An Act for dissolving the Marriage between Charles Earl of Macclesfield, and Anne his Wife; and to legitimate the Children of the said Anne. 5. An Act to enable John Lord Bishop of Chichester to make Leases of certain Houses and Grounds belonging to the Bishoprick of Chichester, in like Manner as he is competent in other Years. 6. An Act for Confirming and Establishing the Administration of the Goods and Chattels of Sir William Godolphin, Knight, deceased. 7. An Act to Naturalize Charles May, Esq;. 8. An Act to rectify a mistake in the Marriage Settlement of William Gardiner, Esq;. 9. An Act to enable certain Trustees therein named to make renew and fill up Leases of the Estate of Sir Coppleston Warwick Bamfield, during the Minority of him and his Brother. 10. An Act for settling the Estate of John Hall, a Lunatick, subject to a Debt charged thereon. 11. An Act for erecting Hospitals and Workhouses in the Town and Parish of Tiverton, in the County of Devon, for the better Employing and Maintaining the Poor there. 12. An Act for the Naturalization of John Fauquier, Joseph Ducasse, and others. 13. An Act for the better enabling Sir Ralph Hare to make a Partition, and settle his Estate, and raise Portions and Maintenance for his younger Children. 14. An Act for vesting in Trustees to be sold certain Lands of George Hewett, Esq; lying in the County of Middlesex, settled upon his Marriage; and with the Money arising thereby, for purchasing other Lands in Leicestershire, where his Estate and Seat lies, to be settled to the same uses.

The Commons proceeded to other Ways and Means of raising the Supply. On April 7. they resolv'd that over and above the Duties already payable, a further Duty be laid upon all Coal and Cullm. On April 9. they had an Imposition upon all Forfeited Estates, which have been restored by the Crown, in England or in Ireland, by reverful of Outlawry, or otherwise; and upon all Beneficial Grants from the Crown since May 29. 1660. that the Fourth part of them be applied to the use of the Publick. On April 14. They continued the Poll or Capitation Tax for one year longer. On April 16. they had a Duty upon all Coals imported from Saxony, or other parts beyond Sea. On April 28. they doubled the Duties upon Stamp Vellum, Parchment and Paper, until the 1st. day of August, 1706. They continued the Duties upon Coffee, Tea, and Chocolate and Spices: As also the Duty payable by Hawkers and Pedlars, for the term of Three Years, to commence from the expiration of the present Duties upon them. On May 7. they laid a further Duty upon Salt, one shilling and eight Pence per Bushel. On May 14. they doubled the Duties upon all Furrings and Alamodes imported; And enlarged the Time for 1698.

1698. purchasing Annuities upon the several Acts of Parliament for Granting the same. On May 20. they laid a further Duty upon Sugar. And on May 21. towards raising a Fund for Two Millions, they made the Duties upon Salt and Stamp Paper to continue to His Majesty, His Heirs and Successors, redeemable by Parliament.

East-India
Companies.

By this time the Commons were entred on the Business of the East-India Trade, which had been depending many Years, and was look'd on as so nice and difficult, that it had been refer'd to the King and His Council, and back again by Them to the Parliament. The Old Company having offer'd to advance 700000 l. at Four per Cent. for the Service of the Government, in case the Trade to India might be settled on them, exclusive of all others, the House seem'd inclin'd to embrace their Proposal; when another Number of Merchants, of whom one Shepherd was the Chief, and who were protect'd by Mr. Mountague, Chancellor of the Exchequer, propos'd to the House to raise Two Millions at 8 per Cent. on condition the Trade to India might be settled on the Subscribers, exclusive of all others: They also propos'd that these Subscribers should not be oblig'd to Trade in a Joint-stock; but if any Members of them should afterwards desire to be Incorporated, a Charter should be Granted to them for that Purpose. The House judg'd this new Overture not only to be more Advantagious to the Government, but likewise very likely to settle this controverted Trade on a better Foundation than it was on before. A Bill was therefore, on May 26. order'd to be brought into the House for settling the Trade to the East-Indies on those who should subscribe the Two Millions, according to the Limitations before-mentioned, and the following Resolutions: First, "That every Subscriber might have the Liberty of Trading Yearly, to the Account of his respective Subscription; or might assign over such his Liberty of Trading to any other Person. Secondly, "That His Majesty be empower'd to Incorporate such of the said Subscribers, as should desire the same. Thirdly, That the Powers and Privileges for carrying on the East-India Trade, should be settled by Parliament. Fourthly, That the said Subscribers should enjoy the said Eight Pounds per Cent. and Liberty of Trading to the East-Indies, exclusive of all others, for the Terms of Ten Years, and until the same should be redeem'd by Parliament. Fifthly, "That every Person subscribing Five Hundred Pounds, have a Vote; and no Person to have more Votes than one. Sixthly, That all Ships laden in the East-Indies, should be oblig'd to deliver in England. Seventhly, That no Person that should be a Member of any Corporation Trading to the East-Indies, should Trade otherwise than in the Joint-Stock of such Corporation of which he was a Member. Eighthly, "That Five Pounds per Cent. ad Valorem, upon all Returns from the East-Indies, be paid by the Importer; to be placed to the Account of the Subscribers, towards the Charge of sending Ambassadors, and other extraordinary Expences. And Ninthly, That over and above the Duties now payable, a farther Duty of One Shilling and Ten Pence per Pound-weight, be laid upon all Wrought Silks imported from India and Persia; to be paid by the Importer." This Bill being accordingly brought into the House, the Old East-India Company presented a Petition against it: To which the Commons had so much regard, as to offer them to settle this Trade upon them, if they would accept it on the same Terms and Limitations, on which the others were contented to take it; and which the Parliament judg'd most Advantagious for the Kingdom. But the Members of the Old Company having reject'd this Proposal, the Commons, on June the 25th. pass'd the Bill in favour of the New Adventurers.

The Old East-India Company follow'd the Bill to the Upper House; where they were heard by their Council, Sir Thomas Powis, and Sir Bartholomew Shower; who represented, "That this Bill invaded their Property, and ruin'd many Families. That in the Charters granted them by Queen Elizabeth, King James I. Charles II. and King James II. it was suggest'd, That their Corporation was for the Honour of England, for the Increase of Navigation, and the Advance of Trade. That the said Charters contain'd a Grant of the Trade to the East-Indies, to the Company, exclusive of all others. That by some of them they were constituted the Lords Proprietors of Bombay, and of the Island of St. Helena. That by these Grants, they were induc'd to think they had a Right in Law to the Trade; at least, that they should have an uncontroverted Title to the Lands: And that on this Presumption, and relying on the Publick Faith and Credit of the Great Seal of England, they had expended above a Million in Fortifications, and acquir'd Revenues of 44000 l. per Annum, and many Settlements and Privileges. That in the Year 1691. the House of Commons had made a Resolution, That the East India Trade should be carried on in a Joint-Stock, exclusive to all others. That their Company was confirm'd and settled by Three Charters, granted by His present Majesty, on the 7th. of October, and 17th. of November, 1693. and 28th. of September, 1694. That upon the Security of these Charters, the Company consented to a New Subscription: That there was a new subscrib'd 744000 l. and the Money brought in during the Sitting of the Parliament; and that nothing was done, said, or offer'd against His Majesty's Charter of Regulations: So that upon the Publick Faith, (at least tacitly given) 781 New Adventurers, of which many were Widows and Orphans, did subscribe a large Part of their Substance to support this Trade, during a hazardous War, for the Profit and Honour of England: And that the New Adventurers thought they might, without any hazard, subscribe on the Security of a Charter, which was so plainly design'd by His Majesty to preserve the East-India Traffick, then in danger of being lost. That on the 10th. of June, after the Bill now depending before their Lordships was brought in, the Company did agree to submit their present Stock to a Valuation of 50 l. per Cent. viz. 20 l. per Cent. for their Dead Stock, and 30 l. per Cent. for their Quick Stock, which they were contented to warrant at the said Sums: And upon these Terms they offer'd to open their Books for New Subscriptions, in order to raise the Two Millions. That afterwards, to ascertain the Payments of the said Two Millions, they had a General Court on the 20th. of June; in which they agreed to an immediate Subscription by private Adventurers of 200000 l. to be paid at the first Payment, subject to make good the subsequent Payments: Which Subscription was accordingly made. That it has been the constant Practice, in Farms, Bargains, and Offers of the like nature, not to close with a new Proposal, till the first Bidder be ask'd, Whether he is able to Advance further? And that notwithstanding their Charters, and the Right they had to the Trade, they were early told, "Their 1698. " Their Propofal ſhould be oppoſed, tho' they offer'd the Two Millions in Queſtion. And laſtly, That the Bill allow'd Foreigners as well as the King's Subjects to ſubſcribe to the Two Millions; whereby they would be let into the Secrets and Myſteries of this Trade, which might produce Effects very pernicious to the General Intereſt of the Nation.

To this the Council for the New Subſcribers replied, " That in the Recital of their Charters, the Old Company had omitted to give an Account of the Proviſo's inſerted therein; viz. That the reſpective Kings that granted them, reſerved a Power to make them void upon Three Years Warning. That the King by His Charter could not grant the Trade to the East-Indies, excluſive of all others; and that ſeveral Recoveries had been made againſt them at Law, for profe- curing ſuch pretended Right. That as the Crown has not a Power to grant ſuch a Right, ſo His preſent Maſteſty had not in fact granted any ſuch Right excluſive. That when they mention'd the Reſolution of the Commons in 1691. they omitted their other Reſolution, That it was lawful for all Perſons to Trade to the East-Indies, unleſs reſtrained by Act of Parliament. Neither did they take notice of the Two Addreſſes made by the Houſe of Commons to the King in 1691, and 1692. to diſſolve the Company. That on the 14th. of November, 1692. Sir Edward Seymour declar'd to the Commons a Meſſage from His Maſteſty, importing, That His Maſteſty had requir'd the East-India Company to answer di- rectly, Whether they would ſubmit to ſuch Re- gulations as His Maſteſty ſhould judge proper and moſt likely to advance the Trade? And the Company having fully agreed to it, and declar'd their Reſolution in writing, His Ma- jeſty had commanded a Committee of His Privy Council to prepare Regulations; which they did, and offer'd them to the Company; but that notwithſtanding their Declaration of Submiſſion, they rejected almoſt all the material Particulars. So that His Maſteſty finding that what poſſibly the Houſe of Commons might have expected, and indeed was neceſſary to preſerve this Trade, could not be perfected by His own Authority alone; and that the Company could not be in- duced to conſent to any ſuch Regulations as might have answer'd the Intentions of the Houſe of Commons. and that the Concur- rence of the Parliament was requiſite to make a compleat and uſeful Settlement of this Trade, He had directed all the Proceedings in this Matter to be laid before them; and recom- mended to them the preparing ſuch a Bill, in order to paſs into an Act of Parliament, as might eſtabliſh this Trade on ſuch Foundations as were moſt likely to Preſerve and Advance it." 'Twas alſo urg'd againſt the Old Company, that their Charter being become void by their Non- payment of the Tax impoſ'd upon them by Par- liament, they obtain'd a New Charter the 7th of October, 1693. by indirect Means, having that Year paid Eighty odd Thouſand Pounds out of the Company's Stock, for ſpecial Service. That this Charter was conteſted before the Queen and Council, by thoſe they call'd Interlopers; upon the hearing whereof it was unanswerably proved, That the King had not by Law a Power to grant the Trade to ſome Perſons, excluſive of others; and that the Company's Affairs were then in ſuch a Condition, that it would be a plain Cheat to others, that ſhould come in upon their Stock. They however, Law and Reaſon failing, had recourſe to other Methods, and great Sums of Money were diſtributed, (as it was acknow- ledg'd before a Committee of Both Houſes of 1698. Parliament) to get another Charter; but that thoſe who were concern'd to Advise His Maſteſty in Point of Law, were ſo juſt to their Truſt, as to take care that no Right of Trade, excluſive of others, was granted: And alſo that the Com- pany ſhould ſubmit to ſuch Alterations, Reſtricti- ons, and Qualifications, as the King ſhould make on the 29th of September, 1693. following. And ſo on the 17th of Nov. 1693. a new Charter of Regulations was made, and another the 28th of September, 1694. wherein amongſt other things was this Proviſo; That if it ſhould appear to the King, His Heirs, and Succeſſors, that the ſaid Two Charters, or any other Charters heretofore granted, ſhould not be profitable to the King, His Heirs, and Succeſſors, or to this Realm; that then and from thence- forth, upon and after Three Years warning to be given to the ſaid Company by the King, &c. the ſame ſhould ceaſe, be void, and determin'd. That it appear'd by the Proceedings of the Houſe of Commons in 1694. how this Charter was obtain'd, which had more in it of private Promiſes than publick Faith: That it was not to be wonder'd, that the Parliament took no notice of the matter, whiſt the new Subſcribers paid in their Money, when it was conſidered, that, according to Sir Baſil Firebraſs's Depoſitions, there were ſeveral Contracts, ſome to the value of 60000 l. on Account of procur- ing a new Charter; and others to the value of 40000 l. on Account of procuring an Act of Parliament. That by ſuch Means the Matter might be overlook'd for a while, but it was not long before the Par- liament took publick Notice of it; and if the greater Affairs of the Nation had not been ſo urgent, and the Seſſion been ſo near an end, perhaps the Company might have had Juſtice done them then, and had been paſt complaining of any imaginary Injuſtice done them now. That there- fore it was plain, that it was not for the Profit and Honour of the Nation, and to ſupport the Trade, that the New Subſcribers came in, but that they were deluded into it by a Charter obtain'd by indirect ways, and by the Hopes of an Act of Parliament to confirm it, to be obtain'd in the ſame manner. That the Trade would have been much better preſerv'd, and more to the Honour of the Nation, if ſuch underhand Practices had been carried on. That if ſome Perſons thinking themſelves to have a greater Reach than others, or being deceived by the Old Company's making His Maſteſty believe their Stock to be worth 750000 l. and by afterwards ſharing 325000 l. of the New Subſcribers Money among themſelves, or by the Perſons failing them who had promiſed to get an Act of Parliament, or by Loſſes at Sea, or by what other Means ſo- ever it were, happen'd to fail in their Expectati- on, no Body was answerable for it but themſelves; eſpecially ſince they had warning enough by the Tranſactions before the Council. 'Twas alledg'd further, That in Edward III. and Queen Eliza- beth's Reigns, upon Complaint in Parliament of Patents granted for Monopolies, moſt of them were immediately revoked, and the reſt left to the Law. That in King James the I. Time an Act of Parliament paſt, to make void a Charter for the ſole Trade to Spain, and another againſt all Monopolies. That though the Patents for ſome Trades with Joint-Stocks (whiſt the Trades for which they were granted were in their Infancy) had been permitted for the ſettling of a Trade, and till the firſt Adventurers have reap'd ſome reaſonable Compensati- on for their firſt Undertak- ing and Adventures; yet afterwards when thoſe Trades have increaſed and become Great, the Wiſdom of the Nation has always thought fit to open a way for the Kingdom to receive a gene- ral Benefit thereby. That it never was eſteemed a Breach 1698. a Breach of the publick Faith, or a Derogation either from the Credit of the Great Seal, or from the Honour of our Kings, to have their Patents annulled by Parliament, when the Grants were thought by that Grand Council of the Nation, not to be profitable, or to be against the Common Right of the Subject; and that no King or Queen thought themselves bound in Honour or Conscience not to pass an Act of Parliament to make void such Patent. That the King being busied in the many arduous Affairs of the Kingdom, cannot be supposed to know always what he might legally grant, and is oftentimes deceived in his Grants, and for that reason they are often annulled by the ordinary Course of Law; and so might this Company's Patent have been: For all Persons having a Right by Law to Trade to the East-Indies, unless excluded by Parliament, the King by His Charter could not grant to the Company any new Right to the Trade, besides the Privileges of an Incorporated Body; but that the Commons justly bearing a high Veneration to His present Majesty, who had run so great Hazards, and perform'd so glorious Achievements for the Honour and Good of the Nation, had notwithstanding taken Care in this Bill, that nothing should interfere with His Majesty's Patent. That by this Patent the Old Company had indeed Power to Trade to the East-Indies, and other Privileges, but without any express Clause to exclude others, or any Covenant, (as was in the former Charters from the Crown) that His Majesty would not grant likewise to others, to Trade thither during the continuance of the said Charters: So that even according to the Charters themselves, all other Subjects of England had a Right to Trade to the East-Indies, and many actually Traded thither without any hindrance. That tho' the Old Company talk'd so much of their Dependance on the Security of their Charters, yet they themselves were convinc'd, that their Right was not well founded, since they had formerly laid out so much Money to get an Act of Parliament to Confirm their Charters, and had lately offer'd to Lend 700000 l. to the Government, to have the Trade to themselves, exclusive of all others. As to their offering afterwards to raise Two Millions, it was answer'd, That they made no such Offer with an Intention that it should take Effect, but only as an Amusement to gain time, and so to baffle the Bill; for when they agreed to submit their Stock to a Valuation of 50 l. per Cent. they knew very well that others did not value it at any thing near so much: And as to their Subscribing 200000 l. subject to make good the subsequent Payments of the Two Millions, that it was only to obtain what they had been so long aiming at, viz. An Act of Parliament exclusive for the Sum of 2000000 l. whereby the King would be defeated of a much more considerable Loan; others delivering us Subscriptions for about 1200000 l. And finally, that the Old Company heretofore thought it an Advantage to admit Foreigners into their Trade, and that many were actually now in the present Company, tho' they were pleas'd to argue against it. The Lords weigh'd the Reasons on both sides, and chiefly consider'd that the Old Company's Proposal to Lend the Two Millions, was like to prove ineffectual, by reason that some of their Principal Members were known to have no great Affection to the present Government; so that upon mature Deliberation, their Lordships gave their Concurrence to the Bill, which on July 5. received the Royal Assent.

The Bill being pass'd, the Commissioners Appointed by His Majesty for taking Subscriptions toward the raising of Two Millions, and for settling a New East-India Company, laid open their Books at Mercers-Hall, on Thursday the 14th of July, 1698. And such was the Zeal which People of all Ranks, and even Foreigners, shew'd on this Occasion to assist the Government, and promote the Trade of the Nation, that on the Saturday following the whole Sum, and something above it was subscribed: Nay, it's very probable that Two Millions more had been subscrib'd, had not the Books been shut up before the distant Corporations, private Men in remote Countries, and Merchants beyond Sea, could remit their Commissions for the great Sums they intended to subscribe. The dispatch of so great a Work in less than three Days time, after the Nation had born so chargeable a War for so many Years, surpriz'd and amaz'd all the World: And as it greatly mortified all those who were joyfully assur'd that His Majesty would be disappointed of this Supply, so it gave our Neighbouring Nations an astonishing Image, both of the Opulence of England, and the Strength of the Government. This Transaction viewed in all its Circumstances, is indeed so very strange and wonderful, that the like is not to be found in Story, and 'twill be a hard Matter for Posterity to believe it. This was owing to the Wisdom of this Parliament, who had so much Skill in touching the Springs of the People's Affections, that notwithstanding all the Losses they had sustain'd, and all the Expence they had been at, they were prevail'd with to advance this great Supply with such incredible Expedition. And by this means, the Parliament only by Doubling the Duty on Paper and Parchment used in Proceedings at Law, and that on Salt, raised a Supply of Two Millions; which to have done by any other ways, was at that time a Matter of the highest Difficulty. Now for the making up of the King's Revenue, the Commons Resolv'd, on May 28. That of the Hereditary and Temporary Excise, Post-Office, small Branches of the new Subsidies of Tunnage and Poundage, continued to the First Day of February, 1699. Seven Hundred Thousand Pounds be granted to His Majesty during His Life; and that whatsoever the said Revenue should exceed Seven Hundred Thousand Pounds yearly, should be appropriated to such Uses as should be directed by Parliament. And because the Glass-Makers and Tobacco-Pipe-Makers did justly complain of the grievous Taxes that had been laid on their Manufactures, the Commons Resolv'd, on January 25. to take off half the Duties now upon Glass-Wares, and the whole Duties upon Stone and Earthen Wares, and Tobacco-Pipes; and to Grant to His Majesty an Equivalent, by laying a further Duty upon Whalebone and Scotch Linnen imported. As for the Act for applying the Fourth Part of the Forfeited Estates to the use of the Publick, so many People Petition'd against it, that no Progress was made in it.

On Monday, May 16. The King was pleas'd to give the Royal Assent to these Publick and Private Bills. 1. An Act for Granting to His Majesty several Duties upon Coals and Culm. 2. An Act for Continuing the Duties upon Coffee, Tea, Chocolate and Spices, towards Satisfaction of the Debt due for Transport-Services, for the Reduction of Ireland. 3. An Act for the better Preventing the Counterfeiting, Clipping, and other Diminishing the Coin of this Kingdom. 4. An Act to Execute Judgments and Decrees, serv'd in a Clause in an Act of Parliament the Tenth Year of the Reign of King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An Act for taking away the Courts holden before the President and Council of the Marches of Wales. 5. An Act for Determining Differences by Arbitration. 6. An Act for the better Payment of Inland Bills of Exchange.

1698.

7. An Act to Naturalize the Children of such Officers and Soldiers, and others the Natural-Born Subjects of this Realm, who have been Born Abroad during the War, the Parents of such Children having been in the Service of this Government. 8. An Act to Repeal an Act made in the Nine and Thirtieth Year of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, Entituled, An Act to Restrain the Excessive Making of Malt, and to Discharge and Vacate Orders made by Justices of Peace by Virtue thereof, for Restraining Malsters from making of Malt. 9. An Act for Cleaning and making Navigable the Channel from the Hithe at Colchester to Wivenhoe. 10. An Act for Repairing the High-Ways, from the Town of Bridlipp and the Top of Crickley Hill, in the County of Gloucester, to the City of Gloucester. 11. An Act for Vesting Land in Trustees, to be Sold for Payment of the Debts of Wriothesly Baptill, late Earl of Gainsborough, Deceased. 12. An Act to annex the Rectory of Whitborne in Herefordshire, to the Bishoprick of Hereford. 13. An Act for the better Settling the several Estates of the Honourable John Lord Viscount Lisburn, in the Kingdom of Ireland, and the Lady Viscountess Lisburn, his Wife. 14. An Act for Supplying a Defect in a Conveyance lately made by Sir Edward Turner, and Charles Turner, Esq; his Son, for the more Effectual Securing the Sum of Twelve Thousand Pounds, and Interest, upon their Estate. 15. An Act for Vesting several Lands late belonging to Robert Smith, Esq; Deceased, in Trustees, to be Sold for Payment of his Debts. 16. An Act for Vesting the Mannor of Bastwick and Laviles, in the County of Norfolk, Part of the Estate of John Houghton, Esq; in Trustees, to be Sold for Discharging of Debts charged thereon, and for settling another Estate in lieu thereof. 17. An Act to enable Streynsham Matter, Esq; to sell Lands in Kent, which were agreed to be settled by his Marriage Articles, and to convey Lands in Derbyshire, of a greater value, to the same Uses. 18. An Act to enable Paris Slaughter, William Dince, Merchant, and Dame Elizabeth Chapman, to import several Bales of Fine Italian Tawern Silk into this Kingdom. 19. An Act for settling certain Lands in Essex on Thomas Burgh, Esq; and his Heirs, in lieu of other Lands of greater value, conveyed by him according to a Decree, and the Will of Sir Samuel Jones, deceased. 20. An Act for vesting certain customary Messuages and Lands within the Mannor of Gillingham, in the County of Dorset, (I. to the Estate of Thomas Davis, Gent. deceased) in Trustees to be sold for payment of Debts. 21. An Act for Erecting Hospitals and Work-Houses within the City and County of the City of Exon, for the better employing and maintaining the Poor there. 22. An Act for Erecting Hospitals and Work-Houses within the City of Hereford, for the better employing and maintaining the Poor there. 23. An Act to rectifie some Mistakes in an Act, Entituled, An Act to enable John Lewin to sell certain Messuages in Southwark, for payment of Debts. 24. An Act for vesting a Moiety of certain Messuages and Lands in Hackney, in the County of Middlesex, in Trustees, for the Benefit of Susannah Cary, Widow and Relict of Nicholas Cary, Esq; deceased, and others. 25. An Act for Erecting Hospitals and Work-Houses within the Town of Colchester, in the County of Essex, for the better employing and maintaining the Poor thereof. 26. An Act to Naturalize William Lloyd, Esq; and others. 27. An Act to confirm the Sale of part of the Estate of Sir John Churchill, Kn. deceased, for payment of his Debts, pursuant to his last Will, and two Decrees in Chancery for performance thereof. 28. An Act for vesting the Mannor of Alveiton, and other Lands therein mentioned, in the County of Gloucester, in Trustees, to be sold for Payment of Debts, and for other Purposes therein mentioned.

On May 21. a Complaint was made to the Commons of a Printed Book, Entituled, The Case of Ireland's being bound by Acts of Parliament in England, (written by William Molyneux of Dublin, Esq;) which denied the Dependance of Ireland, upon the Authority of the Parliament of England. A Committee was thereupon appointed, to examine further into the said Pamphlet, to enquire into the Author of it; and also to search what Proceedings had been in Ireland, that might occasion the said Book; and an Address to the King Voted, That His Majesty would give Directions for the discovery and punishment of the Author. A Month after, upon the Report of the Committee, it was unanimously resolv'd, "That the said Book was of Dangerous Consequence to the Crown and People of England, by denying the Authority of the King and Parliament of England, to bind the Kingdom and People of Ireland, and the Subordination and Dependance that Ireland has, and ought to have upon England, as being united and annexed to the Imperial Crown of this Realm; and that a Bill, Entituled, An Act for the better Security of His Majesty's Person and Government, transmitted under the Great Seal of Ireland; whereby an Act of Parliament made in England, was pretended to be re-enacted, Alterations therein made, and divers Things enacted also, pretending to oblige the Courts of Justice, and the Great Seal of England, by the Authority of an Irish Parliament; had given Occasion and Encouragement to the forming and publishing the Dangerous Positions contained in the said Book. Four Days after, the Commons in a Body presented an Address to the King: Wherein they laid before His Majesty the Dangerous Attempts that had been of late made by some of His Subjects of Ireland, to shake off their Subjection to, and Dependance on this Kingdom; which had manifestly appear'd to the Commons, not only by the Bold and Pernicious Assertions in a Book publish'd and dedicated to His Majesty, Entituled, The Case of Ireland being bound by Acts of Parliament in England Stated: But more fully and authentically by the Votes and Proceeding of the House of Commons in Ireland, in their late Sessions; and whereby the forementioned Bill sent hither under the Great Seal of Ireland, whereby they would have an Act passed in the Parliament of England, expressly binding Ireland, to be re-enacted there, and Alterations therein made; some of which amounted to a Repeal of what is required by the said Act made in England; and in other of the said Alterations, pretending to give Authority to, and oblige the Courts of Justice and Great-Seal here in England. That this they could not but look on as an Occasion and Encouragement in the forming and publishing the dangerous Positions contain'd in the said Book. That the Consequence of such Positions and Proceedings would be so fatal to this Kingdom, and even to Ireland it self, that they needed not to be enlarged on, or aggravated. Therefore they rested satisfied that His Majesty by His Royal Prudence, would prevent their being drawn into Example: So they assur'd His Majesty of their ready Concurrence and Assistance, in a Parliamentary way, to preserve and maintain the Dependance and Subordination of Ireland to the Imperial Crown of this Realm. And they humbly besought His Majesty, That He would give effectual Orders to prevent any thing of the like nature for the future, and the Pernicious Consequences of what was pass'd, by punishing and discountenancing those that had been guilty thereof: That He would take all necessary Care, that the Laws which direct and restrain the Parliament of Ireland in their Actings 1698. The Commons of- fended with a Book of the Case of Ireland.

1698. "Actings be not Evaded, but strictly Observ'd; and that He would discourage all Things which might in any degree lessen the Dependence of Ireland upon England." To this His Majesty's Answer, was, That He would take Care that what was Complain'd of, might be prevented and redress'd as the Commons desir'd.

On Tuesday 5th July, the King came to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Assent to,

1. An Act for raising a Sum not exceeding Two Millions upon a Fund for payment of Annuities, after the rate of Eight Pound per Cent. per Annum, and for settling the Trade to the East-Indies. 2. An Act for paying to His Majesty, His Heirs, and Successors, further Duties upon Stampd Vellum, Parchment, and Paper. 3. An Act for Granting to His Majesty an Aid by a Quarterly Poll, for One Year. 4. An Act for Granting to His Majesty a further Subsidy upon Tunnage and Poundage, towards raising the yearly Sum of Seven hundred thousand Pounds, for the Service of His Majesty's Household, and other Uses therein mentioned. 5. An Act for Increasing His Majesty's Duties upon Lustrings and Alamodes. 6. An Act for supplying to the Use of his Majesty's Navy and Ordnance, the Overplus of the Money and Stores, which were provided for the Building Seven and twenty Ships of War. 7. An Act for enlarging the Time for Purchasing certain Estates or Interest in several Annuities therein mentioned. 8. An Act for the better and more orderly Payment of the Lottery Tickets, now payable out of certain additional Duties of Excise, and of other Annuities lately payable out of the Tunnage Duties. 9. An Act for Licencing Hawkers and Pedlars, for a further Provision of Interest for the Transport Debt for the reducing of Ireland. 10. An Act for taking away half the Duties lately imposed on Glass Wares, and the whole Duties lately laid on Stone and Earthen Wares, and Tobacco-Pipes; and for Granting (in lieu thereof) new Duties upon Whale Finns, and Scotch Linnen. 11. An Act for preventing Frauds and Abuses in the Charging, Collecting, and Paying the Duties upon Marriages, Births, Burials, Batchelors and Widowers. 12. An Act for the better preventing the Embezzlement of His Majesty's Stores of War; and preventing Cheats, Frauds, and Abuses, in Paying Seamen's Wages. 13. An Act for the more effectual suppressing Blasphemy and Prophaneness. 14. An Act to settle the Trade to Africa. 15. An Act for the better encouragement of the Royal Lustring Company, and the more effectual preventing the Fraudulent Importation of Lustrings and Alamodes. 16. An Act for the Increase and Preservation of Timber, in the New Forest, in the County of Southampton. 17. An Act to stop the Coining of Half-pence and Farthings for One Year. 18. An Act for the exporting Watches, and Sword Hilt, and other Manufactures of Silver. 19. An Act for settling and adjusting the Proportions of Five Silver and Silk, for the better making of Silver and Gold Thread, and to prevent the abuses of the Weyer-drawyers. 20. An Act for raising the Militia for the Year One thousand six hundred and ninety eight, although the Months Pay formerly advanced be not Repaid. 21. An Act for enlarging the Time for Registering Ships, pursuant to the Act for preventing Frauds, and Regulating Abuses in the Plantation Trade. 22. An Act for the Explanation and better Execution of former Acts, made against Transportation of Wool, Fullers Earth and Scouring Clay. 23. An Act to Repeal the Act made the last Session of Parliament, Entituled, An Act for Relief of Creditors by making Composition with their Debtors, in case Two Thirds in Number and Value do agree. 24. An Act to confirm a Lease, Granted by the Lord Bishop of Winchester, of a parcel of waste Ground in Alverstock, in the County of Southampton, for the erecting of a Water-Work there, and for Improving the same. 25. An Act to enable Trustees to make Leases and grant Copies, and receive the Rents and Profits of the Estates, late of Sir Edward Wyndham, Baronet, deceas'd, and Hopton Wyndham, Esq; deceas'd; during the Minority of Sir William Wyndham, Baronet; for the Intent and Purposes therein mentioned. 26. An Act for securing the Portions intended by Sir William Walter, Baronet, deceas'd, for his Children by the Lady Mary Walter, his Second Wife; and for preventing all Doubts which might arise upon the Construction of the Articles and Will therein mentioned. 27. An Act to enable John Hawkes, Gent. to sell Lands in the County of Salop, for Payment of his Debts. 28. An Act for the better Supplying the Town of Newcastle upon Tyne with Fresh Water. 29. An Act for Vesting in Thomas Rogers, Gent. an absolute Estate of Inheritance in Fee-Simple, in the Manor of West-Court Mansion-House, Messuages, Lands and Hereditaments, in the County of Kent; and securing to John Higgons, Gent. and Alice his Wife, and for Portions for Irene, Margaret, Mary, and Alice Casar, Moneys in Lieu of their Claims thereunto. 30. An Act for Erecting Work-Houses, and Houses of Correction, in the Town of Kingston upon Hull, for the Employment and Maintenance of the Poor there. 31. An Act for Sale of Three Houses in Swan-Alley in Colemanstreet, London, late of Joseph Smith deceas'd, for Payment of his Debts, with which the said Houses are chargeable. 32. An Act for Relief of the Creditors of Edward Blackwell, Esq; deceas'd. 33. An Act for Erecting Work-Houses, and Houses of Correction, in the Town of Shaftsbury; and for the better Employment and Maintenance of the Poor there. 34. An Act to enable John Jenkyn, Merchant, to sell Part of his Estate for the Payment of his Debts. 35. An Act for Naturalizing Henry Reneu, and others. 36. An Act for giving leave to the Ship Maryland-Merchant of Bristol, to Arrive and Import her Lading into this Kingdom. 37. An Act to enable Humphry Walrond, Gent. to Sell Part of his Estate, for the making Provision for his Eldest Son, and Elizabeth his Daughter, (who are Lunaticks); and Payment of his Debts, and Raising Portions for his other Children. 38. An Act for Vesting a Copperas-Work, late Part of the Estate of Robert Maschal, Esq; deceas'd, in Trustees, to be sold for Payment of Debts, and other Charges thereon. 39. An Act to confirm a Conveyance made by George Pitt, Esq; and others, of the Mannor of Tarant, Preston, and other Lands in the County of Dorset, to John Pitt, Gent. and the Heirs Male of his Body. 40. An Act, that the Ships Panther, Gloucester-Frigate, Scarborough, and Antilope, (formerly taken as Prizes, and condemn'd) may have freedom of Trading as English-built Ships. 41. An Act for enabling Humphry Trafford, Esq; to raise Four Thousand Pounds upon his Estate, for Payment of Debts. 42. An Act, that the Ships call'd the Ruby-Prize and Plimouth, may have freedom of Trading as English-built Ships. 43. An Act to give leave to the Ship Sally-Rose, (formerly taken as Prize) to arrive and import her Lading, and to Trade as an English-built Ship.

And afterwards His Majesty made this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I Cannot take leave of so good a Parliament, King's without publickly acknowledging the Sense Speeches
"I have of the Great Things you have done for
"My Safety and Honour, and for the Support
"and Welfare of My People.

"Every one of your Sessions hath made good
"this Character. The Happy Uniting of Us in "an Association for Our mutual Defence; The "Remedying the Corruption of the Coin, which "had been so long growing upon the Nati"on; The Restoring of Credit; The Giving
"Supplies in such a manner for carrying on the "War

1698. " War, as did by God's Blessing produce an honourable Peace; And after that, the making such Provisions for Our Common Security, and towards satisfying the Debts contracted in so long a War, with as little Burden to the Kingdom as is possible, are such things as will give a lasting Reputation to this Parliament, and will be a subject of Emulation to those which shall come after.

" Besides all this, I think My self personally oblig'd to return My Thanks to you, Gentlemen of the House of Commons, for the regard you have had to My Honour, by the Establishing of My Revenue.

" My Lords and Gentlemen,

" There is nothing I value so much as the Esteem and Love of My People; And as for their Sakes I avoided no Hazards during the War; so My whole Study and Care shall be to Improve and Continue to them the Advantages and Blessings of Peace.

" And I earnestly desire you all, in your several Stations, to be Vigilant in preserving Peace and good Order, and in a due and regular Execution of the Laws, especially those against Prophaneness and Irreligion.

And then the Lord Chancellor, by His Majesty's Command, Prorogued the Parliament until Tuesday the Second day of August next.

Earl of Portland
Ambassador to France.

The Earl of Portland had made his publick Entry into Paris, on Febr. 27. with such extraordinary Splendor, as had never been seen at the Court of France, since the Duke of Buckingham's Embassy, when he came to demand in Marriage for King Charles the first, Mary Henrietta of France. His Excellency (I mean the Earl of Portland) accompanied by the Lords Cavendish, Hastings, Paston, Raby, and Woodstock his Excellency's Son, Mr. Fielding, Col. Stanhope, Mr. Charles Boyle, Mr. Prior, Secretary to the Embassy, and several other English Gentlemen; and attended by a Gentleman of the Horse, Twelve Pages, Fifty Six Footmen, Twelve Led Horses, Four Coaches with Eight Horses, and Two Chariots with Six, was received by the Duke of Boufflers, and conducted to the Hotel, reserv'd in Paris for the Entertainment of Foreign Ambassadors, through Multitudes of Spectators, who were astonish'd at the Grandeur and Opulence of the English Nation. Two Days after, he was admitted to his first Publick Audience, which for a distinguishing Mark of Honour, he had in His most Christian Majesty's Bed-Chamber, and even within the Rails round the Bed, where the King stood, with the Three young Princes his Grandsons, and the Count de Thoulouse, the Duke d'Aumont, and the Marechal de Noailles. His Excellency having made his Speech in French, and deliver'd his Credentials, the King Answer'd him in very obliging Terms, both in Relation to His Master, and Himself; and then his Excellency presented to the King the English Noblemen and Gentlemen of his Retinue; which being over, he had Audience of the Dauphin, and the rest of the Royal Family.

Not only in imitation, but by express directions of the King of France, all that Court shew'd the English Ambassador most singular Marks of Honour and Respect. On the 3d. of March (O.S.) he receiv'd a Visit from the Prince of Conti; and the same day paid one himself to the Duke of Maine, and the Count of Thoulouse, who return'd it not many days after. 'Tis observable, that in all the Visits his Excellency made, he was attended by the same splendid and numerous Equipage which he had at his Publick Entry. And as the Magnificence of his Table was answerable to the Grandeur of his Attendance, his Excellency entertained daily at Dinner some Person or other of the first Rank.

1698.

On the 12th of April (O. S.) his Excellency and several of the Noble Persons who always accompanied him, were entertain'd at Dinner by the Duke of Orleans, at his House at St. Cloud, and in the Afternoon, his Royal Highness carried them in his own Coaches to see the Gardens. A Week after he went to Versailles, and staid there Four days, being lodg'd at the Hôtel de Bouillon; The first Day he was Treated by the Marechal de Boufflers, who in the Afternoon went with his Excellency into the Gardens, and shew'd him the Water-works; The next day he was invited to Dine with Monsieur de Livry, Master of the King's Household, and after Dinner had a long Conversation with the King in the Gardens; the Fountains playing all that while. On the 21st. of April he was entertained by the Duke de Beauvilliers, and in the Afternoon view'd the House of Trianon, and the Park; and on the 22d. return'd to Paris. During his Excellency's stay at Versailles, there happen'd a Passage between Mr. Prior, the Secretary of the Embassy, and one of the French King's Officers, that deserves to be related: As the latter with abundance of Civility, was leading Mr. Prior about the Apartments, among other Curiosities, he shew'd him those fine Peices of Le Brun, which represent the King of France's Victories; and ask'd him whether King William's Actions were also to be seen in his Palace? No, Sir, replied Mr. Prior, The Monuments of my Master's Actions are to be seen every where, but in His own House.

King James past His Time very indifferently all the while; for besides the Honours which were done to the Ambassador of the Prince, who possessed his Abdicated Throne, and which could not but be a sensible Mortification to that unfortunate Monarch, he was inform'd that his Excellence insist'd upon the Removing of him at a farther distance from the King of France's Presence, promising in his Master's Name to give him and the Queen an Honourable Pension, which would ease His most Christian Majesty from the great Charge He was at in Maintaining him and his Family, ever since They had taken Sanctuary in His Dominions. After the Conclusion of the late Treaty of Peace, where his Concerns were wholly overlook'd, King James seem'd to be absolutely abandoned to the sinister Influence of his Stars; and therefore concluding that Portland's Demand would be comply'd with, His Majesty was resolv'd to retire to Avignon, and began already to inform Himself, if He could Live conveniently there. But He was agreeably surpriz'd, when He heard that the King of France would never give Ear to the English Ambassador's Proposal. However, to shew in what entire Confidence and Amity He design'd to Live with King William, His most Christian Majesty open'd to the Earl of Portland the subtle Project of the Division of the Spanish Monarchy; which to make His Britannick Majesty go into, without suspecting any latent Subterfuge, the King of France, like a good Politician, endeavour'd to dazzle His Eyes by the extraordinary Reception He made to His Ambassador; and by the Marks of His Esteem and Affection, which He gave Him by several Letters; which Count de Tallard confirm'd by Word of Mouth.

In this Interval, the Earl of Manchester being arriv'd at Paris, in his Return to England from his Embassy to Venice, heard the Earl of Portland return to St. Cloud on the 5th of May, to visit the Duke of Orleans, and in the Evening to Versailles, to wait on the Most Christian King, and were received at both Places with great Civility and Re-

Retirement of
K. James.

Earl of Manchester returns from his Embassy to Venice.

1698. spect. Four Days after, both their Excellencies had the Honour to dine with the Dauphin at Mendon, and the next Day the Earl of Portland had his Publick Audience of Leave of the Royal Family; King William having nam'd the Earl of Jersey to succeed him, in the Quality of Ambassador Extraordinary to France. On the 15th of May his Excellency dined at Versailles with the Marschal de Villeroi, who in the Afternoon conducted him to Marli, to see the Gardens and Water-Works: The next day he went to Mendon, where he hunted and supp'd with the Dauphin, and on the 17th returned to Versailles, where he had a Private Audience of the King. The following days he continued to take his Leave of the Court, and on the 27th there being a Review of the Troops of the Household in the Plain of Archers, where the King and the Dauphin, the Young Princes of France, and divers Persons of Quality were present; his Excellency went thither also, but would perhaps have forborn coming, if he had known that King James and the Titular Prince of Wales had likewise been there. The Prince of Wales, by his Father's Directions, endeavoured to join Conversation with the Lord Woodstock; but the Lord Portland, his Father, knowing the Young Prince's Design, order'd his Son to avoid him; as he did himself all those that belong'd to the Court of St. Germain; though it was reported King James had caused it to be insinuated to his Excellency, that he never pretended to make his Lordship answerable for the Ill Usage he receiv'd from Him he represented. At this Review King James himself did all he could to engage the Lord Cavendish, and the other English Noblemen to accost him, but all imitated the Earl of Portland, who a Week after went to Versailles, and had a Private Audience of the King in His Closet, where his Excellency took his last Leave; as he did afterwards of the Dauphin, and of the Duke and Dutchess of Orleans at St. Cloud. The King sent the Earl the usual Present of His Picture set with Diamonds, but with this Difference, that the Stones were worth three times as much as those of other like Gifts. Besides this, His Most Christian Majesty presented him with all the Stamps and Prints engraved at the Louvre, consisting in Twelve Large Folios; in return of which the Ambassador made the King a Present of Nine very fine English Horses. On the 8th of June his Excellency left Paris, and went to Chantilly, a House belonging to the Prince of Conde, where he was entertain'd in a splendid manner till the 11th, when he took leave of his Highness, and proceeding on his Journey in his Return to England, arriv'd at Kensington on the 19th. Thus ended this Famous Embassy, which cost King William Fourscore Thousand Pounds to little purpose: It having been wisely observed, That no Ambassador was ever more honour'd, or less successful, than the Earl of Portland; who could obtain nothing, either as to the Removal of King James, or in Favour of the Protestants of France, against whom the Persecution, which in many places had been interrupted during the War, began now to rage afresh with redoubled Violence. As for the Earl himself, he was so far from getting any thing by his Embassy, that on the contrary he found at his Return, that Mr. Keppel, who some time before was created Earl of Albemarle, had so advantageously improved his Absence, as to become entire Master of His Majesty's Confidence. This New Earl, at the King's first coming over, was but Page to His Majesty, till by his Artful Intinutions, he was made Master of the Robes, in which Place he grew so far into His Majesty's Favour, that the Earl of Portland did every day lose Ground in it. This Change did at first please the

Earl of Albemarle
the New Favourite.

English and Dutch, the Earl of Albemarle having cunningly made several Powerful Friends in both Nations, who out of Envy to my Lord Portland, were glad to see another in his Place: However, though the first became now the Reigning Favourite, yet the latter did ever preserve the Esteem and Affection of King William, who still employ'd him in the management of most Foreign Affairs, and in what related to Scotland.

On the 19th of March, Count Tallard, the French Ambassador arriv'd in London, and on the 28th had a Private Audience of the King at Kensington. The next day the Baron of Simoni, Captain of the Guards of his Electoral Highness of Bavaria, had his first Publick Audience; and the Count de Platten, Chamberlain to his Electoral Highness of Brunswick, had the same day his Audience of Leave of His Majesty. On the 4th of April the King went to Newmarket, to take the Diversions of Hunting and Horse-racing; and the next day the University of Cambridge paid their Duty to His Majesty, upon Occasion of His Arrival in their Neighbourhood; being introduc'd by the Duke of Somerset, their Chancellor. The French Ambassador follow'd His Majesty to this Place, and was not a little surprized to see the vast Concourse of Nobility and Gentry, and the great Sums of Money that were either won or lost there. On the 16th His Majesty returned to Kensington, and ten days after, the Count de Bonde, Ambassador Extraordinary from Sweden, made his Publick Entry in Mourning, on the Occasion of the Death of the late King of Sweden, and on the 29th had his first Publick Audience of the King at Windser.

Count
Tallard Ambassador from France.

On the 16th of May the French Ambassador made his Publick Entry, with a fine, but small Retinue, like one who came rather for Business, than for Shew; and on the 19th he had his Publick Audience of His Majesty at Windser, where he was splendidly entertain'd at Dinner. Two days after, the Earl of Manchester being returned from his Embassy at Venice, waited on His Majesty at Kensington, and was received with great Marks of Favour and Esteem; and not long after admitted into His Majesty's Privy-Council. On the 30th of May the Swedish Ambassador return'd to the Sovereign the Garret and George of His Majesty Charles XI. the King of Sweden, with the whole Habit, and other Entigns of the Order, (where-with he had been invested in 1669,) which was done in great Ceremony at Kensington.

France reap'd but small Benefit from the Peace, as to her Commerce, which continued almost as dead as in time of War. 'Tis true, some English and Dutch came to Bourdeaux and Rouen, in order to take in Wine and Paper, and brought other Commodities to be sold there, but the Tariff not being regulated between all the Parties, and the Treaty of Ryswick mentioning only, That in relation to Holland it should be put upon the same Foot, as it was agreed in 1664, which was not yet done; and in respect to England, that Commissioners appointed by both Kings should meet in London, three Months after the Ratification, to determine all Differences, This, together with the Loss of at least 20 per Cent by the Money, which the King of France to supply present Necessities, had raised to an extravagant rate, oblig'd most of those Ships to return home without selling or buying any Thing. Thereupon the States-General sent Deputies to the King of France, to demand the Regulation of the Tariff, pursuant to the late Treaty: But the Trade of Holland being far less advantageous to France than that of England, by reason the Dutch use to import more of their own Commodities into that 1698. Kingdom, than they export of the Growth of it from thence; and that, on the contrary, the English were us'd, before the War, to send vast Sums of Money yearly into France, not only for Wines, Paper, Stuffs, Linnen, Hats, and Silks, but also for abundance of unprofitable Bawbles, the Purchase of which could not be made with what they imported thither of the Growth and Manufacture of England: So the Court of France did at first resolve to keep up the Tariff as high as possible with the Hollanders, while they design'd to lower it with the English. But Monsieur Philippeaux d'Herbeant being sent over hither as Commissary General from the most Christian King, for regulating the Commerce between the Two Nations, he found insuperable Difficulties in his Commission, not only because of the high Duties laid by the Parliament on all French Goods, and which were already appropriated to several uses, but also because the English had, by this time, learnt to make shift without the Commodities of the Product of France, supplying themselves, for the most part, with Wine from Italy, Spain and Portugal; with Linnen from Holland and Silesia; and with Paper, Stuffs, Hats and Silks, by the Manufactures of those Goods set up in England by the Protestant French Refugees there.

Trade of France.

King-

Honours and Preferments.

On May 4. His Majesty had appointed the Earl of Fersey to go as His Ambassador Extraordinary to the Court of France.

On May 7. His Majesty as a Mark of His Royal Favour, was pleased to confer upon John Rogers, Sen. of Wisdom, in the County of Devon, Esq; the Dignity of a Baronet of this Kingdom.

The King fond of the Duke of Gloucester.

Ever since the Death of the Queen, His Majesty was more particularly fond of the Duke of Gloucester, who was now entering on the Tenth Year of His Age, and had given such Proofs of a forward Genius that it was high time to take him out of the Hands of the Women; the King therefore apply'd himself to the forming of a Family and a Court for this Hopeful Young Prince; and to oblige his Affectionate Mother the Princess, was pleas'd on June 19, to appoint the Right Honourable John Earl of Marlborough to be Governor to his Highness, as a Mark of the good Opinion His Majesty had for his Lordship's Zeal for His Service, and his Qualifications for an Employment of so great a Trust; and the same Evening his Lordship was sworn of the Privy-Council. The Bishop of Salisbury was appointed to be Preceptor to his Highness, having under him Mr. Willis, Chaplain to the King, and Mr. Prat, Chaplain to the Princess; which latter had taught him the first Rudiments of Learning, with Right Application, and great Success. June 22. His Majesty appointed Charles Lord Cornwallis to be Lord Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of the County of Suffolk. On July 7. the Installation of the Duke of Newcastle Knight of the Garter, was performed at *Windso*r with great Solemnity: And on the 16th His Majesty declar'd in Council, That intending to go over to Holland for a short time, he had appointed Thomas Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, John Lord Somers, Baron of Ervesham, Lord Chancellor of England; Thomas Earl of Pembroke Lord Privy Seal; William Duke of Devonshire, Lord Steward of His Majesty's Household; Charles Earl of Dorset and Middlesex, John Earl of Marlborough Governor to his Highness the Duke of Gloucester; Henry Earl of Romney Lord Warden of the Cinque-Ports; Edward Earl of Orford first Commissioner of the Admiralty; and Charles Mountague, Esq; first Commissioner of the Treasury, to be Lords Justices of England, for the Administration of the Government during His Majesty's Absence. About the same time His Majesty granted the Honour and Dignity of a Baron of this Kingdom to Christopher Vane of Rabie Castle, Esq; by the Title of Lord Barnard, of Barnard Castle, in the County Palatine of Durham; and the Dignity of a Baronet upon Thomas Powell of Broadway, in the County of Carmarthen, Esq; and upon Samuel Clark of Snailwell, in the County of Cambridge, Esq;

Lords Justices.

1698.

On July 19. the King dined at Sittingborn, and lay that Night at Captain Balls, near Mingate, and the next Morning embark'd in the William and Mary Yacht, under a Convoy commanded by Sir Cloudfley Shovel, and next Day late in the Evening landed at Orange Polder, lay that Night at Houmslaerdike, and went next day to the Hague, where He assisted at the Assembly of the States of Holland, and that of the States General, and gave Audience to several Publick Ministers, particularly to the Envoy of Lorraine, who notified to His Majesty the Marriage of the Duke his Master with Madamoiselle, Daughter to the Duke of Orleans.

The King goes to Holland.

On Aug. 6. N. S. the King went to Loo, attended by the Earls of Essex, Portland and Selkirk, and several other Persons of Quality; He had not been long there, before He was waited upon by the Count de Tallard, a cunning and vigilant Minister, who had Orders to sollicite His Majesty upon the Proposal made by the King of France to the Earl of Portland, of coming to an Agreement with His Britannick Majesty, concerning the Succession of the Crown of Spain; which Overture King William had communicated to His Chancellor before He left England. The French Ambassador having press'd His Majesty for an Answer, the Earl of Portland by His Majesty's Order writ a Letter to Mr. Secretary Vernon, wherein it was mentioned, That Count Tallard having declar'd an Accommodation might be found out in relation to the Spanish Succession, His Majesty had founded France upon the Conditions; which were in substance, That the Electoral Prince of Bavaria should have the Kingdom of Spain, the Indies, and the Low-Countries, and all that depended upon the Spanish Dominions, except Naples and Sicily, Sardinia, the Province of Guipuscoa on this side of the Pyrenees, Fontarabia, and St. Sebastian, Final, and the Places in Tuscany, of which Spain stood possessed; in consideration of which, France was absolutely to renounce the Right it pretended to the Succession of Spain; and as for Milan, it was to be given to the Arch-Duke Charles, the Emperor's Second Son.

Treaty of Partition

At the same time the King did Himself acquaint my Lord Somers, by Letter, That He had order'd King's Letter to the Lord Chancellor. Vernon not to communicate the Propositions made by Count Tallard, to any other besides his Lordship, and to leave to his Lordship's Judgment to whom else he would think proper to impart them; to the end that His Majesty might know his Lordship's Opinion upon so Important Affairs, which required the greatest Secrecy, and wherein no time was to be lost, if it was fit this Negotiation should be carried on. For that purpose, His Majesty commanded my Lord Somers to send Him the full Powers under the Great Seal, with the Names in Blank to treat with Count Tallard; which His Majesty believed might be done secretly, that none but his Lordship and Vernon, and those to whom his Lordship should have communicated it, might have knowledge of it; and so that the Clerks themselves, who were to write the Warrant, and the Full Powers, might not know what it was. And moreover, to press the Necessity of this Treaty, His Majesty acquainted His Chancellor, That, according to all Intelligence, the King of Spain could not outlive the 1698. Month of October, and that the least Accident might carry Him off before that time.

Mr. Vernon having sent the Earl of Portland's Letter to my Lord Somers, who was then at Timbridge, for the benefit of the Medicinal Waters of that Place, his Lordship immediately return'd the same Letter to Mr. Vernon, and desired him to communicate the Contents of it to my Lord Orford, Mr. (Charles) Mountague, and the Duke of Shrewsbury, which his Lordship thought the best way of executing the King's Commands. At the same time letting them know, how strictly His Majesty required that it should remain an absolute Secret. Which Caution made Mr. Vernon impart it to the Duke of Shrewsbury only, as he afterwards acquainted my Lord Somers.

Some time after, Mr. Mountague, and Mr. Secretary Vernon going down to Timbridge, they and my Lord Somers debated this important Affair; and thereupon his Lordship writ a Letter to His Majesty. However, the Negotiation was eagerly carried on, insomuch that on the 29th of August (N. S.) several days before His Majesty had received the Lord Somers's Answer, a Treaty was concluded; whereby it was Agreed, "I. That the Peace of Ryswick should be Confirm'd. "II. That in consideration of the ill State of the King of Spain's Health, and for preserving the Publick Peace, in case the said Prince should die without Issue, the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily, with the Places then depending upon the Spanish Monarchy, situated on the Coasts of Tuscany, or the adjacent Islands, comprehended under the name of Santo Stephano, Porto Hercule, Orbitello, Talamore, Portolongo, Provincino, the Marquisate of Final, the Province of Guipuscoa, particularly the Towns of Fontarabiz, and St. Sebastian, and especially the Port Passage, and likewise all Places on the French side of the Pyrences, or the other Mountains of Navarre, Alava, or Biscay, on the side of the Province of Guipuscoa, with all the Ships and Gallies, and other Appurtenances belonging to the said Gallies, should be given to the Dauphin in consideration of his Right. III. That the Crown of Spain, and the other Kingdoms and Places both within and without Europe, should descend to the Electoral Prince of Bavaria, of whom his Father, the Elector, was to be a Guardian and Administrator till he came of Age. And IV. That the Dutchy of Milan should be reserved and allotted to Arch-Duke Charles, the Emperor's Second Son." This Treaty was to be communicated to the Emperor and the Elector of Bavaria, by the King of Great Britain, and the States General; and if they did not agree to it, then the proportion of the Party not agreeing, should remain in Sequestration till things could be brought to an Accommodation: And in case the Electoral Prince of Bavaria should come to inherit his Share, and yet die before his Father without Issue, the Elector was to succeed him in those Dominions, and his Heir after him. Likewise the Dutchy of Milan, upon the Arch-Duke's Refusal to accept it, was to be Sequestred to, and Govern'd by the Prince of Vaudemont; and after him by his Son, Prince Charles of Vaudemont. Soon after the Conclusion of this Treaty, King William took a Review of the Dutch Troops near Arnhem, and then on Sep. 20. went to Zell, to give a Visit to the Duke of that Name. Here His Majesty was received with extraordinary Respects (as he had been at all the Places through which He pass in His way thither) and waited upon by several Neighbouring Princes and Princesses, particularly the Electors of Hanover, with the Electoral Prince, and the Princess his Sister. Mr. Stepmey, His Ma-

Articles of the Treaty of Partition.

1698. Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary to the Elector of Brandenburg, did likewise attend the King with Letters from that Prince; and at his return to Loo, the Duke of Bavaria came to pay his Acknowledgments to His Majesty, for the Care He had taken of his Electoral Highness's Interest in the late Treaty of Partition.

Whilst the King of France was Courting King William into the Treaty of Partition; the Marquis de Harcourt, the French Ambassador in Spain was playing another Game at Madrid. The Queen of Spain, who was nearly related to the King of the Romans, and consequently entirely in the Interest of the House of Austria, foreseeing the Designs of the King of France, had early concerted Measures with Count de Harrach, the Imperial Minister, to disappoint them. She had not only got Her Creatures into His Catholic Majesty's Council, but likewise procured the Vice-Royalty of Catalonia to be bestow'd on the Prince of Hesse d'Armstadt, and the Government of Milan on Prince Vaudemont; both which Princes had upon many Occasions signaliz'd their Affection and Zeal for the German Interest. Some say His Majesty design'd to have made Prince Eugene Vice-Roy of Navarre, but was oppos'd in it: And that as to the Duke of Medina Celi, Vice-roy of Naples, it was thought advisable to continue him there, by Reason of his being one of the most considerable Grandees of Spain, and most belov'd of the People; and who consequently might obstruct the Designs of the German Party, if he came home disgusted. This was the posture of the Spanish Affairs when the French Ambassador arriv'd at Madrid. His Instructions were, that if he saw no possibility, as in effect there seem'd at first to be none, to derive the Succession of that Kingdom upon one of the Dauphin's Sons, he should endeavour at least, to hinder it from devolving on any of the Emperor's Children, on whom it was settled by the Will and Testament of Philip the IV. the present King of Spain's Father: And to add a powerful weight to the Ambassador's Instances, and at the same time, to awaken the Ambition of some Grandees, and fright the rest into Compliance, his most Christian Majesty caus'd Sixty thousand of his best Men to file off towards the Frontiers of Catalonia and Navarre; and sent a considerable Number of His Ships of War and Gallies into several Ports of Spain. The Marquis followed His Instructions with great Address and Application. He told those whom he found inclined to act in concert with him in so Important an Affair, that Philip IV. had exerted His Power too far, in disposing of His Crown against the Laws of Nature, and the Constitution of the Realm; That the Succession did lawfully belong to his Daughter's Children, and not to His Relations Four Degrees remov'd: That the Dauphin, Son to Maria Theresa, the present King of Spain's Sister, had Three Sons; And if the Spaniards would fix their Eyes upon the Second of them, the Duke of Anjou, to be their King, he being still as pliable as Wax, they might easily mould him to the Customs and Manners of their Country: That if they were averse to this Overture, the Electoral Prince of Bavaria, being Grandson to a Daughter of Spain, the King of France would rather approve of him to Succeed in the Spanish Monarchy, than any of the Emperor's Children; unless as the Poles had often done, to cut off the Pretensions of Foreign Princes, they would chuse a Sovereign among themselves, in which the King of France would protect them, since He never intended to unite Spain to His own Kingdom, but only to keep it from falling into the hands of the House of Austria, who was already grown too Powerful by her late Con-

Intrigues of France in the Court of Spain.

1698. Conquests in Hungary. The Queen of Spain having a watchful Eye upon the French Ambassador, who made it his Business to thwart Her Designs in favour of the Emperor, did soon discover his Practices. And therefore under pretence that the Air of Madrid was prejudicial to Her Husband's Health, She carried Him to Toledo, without allowing any Foreign Ambassador to follow him thither. The Marquis d' Harcourt did quickly penetrate into the Design of the Queen's Journey, and judg'd very rightly, that being sole Mistress of the King, she might easily prevail with Him to Ratify King Philip IV's Will. He was confirm'd in this Apprehension by Count d' Harrach's being no more to be seen at Madrid; and supposing he was gone to Toledo, he went immediately thither himself, under pretence of a feign'd Memorial, which, he gave out, he had receiv'd from his Master, with positive Orders not to communicate it to any besides His Catholick Majesty. The Queen was extremely surpriz'd at the unexpected Arrival of the French Ambassador; and caus'd Her Husband to acquaint him, That He had left the Cardinal of Corduba (he was one of the Queen's Creatures) at Madrid, to take Care of Foreign Affairs during His Absence, to whom he might have communicated his Memorial; and that He only came there to recover His Health, and not to trouble Himself with Business. This pretended Memorial was, it seems, to offer to the King of Spain his most Christian Majesty's Assistance to raise the Siege of Cuta, which the Queen was too Wise to let Her Husband Accept; since by that means the French would have got what She was endeavouring to prevent; I mean, a Footing and Interest in Spain. The Marquis d' Harcourt, after this unsuccessful Journey, bethought himself of another Stratagem, and being return'd to Madrid, did so powerfully work on the Ambition of Cardinal Portocarrero, that he engag'd him in the Interest of France.

While these Things pass in the South Parts of Europe, the French were not less busy to strengthen themselves towards the North, by an Alliance with the Crown of Sweden, which at length was concluded at Stockholm, on the 9th of July; the main Articles of which were, I. That the ancient Alliance was renew'd between the Kings of France and Sweden, their Heirs and Successors. II. That the Aim and Intention of this Treaty, was to preserve and secure the common Peace, by such means as should be judg'd most proper and convenient. III. That if it should be disturb'd by any Breach and Hostilities, the Two Kings would make it Their Business to Repair the Wrongs in an Amicable way. IV. That if Their Endeavours prov'd Insufficient, They would jointly consider of ways to defend the Rights of the Country injur'd. V. That in case any Prince or State would enter into this Treaty within a Year, They should be admitted by the Consent of Both Kings. VI. That neither the One nor the Other, should make Peace or Truce without comprehending the other therein. VII. That the Articles of the Treaties formerly concluded by either of the Two, with other Kings, Princes, or States, should remain in full Force and Vigor, so far as they should not be contrary to this. VIII. That the Freedom of Commerce between the Subjects of the Two Kings, should be preserv'd as formerly. IX. In pursuance of which, all Ports, Cities, and Provinces, should be open to the Subjects of both Crowns, according as the Laws and Customs should permit, both to Sell their Commodities in these Places and Buy others. X. And that this particular Treaty should continue Ten Years, with liberty to prolong this Term, if it were judg'd convenient by the Two Kings; who by Consent should have a watchful Eye upon the Means to preserve the Peace against the Danger that threaten'd it. It was Comical to hear the French Ministers in Foreign Courts talk of their Master's Endeavours to preserve the Tranquility of Europe, when he seem'd the most forward to disturb it, upon the first News of the King of Spain's Death, which was hourly expected at the Court of France. For to say nothing of the Motions of His Land and Naval Forces, which I have already hinted, His most Christian Majesty caus'd a great Camp to be made at Compeigne, the pretence of which, was to instruct the Duke of Burgundy in the Art of War; but which gave no small Umbrage to the Neighbouring Princes and States, who look'd upon it as designed to make a sudden Irruption into the Spanish Netherlands. However, the unexpected Recovery of the King of Spain's Health, as it disappointed the Hopes of the one, so it dispell'd the Fears of the rest, at least for this Year.

King William's Journey to Zell, gave the Court of France as much Uneasiness, as France gave the Allies, by the Camp at Compeigne; tho' tis most certain that his Britannick Majesty had nothing in View, but to cement the Union of the Princes of Germany, by a Match between the King of the Romans, and the Princess of Hannover, which was now agreed on, and soon after Completed; and by removing the Apprehensions some Members of the Empire were under, of the growing Power of the Emperor; which His Britannick Majesty did effectually in concert with the States, by putting a stop to the Hungarian War, which had continu'd for above Fifteen Years. The Armies on both sides were indeed considerable in Number and Strength this Summer; but yet there seem'd no great Disposition in either for Action, but rather an inclination in the contending Parties, to set up a Treaty under the Mediation of the Lord Paget the English, and Mr. Colliers the Dutch Ambassador, who towards the middle of August arriv'd in the Turkish Camp near Belgrade; and by their good Offices got the Place to hold the Conferences to be between Peter Waradin and Salankemen; the Emperor's and Confederate Ministers being to reside at Carlowitz, the Sultan's at Salankemen, and the Mediators between the two Places. It was the 7th of November when the latter deliver'd to the Turkish Plenipotentiaries the Preliminary Articles; which were in substance, That each Party respectively should return what he possess'd: And the Five following Days were spent in preparing Matter upon which they were to enter in Conference. On the 13th, the Imperial and Turkish Plenipotentiaries caus'd several fair Tents to be set up on the sides of the House appointed for the Conferences. And by Nine in the Morning, the first arriv'd at the Mediator's Lodgings, whither the Turkish also repair'd about the same time; and from thence went together to the House of the Conference. Here after mutual Civilities, they took their Places in the midst of the Tent, which had Four Doors, Two whereof being opposite to one another, serv'd for the Entrance of the Mediators; and the other Two for the Imperial and Turkish Plenipotentiaries. The Count of Ortinghen, one of the Emperor's Ambassadors, had the Right of the former, and the Effendi, or Chancellor of the Ottoman Port, of the latter; the Mediators, Secretaries, and those of the Imperial Embassy, were placed behind; and the Turkish Secretary sat down before upon the Floor. The Conference was open'd with the Pronunciation of these Words, God Grant us Happy Peace: And last'd from half an Hour after Ten, till Three in the Afternoon, when the Mediators and Plenipotentiaries went out in the same Order as they Enter'd. The Conferences were renew'd in the same manner the three succeeding Days, with good success;

1698.

Treaty between the Ottoman Port and the Empire

Treaty between France and Sweden.

1698. cels; but some Debates arising about the giving up of Teckley, and the Holy Sepulchre, the dismantling of Caminiac, and the surrendering of another Place upon the Black-Sea; besides the quitting of Azoph to the Muscovites; and chiefly about the regulation of Limits between the two Empires, and the Venetian and Turkish Territories; the Plenipotentiaries sent Expresses to their respective Masters, which wasted a great deal of time: However, at length the Imperialists and Poles concluded their Part of the Treaty on the 26th of January, 1699. and perhaps would have done it sooner, but in a sort of Compliance to the Venetians, who did not sign theirs till the middle of the next Month. As for the Articles between the Czar of Muscovy and the Sultan, they contain'd only a Truce for two Years, and so were soon agreed upon and sign'd on the 25th of December, 1698. By this Peace the Emperor preserv'd His late Acquisitions, and vastly enlarg'd His Territories; the Poles had the Important Place of Caminiac restored to them, in its present State, with other Advantages: The Muscovites were Gainers by the keeping of Azoph; and though the Venetians seem'd to have far'd hardest in this Negotiation, as is usual with those who make their Terms last, yet they had all the Morea, and several Fortresses in Dalmatia yielded up to them: So that upon a right Computation it will appear, that the Turks lost the best half of their Dominions in Europe. By this time the New King of Poland having brought the Cardinal Primate, who had all along stickled for the Prince of Conti, to acknowledge His Majesty's Title, and compos'd the Troubles of Lithuania, an Universal Peace seem'd now to be settled throughout Christendom.

On Thursday, Dec. 1. the King set sail from the Coast of Holland, in the William and Mary Yacht, under a Convoy commanded by Sir Claudius Shovel, and landed at Margate, Dec. 3. He lay that Night at Canterbury, and came the next Evening to Kensington. After several short Prorogations to wait His Majesty's Return, the Parliament met at Westminster on Tuesday, Dec. 6. and His Majesty coming to the House of Peers with usual Solemnity, sent for the Commons, to whom the Lord Chancellor signified His Majesty's Pleasure, that they should proceed to the Choice of a Speaker, and present him on Friday next; the Commons made choice of a very Worthy Person, Sir Thomas Littleton, Bar^t, who being presented on Dec. 9. was graciously approv'd by His Majesty, who then made this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech. I Have no doubt but you are met together with Hearts fully dispos'd to do what is necessary for the Safety, Honour and Happiness of the Kingdom; and that is all I have to ask of you.

"In order to this, two Things seem principally to require your Consideration.

"The One is, What Strength ought to be maintained at Sea, and what Force kept up at Land for this Year. All I shall observe to you upon this Head is, That the Flourishing of Trade, the Supporting of Credit, and the Quiet of Peoples Minds at home, will depend upon the Opinion they have of their Security; and to preserve to England the Weight and Influence it has at present on the Councils and Affairs Abroad, it will be requisite Europe should see you will not be wanting to your selves.

"The Second Thing I shall mention to you as of great Consequence, is the making some further Progress towards discharging the Debts which the Nation has contracted by reason of the long and expensive War. In this the Publick Interest as well as Justice is concerned: 1698. And I think an English Parliament can never make such a Mistake, as not to hold sacred all Parliamentary Engagements.

"Gentlemen of the House of Commons, I do earnestly recommend these Things to you, that you may provide such Supplies as you shall judge necessary for these several Occasions.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I think it would be happy if some effectual Expedient could be found for employing the Poor, which might tend to the great Increase of Our Manufactures, as well as remove a Heavy Burthen from the People. I hope also you will employ your Thoughts about some good Bills for the Advancement of Trade, and for the further discouraging of Vice and Prophaneness. The Things I have mentioned to you being of Common Concern.

It appear'd by this Speech, that His Majesty was very desirous to have a good Body of Land-Forces kept on foot, as well as a good Navy maintain'd at Sea; being apprehensive that if England was entirely disarm'd, it would be too great a Temptation to the Ambition of France, to break through all Treaties and Engagements, in order to invade the Monarchy of Spain. Had the late Partition Treaty been communicated to the Commons, they would perhaps at that time have approv'd of it, or at least have been so far under the same Apprehensions with His Majesty, as to see the necessity of keeping and awing France within the Bounds set Her by the Peace of Ryswick. But the French King having now evacuated most of the Towns he was to surrender, the Accounts from Madrid giving great Hopes of the King of Spain's Recovery, and all Things having a Fair Aspect Abroad, the Commons fell in with the Popular Notion, That a Standing Army in Time of Peace was useless and burthensome, would be an Ill Example to Posterity, and might encourage a Bad Prince to encroach upon the Liberties of the Subject. This Cry was artfully improved by those Members who were disaffected to King William, and was carried on by some of the greatest Instruments of the Revolution, who having, contrary to their Expectations, got nothing from the Court, were now in Anger to turn against it; that they might hereafter be bought of, when they could not be before rewarded. Under this Disposition of the House of Commons when they came to a Consideration of His Majesty's Speech, they Resolved, That all the Land Forces of England, in English Pay, exceeding Seven Thousand Men (and those consisting of His Majesty's Natural Born Subjects) be forthwith Paid and Disbanded. And that all the Forces in Ireland, exceeding Twelve Thousand Men (and those His Majesty's Natural Born Subjects, to be kept and maintain'd by the Kingdom of Ireland) be likewise forthwith disbanded. And they ordered a Bill to be brought in upon the said Resolutions, which was eagerly push'd on, and soon brought to perfection, because the Good and the Ill Designs concentred in it.

These Proceedings made the King very uneasy; and the more so, because His Dutch Regiment of Guards, who had so long serv'd Him, was by this Bill to be torn away from Him, and to be sent out of the Kingdom. However, His Majesty like a Wife and Good Prince, never opposing His own Will to what seem'd to be the Voice and Judgment of His People, chose rather to compliment the Commons, than to contend with them. So on Wednesday, Feb. 1. the King came to the Parliament, and gave the Royal Assent to the several Bills ready for Him.

The King desirous of Forces by Land and Sea.

The Commons for Disbanding.

King Returns from Holland.

New Parliament meets.

King's Speech.

1698. Bills passed. 1. An Act for granting an Aid to His Majesty for Disbanding the Army, and other Necessary Occasions. 2. An Act to prevent the Making or Selling of Buttons made of Cloth, Serge, Drugget, or other Stuff. 3. An Act to prohibit the Exportation of any Corn, Malt, Meal, Flower, Bread, Biscuit, or Starch, for one Year, from the 10th of February, 1698. 4. An Act for the more easy and certain Payment of the Debts of Edward Earl of Darentwater, by Sale of Woods and Timber, and for enabling him to raise Money for Discharge of Incumbrances upon part of his Estate. And three other Private Acts for Naturalizing Elizabeth Farewell, Nicholas Lepall, and Bartholomew Ogilvy. After which His Majesty made a Kind and Wise Speech, to shew His Reasons to pass the Disbanding Bill, and yet to expostulate a little upon the Hardship of it.

King's Speech. My Lords and Gentlemen, I came to Pass the Bill for Disbanding the Army, as soon as I understood it was ready for Me: Though in Our present Circumstances there appears great hazard in breaking such a Number of the Troops: And though I might think Myself unkindly used, that those Guards who came over with Me to your Assistance, and have constantly attended Me in all the Actions wherein I have been engaged, should be removed from Me; yet it is My fixt Opinion, That nothing can be so fatal to Us, as that any Distrust or Jealousie should arise between Me and My People, which I must own would have been very unexpected, after what I have Undertaken, Ventured, and Acted for the Restoring and Securing of their Liberties. I have thus plainly told you the only Reason which has induced Me to Pass this Bill: And now I think Myself oblig'd, in discharge of the Trust reposed in Me, and for My Own Justification, that no Ill Consequences may lye at My Door, to tell you as plainly My Judgment, that the Nation is left too much exposed. It is therefore incumbent on you to take this Matter into your serious Consideration, and effectually to provide such a Strength as is necessary for the Safety of the Kingdom, and the Preservation of the Peace which God hath given Us.

The Commons were so well pleas'd with this Gracious Complaisance of the King, that they immediately resolv'd, That an Humble Address be presented to the King, to give His Majesty Thanks for His Most Gracious Speech to Both Houses of Parliament; with the Assurances of this House, That they will stand by, and assist His Majesty in the Support of Him and His Government, against all Enemies whatsoever. And they accordingly put their Resolution into this Form of Address.

Commons Address of Thanks. Most Gracious Sovereign, We Your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Assembled, being highly sensible of the Difficulties Your Majesty has undertaken, the Labours You have sustained, and the Hazards You have run, in Rescuing us from Popery and Arbitrary Power, Restoring our Liberties, and Giving Peace and Quiet to all Christendom; beg leave to return our most hearty Thanks for Your most Gracious Speech: In which You express so great a Regard for the Good Will and Affections of Your People, and have given so undeniable a Proof of Your Readiness to Comply with the Desires of Your Parliament: And as Your Majesty has shewn a most Tender and Fatherly Concern for the Security and Safety of Your People; so give us leave to assure Your Majesty, That You shall never have Reason to think the Commons are Undutiful or Unkind to Your Majesty; but that We will upon all Occasions Stand by, and Assist Your Majesty in the Preservation of Your Sacred Person, and Support of Your Government against all Your Enemies whatsoever. This Address being Presented by the whole House, had the Honour to be thus Answered by the King. Gentlemen, I take this Address very kindly: I am fully satisfied of your Duty and Affection to Me, and have no doubt but you will always Act in the manner you have express'd on this Occasion.

The Lords had made an Address on Jan. 3. wherein they represent their being highly sensible of His Majesty's great Care and Goodness towards His People, express'd upon so many Occasions, and particularly in His Speech to Both Houses, at the opening of this Parliament; begg'd leave, by way of Address, humbly to assure His Majesty, that as they should always retain a lively Impression of those great and continued Obligations, which His Majesty had laid upon this Nation to all Posterity; so it should be, upon every Occasion, the perpetual Care and Study of that House, with the most Zealous Duty, and the most Grateful Affections imaginable, to make His Majesty all suitable Returns within their Power. And at this time particularly, they further assur'd His Majesty, That they should not fail to use their most diligent Endeavours, for the attaining of those great and good Ends which His Majesty had been pleas'd to recommend to His Parliament. The King told the Lords, That He took their Address very kindly, and gave them His hearty Thanks; and that they might always depend upon His Kindness, as He did on this Assurance of theirs to Him, and their Zeal for the Publick Good. And now upon His Majesty's Signing the Act for the Disbanding the Army, the Lords presented their most hearty Thanks to His Majesty for it, and for the Gracious Expressions in His Speech; That it was His Majesty's fix'd Opinion, that nothing could be so fatal to them, as that any Distrust or Jealousie should arise between His Majesty and His People. As likewise for His great Care and Concern for the Safety of the Kingdom upon all Occasions; assuring His Majesty, that at all times, for the Safety of the Kingdom, and the Preservation of the Peace which God had given them, they would Assist and Defend His Majesty against all His Enemies, both at Home and Abroad.

The King Thank'd the Lords for their Address; and finding that Both Houses concurr'd in the same Opinion, as to the Disbanding of the Army, His Majesty gave effectual Orders for reducing it, according to the late Act, to the Number of Seven Thousand Men, to be Maintain'd in England, under the Name of Guards and Garrisons: But by reason that Cavalry is more serviceable upon any sudden Exigency, than Infantry, His Majesty took care to preserve more Regiments of the first than of the last: I mean, in respect to the usual Proportion which is observed between the Number of the Horse and Foot of an Army.

This great Reform cost the King many a heavy and melancholy Thought: But what touch'd His Majesty to the very Quick, was the Necessity He was under, of sending away His Dutch Guards: A Regiment, who had faithfully attended His Person from His Cradle; follow'd His Fortune every where; and to whom, besides innumerable 1698.

Lords Address

King Disbands the Army.

And send away His Dutch Guards.

1698. numerable other Signal Services, He ow'd His Victory at the Famous Battel of the Boyne. With these His Majesty had the utmost, and indeed, the justest Regret to part : And therefore upon the 18th. of March, He sent a Message by the Lord Ranelagh to the Commons, not only Sign'd by His Majesty, but all of His own Hand-Writing.

William R.

But first Expostu- res with the Com- mons.

“ His Majesty is pleas'd to let the House know, “ that the Necessary Preparations are made for “ Transporting the Guards who came with Him “ into England ; and that He intends to send them “ away immediately, unless out of Considerati- “ on to Him, the House be dispos'd to find a “ way for continuing them longer in His Ser- “ vice, which His Majesty would take very “ kindly.

Upon Reading this Message, the Question was put, That a Day be appointed to consider of His Majesty's said Message. But it was carried in the Negative, and Resolv'd, That a Committee be appointed to draw up an Humble Address to be Presented to His Majesty, representing the Reasons why the House cannot comply with the Purport of His Majesty's Message this Day communicated to the House. And this Address was accordingly prepared, and delivered on March 24.

Com- mons An- swer

Most Gracious Sovereign,

“ We Your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal “ Subjects, the Commons in this present Parlia- “ ment Assembled, do, with unfeigned Zeal to “ Your Majesty's Person and Government, “ (which God long preserve) most humbly Re- “ present to Your Majesty,

“ That the passing the late Act for Disbanding “ the Army, gave great Satisfaction to Your “ Subjects ; and the Readiness Your Majesty has “ express'd by Your Message to comply with the “ punctual Execution thereof, will prevent all “ Occasions of Distrust or Jealousie between “ Your Majesty and Your People.

“ It is, Sir, to Your Loyal Commons an “ unspeakable Grief, that Your Majesty should “ be advis'd to propose any thing in Your Mes- “ sage, to which they cannot consent, with due “ Regard to that Constitution Your Majesty “ came over to restore, and have so often ex- “ pos'd Your Royal Person to preserve, and did “ in Your Gracious Declaration promise, that “ all those Foreign Forces which came over “ with You, should be sent back.

“ In Duty therefore to Your Majesty, and to “ discharge the Trust repos'd in Us, we crave “ leave to lay before You ; That nothing condu- “ ceth more to the Happiness and Welfare of this “ Kingdom, than an entire Confidence between “ Your Majesty and Your People ; which can “ no way be so firmly established, as by intrust- “ ing Your Sacred Person with your own Sub- “ jects, who have so eminently signalized them- “ selves on all Occasions, during the late long “ and expensive War.

The King could not be pleas'd with this Ad- dress, which was a Denial of what He Himself, and most Part of the World, did believe to be a Reasonable and Modest Request of a King to His People. However, to disappoint some Ene- mies, and if possible, to reconcile others, His Majesty gave this Gracious Answer.

The King saith

Gentlemen,

“ I Came hither to restore the Ancient Consti- “ tution of this Government. I have had

“ all possible Regard to it since my Coming, and “ I am resolv'd through the Course of My Reign, “ to endeavour to preserve it entire in all the “ Parts of it.

“ I have a full Confidence in the Affections of “ My People, and I am well assur'd, they have “ the same in Me ; and I will never give them “ just Cause to alter this Opinion.

“ As to my Subjects who serv'd during the “ War, I am an Eye-witness of their Bravery, “ and of their Zeal for My Person and Govern- “ ment ; and I have not been wanting to ex- “ press My Sense of this to My Parliament, as “ well as upon other Occasions.

“ I have all the Reason to trust and to rely “ upon them, that a Prince can have ; and I am “ satisfi'd, there is not one Person among them “ capable of entertaining a Thought, that what “ was propos'd in My Message, proceeded from “ any Distrust of them.

“ It shall be My Study to the utmost of My “ Power, to perform the Part of a Just and a “ Good King : And as I will ever be strictly “ and nicely careful of Observing My Promi- “ ses to My Subjects, so I will not doubt of their “ Tender Regards to Me.

1698.

This Answer, though it could not but please, yet it would not move the Commons from their Resolutions ; so that the Dutch Guards were soon after Shipp'd off for Holland : Which, though it seem'd to weaken His Majesty in His Military Defence and Safety, yet it strengthened his Interest in the Hearts of all good Subjects, who saw now in an extraordinary Instance, that the King could deny Himself any thing to oblige His People.

The Peo- ple plea- sed.

On the same day, March the 23th. the King came to the House of Peers, and pass'd these several Bills. 1. An Act to prohibit the excessive Dis- stilling of Spirits and Low Wines from Corn ; and against the Exporting of Beer and Ale ; and to prevent Frauds in Distillers. 2. An Act to enlarge the Trade to Russia. 3. An Act for preventing irregular Pro- ceedings of Sheriffs and other Officers, in making the Returns of Members chosen to serve in Parliament.

Acts pass- ed.

4. An Act for the clearing, repairing, preserving, and maintaining the Haven and Peers of Great Yarmouth in the County of Norfolk. 5. An Act for making and keeping the River Tone Navigable, from Bridgwater to Taunton, in the County of Somerset. 6. An Act for making the Ships Margaret and Friendship of Bristol, so Trade as Free Ships. 7. An Act for the Relief of the Creditors of Sir Robert Vyner, Knight and Baronet, deceas'd. 8. An Act for enabling George Penn, Esq; to sell Lands for the Payment of his Debts, and other Purposes therein mentioned. 9. An Act for the Ship Charles, Fly-Boat of Exeter, to Trade as a Free Ship. And several other private distinct Acts, for the Naturalizing of James St. Pierre, John Denny, Remond Hensberg, Charles de Sibourg, Francis St. George, William Lloyd, Cornelius de Wit, Godfrey Lloyd, John Meales, Theophilus Rabemiers, and many others.

One of the Consequences of Disbanding the Army, was a more visible Concourse of the Jacobites and Papists about the Town and the Court, in so bold and insolent a manner, that the Commons took notice of it, and upon that Occasion presented this Address to the King, on February the 21st.

“ We your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal “ Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Assem- “ bled, having observ'd the great Concourse to “ this City, of Papists and other disaffected Per- “ sons, who have not own'd Your Majesty to be “ Lawful and Rightful King of these Realms ; “ and the Boldness they assume from your Maje- “ sty's

Address against Pa- pists and Jacobites.

1698. m " His Majesty's unexampled Clemency, not only to keep
" Horfes and Arms contrary to Law, but also to " frequent all publick Places of Resort near Your
" Two Houses of Parliament, and even to ap" proach Your Royal Palaces, whereby they may " have Opportunities to perpetrate any Wicked
" Attempt against Your Royal Person; on the " Safety and Preservation whereof, our Religion
" and Liberties, and the Peace and Welfare not " only of these Kingdoms, but of all Europe, do
" in very great measure depend.

" And having also considered the many Plots
" and Conspiracies against Your Majesty's Per" son and Government, but especially the late
" Horrid intended Assassination, contrived and " carried on not only by Papists, (whose Religion
" and Interest might lead them to it) but even
" by such who at their Death (to the great Scand-
" al of our Religion) professed and owned
" themselves to be Members of the Church of " England; which chiefly, under God, owes its
" Preservation and Defence to Your Majesty;
" and whose Doctrines are directly opposite to
" all such Inhuman and Treasonable Practi" ces.

" And having also certain Information, That
" great Numbers of Popish Priests and Jesuits,
" within this City and Parts adjacent, intrude
" themselves into the Presence of Sick and Dy" ing Persons, with design to prevail upon them
" in their Weakness, to be reconciled to the " Church of Rome; and daily endeavour to per" vert and seduce from their Allegiance, Your " Majesty's good Subjects, impoisoning them
" with their Wicked and Damnable Doctrines
" and Principles: And that they have imported
" great Quantities of Popish Books, and keep " Schools to Breed up, and Instruct Children in
" the Romish Superstition and Idolatry.

" We therefore hold our selves obliged, for
" quieting the Minds of Your Good Subjects,
" and in Duty to Your Majesty, humbly to be-
" seech Your Majesty, That You will be Gra" ciously pleased (in order to suppress such Pra" ctices of the restless and notorious Enemies of " Your Government) to issue out Your Royal
" Proclamation, for Removing all Papists, and " others who disown Your Majesty's Govern" ment, from the City of London, and Parts ad" jacent, according to the Laws; and that the " Laws may be put in Execution against them in " such manner, that their wicked Designs may " be effectually disappointed.

To this Address His Majesty made Answer; That He would take care that the Laws should be put in Execution, according to their Desire. In order to which, His Majesty caused His Royal Proclamation to be published on the 2d. of March. A little before, the Old East-India Company had presented a Petition to the Commons, praying, " That their Case might be taken into Consideration; and that the House would make some Provision, that their Corporation might subsist for the Residue of the Term of Twenty One Years, granted by His Majesty's Charter: That the Payment of the Five Pounds per Cent. by the late Act for Settling the Trade to the East-Indies, might be settled and adjusted in such a manner, as it might not remain a Burden upon the Petitioners. And that such further Considerations might be had for the Petitioners Relief, and for the Preservation of the East-India Trade to England, as should be thought meet." The Commons consider'd of this Petition, and on February the 27th. order'd a Bill to be brought in thereupon; which Bill was reject- ed before it came to a Second Reading.

At the beginning of December, William Norris, Esq; His Majesty's Ambassador to the Great Mogul; had the Honour and Dignity of a Baronet conferr'd upon him. When the Court of Directors of the English Company Trading to the East-Indies attended on His Majesty, to Congratulate His safe Return, and to make their humble Acknowledgments for his Royal Favours to that Company, December the 14th, the King conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Stycynsham Masters, James Bateman, and Edmund Harrison, Esqs; Three of the Directors. On January the 15th. the King conferr'd the same Honour of Knighthood upon Edward Littleton, Esq; whom the Company had made choice of, to be their President in the Bay of Bengall.

As to the Affairs of Scotland, the Parliament met at Edinburgh on July the 19th. and His Majesty's Commission constituting Patrick Earl of Marchmont (Lord Chancellor of that Kingdom) His Majesty's High Commissioner for holding the same, was read; as likewise His Majesty's Letter to the Lord Commissioner, appointing the Viscount Seafield Principal Secretary of State, to be President during this Session; and the Lord Polworth, to Sit and Vote as Lord High Treasurer: Who being both Sworn, and having Sign'd the Assurance and Association, took their Places in the usual manner. This done, His Majesty's Letter to the Parliament was read: " Wherein His Majesty thank'd them for the Proofs of their Loyalty and good Affection to his Person and Government, in the former Sessions of Parliament; and assur'd them, that he design'd to give them such Encouragement upon all Occasions, as might make them find the Advantages of their Faithfulness and Duty to Him. That he was sensible of their cheerful Assistance, during the Continuance of the War; which by the Blessing of God was now ended in an honourable Peace. Moreover, His Majesty acquainted them, That the present Circumstances of Affairs hindred Him from prosecuting His Design of holding this Session in Person; but that he had appointed the Earl of Marchmont to represent His Royal Authority among them; being well satisfied of His Abilities for discharging this Trust, and having fully instructed him to do whatever might be necessary for the Support of the Government, and Safety of the Kingdom. That their Enemies abroad, and those who were disaffected to the Government at home, were still ready to lay hold on all Opportunities for carrying on their bold Designs: And therefore His Majesty judg'd it absolutely necessary for their Preservation, that the Forces upon the present Establishment should be continued; and He did not doubt but they would provide suitable Supplies for maintaining them. His Majesty also recommended to them the Raising Supplies to make good the Deficiencies of the Funds given in former Sessions, for the paying the Arrears that were due, and repairing the Forts and Garison'd Places: The taking effectual Methods to discourage Vice, Immorality, and Irreligion; and Unanimity and Cordial Concurrence in the Dispatch of the Publick Affairs; that it might appear to all they were not unmindful of the happy Deliverance they had had, from the Dangers to which their Religion and Liberties were formerly expos'd: Assuring them, in the Conclusion, of His Care to maintain their Religion, Laws, and Liberties; and of His Royal Favour and Protection, in all their Concerns." After this, the Lord High Commissioner, and the Lord President, enlarg'd the Reasonableness of His Maje-

Affairs of Scotland.

1698.

m

East-India Companies.

1698. sty's Demands, in their respective Speeches to the Parliament; and then Adjourn'd the same to the 21st. When the Parliament met again, and appointed Four Committees; one to consider of the Security of the Kingdom; one for Trade, another for Elections, and a fourth for returning an Answer to His Majesty's Letter. Two days after, the first of these Committees having made their Report, it was resolv'd, That the present standing Forces of this Kingdom were necessary to be continued. And thereupon another Committee was Named, to find Ways and Means to raise the necessary Sums for their Subsistence.

In the mean time, the Scotch India-Company being very uneasy upon account of the stop put to their Subscriptions by England, laid open their Grievances before the Parliament, in a Petition; wherein they Represented, "That whereas the Wisdom of the King and Parliament had thought fit, by Two severall solemn Acts and Letters Patent, under the Great Seal of that Kingdom, to establish their Company with such Power, Privileges, and Immunities, as were needful to encourage any such new Undertaking in that Nation; and particularly to raise a Joint-Stock in such manner as they should think fit; and for that end, to enfranchise such Foreigners as would become Partners with them, and to enter into Treaties of Commerce with any in Amity with His Majesty for that Effect: That those of their Number, who were then entrusted with the Management of that Affair, did think it most natural to make the first Offer of sharing their said Privilege with their Countrymen, and other Neighbours in England, as living under the same Monarchy; and that they not only readily embraced the Offer, but in Nine Days subscrib'd 300000 l. Sterling, as the one half of the Capital Stock then propos'd, and actually paid in the first fourth Part thereof; part in Specie, part in Bank Notes, payable upon Demand. That Both Houses of Parliament of England, taking Umbrage at those Proceedings, had not only jointly Addressed His Majesty, for frustrating the Ends of the said Acts, but the House of Commons had also appointed a Committee, to Examine what Methods were taken for obtaining the said Acts of Parliament for Establishing their Company; who were the Subscribers thereunto, and who were the Promoters and Advisers thereof; with Power to send for Persons, Papers, and Records: And that pursuant thereto, the said Committee had given Orders to Summon not only the English Subscribers, but even some Persons residing then in Scotland; as by the said Address, Votes of the House of Commons, and Copy of the said Summons, did appear: By all which, together with some other Measures then taken, their Friends in England were, to their great Loss, Disappointment, and Retardment, forced to relinquish their Enterprise. That, notwithstanding that Discouragement, not only most of the Nobility, Gentry, Merchants, and the whole Body of the Royal Burroughs, laid upon the Inducement, and publick Faith of the said Acts of Parliament, and Letters-Patent, contributed as Adventurers in raising a far more considerable Joint-Stock than any was ever before rais'd in the Kingdom for any publick Undertaking or Project of Trade whatsoever, which made it of so much the more universal a Concern to the Nation; but they had also all the promising Hopes of Foreign Aid that their Hearts could wish, especially at Hamburg, where the Merchants of that City enter'd into Contract with their Deputies, to join at least 200000 l. Sterling with 1698. them; till to their great Surprize and Loss the English Ministers there, had, under the presence of special Warrant from His Majesty, put a stop thereto, by giving in a Memorial to the Senate of that City, not only disowning the Authority of the said Acts of Parliament and Letters-Patent, but also threatening both Senate and Inhabitants, with the King's utmost Displeasure, if they should countenance or join with them in any Treaty of Trade or Commerce; as by the annexed Copies thereof might appear: Which Memorial they pray'd might, for the better Information of his Grace and the Estates, be read in Parliament. That after the said Memorial was by the Senate transmitted to the Commerci, or Body of Merchants of that City, they to assert their own Freedom, had advised and prevailed upon their (the Scots) Deputies and Agents, who were there for the time, to open Books in the said Merchants Hall, where for some days they sign'd considerable Sums pursuant to their said Contract, tho' under Condition to be void, if they should not procure some Declaration from the King that might render them secure from the Threatnings and other Insinuations contain'd in the said Memorial. That as the reasonable (nay, and unquestionable) Prospects which they had of a powerful Assistance from Hamburg, and several other Places (if not obstructed as aforesaid) had induced them to prepare a far greater Equipage at first, than otherwise they would have done; so the rendring these Measures abortive, had not only weaken'd their Stock, lessen'd their Credit, retarded their first Expedition, and disheartned many of their Partners at home but even slacken'd their Resolution and Power from Prosecuting at that time, several other Branches of Foreign and Domestick Trades and Improvements, which they had in view, if they had not met with such Obstructions and Discouragements from time to time. That though their Company was more immediately and sensibly touch'd in many Respects by such Proceedings than any other, yet they humbly conceived also, that the Honour and Independency of the Nation, as well as the Credit and Authority of the Parliament, was struck at through their Sides. That they could not as Countrymen, and in Duty to that Collective Power which gave their Company first a Being, but inform his Grace his Majesty's High Commissioner, and the Right Honourable the Estates of Parliament, of the Premises, to the end that the Great Council of the Nation (then Assembled) might do therein, as they in their profound Wisdom and Discretion should think fit. That as to what concerned their Company in particular, they should humbly crave leave to suggest farther, That the Ships being then at Sea, on their intended Voyage, the former Treatment which their Company met with in England, and elsewhere, might give them just grounds to suspect, that if either through multiplicity of publick Affairs, or otherwise howsoever, his Grace, and the Right Honourable the Estates of Parliament, should neglect the taking present Notice of such Umbrage, the Enemies of their Company would be thereby encourag'd either directly or indirectly to pursue their former Designs of ruining (if possible) all their Measures. Therefore they desir'd his Grace and the Estates of Parliament to take the Premises into their serious Consideration, to vindicate their Company's Reputation Abroad, by supporting the Credit of the Acts of Parliament, and Letters-Patent, by which the same was Establish'd, and where-

1698.

“ in the Honour of the Nation was so much concern'd ; to take effectual Measures for repairing the great Loss and Damages which they had already sustain'd through the unwarrantable Treatment above-mentioned, as well as for preventing the like for the time to come ; And withal to continue to them the Privileges and Exemptions mentioned in the said Acts of Parliament, and Letters-Patent for some longer time, in consideration of the time already elapsed without Execution, and their Stock lying dead without Improvement, by reason of the aforesaid Obstructions.

The Parliament having maturely weigh'd this Petition, thought fit, by way of Address, humbly to represent to His Majesty, “ That having consider'd a Representation made to them by the Council General of the Company trading to Africa and the Indies, which mentioned several Obstructions that they met with in the prosecution of their Trade ; particularly by a Memorial presented to the Senate of Hamburg, by His Majesty's Resident in that City, tending to lessen the Credit of the Rights and Privileges granted to the said Company, by an Act of the then present Parliament : They therefore in an humble Duty laid before His Majesty the whole Nation's Concern in that Matter, and they did most earnestly intreat, and most assuredly expect, that His Majesty in His Royal Wisdom would take such Measures as might effectually vindicate the Undoubted Rights and Privileges of the said Company, and support the Credit and Interest thereof. And as they were in Duty bound to return His Majesty most hearty Thanks for the Gracious Assurance His Majesty had been pleas'd to give them of all due Encouragement, for promoting the Trade of that Kingdom ; that so they were thereby encouraged humbly to recommend to the more especial Marks of His Royal Favour, the concern of the said Company, as that Branch of their Trade, in which they and the Nation which they represented, had a more peculiar Interest.

The Company having thus engaged the Parliament to espouse their Interest, they seconded their Address by a Petition to the King, importing, “ That whereas the Parliament had by their Address been pleas'd to recommend the Concerns of the Company to His Majesty, for supporting the Credit and Interest thereof, which had already suffer'd in a great measure, by reason of the several Obstructions which they had met with in the Prosecution of their Trade ; particularly by a Memorial given in to the Senate of Hamburg, by His Majesty's Minister there ; These encourag'd them with all Humility to lay before His Majesty, That as the said Memorial was given in to the Senate of Hamburg in a most Solemn and Publick Manner, so they humbly conceiv'd, that the Effects thereof could not be taken away, but by some Intimation made to the said Senate, that they might enter into Commerce with them as freely and securely in all respects as they might have done before giving in of the said Memorial. That in consideration of the Damages sustain'd by the Company, His Majesty would be pleas'd for their Encouragement, as a Gracious Mark of His Royal Favour, to bestow upon them the two smallest of the Frigats then lying useless in Brunsvick Harbour : And that in regard of the Time lost by reason of the said Obstructions, His Majesty would be graciously pleas'd to continue the Privileges granted by Act of Parliament to the said Company, of being Custom-free for such longer Time as His Majesty should think fit.

This Affair occasioning great Heats and Discontents in the Parliament, the Lord High Commissioner put a stop to their Proceedings towards the beginning of September, and adjourn'd them to the 25th of November.

During this Interval, there being a Letter sent from Mr. Stevenson, the Company's Agent at Hamburg, to the Court of Directors of the Company, on the 4th of November, concerning the Hamburg Memorial, and another of the 18th of the same Month ; this occasion'd another Letter from the Directors of the Company to the Lord Seafeld, Secretary of State, wherein they declar'd, “ That they had by Order of the Council-General of their Company, transmitted the Copies of Two Letters receiv'd from their Company's Agent at Hamburg to his Lordship ; upon the reading whereof the Day before, at a Meeting of the said Council-General, they were not a little surpriz'd at the Contents, considering the many repeated Assurances they had formerly by Letters and Word of Mouth, and even in Parliament, That the King had given Orders to His Minister at Hamburg, with Relation to the Memorial given in to the Senate of that City against their Company ; but after some reasoning thereupon, and considering how far his Lordship's frank Undertaking, when in Scotland, as well as the Station he was in, did engage his best Endeavours to procure the Company Justice, and vindicate the Company's Rights in that Matter, they had order'd them, (the Court of Directors) to transmit the said Copies to His Lordship, and expected his Lordship's Answer to that and their late Petition to His Majesty, before they remonstrated any further with relation thereunto.” Hereupon the Secretary, on December 13. ensuing, acquainted the said Court of Directors, by a Letter sent to Sir John Sabau, President to the said Court, That he would take the first convenient Opportunity he could have to represent the Matter to the King, but could not yet expect to have it, His Majesty being very much employ'd in the Affairs of the English Parliament.

To look over into Ireland, the Parliament met at Dublin on Septemb. 27. and the Lords Justices address'd themselves to Both Houses in this manner.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

“ We have called you together by His Majesty's Command, as soon as the Season of the Year would permit us to do it with your Conveniencies, being very desirous to send you those Bills which we transmitted the last Year ; and which are so great Proofs of the Continuance of His Majesty's Affection to you, that whosoever considers them, and those Acts already pass'd this Parliament, will be convinc'd, that as you owe to His Majesty your Deliverance and present Safety, so He designs you shall likewise owe to Him your firm Establishment, and future Prosperity.

“ Amongst those Bills there is one for the Encouragement of Linnen and Hemp Manufactures. At our first meeting we recommend to you that Matter, and we have now endeavour'd to render this Bill practicable and useful for that Effect, and as such we recommend it to you. The Settlement of this Manufacture will contribute much to People in the Countrey, and will be found much more advantageous to this Kingdom than the Woollen Manufacture, which being the settled Staple Trade of England, from whence all Foreign Markets are supplied, can never be encourag'd.

1698.

Affairs of Ireland.

1698. "ged here for that purpose ; whereas the Linnen
"and Hempen Manufactures will not only be "encouraged, as consistent with the Trade of "England, but will render the Trade of this "Kingdom both useful and necessary to Eng"land.

"We hope the great Debt due at Midsummer,
"1697. will be paid by what you have formerly
"given and design'd for that purpose. The King
"has since the Peace thought fit to send hither
"a part of those Forces who served abroad dur"ing all the War, having disbanded the greatest
"part of those who served here, with a Resolu"tion notwithstanding to continue the Subsistence
"to the Officers until they can be otherwise pro"vided for. His Majesty expects that you will "enable Him to support the Charge of the pre"sent Establishment, which shall be laid before
"you, Gentlemen of the House of Commons, with an "Account of what the Revenue produced for "One Year from the said Midsummer, 1697.

"We must inform you, that there hath been
"so great Remifness in the Management of the "present Poll, that very little of that Money is
"yet receiv'd. We are so sensible of the neces"sity and usefulness of the Barraques, that we "have advanc'd the Money necessary to go on
"with them, so fast as it could be employ'd, and
"hope you will enable us to finish all those you
"shall think necessary for easing the Country in "Quarters. My Lords and Gentlemen, We have "taken all Occasions to assure His Majesty of "your Loyalty and Zeal for His Service: You
"will judge best of the Effects of those Assu"rances, when you consider His Majesty's whole
"Conduct in every thing which concerns you.
"We can never doubt of suitable Returns on "your Part, but join with you in hearty Ac"knowledgments of the Blessings we enjoy under
"so Great and Just a Prince ; and in earnest
"Prayers to God for the long continuance of
"so Glorious a Reign, so necessary for the Estab"lishment of the Church, and for a lasting
"Settlement of your Happiness and Prosperi"ty.

Both Houses Voted Thanks to their Excellencies for the Speech ; and the Commons ex-press'd theirs in the following Address. "We
"the Knights, Citizens and Burgeses, in Parlia"ment Assembled, being the Representatives of
"a People restor'd to the free Exercise of their "Religion, and free Enjoyment of their Civil "Rights, Liberties and Properties, by His Ma"jesty's Courage and Conduct, are desirous to "lay hold of every Opportunity to express the "Sense and Gratitude of our Hearts for those in"estimable Benefits. And it is a great Addition "to our Happiness, to be assur'd by your Excel-
"lencies, that as His Majesty has been pleas'd
"already to pass several Excellent Acts in this "Parliament, so there will Bills be laid before
"us this Session, which may secure us a firm Es"tablishment and Prosperity for the future :
"Such Laws we have long wanted and wish'd
"for ; but it is reserv'd to His Majesty's Good"ness alone, to be the Author of them to us.

"We pray leave to assure your Excellencies,
"That we shall heartily endeavour to Establish
"the Linnen Manufacture, and to render the "same useful to England, as well as advantageous
"to this Kingdom ; and that we hope to find
"such a Temperament in respect to the Woollen
"Trade here, that the same may not be injuri"ous to England. And as we have to our utmost
"Abilities, granted Supplies, which have hither-
"to with Honour supported and defrayed the "Expences of the Establishment, we shall again
"take the same into our Consideration, when

†

laid before us ; and come to such Resolutions
"thereon, as become Dutiful and Loyal Subjects. 1698.

"We are sensible how necessary the Erecting
"Barraques is, for easing the Country of Quar"ters, and pray your Excellencies the same may "be proceeded on.

"And that His Majesty may effectually re"ceive those Aids already granted Him by this "Parliament, we shall take into our En"quiry, thro' whose Defaults or Remifness
"the present Poll hath been so slowly paid,
"and answer'd into the Treasury : And by all
"Dutiful Deportment, will continue to deserve
"the Character your Excellencies have, with "great Truth, represented us under to His Ma"jesty, of being a People Zealous for His Ma"jesty's Service, and firm in our Loyalty to the "Crown of England : For which Justice done
"us, we owe, and with all Acknowledgments,
"return your Excellencies our most Humble and
"Hearty Thanks." To this Address their Excellencies made the following Answer. Gentlemen, There are so many Expressions of Loyalty and Zeal for His Majesty's Service in your Address, that We receive it with great Satisfaction ; and are very glad, that by Representing it to His Majesty, We shall confirm in Him the good Opinion He hath of your Intentions for His Service, and the Prosperity of this Kingdom.

On the 1st. of October, the same Day the afore-mention'd Address was presented, the Commons read for the first-time a Bill for Confirming the Estates and Possessions held and enjoy'd under the Acts of Settlement and Explanation ; and order'd Heads to be brought in for a Bill for Encouraging of Plantations, and Improvements in that Kingdom. Nine Days after, the Committee appointed to take into Consideration the Lords Justices Speech, reported, That it was their Opinion that a Supply be granted to His Majesty, and that it was necessary that the Woollen Trade of Ireland be Regulated : To which Resolutions the House unanimously agreed. On the 17th. of the same Month, a Motion was made, that an Address be presented to the Lords Justices of that Kingdom, to intercede with His Majesty, that the Five Regiments of French Protestants, then in Ireland, should be Disbanded ; but the same pass'd in the Negative. Five Days after, the Commons read the Bill for the better Security of His Majesty's Person and Government ; and took particularly into their Consideration, that Clause which had been Voted out by the Majority of Ten Voices, relating to the Roman Catholicks taking the new Oaths ;
and after a long Debate, threw out the Bill : But at the same time, they appointed a Committee to bring in the Heads of a Bill to prevent the Estates of Protestants to come to Papists, and to encourage Persons to turn Protestants. On the 14th. the Committee appointed to consider of Ways and Means for raising the Supply, reported their Opinion ; which was, First, That an Additional Duty be impos'd on the Old and New Drapery of that Kingdom, that should be exported, Freezes excepted ; to which the House agreed : And Secondly, That a Tax be laid on all Beneficial Grants of Lands and Tenements, made by His Majesty and Her late Majesty ; to which the House disagreed : And instead of it, they afterwards on October 22. resolv'd to lay a further Tax of 30000 l. upon Lands, over and above the 90000 l. already impos'd upon them. The Bill for Levying these Sums being compleated, the Lords Justices Adjourned the Parliament, and then took a Progress into the Country, in order to view the State of several Places in that Kingdom, and give such Instructions as they thought convenient for the Security of the Government, and the Good of the Subject. A

1698. As to any distinguishing Matters of Religion, we ought to observe that of all sorts of Dissenters, the Quakers, who least deserved the Toleration, made the boldest use of it: They appear'd now in Parliamentary Elections, and gave their Votes without Swearing to their Freeholds; and being in their Faction united, they could bring the weight and the turn in many Elections. Nay, and they seem'd to hope to be Representatives as well as Electors. One of the Members, Mr. Waller, became at last professedly their Friend and Brother: And in his Neighbourhood at Wickham another Quaker, one Archdale, was chosen a Burgess for this Parliament, though he was himself conscious that he could not qualify himself to be a legal Sitting Member; and therefore at the beginning of the Session, he went to the Speaker, and delivered him a Letter Sealed up, wherein he said he had represented his Case to the House, submitting the same to their Pleasure and Determination. This Letter was read Jan. 6. and the Writer, John Archdale, was called in, and Mr. Speaker, by Direction of the House, asked him, Whether he had taken the Oaths, or would take the Oaths appointed to qualify himself to be a Member of that House? To which he answered, That in regard to a Principle of his Religion, he had not taken the Oaths, nor could take them. Upon which, without asking what that Religion was, or why he would suffer himself to be returned, when he knew his own Incapacity; it was only ordered, That a Warrant should be issued for a new Writ, for Electing a Burgess to serve in this present Parliament, for the Borough of Chipping-Wicomb, in the County of Bucks, in the room of the said Mr. Archdale, who hath refused to qualify himself to be a Member of this House, by taking the Oaths by Law appointed for that purpose. And it was indeed somewhat Scandalous to see, when any Bill or Petition was depending, wherein the Quakers had their Account or Design, what Crowding, what Solliciting, what Treating and Trading there was by that sly and artificial Set of Men.

On Friday, December 23. leave was given to bring in a Bill or Bills for the more effectual discouraging and suppressing Prophaneness, and all manner of Vice and Immorality. And Sir John Philips, Sir Richard Cocks, Mr. Perry, and Mr. Bujarven, were to prepare and bring in the Bill. This pious Care had been recommended by the King, in His Speech at the opening of the Session; but the Omission of it was left for Him to Complain of in His Speech at concluding the same Session. Indeed Immorality and Prophaneness could not be effectually restrain'd, while they were acted over with so much indecent Liberty upon the Stage. The ordinary Plays, instead of answering the good old Design of exposing Vice and recommending the Charms of Virtue, were debauch'd with the wrong Images of things, and with a Language bordering upon Impious and Obscene. This Licentious Vein had grown into a fashion under the Rejoicings of King Ch. II. and was now continued to please the vitiated Palate of the Gay and Loose People, that frequented the Play-Houses for want of Religion and Business. The King who rarely or never went to those Places of Diversion, was honestly inform'd of the Scandal given in them; and therefore to put some Check upon their Liberty and Lewdness, He commanded the following Order to be sent to Both Play-Houses.

His Majesty being inform'd, that notwithstanding an Order made the 4th of June, 1697. by the Earl of Sunderland, then Lord Chamberlain of His Majesty's Household, to prevent the Prophaneness and Immorality of the Stage, several Plays have lately been Acted, containing Expressions contrary to Religion and Good Manners. And whereas the Master of the Revels has represented, that in Contempt of the said Order, the Actors do often neglect to leave out such Prophan and Indecent Expressions, as he has thought proper to be Omitted. These are therefore to signify His Majesty's Pleasure, that you do not hereafter presume to Act any thing in any Play contrary to Religion or Good Manners; as you shall answer it at your utmost Peril. Given under My Hand this 13th of February, 1698. in the Eleventh Year of His Majesty's Reign.

Pere. Bertie.

An Order was likewise sent by His Majesty's Command to the Master of the Revels, not to License any Plays, containing Expressions contrary to Religion and Good Manners; and to give Notice to the Lord Chamberlain of His Majesty's Household, or in his Absence, to the Vice-Chamberlain, if the Players presume to Act any thing which He has struck out.

It must be confess'd, that the greatest Stain to the late General Peace, was the too little Security provided for the Protestant Interest Abroad: And especially in France, where the King was so far from being brought to any Temper and Indulgence toward his Protestant Subjects, that he seem'd rather to have the Strength and Leisure to Persecute them with greater Fury. This was a sensible Grief to King William; and the more, that He was unable to give them any Redress. However, to shew His Royal Pity and Concern, He ordered a Day of Fast and Solemn Humiliation, for averting of those Judgments which our manifold Sins and Provocations have most justly deserved; and that God would in his Great Mercy and Goodness Relieve and Comfort such as Suffer Abroad for the Protestant Religion. And besides this publick Commiseration of their Sufferings, the King gave Instructions to His Ambassadors in the Court of France to sollicit the Release of many Protestant Ministers and People from the Slavery of the Gallies. But all the Answer that could be obtained from the French Ministry, was this, That they were their Master's own Subjects, and no Prince ought to interpose in His Majesty's way of governing His own People. We ought to remember, that there was another good Intention in the House of Commons, which came to no effect. On Monday, Jan. 2. they Ordered that Leave be given to bring in a Bill, for the Conveying of Lands, Tenements, Rents, Tithes, and Hereditaments, to any College or School, for the Education of Poor Scholars, or Advancement of Learning, or Improvement of any Parsonage, or Vicaridge, or any other Charitable Use; and that Mr. Thirsby and Mr. Foley do prepare and bring in the Bill. This Bill was accordingly presented to the House on Saturday, 7. Jan. and Received and Read the first Time, and was ordered to be Read a Second Time; but it was unhappily dropt.

On March 27. Mr. Boyle Reported the Resolutions of the Committee of the whole House, to whom it was referred to consider of the State of the Navy; and the House agreed to the Resolutions, and ordered them to be laid before His Majesty in this Humble Address.

Most Gracious Sovereign.

"We your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Assembled, having taken into our Serious Consideration the State of the Navy, do most humbly Represent to Your Majesty,
"That the Streights Squadron not Sailing till September last, was prejudicial to England, and a great Mismanagement.

"That

State of Religion.

Boldness of the Quakers.

Liberty of the Stage very Scandalous.

1698.

Sufferings of the Protestants in France.

A good Bill dropt.

1699.

Address of the Commons.

1699.

“ That the Order made by the Commissioners of the Admiralty the 12th. of September, One Thousand Six Hundred Ninety Five, giving Henry Priestman, Esq; an Allowance of Ten Shillings per diem, from the Date of his Commission, as Commander in chief before Sally in the Year One Thousand Six Hundred Eighty Four, till the Ship Bonadventure was paid off, over and above his Pay as Captain of the said Ship; was very unreasonable, and a Misapplication of the Publick Money.

“ That the Victualling any of Your Majesty's Ships by others than by the Victuallers appointed for that Service, or their Agents, is contrary to the Course of the Navy, and may be of ill Consequence.

“ That many New and Unnecessary Charges have, in an extraordinary manner, been introduced into the Navy, contrary to the Rules of the Navy; which is a great Mismanagement.

“ That the Deductions of Poundage taken by the Pay-Masters of the Navy for Slop-Cloaths, Dead Mens Cloaths, Tobacco, Chest at Chatham, Chaplain and Surgeon, is without Warrant, and ought to be accounted for.

“ That it is inconsistent with the Service of the Navy, for the same Person to be one of the Commissioners for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral, and Treasurer of the Navy at the same time.

“ And that the Passing any Account of Moneys impressed for the contingent Uses of the Navy, without regular Vouchers, or such other Proof as the Nature of the Service will admit, either with or without a Sign Manual; is contrary to the Rules and Methods of the Navy, and of dangerous Consequence.

“ All which we beg leave to lay before Your Majesty, desiring that You will be graciously pleased to take effectual Care, that the Mismanagements herein complained of, may be prevented for the future.

This Address having been presented by the whole House on Monday April the 3d. the King gave this Gracious Answer.

Gentlemen, I will consider Your Address. It is My Desire, that all Sorts of Mismanagements and Irregularities should be prevented or redress'd. You may be assured, I will take the best Care I can in relation to the Navy; the right Management whereof is of so great Concern to this Kingdom.

Conclusion of the Session.

Acts passed.

There was nothing else remarkable in this Session, but the Conclusion of it on Thursday May the 4th. when His Majesty came to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Assent to these many Bills. 1. An Act for granting to His Majesty the Sum of One Million Four Hundred Eighty Four Thousand and Fifteen Pounds One Shilling Eleven Pence Three Farthings, for Disbanding the Army, Providing for the Navy, and for other necessary Occasions. 2. An Act for laying further Duties upon Sweets, and for lessening the Duties as well upon Vinegar, as upon certain Low Wines, and Whale Fins, and the Duties upon Brandy imported; and for the more easy raising the Duties upon Leather, and for Charging Cynders; and for permitting the Importation of Pearl Ashes; and for preventing Abuses in the Brewing of Beer and Ale, and Frauds in the Importation of Tobacco. 3. An Act for the more full and effectual Charging the Duties upon Rock Salt. 4. An Act to Encourage the Trade to Newfoundland. 5. An Act to prevent the Exportation of Wooll out of the Kingdoms of Ireland and England into Foreign Parts; and for the Encouragement of the Woollen Manufactures of the Kingdom of England. 6. An Act for Limiting certain Times, within which Writs of Error shall be brought for the Reversing Fines, Common Recoveries, and Ancient Judgment. 7. An Act for Raising the Militia for the Year One Thousand Six Hundred Ninety Nine, although the Months Pay formerly advanc'd be not repaid. 8. An Act for the better Apprehending, Prosecuting, and Punishing of Felons that commit Burglary, House-breaking, or Robbery in Shops, Warehouses, Coach-houses, or Stables; or that steal Horses. 9. An Act for making Billingsgate a free Market for Sale of Fish. 10. An Act for continuing the Act for the more easy Recovery of small Tythes. 11. An Act for suppressing of Lotteries. 12. An Act for taking off the remaining Duties upon Glass Wares. 13. An Act for making and keeping Navigable the Rivers of Air and Calder, in the County of York. 14. An Act to enable Posthumous Children to take Estate, as if born in their Fathers Life-time. 15. An Act to enable such Officers and Soldiers, as have been in His Majesty's Service during the late War, to exercise Trades; and for Officers to Account with their Soldiers. 16. An Act for the continuing the Imprisonment of ——— Counter, and others, for the late horrid Conspiracy to Assassinate the Person of His Sacred Majesty. 17. An Act for making and keeping the River Trent, in the Counties of Leicester, Derby, and Stafford, Navigable. 18. An Act for settling Augmentations on certain Vicaridges for ever. 19. An Act for the confirming of a Grant and Settlement, made by William Forster, Esq; of divers Mannors and Lands in the County Palatine of Durham, and County of Northumberland, to Thomas Lord Fairfax, and others, upon certain Trusts therein mentioned. 20. An Act for Sale of some Part of the Estate of Sir Thomas Darcy, deceased, for Payment of Debts. 21. An Act to enable Edward Price, Esq; to transfer a Charge of One Thousand Pounds, for the Use of his younger Children, from an Estate in the County of Montgomery, to an Estate in the Counties of Hereford and Radnor, of better Value. 22. An Act to enable Trustees to Sell Part of the Estate of George Scott, Esq; to pay Debts, and raise Portions for his Brothers and Sister, and to Settle other Part of his Estate. 23. An Act for Sale of the Estate of Dudley Vesey, in Hinteatham in the County of Suffolk, for the Payment of his Debts. 24. An Act to enable Robert Aldworth, and his Wife, to Sell their Estate in or near Wantage in the County of Berks, for raising Three Hundred Pounds for Payment of his Debts, and for applying the Residue of the Money for purchasing some other Estate, for the sole Use of his Wife and Children. 25. An Act to Naturalize Scipio Guy, and others. 26. An Act for the Sale of the Mannor of Halwill and Beckett in the County of Devon, the Estate of John Moor, for Payment of Debts. 27. An Act for Vesting the Real Estate late of Thomas Lascells, Esq; deceased, in Trustees, to be sold, for the Payment of his Debts. 28. An Act to enable John Young, Gent. to sell Lands for Payment of Debts and Legacies. 29. An Act to enable the Town of Liverpool in the County Palatine of Lancaster, to Build a Church, and endow the same; and for making the said Town and Liberties thereof a Parish of it self distinct from Walton. 30. An Act to enable Thomas Okeover, Gent. Son and Heir apparent of Rowland Okeover, in the County of Stafford, Esq; together with the said Rowland Okeover, to make a Jointure and Settlement upon the Marriage of the said Thomas Okeover. 31. An Act to enable Katherine Leeke, an Infant under the Age of One and Twenty Years, to settle and dispose of her Estate upon her Marriage. 32. An Act for Vesting certain Lands of Sir Thomas Syliard, Baronet, in the County of Kent, in Trustees, to be sold for the Payment of his Sisters Portions charged thereon. 33. An Act to enable Thomas Byde, Esq; an Infant, (with the Consent of his Guardians and next Relations) to make 1699. a Contract for the Buying his Mother's Jointure, and to settle a small Estate in Great Amwell in the County of Hertford; and likewise for the securing and raising Portions for Barbara Byde, Sister to the said Thomas Byde, and for other Purposes in the Act mentioned. 34. An Act for the Sale of the Mannor of Lordington, alias Lurtington, and Whitney, and divers other Lands in the County of Suffex; and for laying out 5000 l. in purchasing other Lands to be settled in lieu thereof. 35. An Act to enable Samuel Wake, alias Jones, Esq; to sell Lands to pay Debts, and to purchase other Lands adjoining to the formerly Parcel of his Mannor. 36. An Act for the Vesting and Settling the Estate of Anne Bridges, an Infant in Bermudas, alias the Summer-Islands in America, in and upon Trustees, to be sold; and laying out the Money arising by such Sale in England, for the Use of the said Anne Bridges. 37. An Act for the Encouragement of a New Invention by Thomas Savery, for Raising Water, and Occasioning Motion to all sorts of Mill-Work, by the impellent Force of Fire. 38. An Act for Enabling Cyriac Wellyd, Esq; to Sell some part of his Estate, which by Articles upon his Marriage was agreed to be settled upon his Wife and Children, and for settling of other Parts of his Estate of better value, to the same Uses. 39. An Act for the Ships, Hawke and Rainbow, to Trade as English-Built Ships. 40. An Act to Enable John Bull, an Infant, to Sell his Lands in Kent, for the Payment of his Debts, and Annuities charged thereon, and for Provision for Younger Children. 41. An Act for Enabling the Surviving Trustees of Sir William Pulteny, Knight, Deceased, to make Leases for the Raising of Moneys for Payment of his Son William Pulteny's Debts, and other Purposes therein mentioned. 42. An Act to Enable Popham Conway, Francis Seymour, and Charles Seymour, Esqs; and their Issue Male, severally and successively to make Leases of their Estates. 43. An Act for the Sale of the Estate of Zenobia Hough, for the Payment of the Debts of her Husband, and other Uses. 44. An Act to Enable the Ship Hope, (of great Length, and very serviceable for bringing Masts into this Kingdom) to Trade as an English-Built Ship. 45. An Act to Enable William Wrayford, Gent. and Dame Anne Rich, Widow, to make Leases of Houses and Grounds in Covent-Garden, late the Estate of John Athey, Citizen and Haberdasher of London. 46. An Act for Sale of the Mannor of Downham in the County of Essex, (the Estate of Sir Francis Andrews) and for Buying and Settling other Lands to the same Uses. 47. An Act to Discharge the Ships King William, and Charles the Second, from the Penalties of the Act of Navigation. 48. An Act for Settling divers Freehold and Leashold Houses, the Estate of Thomas Cowllade, an Infant, and others, to Discharge a Mortgage, and to Purchase other Lands to be settled to the like Uses. 49. An Act to Enable Thomas Methwold, Esq; to Raise the Sum of 1200l. upon his Estate, by him laid out in Improving the same. 50. An Act for Naturalizing Augulline Cloribus, and others. 51. An Act for Naturalizing Samuel Bernardeau, Peter Chantreau des Gandrees, and others, Private Gentlemen belonging to His Majesty's Three Troops of Guards and Grenadiers. 52. An Act for Opening the Ancient, and making any New Roynes and Water-Courses in and near Sedgmore, in the County of Somerser, for rendring the said Moor more Healthful and Profitable to the Inhabitants. 53. An Act to Naturalize Richard Legg, and others. 54. An Act for Naturalizing Sir David Collier, Isaac la Melioniere, Peter de Belcastel, and William Rieutort.

After the Passing such a Multitude of Acts, the King made this Gracious Speech to both Houses, which shew'd He was not fully satisfied in their Proceedings.

1699. King's Speech.
 My Lords and Gentlemen,
 " AT the Opening this Parliament I told you
 " my Opinion was, That you were come " together with Hearts fully disposed to do what " was Necessary for the Safety, Honour, and
 " Happinefs of the Kingdom; and having no" thing else to Recommend to you, I had Rea" son to hope for Unanimity and Dispatch.
 " You have now Sat so many Months, that the " Season of the Year, as well as your particular
 " Affairs, make it reasonable you should have a " Recess: I take it for granted, you have Fi-
 " nish'd all the Bills which for the present you " think requisite to be Pass'd into Laws, and I " have given my Assent to all you have Present" ed to Me.
 " If any thing shall be found wanting for Our " Safety, the Support of Publick Credit, by ma" king good the Faith of the Kingdom, as it " stands Engaged by Parliamentary Securities, and
 " for Discharge of the Debts occasioned by the " War, or towards the Advancing of Trade, the " Suppressing of Vice, and the Employing of " the Poor, which were all the Things I propo" sed to your Consideration when We met first;
 " I cannot doubt but effectual Care will be taken
 " of them next Winter: And I wish no Incon" venience may happen in the mean time.
 And then the Lord-Keeper, by His Majesty's Command, Prorogued the Parliament until Thursday the First Day of June next.

At the latter end of March, Edward Earl of Warwick, and Charles Lord Mohun, being severally Indicted for the Murder of Richard Coot, Esq; were Tryed by their Peers, in a Court prepared for that purpose in Westminster-Hall. The Lord Chancellor of England being constituted Lord High Steward upon this Occasion: The Court being open'd with the usual Ceremonies, the Tryal of the Earl of Warwick came on, March 28. and lasted till late in the Evening, when the Peers adjourn'd to their own House; and after some Debate, the Lords Temporal only return'd to the Court in Westminster-Hall, where they deliver'd their Judgments seriatim upon their Honours, and unanimously acquitted the Earl of Warwick of the Murder, but found him Guilty of Manslaughter; who craving the Benefit of his Peerage, according to the Statute in that Case provided, was thereupon Discharged. The next Day came on in like manner the Tryal of the Lord Mohun, who with great Composedness and Elocution, made his Innocency so well appear, that he was Acquitted by the unanimous Suffrage of the Peers, and lived to be a great Example of Sobriety and Publick Spirit.

On April 17. the King was pleas'd to confer Honours and Pre-ferments. the Dignity of a Baronet upon John Stanley of Grange-Gormon, in the County of Dublin in Ireland; and within few Days after, the like Honour on Edmund Denton of Hillisdon, in the County of Bucks, Esq;. On May 14. the Earl of Jersey lately return'd from his Embassy at the Court of France, was Constituted one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, in the room of the Duke of Shrewsbury; who thought himself under a necessity of travelling abroad to restore his Constitution impair'd in the Service of the Publick. At the same time the Earl of Mambes-ter was appointed to succeed the Lord Jersey, in the French Court. On May the 15th. His Majesty conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood on Edward Hasell of Dalemaine, in the County of Cumberland, Esq;. On May 18. the King in Council declared Thomas Earl of Pembroke, Lord President

1699. sident of the Council; and receiving the Privy-Seal from his Lordship, delivered it to John Viscount Lansdale, who took the Oaths and Place as Keeper of the Privy-Seal. The same Evening, Edward Southwell, Esq; was Sworn Clerk of the Council, in the room of William Bridgman, Esq; Deceased: And Abraham Stanyon, Esq; was Sworn Clerk of the Council in Extraordinary. On May 20. His Majesty was pleased to constitute Christopher Codrington, Esq; a Fellow of All-Souls in Oxford, Captain-General and Governor in Chief of His Majesty's Leeward Caribbee-Islands in America, in the room of his Father Colonel Codrington, Deceased; who, during the late War, had perform'd many Signal Services to the Government, and ruin'd several French Plantations in those Parts.

Lords Ju-dices.

The King
goes to Holland.

On May 31. His Majesty declared in Council, that intending to go over to Holland for a short time, He had appointed the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor Somers, the Earl of Pembroke, the Lord Lansdale, the Duke of Devonshire, the Earl of Bridgwater, the Earl of Marlborough, the Earl of Ferisey, and Mr. Montague, to be Lords Justices of England, during His Absence. The next Day the King went from Kensington, between Ten and Eleven at Night, and arrived at Margate the next Day about Noon, and about Three Embark'd for Holland, and within the next Day safely Landed at Oranie-Pouder, from whence he went to the Hague. After He had received the Compliments of the Foreign Ministers, and other Persons of Quality, He assisted at the Assembly of the States-General, and at that of the States in Holland. He then gave His Instructions to Mr. Hill, whom He had appointed to go His Envoy Extraordinary to Savoy, to make His Compliment of Congratulation to that Court, upon the Birth of the Prince of Piedmont, which had been Notified to His Majesty in England, by Count de Maffey, Envoy Extraordinary from the Duke for that purpose. On June 22. N. S. His Majesty left the Hague about Six in the Morning, and having Dined at Cruitzberg, pass'd in the Afternoon thro' the Cities of Harlem and Amsterdam; from thence to Narden, where viewing all the Fortifications, which he found in great perfection, He lay that Night at Suertdyke, and the next Morning set out for Loo; at which Royal Palace, and that of Dieren, His Majesty spent most part of the Summer, in His usual Diversions of Hunting and Shooting.

Towards the beginning of July, Count Talhard the French Ambassador, and the Baron Schultz, Envoy from the Princes of the House of Lunenburgh, who were lately arriv'd at the Hague from Holland, waited upon His Majesty at Loo, and a few Days after the Sieur Galesky, Ambassador from the King of Poland to the States General, and the Count de Guiscard, Ambassador from France to the Court of Sweden, paid likewise their Respects to His Majesty.

On the 25th of August my Lord Page's Steward, His Majesty's Ambassador at the Port, brought Letters from the Grand Signior to His Majesty, in acknowledgment of His Good Offices in mediating the late Peace at Carlowitz; and not long after the Czar of Muscovy sent a Letter of Thanks to His Majesty upon the same Account. About this time the States of Holland, out of their tender Care for His Majesty's Preservation, put forth a Placaet, requiring that all such Persons that had been declar'd Rebels in England, should forthwith depart their Dominions; and on the 2d and 3d of September (N. S.) the King reviewed the Dutch Forces encamp'd near Arnhem, and then return'd to Loo, to entertain His Bosom Friend the Old

Duke of Zell, who was come there to make His Majesty a Visit, with a Numerous and Magnificent Retinue. 1699.

But nothing deserves more our Attention this Summer than the Contest between the Prince of Conti and the Dutches of Nemours, about the Succession of Neufchastel, a Protestant Independent City and Principality, bordering upon, and allied to the Switzers, whose Sovereign was the late Duke of Longueville. Now the Parliament of Paris having made a Decree in Favour of that Prince whose Interest was supported by the King of France himself, to whom the Dutches refus'd to refer the Decision of her Cause: His Highness, to maintain his Pretensions, and to obviate the Designs of his Competitor, went in Person to Neufchastel, where he did all that lay in his Power by Letters, Memorials, Caresses and large Promises, to draw the States of that Principality, and their Confederates the Swiss Cantons to own him for the next and immediate Successor to the Duke. Thereupon King William, who set up for the Universal Heir of the House of Longueville, order'd Mr. Hervart, His Envoy in Switzerland, immediately to repair to Neufchastel, and to present the following Memorial to the Prince of Conti.

"The Orders of the King of Great Britain, my Master, having brought me hither, my first Business is to pay my Respects to your Highness, and to assure you of my most humble Services. You are not ignorant, I assure my self, that His Majesty lays Claim to the County of Neufchastel, and its Dependencies; His Ministers at the Treaty of Ryswick having acquainted His most Christian Majesty's Plenipotentiaries with it. Nevertheless, His Majesty, whose Pleasure it was, that those Countries should be expressly comprehended in the Treaty of Peace, has been further pleas'd, for the better securing the Tranquility of that Principality, to defer the making out His Right, tho' very lawful, till the Death of Madam the Dutches of Nemours, who has been invest'd with that Sovereignty for these five Years last past.

"But understanding the present Movements there, occasion'd by your Highness's Pretensions, His Majesty has thought it to be His Interest, to declare more expressly by His Ministers at the Court of France, His Right to that Sovereignty, hoping that the most Christian King would observe an exact Impartiality in that Affair; and that He would Leave it to the States, who are Real Judges of it, so soon as a Convocation should be summon'd together, after the Death of the Dutches of Nemours: And that His Majesty thought it reasonable that your Highness should then propose your Pretensions as well as the rest of the Competitors concern'd. The Assurance which His most Christian Majesty's Ministers thereupon gave of His Impartiality, are so positive that the King my Master, thought He might remain in silence till a more convenient time to settle the Justice of His Claims.

"But the Design form'd by your Highness, presently to summon a Tribunal, during the Life of Madam de Nemours, obliges me, according to His Majesty's Orders, to represent to your Highness, That His Majesty cannot but look upon such a Convocation as prejudicial to His Right, contrary to the Laws and Customs of the Countrey, and a Means to banish Peace and Tranquility from thence.

"I hope your Highness will be pleas'd seriously to consider, That I have the Honour to lay before you in His Majesty's Name, and to vouchsafe that I may add to what I have said, the Assurance of the high Value, and profound Respect I have for your Highness. Mr.

King William's Memorial to the Prince of Conti.

1699. Mr. Herbert did at the same time present another Memorial to the Dutchess of Nevers, wherein in his Master's Name, he communicated to her what he had represented to the Prince of Conti; assuring her Grace of His Majesty's Favour and Protection. The Dutchess and the States of Neuchâstel, express'd great Acknowledgments of His Majesty's interposing in this Affair: And as for the Prince, he made a very respectful Answer to the forementioned Memorial, and by Direction from the French Court, immediately return'd to Paris: His most Christian Majesty, like a Subtile Politician, not thinking it proper to enter into any Dispute with the King of England, but rather to shew Him all manner of Deference, the better to engage Him in a New Treaty of Partition, which was become necessary since the Death of the Electoral Prince of Bavaria, which happen'd this Year on the 6th of February, N. S.

The Duke of Cell having staid about a Month with King William, went from Loo on the 3d of October, (N. S.) on his Return home; and a few Days after, His Majesty came to the Hague, where He assist'd at the Assembly of the States General, when the State of the Forces for the ensuing Year was presented to them, and order'd to be sent to the several Provinces.

On the 26th of the same Month His Majesty embark'd in the Maeße on board the William and Mary Yacht, and the next Day landed at Margate, lay that Night at Canterbury, and on the 18th (O. S.) arriv'd at Kensington.

On May 20. the Lord Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen and Citizens of London went to Kensington to congratulate His Majesty's Safe Return. His Majesty express'd His Favourable Acceptance of their Affections, and did earnestly recommend to them the Careful and Vigorous Execution of the Laws against all Prophaneness, Debauchery and Ill Livers: And also, that Effectual Care be taken to provide for the Poor, so that they may not be necessitated to wander about the Streets for Relief. And then His Majesty was pleas'd to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Charles Duncomb and Jeffrey Jeffreys, Esquires, the present Sheriffs, and William Withers, Esq; Alderman. On the same Day Don Lewis d' Achunba, Envoy Extraordinary from the King of Portugal, had Audience of His Majesty to notify the Death of the Queen of Portugal.

On the 24th the Parliament met at Westminster, and was further prorogued to the 16th of November, on which day the Members of Both Houses were required by His Majesty's Proclamation to give their Attendance.

On October 25. the King conferred the Office of Lord Chamberlain of His Household (which had been some time vacant) upon Charles Duke of Shrewsbury, to whom His Majesty delivered the Key and White-Staff. The 4th of November being His Majesty's Birth Day, was observed with great Solemnity: His Highness the Duke of Gloucester went in the Morning to Kensington, to make his Compliment to His Majesty on this Occasion. Their Royal Highnesses the Princess and Prince of Denmark dined with His Majesty at Kensington, and in the Evening the King and the whole Court came to St. James's, and were entertain'd with a Ball by the Princess; the Cities of London and Westminster shewing their Universal Joy with Fire-Works, Illuminations, and Ringing of Bells.

On Thursday, 16 November, the Parliament met at Westminster, and His Majesty with usual Solemnity made this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I Hope you will not think I have called you out of your Countries too soon, if you consider, that Our Common Security requires a farther Provision should be made for the Safety of the Kingdom by Sea and Land, before We are at the end of what was granted for that purpose the last Session. And when you enter upon this Business, I believe you will think it necessary to take care of the Repairs of the Ships, and of the Fortifications; without which Our Fleet cannot be safe when it is in Harbour.

I cannot omit to put you in mind of another Matter in which so great a number of my Subjects is concern'd, and wherein the Honour of the Kingdom, and the Faith of Parliaments is so far engag'd, that Our future Security seems to depend upon it; I mean, the making good the Deficiencies of the Funds, and the discharging the Debts contracted by reason of the War.

And till We may be so happy to see the Publick Debts paid, I shall hope that no Session will end, without something done towards lessening them. While I am speaking to you on this Head, I think my self obliged to mention with a very particular Concern, a Debt which is owing to the Prince of Denmark, the State whereof I have order'd to be laid before you.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

These things are of such importance, that I must earnestly recommend them to your Consideration, and desire you to provide the Necessary Supplies.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

There is nothing I could more rejoice in, than that I were not under the Necessity of so often asking Aids of My People; but as the Reason of it is evident, because the Funds formerly apply'd to defray the Publick Expence, are now anticipated for payment of the Debts of the Kingdom; so it is My Satisfaction, that you all see that nothing of what is demanded, is for any Personal Use of Mine: And I do faithfully assure You, That no Part of what is given shall be diverted from any Purpose for which it is designed.

I believe the Nation is already sensible of the Good Effects of Peace, by the manifest Increase of Trade, which I shall make it My Business to encourage by all Means in My Power. Probably it might receive an Advantage, if some Good Bill were prepared for the more effectual preventing and punishing Unlawful and Clandestine Trading, which does not only tend to defraud the Publick, but prejudice the Fair Merchant, and discourage Our Own Manufactures.

The Increase of the Poor is become a Burthen to the Kingdom, and their Loose and Idle Life does in some measure contribute to that Depravation of Manners which is complain'd of (I fear with too much Reason). Whether the Ground of this Evil be from Defects in the Laws already made, or in the Execution of them, deserves your Consideration. As it is an Indispensible Duty, that the Poor, who are not able to help themselves, should be maintain'd, so I cannot but think it extremely desirable, that such as are able and willing, should not want Employment; and such as are obstinate and unwilling, should be compell'd to Labour.

1699.

King's Speech.

The King returns to England.

Joy and Congratulation.

Parliament meet.

1699.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

“ I have a full Assurance of the Good Affections of my People, which I shall endeavour to preserve by a constant Care of their just Rights and Liberties; by Maintaining the Established Religion, by seeing the Course of Justice kept Steady and Equal, by Countenancing Virtue, and Discouraging Vice, and by declining no Difficulties or Dangers where their Welfare and Prosperity may be concerned. These are my Resolutions, and I am persuaded that you are come together with Purposes on your Part suitable to those on Mine. Since then Our Aims are one for the General Good, let Us act with Confidence in One Another; which will not fail, by God's Blessing, to make Me a Happy King, and you a Great and Flourishing People.

This Excellent Speech seem'd to reliev'd the Dissatisfaction which the King express'd upon the Proceedings of the last Session, when He had parted with them. But the gentle Intimations of Displeasure serv'd to convince, rather than to mitigate a great number of Persons, who did not love to seem to be afraid, nor so much as Suspected, what Misconceptions might be given for it: And therefore the Commons, upon a Consideration of His Majesty's Speech, agreed to offer this Humble Address to the King.

*Most Gracious Sovereign,*Address
of the
Commons.

“ We Your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Assembled, being highly sensible, that nothing is more Necessary for the Peace and Welfare of this Kingdom, the Quieting the Minds of Your People, and Disappointing the Designs of Your Enemies, than a mutual and entire Confidence between Your Majesty and Your Parliament, do esteem it our greatest Misfortune, that after having so amply provided for the Security of Your Majesty and Your Government, both by Sea and Land, any Jealousie or Distrust hath been rais'd of our Duty and Affections to Your Sacred Majesty and Your People; and beg Leave humbly to Represent to Your Majesty, That it will greatly conduce to the Continuing and Establishing an Entire Confidence between Your Majesty and Your Parliament, that You would be pleas'd to shew Marks of Your high Displeasure towards all such Persons who have, or shall presume to Misrepresent their Proceedings to Your Majesty.

“ And Your Commons (having likewise a due sense of the great Care and Concern Your Majesty has always express'd for Preserving and Maintaining the Religion, Rights, and Liberties of Your People, in Defence of which Your Majesty hath so often expos'd Your Royal Person) will use their utmost Care and Endeavours to Prevent and Discourage all False Rumours and Reports reflecting upon Your Majesty and Your Government, whereby to create any Misunderstandings between You and Your Subjects.

The King was so far from Expostulating upon the Sense of this Address, that He wisely seem'd to take it on the softer Side, and express'd His Thanks for it in a singular Air of Lenity and Good Nature.

Gentlemen,

“ My Parliaments have done so great Things for Me, and I have upon all proper Occasions requir'd so great a Sense of their Kindness, 1699.

“ and my Opinion has been so often declar'd, that the Happiness of an English King depends upon an entire good Correspondence between Him and His Parliament, that it can't seem strange for Me to assure you, that no Persons have ever yet dared to go about to Misrepresent to Me the Proceedings of either House. Had I found any such, they would have immediately felt the highest Marks of my Displeasure. It is a Justice I owe not only to my Parliaments, but to every one of My Subjects, to Judge of them by their Actions: And this Rule I will steadily pursue. If any shall hereafter attempt to put Me on other Methods, by Calumnies or Misrepresentations, they will not only fail of Success, but shall be looked upon, and treated by Me as My worst Enemies.

Gentlemen,

“ I am pleas'd to see by your Address, that you have the same Thoughts of the great Advantages which will ensue to the Kingdom from our mutual Confidence, as I express'd to Both Houses at the Opening of the Session. I take very kindly the Assurance you give Me, of using your utmost Care and Endeavour to prevent and discourage all false Rumours and Reports reflecting upon Me and My Government: And I faithfully Promise you, that no Actions of Mine shall give a just Ground for any Misunderstanding between Me and My People.

The Commons in the last Session of Parliament, had appointed Seven Commissioners for taking an Account of the Forfeited Estates in Ireland; the Earl of Drogheda, Francis Annesley, Esq; John Trenchard, Esq; James Hamilton, Esq; Henry Langford, Esq; Sir Richard Leving, and Sir Francis Brewster: Who having Executed their Commission with great Application and Fidelity, they fram'd a Report which was Presented to the Commons by Mr. Annesley, and wherein they set forth:

Commissioners for Forfeited Estates in Ireland.

“ That they met with great Difficulties in their Enquiry, which were occasioned chiefly by the backwardness of the People of Ireland to give any Information, out of fear of the Grantees, whose Displeasure in that Kingdom was not easily born; and by Reports industriously spread and believ'd, that their Enquiry would come to nothing. Nevertheless, it appear'd to them, that the Persons Outlaw'd in England, since the 13th. of February, 1688. on account of the late Rebellion there, amounted in Number to Fifty Seven, and in Ireland to Three Thousand Nine Hundred Twenty one. That all the Lands in the several Counties in Ireland belonging to the forfeiting Persons, as far as they could reckon, made 1060792 Acres, worth per Annum 211623 l. which by Computation of Six Years Purchase for a Life, and Thirteen Years for the Inheritance, came to the full Value of 2685130 l. That some of those Lands had been Restor'd to the old Proprietors, by Virtue of the Articles of Limerick and Galloway, and by His Majesty's Favour, and by Reversal of Outlawries, and Royal Pardons, obtain'd chiefly by Gratifications to such Persons as had abus'd His Majesty's Royal Bounty and Compassion. Beside these Restitutions, which they thought to be corruptly procur'd, they gave an Account of Seventy Six Grants and Custodians, under the Great Seal of Ireland; as to the Lord Romney, three Grants now in Being, containing 49517 Acres; to the Earl of Albemarle in two Grants, 108633 Acres, in Possession and Reversion; to William Bentinck, 1699. tinck Esq; Lord Woodstock, 135820 Acres of Land; to the Earl of Athlone Two Grants containing 26480 Acres; to the Earl of Galloway One Grant of 36148 Acres, &c. wherein they observed, that the Estates so mention'd did not yield so much to the Grantees as they were here valued at; because as moit of them had abused His Majesty in the real Value of their Estates, so their Agents had Impos'd on them, and had either Sold or Let the greatest part of those Lands at an under Value. But after all Deductions and Allowances there yet remain'd 1699345 l. 14 s. which they lay before the Commons as the gross Value of the Estates since the 13th. of day of February and not Restored. Besides a Grant under the Great Seal of Ireland, Dated Thirtieth Day of May, 1695. passed to Mrs. Elizabeth Villiers, now Countess of Orkney, of all the private Estates of the late King James, (except some small Part in Grant to the Lord Athlone) containing 95649 Acres, worth per Annum 25995 l. 18 s. value, Total 331943 l. 9 s. Concluding, that there was payable out of this Estate, Two Thousand Pounds per Annum to the Lady Susanna Bellasis, and also One Thousand Pounds per Annum to Mrs Godfrey for their Lives; and that almost all the Old Leases determin'd in May, 1701. and then this Estate would answer the Value abovemention'd, — Sign'd Francis Annesly, John Trenchard, James Hamilton, and Henry Langford.

Bill for Forfeited Estates in Ireland.
The Commons having presented and examined this Report, came to an unanimous Resolution, 15th. of December, That a Bill be brought in to apply all the Forfeited Estates and Interests in Ireland, and all Grants thereof, and of the Rents and Revenues belonging to the Crown within that Kingdom, since the 13th. of February 1688. to the Use of the Publick; and order'd a Clause to be inserted in that Bill, for erecting a Judicature for determining Claims touching the said Forfeited Estates. They likewise resolv'd, That they would not receive any Petition from any Person whatsoever, touching the said Grants or Forfeited Estates; and that they would take into Consideration the great Services performed by the Commissioners appointed to enquire into the forfeited Estates of Ireland.

Uneasie to the King.
Tis easy to imagine how ill these Proceedings were relish'd at Court; but 'tis hardly to be conceived, how uneasie the King was about the following Passage: While the Commissioners appointed by Parliament, were discharging their Trust in Ireland, Mr. M---- a Member of the House of Commons, sent them a Letter (of his own private Motion) wherein he directed them, to make a separate Article of the Lady Orkney's Grants, because that might reflect upon Some body: Meaning the King. Another Member having learned the Contents of that Letter from Mr. M---- and being zealous to vindicate His Majesty's Honour, which he thought was struck at in that Letter, Complain'd of it to the House. Being press'd to tell his Author, he at first excus'd himself, alledging he was under an Obligation, not to reveal what had pass in a Private Conversation; But the House threatning to send him to the Tower, he nam'd the Person from whom he had this Report; which Person, who was also a Member of the House, deny'd flatly, that he had ever mention'd any such thing. Thus the affectionate Stickler for His Majesty being left in the Lurch, the House on January the 15th. Resolv'd, That the said Report was False and Scandalous: And a Motion being made That the Four Commissioners for Irish Forfeitures, who sign'd the Report presented to the House, had acquitted themselves in the Execution of that Commission with Understanding and Integrity; a warm Debate arose thereupon; which was adjourn'd to the next day, when the Commons Resolv'd, That the said Commissioners had acquitted themselves in the Execution of their Commission, with Understanding, Courage and Integrity; That Sir Richard Leving, one other of the Commissioners, had been the Author of the groundless and Scandalous Aspersions cast upon the Four Commissioners beforementioned; and that the said Sir Richard Leving be committed Prisoner to the Tower of London for the said Offence. Two days after, the Bill for Applying the Irish Forfeitures to the Use of the Publick was Read a Second time, and committed to a Committee of the whole House: Upoh this Occasion, the Courtiers made a Motion, and caus'd the Question to be put, That the said Committee be empower'd to receive a Clause for Reserving a Proportion of the Forfeited Estates in Ireland, to the Disposal of His Majesty; which passing in the Negative, it was Resolv'd on January the 18th. That the Advising, Procuring and Passing the said Grants of the Forfeited and other Estates in Ireland, had been the occasion of Contracting great Debts upon the Nation, and levying heavy Taxes on the People; That the advising and passing the said Grants, was highly reflecting on the King's Honour; And that the Officers and Instruments concern'd in the Procuring and Passing these Grants, had highly fail'd in the Performance of their Trust and Duty.

Business of Supply.
By this time, the Commons were enter'd upon the Business of the Supply, and had at several times made the Following Resolutions: That the Sum of 76383 l. now remaining in the Exchequer upon the Account of the Subsidy of Tonnage and Poundage, with what should arise from the same Fund, to the 25th. of December, should be applied towards the Payment of Seamen's Wages; that whosoever shall advance or lend a Sum, not exceeding 220000 l. for the further Paying of Seamen's Wages should be repaid the same, with Interest, at Five Pound per Cent. per Annum out of the First Aid to be granted this Session. That Seven Thousand Men be a Complement for the Sea Service for the Year 1700. for Thirteen Months; And that the usual Pay of Four Pounds per Month, be allowed for maintaining the said Seven Thousand Men, including the Ordnance for Sea Service. That 18000 l. be allow'd for Bounty Money to the Officers of the Fleet: And 90000 l. for the Extraordinary of the Navy: That 300000 l. be granted to his Majesty for Maintaining Guards and Garisons, and 250000 l. for the Office of Ordnance, for the Year 1700. and that Half-Pay be allow'd to the Disbanded Officers, not otherwise provided for: which last Vote was principally owing to Mr. How.

Ways and Means.
In order to raise the Supply already granted, the Commons resolv'd, to lay a Tax of Two Shillings in the Pound for One Year, upon all Lands, Pensions, Offices, and Personal Estates; and at the same time, January 26. they appointed a day to consider of the Grants made since the settling the Civil List upon his Majesty. Upon the 1st. of February, the Bill for Levying the Two Shillings Aid was Read a Second time, and committed to a Committee of the whole House, to whom the Bill for resuming the Forfeited Estates in Ireland was also committed; and who were order'd to join both the said Bills together, and to receive a Clause of Credit, and another of Appropriation. Not many days after, the House being inform'd that several Grantees of Forfeited Estates in Ireland, were felling Timber, and committing other Wastes, they resolv'd, that such Persons should be answerable for the same, and directed the Committee of the whole House to, insert a Clause in the foremention'd 1699. Bill of Resumption for that purpose. On February the 6th. the Commons resolv'd to grant a Supply to His Majesty for the discharging the Debt due to the Army.

Towards the middle of February, the Commons in a Grand Committee consider'd the State of the Nation, and a Motion being made, and the Question put, That the Procuring or Obtaining of Grants of Estates belonging to the Crown, by any publick Minister concern'd in the Directing or Passing such Grants, to or for their own Use or Benefit, whilst the Nation lay under the heavy Taxes of the late War, was highly injurious to His Majesty, and prejudicial to the State, and a Violation of the Trust reposed in them; the Court Party carried it in the Negative; but at the same time, they gave their Consent to an Order for bringing in a Bill, To Resume the Grants of all Lands and Revenues of the Crown, and all Pensions granted by the Crown since the 6th. of February, 1684. and for applying the same to the use of the Publick: Which Order was however of no Effect, by Reason it touch'd many of King James's Friends. On February the 15th. the Commons proceeded to consider further of the State of the Nation; and upon a very hot and long Debate, it was resolv'd, That an Address be presented to His Majesty, representing to Him the Resolutions of this House of the 18th. of January last, relating to Grants of the Forfeited Estates in Ireland. The same day the Commons resolv'd "That a Supply be granted to His Majesty, towards the payment of his Proportion of the Debt owing to the Prince of Denmark, and the Moneys to be rais'd, to be laid out in this Kingdom, and settled upon the Prince and Princess, and their Issue, according to their Marriage Agreement; That an Address be presented to His Majesty, That He would please to use His Endeavours to procure other Princes and States to pay their Proportions of the Debt due to his Royal Highness. And that a Supply be also granted to His Majesty, for the carrying on the Coinage of the Gold and Silver of this Kingdom; for continuing the Contracts and Circulating Exchequer Bills for One Year longer; for making good both the Deficiencies of the Aid of Three Shillings in the Pound, granted in the Eighth Year of His Majesty's Reign; of the Duty on Paper and Parchment, granted the same Session of Parliament; of Malt Tickets, and of the Quarterly Poll granted in the Ninth Year of His Majesty's Reign; for paying off the Debt due for Transport Service; and lastly, for the payment of the Debt due to the Navy, and the Sick and Wounded Seamen." Towards raising of which Supplies, the Commons resolv'd on February 17. That only one Moiety of the several Duties paid upon the Importation of Tallow-Candles from Ireland, be drawn back upon the Exportation thereof. That the Forfeited Estates and other Interests in Ireland, to be vested in Trustees, for the benefit of the Publick, be applied towards Satisfaction of the said Debt to the Army, the Transport Debts, and Tallies or Tickets upon Deficient Funds: And that a farther Duty be laid upon Wrought Silks, Bengalls, and Stuffs mix'd with Silks, or Herba, of the Manufacture of Persia, China, or East-India; and all Callicoes Painted, Died, Printed, or Stain'd there, until the 30th of September, 1701.

On the 21st of February the Commons in a Body having waited upon the King, with their Address of the 15th of that Month, in relation to the Irish Forfeitures, His Majesty told them; "Gentlemen, I was not only led by Inclination, but thought my Self oblig'd in Justice, to Reward those who had serv'd well, and particularly in the Reduction of Ireland, out of the 1699. "Estates Forfeited to me, by the Rebellion there. — The long War in which we were engag'd, did occasion great Taxes, and has left the Nation much in Debt; and the taking just and effectual Ways for lessening that Debt, and supporting publick Credit, is what, in my Opinion, will best contribute to the Honour, Interest, and Safety of the Kingdom.

The Speaker having Five days after reported this Answer, the Commons were so provok'd by it, that they Resolv'd, That whatsoever Advis'd it, had used his utmost Endeavour to create a Misunderstanding and Jealousy between the King and His People. The same day the Commons Resolv'd, That towards raising the Supply, a Duty be laid upon all Hops imported into Ireland, except such as are of the growth of this Kingdom. And on the First of March, Colonel Granville reported from the Committee of the whole House, who had consider'd the State of His Majesty's Revenue, That it was their Opinion, That there had been a great Loss in His Majesty's Revenue of Excise, to the prejudice of the Publick. To which Resolution the House Agreed; and moreover Resolv'd, That it be an Instruction to the Committee of the whole House, to whom the Land Tax and Irish Forfeiture Bills were committed, that they receive a Clause to enable His Majesty, for the Improvement of the Revenue, to let to Farm the Duties of Excise, if He thought fit. And that it be an Instruction also, that no Member of this House be concern'd in the Farming or Managing the Revenue of Excise.

On the 7th of March, the Commons having taken into consideration the Services perform'd by the Commissioners appointed to enquire into the Irish Forfeitures, Resolv'd, That the Sum of One Thousand Pounds be paid to the Earl of Drogheda, Francis Annesley, John Trenchard, James Hamilton, Henry Langford, Esq; and to James Hooper, Esq; Secretary to the Commissioners; and the Sum of 500 l. only to Sir Richard Leving, and Sir Francis Brewster, Two of the said Commissioners, in consideration of their Expences; which Sums were order'd to be paid out of the Irish Forfeitures. On March 12. The Commons made an end of the business of the Supply; having agreed to these Resolutions. That the Superplage over and above 700000 l. of this Year's produce of the Subsidies, Duties, and small Branches of the Revenue, appropriated to the Service of His Majesty's Household, be applied for the Service of Year 1700. That towards the further raising the Supply already granted, the Sum of 60000 Pounds be rais'd, by enlarging the time to purchase Annuities; That the Additional Duties of 25 l. per Cent. on all French Goods, and 25 l. per Cent. on all French Wines and Brandies, the Duty of Five Shillings per Tun upon all French Shipping, the Plantation Duties, and Duty of one Shilling and Tenpence per pound weight upon all wrought Silks, be applied for the Service of this present Year; That a further Duty to be laid upon all Wrought Silks, Bengalls, and Stuffs mix'd with Silk or Herba, of the Manufacture of Persia, China, or East-India, and all Callicoes painted or stain'd there, imported before 30th of September, 1701. be 15 l. per Cent. upon the gross Sales at the Candle, over and above the Duties now payable for the same. And that a further Duty of 15 l. per Cent. be laid upon all Muslins imported. Which they order'd to be form'd into a Bill, directing the Committee appointed for that purpose, to bring Two Clauses into the Bill; one for a draw-back of the Duties upon East-India Goods, upon the Exportation thereof: And another for the Importing Custom-free, a certain quantity of Paper for the Printing Dr. Allin's Ecclesiastical History; which was to consist of several Volumes in Folio.

On February 9th. the King came to the House

1699. of Peers, and sending for the Commons, He gave the Royal Assent to a Bill, Entituled, An Act for taking away the Bounty Money for exporting Corn from the Ninth day of February, One thousand six hundred ninety nine, to the Twenty ninth day of September, One thousand seven hundred. And to a private Act, for enabling Thomas Noble, Gentleman, to sell the undivided third part of the Manner of Fexton, in the County of Leicester, when he shall have settled other Lands (an entire Estate) of a greater Value to the same Uses.

The Grand Committee for Trade, upon the Representations made by the Merchants, of several Piracies committed in the East-Indies, by Captain Kidd and his Crew, examin'd the Copies of several Commissions given to the said Kidd; of His Majesty's Warrant for a Grant of Pyrates Goods to the Earl of Bellamont and others; of an Indenture between His Majesty and the said Earl; of a Letter from the Lords of the Treasury to that Earl, about sending over the Treasure seiz'd in Kidd's Ship; of another Letter to the said Earl, about seizing of Kidd; of several Papers receiv'd from the Earl of Bellamont; and of a Petition of the Old East-India Company, presented to the King on the 21st. of September, 1699. And then they brought in a Bill for the more effectual Suppression of Piracy. And on March 16th, upon Information that Captain Kidd was sent for home, from the West-Indies, the Commons Address'd the King, That the said Captain Kidd might not be Tryed, Discharg'd, or Pardon'd until the next Session of Parliament. And that the Earl of Bellamont, Governour of New-England, might transmit over all Instructions and Papers taken with or relating to the said Kidd. With which His Majesty complied.

Other Proceedings in Parliament not grateful to the King.

Some other things were done in this Session that could not be grateful to the Court. A Bill was set on foot in the House of Commons for qualifying Justices of the Peace; and a Committee appointed to inspect the Commissions of the Peace, and Commissions for Deputy-Lieutenants as they now stood, and as they were for seven Years last past. This Committee having made Report to the House, that not only many Persons dissenting from the Church of England, but Men of Small Fortunes, and who consequently had an entire Dependence on the Court, were put into those Places; the Commons Resolv'd, That an Address be made to His Majesty, that it would much conduce to the Service of His Majesty, and the Good of this Kingdom, that Gentlemen of Quality and good Estates be restor'd and put into the Commissions of the Peace and Lieutenancy; and that Men of Small Estates be neither continued, nor put in the said Commissions. When this Address was presented by the whole House, the King gave this Favourable Answer.

Address of the Commons about Justices of Peace.

King's Answer.

Gentlemen,
I am of the Opinion, That Men of the best Quality and Estates are most proper to be intrusted in the Commissions of the Peace and Lieutenancy, and Directions shall be given accordingly.

With which Answer the Commons were so well pleased, that they presented their Humble Thanks in a Body to His Majesty; who thereupon took occasion to say farther:

Address about the Allies.

Gentlemen,
I shall always endeavour to do what is for the Good of the Publick.

Another Umbrage of Discontent was taken at the Allies not bearing a Proportion to England in some of the Common Burthens and Engagements. They presented an Address to His Majesty about the beginning of March, That His Majesty would use His Endeavours to procure other Princes and States to pay their Proportions of the Debt due to the Prince of Denmark. To which the King answer'd in an obliging manner; That He would use His utmost Endeavours for it.

The most reasonable of all Jealousies and Fears, Growth was the Growth of Popery. On Feb. 21. the Clergy of the County Palatine of Lancaster had presented a Petition to the Commons of England, Praying, "That such Effectual Methods as should be thought fit, might be used to stop the Growth of Popery, and prevent the mischievous Effects that were otherwise likely to be produced by the Insolent Behaviour and Attempts of Popish Priests." Whereupon Mr. Hov reported from the Committee appointed to enquire how far the Laws against Popish Recusants had been put in execution, and to propose what further Remedies were necessary to suppress the Growth of Popery in these Kingdoms, and to strengthen the Protestant Religion; "That it did not appear to them that the Laws against Popish Recusants had generally been put in execution: That it was their Opinion, That a further Reward be given to such Persons as should Discover and Convict Popish Priests or Jesuits: That it would be a further Remedy against the Growth of Popery, that perpetual Imprisonment be inflicted upon Popish Priests, and Popish School-Masters, convict upon the Oath of one or more Witnesses: That no Person born after the 25th Day of March, 1700, being a Papist, be capable of inheriting any Title of Honour or Estate within the Kingdom of England, Dominion of Wales, or Town of Berwick upon Tweed: And that no Papist be capable of purchasing any Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments in the said Kingdom, either in his own Name, or in the Name of any Person in Trust for him." The Commons having agreed to these Resolutions, order'd a Bill to be brought in thereupon; which Bill soon after received the Royal Assent.

Scotch East-India Company.

Besides the Affairs of England, the Remonstrances of the Scotch East-India Company did much perplex His Majesty's Thoughts. On Dec. 4. 1699, the Council General of that Company writ a Letter to the Scotch Secretary of State in England, acquainting his Lordship, "That they had prevail'd upon the Lord Basil Hamilton to go up with an Address to His Majesty, in behalf of Captain Robert Pinkerton, and thirty more, who were wrongfully detain'd Prisoners at Carthage since the beginning of February (then) last past; and, as they were inform'd, most inhumanly treated. That they were daily importuned by their Relations (who were very considerable) for their Relief; and it was of great Concern to the Company, that something material should be done speedily therein, not only for the sake of the said Prisoners, but that others might thereby see they did not abandon the Interest of such as engag'd themselves in their Company's Service. Wherefore they intreated his Lordship, That he would be pleas'd to introduce the Lord Basil Hamilton to the King, in presenting the said Address, and to assist him in procuring a gracious Return from His Majesty." Thereupon the Lord Chancellor writ a Letter to the Scotch Directors, importing, That His Majesty's Secretaries of State acquainted Him, That the King would not allow my Lord Basil Hamilton Access to Him, because he did not wait upon His Majesty when he was formerly in London; and that he had never since given any Publick Evidence of his Loyalty, nor had hitherto own'd His Majesty's Government. But that His Majesty would not refuse to hear what my Lord Basil's Instructions were, being willing to be inform'd of what the Company desir'd. And that 1699. that if the Lord Basil would give in Writing to His Majesty's Secretaries what he had to present; His Majesty would receive Information from their Hands of what was demanded, and would give his Answer to the Company. In short, That His Majesty did not refuse the Petition, but would not allow my Lord Basil to be the Presenter of it. At the same time, His Majesty, to give the Company all the present Satisfaction he could, Wrote to his Council of Scotland; "That whereas the Council General of the African Company of that Nation, had by their Letter to the Secretaries of State, desired that they might give their Concurrence to procure a gracious Return to their Petition, which they had sent with Lord Basil Hamilton, and which together with his Instructions, he had communicated to the Secretaries of State; and that they had represented to him what was desired in behalf of the said Company; and that he having refused the said Lord Basil Hamilton Access, for the Reasons communicated to the Lord Chancellor by the Secretaries of State; yet being willing to give an Answer to what the Company desired, his Majesty was resolved in the Terms of Treaties, to demand from the King of Spain, that Captain Pinkerton and those of his Crew, who were detained Prisoners at Carthagena, should be set at Liberty; That it was His Majesty's Intention to advance the Trade of Scotland; and that the Subjects of that Kingdom should be allowed the same Liberty of Commerce that others enjoy'd with English Plantations; but that the Three Frigats they demanded, having been given by Parliament for Guarding the Coasts, he was resolved not to dispose of them, till He had the Advice of His Parliament.

In answer to the said Chancellor's Letter, the Directors sent another to the Secretaries of State for Scotland, containing in Substance, "That the Council General of their Company having thought fit to send up one of their Number with an Address to his Majesty, and with Instructions concerning the Contents of their Company's former Petitions, they thought that none could be more capable to discharge that Trust than the Lord Basil Hamilton, as being throughly vers'd in the Course of the Company's Affairs; Nor more acceptable to His Majesty, as having no Objections made against him when he was appointed, several Lords of His Majesty's Privy Council, being then present. That they were surpriz'd to find by a Letter from the Lord Chancellor, that the King would not allow the Lord Basil Access, because he had not waited on His Majesty when last in London; but his Lordship being sent by, and having Instructions from the Council General, they could say nothing to it, other than intreat their Lordships, That they would use their Interests with His Majesty to allow the Lord Basil to have Access to His Royal Person, lest the Refusal of it might not be only a Discouragement to the Company, and all its Well-wishers, but give ground to the World to believe, That his not being allow'd Access to His Majesty was upon Account of carrying an Address from the Company, which every Body knew stood in need of, and had a just Right to his Majesty's Royal Favour and Protection. They also Writ to the Lord Basil Hamilton, That as they were sensible of his generous Condescension to their Request, in undertaking so troublesome a Journey to London at that time of the Year, purely to serve the Interest of his Country; so they could not but heartily Regret, That the carrying the Company's Commission, should be the occasion of putting a distinguishing Mark upon 1699. "a Person of his Lordships Quality and Merit, as to be denied Access to His Majesty's Person, because he had not waited on His Majesty when last in London. That no body was so Blind but might see through that. And that whereas they never heard that his Lordship had ever done any thing unworthy of his Quality, or inconsistent with the Duty of a Loyal and Peaceable Subject; so they still hop'd that by his Prudent Management His Majesty might be undeceived of any Misrepresentation he might have of him, and that he would yet condescend to grant his Lordship Access to His Royal Person, with their Address, and give a Gracious Answer to the Contents of it, and the other Particulars mentioned in his Instructions.

On the other Hand, the House of Lords in England represented in an Address to His Majesty; "That according to their Duty, being solicitous for the Preservation and Increase of the Trade of the Kingdom, on which the support of His Majesty's Greatness and Honour so much depended, as well as the Security and Defence of his People, had been very apprehensive, that the Step made towards the Settlement of the Scots at Darien might tend to the great Prejudice of England, and possibly to the Disturbance of that Peace and good Correspondence with the Crown of Spain, which they conceived to be very advantageous. That therefore they had taken the same into serious Consideration, and thought it proper to be laid before His Majesty as the common Father of both Countries. And that as they were truly sensible of the great Losses their Neighbour Kingdoms had sustain'd, both by Men and Treasure, in their Expeditions to that Place, which they very heartily lamented; so they should not endeavour by any Interposition of theirs, to defeat the Hopes the Scots might still entertain of the Recovering these Losses by their further engaging in that Design, but that they judged such a Prosecution on their Parts, must tend not only in far greater Disappointments to themselves, but at the same time time, prove inconvenient to the Trade and Quiet of the Kingdom of England. That they presumed to put His Majesty in mind of the Address of both Houses of Parliament, presented to His Majesty on the 17th. of December, 1695. in the close of which Address His Majesty would see the unanimous Sense of the Kingdom, in relation to any Settlement the Scots might make in the West-Indies, by virtue of an Act of Parliament pass'd about that time in the Kingdom of Scotland, which was the occasion of the Address. That they also humbly represented to His Majesty, That having received Information of some Orders his Majesty had sent to the Governors of the Plantations, on that Subject, and the House had on Jan. 18. than last past, come to this Resolution, that His Majesty's Pleasure signified to the Governors of the Plantations, in Relation to the Scots Settlement at Darien, was agreeable to the foremention'd Address of both Houses of Parliament; and that on the 8th. of that Instant February, that House came to a farther Resolution, That the Settlement of the Scots Colony at Darien, was inconsistent with the Good of the Plantation Trade of the Kingdom. All which they hoped His Majesty would take into His Royal Consideration.

This Address was carried only by Four or Five Votes, and about Sixteen Peers enter'd their Protests against it. As for the Commons, they absolutely refus'd to concur with it; but 1699. however, His Majesty made Answer; That having received a very Dutiful Address from the House of Peers, He was pleas'd to let them know, That He would always have a very great regard to their Opinion, and that He assur'd them, that He would never be wanting by all Means, to promote the Advantage and Good of the Trade of England. At the same time His Majesty was pleas'd to declare, That He could not but have a great Concern and Tenderness for His Kingdom of Scotland, and a Desire to Advance their Welfare and Prosperity; and was very sensibly touch'd with the Loss His Subjects of that Kingdom had sustain'd by their unhappy Expedition, in order to a Settlement at Darien: That His Majesty did apprehend, that Difficulties might arise, with respect to the different Interest of Trade between His Two Kingdoms, unless some Means were found out to unite them more nearly and completely; wherefore He took this Opportunity of putting the Heads of Peers in mind of what He recommended to His Parliament soon after His Accession to the Throne, That they would consider of an Union between the Two Kingdoms. That His Majesty was of Opinion, That nothing would contribute more to the Security and Happiness of both Kingdoms; and was inclin'd to hope, that after they had liv'd near a Hundred Years under the same Head, some happy Expedient might be found for making them one People, in case a Treaty were set on foot for that purpose: And therefore He very earnestly recommended that Matter to the Consideration of the House. Hereupon the Lords fram'd and pass'd an Act for Authorizing certain Commissioners of the Realm of England, to Treat with Commissioners of Scotland, for the Well of both Kingdoms: To which the Commons refus'd to give their Concurrence. About two Month before, a Complaint was made to the House of Commons of a Printed Book, entituled, An Enquiry into the Causes of the Miscarriages of the Scots Colony at Darien; and the House having examin'd the said Book, resolv'd, That it highly reflecting on the Honour of His Majesty, and both Houses of Parliament, and tending to create Jealousies and Animosities between the two Kingdoms of England and Scotland, was a False, Scandalous, and Traiterous Libel: Order'd it to be Burnt by the Hands of the Common Hangman, and Address'd His Majesty to issue out His Royal Proclamation for the Discovering and Apprehending the Author, Printer, and Publisher of the said Libel; which Proclamation was publish'd accordingly.

In the mean time, notwithstanding His Majesty's Proclamation issued out in Scotland on the 18th. of December last, against Disorderly Petitioning, the Scotch went on with a National Address to His Majesty, which was Presented by the Marquis of Tweedale on the 25th of March; and import'd, "That they being deeply affected with the hard Circumstances of the Indian and African Company of His Majesty's Kingdom of Scotland, both Abroad and at Home, as being of Universal Concern to the whole Nation: And that His Majesty having been pleas'd by His Royal Answer to the Council General of the said Company's Petition, to signify, That He very much regretted the Loss which that Kingdom and the Company had then lately sustain'd: That upon all Occasions His Majesty would Protect and Encourage the Trade of the Nation, and that He would order the Parliament to meet when He judg'd the Good of the Nation requir'd it: That they were thereby encourag'd in most dutiful and humble Manner, to represent to His Majesty, That as the Estates of Parliament, and that Nation which they represented, had a peculiar Interest in the Concerns of the said Company, as was particularly manifested in their Unanimous Address to His Majesty, ^{1699.} August 5, 1698. so they humbly conceiv'd nothing could be so conducive to support the Credit and Interest of the said Company, under its present Misfortunes, as a Meeting of the said Estates in Parliament; and that the Good of the Nation could at no time require their Meeting, more than at present. That they doubted not but that under the Influences of His Majesty's Favour and Protection, together with the Assistance which might be reasonably expected from His said Parliament, the said Company might be enabled to prosecute their Undertaking with greater Assurance, and better Success than hitherto they could have done, under the many Stops and Difficulties which they met with from time to time. Wherefore they in all humble Duty, most earnestly intreated, and most assuredly expected, That His Majesty would Order His said Parliament to meet as soon as possible; which they doubted not, would tend to the Honour of His Majesty, and the general Good and Satisfaction of the Nation.

Upon the Presenting of this Address, one of the Commissioners apply'd to the King, That it was hop'd His Majesty would be pleas'd to look upon it, not only as a Petition for Allowing the Parliament to Sit, but likewise as a Testimony of the Nation's Concern for the Interest of the Indian and African Company. To which His Majesty was pleas'd to Answer, That that would be well known in Parliament, and that the Parliament could not Sit before the 14th. of May then next ensuing, but that it would Sit then.

On December 14. His Majesty was pleas'd to confer the Dignity of a Baronet of this Kingdom, on William Brown of London, Esq; and on Richard Allin of Summerly, in the County of Suffolk, Esq; On December 17. His Majesty conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Charles Eyre, Esq; who was Elected by the East-India Company to be Governor of Fort-William, and President for the Management of all their Affairs in the Kingdoms of Bengall and Bahor in the East-Indies. On December 19. His Majesty granted the Dignity of a Baronet to Richard Newman of Fifehead Magdalene, in the County of Dorset, Esq; On December 30. He conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Andrew Fountain, Junior, of Nayford, in Norfolk, Esq; a Gentleman of great Parts and Learning. On January 9. the same Honour was done to Roger Jenyns of Ely, in the County of Cambridge, Esq; On March 23. His Majesty conferr'd the Dignity of a Baronet upon Martin Westcomb, Esq; His Majesty's Consul at Cadiz.

As to the State of Religion, the King in His Speech at the opening of the Session, ^{State of Religion} November 16. had justly imputed the growing Burden of the Poor to the Depravation of Manners, occasion'd by their Loose and Idle Life; and had desir'd them to consider, whether the Ground of this Evil was from Defects in the Laws already made, or in the Execution of them: Promising Himself to Countenance Virtue, and Discourage Vice. Upon which, the Commons Resolved on November 28. that an Humble Address be made to His Majesty, That He will be pleas'd to Issue His Royal Proclamation, for the Suppressing of all Vice and Immorality, and for putting the Laws in Execution relating thereunto. And they Order'd a Committee to be appointed to prepare Heads for a Bill against Gaming and Duelling. When the Address was Presented by those Members who were of the Privy Council, His Majesty was pleas'd to say, That He would speedily comply with the Desires of the House therein. And accordingly

Honours and Preferments.

Suppressing Vice and Immorality.

1699. on December 11. was published his Majesty's Proclamation for preventing and punishing Immorality and Prophaneness.

The Archbishop of Canterbury was a steady Promoter of Peace and Piety: And to that excellent Purpose, his Grace sent out this Circular Letter to the Right Reverend the Lords Bishops of his Province. Dated April 4. 1699.

Archbishop of Canterbury's Circular Letter

Reverend Brether,

" My Writing to you and the rest of our Brethren at this time, is occasioned by a sensible growth of Vice and Prophaneness in the Nation; which, to the great Affliction of all good Men, appears not only in the corrupt Practices of particular Persons, but also in the endeavours that are used to subvert the general Principles of our holy Religion. And this with a boldness and openness, far beyond the Examples of past Times. So that if a speedy stop be not put to such National Provocations, we have just cause to fear they may bring down the heavieſt Judgments of God upon us. The preventing whereof belongs more immediately to us, who are the Ministers of Christ; and as such, are obliged to the utmost care and watchfulness in opposing these Instruments of Satan.

" I doubt not but many of the Parochial Clergy are sufficiently sensible, both of their own Duty and the Danger we are in. In the Cities of London and Westminster, and other places, I am sure the good Effects of their Diligence have been very evident of late Years; but in some parts that are more remote, all of them may not so well understand either the Arts or the Injury of these Enemies of Religion. And therefore I thought it a Duty incumbent on the Station wherein Providence has placed me, to desire of you and the rest of our Brethren, to warn the Clergy, under your Care, of these Attempts against Religion and Virtue; and to excite them to a Diligence proportionable to the Danger; and to suggest to them such Methods as are most likely to work a General Reformation.

" With this Request, I send you such Particulars, as, in my Opinion, are very necessary to be pressed upon your Clergy, for the attaining so desirable an End. As,

" I. That in their own Lives, and the Government of their own Families, they would make themselves Examples of a sober and regular Conversation. It is the Apostles Reasoning; If a man know not how to rule his own house, (and much more his own Life and Actions) how shall he take care of the Church of God? The true method of working a Reformation Abroad, is to lay the Foundation at home; which alone can give our Reproofs a just Weight and Authority: But till that is done, no Exhortations, whether in publick or private, can either be offered with Decency, or received with Reverence.

" II. To Piety, they should add Prudence in all their Actions and Behaviour; which even in Private Christians is a great Ornament to Religion; but in Publick Teachers, is a most necessary Qualification for the due Discharge of their Ministry. A Mildness of Temper, with a Gravity and Calmness in their Conversation, will not fail to gain them a general Love and Esteem among their Neighbours: And a discreet Caution in their Words and Actions, will preserve them from those little Imprudencies that are sometimes so sensible an Obstruction to the good Endeavours of well-meaning Men.

1699. " Persons in Holy Orders are not only bound, in the Conduct of their Lives, to consider what is Lawful or Unlawful in it self, but also what is Decent or Indecent in Them, with respect to their Character and Function: Abstaining from all appearance of evil; and giving no Offence in any thing, that the Ministry be not blamed.

" III. While our Enemies are so very Industrious in seeking out Objections against the Christian Religion, it becomes the Clergy (who are set a-part for the Vindication of it) to be no less Diligent in their Preparations for its Defence: By acquainting themselves thoroughly with the rational grounds of Christianity, and the true State of such Points as are the subjects of our present Controversies; together with the Objections which are usually made by our Adversaries of all sorts, and the effectual Answers that have been returned to them by so many Eminent Writers of our own Church. That so they may be ready on all Occasions, to do Justice and Honour to our Religion; and be able to expose the Folly and Ignorance of these Grainfaying Men. The Cause which God has put into our hands, is undoubtedly good; but the best Cause may suffer by the weakness of its Advocate: And when this happens in the matter of Religion, it gives the Adversary an occasion of Triumph, and is apt to stagger the Faith even of sincere and unprejudic'd Christians.

" IV. It were to be wish'd, that the Clergy of every Neighbourhood would agree upon frequent Meetings, to consult for the good of Religion in general; and to advise with one another about any Difficulties that may happen in their particular Cures. By what Methods any evil Custom may most easily be broken; how a Sinner may be most effectually Reclaim'd; and (in general) how each of them in their several Circumstances may contribute most to the advancement of Religion. Such Consultations as these, besides the mutual Benefit of Advice and Instruction, will be a natural means to excite the Zeal of some, to reduce the over-eagerness of others to a due Temper, and to provoke all to a Religious Emulation in the improvement of Piety and Order within their respective Parishes. And these Meetings might still be made a greater Advantage to the Clergy, in carrying on the Reformation of Mens Lives and Manners, by inviting the Church-Wardens of their several Parishes and other Pious Persons among the Laiety, to join with them in the Execution of the most probable Methods that can be suggested for those good Ends. And we may very reasonably expect the happy Effects of such a Concurrence, from the visible Success of that Noble Zeal wherewith so many about the great Cities in my Neighbourhood, do promote true Piety, and a Reformation of Manners. And therefore I desire you, that you will particularly excite your Clergy to the procuring such Assistances as these, for the more effectual discharge of their own Duty.

" V. It would very much further and facilitate all their Endeavours of this kind, to gain over the Persons who have the greatest Power and Authority in their Parishes, to a hearty Concern for the Honour of God and Religion: Presently suggesting to them the Obligation that God has laid upon them to be Examples to others; and the great good that it is in their Power to do, by setting a Pattern of regular Living, and the unspeakable Mischiefs of their Irregular Behaviour. For if once the better sort can be brought to such a Seriousness and

Subscri-

1699. Sobriety, the rest will more easily follow: Example being the most powerful Instruction; and Experience teaching us that Shame and Fear, which arise from the Authority of such good Patterns, are commonly the most effectual Restraints upon the meaner sort.

VI. When any Person is Obstinate in his Vices, and not to be Reclaimed either by Teaching or Example, by Exhortation or Reproof; the Ordinary ought to be informed of it, that he may proceed to Reclaim such by Ecclesiastical Censures; and where those are like to prove ineffectual, the Civil Magistrate must be applied to, and desired to proceed against them according to the Laws in those Cases provided. Which Information and Request, especially in the Case of such incorrigible Offenders, can be made by none so properly as by the Clergy; who may best be supposed to understand the necessity there is of having recourse to the Civil Magistrate. And since our Lawgivers have Enacted these Temporal Punishments, on purpose to assist us in the discharge of our Ministry; it would be a great failing in us, not to make use of them, when all other Methods have been tried to little or no Effect.

VII. Every Pious Person of the Laity, should, if need be, be put in mind by the Clergy, that he ought to think himself oblig'd to use his best Endeavours to have such Offenders punished by the Civil Magistrate, as can no otherwise be amended. And that when he hears his Neighbour Swear or Blaspheme the Name of God, or sees him offend in Drunkenness or Prephanation of the Lord's Day, he ought not to neglect to give the Magistrate notice of it. In such a Case to be called an Informer, will be so far from making any Man Odious in the judgment of Sober Persons, that it will tend to his Honour, when he makes it appear by his unblameable Behaviour, and the Care he takes of Himself and his own Family, that he doth it purely for the Glory of God, and the good of his Brethren. Such well-disposed Persons as are resolved upon this, should be encouraged to meet as oft as they can, and to consult how they may most discreetly and effectually manage it in the Places where they live.

VIII. As in reforming the Laity, they ought to use the Assistance of the Civil Magistrate; so if any of their own Brethren be an irregular Liver, and cannot be reclaim'd by Brotherly Admonition, the Neighbouring Clergy should be strictly enjoyned to make it known to their Diocesan, either by themselves or the Archdeacon, or by some other convenient way. That so the Offender may be Admonish'd to live suitably to his Character; and if a bare Admonition will not do, he may be proceeded against by Ecclesiastical Censures; for the preventing such Scandals and Miscchiefs as will always accompany the irregular Life of a Minister of the Gospel.

IX. And whereas the Foundations of Piety and Morality are best laid at the beginning, in the Religious Education of Children; I cannot but wish that every one of the Parochial Clergy would be very diligent in Catechising the Children under their Care; and not only so, but in calling upon them afterwards as they grow up, to give such further Account of their Religion, as may be expected from a riper Age. That being thus carefully instructed in the Faith and Duty of a Christian, they also may teach their Children the same; and so Piety, Virtue and Goodness, may for ever Flourish in our Church and Nation.

1699. These Directions, with such others of the same nature as will occur to you, I desire may be Transmitted by you to the Clergy of your Diocese; for the Religious Government of themselves, and their People, in these dangerous Times. So recommending You and Them to the Blessing of God, I rest

Your Affectionate Brother,

Tho. Cantuar.

The Majority of the Commons were well affected to the Church of England, and could not suspect that the Court had shewn too much favour to the Dissenters: It was upon this, that a Committee complain'd, that many were dissenting from the Church of England, were not Justices of Peace: tho' upon Enquiry it did not appear that any two Men were Commissioned in the Peace, or Lieutenancy, who deserved the Name of Dissenters; tho' some of them indeed were but Occasional Conformists; which, if it proceeded from the Intention of getting or keeping Places, was a Shameful Practice. And the Indignation which many sincere Christians had on this account, gave the better colour to some People, for appearing with extraordinary warmth against Dissenters; and to love to be distinguish'd by the Name of High Church Men; and to treat All Persons of Charity and Moderation with the Character of Low Church, and Whigs, and even Fanaticks; tho' Men of the greatest Affection to the Church, and of the strictest Conformity to the establish'd Rules of it. Under this new Spirit of Division, the very Prelates of the Church were to fall into Suspicion and Reproach: Hence on December the 13th. a Motion was made in the House of Commons, and the Question was put, That an Humble Address be made to His Majesty, for Removing Gilbert Lord B. of Sarum from being Preceptor to his Highness the Duke of Gloucester. But the Majority of that Honourable Body were sensible of the unreasonable Prejudice, and so it Passed in the Negative. However, there was a Jealousie fomented, of the Church being betrayed by Moderate Men, and it was unhappily increased by a Passage that made a great deal of Noise. Mr. William Stephens B. D. Rector of Sutton in Surry, a Man of loose Principles, and of no strict Conversation, was appointed to Preach before the House of Commons on January the 30th. He had been always a Bold Talker for Rights and Liberties, and therefore he chose the same Subject on this Day, and seem'd to assert the Original Power of the People in such a manner, as look'd towards excusing the Murder of King Charles I. and directly suggested, that after an Act of Oblivion and length of Time, the Observation of the Anniversary Fast need not to be longer continued; but rather for Charity and Peace to be now utterly Abolish'd. This Doctrine was so displeas'd, and the Man so unacceptable; that when a Motion was the next day made, and the Question put, That the Thanks of this House be given to Mr. Stephens for the Sermon Preached by him Yesterday at St. Margaret's Westminster; It passed in the Negative. And it was Resolved, That for the future, no Person be Recommended to Preach before this House, who is under the Dignity of a Dean in the Church, or hath not taken his Degree of Doctor in Divinity.

In this Session, the Duke of Norfolk, upon the Precedent made the last Year in the Case of the Earl of Macclesfield, lodg'd a Bill in the House of Peers, to Dissolve his Marriage with the Lady Mary Mordant, and to Enable him to Marry again; which in few days Passed Both Houses, 1699. distinction of High Church and Low Church.

Offence given by Mr. Stephens.

Bill for the D. of Norfolk's Divorce.

1700. notwithstanding the Opposition of the Dutcheſs. The Duke did not Marry again, and after his Death, the Dutcheſs took Sir John Germain to be her Lawful Husband. The Duke's Caſe was thus deliver'd, with Reaſons for Paſſing the Bill.

The Duke's Arguments for it. If want either of Precedent or Parliamentary Divorce, before going through the tedious and ineffectual Methods of Doctors Commons, or of Demonſtration of Fact, have hitherto deprived the Duke of Norfolk of that Relief againſt his Wife's Adultery, which the Divine Law allows; The late Statute made in the like Caſe, and the coming in of Two Witneſſes, who while the Duke's former Bill was depending, had been ſent away to prevent that Diſcovery which they now make, cannot but be thought to remove all Objections againſt an Act of Parliament, not only for the Benefit of the Duke, but of the Publick; as a means to preſerve the Inheritance of ſo great an Office and Honours, to Perſons of the True Religion.

And ſince Biſhop Coxens his Argument in the Lord Roſe's Caſe has made it Evident, that thoſe Canons which govern the Spiritual Court in this Matter, are but the Remains of Popery; Nothing can be now requiſite to ſatiſſie the moſt Scrupulous of the Reformed Religion, but to ſet the Duke's Proofs of his Lady's Adultery in a true Light.

The Reputation which the Dutcheſs had maintain'd of Wit and Diſcretion, made it difficult for many to believe that ſhe could be ſurpriz'd in the very Act of Adultery, as had been formerly prov'd. And though then it appear'd that one Henry Keemer liv'd with the Dutcheſs, while ſhe went by a Feigned Name, at a Houſe hired for her at Fox-hall, by Sir John Germain's Brother; and that Nicola, who then liv'd with Sir John, uſed to receive Wood ſent from the Dutcheſs to Sir John's Houſe by the Cock-Pit; the withdrawing of Nicola, and carrying with him the Dutch Maid, equally intruited with the Secret on Sir John's ſide, left no Evidence of their conſtant Converſation, but Keemer ſince dead, and Suſannah Barrington, who had the like Truſt from the Dutcheſs.

Keemer, though very unwillingly, ſome Years ſince confeſſed his living with the Dutcheſs at Fox-Hall, where ſhe pretended ſhe was obliged to conceal her ſelf for Debt; and what Share Suſannah had kept ſecret, was unknown, till Nicola appear'd: Nicola coming into England, and being deſtitute of a Service, expreſs'd his readineſs to diſcover what he knew, and to bring with him the Dutch Maid.

She proves, That for two Months, the firſt Summer after the King came for England, Sir John Germain and the Dutcheſs liv'd together as Man and Wife, and were ſeen in Bed by her, Mr. Bryan and his Wife, Sir John's Siſter: And that Nicholas Hanſeur, Sir John's Valet de Chambre, uſed to be aſſiſting to him, as the Dutcheſs's Woman, Suſannah Barrington, was to her at going to Bed and riſing.

She proves the like Converſation at Fox-Hall, and the Dutcheſs's Houſe at the Mill-Bank, till the Duke's firſt Bill of Divorce was depending; within which time Nicholas Hanſeur by Sir John's Order carried her away, and Suſannah Barrington, with intention of going for Holland, to prevent their being examined to what they knew; but the Wind proving contrary, they could not go till the Bill was rejected; and then Sir John fetch'd back Suſannah, who was moſt uſeful to the Dutcheſs; but Hanſeur went for Holland with Ellen.

1700. He confirms Ellen's Evidence in every Particular; and beſides the Perſons mention'd by Ellen, as privy to Sir John's Intrigue, names Sir John's Brother Daniel. Nicholas, having been found very truſty, his Maſter ſent for him to return to his Service, and gave him the Opportunity of proving the Continuance of the ſame Converſation at ſeveral Times and Places, from the Summer 1692, to the 26th of April 1696. He ſwears he had after his Return to Sir John's Service, ſeen them in Bed together in Sir John's Houſe at the Cock-Pit, and at the Dutcheſs's Houſe at Millbank, where ſhe now lives; and uſed to be let into the Dutcheſs's Apartment by Suſannah Barrington, or Keemer. Nor can any Man who ſhall read the Ample Teſtimonials given Mr. Hanſeur by Sir John; by the laſt of which it appears, that he ſerv'd him faithfully as his Steward, reaſonably queſtion Hanſeur's Credit.

Another who had been advanc'd by Sir John from his Footman to Mr. Hanſeur's Place, and from thence to a good Office in the Excize, very unwillingly confirm'd the Teſtimony of Hanſeur, and the Dutch Maid, not only as to the time of their going from the Service of Sir John and the Dutcheſs, but (though being no Foreigner, he could not ſo eaſily be ſent away to prevent Diſcovery, and therefore was not let ſo far into the Secret as Hanſeur and the Dutch Maid;) yet he ſwears the Dutcheſs uſed to come masked to his Maſter's Houſe; that he has gone with him as far as the Hoſe-Ferry, towards her Houſe at the Mill-Bank; that then his Maſter ſometimes lay out all Night, and the next Morning he has carried Linnen and Cloaths for his Maſter to Keemer's Houſe, or Keemer has fetch'd them from him: And this he proves to have been ſince the rejecting the former Bill; and about five Years ſince, when he was ſucceeded by Hanſeur, as before he had ſucceeded Hanſeur.

Two other Foreigners, La Fountaine, who had lived with Sir John, and was ſerv'd with Summons at the Dutcheſs's Houſe at Drayton; and Hugano, who ran away from the Lord Haverſham's ſince Summons was taken out againſt him, ſeem to have had the ſame Truſt that Hanſeur had; for both declar'd, That nothing ſhould oblige them to betray their Maſter's Secrets: One ſaid, No Court could diſpenſe with his Oath of Secrecy; and both declar'd, they would immediately go beyond Sea. Summons have been taken out for Mr. Bryan and his Wife, and Sir John Germain's Brother (who are, or lately were in Town) to confeſs or deny what Nicola and Ellen appeal to them for: And it cannot be imagin'd that Sir John ſhould chuſe the Honour of being thought to have to do with a Dutcheſs, before the clearing her and himſelf from the Imputation, by bringing his Relations to diſprove the Charge, if what is ſworn to be within their Knowledge is falſe.

And if Sir John's Vanity ſhould prevail with him, at leaſt it is to be preſum'd, that his Relations would be more juſt to him and the Lady, than to ſuffer any thing to paſs againſt them, which they could with Truth and Juſtice prevent.

But ſince none of them appear, the World will believe their abſenting more than a Thouſand Witneſſes, in confirmation of what Mr. Hanſeur, Ellen and Baily have ſworn. Whoſe Evidence ſtands untouched by any thing offer'd by the Dutcheſs's Witneſſes, but is plainly confirm'd by them in the Principal Parts.

This being the Nature of the Proofs, 'tis obſervable.

1700.

1. There never yet was any Case of this kind, where the Evidence was not liable to greater Objections than can be made to this.

Though in the latest Case of that kind, there was full Conviction of the Lady's having Children while she liv'd separate from her Husband ; and the Presumption was very violent, whose the Children were ; yet this was but Presumption, and that was weaken'd by the Presumption in Law, that they were the Husband's ; especially, since there was no direct Proof of the Lover's ever lying with her.

2. Tho in that Case, by reason of the Interval of Parliament, and fear of the deaths of Witnesses, a Suit was begun in Doctors-Commons, 'twas taken from thence while the Suit was depending ; therefore that was rather an Objection against proceeding in Parliament, than an Argument for it.

3. In that Case several Witnesses were examined at the Bars of both Houses, who had not been examined at Doctors-Commons, nor any notice given of their Names before their Examination.

4. It appears by that Case, and the present, that the Examinations in Parliament are more solemn and certain than those of the Spiritual Court ; which depend too much upon the Honesty of the Register, or his Deputy.

5. Before that Case, Parliaments have either broken through the Rules which bind the Spiritual Court, as in the Case of the Duke of Norfolk, 1 Eliz. where the Parliament ratified a Marriage, as lawful according to God's Law, though protracted and letted, by reason of certain Decrees and Canons of the Pope's Law ; or else have dissolved a Marriage where there had been no Application to Doctors-Commons ; as in the Case of Mrs. Wharton, who had been married to Mr. Cambel ; and yet there had been no Examination of Witnesses but what had been before the Two Houses.

2 and 3 W. and M.

So long before, in the Case of Sir Ralph Sadler, upon Proof before the Two Houses, that the Lady Sadler's former Husband had deserted her, and disappeared for Four Years before she married Sir Ralph, the Parliament legitimated her Children by Sir Ralph.

37 H. VIII.

Whereas some object against the passing the Bill, as if it would countenance a Jurisdiction in the House of Lords to examine such Matters in the first Instance, or originally ; the Objection would be the same, if it had begun, as it might, in the House of Commons, but in truth would be of equal force against most Private, and several Publick Acts, occasioned by the Examination of Witnesses, or notoriety of Fact.

Since therefore the Duke has so long, and so often in vain enavoured to be freed from a Lady, publickly fam'd and prov'd to have liv'd with Sir John Germain, as his Wife, the Duke's former Disappointments cannot but be powerful Arguments for his speedy obtaining that Justice which the Spiritual Court cannot give him, their Power reaching no farther than to that Liberty of living as she list ; some Years since settled by Articles : but as none of less Art and Oratory than her Council, could have turn'd this into License to commit Adultery, if she list, or a Pardon afterwards, had not there been Evidence of her Acting according to such Construction, the Duke would have hoped she had repented of the former Injuries he had received from her ; but now hopes she shall not longer continue to bear the Name of his Wife, and put him in Danger of being succeeded by Sir John Germain's Issue ; or deprive him of the Expectation of leaving his Honours, Offices and Estate to a Protestant Heir.

1700. Resumption of Forfeited Estates in Ireland.

The Resumption of the Forfeited Estates in Ireland was an Affair of great Pèrplexity to the Commons, and of greater Uneasiness to the King and His Ministers. And though there was some just Occasion given for it, by the Promises of the King, and the Expectance of the Nation tending that way ; and the profuse disposal of them to Persons not so well deserving ; and the great want of Money to discharge the Publick Debts ; and the King's declining to accept of some Terms of Accommodation that were said to be offered : Yet after all the Arguments for doing of it, the Thing when done would appear to be some Indignity put upon the King and His Councils ; and a very great Hardship upon the Grantees, and the Purchasers and Tenants under them ; and indeed a Confusion and Distraction to the whole Government in Ireland. However, the Commons proceeded in this Matter, and having Considered of the Number, Qualifications, and Manner of chusing the Trustees for the Bill of Irish Forfeitures, they resolved on March 26, That the Number of the said Trustees be Thirteen : That no Person be a Trustee, who had any Office or Profit ; or was accountable to His Majesty ; or was a Member of this House. And that the said Trustees be chosen by balloting. Two days after, the several Members of the House having given in Lists of Thirteen Persons Names, which were put into Glasses, the Majority fell upon Francis Annesley, James Hamilton, John Biggs, John Trenchard, James Isham, Henry Langford, James Hooper, Esqs ; Sir Cyril Wyche, John Cary, Gent. Sir Henry Sheeres, Thomas Harrison, Esq ; Sir John Worden, William Fellows, and Thomas Rawlins Esqs. The two last Persons having equal Voices, either of them must have been left out ; but the House being informed, that Sir John Worden was a Baron of the Exchequer, in the County Palatine of Chester, during his Life, at a yearly Salary from the Crown, it was resolved, That the said Sir John Worden was not capable of being a Trustee in the said Bill ; and so the other two stood.

On the 2d of April, the Commons pass'd the Bill, for granting an Aid to His Majesty, by sale of the forfeited and other Estates and Interests in Ireland ; and by a Land-Tax in England, for the several Purposes therein mentioned ; and sent it to the Lords for their Concurrence.

To justify their Proceedings, if not to expose the Conduct of the Court, the Commons on April 8. ordered the Report of the Commissioners for Irish Forfeitures to be published ; " And that the Resolutions of the 18th of January last, the Resolution of the 4th of April 1690, relating to the Forfeited Estates ; His Majesty's Speech to Both Houses, the 5th of January, 1690. the Address of the House to the King the 5th of February last ; His Majesty's Answer thereunto the 26th of the same February, and the Resolution of the House thereupon : And lastly, the Address of the House of Commons, of the 4th of March, 1693, and His Majesty's Answer thereunto, be also reprinted with the said Report. And resolved, That the procuring or passing Exorbitant Grants by any Member now of the Privy-Council, or by any other that had been a Privy-Counsellor in this or any former Reign, to his Use or Benefit, was a high Crime and Misdemeanour.

On the other hand, the Court finding their Party extremely weak in the House of Commons, endeavour'd to oppose the passing of the complicated Bill in the House of Lords ; to which the Majority of that Illustrious Assembly were inclin'd ; some out of Complaisance to the King, and most of them because they looked upon the Tacking of one Bill to another, as an Innovation in 1700. Parliamentary Proceedings, and such as evidently tended to retrench, if not wholly to take away the share the Peers of England ought to have in the Legislative Authority. But because they could not reject the Bill, without leaving the urgent Necessities of the State unprovided, their Lordships contented themselves to make great Amendments to that part of it that related to Forfeitures. The Commons having considered and unanimously disapproved the said Amendments, sent to desire a Conference with the Lords thereupon; appointed a Committee to draw up Reasons to be offered to their Lordships; Resolved, That two days after they would proceed in the further Consideration of the Report given in by the Commissioners for Irish Forfeitures; and ordered a List of His Majesty's Privy-Council to be laid before the House.

On the 9th of April a Conference was manag'd between both Houses, in which the Lords did warmly insist on their Amendments; and the Commons as vehemently maintain their Disagreement with their Lordships. The next day two Conferences were had on the same Subject, and with as little success; at which the Commons were so exasperated, that they ordered the Lobby of their House to be cleared of all Strangers; the Back-doors of the Speaker's Chamber to be lock'd up; and that the Serjeant should stand at the Door of the House, and suffer no Members to go forth, and then proceeded to take into Consideration the Report of the Irish Forfeitures; and the List of the Lords of the Privy-Council. The King being inform'd of the high Ferment the Commons were in, and apprehending the Consequences, sent a Private Message (by the Earl of Albermarle) to the Lords, to pass the Bill without any Amendments; which their Lordships did accordingly, and acquainted the Commons with it. This Condescension did not wholly appease the Commons, who pursuing their Resentment against the present Ministry, put the Question, That an Address be made to His Majesty, to remove John Lord Somers, Lord Chancellor of England from His Presence and Councils for ever. Which though it was carried in the Negative, by reason of the acknowledg'd Merit, and great Services of that Peer, yet it was Resolv'd, That an Address be made to His Majesty, That no Person, who was not a Native of his Dominions, except his Royal Highness Prince George of Denmark, be admitted to His Majesty's Councils in England or Ireland.

The King did not think it proper to receive any such Address, and therefore to prevent the Offer of it, His Majesty came the day following, viz. Thursday, April 11. to the House of Peers, and commanded the Earl of Bridgewater to prorogue the Parliament to the 23^d of May, after His Majesty had given the Royal Assent to these many Bills.

1. An Act for granting an Aid to His Majesty by sale of the Forfeited and other Estates and Interests in Ireland; and by a Land-Tax in England, for the several Purposes therein mentioned. 2. An Act for laying further Duties upon Wrought Silks, Muslins, and some other Commodities of the East-Indies, and for enlarging the Time for purchasing certain Reversionary Annuities therein mentioned. 3. An Act for the more effectual employing the Poor, by encouraging the Manufactures of this Kingdom. 4. An Act for Ascertaining the Measures for retailing Ale and Beer. 5. An Act to enable His Majesty's Natural Born Subjects to inherit the Estate of their Ancestors, either Lineal or Collateral, notwithstanding their Father or Mother were Aliens. 6. An Act for preventing of Frivolous and Vexatious Suits in the Principality of Wales, and the Counties Palatine. 7. An Act for the better preserving the Navigation of the Rivers Avon and Froom, and for Cleansing, Paring and Enlightning the Streets of the City of Bristol. 8. An Act to enable the Mayor and Citizens of the City of Chester, to Recover and Preserve the Navigation upon the River Dee. 9. An Act for the further preventing the Growth of Popery. 10. An Act for making the River Lork, alias, Burne, Navigable. 11. An Act for the more effectual Punishment of Vagrants, and sending them whither by Law they ought to be sent. 12. An Act to prevent Disputes that may arise by Officers and Members of Corporations having neglected to sign the Association, and taking the Oaths in due time. 13. An Act for the Repair of Dover Harbour. 14. An Act to Punish Governors of Plantations in this Kingdom, for Crimes committed by them in the Plantations. 15. An Act for the more Effectual Suppression of Piracy. 16. An Act to repeal an Act made in the Ninth Year of His Majesty's Reign, Entituled, An Act for rendering the Laws more effectual for the preventing the Importation of Foreign Bone-Lace, Loom-Lace, Needle-Work, Point and Cut-Work, Three Months after the Prohibition of the Woollen-Manufacture in Flanders shall be taken off. 17. An Act for the better ascertaining the Tithes of Hemp and Flax. 18. An Act to Enable Justices of the Peace to Build and Repair Gaols in their respective Counties. 19. An Act for continuing several Laws therein mentioned, and for Explaining the Act Entituled, An Act to prevent the Exportation of Wool out of the Kingdoms of Ireland and England into Foreign Parts, and for the Encouragement of the Woollen-Manufactures of the Kingdom of England. 20. An Act for the better Execution, and better Execution of Former Acts made touching Watermen and Wherry-men Rowing on the River of Thames, and for the better Ordering and Governing the said Watermen, Wherry-men and Lightermen upon the said River, between Gravefend and Windsor. 21. An Act for taking away the Duties upon the Woollen-Manufactures, Corn, Grain, Bread, Biskets and Meal Exported. 22. An Act for raising the Militia for the Year 1700, although the Months Pay formerly advanced be not repaid. 23. An Act for the appointing Commissioners to Take, Examine and Determine the Debts due to the Army, Navy, and for Transport Service; and also an Account of the Prizes taken during the late War. 24. An Act to Dissolve the Duke of Norfolk's Marriage with the Lady Mary Mordant, and to enable him to Marry again. 25. An Act for the better Enabling Anne Baldwin, Widow, to sell a Capital Messuage and Lands called Wilton's, and other Lands in the County of Bucks, devised by her Husband's Will. 26. An Act for continuing the Governor and Company of Merchants Trading to the East-Indies a Corporation. 27. An Act for Naturalizing Francis Vandertide, and Agneta Vandermersh, Henry Lowman, and James Gabriel de Trefor. 28. An Act for the Ship Martha of Margam to trade as a Free Ship. 29. An Act for rectifying a Mistake in the Marriage Settlement of Thomas Hopwood, Gentleman, on Elizabeth his Wife, in order to raise Portions for Younger Children, and to pay Debts. 30. An Act for the more speedy payment of the Debts of John Globery, Esq; deceased, and for the raising Portions and Maintenance for his Children. 31. An Act to enable Thomas May, Gent. to sell Lands in the County of Suffolk, which were settled upon his Marriage, and to Convey other Lands in the same County, of a greater Value to the same Uses. 32. An Act for Vesting the Real Estate of Joseph Gardner, and Sarah his Wife, late the Estate of William Bridges, Esq; deceased, in Trustees to be sold for payment of his Debts and Legacies therein

The King desires the Lords to comply with the Commons.

Though against his own Judgment and Interest.

Parliament prorogued.

Bills passed.

1700. mentioned, and for applying the residue of the Money upon the Trust therein specified. 33. An Act for Sale of several Western Mannors and Lands, the Estate of Arthur Lacey Esq; for discharging a Mortgage thereupon, and for laying out the surplus Money in the Purchase of Demesne Lands to be settled to the same Uses. 34. An Act for Naturalizing Theodore Jacobson and others. 35. An Act for Vesting the Mannor of Exton, and other Lands in the County of Somerset, late the Estate of Thomas Siderfin Esq; Deceased, in Trustees, to be Sold for Payment of Debts. 36. An Act for the speedy and effectual making a Convenient way out of Chancery-Lane into Lincolns-Inn-Fields and Places adjacent. 37. An Act for the Naturalizing of Oliver d' Harcourt and others. 38. An Act for settling of the Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, late of Robert Merefield and John Merefield Esq; Deceased, and for Ascertaining the Proportions between the Widow of the said Robert and his Surviving Children. 39. An Act for the settling all Differences concerning Dame Mary Bond's Will, and for performing the same. 40. An Act for charging the Estate of Sir Thomas Robinson Bart. with Seven Thousand Pounds for the Portion of Anne his Sister, and for settling her Estate upon the said Sir Thomas Robinson in lieu thereof. 41. An Act for confirming a Lease and certain Indentures between the City of Norwich and Richard Barry Esq; George Sorocold Gent. and Richard Soame Merchant, and for Enlightning the Streets of the said City. 42. An Act for settling the Estate of Katharine Fitzgerald Villars, and raising of Money for Payment of Debts, and better securing the Portions of her Five Younger Children by Edward Fitzgerald Villars Esq; her late Husband. 43. An Act to enable Edward Mansel Esq; to Mortgage or Sell the Improprate Rectories of Llanriddian and Penrice, for Payment of Debts, and raising Portions for Younger Children, and for settling the Mannor of Henlyes and other Lands of more Value. 44. An Act for the settling the Reversion and Inheritance of the Farm of Nethercott in the County of Oxon, for payment of the Debts and Legacies of George Harrison Esq; Deceased. 45. An Act for Vesting certain Lands and Tenements of Sir Josiah Child Bart. Deceased, in Trustees for the better performance of certain Covenants entered into by the said Sir Josiah Child, upon the Marriage of his Eldest Son with the Daughter of Sir Thomas Cook Knt. 46. An Act to supply the Loss of certain Indentures of Leases and Releases heretofore made by Philip Holman Esq; Deceased, to George Holman his Son, now also Deceased. 47. An Act to Enable Henry Butler Esq; to make Leases of part of his Estate in Lancashire, for Discharge of Incumbrances thereupon. 48. An Act for Vesting part of the Estate of Thomas Cooper of the City of Chester Esq; in Trustees for Payment of Debts. 49. An Act for Confirming the Sale of the Mannor of Slansal, and certain Tenements in the County of York, made by Thomas Barlow Gent. and for settling other Lands of greater Value to the same Uses, and for Vesting other Lands and Hereditaments in Trustees, to be Sold for Purchasing other Lands to be settled to the same Uses. 50. An Act for the settling the Mannor of Fenham in the County of Northumberland, for Payment of the Debts of Thomas Riddell Esq; and Edward Riddell his Son, and raising Portions for the Daughters of the said Thomas Riddell. 51. An Act for Sale of part of the Estate of Charles Hore Esq; for Payment of his Debts, and for settling other part in Trust, for raising a Portion and Maintenance for Elizabeth his only Daughter by his former Wife, and for making a Jointure for Mary his now Wife, and for a Provision for the Children by the said Mary. 52. An Act to Enable Dalby Thomas Esq; to Sell Lands in Ilington in Middlesex, settled on his Marriage with Dorothy his Wife, as part of her Jointure, he set-ling another Estate of equal or greater Value in lieu thereof. 53. An Act to Enable Trustees to make Sale of the Inheritance of the Twelfth part of several Mannors, Lands and Tenements of Bluet Wallop Esq; during his Minority; and to purchase other Lands with the Money, to be raised by such Sale, to be settled to the same Uses, as the said Twelfth Part was so settled. 54. An Act to Enable Leonard Wessel Esq; to Sell the Mannor of Acres-Fleet in the County of Essex, settled on his Marriage with Sarah his now Wife as part of her Jointure, laying out the Money arising by such Sale in purchase of other Lands. 55. An Act for taking the Estate in Law of several Messuages and Lands, Mortgaged to Jeffery and Samuel Howland and their Heirs, out of Wriothesly Russel (commonly called, Lord Marquess of Tavistock) and his Lady. 56. An Act for Naturalizing John Bourges and others. 57. An Act for Naturalizing John Richard Jacob Dabbadie and others. 58. An Act for confirming a Lease of a Piece of Ground from the Rector and Churchwardens of the Parish of St. Martins Orgers, London, for liberty to Build a Church thereon, for the Worship and Service of God in the French Tongue, according to the Usage of the Church of England. 59. An Act for the Sale of the Estate of Bryan Janfon Esq; Deceased, for Payment of Debts, and Provision for his Wife and Children. 60. An Act for Naturalizing Isaac de Lagarde, John Batero and others.

While the Parliament was sitting, there was a Second Treaty of Partition concluded March 15, N. S. between England, France, and Holland; whereby instead of the Electoral Prince of Bavaria, (who died on the 6th of Feb. 1699. N. S.) the Arch-Duke Charles of Austria was to have all the Spanish Dominions both within and without Europe; except what by the former Treaty had been assign'd to the Dauphine and France: And that the Duke of Lorraine, instead of his own Country, which was also to be given to France, should have the Dutchy of Milan; and the Prince of Vaudemont the County of Bilebe conferred upon him. His Majesty's Plenipotentiaries for making this Treaty were the Earls of Portland and Jersey. But this Treaty of Partition, like the former, was but a present Amusement, and served only for an Occasion of the more violent Breach of Faith in the French King; and for a Pretence of casting more Odium upon King William and His Ministry.

Immediately after the Parliament was prorogued (says a late Writer) "the King sent the Earl of Portland to the Lord Chancellor Somers, to demand the Great Seal of him: Whether His Majesty made this Step by His own Determination, or by the Impulse of His new Favourite, who headed a growing Party, History cannot affirm; but 'tis most certain, that thereby His Majesty lost abundance of True Friends, without gaining any Real ones: For tho' the Lord Somers had been attacked by the Commons, yet the Majority of that House had warmly stood up in his Defence. And as the abandoning so Faithful a Minister could not but discourage others from embracing heartily His Majesty's Service, so His Majesty's yielding so tamely (if I may be allowed the Expression in speaking, of a Prince who was a Hero in the Field) to the Faint and Negative Resolves of the House of Commons, could not but lay him open to more vigorous Attacks. Not long after, the Great Seal was committed to the Custody of Sir Nathan Wright, one of His Majesty's Serjeants at Law, with the Title of Lord Keeper, who by virtue of His Office, took his Place in the Privy-Council.

The Removing of the Lord Somers from his high Station, though it displeas'd many People, yet 1700.

Seals taken from the Lord Somers.

1700. yet it seem'd not to affect his Lordship, who retir'd with Content and Temper, and upon all Occasions in Parliament served the King and the Interests of the Publick, with the same Zeal as if he had not lost a Place. The admitting the Earl of Albermarle into the most Noble Order of the Garter, which the King did on May 14. was generally disliked; though to make it go down the better, His Majesty did at the same time bestow that distinguishing Mark of Honour on the Earl of Pembroke, President of the Council; who highly deserved it, not only by his Eminent Services to the Government, but by his Illustrious Birth. About three Weeks after, the two Knights Elect were installed at Windsor with the usual Formalities; but it was observed, that though the Concourse of People was extraordinary great, and the Entertainment very splendid, yet few of the Nobility grac'd the Ceremony by their Presence; and that many Severe Reflections were then made on His Majesty, for lavishing away a Garter on His Favourite.

Honours
and Pre-
ferments.

On April 11. His Majesty conferred the Dignity of a Baronet upon John Cbetwode of Oakeley, in the County of Stafford, Esq; On June 24. the King was pleased to confer the Office of Lord Chamberlain (which had been sometime Vacant) upon Edward Earl of Fersey; and to make the Earl of Romney Groom of the Stole to His Majesty; and the Earl of Carlisle one of the Gentlemen of His Bedchamber. On June 27. the King, in Council at Hampton-Court, was pleased to Declare, That the Publick Affairs requiring His going over to Holland for a short time, He had appointed Thomas Lord Archbishop of Canterbury; Sir Nathan Wright, Lord Keeper; Thomas Earl of Pembroke, Lord President of the Council; John Viscount Lonsdale, Lord Privy Seal; William Duke of Devonshire, Lord Steward of His Majesty's Household; John Earl of Bridgewater, first Commissioner of the Admiralty; John Earl of Marlborough, Governour to his Highness the Duke of Gloucester; and Ford Earl of Tankerville, First Commissioner of the Treasury, to be Lords Justices of England, for the Administration of the Government during His Absence. So on July 4. His Majesty went in the Morning from Hampton-Court, and lay that Night at Canterbury; next day he came to Margate, and went on Board His Yacht; and toward Evening sail'd with a fair Wind for Holland, under a Convoy Commanded by Sir Cloudesly Shovel; and Arriving next day in the Maese, He Landed at the Ornie-Polder; and went directly to the Hague.

Before His Majesty left England, He thought it necessary to Assemble the Parliament of Scotland; and for that purpose appointed the Duke of Queensbury to be His High Commissioner. On the 21st. of May, the Parliament of that Kingdom being met at Edinburgh, His Majesty's Letter to them was first Read; which was to this Effect:

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"The great Desire We have to promote and advance the Interest of that Our Ancient Kingdom, did make Us intend to have held this Sessions of Parliament in Person, that We might more clearly have discern'd what is yet Needful to be done, for the full Establishment of your Religion, Laws, and Liberties. And as Our Design in coming to Britain, was the Relief and Happiness of the Three Kingdoms, so We are firmly resolv'd to make it the chief Design of Our Reign, to do every thing that may tend to the Advantage and Good of Our Subjects.

"The present Circumstances of Affairs Abroad, not allowing of Our being with you at present; We have appointed Our Right Tru-1700. sty and Right entirely belov'd Cousin and Counsellor, James Duke of Queensbury, to represent Our Royal Person, and to be Our Commissioner in this Session. We are fully satisfied with his Fitness and Ability for discharging this Trust: And we doubt not but his constant Loyalty to Us, since Our Accession to the Crown, and his Zeal and Fidelity for Our Service, and the Prosperity and Good of the Kingdom, which has appear'd on all Occasions, and in all the Trusts wherein he has been Employ'd, will render him Acceptable to you.

"We have fully instructed him in all Things that We think may fall under your Consideration, and seem to be Necessary at present. Therefore We desire that you may give him entire Trust and Credit. The breaking out of the War in some places of Europe, the great Arming by Sea and Land, the uncertain State of the Publick Peace, and the continued Designs of Our Enemies, both at Home and Abroad, cannot but convince you that it is necessary for your Safety, That the Forces be Maintain'd; and We expect that you will certainly Supply us with sufficient Funds for that end.

"We are heartily sorry for the Misfortunes and Losses that the Nation has sustained in their Trade; and We will effectually Concur in any thing that may contribute for Promoting and Encouraging Trade, That being so indispensibly needful for the Welfare of the Nation. And we do particularly recommend to you the encouraging Manufactures, and the improvement of the Native Product of the Kingdom, which is not only the surest Foundation of Foreign Trade, but will be an effectual way for providing and employing the Poor, whose Circumstances require your Consideration and Assistance.

"We give you full Assurance, that We will Maintain your Religion, Laws and Liberties, and Presbyterian Government, as it is Establish'd. And it will be most acceptable to Us, that you fall upon effectual Methods for preventing the Growth of Popery, and discouraging Vice and Immorality.

"We have had very many Eminent Proofs of your Loyalty and good Affection to us, particularly in all your Proceedings in the last Session, for which We return you Our hearty Thanks. And seeing We have demanded nothing of you upon this Occasion, but what is both necessary for your Preservation against the Designs or Attempts of your Enemies, and for promoting the Welfare and Advantage of the Nation; Therefore We doubt not but you will act with Unanimity and Dispatch, so as all that comes before you may be concluded to the mutual Satisfaction of Us and Our People. And assuring you of Our Royal Favour and Protection, We bid you heartily farewell.

After the Reading of this Letter, the Lord High Commissioner made a Speech, as did likewise the Lord Marchmont, Lord High Chancellor; which done, the House adjourned to the 24th.

The Parliament was but just met again, when there came a sharp Representation to them from the Council General of the African and Indian Company, containing a tedious Rehearsal of their Losses, Disappointments and Grievances: Which Representation was back'd by an Address from the Shire of Haddington: Importing, "That after a long and expensive War, they expected to have enjoy'd the Blessing of a happily concluded Peace, by the Re-establishment of their Foreign Trade, Encouragement of Home 1700.

Manufactures, Employing the Poor, in Improvement of their Native Product, and the lessening of their publick Burdens; but that instead thereof, to their unspeakable Loss, and almost ruin of the Nation, they found their Trade Abroad sensibly Decay'd, and their Coin carried out, by the Importation of Commodities from Places where theirs were Prohibited; That their Woollen and other Manufactures at Home received not that Encouragement which the Good of the Country required; And more especially that their Company Trading to Africa and the Indies met with so much Opposition from Abroad, and got so little Support at Home, that after so great a Loss of Men, and Expence of Treasure, it was too probable that their Settlement in Caledonia would fall a Second time, under the same unlucky Circumstances as at First, if not prevented. That yet, after all those Hardships the Nation groan'd under, numerous Forces were kept on Foot, which occasion'd them in times of Peace heavy and unnecessary Taxes, while their much Wealthier Neighbours were Disbanding their Troops. All which Calamities they could not but look upon as the Effect of the Displeasure of Almighty God, for the Immoralities that every where abounded amongst all Ranks and Degrees of Men, to the Dishonour of God, and their Holy Religion, the Debauching the Spirits, and Corrupting the Manners of the People.

There were likewise at the same time, several other Addresses and Petitions presented to the Parliament, complaining of many general and particular Grievances, and praying for Redress thereof; after Reading of all which, a Motion being made and prest that the Parliament should Resolve, That the Colony of Caledonia in Darien, was a Legal and Rightful Settlement in the Terms of the Act of Parliament, 1695. And that the Parliament would maintain and support the same; His Majesty's High Commissioner, fearing the Consequences of this Vote, which was likely to be carried in the Affirmative, did immediately Adjourn the Parliament for Three Days; and at their next Meeting, Adjourned it further for Twenty Days. Whereupon the Plurality of the Members met that very Evening, and Sign'd an Address to His Majesty, wherein they Complain'd, of their having been interrupted by a sudden Adjournment, while they were Debating a Motion concerning their Colony at Darien, which they conceiv'd was not agreeable to the 40th. Act of the 11th. Parliament of King James VI. wherein it is enacted, That nothing should be done or commanded, which might directly or indirectly prejudice the Liberty of Free Voting, and Reasoning of the Estates of Parliament. That by a subsequent Adjournment of Twenty Days, the Parliament was not permitted to come to any Resolution in the pressing Concerns of the Nation, which they could not think consistent with that Article of their Claim of Right, whereby it was declared, That for the Redress of all Grievances, of strengthening and preserving the Laws, Parliaments ought to be frequently Call'd and allow'd to Sit, and the Freedom of Speech and Debate secur'd to the Members. Wherefore they earnestly intreated His Majesty, that he would be pleased to allow his Parliament to meet on the Day to which it was then Adjourn'd; and to Sit as long as might be necessary for Redressing the Grievances of the Nation.

This Address being Presented and Read to the King, His Majesty said He would Consider of it. And at a Second Audience, the Lord Ross one of the Commissioners in the Name of the rest, 1700.

Addressing himself to the King to this purpose: That they were come by His Appointment to receive His Answer to the Address, which they Presented from the Loyal Members of His Parliament of Scotland; His Majesty told them, That he could give no Answer at that time to their Petition; but they should know his Intentions in Scotland.

The Addressers finding that the Parliament was further Adjourn'd by Proclamation, and not knowing how soon it might be allowed to Sit, fram'd the Draught of a Second National Address, to be Sign'd by the several Shires and Boroughs throughout the Kingdom: But while the same was carried on, His Majesty Writ a Letter Directed to the Duke of Queensbury, and the Privy Council, which Letter was Publish'd in the manner of a Proclamation, and wherein the King Declar'd, That if it had been possible for Him to have Agreed to the Resolve offer'd to assert the Right of the African Companies Colony in America, though that method seem'd to Him unnecessary, yet His Majesty had from the beginning readily done it, at the earnest desires of His Ministers, and for His Peoples Satisfaction, all other Considerations set apart; but since that things were much chang'd, His Majesty being truly Sorry for the Nation's Loss, and most willing to grant what might be needful for the relief and ease of the Kingdom; He assured them, that He would be so ready to Concur with His Parliament in every thing that could be reasonably expected of Him, for Aiding and Supporting their Interests, and repairing their Losses, that His good Subjects should have just Grounds to be sensible of his Heartly Inclinations to advance the Wealth and Prosperity of that His Majesty's Ancient Kingdom. That His Majesty was confident that that Declaration would be satisfying to all good Men, who would certainly be careful both of their own Preservation, and of the Honour and Interest of the Government, and not suffer themselves to be mis-led, nor give any Advantage to Enemies and ill-designing Persons, ready to catch hold of any opportunity, as their Practices did too manifestly witness. Concluding, That His Majesty's necessary Absence had occasion'd the late Adjournment, but as soon as God should bring him back, he was fully resolv'd His Parliament should meet.

The King had not been many Weeks in Holland, when He received the Melancholy and surprizing News of the Death of the Duke of Gloucester, which was in great measure occasion'd by the over-heating of himself in the Solemn Observance of his Birth-day, Wednesday, July the 24th. After the Ceremony was over, his Highness found himself fatigu'd and indispos'd; the next Day he complain'd of his Throat, and of a Sickness in his Stomach. All Friday he was Hot and Feverish. On Saturday Morning after taking away a little Blood, he thought himself better; but in the Evening, his Fever appearing more violent, a Blister was appli'd to him, and other proper Remedies administr'd. The same Day a Rash appear'd on his Skin, which increasing on Sunday, more Blisters were laid on. In the Afternoon the Fever growing stronger, his Highness went into a Delirium, which lasted with his Life. He pass'd the Night as he did the preceeding, in short broken Sleeps, and incoherent Talk. On Monday the Blisters having taken Effect, and the Pulse mending, the Physicians that attended him, thought it probable his Highness might recover; But about 1700. Eleven at Night his Highness was on the sudden seiz'd with a Difficult Breathing, and could swallow nothing down, infomuch that he expir'd before Midnight, being ten Years and five Days old.

Eleven

Néver was so great a Loss so little lamented : Which may be ascribed to the Different Parties that divided England ; two of which, I mean the Jacobites and Republicans, look'd upon that Hopeful Young Prince as a future Obstacle to their Respective Designs. Grief, upon this sad Occasion, seem'd to be confin'd within the Palace of St. James's, and to center in a more sensible manner, in the Royal Breasts of the Princess and Prince of Denmark, who mourn'd not only for themselves, but for the whole Nation. The Duke of Gloucester was a Prince, whose Tender Constitution bended under the Weight of his Manly Soul ; and was too much harass'd by the Vivacity of his Genius, to be of long Duration. He was scarce Seven Years old, when he understood the Terms of Fortification and Navigation, knew all the different Parts of a Strong Place, and a Ship of War, and could Marshal a Company of Boys, who had voluntarily List'd themselves to attend him. He had early suck'd in his Mother's Piety, and was always attentive to Prayers ; but he had a particular Averseness to Dancing, and all Womanish Exercises ; his only Delights being in Martial Sports and Hunting : In a Word, he was too forward to arrive at Maturity.

The King had ever express'd a great Love for the Duke of Gloucester, and was certainly very much affected by his Untimely Death. But not to dwell any longer upon this Afflicting Subject, His Majesty was about this time waited on at Loo, by the Bishop of Osnabrug, Brother to the Duke of Lorrain ; and gave Audience to the President de la Tour, Envoy Extraordinary from the Duke of Savoy ; and the Earl of Fersey's going over to attend His Majesty, occasion'd various Speculations. In September His Majesty was waited upon at Breda by the Duke of Bavaria ; at the Grave by the Electoral Prince of Brandenburgh, and the Electores Dowager of Hanover ; who also accompanied His Majesty to the Hague ; where we may reasonably suppose, considering the State of the Royal Family of England at that Juncture, by the Death of the Duke of Gloucester, the Business of the Succession in the Protestant Line was so far concerted, as to have it laid before the Parliament at their next Sessions.

Wars in the North. A League had been made between the Kings of Denmark and Poland, with the Czar of Muscovy, to crush the Young King of Sweden with their United Force, and kindle a Violent War in the North. Whilst the Poles sat down before Riga in Livonia, the King of Denmark attack'd the Duke of Holstein, the Brother-in-Law, and Confederate of the King of Sweden ; and under Pretence of having some Forts demolished, proceeded to subdue his whole Countrey, and laid Siege to Tonningen ; tho' both without Success. Several Princes and States concern'd themselves in making up this Breach, but none so particularly as England and Holland ; who finding an Amicable Mediation would not do, His Majesty thought fit to send a Squadron of thirty English and Dutch Men of War into the Sound, besides Fire-Ships and Bomb-Vessels. This Squadron arriv'd at the Mouth of the Sound on the 20th of July ; and about the same time the Fleet of Sweden put to Sea ; whereupon the Danish Fleet quitted the Sound ; and presently after the Conjunction of the Swedes with the Confederates, near Landskroon, beyond the Isle of Vere, they retir'd in some Confusion, for fear of being attack'd under the Castle of Copenh. g. n.

1700. The Confederates made a shew of Bombing that City, not with design to do it any Damage, though they might have laid it in Ashes, but only to incline the King of Denmark to a Peace, which was much hastened by the Descent of the Swedish Troops headed by their King, in the Isle of Zee-land. For His Danish Majesty being coop'd up in Holstein, by some Swedish Frigats cruising on that Coast, and therefore unable to save his Capital City otherwise than by a Treaty ; the Negotiations were reassum'd, and effectually carried on at Travendal, within a Mile of Segeburg, in Holstein, where both the Danish and Confederate Armies lay ; so that after a Debate of Six Days, the Peace was at length sign'd on the 18th of August, between Denmark, Sweden, and the Duke of Holstein, with the exclusion of Muscovy and Poland.

Some Days before, Lieutenant-General Bannier, who commanded in the Town of Tonningen, when it was lately besieged by the Danes, waited upon His Majesty at Loo, being sent by the Duke of Holstein, in acknowledgment of His Majesty's Protection ; and about Six Weeks after, the King of Poland's Resident at the Hague presented a Memorial to the States-General, full of Assurances of Friendship from the King his Master, and acquainting them, That what induc'd Him to put off the Bombarding of Riga, when every thing was in readiness for executing that Design, was chiefly the consideration of the Loss which divers Merchants, Subjects of the King of England, and the States-General, would have suffer'd thereby. His Majesty having writ to the Czar of Muscovy, upon the Occasion of the Differences between Him and the Crown of Sweden, to press Him to an Accommodation, and offer His Mediation : And having likewise dispatched several Important Affairs at the Hague, His Majesty embark'd for England on the 17th of October (O. S.) safely landed at Harwich the next Day, din'd at Sir Isaac Rebow's at Colchester on the 19th. lay at Chelmsford that Night, and on the 20th came to Hampton-Court. Four Days after, the Parliament of England was further prorogued to the 21st of September following.

In the Interim, to conclude the Affairs of Scotland, to prepare for the meeting of that Parliament, on October 28. His Majesty sent this Letter to them from Loo. Parliament in Scotland.

My Lords and Gentlemen.

" The State of Our Affairs Abroad requiring
" Our going beyond Sea, was the Cause of Our " Adjourning your Meeting till this time. When " we ordered the last Adjournment by Our Letter then published, We fully express'd Our " good Intentions towards that Our Ancient " Kingdom, which we are now ready to make " good to this Session of Parliament.

" We have considered the Address you made
" to us in the Session of Parliament 1698, in behalf of the African Company, representing the " same as a National Concern ; and do assure " you, That we are very willing to assent to
" what shall be reasonably propos'd for repairing the Losses, and supporting and promoting
" the Interest of that Company : And having " ever reckon'd the Ease and Prosperity of Our " Good Subjects Our greatest Honour and Happiness, We are likewise most willing to agree
" to all that can be demanded for maintaining and advancing the Peace and Welfare of " the Kingdom.

" And that you, and all Our Good Subjects
" may have full and satisfying Assurance of this
" Our Good Mind, We again declare, That We " are resolv'd to give Our Royal Assent to all " Acts

1700. " Acts that shall be offered for the better establishing the True Protestant Religion, and the Presbyterian Government of the Church, which you enjoy ; for the more effectual preventing the Growth of Popery, for the repressing of Vice and Immorality, and the Encouragement of Piety and Virtue ; for the preserving and securing of Personal Liberty ; for the regulating and advancing of Trade : And more especially, for making up the Losses, and promoting the Concerns of the African and Indian Company ; for the setting forward and improving Manufactures : And generally, We are ready to give Our Assent to all other Laws that shall be brought in for the farther clearing and securing Property and Civil Rights, strengthening and facilitating the Administration of Justice, restraining and punishing of Crimes, and the preserving of the Peace and Quietness of the Kingdom ; so that nothing shall be wanting on Our Parts to make Our People both Happy and Contented.

" 'Tis truly Our Regret, That We could not agree to the asserting of the Right of the Company's Colony in Darien ; and you may be very confident, if it had not been for Inevincible Reasons, the pressing Desires of all Our Ministers, with the Inclination of Our Good Subjects therein concern'd, had undoubtedly prevail'd : But since we were, and are fully satisfied that Our yielding in that Matter had infallibly disturb'd the General Peace of Christendom, and brought inevitably upon that Our Ancient Kingdom a heavy War, wherein We could expect no Assistance ; and that now the State of that Affair is quite alter'd, We doubt not but you will rest satisfied with these Plain Reasons.

" We are heartily sorry for the Company's Loss, in what hath happen'd ; but We being most willing that the Company's Losses be repaired, are ready to concur in any New Project or Design that shall be reasonably propos'd for the Good and Advantage of the Kingdom : We are most confident, the Wisdom of a Parliament will no longer stop upon this Obstruction. Having then this Happy Opportunity for the promoting of the Good and Welfare of the Kingdom, you will certainly lay hold upon it ; and seeing you cannot but take notice of the Designs and Practices of Persons disaffected both to Our Government, and to Your Peace ; and how watchful and ready Our Enemies are, as well at Home as Abroad, and desirous of nothing more, than that Differences may fall in amongst us, We are persuaded you will be no less careful to avoid them. All that We demand, is, That you would provide Proper and Competent Supplies for such Forces as shall be necessary for the Kingdom's Security, and to maintain it in its present Happy Settlement.

We have continued the Duke of Queensbury to be our Commissioner, for representing Us in this Session of Parliament, as a Person of whose Ability and Fidelity We have made full Proof, and are assured will be to you acceptable ; and therefore you are to give him full Credit : And We expect that in all Things you will proceed with that Wisdom, Calmness and Unanimity, as that this Session may be concluded to Our Mutual Satisfaction, and to the Joy of all Our Good Subjects. And so We bid you heartily farewell.

It must be observed, that during the Interval of the Two Sessions of Parliament, came the Melancholy News to Scotland, of their Peo-

1700. ples having abandoned, or rather surrender'd their New Settlement at Darien, which occasion'd the Company to represent to the Parliament, on the first Day of their Sessions, " That for want of due Protection Abroad, some Persons had been encourag'd to break in upon their Privileges even at Home." This Representation was back'd by a National Address, importing, " That they had formerly petition'd His Majesty for the Meeting of a Parliament to support and assert their Company's Trading to Africa, and the Indies; which the said Parliament declar'd by an Unanimous Address on the 5th of August, 1698, to be their own and the whole Nation's Concern : And His Majesty having been graciously pleas'd to allow the Parliament to meet again on the 21st of May, 1700. they could not but then express their Sorrow for the unexpected Adjournment thereof, without their being permitted to do any thing towards the end of their Meeting.

" That they did in all humble manner concur with the Dutiful Address then lately presented to His Majesty, from the Plurality of Members of Parliament, representing the Prejudices arising to the pressing Concerns of the Nation from that Adjournment, and to the Rights and Liberties of Parliament, from the Manner of it. And that it was to their unexpressible Regret, that His Majesty did seem to be prevail'd upon by the Misrepresentations of Evil Counsellors, to issue out Proclamations, further adjourning the Parliament from Time to Time, whilst not only their said Company stood in need of the Countenance, Support, and Protection promis'd to it by His Majesty in Parliament ; and more especially upon the Misfortunes that had then lately befallen it, by the Success of Enemies against its Colony of Caledonia ; and whilst the Nation it self remained under the pressure of such Grievances as could only be redress'd in Parliament.

" That to the end His Majesty might have a just View thereof, they humbly represented to Him, how indispensibly necessary it was,

" That the Protestant Religion be secur'd against the Growth of Popery, Immorality, and Profaneness. That Freedom and Independency of that ancient Kingdom, and the Nation's Right and Title to Caledonia, as holding of his Majesty's Crown of Scotland, be asserted and Supported. That the good Inclinations of His Majesty and Successors of Scotland, be preserv'd from Foreign Influence, as well as from the Misrepresentations and pernicious Counsels of unnatural Countrymen. That the frequency and sitting of Parliaments be secur'd and ascertain'd pursuant to the Claim of Right. That dangerous Influences upon the Freedom of Parliaments, either by Gratuities, Pensions, and Farms of any Branch of the Revenue, and the disposing of any part of the Revenue, or annexed Property of the Crown, otherwise than according to Law, for the necessary Support of the Government, be preserv'd. That the publick Credit be restored, and an Enquiry made into the application of the Funds, laid on, and appointed by Parliament, for the Support of the Government, and payment of the Army. That the Security of the Nation and Government be settled in a duly regulated National Force, instead of a Standing Army, so burthensome to the Country, and dangerous to its Liberties. That the manner of applying the Security, which they had by the Claim of Right for the personal Freedom of the Subject 1700. " against long and arbitrary Imprisonment, as well as against pursuits upon old and obsolete Laws, be especially declar'd. That the Trade of the Nation be encourag'd and advanc'd, by duly regulating its Export and Import, by discharging prejudicial Branches thereof, by fixing their Current Money, by encouraging Manufactures, by employing the Poor; and more especially by countenancing and assisting their said Company, in the Prosecution of its lawful Undertakings: And that all such Articles of Grievances presented to His Majesty by the Estates of that Kingdom, in the Year 1699. as had not been redress'd; together with such other Grievances as the Parliament should at the meeting thereof, find the Nation aggriev'd with, be redress'd in Parliament.

" That His Majesty having by His Royal Letter of the 29th of May 1699. been graciously pleas'd to declare, and give full Assurance to their Representatives in the meeting of the Estates, which settled the Crown and Royal Dignity of that Realm on His Majesty, That they should always find His Majesty ready to Protect them, and to assist the Estates in making such Laws as might secure their Religion, Liberties and Properties; and to prevent and redress whatsoever might be justly grievous to them. That His Majesty would never believe that the true Interest of His People and the Crown could be opposite: And that His Majesty would always account it His greatest Privilege to Assent to such Laws as might promote Peace and Wealth in this Kingdom.

" They therefore reckon'd it their Duty humbly to desire and assuredly to expect, that His Majesty would be graciously pleas'd to satisfy the longing Desires and earnest Expectations of His People, by allowing His Parliament to meet as soon as possible; and when met, to sit till they had fully deliberated upon and came to solid Resolutions on the great and weighty Concerns of the Nation; and grant such Instructions to His Commissioners as might empower him to pass such Acts as the great Counsel of the Nation might think most conducive to the true Honour of His Majesty and Government, the Welfare of that Realm, both as to its Religious and Civil Interests, and to the full quieting of the Minds of all His Majesty's good People". To this Address which was presented to the King on the 16th of November, by the Lord Treasurer, with some other Commissioners, His Majesty made Answer: " That He could not take further Notice of it, seeing the Parliament was then met, and He had made then a Declaration of His Mind for the good of His People, wherewith He hop'd all His faithful Subjects would be satisfied.

Wiser Measures in Scotland.

The Parliament of Scotland having sat near Three Months, amidst Heats and threatening Feuds about the Miscarriage of their Settlement at Darien: By the prudent Temper of the King, and the good Conduct of His High Commissioner, they came at last to this cool and honest Resolution, 21st. January; That in Consideration of their great Deliverance by His Majesty, and in that, next under God, their Safety and Happiness depended wholly on the Preservation of his Majesty's Person, and the Security of His Government, they would stand by and Support both His Majesty and His Government to the utmost of their Power; and maintain such Forces as should be requisite for those ends. In pursuance of this good Disposition, the Lord High Commissioner soon after gave the Royal Assent to an Act for keeping on Foot Three Thousand Men till the 1st of December, 1702. And to another, for a Land Tax to maintain those Troops. Which done, he communicated the King's Letter; wher- 1700. in it was desired, He might have Eleven hundred Men on His own Account, to the first of June following; which was readily complied with; and then they were Prorogued to the 6th of May.

The last Treaty of Partition did so much concern all Europe, and made such a particular Noise in England, that it is proper to transmit to Posterity this Form of it, as concluded in March, tho' not made Publick till some Months after. Last Treaty of Partition.

" Be it known to All those to whom these Presents shall come, That the most Serene and Thrice Potent Prince Lewis XIV. by the Grace of God, King of France, &c. And the most Serene and Thrice Potent Prince William III. by the Grace of God, King of Great Britain; and the Lords the States General of the United Provinces, laying nothing more to Heart than by new Ties to strengthen the good Correspondence re-establi'd between His most Christian Majesty, His Majesty of Great Britain, and the Lords the States General, by the last Treaty concluded at Ryswick; and to prevent by Measures taken in time, the Accidents that may excite a new War in Europe, have given their full Powers for concluding a new Treaty: His most Christian Majesty, to the Sieur Camille d'Antem, Count de Tallard, Lieutenant General of the King's Arms in His Province of the Dauphinate, Extrordinary Ambassador from France in England; and to the Sieur Gabriel Count de Briord, Marquis of Senosan, Counsellor to the King in all His Councils, and His Extraordinary Ambassador with the Lords the States General of the United Provinces of the Low-Countries. His said Britannick Majesty, to William Earl of Portland, Viscount Cirencester, Baron of Woodstock, Knight of the Order of the Garter, and one of His Majesty's Privy Council; and to Edward Earl of Jersey, Viscount Villars, Baron of Hoo, Knight Marshal of England, one of His Principal Secretaries of State, and one of the Lords of His Privy Council. And the Lords the States General, to John Van Essen, Burgomaster and Senator of the City of Zutphen, Overseer of the University of Haerderwick; Frederick, Baron de Rede St. Anthony, &c. of the Order of the Nobility of Holland and West-Frisse; Anthony Heinsius, Counsellor, Pensioner, Keeper of the Seal, and Superintendent of the Fiefs of the same Provinces; William de Nassau, Lord of Odyke, Cortugene, &c. and Principal Nobleman representing the Nobility in the States of Zealand; Everard de Wede, Lord of Dyckewelt, Rateles, &c. Feudatory Lord of Oudwater, Rector of the Imperial Chamber of St. Mary's at Utrecht, Dyckgraef of the River Rhine in the Province of Utrecht, and President of the States of the same Province; William Van Haren, Deputy of the Nobility in the States of Frise, and Rector of the University of Francker; Arnold Lemker, Burgomaster of the City of Deventer; And John Hekke, Senator of the City of Groningen; all Deputies in the Assembly of the States General, on the behalf of the States of Guelders, Holland and West-Frisse, of Zealand, Utrecht, Frise, Overysse, Groningen, and Orneland; who by Virtue of their Powers have Agreed upon the following Articles.

" I. The Peace re-establi'd by the Treaty at Ryswick, between His most Christian Majesty, His Britannick Majesty, and the Lords the States General of the United Provinces, their Heirs and Successors, their Kingdoms, States and Subjects, shall be Firm and Constant; and their 1700. " their Majesties, and the States General, shall reciprocally contribute to the utmost of their Power, to the Advantage and Benefit of the one and the other.

" II. In regard the Principal End which His most Christian Majesty, His Majesty of Great Britain, and the said Lords the States General propose to themselves, is to maintain the General Tranquility of Europe, they cannot but be greatly grieved to see, that the Condition of the King of Spain's Health has continued for some time so extremely languishing, that there is nothing more to be fear'd than the Death of that Prince; tho' they cannot think of that Event without Affliction, by reason of the sincere and real Friendship they have for him: They have in the mean time deem'd it so much the more necessary to foresee, that His Catholick Majesty not having any Children, the Vacancy of the Succession will infallibly raise a new War, if the most Christian King makes good His Pretensions, and the Claims of Monseigneur the Dauphin, and his Posterity, to the whole Succession of Spain; and that the Emperor will also support His Pretensions, and those of the King of the Romans, and the Arch-Duke Charles, his Second Son, or of His other Children, Males or Females, to the said Inheritance.

" III. And in regard the Two Lords the Kings, and the Lords the States-General, desire above all things the Preservation of the Publick Repose, and to avoid a new War in Europe, by an Accommodation of such Disputes and Differences as may arise by reason of the said Succession, or out of a Jealousie of those too many Dominions being united under one and the same Prince, they have thought fit to take Measures before-hand, requisite to prevent the Misfortunes which the said Accident of that King's Dying without Issue may produce.

" IV. To this purpose, it is Accorded and Agreed, That if the said Accident should happen, the Most Christian King, as well in his own Name, as in the Name of Monseigneur the Dauphin, His Children, Male or Female, Heirs and Successors, Born, or to be Born; as also my said Lord the Dauphin, for himself, his Children, Male or Female, Heirs or Successors, Born, or to be Born, shall hold themselves satisfied, as they do by these Presents hold themselves satisfied; That Monseigneur the Dauphin shall have for his Share, in full Propriety, Possession, Plenary Extinction of all his Pretensions to the Succession of Spain, to Enjoy for Him, his Heirs, Successors, Descendants, Male or Female, Born, or to be Born, to Perpetuity, without being ever molested, under any pretence whatever of Right or Pretension, even by Resignation, Appeal, Revolt, or any other way whatever, on the part of the Emperor, the King of the Romans, the most Serene Arch-Duke Charles his Second Son, the Arch-Dutchesses, and his other Children, Male or Female, Descendants, Heirs and Successors, Born, or to be Born; the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily, in the same manner as the Spaniards possess 'em at present; all Places depending upon the Monarchy of Spain, upon the Coast of Tuscany, and Islands adjacent, comprized under the Names of Sancto Stephano, Porto Horcole, Orbitello, Talamone, Porto Longo, Piombino, in the same manner as the Spaniards hold 'em at present; the City and Marquisate of Final, in the same manner as the Spaniards now enjoy 'em; the Province of Guipuscoa, namely, the City of Fontarabie, and 1700. " St. Sebastian, seated in the said Province, and especially the Pert du Passage, with what is comprehended therein; with this Restriction only, That if there be any Places depending upon the said Province, which are seated beyond the Pyreneans, and other Mountains of Navarre, Alava, or Biscay, in the Province of Guipuscoa, they shall remain to France; and the Passages of the said Mountains, and the said Mountains which are between the said Provinces of Guipuscoa, Navarre, Alava, and Biscay, to which they shall appertain, shall be divided between France and Spain; so that there shall remain as much of the said Mountains and Passages to France on her side, as shall remain to Spain on her side. The whole, with the Fortifications, Ammunition, and Provision, Powder, Bullets, Cannon, Gallies and Chiorms, which shall belong to the King of Spain at the time of his Decease without Issue, to be annexed to the Kingdoms, Places, Isles, and Provinces, which are to compose Monseigneur the Dauphin's Share. Nevertheless, be it understood, That the Gallies, Chiorms, and other Effects belonging to the King of Spain, throughout the Kingdom of Spain, and other Dominions, which fall to the most Serene Arch-Duke's share, shall remain to him; those that belong to the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily, before they descend to Monseigneur the Dauphin, as already has been agreed. Moreover, the Territories of Monseigneur the Duke of Lorraine; that is to say, the Dutchies of Lorraine and Barr, as Duke Charles IV. of that Name possess'd 'em, and such as were restor'd by the Treaty of Ryswick, shall be relinquish'd and set over to Monseigneur the Dauphin, his Children, and Heirs and Successors Males, Born, or to be Born, in full Propriety and Plenary Possession, instead of the Dutchy of Milan, which shall be relinquish'd and set over in Exchange to the said Duke of Lorraine, his Children, Male and Female, Heirs, Descendants, Successors, Born, or to be Born, in full Propriety and Plenary Possession, who will not refuse so advantageous a Share; understanding withal that the County of Bitebe shall belong to the Prince of Vaudemont, who shall re-enter into the Lands which he formerly enjoy'd, which have, or ought to be Surrendred to him by virtue of the Treaty of Ryswick. In consideration of which Kingdoms, Islands, Provinces, and Places, the said most Christian King, as well in his own Name, as in the Name of Monseigneur the Dauphin, his Children, Male or Female, Heirs or Successors, Born, or to be Born; who has also given for that Effect His full Power to the Sieur Count de Tallard, and the Sieur Count de Briordz, promise and engage to renounce upon the Vacancy of the said Spanish Succession, as in that Case they now renounce by these Presents, all Rights and Pretensions to the said Crown of Spain, and all other Kingdoms, Islands, Dominions and Places, which at this present depend upon it, excepting what is declared above to be their Share. And of all this they shall cause to be drawn up solemn Acts, in the strongest and most Authentick Form that may be; which shall be deliver'd at the time of the Exchange of the Ratifications of this present Treaty, to the King of Great Britain, and the Lords the States General.

" V. All the Cities, Places, and Ports, Situated in the Kingdoms and Provinces which are to compose the Share of the said Monseigneur the Dauphin, shall be preserv'd, without being demolish'd.

1700.

“ VI. The said Crown of Spain, and the other Kingdoms, Islands, Dominions, Countries, and Places, which the Catholick King possesses at present, as well within as without Europe, shall be given and relinquish'd to the most Serene Arch-Duke Charles, the Emperor's Second Son, except what was declar'd in the IVth. Article, which composes Monseigneur the Dauphin's share, and the Dutchy of Milan, in pursuance of the said IVth. Article, in full Propriety and Plenary Possession, as his Share; and in Extinction of all his Pretensions to the said Succession of Spain; to be enjoy'd by him, and his Heirs and Successors, born or to be born, to perpetuity, never to be molested, upon any pretence whatever of Rights and Pretensions, directly and indirectly, whether by Cession, Appeal, Revolt, or any other way, on the part of the most Christian King, my said Lord the Dauphin, or his Children, Male or Female, his Heirs and Successors, born or to be born. In the lieu of which Crown of Spain, and other Kingdoms and Dominions, Countries and Places which depend upon it, the Emperor, as well in his own Name, as in the Names of the King of the Romans, the most Serene Arch-Duke Charles his Second Son, the Arch-Duchesses his Daughters, his Children, their Children, Male or Female, their Heirs, Descendants or Successors, born or to be born, shall hold themselves satisfied, That the most Serene Arch-Duke Charles shall have in Extinction of all other their Pretensions to the Succession of Spain, the Resignation made as above. The said Emperor as well in his own Name, as in the Names of the King of the Romans, and the most Serene Arch-Duke Charles his Second Son, the Arch-Duchesses his Daughters, their Children, Male and Female, their Heirs and Successors; as also the King of the Romans in His own Name, shall at the time when they shall enter into the present Treaty, and ratifie it, and the said Arch-Duke Charles when he comes of Age, renounce all other Rights and Pretensions to the Kingdoms, Islands, Dominions, Countries, and Places, which compose the Share and Portions assign'd, as above, to Monseigneur the Dauphin, and to him who shall have the Dutchy of Milan in Exchange for what shall be given to Monseigneur the Dauphin: And that of all these things there shall speedily be drawn up solemn Acts in the best and most Authentick Form that may be; that is to say, the Emperor, and the King of the Romans, at the time when they shall ratify the present Treaty, and the Arch-Duke when he shall be of Age, which shall be deliver'd to His Britannick Majesty, and the Lords the States-General.

“ VII. Immediately after the Exchange of the Ratifications of the present Treaty, it shall be imparted to the Emperor, who shall be invited to enter into it: But if within Three Months after, to reckon from the Day of the said Communication and Invitation, or from the Day that the said Catholick King shall happen to die; if it should so fall out, within the Term of Three Months, His Imperial Majesty, or the King of the Romans, shall refuse to enter into it, and to agree to the Share assign'd the Arch-Duke; the Two Lords the Kings, and the Lords the States-General, shall agree upon a Prince to whom the Share shall be given. And in case, that notwithstanding the present Agreement, the said most Serene Duke will take Possession of the Portion that shall fall to him, before he had accepted the present Treaty, or the Portion assigned to Monseigneur the Dauphin, or to him who shall have the Dutchy of Milan in Exchange, as is above-mentioned; the said Lords the Kings, and the Lords the States-General, by Virtue of this Convention shall hinder him with all their Force.

“ VIII. The most Serene Arch-Duke shall not pass into Spain, nor into the Dutchy of Milan, during the Life of His Catholick Majesty, but by common Consent, and no otherwise.

“ IX. If the most Serene Arch-Duke happens to die without Issue, whether before or after the Death of the Catholick King; the Share which is above assign'd him by the Sixth Article of this Treaty, shall pass to such Child of the Emperor, Male or Female, (except the King of the Romans) to whom His Imperial Majesty shall think fit to assign it. And in case His Imperial Majesty happens to die before such Assignation, it may be made by the King of the Romans. But all this upon Condition, That the said Partition shall never be re-united, nor belong to the Person of Him who shall be Emperor, or King of the Romans; or who shall be both the one and the other, either by Succession, Will, Contract of Marriage, Donation, Exchange, Cession, Appeal, Revolt, or other way. And in like manner, the Share of the most Serene Arch-Duke shall never be united, nor belong to the Person of Him who shall be King of France, or Dauphin, or both together; whether by Succession, Will, Contract of Marriage, Donation, Exchange, Cession, Appeal, Revolt, or any other way whatever.

“ X. The King of Spain deceasing without Issue, and the said Accident coming to pass, the said Lords the Kings, and the States-General, oblige themselves to leave the whole Succession in the same Condition it shall then be, without Seizure of the whole, or any part, directly or indirectly: But every Prince shall immediately take Possession of what is assign'd him for his Share, when he shall for his own part have given Satisfaction upon the Fourth and Sixth Articles preceding this. And if he finds therein any Difficulty, the Two Lords the Kings, and the Lords the States-General, to the end that every one may be put into his Share according to the Agreement, and that it may have its full Effect, engage themselves to give requisite Succour and Assistance of Men and Shipping, by Land and Sea, by Force to constrain those that shall oppose themselves against the said Agreement.

“ XI. If the said Lords the Kings, or the States-General, shall be Attack'd by any one whatever, by reason of this Agreement or the Execution of it; they shall mutually assist each other with all their Forces, and shall make themselves Guarantees of the punctual Execution of the said Treaty, and the Renunciations made in pursuance thereof.

“ XII. All Kings, Princes and States, who will enter thereinto, shall be admitted by this present Treaty; and it shall be lawful for the Two Lords the Kings, the States-General, and for every one of them in particular, to request and invite whom they shall think fit into the present Treaty, and likewise to be Guarantees of the Execution of the said Treaty and Renunciations therein contained.

“ XIII. And for the greater Security of the Repose of Europe, the said Kings, Princes and States, shall not only be invited to be Guarantees of the said Execution of this present Treaty, and of the Validity of the said Renunciations, as above-mention'd; but if any one of those Princes, in whose Favour the said Partitions 1700.

1700.

tions are made, shall go about to trouble the Methods settled by the said Treaty, to attempt new Enterprizes contrary to it, and so to aggrandize themselves to the Prejudice of each other, under any pretence whatever; it shall be deem'd to be the Duty of the said Guaranty, to extend it self in that Case; so that the Kings, Princes and States, who promise it, shall be bound to employ their Forces in Opposition to the said Enterprizes, and to maintain all things in the Condition contain'd in the said Articles.

XIV. That if any Prince, whoever he be, shall oppose taking Possession of the Shares agreed, the said Lords the Kings, and the States-General, shall be obliged to assist each other against the said Opposition, and to hinder it with all their Forces. And there shall be an Agreement made, presently after the Signing of this present Treaty, touching the Proportion which every one is to contribute, as well by Sea as Land.

XV. The present Treaty, and all other Acts done in Pursuance of it, or which may have any Reference to it; and particularly the Solemn Acts which His most Christian Majesty, and Monseigneur the Dauphin, are oblig'd to perform by Virtue of the Fourth Article above-written, shall be register'd in the Parliament of Paris according to their Form and Tenor, and according to the usual Custom; to be in force according to the Conditions therein contain'd; so soon as the Emperor shall be enter'd into the present Treaty, or at the end of Three Months which are allow'd for that purpose, if He does not enter into it sooner. And in like manner, His Imperial Majesty shall be bound, when He shall enter into the present Treaty, to cause it to be approv'd and register'd with all the Solemn Acts which His Imperial Majesty, the King of the Romans, and the most Serene Arch-Duke shall be oblig'd to perform, by Virtue of the Sixth Article before recited, in His Council of State, or elsewhere, according to the most authentick Forms of the Country.

XVI. The Ratifications of the Two Lords the Kings, and the Lords the States-General, shall be all Three exchange'd at the same time at London, within the space of Three Weeks; to reckon from the Day that the said Lords the States-General shall have Sign'd, and sooner if it may be done." Done and Signed at London, March the 15th. N. S. 1700. by Us the Plenipotentiaries of France and England, and of the Lords the States-General: It being agreed, That the Signature of this present Treaty shall be made in such manner. In Faith of which, We have Sign'd this present Treaty with our Hands, and set hereto the Seals of our Arms.

Sign'd,

Tallard, and Portland.	Joan Van Essen.
Briord, and Jersey.	F. B. Van Rede.
	A. Heinsius.
	W. de Nassau.
	Ev. de Weede.
	W. Van Haren.
	A. Lenker.
	Van Hekke.

Disadvantages of this Treaty.

France was the first Party that made this Treaty Publick, being then in Earnest with it: The other contracting Powers propos'd it to several Princes and States for their Acceptance and Guaranty. But the thing seem'd strange, and it does not appear that any but the immediate Authors would come into it. As for the Emperor, He thought himself aggriev'd by it, as dis-inheriting the Austrian Family of their Claim of Succession to the Crown of Spain. The great Ends which the English and Dutch had in it were certainly the Peace and Balance of Europe, and forming a Barrier in the Netherlands, to secure Holland and the Empire: There is no reason to question the Sincerity, and in such a juncture even the Wisdom of King William in this Transaction. But a Suspicion lies hard upon the French King, that he meant it for an Amusement only to the Allies, and for an Argument of drawing in the Spaniards more effectually to desire his Grandson for their Sole Monarch: For it is certain that the Ministers of France in the Court of Spain made use of this Partition to incense the Grandees against the Indignity of tearing their Monarchy in pieces; and made it a convincing and prevalent Argument to obtain a Will for declaring the Duke of Anjou a universal Heir. This Memorable Will being the Management of the Prime Minister Cardinal Portacarerero, upon a result of the Intrigues of the French Ambassador the Marquis de Harcourt, was Sign'd by the Crazy and Half-Dead King of Spain on the Second of October, who within a Month after Expired, on November the First. N. S. He was Born the 6th. of November, 1661. and had Succeeded his Father Philip IV. in 1666.

1700.

Immediately upon this Prince's Death, the Will was open'd in the presence of the Spanish Court, and a Copy of it was dispatch'd by the appointed Regents to the King of France. The Dutch Envoy at Madrid had sent Intelligence of this Intreigue to the Lord Manchester, then Ambassador at the Court of France: Upon which his Excellency, who was ever watchful on the French Proceedings, desired a Private Audience, wherein he prest to know what His Majesty intended to do in this Conjunction; putting him in mind of his Solemn Engagement to the King his Master. To this the French King answered, "That he would not take a final Resolution, till his Excellency had an Answer to his Dispatches to England, which he desired he would not Communicate to the Dutch Ambassador." However, to carry on the Dissimulation and the Project, other Considerations prevail'd, and His Most Christian Majesty soon after declared His Acceptance of the said Will, without Consulting those Allies with whom He had so lately concluded a Treaty of Partition. So that on November the 16th. N. S. the Duke of Anjou in His Grandfather's Court was declared and saluted King of Spain: Besides which, two remarkable Instruments were drawn up, contrary to the meaning of the Will, to preserve his Title to the Crown of France, in case his Luder Brother Died without Inheritable Issue. This plainly shew'd, that the House of Bourbon aim'd at the Union of the two Crowns, as a greater step to the Universal Monarchy.

King of Spain's Will.

Artifices of France.

Count Briord the French Ambassador in Holland was labouring to put a Colour upon this course Proceeding of His Master: He told Mr. Stanhop the English Envoy there, by way of sounding, "That he found his Master had accepted the Will; but he was inform'd the English did not like it; and therefore he should be glad to know his Thoughts upon it." Mr. Stanhope gravely reply'd, that such a Question was too weighty for an Extempore Answer: But (says he) I bear you have communicated it to the Pensioner Heinsius; pray, what does he think of it? The Pensioner, reply'd the French Ambassador, told me, he would impart it to the States. And so will I (said Mr. Stanhope) to the King my Master.

1700. fter. Not long after, Count Briord presented a Memorial to the States, representing the insuperable Difficulties of the Partition, which if adher'd to must be the cause of Universal War; and therefore His Master had chose rather to answer the end of that Treaty, which was to preserve the Peace and Tranquility of Europe. Soon after this, Count Briord at his Publick Audience, after he had delivered His Master's Letter to the States, made this Harangue to them.

My Lords,

Harangue of the French Minister.

I Come to give your Lordships new Assurances of the King my Master's constant Amity, and his Sincere Desire to observe Inviolably the last Peace. All the steps His Majesty has trod since it was concluded, may convince the whole World, that he has no other Designs, than to maintain the Publick Tranquility; of which His Majesty thought He had given a convincing Proof in accepting the Deceased King of Spain's Will. In a Word, he confirms that Equilibrium so long wish'd for over all Europe; and His Union with the Crown of Spain will only serve to settle Peace over all Christendom. And this is the only Aim which He propos'd to himself in renouncing so great Advantages to His Crown. My Lords, His Majesty hopes, That your Lordships, convinc'd of this Truth, will correspond with sentiments so favourable to the Publick Good, and that they will contribute to the Preservation of so great a Blessing as that of Peace. No body doubts but that it is the Fountain of all Blessings; and your Republick of all the Potentates in Europe, has the greatest reason to preserve it; and it is at present so well establish'd, that you have now no more to do, but to enjoy the Effects of your long Labours and infinite Expences. 'Tis by the means of this Peace that you will uphold this Flourishing State, and enlarge that Trade which you have extended to the Extremities of the Earth. Your sincere Union with His Majesty will be the most solid foundation of the Continuance of this Peace; and your Puissance is so well known to all the World, that no body can suspect that any other Motives but the Publick Good engage you to desire Peace.

The situation of your Republick is such, as enables it not only to preserve Peace at Home, but to secure it to the Greatest Part of the States of Europe. That you may attain to so desir'd a Blessing, you have no more to do than to banish all ill-grounded Suspicions, and anticipated Fears, and to stop your Ears against the sollicitations of the Maligners of the King's Glory. Recal to mind, My Lords, that happy time, when by your Union with France, and by a perfect Correspondence, both Parties laboured mutually to procure to themselves all manner of Advantages. It lies in your Lordships power to restore all things to the same Condition. By such a Conduct you will engage the King to continue that Good Will of His, which you your selves acknowledged to be so precious in your Esteem. His Majesty demands no more for the Price of His Friendship, but that you will concur with him in the maintenance of this Peace, so beneficial, and so much desired by all the Provinces.

It would be to no Purpose, My Lords, for me to enlarge upon the Advantages of the Peace. This Assembly, which is compos'd of Persons so Wise, so Consummate in the Management of Affairs, and so Zealous for the Publick Good, has questionless no other Designs, nor any other Intentions than to promote so great a Blessing. But a Man of my Profession is not accusom'd to long Speeches. I conclude then, protesting to your Lordships, that I shall always endeavour to prove more by Deeds than Words, that never any Minister came into these Provinces with better Intentions; and that I have for this Illustrious Assembly, all that Veneration which they justly Merit; and that I shall always have a perfect Honour for all the particular Members that Compose it.

1700.

This Speech and the preceeding Memorial, however soft and smooth, would have had but little effect on their High and Mightinesses, had not the French at the same time over-run the Spanish Netherlands, and by Stratagem seiz'd several strong Towns, partly Garison'd by Dutch; where by the States were brought under a Necessity of acknowledging the Duke of Anjou's Title to Spain, to get their Soldiers again, who nevertheless were not without difficulty suffer'd to return. King William in His own Heart was incens'd at this violent Breach of the French Faith and Honour; though He must forbear to shew His Resentment, till He should be in a better condition of demanding Satisfaction. In the mean time, when Count Tallard (after His Return from Paris, whither he went every Year from Holland, to Acquaint His Master with the Negotiations) came to wait on His Majesty at Kensington; the King then looking out at a Window, contented Himself to say to him, Monsieur l'Ambassadeur, le Temps est bien change. By which Expression His Majesty meant not only the Alteration of the Weather, but chiefly the change of Time, and Circumstances of Things. And the Ambassador soon perceiv'd a greater Alteration in the King's Countenance and Reception of him; and therefore on February 3. he took his Publick Audience of Leave of His Majesty, and soon after set out for France, to return no more till he was brought over a Prisoner of War. In his room one Monsieur Poussin was appointed to stay, but with no better Character than that of Secretary.

The Force as well as Fraud of France.

Within few days after His Majesty's Return from Holland, the Parliament met at Westminster on October 24. and was further Prorogued to the 21st. of November following. His Majesty had broke off with them in silence the last Session, and was not much inclin'd to meet them again: And therefore on November 21st. the Parliament was further Prorogued to January 15. and in the mean time was Dissolved by Proclamation, dated 19. December, and a New Parliament called to begin at Westminster, February 6.

New Parliament in England.

When the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen attended His Majesty to Congratulate His Health and Safe Return on October 21. He conferred the Honour of Knighthood upon Robert Beacheroff, Esq; one of the Sheriffs. On November 5. His Majesty was pleas'd in Council to deliver His Privy Seal into the Custody of Ford Earl of Tankerville; and to admit Sir Charles Hedges to be one of His Principal Secretaries of State, and Privy Counsellor. The next day the New Call of Serjeants, Sir Joseph Jekyll of the Middle-Temple, Knight, Chief Justice of Chester; John Green of Lincolns-Inn, Esq; Charles Whiteacre, Thomas Gibbons, Philip Neve, Nicholas Hooper, James Munday, John Prat, James Selby, Thomas Cartheu, of the Inner-Temple, Esquires; Thomas Barry, John Hook, Lawrence Agar, and John Smith, of Grays-Inn, Esquiers; John Keen, Henry Turner, of Lincolns-Inn, Esquiers; Robert Tracy, and William Hall, of the Middle-

Honours and Preferments.

1700. Middle-Temple, Esquires, went solemnly in their Coifs and Robes to Westminster-Hall; and entertain'd the Judges with a splendid Dinner at Serjeants-Inn. Before the meeting of a New Parliament, Charles Mountague, Esq; having contracted some Envy and some Hatred by his prevailing Interest at Court, and his long Ascendant in the House of Commons, obtain'd now the Favour of removing to the House of Lords, being Created a Baron of England, by the Title and Title of Baron of Halifax, in the County of York. The Reasons of his Advancement were express in his Patent.

Lord Halifax.

Si ab antiquissima Procerum familia splendorem derivare honestum; si rebus a se pulchre gestis inclarescere gloriosum censeatur, utroque hoc nomine singulorum nostrae Astimationi sese commendat Praedilectus & per quam fidelis consiliarius noster Carolus Mountague, Armiger; illa domo ortus quae tres Comitatus & octo simul alterius ordinis Senatores, in Imperii nostri Decus & subsidium felici ubertate sufficit; illis virtutibus ornatus, quibus nullum honoris Incrementum aut bonus Civis irvideat, aut aequus Princeps non ultro offerat. Ingenium ei ad res arduas formata Natura, excoluerunt literae, perfecere & bene dicendi Usus, & graviter agendi exercitatio. In tractandis in senatu Negotiis strenuum & disertum; in Consilio sanctiori fidum & prudentem, in administrando Aerao habilem & incorruptum, in fisci causis adjudicandis integrum & perspicacem experti sumus. Quod nobis pro Libertate & Religione, pro communi Europae incolumitate pro novennium militantibus, Bello subsidia haud defecerint, id senatui omnino deberi gratè agnoscimus; sed nec tacenda est viri egregii solertia, quae tantum est, ne in summa numerorum inopia fides publica Favore plus aequo debilitata consideret. Eiusdem quoque felicitati saltem tribunulum, quod Erario nostro eo tempore praesuit, quo Monetam sceleratorum fraude vitiatam & immutatam, Consilio non minus sancto quam audaci (quod saeculi opus videbatur) infra biennium recudi & redintegrari ad admirationem vidimus; & ingruentibus rei pecuniariae Angustiis, eo Auctore, novam inusitatam invenimus rationem, qua Chartae praetium arrogando, divitias publicas ampliari curavimus. Ob haec praestita officia populo se charum praebuit; ob haec collata in populum beneficia, nostram facile consequutus est gratiam. Quae igitur animi propensione frequentibus subditorum votis solemniter respondere, ea alacritate hunc procerum numero ad scribi volumus quem senatus communi suffragio, Propter sua in nos, nostrisque Merita, Regio Favore dignum pronuntiavit. Scitis igitur, &c. Baronem Halifax, &c.

A new Ministry.

To sweeten the Humours and Measures of the New Parliament, the King was willing to oblige those Men, who were more eminently distinguished by the Name of the Church-Party, who had thought themselves neglected. And therefore on Dec. 12. His Majesty in Council was pleased to declare the Right Honourable Lawrence Earl of Rochester, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland; and Sidney Lord Godolphin, first Commissioner of the Treasury, in the room of Mr. Mountague, now Lord Halifax, who was made Auditor of the Exchequer.

The Parliament, according to the Writs of Summons, met at Westminster on February 6. and was Prorogued to Monday February 10. when the King came to the House of Peers, and sending for the Commons, signified to them by the Lord Keeper, That they should forthwith proceed to the choice of a fit Person to be their Speaker, and present him to His Majesty. The next day the Commons returning to their House made choice of Robert Harley, Esq; who was the next day presented and approved by the King; after which, His Majesty made this Speech to Both Houses.

Mr. Harley Speaker.

1700. King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,
 OUR great Misfortune in the Loss of the Duke of Gloucester, hath made it absolutely Necessary, that there should be a further Provision for the Succession to the Crown in the Protestant Line, after Me and the Princesses. The Happiness of the Nation, and the Security of Our Religion, which is Our chiefest Concern, seems so much to depend upon this, that I cannot doubt but it will meet with a general Concurrence: And I earnestly recommend it to your early and effectual Consideration.

The Death of the late King of Spain, with the Declaration of His Successor to that Monarchy, has made so great an Alteration in the Affairs Abroad, that I must desire you very maturely to Consider their present State; and I make no doubt but your Resolutions thereupon will be such, as shall be most conducing to the Interest and Safety of England, the Preservation of the Protestant Religion in general, and the Peace of all Europe.

These things are of such Weight, that I have thought them most proper for the Consideration of a New Parliament, to have the more immediate Sense of the Kingdom in so great a Conjunction.

I must desire of you, Gentlemen of the House of Commons, such Supplies as you shall judge necessary for the Service of the Current Year; and I must particularly put you in Mind of the Deficiencies and Publick Debts occasioned by the late War, that are yet unprovided for.

I am obliged further to recommend to you, That you would inspect the Condition of the Fleet, and consider what Repairs or Augmentations may be requisite for the Navy, which is the great Bulwark of the English Nation, and ought in this Conjunction most especially to be put in a good Condition; and that you would also consider what is proper for the better Security of those Places where the Ships are laid up in Winter.

The Regulation and Improvement of Our Trade, is of so Publick Concern, that I hope it will ever have your Serious Thoughts; and if you can find proper Means of setting the Poor at Work, you will ease yourselves of a very great Burthen; and at the same time add so many useful Hands to be employed in Our Manufactures, and other Publick Occasions.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I hope there will be such an Agreement and Vigor in the Resolutions you shall take upon the Important Matters now before you, as may make it appear We are firmly United among Our selves; and in My Opinion nothing may contribute more to Our Safety at Home, or to Our being Considerable Abroad.

The Commons spent the Two succeeding days in qualifying themselves; and on the 13th began with the Business of Bribery in Elections, which was a matter of long Debates and Censures. On the 14th, upon Reading His Majesty's Speech, they came to this expedient Resolution; "That they would stand by and support His Majesty and His Government, and take such effectual Measures, as may best conduce to the Interest and Safety of England, the Preservation of the Protestant Religion, and the Peace of Europe." This Resolution was presented to His Majesty by the whole House, on February 17. and the King gave them this Gracious Answer.

Proceedings in the H. of Commons.

I thank you for this Address, and your ready Concurrence to those great Ends therein mentioned, which I take Commons Addr and King's Answer.

1700. It is to be extremely Important to the Honour and Safety of England; and I assure you, I shall never propose any thing but what is for our common Advantage and Security. Having this Occasion, I think it proper to acquaint you, That yesterday I received a Memorial from the Envoy Extraordinary of the States General; a Translation whereof I leave with you: As to the first Part of it I think it necessary to ask your Advice; and as to the latter Part I desire your Assistance.

Opening of a War with France.

Upon a Report of this Answer, the Commons immediately Resolved, "That an Humble Address be made to His Majesty, by such Members as are of the Privy Council, that He will please to cause the Treaty between England and the States General of the Third of March, 1677. and all the Renewals thereof since that time, to be laid before the House." Which His Majesty commanded to be done by Mr. Secretary Hedges. And the House was so well satisfied, that on February 20. they Resolved, "That an Humble Address be made to his Majesty, that He will please to enter into such Negotiations, in concert with the States General of the United Provinces, and other Potentates, as may most effectually conduce to the mutual Safety of these Kingdoms, and the States General, and the Preservation of the Peace of Europe: And giving Him Assurances of Support and Assistance, in Performance of the Treaty made with the States General the Third of March, 1677." This Address was presented by the whole House on Friday 21. February. And His Majesty gave this acceptable Answer.

Second Address and Answer.

Gentlemen, I thank you heartily for the Advice you have given Me, and your Unanimous Resolution to Support and Assist Me in making good the Treaty mentioned in your Address; And I will immediately order My Ministers abroad to enter into Negotiations in concert with the States General, and other Potentates, for the Attaining of those Great Ends which you desire. Nothing can more effectually conduce to our Security, than the Unanimity and Vigor you have shew'd on this Occasion: And I shall always endeavour on My Part, to Preserve and Increase this mutual Trust and Confidence between Us.

Letter of the E. of Melfort.

On the 17th of February. Mr. Secretary Vernon had acquainted the House of Commons, That he was commanded by His Majesty to communicate to them a Letter, which came very providentially to his Hands out of France: Being a Letter from the Earl of Melfort to his Brother the Earl of Perth. And he delivered a Copy in at the Table, and the Original to Mr. Speaker: The Copy was read, and ran thus.

My dearest Brother,

"Since I promised to put in Writing what we had not time to talk fully of, I am set down to it in the Morning that my Letter may be ready for the Messenger, if any call. I told all that I had heard at Versailles, and the favourable Audience I had of Madam Maintenon; for which, I beg it of you to return my most humble Thanks to the Queen, and beg her to be so Good, as to thank Madam Maintenon, and know of her what can be done in that Matter: It will be a great Charity in the Queen. I told you among other Things, the great Fleet the King intends to put out this Summer; the Order being given, and the Money ready, the Stores full, and every one concern'd Active in their Stations. There is no doubt but this Fleet will be Master of the Sea for some time, if not for all the Summer, because the Dutch dare not stir till the English be ready; and they have long Debates yet, before they can be in a Condition to Act, if they have the Will; and 'tis a Question if they will have it at all. The 1700. King never had so favourable a Conjunction, if He can persuade this King that His Affairs are really in the Circumstances they are in; but there is the Difficulty. The King and Queen have more Authority with the King and with Madam de Maintenon, than any other in the World can have; but that is not all, there should be some one acceptable to the Ministers, who should lay before them those Proofs Their Majesties cannot enter into the Detail of; and explain the Reasons, make Plans and Memoirs by Their Majesties Approbation, to convince them of the necessity, and shew the easiness of Restoring the King, the Glory it brings their Kingdom, and the Advantage to Religion: How this will be done, Their Majesties are wise enough to consider, and I think it is not a Subject fit for me to enter upon; but their Friends in general, who know not the half of what I know in this Matter, think that it will not be well done by a Protestant Minister, lazy in his Temper, an Enemy to France by his Inclination, tainted with Commonwealth Principles, and against the King's returning by any other Power than that of the People of England, and upon Capitulation and Terms, which is suspected of giving Aid to the Compounders, if not worse.

"That Mr. Carrill is qualified, no body doubts, but in Society with the other; these who must be Instrumental, will not trust him as they ought; so that so long as the other is within distance of penetrating the Affairs, they will never be secure: And yet the King has no such Game to play, as by these very Persons who are thus diffident; namely, the true Church of England Party, the Catholics, and the Earl of Arvan; and I shall say something of every one of them.

"The King cannot but be sensible, that the true Church of England Party, and their principal Head, now the Bishop of Norwich, has been silent for a long time; and Their Majesties may remember, what weight the Court of France laid upon their joining the King (I mean the Non-swearers Clergy) in case of a Landing: Therefore all Arts should be used without delay, to get them to enter into a Correspondence again, and every Impediment ought to be removed, I say, without exception. And tho' sometimes it is of hard digestion for Sovereigns, who ought to be obeyed without reserve, to yield to the Humours of Subjects, yet Prudence should teach them, when they cannot, without injuring their Affairs, do what they would, do what they can; and remember the Fable of the Dog, who lost the Substance by the Shadow. Assurances from the Non-Jurors, the soundest and most venerable Part of the English Church, would be of great use at this time, to persuade to undertake this great Affair; for besides their own Example at a Landing, and their Preaching and Writing to the People, that their Religion was in no Danger, it is most certain they know better than any other can do, what the Church of England in general would do for the King's Service; and they being to run all the hazard, would be better believed at the French Court than any other, as I found by Experience.

"As to the Catholics, and other Associates with them, unfortunately for the King, they were thought to have too much Inclination for me, and so have been reckoned as useless to the King: And I must beg leave to say, that Undertaking was the best Feather in His Wing, and was most justly thought so by Him, and the Court of France too, even to that degree,

that

1700. " that they pretended, if this and the other Article concerning the Clergy, could be made appear, they would concur with the King to invade England: They consisted of seven Regiments of Horse and Dragoons; their Arms, Trumpets, Kettle-Drums, Standards, &c. were all ready, and are yet in surety; their Men were all Listed, and their Officers Chosen, and they had Twenty Horses to a Troop; which Troops lying at a distance, in a Horse Country, Twenty Horses would soon have mounted the rest. Those who could not divine the Greatness and Use of the Undertaking, blamed the Rashness of it; and even some Churchmen have not been disapproven, for endeavouring undutifully (because contrary to the King's Written Orders) to break the Design; but I desire you now, for all this, to believe that you have not such another Argument to use to the Court of France as this: And if you can make it appear, as it might have been some Years ago, I should have very good hopes of this Summer's Work; nay, let the King have what other Hopes, even Promises you please, from the Court of France, this is to be put into the Circumstances it was in: For if there will ever be a Landing in England to purpose, it must be before they can be Armed; and they cannot be Armed before the Parliament come to a Resolution concerning the War; and considering the few Troops in England, suppose these Men to be no better than Militia, what a Diversion would it be? It is not necessary for me to say any more of this Article, till I know whether their Majesties have as good an Opinion of this Undertaking as I have; if so, I shall shew what I think is to be done in it; if otherwise, I save the Pains. As to the Earl of Arran, it would be of great use to have an Understanding with him: He will have none where — can pry. His All is at stake, and he ought to be wary with whom he ventures to deal. I think it better for the King's Service that the Court Party prevailed in the manner they have done in the Parliament of Scotland, than that the Country Party should have got their Will: Opposition swells the Waters to a Flood; and so long as the Country Party is not discouraged, they gain more Ground in the Kingdom, than they lose in the Government; so that the Disaffection to the Government will increase; and one may judge of the Nation in general, which is of another Temper than this pretended Parliament, or rather Presbyterian Rabble, in representing the Nation: For since even in it there is such a struggle against the Government, what would there be in a Free Parliament: Which the Prince of Orange durst never hazard to call: The Nation then, at least a great part of it, being disaffected to this Government, it is of the last Consequence that the Earl of Arran may know what to do in Case of an Invasion of England, or in case he and his Friends be obliged for self-preservation to rise in their own Defence. The Army, who are and ever were well-Affected, are to be gained by Money; and a little goes a great way with them; The disbanded Troops would be Engaged, and the Officers are well inclin'd; The Places of Strength would be secured, and such as can be put in defence (without Expences) Fortified. To do all this, at least such a Part of them as can be begun with, a small Sum will serve, and He ought to have hopes of it and of the Command.

" These being only Heads to be discoursed of, and much to be said of every Part, it is not to be thought that this Letter can carry a final 1700. " Conclusion; for it may be, upon discourse, I might change my Mind, or be more confirmed in it, and see farther. This makes me insist again to you upon Two Things, as appearing to me absolutely necessary to put Things upon a right Foot. The first is, the removing of all Impediments out of the way, and sending all suspected Persons to Champaign or Burgundy, according to their Guilt. And the second is of the last Use both to Their Majesties and the Prince; which is, the Establishing of such a Number, under no Qualification, to talk of Their Affairs in Their Majesties Presence; with whom we can freely converse, and propose what may be for Their Majesties Service.

" As for the first, it will be for the King's Reputation, both at the Courts of Rome, France, and with all His true Friends in England, for many Reasons. — As for the second, it is according to Scripture; In the multitude of Counsellors there is safety. Nothing is so dangerous, as to determine what one will do, and then hear Reasons against it, and imitate the deaf Adder, who hearkens not to the voice of the Charmer, let him charm never so sweetly. Reasons against a Resolution taken, offend; and the more force they have, they offend the more; whilst before the Resolution be taken, Reason has its Effect, and the Determinations are not the Effect of Humour and Faction, but of Prudence and Justice. If any thing I fail, I'll swear it is want of Understanding, and not of Will: And I beg that Their Majesties may be perswaded, that it is no Humour nor Vanity, but Their Service I have in my View. Who am,

*My Dearest Brother,
most humbly Yours.*

This Letter was also communicated by His Majesty's Order to the House of Lords; but neither they nor the Commons would do it the Honour to take any particular notice of it. Only it served for the juster Alarm, to secure the Government against the restless Endeavours of the Papists and Jacobites; and it brought in a seasonable Information, That there were great Quantities of Arms and other Warlike Provisions, made and kept concealed by Papists, and other disaffected Persons resorting and meeting together in and about London and Westminster. Upon which, His Majesty issued out his Proclamation on February the 26th, " For all such suspected Persons to repair to their respective Places of Abode; and for putting the Laws in Execution against all Papists and reputed Papists, and all other Offenders; who, by reason of their Conversation, Discourse, or other Demeanor, shall be suspected not to be well-affected to the Government.

To excite a greater Caution against the common Enemy, the House of Lords made a Dutiful Address to His Majesty, wherein they declar'd, their thankful Acknowledgments to Him for the Concern He had express'd in His Speech, for the Protestant Religion; and His Care for its future Preservation, by recommending to their Consideration a further Provision for the Succession to the Crown in the Protestant Line. That they were highly sensible of the Weight of those Things, which His Majesty was pleas'd further to recommend to them; and therefore they humbly desired, He would be pleas'd to Order all the Treaties He had made since the late War, to be laid before them, that they might be enabled to give their mutual Advice, when they should be informed of

The Letter wisely despi- sed in both Houses

Address of the Lords.

1700. "all those matters, necessary to direct their Judgments. Then they humbly desired Him to enter into Alliances with all those Princes and States, who were willing to unite for the Preservation of the Balance of Europe; and assured His Majesty that they should readily concur in such Methods, as might effectually conduce to the Honour and Safety of England, the Preservation of the Protestant Religion, and the Peace of Europe. Then they humbly return'd their further Thanks to His Majesty for communicating the Letter of the Lord Melfort, and desired him to search and seize all such Persons as were thought to be in a Readiness to disturb the Government. In the mean time, they humbly desire, that His Majesty would give such Order for the speedy Fitting out of the Fleet, as He in His great Wisdom should think necessary in this Conjunction, for the Defence of His Majesty and the Kingdom." His Majesty thanked the Lords for their Address, and for the Concern they express'd in Relation to the common Security both at Home and Abroad; and told them, He would give the necessary Orders for those things they desired of Him, and take care for fitting out such Ships as in that Conjunction should be necessary for their Common Safety.

Proceedings of the Commons.

The Commons took pains in examining the Publick Accounts, and enquiring into those of the Commissioners of Prizes. They Resolved on the 28th of February, That John Parkhurst Esq; and John Paschal Esq; Two of those Commissioners, had been guilty of a Neglect of their Duty in the said Office, and of a Contempt of the Act of Parliament made for the execution of it. And therefore Ordered, that they should be both committed Prisoners to the Tower of London.

Care of the Protestant Succession.

On Consideration of that part of His Majesty's Speech, which related to the Succession, the Commons Resolved, (3. March) That for the Preserving the Peace and Happiness of this Kingdom, and the Security of the Protestant Religion by Law Established, it is absolutely Necessary, a further Declaration be made of the Limitation and Succession of the Crown, in the Protestant Line, after His Majesty, and the Princess, and the Heirs of their Bodies respectively. And, that further Provision be first made for Security of the Rights and Liberties of the People. On March the 12th. Mr. Conyers Reported the further Resolutions of the Committee appointed for that purpose; and the House did then Agree and Resolve, 1. That all things relating to the well-Governing of this Kingdom, which are properly Cognizable in the Privy Council, shall be Transacted there, and all Resolutions taken thereupon shall be Signed by the Privy Council. 2. That no Person whatsoever, that is not a Native of England, Scotland or Ireland, or the Dominions thereunto belonging; or who is not Born of English Parents beyond the Seas (although such Person be Naturalized or made Denizon) shall be capable of any Grant of Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments from the Crown, to himself, or any other in Trust for him. 3. That upon the further Limitation of the Crown, in case the same shall hereafter come to any Person not being a Native of this Kingdom of England, this Nation be not obliged to engage in any War for the Defence of any Dominion or Territories not belonging to the Crown of England, without the consent of Parliament. 4. That whosoever shall hereafter come to the Possession of this Crown, shall join in Communion with the Church of England as by Law Established.

And of Rights and Liberties.

1700. 5. That no Pardon be Pleadable to any Impeachment in Parliament. 6. That no Person who shall hereafter come to the Possession of this Crown, shall go out of the Dominions of England, Scotland or Ireland, without Consent of Parliament. 7. That no Person who has any Office under the King, or receives a Pension from the Crown, shall be capable of serving as a Member of the House of Commons. 8. That further Provision be made for the confirming of all Laws and Statutes for the Securing our Religion, and the Rights and Liberties of the People. 9. That Judges Commissions be made Quam diu se bene gesserint, and their Salaries ascertained and established; but upon the Address of either House of Parliament, it may be Lawful to remove them. 10. That the Princess Sophia, Dutches-Dowager of Hanover, be declared the Next in Succession to the Crown of England in the Protestant Line, after His Majesty and the Princess, and the Heirs of their Bodies respectively; and that the further Limitation of the Crown be to the said Princess Sophia and the Heirs of her Body, being Protestants. 11. That a Bill be brought in upon the said Resolutions. In this Case, it was obvious to observe, that People may come in to the same Measures upon a very different View. Some no doubt might fall into such Limitations upon a true Regard to the Security of the Church, and the Liberties of Posterity. Others might come in with a meaning to condemn the present Administration; and to provide for such future Conveniencies as they seemed now to want. Some might think it a step toward coming nearer to a beloved Commonwealth. And even others might imagine that so to clog and embarrass the Succession, might indirectly prevent the Settlement of it.

This Affair was a great Subject of Discourse and Alarm abroad; those Popish Princes who were descended from the Blood-Royal of England, and were more nearly related to the Crown than the Princess Sophia, were offended at being struck off from their remote Hopes and presumptive Right. But the Person more immediately concern'd, as being next in Blood after the King and the Princess Anne, was the Dutches of Savoy, Daughter to the late Dutches of Orleance, and therefore Grand-Daughter to King Charles I. who therefore ordered the Savoy Ambassador Count Maffey, to make a Protestation of her Right, to this effect. "That Anne of Orleance, Dutches of Savoy, &c. Princess of the Blood-Royal of England, by the Royal Princess of Great Britain, Henrietta her Mother, put so high a Value upon that Prerogative, that she gladly made use of the opportunity that then offered, to set it forth before the Eyes of the whole English Nation, as an Evidence she drew from thence, of having a Right to that August Throne. That therefore being Informed that it had been Resolved in that Parliament to settle the Order of the Succession, she represented to the King and Parliament, that being the only Daughter of the late Princess Royal, Henrietta her Mother, she was the next in Succession after His Majesty William III. and the Princess Anne of Denmark, according to the Laws and Customs of England, who always preferred the nearest to the remotest Line. That her Title being thus notoriously known and indisputable, stood in need of no farther Proof. However that she thought fit to Protest against all Resolutions and Decisions contrary thereunto, in the best and most effectual manner, that might be practised in such a Case; wherein she Foreign Princes offended.

Protestation of the Dutches of Savoy.

1700. "The complied rather with Custom, than Necessity, because she had so great an Idea of the Wisdom and Justice of the King and Parliament, that she had no Cause to fear they would do any thing Prejudicial to her and her Children." But without taking notice of this Protestation, the Commons went on with the Bill of Succession, and the King and His Ministers were sensible of the Necessity of it.

The Circulation of Exchequer Bills to supply the want of Specie Money, was very expedient at this Juncture; and therefore on Thursday the 13th. of March, His Majesty came for this only purpose to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Assent to An Act for Renewing the Bills of Credit, commonly called Exchequer Bills.

His Majesty being very Solicitous to defend the States of Holland from the Insults and Approaches that were made upon them by the French in Flanders; and if possible, to restore and preserve a better Balance of Europe, was carrying on a firm Alliance abroad against the Common Enemy; and therefore sent this Message Sign'd by Himself, delivered to the House of Commons by Mr. Secretary Hedges, and Read by the Speaker, March 18.

William R.

His Majesty having directed Mr. Stanhope, his Envoy Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary at the Hague, to enter into Negotiations in Concert with the States-General of the United Provinces, and other Potentates, for the Mutual Security of England and Holland, and the Preservation of the Peace of Europe, according to an Address of this House to that effect: And the said Mr. Stanhope having transmitted to His Majesty Copies of the Demands made by Himself and the Deputies of the States upon that Subject, to the French Ambassador there, His Majesty has thought fit to communicate the same to you. It being His Majesty's Gracious Intention, to acquaint you from time to time with the State and Progress of those Negotiations, into which He has entred pursuant to your Address above-mentioned. Kensington the 17th. of March, 1700.

When this Message was taken into Consideration of the Commons on the 21st. of March, they began with the great Obstruction to it, Treaty of the Treaty of Partition: And after Reading the said Message, the Proposals made to the French Ambassador by Mr. Stanhope, and the Resolutions of the States General for Treating with Monsieur D' Arvaux, they Resolved, That the Treaty of Partition be Read; and after Reading of it, they proceeded to this Resolution, That an Humble Address be presented to His Majesty, to return the Thanks of this House for His Gracious Message, wherein He is pleased to communicate His Royal Intentions to acquaint this House from time to time with the State and Progress of those Negotiations into which His Majesty has entred pursuant to the Address of this House. And also to lay before His Majesty the ill Consequences of the Treaty of Partition (passed under the Great Seal of England, during the Sitting of Parliament, and without the Advice of the same) to this Kingdom and the Peace of Europe, whereby such large Territories of the King of Spain's Dominions were to be delivered up to the French King. When this Address was presented to the King, He did somewhat resent the Unkindness of it; and thought there was much more Reason to complain of the perfidious Breach of the Treaty, than of the Making of it. However, to decline the entering into any Defence of it, he gave this prudent Answer,

Gentlemen,

I Am glad you are pleased with My Communicating to you the State of the Negotiations I have entred into, pursuant to your Address; I shall continue to inform you of the Progress that shall be made in them; and be always willing to receive your Advice thereupon; being fully perswaded, that nothing can contribute more effectually to the Happiness of this Kingdom, and the Peace of Europe, than the Concurrence of the Parliament in all my Negotiations, and a good Understanding between Me and My People.

1700.
Address
and King's
Answer.

The House of Lords had before fell on this unhappy Subject of the Partition-Treaty, and represented their Dislike of it to His Majesty, in an Address on March the 20th. to this effect, "That they having Read and Considered the Treaty of the 21st. of February, or the 3^d. of March, 1700. made with the French King, together with the Separate and Secret Articles, which he had been pleased to communicate to them, did most humbly represent to Him, That to their great Sorrow, they found the Matters thereof to have been of very Ill Consequence to the Peace and Safety of Europe; for, that besides the Occasion it might have given the late King of Spain, to have made His Will in favour of the Duke of Anjou, if that Treaty had Effect; the Prejudice to His Majesty and His Subjects, and indeed to all Europe, by the Addition of Sicily, Naples, several Ports of the Mediterranean, the Province of Guipuscoa and the Dutchy of Lorraine, had been not only very great, but contrary to the Pretence of the Treaty it self, which was to prevent any Umbrage that might have been taken by uniting so many States and Dominions under one Head. That by all the Informations they had had of that fatal Treaty, they could not find that the Verbal Orders and Instructions (if any were given to His Majesty's Plenipotentiaries) were ever considered in any of his Majesty's Councils; or that the Draught of that Treaty had ever been laid before His Majesty at any Meeting of his Council, much less that it was advised or approved of by any Council, or Committee of Council: Wherefore they thought themselves bound in Duty to His Majesty, and Justice to their Country, most humbly to beseech Him, that for the Future He would be pleased to require and admit, in all Matters of Importance, the Advice of His Natural-born Subjects, whose known Probity and Fortunes might make him and his People a just Assurance of their Fidelity to his Service; and that in order thereunto, he would be pleased to constitute a Council of such Persons to whom His Majesty might be pleased to impart all Affairs, both at home and abroad, which might any way concern Him and His Dominions. For as Interest and Natural Affection to their Country would incline them to wish the Welfare and Prosperity of it much more than others, who had no such Ties upon them; and as their Experience and Knowledge of their Country, would also render them more capable than Strangers, of advising his Majesty in the true Interests of it; so they were confident, that after such large and repeated Demonstrations of His Subjects Duty and Affection, His Majesty could not doubt of their Zeal in His Service, nor want the knowledge of Persons fit to be employed in all His most Secret and Arduous Affairs. And that since it appeared the French King's

Vol. III. I iiii 2 "accepting

Lords
Address
against the Partition.

1700. "accepting of the King of Spain's Will, was
 "a manifest Violation of that Treaty, they
 "humbly advised His Majesty in future Treas"ures with that Prince, to proceed with such
 "Caution, as might carry a real Security.

His Majesty having received the Lords Address, Answered, It contain'd Matters of very great Moment; and that he would always take care that all Treaties be made, should be for the Honour and Safety of England.

Debate
 for Concurrence
 of the
 Commons.

Before this Address was actually presented, a Motion was made to send to the Commons for their Concurrence; and these Reasons were urg'd for it by some of the Lords, "That the "last Clause in the Address did necessarily im"ply a War, and that a very long one, by "Reason of the Extent, (unintelligible at least to "them) of a real Security, and the great Im-
 "probability of obtaining any Terms of that "kind; and since that necessarily implied great
 "Supplies, which could not be granted without
 "the Commons, they look'd upon their Con-
 "currence in the Address to be absolutely Ne"cessary; and that it was improper for them to "desire that of the King, which, for want of "such Concurrence of the Commons, they
 "conceived His Majesty would not think Fit
 "or Prudent for Him to grant them. That "they were of Opinion, all the other parts of "the Address, were very fit to be communica"ted to the Commons; for upon the Success
 "of it depended the future Happiness of the "Nation: And as they could not doubt of the "Commons readiness to join in any proper
 "Measures towards it, so they thought their
 "Concurrence therein would highly contribute
 "towards the obtaining of a Gracious Answer
 "from His Majesty; and they could not but think
 "it reasonable, that the Advice of the whole Na"tion assembled in Parliament should be made "known to the King upon such an Occasion.

"It was urg'd farther, That their Lordships
 "having desired the Commons to Permit Mr. Se"cretary Vernon, a Member of their House, to "come to a Committee of Lords, in order to "be informed by him of some Matters rela"ting to the Treaty of Partition, they appre-
 "hended that the Commons might think it "extraordinary, and not suitable to the good
 "Correspondence which was highly necessary
 "between the Two Houses, not to acquaint
 "them with the things which had come to their "Knowledge, partly by the Information of "their own Members: And that having been
 "otherwise Informed of some Transactions re"lating to that Treaty, between the Earl of "Portland, and Mr. Secretary Vernon, by Letters,
 "of which they had not received a full Ac"count, they thought it might be very useful
 "to the Publick, to communicate that Address
 "to the Commons, who had a better Opportu"nity than their Lordships, of enquiring into
 "that Matter, which seem'd to be yet in the "Dark, and which their own Members might
 "help to explain to them.

But the major part of the Lords were against the Communicating of this Address to the Commons, and left them to make a like Separate
 Address, for a double Regret to His Majesty.

Honours.

The King had been pleas'd on December the 30th. to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon John Meres Esq; Eldest Son of Sir Thomas Meres;
 and on February the 2d. to confer the Dignity of a Baronet of this Kingdom upon Nicholas Vannacker of London, Esq; And before the Sitting of the Parliament, His Majesty had writ this Letter of Congratulation to the Elector of Branden-

burgh, upon his taking the Title and Prerogatives of King of Prussia.

1700.

"William the Third, by the Grace of God, Letter to
 "King of Great Britain, France and Ireland, De- the King
 "fender of the Faith, &c. To the most Illu- of Prussia.
 "strious and most Potent Lord, the Lord Fre"derick by the like Grace of God, King in
 "Prussia, Margrave of Brandenburg, Arch-
 "Chamberlain of the Holy Empire, and Elector
 "of Magdenburgh, &c. Our Loving Brother,
 "Kinsman, and Faithful Ally and Friend, all
 "Health and Happiness.

"So soon as we understood by your Majesty's
 "Letter of the 18th. Instant, Dated at *Coningf-
 "burgh*, that you had taken to your self the "Royal Name, Title and Dignity, which your "Predecessors have Enjoyed, in the Dutchy of "Prussia for an incredible many Years, and
 "which we have thought you worthy to bear
 "long ago; because you are fully endowed
 "with extraordinary Royal Vertues and Mag-
 "nificence: Therefore the Notification there-
 "of has been the more Joyful and Acceptable
 "to us, as well for all these Reasons, as because "of the Nearness of Blood; and the inward
 "Affection which we have, both to your Ma"jesty's High Person, and to your whole Illu"strious Family, can work nothing else in us,
 "than that whatever Successes and Pleasures
 "your Majesty may meet with, shall likewise
 "cause great Joy to us. This our Joy is the "greater, because your Majesty has been plea"sed to communicate this your Joy unto us,
 "even in the very Beginning of your Royal
 "Dignity; and as the same is most highly ac"ceptable to us, so we shall let no Opportunity
 "slip, of testifying by our Actions, how highly
 "we esteem you; and that so much the more,
 "because the present Juncture of Affairs re"quires a strict Confidence in the Minds and
 "Unity in Council, together with a mutual
 "good Understanding. We farther wish, that "as the Almighty God hath rais'd in your Ma"jesty's High Person, a New Star in the Nor"thern Parts of the Earth, he will also grace
 "you with a new Light; and that this our "Wish may be the more powerful in it self, we "recommend you ever to the Mercy of God.
 "Given at our Court of Kensington, the 13th.
 "of January, O. S. in the Year 1701. and Twelfth
 "of our Reign.

In the View of Religion this Year, we ought to condole the Unhappy Dispute that now be- State of gan, about the Form and Manner of holding a Religion.
 Convocation. For the occasion of this Contest, we must go back to the latter End of the Reign of King James II. when our Bishops and Cler- Disputes
 gy being sadly sensible, that the Papists hop'd in Convoc-to compass their Desigus, by dividing of Protestants, began to apply friendly to their Dissenting Brethren; and to invite them with more Begin-Tenderness into the Bosom of the Church, they ning of offered at some Healing Methods; and to testify this un-their Sincerity in it, they made a Publick Contriverty
 Declaration to that Prince, that They were willing to come to such a Temper. But as that Prince, considering his Desigus, had no Reason to desire it;
 so His Unhappy Reign gave no Leisure to effect
 it. When the Revolution had sav'd all our Rights and Liberties, every Body then remember'd how Archbishop Sancrest, and other Prelates, with the most Eminent Divines (especially of London) had been engag'd in some Amicable Desigus, which they hop'd the present
 Juncture might facilitate and bring to Perfection.
 To this Desirable End, Their Majesties in the First

1700. First Year of Their Reign did commissionate the most Learned of the Bishops, and others of the Chief Clergy, to prepare for a Convocation, such Improvements and Alterations in our Liturgy and Canons, as they should judge Expedient for the Edification and good Government of the Church, and for reconciling the more reasonable Dissenters. The Commissioners labour'd in this excellent Work with great Judgment, Temper and Application; and had prepared such a Modest Plan of Union, as very well deserved the Consideration of the Prelates and Clergy Synodically Assembled, before whom it was to be Laid, and Submitted to their Debates and Decisions, to be afterward confirm'd by King and Parliament. But in the mean time, an Opinion was industriously propagated among the Clergy, that the Design of Reconciling was only to Overthrow the Established Church. Hence, upon the Opening of that Convocation in 1689. the Majority of the Clergy were prejudic'd against any Accommodation to be had with the Dissenters: and chose a Prolocutor on purpose to oppose it; so as the Bishop of London, then President of the Convocation, could do nothing in that matter, but connive at their treating of him with some Indignity, which he did not deserve from them.

Convocation Pro-
rog'd.
The Majority of the Lower House having thus publicly declared their Aversion to the Scheme intended to be laid before them, without signifying their desire to enter upon any other Business; and rather expressing their Resolution to do nothing: His Majesty (accordingly to the practice of King Charles II.) order'd this Convocation to be regularly Prorogued. And in every other Session of Parliament, a Convocation was Summon'd and in being with it, which for want of proper Business was Continued and Prorogued by the President, and left always in a Capacity and Readiness to come together, upon any Exigence of Church or State that required their Counsel or Assistance; though no such Exigence did happen for several Years together. But what was thus design'd for the Ease of the Clergy, in not obliging them to a fruitless and expensive Attendance, when there was no occasion to justify their Absence from the Duty of their Cures; did by degrees give a Handle of Complaint, as if they were debar'd from the Rights and Liberties of Meeting and Acting in Convocation.

Murmurs and Dis-contents
of the Clergy.
These Murmurs of Restraint and Hardship, were privately fomented among those of the Clergy who were Non-Jurors; and among those who complied with the Government, without satisfying their own Expectations in it. These Discontents did unhappily move the Lower Clergy to raise new Disputes of Privilege and Independence on the Archbishop and Bishops in Convocation; and to labour to bring themselves to be such a Spiritual House of Commons, as, if their Pretensions could prevail, would very much endanger the Peace of Church and State. Under this disposition, the Convocation of the Prelates and Clergy of the Province of Canterbury, by the Archbishops Mandate in pursuance of the King's Writ, met in the Church of St. Paul, London, on Monday, February the 10th; where after the Litany in the Latin Tongue, and an Eloquent Sermon in the same Language, deliver'd by Dr. Haley Dean of Chichester, and the Hymn Sung, O pray for the Peace of Jerusalem, &c. The Archbishop followed by his Suffragans went out of the Choir, and proceeded to the Chapter House; where after Reading the Royal Writ, and the Certifi-catory of the Bishop of London for Executing

the Archiepiscopal Mandate; his Grace in a Latin Speech admonished the Lower Clergy then present, to retire and chuse a Prolocutor, and present him on Friday the 21st Instant. They Elec'd Dr. Hooper Dean of Canterbury, who on the said appointed Day was presented to the Archbishop and Bishops by Dr. Jans Dean of Gloucester, and was Approved and Confirmed in usual manner. In the next Session, February the 25th. when the Archbishop's Schedule of Prorogation was brought down to the Lower House, which was legally to determine every Session, in Contempt of it they continued Sitting, and proceeded in some Debates of no Moment; after which, the Prolocutor intimated an Adjournment by consent of the House to meet again in Henry VII. Chappel, instead of the Prorogation to meet in the Jerusalem Chamber as by the Schedule, which expressly included the whole Body of the Convocation, and left no pretence to separate Adjournments in either House. The Archbishop and a far greater part of his Suffragans look'd on this Proceeding of the Lower House as a Declaration of setting up for a Separate Interest and Power, that would break the Union of a Provincial Synod, and prevent the good Correspondence of both Houses, and so frustrate the common Methods of doing any Business. Hence in the Fourth Session, February the 28th. the Prolocutor and Clergy did not attend his Grace and their Lordships in the Synodical Place, the Jerusalem-Chamber; which was interpreted to be a Second Contempt of the Authority of the President, and the Obligation of his Instrument, the Schedule Proroguing and continuing the whole Body of Prelates and Clergy.

So the Archbishop sent for the Prolocutor, and with consent of his Brethren put these Two Questions to Him, 1. Whether the Lower House of Convocation did Sit, after they were Prorogued by his Grace on the 25th. Day of this Instant Month February? 2. Whether they did meet this Morning, without attending in this Place, to which they were Prorogued? Upon some Discourse concerning these Questions, the Prolocutor said, That the Lower House was preparing somewhat to lay before his Grace and the Upper House, concerning the Methods of Prorogation, and some other things of Form. His Grace Answer'd, That he and his Brethren were ready to receive whatsoever should be offer'd by them, and would consider of it, and do upon it what should appear to them to be Just and Right: but in the mean time he and his Brethren thought fit to continue the usual Practice.

Accordingly, that the Phrase of Proroguing in hunc locum might admit of no Dispute, it was in the Schedule of this Day expressly specified, in hunc locum, vulgo vocat. Jerusalem Chamber; to which the Lower House submitted with a Salvo Jure; and at the next Session, March the 6th. the Prolocutor, accompanied with several Members, paid Attendance upon his Grace and their Lordships in Jerusalem Chamber, according to the Form of the last Schedule; and being soon dismiss'd went to their own House; from whence in a little time they carried up this Report of a Committee appointed to search the Convocation-Books, for Directions concerning the Prorogations of this House, made on Thursday the Sixth day of March, 1700.

Adjournments by the Prolocutor Personally.

Sess. 3, 4, 6, 9, 11. A. D. 1586.
Sess. May 8. 1640. Lower House Book.
Sess. Nov. 28. 1640. ib.
Sess. March 21. 1677. and
Apr. 17. 1679. ib.

By Deputy.

Sess. 7. Nov. 23. 1586.
ib.
Sess. 10. ib. May 2. 1640. ib.

With Consent of the House.

Sess. May 2. 1640. ib. Sess. prox. ib.
Convocat. incept. Nov. 4. 1640.
ib.

Intimations.

Convocat. 1586, 1588. passim.
Minute Book 1661. passim.

To a different Day.

Sess. May 5. 1640. both Books Collated. Sess. 12. Dec. 9. 1640. both Books Collated ut supra.

In hunc Locum.

Sess. 2. Upper House Book Collated with Sess. 3. Lower House Book, Apr. 17. and 23. 1640.

St. Paul's and Lambeth.

Sess. 10. 1586. Sess. 8, 9. 1588.

House went up.

Sess. 11. 1586. Sess. 4. March 4. 1586.
Sess. 8. 1588.

House called up.

Sess. 1, 2, 3, 6, 9. in Febr. 1586.
Sess. 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 12. in 1588.
Sess. June 13. 1662.

The Archbishop and his Brethren thought it their Right to expect and to receive a direct Answer, in matters of Fact, to the Two Questions proposed to the Prolocutor; and wonder'd to find no notice taken of them. However, his Grace with consent of his Brethren, order'd this Paper to be Read, though it was intitled, A Report of the Committee, and did not run, as it should have done, in the Name of the House; and then refer'd the examination of it to a Committee of Bishops. In the mean while, his Grace deliver'd to the Prolocutor, the Form of an Humble Address to His Majesty, and propos'd to him the Consent of the Lower House, which was given without Amendment, only they propos'd that it might be Reformed Churches instead of Reformed Religion; and with the alteration of that Word, it was presented to His Majesty at Kensington on Monday March the 10th. by the Archbishop in the Name of himself, his Suffragans, and the Rest of the Clergy.

May it please your Majesty,

Address of Convocation.

" We your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Archbishops and Bishops, and the rest of the Clergy of the Province of Canterbury, being in Obedience to your Majesty's Summons Assembled in Convocation, do take this opportunity to present our humble Thanks to your Majesty, for the constant Protection and Favour which the Church of England, by Law Established, has received from you ever since your happy Accession to the Crown.

First, We find that the common Usage of this House has been to continue Sitting, till the Prolocutor did Prorogue or Adjourn, or intimate the Adjournment or Prorogation thereof, either Personally, or by some Member of this House, thereunto deputed by him: And in both these Cases (as we conceive) with the consent of this House. And we also find by some Instances, that this House did not always Prorogue and Adjourn to the same Day with the Upper House.

Secondly, We find thelike common Usage by this House to have been, that when in the Upper House the Convocation was Prorogued or Adjourned by the Words in hunc locum, this House did meet apart from the same, at the same particular Place where it Sat last. And when the Convocation was Prorogued or Adjourn'd to some other General Place, viz. St. Paul's and Lambeth, then also this House did Assemble in a separate Place distinctly from their Lordships. And farther we find no footsteps of Evidence to conclude, that it was ever the Practice of this House to attend their Lordships before this House did Meet and Sit pursuant to their former Adjournment. But when this House hath First Met and Sat, it hath been the constant Practice to attend their Lordships with Business of their own Motion, or when they were called up to their Lordships by a special Messenger.

" We do also thankfully Acknowledge your Majesty's Pious Concern for the Reformed Churches in General; beseeching Almighty God, that as He hath made your Majesty His chief Instrument in the Preservation of them hitherto, so he would still Bless your Majesty's Endeavours for their farther Security against the imminent Dangers wherewith they are threatened at this time.
" And we humbly crave leave to give your Majesty all possible Assurance of our steadfast Fidelity and Affection to your Sacred Person and Government, which we shall always testify, by maintaining the Supremacy as Established by the Laws of this Realm, and the Articles and Canons of our Church; by promoting True Religion and Loyalty among Your People committed to our Charge; and by our earnest Prayers to God for your Majesty's long Life and prosperous Reign over us.

To which his Majesty was pleased to return the following most Gracious Answer.

My Lords and the rest of the Clergy,

" I Am very well pleased with the Affectionate Sense you express of the constant Protection I have shewn to the Church of England as by Law Established. I assure you I shall always continue to deserve your Thanks in this particular.
" Your good Will to the Reform'd Churches Abroad, and Tenderness for such of them as may be in Danger, is also very agreeable to me.
" I likewise thank you for your Promises of maintaining my Supremacy according to Law, beyond which I will never extend it. I never doubted of the Fidelity and Loyalty of the Church of England to me.
" I make no question of your Zealous Endeavours to promote Religion, Virtue and Piety among the People committed to your Charge. And I shall be ever ready to contribute what is proper to be done on my part, to make your good Intentions in that kind more Successful, as being the great Concern of us all.

In the next Session, Thursday the 20th. of March, the Prolocutor brought up this Humble Representation of the Lower House of Convocation to the most Reverend his Grace the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Right Reverend the Bishops his Suffragans of the Upper House, praying their Lordships Concurrence with these Resolutions hereunto annexed (which have been unanimously agreed to by the Lower House) together with their Advice and Directions what effectual Courses may be taken to suppress the Book mentioned in the said Resolutions, and all other Pernicious Books already Written against the Truth of the Christian Religion; and to prevent the Publication of the like for the future.

The Report of the Committee appointed for the Examination of Books lately Published against the Truth of the Christian Religion as to part of the Matter to them refered, made on Thursday the 20th. Day of March, in the Year of our Lord Juxta &c. 1700. as follows, viz.

" Upon the perusal of the Book and Schedule hereunto annexed, laid before this Committee by Mr. Vice-Chancellor of Oxford, on Tuesday the 11th. Day of this Instant March, this Committee came to the following Resolutions (Nemine Contradicente) hereupon, viz.

Resolved,

Resolved First,

“That in the Judgment of this Committee, the said Book is a Book of Pernicious Principles, of dangerous Consequence to the Christian Religion, written on a Design (as we conceive) and tending to Subvert the Fundamental Articles of Christian Faith.

Resolved Secondly,

“That in the Judgment of this Committee, the Positions extracted out of the said Book, and therewith hereunto annex, are, together with divers others of the like Nature therein contained, Pernicious, Dangerous, and Scandalous Positions, and destructive of the Christian Faith.

Resolved Thirdly,

“That to Prevent the Growth of these and the like Pernicious Principles, it is the Opinion of this Committee, that some speedy Course ought to be taken for Suppressing this and all other Books of the like mischievous Nature and Tendency.

Resolved Fourthly,

“That in order thereunto, it is also the Opinion of this Committee, That an Humble Representation of the Premises be forthwith laid by this House before the Lords the Bishops of the Upper House, Praying their Lordships Concurrence with these Resolutions; together with their Advice and Directions, what effectual course may be taken, to Suppress these and all other Pernicious Books already Written against the Truth of the Christian Religion, and to prevent the Publication of the like for the future.

A Schedule of Positions extracted out of the Book herewith annex, Entitled Christianity not Mysterious, and bearing the Name of J. Toland; Printed at London, in Octavo, Anno Dom. 1696. In which the Author expressly says as follows.

Page 80. Sect. 14. he saith;

Pos. 1. “I conclude, That neither God himself, nor any of his Attributes, are Mysterious to us, for want of Adequate Idea.

Page 107. Sect. 34. he saith;

Pos. 2. “No doubt on't, as far as any Church allows of Mysteries, so far it is Anti-Christian, and may with a great deal of Justice, tho' little Honour, claim Kindred with the Scarlet Whore.

Page 134. Sect. 60. he saith;

Pos. 3. “To speak freely, Contradiction and Mystery are but Two Emphatical Ways of saying nothing.

Page 39. Sect. 36. he saith;

Pos. 4. “It evidently follows, (i. e. from his Observations) That Faith is so far from being an implicit Assent to any thing above Reason, that this Notion contradicts the Ends of Religion, the Nature of Man, and the Goodness and Wisdom of God.

Page. 162. Sect. 19.

Pos. 5. “Having drawn a Parallel of the Ancient Heathen, and, as he calls them, new-Coin'd Christian Mysteries, he saith —

“I could draw out this Parallel much larger, but here is enough to shew how Christianity became Mysterious, and how so Divine an Institution did, through the Craft and Ambition of Priests and Philosophers, derogate into meer Paganism.

In the following Session held Saturday March 22. the Archbishop produced a certain Printed Book Entitled, Essays upon the Balance of Power; and after the Reading of a certain Paragraph in the 40th. Page, the said President and his Suffragans agreed, that the following Paper should be fixt over several Doors in Westminster-Abby.

March, 22. 1700.

Whereas this day a Book entitled, Essays upon I. The Balance of Power. II. The Right of Making War, Peace and Alliances. III. Universal Monarchy, &c. was brought into the Jerusalem Chamber, where his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the rest of the Suffragan Bishops of his Province were Assembled in Convocation: In the 40th Page of which Book are these Words; Are not a great many of us able to point out to several Persons, whom nothing has recommended to Places of highest Trust, and often to Rich BENEFICES and DIGNITIES, but the open Enmity which they have almost from their Cradles, profess to the Divinity of Christ:

It is desired by the said Archbishop and Bishops, That the Author himself, whoever he be, or any one of the great many to whom he refers, would Point out to the particular Persons, whom he or they know to be liable to that Charge, that they may be Proceeded against in a Judicial Way; which will be esteemed a great Service to the Church: otherwise the above-mentioned Passage must be look'd upon as a PUBLICK SCANDAL.

Tho. Tillott:

We left the Two Houses Debating, or rather Declaiming on the Treaty of Partition. When the Motion of it began in the House of Peers, many of the Lords directly charg'd it upon the Earl of Portland. His Lordship excus'd himself, by saying, that the Duke of L---, the Earls of P---, I--- and M---, the Lords, S---, L--- and H---, and Mr. Vernon, had their share in that Negotiation, as well as himself. Whereupon the Peers whom his Lordship had named, did readily acknowledge that they had indeed seen the Rough Draught of the Treaty; but that the Earl of Portland had drawn it up himself in French; and as for their part, they had neither given nor refused their Consent to it; because the Treaty was never communicated to the Privy Council. Upon this occasion, some Peers had spoke very reflectingly of the King of France; the Earl of R. took them up, and said, That all Men ought to speak respectfully of Crown'd Heads; and that this Duty was more particularly incumbent on the Peers of a Kingdom, who derive all their Honour and Lustre from the Crown. This was back'd by another Earl, who said, That the King of France was not only to be Respected, but likewise to be Feared. To whom another Member of that Illustrious Assembly replied, that He hoped no Man in England needed to be Afraid of the French King; much less the Peer who Spoke last, who he doubted was too much a Friend to that Monarch to fear any thing from Him. And in the House of Commons they talked over this Matter with more extraordinary Warmth; and some Members gave themselves a Loose in reflecting upon His Majesty, beyond all the Bounds of Duty and Decency; intimating how the Combination for dividing another Man's Kingdom might be compared to an Action on the High-way; with some other Expressions too Gross to be Related.

In the mean time, Mr. Stanhope, His Majesty's Memorial of Mr. Stanhope at the Hague. Envoy at the Hague, delivered in a Memorial to the French Ambassador the Count d' Aux, importing, That the King his Master, and the States-General, having on the 25th of March, 1700. concluded a Treaty of Partition with the French, to prevent a New War, which they had 1700.

1701.

Proceedings in Parliament,

About the Treaty of Partition.

1701. all the Reason to fear, in case the King of Spain Died without Issue. And that among other things, the principal Aim of the Contractors was to preserve Peace, and particularly in those Parts: But the French King had found it convenient to accept the Will of the late King of Spain, and so to depart entirely from the Partition agreed upon: However, the King of England ought not to lose the Effect of that Treaty, which was the General Peace and Tranquility, and his own particular Security; for which He must demand an Equivalent to Himself and the States in these following Articles.

I. That for preserving the Peace and General Tranquility, wherein consisted a great part of the particular Security of the King of Great Britain's Kingdoms; the Emperor should be invited to enter into the Negotiation, and reasonable Content and Satisfaction given him upon his Pretensions to the Spanish Succession, which the Partition Treaty had Regulated; and that the Emperor should be admitted and included in the Treaty the King of England and States should make with the French King and Crown of Spain.

II. That the French King by a short and limited Time should withdraw all his Troops out of the Spanish Netherlands, and send no more thither for the future; but that the same should be Garison'd by the Troops of Walloons, or of the Netherlands Subject to Spain, except in the Places reserved for Security; but that it should be Lawful for England and Holland to send their Forces for the Defence of the Netherlands when lawfully requir'd.

III. That for the particular Security of England, Ostend and Newport, with all their Forts, Fortifications, &c. should be Guarded only by English Troops.

IV. That the King of England might Augment, Lessen or Change the said Garisons as he pleased, and send thither what Ammunition, Provision, Arms, and Materials for Fortifications he thought fit.

V. That His Majesty should have full Power over the said Places, yet without Prejudice to the Rights and Revenues of the Crown of Spain.

VI. That he should be free to Repair or Improve the Fortifications, as He judged most convenient.

VII. That no Places or Provinces belonging any where to Spain, should be any ways Alienated or given away to France, or Submitted to the Power of the French King.

VIII. That the King of England's Subjects should have the same Privileges and Immunities within the Spanish Dominions, as well in as out of Europe, as before the King of Spain's Death, except otherwise agreed on by a Treaty.

IX. That all the Treaties of Peace and Trade between England and Spain should be Renew'd.

X. That the English Subjects should be upon the same Foot, in respect to Privilege of Trade, as the French, in any of the Spanish Dominions.

XI. That France and Spain should solemnly engage to observe these Points.

XII. That the Treaty to be made upon this Occasion should have the Guarrantee of the Potentates desired by the Contractors.

1701. tresses of Venlo, Ruremond, Stevenwaerds, Luxemburg, Namur, Charleroy, Mons, Dendermond, Damme and St. Denys, with all their Appurtenances. But the French Ambassador was instructed by his Master, and supported by an Army, to give no other Answer, but a pretence of keeping to the Peace of Ryswick, though the French Seizure of the Crown of Spain had perfectly vacated the Ends of that Peace. Upon this dallying of the Count d'Armau, King William, with some Indignation at it, sent this Message to the House of Commons by Mr. Secretary Hedges.

William R.

His Majesty having received an Account from Mr. Stanhope, his Envoy Extraordinary at the Hague, that the French Ambassador there had declared to the Pensionary, that the King his Master had no other Answer to return to the Demands made by the States-General of the United Provinces, than that he is ready to Renew and Confirm the Treaty of Ryswick, it being all the Security the States are to expect; and that he has no Orders to give any Answer to His Majesty's said Envoy; but if His Majesty has any thing to Demand, it may be done by his Ambassador at Paris, or to the French Minister at London; and that he has no Commission to Treat with any but the States. And His Majesty having also received Two Resolutions of the States, and a Memorial from their Envoy here, relating to the Ships they are sending to join His Majesty's Fleet, and the Succours they desire may be hastened to them, by Virtue of the Treaty made the Third of March One Thousand Six Hundred Seventy Seven: His Majesty has thought fit to communicate the whole to this House, that they may be particularly inform'd of the present State of Affairs Abroad, where the Negotiations seem to be at an End, by the positive Answer the French Ambassador has given to the States: Which His Majesty recommends to the Serious Consideration of this House, as a Matter of the greatest Weight and Consequence; and desires that they will give His Majesty such Advice thereupon, as may be for our own Security, and that of the States-General, and the Peace of Europe. Kensington, the Thirty First Day of March, One Thousand Seven Hundred and One.

It was a very gracious Condescension in the King thus to admit the Commons into a Share in the Rights of Peace and War: But the Supplies on which this Affair must depend, made it Necessary to do more than had been generally practis'd by former Princes. When this Message was taken into the Consideration of the House, They Resolved, Nemine contradicente, April 2. "That the Humble Advice of this House be given to His Majesty, to desire, that His Majesty will be pleased to carry on the Negotiations in concert with the States-General, and take such Measures therein as may most conduce to their Security; And that His Majesty will pursue the Treaty made with the States-General, the Third of March 1677. And to Assure His Majesty, that this House will effectually Enable Him to Support the said Treaty of 1677." When this Resolution of Advice was presented to His Majesty, Mr. Secretary Hedges Reported His Majesty's Answer to this effect. That according to the Advice of the House of Commons, His Majesty has given Order to His Envoy Extraordinary at the Hague, to carry on the Negotiations in concert with the States-General, and to take such Measures therein,

Memorial from the Dutch

This Memorial was the same day seconded by another from the Dutch, much in the same Terms; only instead of Newport and Ostend, which the King of England demanded, the States required to have the Cities and For-

Resolutions of the Commons.

1701. as may most conduce to their Security. His Majesty thanks you for the Assurance you have given, that this House will effectually enable Him to Support the Treaty of 1677. and will pursue the same as you Advise. He does not doubt, but the Readiness you have shewn upon this Occasion, will very much contribute to the obtaining such a Security as is desired.

King William foresaw, that France would never yield up any part of the Spanish Monarchy by fair Means; but considering at the same time the unwillingness of the Commons to enter into a New War, which manifestly appear'd by their Slowness in making effectual Provision for the English Auxiliaries, which according to the Treaty of 1677. were to be sent to Holland; His Majesty thought it Prudence to keep the matter in Suspence by a faint Negotiation with the French, which both the Earl of Manchester at Paris, and Mr. Stanhope at the Hague managed with great caution and dexterity. And the better to cover the Delays of Treating, His Majesty acknowledged the Duke of Anjou for King of Spain in this Congratulatory Letter.

King William's Letter to the King of Spain.

Most Serene and Potent Prince, Our Dear Brother and Ally.

WE have received your Majesty's Letter of the Twenty Fourth of March last, which has been very acceptable to us upon many Accounts: First, Because they brought us notice of your safe Arrival into your Kingdom of Spain, and of your coming to the Possession of it, and taking upon your self the Government of the Dominions thereunto belonging; and in the Second place, because they have made it plain to us, that your Majesty hath a Mind to continue and keep Inviolably that most ancient Alliance which is between the Two Crowns: Indeed We having willingly embraced this Occasion, both to Congratulate your Majesty's happy Exaltation to the Spanish Throne, and to shew you how much Esteem we have for your Majesty, and how much we desire to make it appear to you, that our Inclination doth most readily prompt us to endeavour what we can, that the mutual Conjunction of Friendship and Alliance between us, may be confirm'd and knit faster, and the common Good of the Two Nations may daily more and more Flourish and be promoted; which we hope also will redound to the Publick Benefit and Good of all Europe: What remains, is to commend and commit your Majesty to the Care and Protection of Almighty God.

Given at our Palace at Kensington, the Seventeenth day of April, 1701. and in the Thirtieth Year of the Reign of your Majesty's most Loving Brother and Ally. Sign'd Gulielmus Rex.

Memorial of D' Avaux at the Hague.

Mr. Stanhope having received an Express of His Majesty's Recognition of the King of Spain, he Complimented the Spanish Ambassador thereupon, while Monsieur d' Avaux the French Minister at the Hague presented an amusing Memorial to the States; setting forth, "That having transmitted their Resolution of the First of April to his Master, wherein they desired the Negotiations might be resumed in Conjunction with the King of England's Envoy, for maintaining the Peace of Europe, and providing for their own particular Security; and that their Lordships having at the same time declared, they wished nothing so much, as that those Negotiations might be brought to a speedy and good Conclusion with his Master; to whom he had given an Account of the Answer he gave their Lordships concerning the Admittance of the English Envoy, and he had entirely approved the same, and was pleas'd with the Assurances given by their Lordships of the desire they had to preserve the Peace. And as his Majesty continued in the Resolution of maintaining the Publick Tranquility, he would consent to every Expedient that might conduce towards securing the common Good and Repose of Christendom; and that in order thereunto, his Majesty had no sooner been acquainted with their Lordships Design of renewing the Confernces, but he had commanded his Ambassador to resume the same, and continue at the Hague.

1701.

Notwithstanding this specious Declaration, the Design of the French Politicks was still to keep out the English Envoy, and to engage the States to Treat separately. The Dutch Deputies presently apprehended their Meaning by the Ambiguity of the Memorial, and therefore prest Count D' Avaux to explain himself; Letting him know at the same time, that the States would not enter into any Negotiation with France, but in Conjunction with England, their Interests in this Case being Inseparable: And they must insist upon a positive Answer to that Point; especially now that His Britannick Majesty's owning the King of Spain, had removed the principal Objection that was before insisted on, against Treating with the Ministers of England. The French Ambassador, to procrastinate his Answer, desired time to send for new Instructions to Court, which they appeared no way forward to send him; their design being to draw the Business into a Negative Delay; which gave them opportunity to Strengthen themselves daily on the Frontiers of Holland, and to secure the Milanese against the Efforts of a Veterane Imperial Army, headed by Prince Eugene of Savoy, a Brave and Experienced General, who was surmounting incredible Difficulties to penetrate into Italy.

Intrigues of the French.

The Commons of England not content with their Address to the King against the Treaty of Partition, proceeded to shew their Abhorrence of it, in a manner that seem'd to affect our Peace at Home, more than to prepare for a War Abroad. For on April the 1st. they Resolved, That William Earl of Portland by Negotiating and Concluding the Treaty of Partition, (which was destructive to the Trade of this Kingdom, and dangerous to the Peace of Europe) is Guilty, and shall be Impeach'd, of High Crimes and Misdemeanors. And they Ordered Sir John Lowson Gower to go up to the Lords and at their Bar to Impeach the said Earl, and to acquaint their Lordships, that they will in due time exhibit particular Articles against him. And then desired a Conference with the Lords upon Matters relating to the Treaty of Partition; at which Conference the Commons delivered this Paper to the Lords.

Impeaching of the Earl of Portland.

"It appearing by your Lordships Journal, that your Lordships have received Information of some Transactions between the Earl of Portland and Mr. Secretary Vernon, relating to the Partition of the Spanish Monarchy, the Commons having the said Matter under their Consideration, desire your Lordships will be pleas'd to communicate to the Commons what Informations your Lordships have had of any Transactions relating to any Negotiations or Treaties of Partition of the Spanish Monarchy, by Letters or otherwise. And
Vol. III. K k k k k the 1701. "the Commons are fully Assured, that your Lordships will readily concur in assisting them in this Enquiry, which they conceive absolutely Necessary for the Safety and Honour of this Kingdom, and the Preservation of the Peace of Europe.

The Lords ordered the Two Latin Commissions of Powers Granted to the Earls of Portland and Jersey, for Negotiating the said Treaties, One Dated the 1st. of July, 1699. the Other on the 2d. of January, 1700. as also a private Paper of the Lord Portland's, running thus.

"At the beginning of the Summer of the Year 99. when I was in Holland, at my Country-House, and when the King would have me be concerned in the Negotiation of this Treaty with the Emperor, the French King, and the States; Being very unwilling to meddle with Business again, from which I was Retired, before I would engage my self I advised with my Friends in Holland, and Writ into England to Mr. Secretary Vernon, as my particular Friend, Whether it was Advisable for me to engage in any Business again? To which Mr. Vernon Answered in Substance, That this would not Engage me but for a little while: That I being upon the Place, and generally acquainted with the Foreign Ministers, it would be easier for the King, and properer for me to be employed in it, than any Body else, that must be otherwise sent for on purpose.

Impeachment of the Lord Somers.

The next Person whom the Commons intended to call upon, was John Lord Somers, late Lord Chancellor of England, on whose Judgment and Fidelity the King had very much Relied. His Lordship being sensible of the Storm that was coming on, desired the Earl of Portland, with Leave of the House, to declare if he pleased, whether the Lord Somers's Name was mentioned in the Letter he received from Mr. Secretary Vernon? The Earl of Portland stood up and declared, "That if he had remembered any such thing in the Letter, and had not inserted it in the Paper which he had delivered to the House, he should have thought he had deceived the House." On April the 14th. the Lord Somers sent in an Information to the House of Commons, that Having heard the House was upon a Debate concerning him, he desired that he might be admitted in and Heard: This was granted, and a Chair was set by the Serjeant, a little within the Bar on the Left-Hand; then the Serjeant had directions to acquaint the Lord Somers, that he might come in; and the Door being Open'd, his Lordship came in, and Mr. Speaker acquainted his Lordship, that he might Repose himself in the Chair provided for him; and his Lordship was heard what he had to offer to the House, which he did with great Plainness and Presence of Mind: but when his Lordship withdrew, the House came to this Resolution, That John Lord Somers, by advising His Majesty in the Year 1698. to the Treaty for Partition of the Spanish Monarchy, whereby large Territories of the King of Spain's Dominions were to be delivered up to France, is Guilty of a High Crime and Misdemeanor. And they Ordered Mr. Harcourt to go up to the Lords, and at their Bar to Impeach him; and to acquaint their Lordships, that the House will in due time exhibit particular Articles against him. And immediately after, they Resolved, that Edward Earl of Orford, and Charles Lord Hollisfax, be for the 1701. same Reasons Impeached of High Crimes and Misdemeanors. The Lord Somers had delivered into the House of Commons a Copy of the Letter which he had sent to His Majesty, in Answer to One from His Majesty upon occasion of that Treaty; Both which are fit to be inserted.

At Loo, $\frac{15}{25}$. of August, 1698.

"I Imparted to you before I left England, King William's Letter to the Lord Somers, that in France there was express'd to my Lord Portland some Inclination to come to an Agreement with us, concerning the Succession of the King of Spain; since which, Count Tallard has mentioned it to me, and has made Propositions, the Particulars of which my Lord Portland will Write to Vernon, to whom I have given Orders not to Communicate them to any other besides your Self, and to leave to your Judgment to whom else you would think proper to Impart them; to the end that I might know your Opinion upon so Important an Affair, and which requires the greatest Secrefy. If it be fit this Negotiation should be carried on, there is no time to be lost, and you will send me the full Powers under the Great Seal, with the Names in Blank to Treat with Count Tallard. I believe that this may be done Secretly, that none but you and Vernon, and those to whom you shall have Communicated it, may have knowledge of it; so that the Clerks who are to Write the Warrant and the full Powers, may not know what it is. According to all Intelligence the King of Spain cannot outlive the Month of October, and the least Accident may carry him off every Day. I received Yesterday your Letter of the 9th. Since my Lord Wharton can't at this Time leave England, I must think of some other to send Ambassador into Spain; if you can think of any one proper, let me know it, and be always assur'd of my Friendship.

William R.

The Lord Somers's Answer.

Tunbridge-Wells, 28
Aug. 1698. O. S.

S I R,

"Having your Majesty's Permission to try if the Waters would contribute to the Re-establishment of my Health, I was just got to this Place when I had the Honour of your Commands; I thought the best way of executing them would be to communicate to my Lord Orford, Mr. Mountague, and the Duke of Shrewsbury (who before I left London, had agreed upon a Meeting about that Time) the Subject of my Lord Portland's Letter; at the same time letting them know how strictly your Majesty required that it should remain an absolute Secret.

"Since that time, Mr. Mountague, and Mr. Secretary are come down hither; and upon the whole Discourse Three Things have principally occurred, to be humbly suggested to your Majesty.

"First, That the Entertaining a Propofal of this Nature, seems to be attended with very many Ill Consequences, if the French did not act a sincere Part; but we were soon at ease, as to any apprehension of this sort, being fully assured your Majesty would not act but with the utmost Nicety, in an Affair wherein the Glory and Safety of Europe were so highly concerned.

Lord Somers's Answer to the King.

"The

1701. "The Second Thing considered, was the very ill Prospect of what was like to happen upon the Death of the King of Spain, in case nothing was done previously towards the providing against that Accident, which seem'd probably to be very near: The King of France having so great a Force in such a Readiness, that he was in a condition to take Possession of Spain, before any other Prince could be able to make a Stand. Your Majesty is the best Judge whether this be the Case, who are so perfectly inform'd of the Circumstances of Parts abroad.

"But so far as relates to England, it would be want of Duty not to give your Majesty this clear Account, that there is a Deadness and want of Spirit in the Nation, universally so, as not at all to be dispos'd to the thought of entering into a new War; and that they seem to be tired out with Taxes to a Degree beyond what was discern'd, till it appear'd upon the Occasion of the late Elections. This is the Truth of the Fact, upon which your Majesty will determine what Resolutions are proper to be taken.

"That which remain'd, was the Consideration what would be the Condition of Europe, if the Proposal took Place: Of this we thought our selves little capable of judging, but it seem'd that if Sicily was in the French Hands they will be entirely Masters of the Levant Trade; that if they were possess'd of Finl, and those other Sea-Ports on that side, whereby Milan would be entirely shut out from Relief by Sea, or any other Commerce, that Dutchy would be of little signification in the Hands of any Prince; and that if the King of France had Possession of that Part of Guipuscoa, which is mentioned in the Proposal, besides the Ports he would have in the Ocean, it does seem he would have as easie a way of Invading Spain on that side, as he now has on the side of Catalenia.

"But it is not to be hop'd that France will quit its Pretences to so great a Succession, without considerable Advantages; and we are all assur'd, your Majesty will reduce the Terms as low as can be done, and make them, as far as is possible in the present Circumstances of Things, such as may be some Foundation for the future Quiet of Christendom; which all your Subjects cannot but be convinc'd is your true Aim. If it could be brought to pass that England might be some way a Gainer by this Transaction, whether it was by the Elector of Bavaria (who is the Gainer by your Majesty's Interposition in this Treaty) his coming to an Agreement to let us into some Trade to the Spanish Plantations, or in any other manner, it would wonderfully endear your Majesty to your English Subjects.

"It does not appear, in case this Negotiation should proceed, what is to be done on your part, in order to make it take place: Whether any more be required than the English and Dutch should sit still, and France it self to see it Executed. If that be so, what Security ought to be expected, that if by our being Neuters the French be Successful, they will confine themselves to the Terms of the Treaty, and not attempt to make further Advantages of their Success?

"I humbly beg your Majesty's Pardon that these Thoughts are so ill put together: These Waters are known to discompose and disturb the Head, so as almost totally to disable one from Writing: I should be extremely troubled if my absence from London has de-1701. layed the dispatch of the Commission ore Day. You will be pleas'd to observe, that Two Persons (as the Commission is Drawn) must be Named in it, but the Powers may be executed by either of them. I suppose your Majesty will not think it proper to Name Commissioners that are not English, or Naturalized, in an Affair of this Nature.

"I pray God give your Majesty Honour and Success in all your Undertakings. I am with the utmost Duty and Respect, Sir, Your Majesty's most Dutiful and most Obedient Subject and Servant.

P. S. The Commission is Wrote by Mr. Secretary; and I have had it Sealed in such a manner, that no Creature has the least knowledge of the thing, besides the Persons nam'd.

The Commons in pursuance of Resolutions taken the 15th of April, did on the 23d present this Address to the King.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

"We your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Asssembled, do humbly crave leave to represent to your Majesty the great satisfaction we have from our late Enquiry concerning the Treaty of Partition, made in the Year 1698. (on which the Treaty in 1699 was founded) to see your Majesty's great Care of your People and this Nation, in not entering into that Negotiation without the Advice of your English Counsellors; and finding that John Lord Somers, on whose Judgment your Majesty did chiefly rely in that so important Affair, did in concert with Edward Earl of Orford, and Charles Lord Halifax, advise your Majesty to enter into that Treaty of so dangerous Consequence to the Trade and Welfare of this Nation; and who, to avoid the Censure which might justly be apprehended to fall on those who Advised the same, endeavour'd to insinuate, that your Majesty without the Advice of your Council entered into that Treaty, and under your Sacred Name to seek protection for what themselves had so Advised: Of which Treatment of your Majesty we cannot but have a just Resentment: And that they may be no longer able to Deceive your Majesty and Abuse your People; we do humbly beseech your Majesty, that you will be pleas'd to Remove John Lord Somers, Edward Earl of Orford, and Charles Lord Halifax, from your Council and Presence for ever; as also William Earl of Portland, who Transacted these Treaties, so unjust in their own Nature, and so fatal in their Consequences to this Nation, and the Peace of Europe. And we humbly crave Leave upon this Occasion to repeat our Assurances to your Majesty, That we will always stand by and Support your Majesty to the utmost of our Power, against all your Enemies both at Home and Abroad.

Address of the Commons to the King.

His Majesty could not but be very uneasy at this severe dealing with His Counsels and His Ministers; when he knew the Error, if any, was a mistake of Judgment only, and that rather of his own, than of any Employed by him. However he kept his Temper, and gave this Gracious Answer.

The King displeas'd yet gives a

"I am willing to take all occasions of thanking you very heartily for the Assurances you have frequently given Me, and now repeat of Standing by and Supporting Me against Vol. III. k k k k k 2 "all Gracious Answer.

1701. "all our Enemies both at Home and Abroad; towards which, nothing in My Opinion can contribute so much as a good Correspondence between Me and My People. And therefore you may depend upon it, that I will employ none in my Service, but such as shall be thought most likely to improve that mutual Trust and Confidence between Us, which is so Necessary in this Conjunction, both for our own Security, and the Defence and Preservation of our Allies.

Address of the Lords against these Proceedings.

The House of Lords was alarm'd at the Address of the Commons, and did apprehend it to be an Ill Precedent for Persons to be Censur'd, before they were Tried. And therefore they interpos'd with this Counter-Address to His Majesty.

"We Your Majesty's most Loyal and Dutiful Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament Assembled, beg Leave to Represent to Your Majesty, That the House of Commons have severally Impeach'd at the Bar of our House, William Earl of Portland, John Lord Somers, Edward Earl of Orford, and Charles Lord Halifax, of High Crimes and Misdemeanors. And they having acquainted Us, that they will in due time exhibit particular Articles against the said Lords, and make good the same; We do most humbly beseech Your Majesty, that Your Majesty will be pleas'd not to pass any Censure upon them, until they are Tried upon the said Impeachments, and Judgment be given according to the Usage of Parliament, and the Laws of the Land.

The Dutch prepare for War.

In the mean time, two or three fruitless Conferences pass'd at the Hague; wherein the French Minister was still attempting to draw in the States to treat Alone, without the Concurrence of the English; which they would by no means consent to. His Majesty in mutual Kindness, did all that lay in His Power to assist them; for which End He had sent the three Scotch Regiments retained in His own Pay in that Kingdom, over into Holland. When the States had procur'd all possible Supplies and Reinforcements by their Money and Interest from Princes Abroad, and had exerted their Powers to the utmost at Home, they wrote a Letter to His Majesty, to inform Him how Matters stood with them, and to desire the Troops to be sent over to their Assistance without delay, as stipulated by the Treaty of 1677. Upon which, His Majesty on May the 8th. sent this Message to the House of Commons by Mr. Secretary Hedges.

William R.

The King's Message to the Commons.

"His Majesty having lately received an Account from Mr. Stanhope, of the present Posture of Affairs in Holland, and likewise a Letter from the States-General, which is of the greatest Importance: And His Majesty, who has so perfect a knowledge of their Country, being entirely convinced of the Hardships of their present Condition, and the great Pressures they now lie under, which are particularly expressed in the abovementioned Letter, has thought it absolutely necessary to communicate the same to this House; that the Expectations the States have of present Assistance from His Majesty, may more fully appear. And His Majesty does not doubt, but this House will be so justly sensible of those immediate Dangers to which they stand expos'd, as to take the same into their most serious and effectual Consideration; it being most evident, that the Safety of England, as well as the very Being of Holland, does very much depend upon your Resolutions in this Matter."

This Message was the next Day taken into the Consideration of the Commons; and they unanimously Resolv'd, That this House will effectually Assist His Majesty to Support His Allies, in maintaining the Liberty of Europe; and will immediately provide Succours for the States-General, according to the Treaty of the 3^d. of March, 1677. This Resolution was presented to His Majesty by the whole House on Saturday, May the 10th. and His Majesty express'd his Satisfaction in these Words:

Gentlemen,

"I return you My hearty Thanks for the ready Assurances you give Me of Providing immediate Succours for the States-General, and for the Zeal you express for the Common Cause: I know nothing that can be more effectual for its Support, both at Home and Abroad, than the unanimous Concurrence which you have shew'd upon this Occasion. And it will be a particular Satisfaction to Me in my Time, to revive the Glory which the English Nation has formerly had, of Maintaining the Liberty and Balance of Europe."

Satisfaction of the King.

The King had likewise communicated the Letter from the States, to the House of Lords, who on that Occasion presented this Address on May the 14th.

"We Your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament Assembled, return Your Majesty our most humble Thanks, for communicating to Us the Letter from the States-General to Your Majesty. It gives us an opportunity (with great Satisfaction) to repeat to Your Majesty the Assurances of our Duty, and Zeal for Your Service. And we take this Occasion further to assure Your Majesty, we are very sensible of the great and imminent Danger to which the States-General are at present expos'd. And we do perfectly agree with them, in believing, That their Safety and ours are so inseparably united, that whatsoever is Ruin to the one, must be Fatal to the other.

Address of the Lords.

"And we humbly desire Your Majesty will be pleas'd, not only to make good all the Articles of any former Treaty to the States-General, but that You will enter into a strict League, Offensive and Defensive, with them, for our Common Preservation: And that you will invite into it all Princes and States, who are concern'd in the present visible Danger, arising from the Union of France and Spain."

"And we further desire Your Majesty, That You will be pleas'd to enter into such Alliances with the Emperor, as Your Majesty shall think fit, pursuant to the Ends of the Treaty of 1689. Towards all which, we assure Your Majesty of our hearty and sincere Assistance: not doubting, but whenever Your Majesty shall be oblig'd to engage for the Defence of Your Allies, and the securing the Liberty and Quiet of Europe, Almighty God will protect Your Sacred Person in so Righteous a Cause. And that the Unanimity, Wealth, and Courage of Your Subjects will carry Your Majesty with Honour and Success thro' all the Difficulties of a Just War.

"And in the last Place, with great Grief, we take Leave humbly to represent to Your Majesty, That the Dangers to which Your Kingdoms and Your Allies have been expos'd, are chiefly owing to the Fatal Councils that prevented Your Majesty's sooner Meeting Your People in Parliament.

To which His Majesty was pleas'd to return His Gracious Answer in the ensuing Terms.

My

1701.
The King's Answer.

My LORDS,
I thank you for the Expressions you make of your Duty, and Zeal to My Service, and the Concern you shew for the Imminent Danger to which the States-General are at present exposed. I shall take into Consideration your Desires to Me of entering into New Measures with them, and other Princes and States for Our Common Preservation: And you may be sure it shall be always my Care to make such Alliances with Our Neighbours, as may tend to Our own, and their greater Security; which will be the most effectual Means to raise the Honour of the English Nation in Our Days, to the Reputation it hath maintain'd in any former Times.

The Nation by this time began to be in a high Ferment, and the People generally dislik'd the Proceedings of the Commons. A bold Testimony of it was given in the County of Kent, where a Petition was drawn up in this Form.

Kentish Petition.

The Humble Petition of the Gentlemen, Justices of the Peace, Grand Jury, and other Freeholders, at the General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, holden at Maidstone, the 29th of April, in the Thirteenth Year of the Reign of Our Sovereign Lord William III. over England, &c.

"We the Gentlemen, Justices of the Peace, Grand Jury, and other Freeholders, at the General Quarter Sessions at Maidstone in Kent, deeply concern'd at the dangerous Estate of this Kingdom, and of all Europe; and considering that the Fate of us and our Posterity depends upon the Wisdom of our Representatives in Parliament, think our selves bound in Duty humbly to lay before this Honourable House the Consequence in this Conjuncture, of your speedy Resolution, and most sincere Endeavour to answer the great Trust repos'd in you by your Country.

"And in regard, that from the Experience of all Ages it is manifest, no Nation can be great or happy without Union; We hope, that no Pretence whatsoever shall be able to create a Misunderstanding among our selves, or the least distrust of his most Sacred Majesty; whose great Actions for this Nation are writ in the Hearts of his Subjects, and can never without the blackest Ingratitude be forgot.

"We most humbly Implore this Honourable House to have regard to the Voice of the People, that our Religion and Safety may be effectually provided for; that your Loyal Addresses may be turned into Bills of Supply; and that his most Sacred Majesty (whose Propitious and Unblemish'd Reign over us we pray God long to continue) may be enabled powerfully to assist his Allies before it is too late.

Signed by the Deputy Lieutenants there present, above 20 Justices of the Peace, all the Grand-Jury, and other Freeholders, then there.

And your Petitioners shall ever pray, &c.

The Petitioners committed.

This Petition was boldly delivered to the House on May 8th, and Mr. William Colepeper, Mr. Thomas Colepeper, Mr. David Polebill, Mr. Justinian Champncy, and Mr. William Hamilton, being called in, own'd the Petition at the Bar, and their Hands to the same. Then they withdrew, and the Petition being Read, the House Resolved, That the said Petition was Scandalous, Insolent and Seditious, tending to destroy the Constitution of Parliaments, and to Subvert the Established Government of these Realms. And then Ordered, "That all these Gentlemen should be taken into Custody, as Guilty of promoting the said Petition."

1701.

And on May 14. the House being Informed, that Mr. Thomas Colepeper had made his Escape; and that the Rest of the Persons committed did behave themselves disorderly; the Serjeant was called in, who acquainted the House, That the said Mr. Colepeper had upon Saturday last made his Escape, and that some of the others had threaten'd, and he was apprehensive of Force to rescue them; and prayed the direction of the House concerning them: Whereupon the House order'd them to be delivered Prisoners to the Gatehouse; and agreed to Address his Majesty to issue his Proclamation for apprehending Mr. Colepeper; and for putting out of the Commissions of Peace and Lieutenancy such of the others as were in any of the said Commissions. But Mr. Colepeper made a voluntary Surrender of himself, and was confin'd with his Neighbours.

This Imprisonment of the Kentish Petitioners did but inflame those People who were before warm'd against the Proceedings of the Commons. And it gave occasion to a Libel, Entituled, A Memorial from the Gentlemen, Freeholders, and Inhabitants of the Counties of — in Behalf of themselves and many Thousands of the good People of England.

This was sent to the Speaker in a very Insolent Letter, charging and commanding him in the Name of Two hundred thousand English Men to deliver it to the House of Commons. It began with a Preamble falling into this Maxim, Whatever Power is above Law, is Burdensome and Tyrannical, and may be reduc'd by Extrajudicial Methods. Then it charg'd the House with illegal and unwarrantable Practices in XV Particulars; of which the Three first were as followeth: I. To raise Funds for Money, and declare by borrowing Clauses, that whosoever advances Money on those Funds, shall be reimburs'd out of the next Aids, if the Funds fall short; and then give subsequent Funds, without transferring the Deficiency of the former, is a horrible Cheat on the Subject who lent the Money, a Breach of Publick Faith, and destructive to the Honour and Credit of Parliaments. II. To Imprison Men who are not your own Members, by no Proceedings but a Vote of your own House, and to continue them in Custody sine die, is Illegal, a notorious Breach of the Liberty of the People; setting up a Dispensing Power in the House of Commons, which your Fathers never pretended to; bidding Defiance to the Habeas Corpus Act, which is the Bulwark of Personal Liberty; destructive of the Laws, and betraying the Trust repos'd in you. The King being at the same time oblig'd to ask you Leave to continue in Custody the horrid Assassins of his Person. III. Committing to Custody those Gentlemen, who at the Command of the People (whose Servants you are) came in a Peaceable way to put you in mind of your Duty, is Illegal and Injurious; destructive of the Subjects Liberty of Petitioning for Redress of Grievances, which has by all Parliaments before you, been acknowledged to be their undoubted Right. After the enumerating 12 other Particulars, the Memorial proceeds to a Claim of Right, under Seven Heads; of which the Three former run thus: We do hereby Claim and Declare, I. That it is the undoubted Right of the People of England, in case their Representatives in Parliament do not proceed according to their Duty and the People's Interest, to inform them of their Dislike, disown their Actions, and to direct them to such things as they think fit, either by Petition, Address, Proposal, Memorial, or any other peaceable Way. II. That the House of Commons separately, and otherwise than by Bill legally pass'd into an Act, have no legal Power to suspend or dispense with the Laws of the Land, any more than the King has by his Prerogative. III. That the House of Commons have no legal Power to imprison any Person, or commit them to Custody of Serjeants, or otherwise (their own Members excepted) but ought 1701. to Address the King to cause any Person on good Grounds to be Apprehended; which Person so apprehended, ought to have the Benefit of the Habeas Corpus Act, and be fairly brought to Trial by due course of Law. — After other Claims, it concludes, Thus, Gentlemen, you have your Duty laid before you, which 'tis hop'd you will think of: But if you continue to neglect it, you may expect to be treated according to the Resentments of an Injur'd Nation; for Englishmen are no more to be Slaves to Parliaments, than to Kings. Our Name is Legion, and We are Many.

A Number of prudent sober Men, who did not approve of the wording or way of sending this Memorial, were apt to think the Subject Matter of it for the most part True and Reasonable: and the very Court of Aldermen and Common-Council of the City of London were very near to the coming in to some publick Declaration of the same effect, though more Modestly to be Express'd. The Commons were extremly Incens'd at the Legion Paper, but would not descend to a particular Censure of it. It was thought sufficient, that a Complaint was made to the House, of Endeavours to raise Tumults and Seditious, in order to disturb the Publick Affairs; and a Committee was appointed to draw up an Address to be presented to His Majesty, humbly to lay before Him the Endeavours of several ill-disposed Persons, to raise Tumults and Seditious in the Kingdom; and humbly to beseech His Majesty, that He will provide for the Publick Peace and Security.

Difference between the two Houses upon the matter of Impeachment.

To return to the unhappy Difference between the Two Houses, in the Case of the Impeach'd Lords; the House of Peers seem'd to think that their Members had been Impeached by the Commons without a serious intention to prosecute the Charge against them. And therefore on May the 5th. their Lordships sent this quickning Message to the Commons, by Sir Robert Legard, and Sir Richard Holford.

Mr. Speaker,

The Lords have commanded us to acquaint this House, that they having on the First Day of April last, sent up to their Lordships an Impeachment against William Earl of Portland, of high Crimes and Misdemeanors; And having also on the Fifteenth Day of the same Month severally Impeached John Lord Somers, Edward Earl of Orford, and Charles Lord Halifax, of high Crimes and Misdemeanors: Their Lordships think themselves obliged to put this House in mind, that as yet no particular Articles have been exhibited against the said Lords; which, after Impeachments have been so long depending, is due in Justice to the Persons concerned, and agreeable to the Methods of Parliament in such Cases.

The Commons, ashamed to be upbraided with Delay in a Matter wherein they had appeared so forward, sent Answer, that the Articles against the Lords Impeached were preparing, and in a short time should be sent up to the House of Lords. So on May the 9th. to begin their own way, the Commons by Colonel Bierly sent up Articles against Edward Earl of Orford, in Maintenance of their Impeachment.

Articles of Impeachment against the Earl of Orford.

I That in a Long and Expensive War, the said Earl always preferring his private Interest to the good of the Publick, in violation of his Duty and Trust, had procured from His Majesty One or more Grant or Grants of several Manors, Messuages, &c. and also Exorbitant Sums of Money. — To which the Earl Answered, That he having for several Years render'd

1701. to His Majesty his utmost Service and Duty, as a good and Loyal Subject, His Majesty was graciously pleas'd upon several occasions to take notice of the same; and out of His wonted Bounty and his free Will, was pleas'd to give to the said Earl Two Grants, One a Reversionary Grant for Years, of some Houses; the other a Grant of the Remainder of a Gross Sum amounting to about 2000l. a Year for Five Years.

II. That in breach of the Trust reposed in him, whilst he was Commander in Chief of the Navy Royal of England, in or near the Streights of Gibraltar; He did receive great Sums of the Publick Money, which he converted to his own Private Use, and Unlawfully procured a Privy Seal to discharge him from Accounting to the Publick for the same. — To which he Answered, by denying the said Facts, and saying, That he did make up and upon Oath pass his Accounts for the Moneys impress'd to him, and hath his quietus est in due course of Law upon the same.

III. That he did receive from the King of Spain and others considerable Sums of Money, and great quantities of Wine, Oil, and other Provisions for the Fleet, for which he ought to have Accounted, but he converted the same to his own Use: And for securing himself from rendring any Account, he possess'd divers great Offices inconsistent, and designed as Checks one upon the other. — To which the Earl Answer'd, That whatever he received from the King of Spain, or any others for the Fleet, was duly deliver'd and distributed amongst the Officers and Seamen; and he denies that he did enjoy any Offices inconsistent, or which ought to be Checks one upon the other.

IV. That he hath clandestinely, contrary to the Law of Nations, Sold and Dispos'd of several Vessels, taken under pretence of Prize, without Condemnation or Judicial Proceedings, and converted the Money to his own use. — To which he Answered, by denying the Fact, and saying, That he did from time to time give Orders, that the Prizes taken should be carefully preserv'd without Imbezzelement, and duly proceeded against, and the Product answer'd as the Law directs.

V. That he presiding in the Commission for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of England, had discourag'd and reject'd the Request and Proposal of the Company Trading to the East-Indies, for Suppressing Piracies in the South-Seas; and had procur'd a Commission for one William Kidd, who had committed divers Piracies and Depredations on the High-Seas, being thereto encouraged through the hopes of being Protected by the High Station and Interest of the said Earl. — To which he Answered, That he did never discourage or reject the Company's Request, unless it were by telling them, that the Admiralty by Law could not grant the same: And as to the matter of Kidd, his Commission was according to Law, and his Expedition intended for the Publick Good and Service; and if he have committed any Piracies, is answerable for the same, he never being Ordered or Encourag'd by the said Earl so to do.

VI. That while the Kingdom was under an Apprehension of an immediate Invasion from France, he preferring his hopes of Gain to himself, to the safety of the Publick, did order Captain Steward, Commander of the Ship Dutchess, to deliver over and put on Board the said Kidd, a great number of Able Seamen, to the prejudice of the Publick Security, and to the endangering the said Ship the Dutchess, if it had been Attacked by the Enemy. — To which he Answered, 1701. Answered, That the Men taken from on Board the Dutchess, were but some of the very Persons that were just before taken from on Board of Captain Kidd, and returned by their own consent again, not being above Twenty in Number, and that, when all Fears of an Invasion were over and at an end.

VII. That during the War, he did by Misrepresentations, procure a Grant or Order for His Majesty's Ship the Dolphin, then Fitted out, Mann'd and Equipt for the Service of the Publick, to be employed in a Private Voyage and Undertaking, for the Advantage of himself and others concerned with him. — To which he Answered, That what was done therein, was done after the Peace concluded, and by His Majesty's Command, at the Instance and Request of other Persons, and not of the said Earl, but contrary to his Opinion.

VIII. That during the time of his Commanding the Navy Royal, he did through Neglect, and in Contempt of Orders, unnecessarily hazard and expose the Navy, and lose the opportunities of Taking or Destroying the French Ships, and suffer them to return safe into their own Harbours. — To which he Answered, That he is not Guilty of any Neglect or Omission of his Duty herein, nor did expect in this Particular to be charged therewith, considering his Faithful Services rendered against the French Fleet.

IX. That he did in Concert with other False and Evil Counsellors, Advise our Sovereign Lord the King, in the Year 1698. to enter into one Treaty for dividing the Monarchy and Dominions of Spain; in pursuance whereof in 1699. one other Treaty was entered into to the like purpose. Both which Treaties were prejudicial to the Interest of the Protestant Religion, &c. — To which he Answered, He does deny, that he did advise His Majesty to enter into the Treaty of Partition; but so far as he was any ways acquainted therewith, he Objected to, and gave his Opinion against the same.

X. That he was one of the Lords Justices, First Commissioner in the Admiralty, Commander in Chief of the Navy, one of His Majesty's Privy Council, and Treasurer of His Majesty's Navy, or in some or one of the Stations, during the time that all and every the Crimes before set forth were done and Committed. — To which he Answered, That His Majesty was pleased to intrust him in the several Offices and Stations, which he had discharged with Loyalty, Faithfulness, and Zeal to His Majesty and His People.

On May the 19th. the Commons by Mr. Harcourt sent up Articles of Impeachment against John Lord Somers.

Articles
against the Lord
Somers.

I. That well knowing the most apparent Evil Consequences, as well as the Injustice of the Partition of the Spanish Monarchy, he did advise His Majesty to enter into a Treaty for it; and did so far encourage and promote the same, that the said Treaty was concluded and ratified in 1698. under the Great Seal of England, then in Custody of the said Lord Somers. — To which his Lordship Answered, in a full and plain Account of all the Steps of that Treaty, referring himself to the Letters on that Subject between His Majesty and him (before-recited), wherein, as he conceived, he had fully and faithfully discharged his Trust, and the Duty incumbent on him.

II. That for the more effectual carrying on the said Treaty, Commissions were prepared, amended, enlarged or altered by the said Lord Somers, without any Lawful Warrant for his so doing; whereunto, without communicating the same to the Rest of the then Lords Justices of England, or advising with the Privy Council, did presume to affix the Great Seal of England, with a Blank for Commissioners Names to be afterwards inserted.

III. That having affix'd the Great Seal without Lawful Warrant, in hopes of concealing that Evil and most Dangerous Practice, after he had settled the said Commissions, he used his endeavour to procure a Warrant to be transmitted to Him for affixing the Great Seal, that it might not be known, but that he had it in due time. — To which Second and Third Articles he Answer'd, That having received his Majesty's express Commands to send to his Majesty full Powers under the Great Seal, for negotiating the said Treaty, with Blanks for his Majesty's Commissioners Names, he thought it sufficient Warrant for him so to do. And that he did afterwards desire His Majesty that a particular Warrant for Signing the said Commission might be Signed and Returned; not that he doubted His Majesty's said Letter to be a sufficient Warrant, but for that such Warrant would be more proper to be produced if occasion should require.

IV. That contrary to his Duty he affixed the Great Seal of England to the Ratification of the said Treaty in 1698. not having communicated the same to the rest of the then Lords Justices, or advised with the Privy Council, leaving one entire Blank Sheet, and many other Blanks in the said Ratification, with an Intent to be afterwards filled up by other Persons beyond the Seas. — To which he answered, That Mr. Secretary Vernon having prepared by His Majesty's Commands the Instruments for Ratification, with Blanks therein, he did affix the Great Seal, with he conceives and is advised he might lawfully do, not communicating the same, because he had his Majesty's Command that the said Treaty should be kept Secret.

V. That in the Year 1699. another Treaty of Partition was concluded and ratified under the Great Seal, then in the custody of the said Lord Somers; Dishonourable to His Majesty, highly Injurious to the Interest of the Protestant Religion, &c. — To which he Answered, That a Draught of the said Treaty being read over in the presence of divers of the Lords of the Privy Council, he the said Lord Somers as well as others then present, did make several Objections; but they were informed by His Majesty's Plenipotentiaries for Transacting this Treaty, who were also then present, that the said Treaty was so far perfected, that nothing could be altered therein; and His Majesty afterwards by Warrant so requiring, he did affix the Great Seal, being as he conceives obliged to do it.

VI. That whereas by the Laws and Usages of this Realm, all Commissions under the Great Seal, for the making any Treaty or Alliance, ought to be Inrolled and entred on Record in the Court of Chancery; He the said Lord Somers not minding the Duty of his Office, did not in any manner Inroll or enter on Record any of the said Commissions or Ratifications. — To which he Answered, He conceives it was not incumbent upon him as Lord Chancellor to see the Commissions or Ratifications Inrolled; but the Care of Inrolling the same, if necessary, doth belong to the Prothonotary of the Court of Chancery.

VII. That the said Lord Somers, contrary to his Oath as Lord Chancellor of England, did pass many great, unreasonable and exorbitant Grants, under the Great Seal, of divers Mannors, Lordships, &c. belonging to the Crown of England; and did advise, promote, and procure divers like Grants of the late Forfeited Estates in Ireland, in Contempt of the Advice of the Commons of England. — To which he Answer'd, 1701. swered, He doth acknowledge he did pass several Grants, &c. but the same were regularly passed through the proper Offices, and brought with sufficient Warrants for the Great Seal; and believes more considerable Grants have passed in the like number of Years in most of his Predecessors Times.

VIII. That he did not only receive and enjoy the Fees, Profits, and Perquisites belonging to the Great Seal, but had received an Annual Pension from the Crown, of 4000*l.* and had further begged and procured for his own Benefit many great, unreasonable and exorbitant Grants of Revenues belonging to the Crown of England. — To which he Answered, That the Annual Pension or Allowance of 4000*l.* had been allowed to several of his Predecessors; but denies he did ever Beg or use any Means to procure any Grant whatsoever for his own Benefit; but what His Majesty was pleased to give him, proceeded from His Majesty's own Motion, and of His meer Bounty, and as His Majesty was pleased to declare upon that Occasion, as an Evidence of the gracious Acceptation of the said Lord Somers's Zealous Endeavours for his Service.

IX. That in order to procure a Grant of the said Fee-Farm Rents, he did enter into several Treaties, and had many Communications with the Auditor of the Rates, and with the Clerk of the Trustees for Sale of the said Rents, and contracted and agreed with them, as a Reward for their Discovery, one full fourth Part of all such Rents so Discover'd.

X. That notwithstanding the said pretended Contracts, there was not any Sum of Money really Paid, but the Contracts and Payments were colourably and fraudulently contrived in deceit of his Majesty, and Elusion of the Acts of Parliament. — To which Ninth and Tenth Articles, he Answered, That after His Majesty had given directions to the Lords of the Treasury for granting Fee-Farm Rents to the Benefit of him and his Heirs; His Majesty's intended Bounty would have been lost, without Information could be gained of such particular Rents: And therefore Application was made to the said Auditor and Clerk, as the most likely to give Information therein; but they did refuse to give any account of such Rents, unless they might have near a Fourth Part for so doing; which the said Lord Somers did, as he conceives he Lawfully might, comply with. And there was not any Sum of Money Paid as the Consideration of the Grants of the said Rents, but the Contracts were made, and the Payment discharged, without any Deceit of His Majesty, or Elusion of the Acts of Parliament.

XI. That many Rents standing in Charge for Payment of Pensions, Stipends, Salaries, Annuities, Alms and Allowances for Schools, Churches, Bridges, &c. and many Quit-Rents of Mannors united and annexed to the Castle of Windsor for Support of the same, and Maintenance of the Officers, Servants and Attendants in the said Castle, were conveyed by the said Trustees, through the Direction and Power of the said Lord Somers, contrary to the true Intent and Meaning of the said Acts of Parliament, to the great Vexation and Oppression of many of His Majesty's good Subjects, and creating many new and unreasonable Charges on other Revenues of the Crown. — To which he Answered, That some things might be inserted by mistaken Informations, and not out of any Design; He denies that as to his Knowledge or Belief, any of the said Rents were ever united or annexed to the Castle of Windsor, for any purpose whatsoever; or that any Oppression or Vexation hath hapned; and little or no new Charge to the Crown.

1701. XII. That by the direction of the said Lord Somers, the Persons in whose Names the Purchases were made, did surrender several of the said Rents to them granted, amounting to the yearly Value of 347*l.* 11*s.* 5*d.* on suggestion of wrong Conveyance; and procured other Rents of the yearly Value of 391*l.* 3*d.* to be allowed by way of Reprize, as if the said Rents so surrendered had been really and bona fide Purchased. — To which he Answered, That the Trustees for Sale of the Fee-Farm Rents, by Warrant of the Commissioners of the Treasury, did Grant divers other Rents amounting to 391*l.* in Lieu and Reprize of the 347*l.* having appeared to be granted before, or not grantable by the said Trustees, or not leviable on Surrenders of such Rents; which he conceives might be and was Lawfully done.

XIII. That in the Year 1695. the said Lord Somers, being then Lord Keeper, procured a Commission to be granted to one William Kidd, a Person of Evil Fame and Reputation, and since that time convicted of Piracy; and in a Grant from His Majesty, of Ships, Vessels and Goods to be taken by the said William Kidd, unto Richard Earl of Bellamont, Edmund Harrison Merchant, Samuel Newton Gent. and others, the Name of the said Samuel Newton was used in Trust, and for the only Benefit and Advantage of the said Lord Somers. — To which he Answered, That the said William Kidd had from His Majesty a Commission for preventing the Piracy of Others, and to Apprehend certain Pirates, and bring them to a Legal Tryal; the granting of which Commission was then apprehended to be necessary for the preservation of Trade and Navigation. He does admit there was a Grant to the Earl of Bellamont, Edmond Harrison, and Samuel Newton, who was named by and in trust for the said Lord Somers, of Ships and Goods taken by the said William Kidd, with account to be duly made to the Use of His Majesty, of a clear Tenth Part, whereby the Publick might have received Benefit, had the said Kidd Faithfully discharged the Trust, which he failing to do, the Owners of the said Ship have lost all their Expences.

XIV. That as Lord Chancellor, he had in several Causes depending before him, by many extraordinary Methods, and unwarrantable Practices, for several Years, delayed Proceedings in the said Causes; and by colour of his Office, had made divers Arbitrary and Illegal Orders, and had of his own Authority reversed Judgments given in the Court of Exchequer, without calling the Barons before him: And had declared and affirmed in Publick Places of Judicature, that particular Subjects might have Rights and Interests, without any Remedy for recovery of the same, unless by Petition to the Person of the King only, or to that effect: Which Position was highly dangerous to the Legal Constitution of this Kingdom, and absolutely destructive to the Property of the Subject. — To which he Answered, That he did not delay any Proceedings longer, or otherwise, than as the Circumstances and Justice of each Cause required; nor did he ever make any Arbitrary or Illegal Order, or ever reverse any Judgment given in the Court of Exchequer, otherwise than as is warranted and allowed by the Law: Nor did ever deliver any Position whatsoever, dangerous to the Legal Constitution, or destructive to the Property of the Subjects.

A Copy of the Lord Somers's Answer was with great Dispatch delivered to the Commons on May the 24th. In the mean time, on the 21st. the Lords had sent down this Message.

1701.

Mr. Speaker,

The Lords command us to acquaint this House, That their Lordships having been desired by the Earl of Orford, that a Day may be appointed for his speedy Tryal, their Lordships finding no Issue joined by Replication of this House, think fit to give Notice thereof to this House.

They also command us to acquaint this House, That they having on the first of April last sent up an Impeachment to their Lordships against William Earl of Portland, for High Crimes and Misdemeanors; and having also, on the 15th. of the same Month Impeached Charles Lord Halifax, for High Crimes and Misdemeanors; and there being as yet no particular Articles exhibited against the said Lords; their Lordships think themselves obliged to put this House in mind thereof; which after Impeachments have so long depended is a hardship to the Persons concerned, and not agreeable to the usual Methods and Proceedings of Parliaments in such Cases.

The Commons prepared this Replication to my Lord of Orford's Answer.

The Commons have consider'd the Answer of Edward Earl of Orford, to the Articles of Impeachment exhibited against him by the Knights, Citizens and Burgesses assembled in Parliament, and do aver their Charge of high Crimes and Misdemeanors against him to be true, and that the said Earl is guilty in such manner as he stands accused and impeached; and that the Commons will be ready to prove their Charge against him, at such convenient time as shall be appointed for that Purpose.

And on the Thirty first they sent this Answer to the Lords.

In Answer to your Lordships Message of the 21st. instant, the Commons have prepared a Replication to the Earl of Orford's Answer to the Articles of Impeachment of High Crimes and Misdemeanors, exhibited against him; and at present defer bringing it up to your Lordships, because in the Tryal of the several Impeachments now depending, the Commons think it most proper from the Nature of the Evidence that will be given at the said Tryals, to begin with the Tryal of the Impeachment of John Lord Somers, of High Crimes and Misdemeanours.

And as to your Lordships other Message, the Commons take it to be without Precedent, and Unparliamentary: They, as Prosecutors, having a Liberty to exhibit their Articles of Impeachment in due time, of which they who are to prepare them, are the proper Judges; and therefore, for your Lordships to assert, that having not yet exhibited particular Articles against William Earl of Portland, and Charles Lord Halifax, is a hardship to them, and not agreeable to the usual Methods and Proceedings in Parliament in such Cases, does, as they conceive, tend to the Breach of that good Correspondence betwixt the Two Houses, which ought to be mutually preserved.

On the same day, 31. May, Sir John Hoskyns and Sir Robert Legard brought this Message to the Commons. Mr. Speaker, The Lords have commanded us to acquaint this House, that their Lordships have appointed Monday the 9th day of June next, for the Tryal of Edward Earl of Orford, upon the Articles brought up against him by this House, in Westminster-Hall, and that this House may reply, if they think fit.

They have also commanded us to acquaint this House, That this House having, on the first Day of April last, sent up to their Lordships an Impeachment against William Earl of Portland, for High Crimes and Misdemeanors; and having also, on the 15th. Day of the same Month, Impeached Charles Lord Halifax for High Crimes and Misdemeanors; and there being as yet no particular Articles exhibited against the said Lords, their Lordships think themselves obliged to put this House in mind thereof; which after Impeachments have so long depended, is a hardship to the Persons concerned, and not agreeable to the usual Methods of Parliament in such Cases.

The Commons on the Fifth of June, returned this Answer.

The Commons, on Consideration of your Lordships Message to them of the 31st of May, concerning the Earl of Orford, think it their undoubted Right, when several Persons stand Impeached before your Lordships, to bring to Tryal such of them in the first place, as the Commons apprehend from the Nature of the Evidence ought first to be proceeded against, to the Intent all such Offenders may in due time be brought to Justice; and that no Day ought to be appointed by your Lordships for the Tryal of any Impeachment by the Commons, without some previous signification to your Lordships from the Commons, of their being ready to proceed thereon.

The Commons could not receive this Message from your Lordships without the greatest surprize; your Lordships proceedings in this Case, being neither warranted by proceedings, nor (as the Commons conceive) consistent with the Methods of Justice, or with Reason: Wherefore the Commons cannot agree to the Day appointed by your Lordships for the Tryal of the Earl of Orford.

As to your Lordships Message at the same time, relating to the Earl of Portland, and Charles Lord Halifax, the Commons take the same to be without Precedent, and unparliamentary; and conceive your Lordships frequent Repetition thereof, in a short time after the Commons had transmitted to your Lordships their Articles against Two of the Impeached Lords, and were daily preparing their Articles against the others, manifestly tends to the delay of Justice, in obstructing the Tryals of the Impeach'd Lords, by introducing Disputes in breach of that good Correspondence between the Two Houses, which ought inviolably to be preserved.

In the mean time the Lords on the Fourth, accosted them with another Message to this purpose.

Mr. Speaker,

"The Lords do think fit, upon Occasion of the Message from this House of the 31st. of May, to acquaint this House, That having been desired by the Lord Somers, that a Day may be appointed for his speedy Tryal, and their Lordships finding no Issue joined by Replication of the House of Commons, judge it proper to give them notice thereof, that the Commons may reply if they think fit. And at the same time, their Lordships let the Commons know, that they will proceed to the Tryal of any of the Impeached Lords, whom the Commons shall be first ready to begin with, so as there may be no occasion taken from thence for any unreasonable Delay in the Prosecution of any of them: And further to acquaint them, having searched their own Journals, they do not find, that after a general Impeachment, there has ever been so long a delay of bringing up the particular Articles of Impeachment Sitting the Parliament: And therefore the Lords do think they had reason to assert, that it was a hardship to the Two Lords concerned (especially when their Lordships had put the House of Commons in mind of exhibiting such Articles) and not agreeable to the usual Proceedings in Parliament. And as the Lords do not controvert what Right the Commons may have, of Impeaching in general Terms if they please, so the Lords, in whom the Judicature does entirely reside, think themselves obliged to assert, that the Right of limiting a convenient Time for bringing the particular Charge before them, for the avoiding delay in Justice, is lodged in them.

Message from the Lords.

1701.
Answer of the Commons.

Replication of the Commons to the Earl of Orford.

Their Answer to the Lords.

Day appointed for Trial of the Earl of Orford.

1701. "The Lords hope, the Commons on their part will be as careful not to do any thing that may tend to the Interruption of the good Correspondence between the Two Houses, as the Lords shall ever be on their part; and the best way to preserve that, is, for neither of the Two Houses to exceed those Limits which the Law and Custom of Parliament have already established.

The Commons hereupon, June the Sixth, desir'd a Conference with the Lords upon the Subject-Matter of the said Message; at which Mr. Harcourt delivered himself in this Manner.

Confererence.

"The Commons have desir'd this Conference, upon your Lordships Message of the Fourth of June, in order to preserve a good Correspondence with your Lordships, which will always be the Endeavour of the Commons, and is at this time particularly necessary, in order to bring the Impeached Lords to a speedy Trial. And because the Messages which your Lordships have thought fit to send to the Commons, and the Answers thereunto, seem not to tend toward expediting the Trials, which the Commons so much desire, but may rather furnish Matter of Dispute between the Two Houses, the Commons therefore chuse to follow the Methods formerly used with good Success upon the like Occasion; and for the more speedy and easy Adjusting and Preventing any Differences which have already happened, or may arise, previous to or upon those Trials, the Commons do propose to your Lordships, That a Committee of both Houses be nominated, to consider of the most proper Ways and Methods of proceeding on Impeachments, according to the Usage of Parliaments in such Cases.

The Conference being ended, the Lords, on the Ninth, sent the following Message to the Commons.

Message from the Lords.

"In Answer to the Message of the House of Commons of the Fourth Instant, the Lords say by their Message sent on the Third, wherein they declare themselves ready to proceed to the Trial of any of the Impeached Lords, whom the Commons shall be first ready to begin with, they have given a full Proof of their Willingness to comply with the Commons in any thing which may appear reasonable, in order to the speedy determining of the Impeachments now depending; and therefore, as the Lords conceive the Commons had no Occasion to begin any Dispute on that Head, so their Lordships decline entering into a Controversie, which seems to them to be of no use at present.

"The Lords think themselves obliged to assert their undoubted Right to appoint a Day for the Trial of any Impeachment depending before them, if they see good Cause for it, without any previous Signification from the Commons of their being ready to proceed; which Right is warranted by many Precedents, as well as consonant to Justice and Reason. And their Lordships, according to the Example of their Ancestors, will always use that Right, with a Regard to the equal and impartial Administration of Justice, and with a due Care to prevent unreasonable Delays.

"This being the Case, the Lords cannot but wonder that the Commons, without any Foundation for it, should make use of Expressions, which, as their Lordships conceive, have never been used before by one House of Parliament to another, and which if the like were returned, must necessarily destroy all good Correspondence between the Two Houses.

"The last part of the Commons Message being in effect, a Repetition only of their former of the 21st of May, to which the Lords have already return'd a full Answer, their Lordships think it not requisite to say any more, than that they cannot apprehend with what Colour their calling upon the House of Commons to send up Articles against Two Lords, whom the Commons have so long Impeached in General Terms, can be said to tend to the Delay of Justice. And therefore, as the Lords think the Commons ought to have forborn that Reflection, so their Lordships, in saying no more upon the Occasion of this Message of the Commons, think they have given a convincing Proof of their Moderation, and of their sincere Desire of preserving a good Correspondence between the Two Houses; which is so necessary for the publick Security, as well as doing Right upon the Impeachments.

The Commons Answer'd them next Day to this Effect:

Answer of the Com-
mons.

"The Commons, in hopes of avoiding all Interruptions and Delays in proceeding against the Impeach'd Lords, and the many Inconveniencies which might arise thereby, having propos'd to your Lordships at a Conference, That a Committee of both Houses might be nominated, to consider of the most proper Ways and Methods of proceeding on Impeachments; think they might justly have expected your Lordships Compliance with their said Proposition, instead of your Lordships Answer to their Message of the Fourth Instant, which they Yesterday received. In which Answer of your Lordships, though many Matters of great Exception are contained, a suitable Reply whereunto would inevitably destroy all good Correspondence between the Two Houses; yet the Commons, from an earnest Desire to preserve the same, as well as to give the most convincing Proof of their Moderation, and to shew their Readiness to bring the Impeached Lords to speedy Justice, at present insist only on their Proposition, of Both Houses to settle and adjust the necessary Preliminaries to the Trials; particularly, Whether the Impeached Lords shall appear on their Trials at your Lordships Bar as Criminals? Whether, being under Accusations for the same Crimes, they are to sit as Judges on each others Trials for those Crimes, or can Vote in their own Cases, as we find by your Lordships Journal, since their being Impeached, they have been admitted to do? Which Matters, and some others, being necessary to be adjusted, the Commons cannot but insist on a Committee of Both Houses to be appointed for that Purpose. The departing from which, would be giving up the Rights of the Commons of England, known by unquestionable Precedents, and the Usage of Parliament, and making all Impeachments, (the greatest Bulwark of the Laws and Liberties of England) impracticable for the future."

The Lords hereupon enter'd into a Debate, Whether they should appoint a Committee, in pursuance of the Commons Desire; and having carried it in the Negative, yet desir'd a present Conference with them, which was managed by the Duke of Devonshire, who acquainted them:

Debate
the Lords.

"That the Lords have desir'd this Conference, upon Occasion of the last Conference, in order to preserve a good Correspondence with the House of Commons, which they shall always endeavour

Confererence with the Commons.

1701.

“As to the late Messages between the Two Houses, their Lordships are well assur'd, that on their part nothing has pass'd but what was agreeable to the Methods of Parliament, and proper to preserve that good Understanding between Both Houses, which is necessary for the carrying on of the Publick Business.

“As to the Proposal of the Commons, That a Committee of Both Houses should be appointed, to consider of the Ways and Methods of Proceedings on Impeachments, their Lordships cannot agree to it.

Reasons for not appointing a Committee.

“I. Because they do not find that ever such a Committee was appointed on Occasion of Impeachments for Misdemeanors; and their Lordships think themselves obliged to be extremely Cautious in admitting any thing new in Matters relating to Judicature.

“II. That although a Committee of this nature was agreed to upon the Impeachments of the Earl of Danby, and the Five Popish Lords, for High Treason, yet it was upon Occasion of several Considerable Questions and Difficulties which did then arise. And their Lordships do not find that the success in that Instance was such, as should encourage the pursuing the same Methods again, though in the like Case: The Lords observing, that after much time spent at that Committee, the Disputes were so far from being there adjust'd, that they occasion'd an abrupt Conclusion of a Session of Parliament.

“III. Their Lordships are of Opinion, that the Methods of Proceedings on Impeachments for Misdemeanors, are so well settled by the usage of Parliaments, that they do not foresee any Difficulties likely to happen; at least none have been yet started to them: And all the Preliminaries in the Case of Stephen Goudett, and others, (which was the last Instance of Impeachment for Misdemeanors) were easily settled and agreed to, without any such Committee.

“IV. The Lords cannot but observe, that this Proposal of the Commons comes so very late, that their Lordships can expect no other Fruit of such a Committee, but the preventing the Tryals during this Session.

“The Lords assure the Commons, That in case any Difficulties shall arise in the progress of these Tryals, (which their Lordships do not foresee) they will be ready to comply with the Commons in removing them, as far as Justice, and the usage of Parliament will admit.

The Commons on the 11th. desired a free Conference on the Subject-Matter of the last; and at the same time drew up an Answer to their Lordships other Message, on Monday, about their appointing Friday 13th. for the Tryal of the Lord Somers; which was to this Effect.

Free Conference.

“The Commons, on Monday last, (which was the 9th) received a Message from your Lordships, That your Lordships had appointed the Trial of John Lord Somers upon Friday next, on their Impeachment against him; in which, they observe your Lordships have not nominated any Place for his Trial, though your Lordships thought fit to make that Matter on the last Impeachment for Misdemeanor, the Subject of a long Debate.

“And they cannot but take Notice, That your Lordships have taken as long a time to give your Answer to the Commons Desire of a Committee of Both Houses, deliver'd at a Conference on Friday last, as you are pleas'd to allow the Commons to have of the day appointed by your Lordships for the said Trial.

1701.

“Your Lordships appointing so short a Day, especially whilst the Proposition made to your Lordships for a Committee of Both Houses was undetermined, the Commons take to be such a Hardship to them, and such an Indulgence to the Person Accus'd, as is not to be parallel'd in any Parliamentary Proceeding.

“The Commons must likewise acquaint your Lordships, That their Experience of the Interruption of a former Trial on an Impeachment for Misdemeanors, for want of settling the Preliminaries between the Two Houses, obliges them to insist on a Committee of Both Houses, for preventing the like Interruption.

“And they conceive 'twould be very preposterous for them to enter upon the Tryal of any of these Lords, till your Lordships discover some Inclination to make the Proceeding thereupon practicable; and therefore they think they have Reason to insist upon another Day to be appointed for the Trial of the Lord Somers. And the Commons doubt not but to satisfy your Lordships at a Free Conference, of the Necessity of having a Committee of Both Houses, before they can proceed upon the said Tryal.

On Thursday, June 12th. his Majesty, who would have been glad to silence these Disputes, came to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for the further Limitation of the Crown, and better securing the Rights and Liberties of the Subjects. 2. An Act for preventing the Inconveniences that may happen by Privilege of Parliament. 3. An Act for the recovering, securing, and keeping in repair the Harbour of Minehead, for the Benefit and Support of the Navigation and Trade of this Kingdom. 4. An Act for Continuing the Acts therein mentioned, for preventing Theft and Rapine upon the Northern Borders of England. 5. An Act for appointing Wardens and Assay-Masters, for Assaying Wrought Plate in the Cities of Exeter, York, Bristol, Chester and Norwich. 6. An Act for continuing a former Act, to prevent False and Double Returns of Members to serve in Parliament. 7. An Act for raising the Militia for one Year, although the Months Pay formerly advanced be not repaid. 8. An Act for the better settling and preserving the Library kept in the House at Westminster, called Cotton-House, in the Name and Family of the Cottons, for the Benefit of the Publick. 9. An Act for the more speedy Payment of the Creditors of James late Duke of Ormond, and of the present Duke of Ormond. 10. An Act to enable Sir Robert Marsham, Knight and Baronet, to dispose of Lands in Hertfordshire; and to settle other Lands of better Value in Kent, to the same Uses as the Lands in Hertfordshire are settled. 11. An Act to enable Stephen Jermyn to make provision for his younger Children, and for the advancement of his Eldest Son. 12. An Act for the more speedy Payment of the Debts of Christopher Killiow, Esq; and for raising Portions and Maintenance for his Brothers and Sisters, in pursuance of his Father's Will. 13. An Act for sale of the Estate of William Davison, Esq; deceased, for payment of Debts and raising his Childrens Portions charged thereupon. 14. An Act for separating James Earl of Anglesey from Katherine Countess of Anglesey, his Wife, for the Cruelty of the said Earl. 15. An Act for the Vesting and Settling several Messuages, Lands and Tenements, belonging to John Fawconer, Esq; in Trustees, to be sold for Payment of Debts. 16. An Act to enable William Vaughan, Esq; and Frances Vaughan his intended Wife (being both under the Age of One and Twenty Years) to perform Articles made for their Marriage. 17. An Act for Naturalizing Adrian Lofland, and others. 18. An Act for Transferring a Trust in Lands belonging to the City of London, no-

Acts pass'd.

1701. to New Trustees. 19. An Act to Dissolve the Marriage of Ralph Box with Elizabeth Eyre, and to Enable him to Marry again. 20. An Act for Erecting a Court of Requests or Conscience in the City and County of the City of Norwich, for Recovery of small Debts under Forty Shillings. 21. An Act to Enable the Right Honourable Elizabeth Viscountess Buckley of Laffels, in the Kingdom of Ireland, to Sell certain Lands in the County of Devon, and City and County of the City of Exon, for the Payment of Debts. 22. An Act for the vesting and settling certain Mannors and Lands in South-Pickenham, and other Places in the County of Norfolk, in Trustees, to be Sold, and for laying out the Moneys arising by the Sale hereof, in the Purchase of other Lands, to be settled to such and the same Uses as the Mannors and Lands so to be vested are, and stand settled. 23. An Act for removing the County Goal of Hertford. 24. An Act to Enable Robert Lord Viscount Kilmore of the Kingdom of Ireland, (being an Infant) to settle divers Mannors, Lands, and Hereditaments in the Kingdom of England, upon a Treaty of Marriage. 25. An Act to Enable Sir Charles Barrington, Baronet, to settle a Jointure, and make Provision for his younger Children. 26. An Act for Furnishing the Town of New-Deale with Fresh Water. 27. An Act for Dissolving the Marriage of Sir John Dillon with Mary Boyle, and for other Purposes therein mentioned. 28. An Act for Vesting a Messuage and Lands in Stevenage, in the County of Hertford, the Estate of Richard Nodes, in Trustees, to be Sold for making a Provision for his Wife and Children, equal to the Provision secured to them out of the said Estate. 29. An Act for the better Performance of the last Will of Henry Apfley, Esq; deceased. 30. An Act for Naturalizing Jane Barkstead, Widow, and Vesting several Mortgages and Securities in her, to enable her to Convey or Assign the same. 31. An Act for Vesting the Estate of Humphry Hyde, Esq; deceased, in Trustees, for raising Portions for his younger Children. 32. An Act to Change the Surname of Ellis Mews and his Heirs, to the Surname of Saint John. 33. An Act for Naturalizing Archibald Arthur, and Enabling him to settle and dispose of his Estate. 34. An Act for the Erecting Hospitals and Work-Houses, within the Borough of Kings-Lynn in the County of Norfolk, for the better Employing and Maintaining the Poor there. 35. An Act for Discharging a Mortgage upon the Estate of Peter Trevisa, Esq; deceased, and providing a Maintenance for his Widow and Children. 36. An Act for Vesting the Estate of Thomas Bennet, late of Newton cum Larton in the County of Chester, in Trustees, for the use of the Poor of Welt-Kirby, pursuant to the Will of the said Thomas Bennet. 37. An Act for making good the Deficiency of the Charges of making a Way out of Chancery-Lane into Lincolns-Inn-Fields. 38. An Act for Declaring the Will of Sir Joseph Herne, Knight, deceased, the Twenty Fifth day of February, One thousand Six hundred Ninety eight, to be taken and esteemed the last Will of the said Sir Joseph Herne.

After which His Majesty made this Speech, to expedite the Dispatch of Affairs, with as much Impertunity as was decent for Him to use.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's
Speech.

“ I Return you My hearty Thanks for the “ Care you have taken to Establish the Suc“ cession to the Crown in the Protestant Line :
“ And I must not lose this Occasion of Acquain“ ting you, that I am likewise extremely sensi“ ble of your repeated Assurances of supporting “ Me in such Alliances as shall be most proper
“ for the Preservation of the Liberty of Europe,
“ and for the Security of England and Holland.
“ Your ready Compliance with My Desires, as 1701. “ to the Succors for the States-General, is also “ a great Satisfaction to Me, as well as a great “ Advantage to the Common Cause. And as I “ have nothing so much at Heart, as the Pre“ servation of the Liberty of Europe, and the “ Honour and Interest of England, so I make no “ Doubt of Attaining those great Ends, by the “ Blessing of God, and the Continuance of “ your cheerful Concurrence.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

“ The Season of the Year makes it necessary “ to have a speedy Recess ; and the Posture of “ Affairs Abroad does absolutely require My “ Presence, for the Encouragement of Our Al“ lies, and for the Perfecting of such Alliances
“ as may be most effectual for the Common In“ terest : And therefore I must recommend a “ Dispatch of the Publick Business, especially “ of those Matters which are of the greatest “ Importance.

The Commons were willing to interpret this Speech, as an Approbation of their Proceedings in respect of their Contest with the Lords ; and therefore agreed upon this Address to His Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

We Your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Assembled, do with all imaginable Chearfulness, return Your Majesty our most humble Thanks for Your most Gracious Speech from the Throne, in which Your Majesty is pleased to express Your Royal Approbation of the Proceedings of Your Commons. And we do further unanimously assure Your Majesty, That we will be ready on all Occasions as Your Majesty shall think fit to make in Conjunction with the Emperor and the States-General, for the Preservation of the Liberties of Europe, the Prosperity and Peace of England, and for reducing the Exorbitant Power of France.

Address of
the Com-
mons.

When this Address was presented on Friday, June 13th. the King gave this Answer, to mollify and to oblige in the wisest Manner. Gentlemen, I thank you heartily for the Unanimous Assurances You have given me of your Readiness to Assist Me, in Supporting such Alliances as I shall make in Conjunction with the Emperor and the States-General. It will be a good Encouragement to them, to find the Sense of this Kingdom so fully Expressed on this Occasion, and will likewise contribute most effectually to the obtaining those great Ends you have now mentioned, on which the Happiness of Europe does so much depend.

King's
Answer.

But to return again to the Contests between the Two Houses. The Lords on the same Day the King made this Speech, had sent this Message to the Commons by Dr. Newton and Mr. Gery.

“ In Answer to the Message from the House
“ of Commons of the Tenth Instant, the Lords
“ say, That although they take it to be Unpar“ liamentary in many Particulars, yet, to shew
“ their real Desire of avoiding Disputes, and re“ moving all Pretence of delaying the Trials of “ the Impeached Lords, they will only take no“ tice of that part of their Message, wherein
“ the Commons propose some Things as Diffi“ culties in respect of the Tryals ; which Mat“ ters relating wholly to their Judicature, and “ to their Rights and Privileges, as Peers, they “ think fit to acquaint the Commons with the “ following Resolutions of the House of Lords.

Contests between the Two Houses.

I. That no Lord of Parliament, Impeached for High Crimes and Misdemeanors, and coming to his Tryal, shall, upon his Tryal, be without the Bar.

II. That no Lord of Parliament, Impeached of High Crimes and Misdemeanors, can be precluded from 1701. from Voting on any Occasion, except in his own Tryal.

1701.

“ Their Lordships further take Notice of a Mistake in Point of Fact alledged in the Message of the Commons ; it no way appearing upon their Journals, that the Lords Impeached have Voted in their own Case.

“ The Lords being well assured, that all the Steps that have been taken by them in relation to these Impeachments, are warranted by the Practice of their Ancestors, and the Usage of Parliament. have Reason to expect the Tryals shall proceed without delay.

Also, That they are commanded by the Lords to acquaint this House, That,

“ In Answer to the Message of the House of Commons Yesterday, the Lords say, That they cannot give a greater Evidence of their sincere and hearty Desires of avoiding all Differences with the House of Commons, and of proceeding on the Tryals of the Impeachments, than by not taking notice of the several just Exceptions, to which that Message is liable, both as to the Matter and the Expressions.

“ The Lords have nothing farther from their Thoughts, than the going about to do any thing which might have the least appearance of Hardship with relation to the Commons.

“ But the Answer of the Lord Somers to the Articles exhibited against him, having been sent down to the Commons on the 24th. of May last, and they having by their Message of the 21st. of May, signified to their Lordships their Intention of beginning with the Tryal of his Impeachment in the first place :

“ The Lords, considering how far the Session is advanced, thought it reasonable to appoint the 13th. Instant for the said Tryal, their Lordships finding several Precedents of appointing Tryals on Impeachments within a shorter time.

“ The Lords also think it incumbent upon them, to dispatch the Tryals of all the Impeach'd Lords before the Rising of the Parliament. This is what Justice requires, and cannot be look'd upon as a Matter of Indulgency : Nevertheless, that the Commons may see how desirous their Lordships are to comply with them in any thing which may be consistent with Justice, they have appointed the Tryal of Impeachment against John Lord Somers, on Tuesday the 17th. of this instant June, at Ten of the Clock in the Forenoon, in the House of Lords, which will be then sitting in Westminster-Hall.

“ That they were commanded by the Lords to acquaint this House, That the Lords do agree to a free Conference with the Commons, as desired ; and do appoint to Morrow at One a Clock in the Painted Chamber.

Answer of the Commons.

The Commons on the 13th. made these Answers to them.

“ The House of Commons find greater Reason to insist upon their Proposal of a Committee of Both Houses, from the Two Messages received Yesterday from your Lordships ; for their Ambiguity and Uncertainty do shew the Methods of former Parliaments to be the most proper Way for Dispatch of Business.

“ The Commons have been obliged to employ that Time in considering how to answer your Lordships Messages, which otherwise would have been spent in preparing for the Lord Somers's Tryal ; so that the Delay must be charged where the Occasion ariseth. And the Commons having desir'd a Committee of Both Houses, to adjust the Preliminaries of the Tryals, cannot but think it strange your Lordships should come to Resolutions upon Two of those Points, while the Proposal of the House of Commons is under Debate at Conferences between the Two Houses ; the Commons having other Difficulties to propose, which concern them as Prosecutors, and all future Impeachments.

“ And though the Commons have the Subject of your Lordships Resolutions, with other Things to be debated at a Committee of both Houses ; yet they cannot but observe, that your Lordships second Resolution is no direct Answer to the Commons Proposal ; which was, Whether Peers, Impeached of the same Crimes, shall Vote for each other upon their Tryal for the same Crimes. And the Commons cannot believe, that any such Rule can be laid down in plain Words, where there is a due Regard to Justice.

“ And as to what your Lordships observe, That there is a Mistake in Point of Fact alledged by the Commons ; The House may take notice of the Caution used by your Lordships, in wording that part of your Message ; for they know your Lordships are too well acquainted with the Truth of the Fact, to affirm that the Impeached Lords did not Vote in their own Cases ; and though the appearing or not appearing upon your Lordships Journal, does not make it more or less agreeable to the Rules of Justice, yet the Commons cannot but add this further Observation from your Lordships Journal ; That the Impeached Lords Presence is not only recorded when those Votes passed, but they also find some of them appointed of Committees for preparing and drawing up the Messages and Answers to the House of Commons ; which they do not think has been the best Expedient for preserving a good Correspondence between the Two Houses, or adjusting what will be necessary upon these Tryals : And therefore the Commons cannot think it agreeable to the Rules of Parliament, for them to appear at the Tryal, till all necessary Preliminaries are first settled with your Lordships.

Then the Commons went to the Conference with the Lords, and Mr. Harcourt reported the Matter thereof, and the Words which the Lord Harversham had spoke thereat ; which he read in his Place, and afterwards delivered in at the Clerks Table, where the same was read, and is as followeth ; viz.

“ That the Managers appointed by this House met the Lords at the Free Conference, the Subject-Matter whereof was opened by Mr. Harcourt, and immediately afterwards further argued by Sir Bartholomew Shower.

“ It was insisted on by each of them, That the Reasons offered by their Lordships at the last Conference, were not sufficient for their Lordships disagreeing to a Committee of Both Houses, desired by the Commons at the first Conference.

“ That notwithstanding those Reasons, the Commons still thought a Committee of Both Houses absolutely necessary for adjusting and preventing such Differences as had happen'd, or might arise previous to, or upon the Tryals ; and therefore insisted, that such a Committee should be appointed before the Commons could proceed on any Tryal.

“ 'Twas urged as one Reason for such a Committee, That many Difficulties might happen whereby the Tryals might be obstructed, if the Preliminaries should not be first adjusted : As one Instance, That Point of several Lords being under Impeachments of the same Crimes,

Report of the Conference.

1701. "Crimes, Voting on each others Tryals, was mentioned.

"The Lord Steward first replied, and nothing was offered by his Grace, but what was material and pertinent to the Matter in Question, and agreeable to the Method of Parliament in free Conferences.

"That John Lord Haversham spoke immediately after; and in his Lordship's Discourse, used these or the like Expressions.

Speech of the Lord Haversham.

One Thing there is, though I cannot speak it, because I am bound up by the Orders of the House: Yet I must have some Answer; This is as to the Lords Voting in their own Case; it requires an Answer, though I cannot go into the Debate of it. The Commons themselves have made this Precedent; for in these Impeachments they have allowed Men guilty of the same Crimes, to Vote in their own House; and therefore we have not made any Distinction in Our House, that some should Vote, and some not. The Lords have so high an Opinion of the Justice of the House of Commons, that they hope Justice shall never be made use of as a Mask for any Design. And therefore give me Leave to say, (though I am not to argue it) 'tis a plain Demonstration, that the Commons think these Lords Innocent; and I think the Proposition is undeniable; for there are several Lords in the same Crimes, in the same Facts, there is no Distinction. And the Commons leave some of these Men at the Head of Affairs near the King's Person, to do any Mischief if their Persons were inclined to it; and Impeach others, when they are both alike Guilty, and concern'd in the same Facts. This is a Thing I was in hopes I should never have heard asserted, when the Beginning of it was from the House of Commons.

These Expressions were instantly objected to by Sir Christopher Musgrave; and the Managers took them to be so great an Aspersion on the Honour of this House, that they thought themselves obliged in Duty immediately to withdraw from the free Conference.

As the Managers were withdrawing, his Grace my Lord Steward spoke to the Effect following; That he hoped they would not think that that Lord had any Authority from the House of Lords, to use any such Expressions towards the Commons.

Resolved, That John Lord Haversham hath at the free Conference this Day uttered most scandalous Reproaches and false Expressions, highly reflecting upon the Honour and Justice of the House of Commons, and tending to the making a Breach in the good Correspondence between the Lords and Commons, and to the interrupting the publick Justice of the Nation, by delaying the Proceedings on Impeachments.

Resolved, That John Lord Haversham be charged before the Lords, for the Words spoken by the said Lord this Day at the free Conference: And that the Lords be desir'd to proceed in Justice against the said Lord Haversham, and to inflict such Punishment upon the said Lord as so high an Offence against the House of Commons does deserve.

Ordered, That Sir Christopher Musgrave do carry the said Charge and Resolution to the Lords.

A Message from the Lords by Doctor Newton and Mr. Gery.

Mr. Speaker,

The Lords having been informed by their Managers, that some Interruption happened at the free Conference, which their Lordships are concerned at; because they wish that nothing should interrupt the publick Business, do desire the Commons would come again presently to the said free Conference; which they do not doubt, will prove the best Expedient to prevent the Inconvenience of a Misunderstanding upon what has past.

Next day which was Saturday the 14th. came another Message from the Lords, importing:

That upon Occasion of their last Message Yesterday, in order to continue a good Correspondence between the Two Houses, their Lordships did immediately appoint a Committee to State the matter of the free Conference, and also to inspect Precedents of what has happened of the like Nature; and that the publick Business may receive no Interruption, the Time desired by their Lordships for renewing the free Conference being elapsed, their Lordships desire a present free Conference in the Painted Chamber upon the Subject-Matter of the last free Conference.

Upon which the Commons came to the following Resolutions.

That an Answer be returned to the Lords, That the Commons are extremely desirous to preserve a good Correspondence between the Two Houses, and to expedite the Tryals of the Impeached Lords; but do conceive 'tis not consistent with the Honour of the Commons to renew the Free Conference, until they have received Reparation, by their Lordships doing Justice upon John Lord Haversham, for the Indignity he Yesterday offered to the House of Commons.

On the same day, Saturday 14. June, Mr Bruges reported, that he had carried the Articles of Impeachment against Charles Lord Halifax to the Lords, which were,

Articles against the Lord Halifax.

I. That whereas it was the continued Sense of the Commons of England, that it was highly reasonable that the forfeited Estates of Rebels and Traitors in Ireland should be applied in ease of his Majesty's Faithful Subjects of the Kingdom of England, the said Lord Halifax presumed to advise, pass, or direct the passing a Grant to Thomas Railton Esq; in Trust for himself, of several Debts, Interests, &c. amounting to 13000 l. or thereabouts, accruing to His Majesty from Attainers, Outlawries, or other Forfeitures in Ireland. — To which he Answered, That he did accept the said Grant, as it was Lawful for him to do, without breach of his Duty, and the Trust reposed in him; which Grant hath since been taken away by Act of Parliament, and he hath not made clear thereof, as yet, above 400 l.

II. That he has not repaid into the Receipt of His Majesty's Exchequer in Ireland the Sum of 1000 l. which he had actually received to his own use, out of the Profits of the forementioned Grant, which he ought to have so repaid, by vertue of the Act for granting an Aid to His Majesty, by Sale of the Forfeited Estates in Ireland. — To which he Answered, That he gave direction, after the said Act Passed, to his Agents in Ireland, to do, in relation to the Money received, as should be advised by Council there; by whom his Agents were advised, that the said Moneys being received out of the mean Profits, which were remitted by that Act, were not within the first mentioned Clause in the said Act.

III. That in the time of a Tedious and Expensive War, he did advise, procure, and assent, not only to the passing of divers Grants to others, but did obtain and accept of several beneficial ones for himself; which Practices were a most notorious Abuse of His Majesty's Goodness, &c. — To which he Answered, That he served His Majesty Faithfully in his Stations, and His Majesty graciously accepted of his Service; and as a mark of His Royal Favour, did make for his Benefit, such Grants as are mentioned in the precedent and subsequent Articles, and none other. And as to other Persons, he only in conjunction with the other Commissioners, did Sign several Warrants and Duckets for such Grants, as His Majesty was pleased to direct.

IV. Whereas by Common Law, and other Statutes, the King's Forests should be preserved, the said Lord Halifax not regarding the Laws and Ordinances of this Realm, nor his Duty to 1701. to His Majesty and the Publick, had procured a Grant to Henry Segar, Gent. in Trust for himself, of the Sum of 14000 l. of scrubbed Beech, Birch, Holly, &c. under colour whereof, Sapling Oaks, and many Tuns of well grown Timber had been Cut and Fallen, and sold and disposed for his benefit. — To which he Answered, That His Majesty out of his Grace and Favour, did grant in Trust for him the Sum of 20000 l. per Ann. to be raised by the Fall of Scrub-Beech, Birch, &c. for the space of Seven Years, which Grant was not prejudicial to any Timber growing in the said Forest. And if any Abuse were in Cutting the Wood, he conceives he is not answerable for the same, it being done by the Direction of His Majesty's Surveyer-General, and other His Majesty's Officers.

V. That he the said Lord Halifax did Grant or procure to be Granted, to his Brother Christopher Mountague, Esq; the Place and Office of Auditor of the Receipts, and Writer of the Tallies, in Trust for himself; so that he the said Lord was in effect, at the same time, one of the Commissioners of the Treasury, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Auditor of the Receipts, and Writer of the Tallies, and enjoyed the Profits of the said several Offices, which were manifestly inconsistent, and ought to have been a Check to each other. — To which he Answered, That the Grant of the said Office was done at his Desire and Request, because he intended in a short time after to leave his own Employment and Places in the Treasury, and to obtain a surrender from his said Brother of the said Office, and procure a Grant thereof to himself, which has been since done, and he conceives was Lawful for him to do.

VI. That the said Lord Halifax, well knowing the most apparent Evil Consequences, as well as the Injustice of the Partition of the Spanish Monarchy, did yet advise His Majesty to enter into a Treaty for it, and did encourage and promote the same. — To which he Answered, That he never did advise His Majesty to enter into or make the said Treaty, or was ever consulted upon any Clause or Article thereof: But when the said Matter was discoursed at Tunbridge-Wells, he made several Objections to the same.

On Monday June the 16th. The Lords sent a Message to acquaint the House of Commons, That the Lords taking into their Care the Ordering of the Tryal of John Lord Somers, on Tuesday the 17th. of June Instant, at Ten of the Clock in Westminster-Hall, have prepared some Notes and Rules to be observed at the said Tryal, which the Lords have thought fit to communicate to this House, viz.

Rules for Trial of the Impeached Lords.

“ That the whole Impeachment is to be Read, and then the Answer; which being done, the Lord Keeper is to tell the Commons, That now they may go on with their Evidence.

“ Then the Lord Keeper is to declare, That now the Court is proceeding to hear the Evidence, and desire the Peers to give Attention.

“ If any of the Peers, or the Members of the House of Commons, that manage the Evidence, or the Lord Impeached, do desire to have any Question asked, they must desire the Lord Keeper to ask the same.

“ If any Doubt doth arise at the Trial, no Debate is to be in the Court, but the Question suspended to be Debated in this House.

“ The Members of the House of Commons to be there before the Peers come.

“ None to be Covered at the Trial but the Peers.

“ That such Peers at the Tryal of the Impeached Lord, who at the Instance of the said Lord, or of the Commons, shall be admitted Witnesses, are to be Sworn at the Clerks Table, and the Lord Keeper to Administer the Oath, and to deliver their Evidence in their own Places.

“ Those Witnesses that are Commoners, are to be Sworn at the Bar by the Clerk, and are to deliver their Evidence there.

“ The Impeached Lords may cross-Examine Witnesses, Viva Voce.

But the Commons appointed a Committee to consider of the Reasons why they cannot proceed to the Trial of the Lord Somers. Which Reasons were the next Day Reported by Mr. Harcourt, and were as follow :

“ The Commons in this whole Proceeding against the Impeached Lords, have acted with all imaginable Zeal to bring them to a speedy Tryal; and they doubt not but it will appear, by comparing their Proceedings with all others upon the like Occasion, That the House of Commons have nothing to blame themselves for, but that they have not expressed the Resentment their Ancestors have justly shewed upon much less Attempts which have been made upon their Power of Impeachments.

“ The Commons, on the 31st. of May, acquainted your Lordships, that they thought it proper from the Nature of the Evidence, to proceed in the first Place upon the Trial of the Lord Somers. Upon the first Intimation from your Lordships some Days afterwards, That you would proceed to the Trial of the Impeached Lords, whom the Commons should be first ready to begin with, notwithstanding your Lordships had before thought fit to appoint which Impeachment should be first Tried, and affix a Day for such Trial, without consulting the Commons, who are the Prosecutors:

“ The Commons determine to expedite the Tryals to the utmost of their Power, in hopes of attaining that End: And for the more speedy and easie adjusting and preventing any Differences, which had happened, or might arise previous to or upon these Tryals, proposed to your Lordships at a Conference the most Parliamentary and Effectual Method for that Purpose, and that which in no manner intrenched upon your Lordships Judicature, That a Committee of both Houses should be nominated, to consider of the most proper Ways and Methods of Proceeding upon Impeachments according to the Usage of Parliament.

“ In the next Message to the Commons upon Monday the 9th. of June, your Lordships thought fit, without taking the least Notice of this Proposition, to appoint the Friday then following for the Tryal of the said Lord Somers; whereunto, as well asto many other Messages and Proceedings of your Lordships upon this Occasion, the House of Commons might have justly taken very great Exceptions; yet, as an Evidence of their Moderation, and to shew their Readiness to bring the Impeached Lords to speedy Justice, the Commons insisted only on their Proposition for a Committee of both Houses to settle and adjust the necessary Preliminaries to the Tryal; particularly, Whether the Impeached Lords should appear on their Tryal at your Lordships Bar as Criminals? Whether being under Accusations of the same Crimes, they should sit as Judges on each other's Tryal for those Crimes, or should Vote in their own Cases, as tis Notorious they 1701. Reasons of the Commons against proceeding to the Trial of the Lord Somers.

1701. " have been permitted by your Lordships to do, in many Instances which might be given; to which Particulars your Lordships have not yet given a direct Answer, though put in mind thereof by the Commons.

" Your Lordships at a Conference, having offered some Reasons why you could not agree to a Committee of both Houses to Adjust the necessary Preliminaries, the Commons thereupon desired a Free Conference, and your Lordships agreed thereunto; at which 'tis well known to many of your Lordships, who were then present, what most scandalous Reproaches and false Expressions, highly Reflecting upon the Honour and Justice of the House of Commons, were uttered by John Lord Haversham, whereby the Commons were under a Necessity of withdrawing from the said Free Conference; for which Offence, the Commons have, with all due Regard to your Lordships, prayed your Lordships Justice against the Lord Haversham; but have as yet received no manner of satisfaction.

" The Commons restrain themselves from enumerating your Lordships very many Irregular and Unparliamentary Proceedings upon this Occasion; but think it is what they owe to Publick Justice, and all the Commons of England whom they represent, to declare some few of those Reasons, why they peremptorily refuse to proceed to the Tryal of the Lord Somers on the Seventeenth of June.

" First, Because your Lordships have not yet agreed, That a Committee of both Houses should be appointed, for settling the necessary Preliminaries; a Method never until this time denied by the House of Lords, whensoever the Commons have thought it necessary to desire the same.

" Secondly, Should the Commons (which they never will do) be contented to give up those Rights which have been transmitted to them from their Ancestors, and are of absolute Necessity to their Proceedings on Impeachments; yet whilst they have any regard to Publick Justice, they never can appear as Prosecutors before your Lordships, till your Lordships have first given them satisfaction that Lords Impeached of the same Crimes shall not sit as Judges on each others Tryals for those Crimes.

" Thirdly, Because the Commons have as yet received no Reparation for the great Indignity offered to them at the Free Conference by the Lord Haversham, the Commons are far from any Inclination, and cannot be supposed to be under any Necessity of delaying the Tryal of the Lord Somers: There is not any Article exhibited by them in Maintenance of their Impeachment against the Lord Somers, for the Proof whereof they have not full and undeniable Evidence; which they will be ready to produce, as soon as your Lordships shall have done Justice upon the Lord Haversham; and the necessary Preliminaries in order to the said Tryal, shall be settled by a Committee of both Houses.

" The Commons think it unnecessary to observe to your Lordships, that most of the Articles whereof the Lord Somers stands Impeached, will appear to your Lordships to be undoubtedly true, from Matters of Record, as well as by the Confession of the said Lord Somers, in his Answer to the said Articles; to which the Commons doubt not but your Lordships will have a due regard, when his Tryal shall regularly proceed.

The Lords sent their Answer to this Message, on Friday June the 20th. in these Words.

" The Lords in Answer to the Message of the Commons of the 17th. Instant, say, The only true way of determining which of the Two Houses has acted with the greatest Sincerity, in order to bring the Impeached Lords to their Trials, is to look back upon the respective Proceedings.

" The Lords do not well understand what the Commons mean by that Resentment which they speak of in their Message: Their Lordships own the House of Commons have a Right of Impeaching: And the Lords have undoubted Power of doing Justice upon those Impeachments, by bringing them to Trial, and Condemning or Acquitting the Parties in a reasonable Time. This Power is derived to them from their Ancestors, which they will not suffer to be wrested from them by any Pretences whatsoever.

" Their Lordships cannot but wonder, that the Commons should not have proposed a Committee of both Houses much sooner, if they thought it so necessary for the bringing on the Trials; no mention being of such a Committee from the First of April to the Sixth of June, although during that Interval their Delays were frequently complained of by the House of Lords.

" The manner in which the Commons demand this Committee, the Lords look upon as a direct Invading of their Judicature; and therefore, as there never was a Committee of both Houses yielded to by the Lords in case of any Impeachment for High Crimes and Misdemeanors; so their Lordships do insist, that they will make no new Precedent upon this Occasion. Many Impeachments for Misdemeanors have in all Times been determined without such a Committee: And if now the Commons think fit, by any unrepresented Demand, to form an Excuse for not prosecuting their Impeachments, it is demonstrable where the Obstruction lies.

" As to the Preliminaries which the Commons mention in particular, as proper to be settled at such a Committee, they have received the Resolutions of the House of Lords therein, by their Message of the 12th. Instant; from which (being matters entirely relating to their Judicature) their Lordships cannot depart.

" As to the last Pretence the Commons would make to shelter the delaying the Trials, from some Expressions which fell from the Lord Haversham at the Free Conference, at which Offence was taken, their Lordships will only observe,

" First, That they have omitted nothing which might give the Commons all reasonable satisfaction, of their purpose to do them Justice in that matter, so far as is consistent with doing Justice to that Lord; and also to preserve all good Correspondence with them; as appears by the several steps they have taken.

" Secondly, That this Business has no Relation to the Trial of the Impeached Lords, and therefore their Lordships cannot imagine why the Commons should make Satisfaction and Reparation against the Lord Haversham a necessary Condition for the going on with the Trials, and at the same time find no Difficulties in proceeding on other Business.

In the mean time, on Tuesday June the 17th. The Lords proceeded to the Trial of John Lord Somers in Westminster-Hall, where this Proclamation 1701.

Answer
of the Lords.

Trial of
*John Lord
Somers.*

1701. tion first was made. Whereas a Charge of High Crimes and Misdemeanors has been Exhibited by the House of Commons, in the Name of themselves and all the Commons of England, against John Lord Somers; All Persons concerned are to take notice that he now stands upon his Trial, and they may now come forth, in order to make good the said Charge. Then the House Adjourned to the said Hall; and being Seated, after Proclamation for Silence, the Articles against John Lord Somers were Read, and also his Lordship's Answer to them. Then the Lord Keeper declared the House was ready to hear the Evidence against him. The Lord Somers moved to have his Counsel heard. After long Debate, and hearing the Judges to several Questions asked them by the Lords, this Question was proposed, That John Lord Somers be Acquitted of the Articles of Impeachment against him, Exhibited by the House of Commons, and all things therein contained, and that the said Impeachment be dismissed. When the Lord Keeper had asked every Lord, Whether Content or not? He declared the Majority was for Acquitting. Then the Lords Adjourned to the House above, and made the following Order. It was Considered, Ordered, and Adjudged by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament Assembled, That John Lord Somers shall be, and is hereby Acquitted of the Articles of Impeachment against him, Exhibited by the House of Commons, and all things therein contained, and that the said Impeachment shall be, and is hereby Dismissed.

Honourably Acquitted.

Remembrance of the Commons.

The Commons to justify their Refusal of appearing at the said Tryal, did Resolve on June the 20th. "That the Lords have refused Justice to the Commons upon the Impeachment against the Lord Somers, by denying them a Committee of Both Houses, which was desired by the Commons as the proper and only Method of settling the necessary Preliminaries, in order to the proceeding to the Tryal of the said Lord Somers with effect; and afterwards by proceeding to a pretended Tryal of the said Lord, which could tend only to protect him from Justice by colour of an Illegal Acquittal. Against which Proceedings of the Lords, the Commons do solemnly protest, as being repugnant to the Rules of Justice, and therefore null and void. That the House of Lords, by the pretended Tryal of John Lord Somers, have endeavoured to overturn the Right of Impeachments lodged in the House of Commons by the ancient Constitution of this Kingdom, for the Safety and Protection of the Commons against the Power of Great Men; and have made an Invasion upon the Liberties of the Subject, by laying a Foundation of Impunity for the greatest Offenders. That all the ill Consequences which may at this time attend the Delay of the Supplies given by the Commons for the preserving the publick Peace, and maintaining the Balance of Europe, by supporting our Allies against the Power of France, are to be imputed to those, who, to procure an Indemnity for their own enormous Crimes, have used their utmost Endeavours to make a Breach between the two Houses.

Answer of the Lords.

The Lords the same Day sent this Answer to that Message. The Lords do acquaint the Commons, that they might have known by the Records of the House of Lords, That the Lords had proceeded to the Tryal of the Lord Somers on Tuesday last, being the Day appointed; and the Commons not appearing to mint in their Articles against the said Lord, the Lords had by Judgment of their House acquitted him of the Articles of Impeachment against him exhibited by the House of Commons, and all things therein contained, and had dismissed the said Impeachment.

And the Lords had appointed Monday next for the Tryal of the Earl of Orford; On which Day they would proceed on the said Tryal.

1701.

The Commons still pressing for a Committee of both Houses, which their Lordships could never consent to for the Reasons already given; their Lordships could infer nothing from their persisting in this Demand, than that they never designed to bring any of their Impeachments to a Tryal.

As to the Lord Haversham, his Answer was now before the House of Commons, and the Lords resolved to do Justice in that Matter.

The same Day the Commons had a Copy given them of the Lord Haversham's Answer to the Charge against him; which being extraordinary, deserves to be inserted in this Place.

"The said Lord Haversham, saying to himself all Advantages of Exception to the said Charge, and of not being prejudiced by any want of Form in this Answer; and also saying to himself all Rights and Privileges belonging to him as one of the Peers of this Realm, for Answer to the said Charge, saith, That on the Sixth Day of June, 1701. the Commons, by a Message sent to the Lords, desired a Conference upon their Message to the Commons of the Fourth of June: In which Conference they proposed to the Lords, That a Committee of Both Houses might be nominated, to consider of the most proper Ways and Methods of Proceeding in the Impeachments of the Lords, according to the Usage of Parliaments. That on the 10th. of June, the Lords desired another Conference with the Commons, in which they delivered them their Reasons why they could not agree to the Appointing of such Committee; (viz.) First, That they could not find that ever such a Committee was appointed on Occasion of Impeachments for Misdemeanors, and their Obligation to be curious in admitting any thing new relating to Judicature. Secondly, That although a Committee of this Nature was agreed to, upon the Impeachments of the Earl of Danby, and the Five Popish Lords for High Treason; yet the Success in that Instance was not such as should encourage the pursuing of the same Method, though in the like Case; and that, after so much time spent in the Committee, the Disputes were so far from being there adjusted, that they occasioned the abrupt Conclusion of a Session of Parliament. Thirdly, That the Methods of Proceedings for Misdemeanors are so well settled by the Usage of Parliament, that no Difficulties were likely to happen, nor none had been stated to them; and that all the Preliminaries in the Case of Stephen Goudett, and others, (which was the last Instance of Impeachments for Misdemeanors) were easily settled and agreed to, without any such Committee. Fourthly, That the Proposal of the Commons came so very late, that no other Fruit could be expected of such a Committee, but the preventing of the Tryals during this Session. Whereupon the Commons on the 12th. of June, desired of the Lords a Free Conference, on the Subject-Matter of the last Conference. That the Lords, on the 12th. of June came to Two Resolutions in relation to the Lords Impeached. First, That no Lord of Parliament, Impeached of High Crimes and Misdemeanors, and coming to his Tryal, shall, upon his Trial, be without the Bar. Secondly, That no Lord of Parliament, Impeached for High Crimes and Misdemeanors, can be precluded from Voting on any Occasion, except in his own Tryal. And by Messengers of their own, the Lords acquainted the Commons with the said two Resolutions; and also that they agreed to a Free Conference with the Commons, and ap-

Answer of the Lord Haversham to a Complaint of the Commons

1701.

“ted the next Day. That upon the 30th. of “June Mr. Harcourt, one of the Managers, be“gan the Free Conference on the part of the “Commons, and Argued upon the Four Rea“sons given by the Lords, why they could not “agree to the appointing a Committee of both “Houses; and principally relied upon the In“stance in the Case of the Popish Lords, and “insisted upon the delay that the not agreeing
 “to the Nomination of such a Committee
 “would necessarily occasion, whereby the Lords
 “Tryals, and the Justice due to the Nation, “would be retarded. And departing from the “Subject-Matter of the said Conference (which “was, Whether it were requisite to appoint, or “not appoint such a Committee) the said Ma“nager discoursed upon the latter of the Re“solutions of the Lords, communicated to the “Commons, and said, *That he wished the Lords
 “had sent down their Resolutions, as well as their “Resolutions; which Words seemed to the said
 “Lord Haversham, to carry therein an Impli“cation, as if the said Resolution could have “no Reason to justify it. That Sir Bartholomew “Shower, another Manager for the Commons, “observed the same method of Discourse; and “having Argued on the Lords Reasons, de“parted from the Subject-Matter of the Free “Conference, and inveighing against the Man“ner of the Lords Judicature, asserted by their “Resolutions, said, *That it was abhorrent to “Justice. Which Expressions being Foreign
 “(as the said Lord Haversham apprehended)
 “to the Subject-Matter of the said Free Con“ference, which was, Whether such Commit“tee of both Houses should be appointed or “not; the said Lord being appointed by the “Lords for one of the Managers of the said
 “Free Conference on their Behalf, in Vindica“tion of the Honour and Justice of the House
 “of Peers, and of their Judicature and Reso“lutions, in Answer to what had been said by “the Managers for the Commons, he spoke to “the Effect following:

*Gentlemen, I shall begin what I have to say,
 as that worthy Member who opened this Conference,
 That there is nothing the Lords mere desire than to keep a good Correspondence, which is so necessary to the Safety of the Nation, and the Dispatch of Publick Business; and nothing they have more carefully avoided, than what might create a Misunderstanding between the Two Houses. A greater Instance of which could not be given, than the Messages my Lords returned to some the Commons had sent them up; in which they took care to express themselves so cautiously, that no Heat might arise from any Expression of theirs. And as to what the worthy Members mentioned, in relation to Delay, the repeated Remembrances sent the Commons, with relation to the sending up the Articles against the Impeached Lords, are a sufficient Instance how desirous they are that these Matters should proceed. And the Lords have this satisfaction, that it is not on their part that the Trials are not in a greater forwardness; they cannot but look upon it as a great Hardship that they should lie under long Delays on Impeachments. Persons may be Incapable; Facts may be Forgotten; Evidences may be laid out of the Way; Witnesses may Die, and many other like Accidents may happen.
 The Instance the Worthy Members give of the Popish Lords, as it is a Crime of another Nature, and not fully to the Point, so it seems to make against what it was brought for. For the Worthy Members say, there was but one of the Lords brought to Justice,
 though Four more (as I take it) were accused.
 And can any Man believe that the Commons have a mind to bring only one of these Lords to Trial? It is inconsistent with the Opinion that every Body must* *have of their Justice. And as to the Point of Judicature, it were very hard upon the Lords, that no Person should be brought to Trial, till the Judicature of the House be so first. The Judicature of the Lords is their Peculiar, and hath in former Ages been sacred with the Commons themselves. And this House, perhaps, hath as much Reason to be jealous, and careful of it, as any other House ever had; especially when one single Precedent is so urged and insisted upon. One thing there is which a Worthy Member mentioned, though I cannot speak to it at large, because I think my self bound up by the Resolutions of the House; yet it must have some Answer; That is, as to the Lords Voting in their own Case; it requires an Answer, though I cannot enter into the Debate of it. The Commons themselves have made this Precedent; for in these Impeachments they have allowed Men, equally concerned in the same Facts, to Vote in their own House; and we have not made the Distinction in ours, that some should Vote and some not. The Lords have so high an Opinion of the House of Commons, that they believe Justice shall never be made use of as a Mask for any Design. And therefore give me leave to say, though I am not to argue it, 'tis to me a plain Demonstration, that the Commons think those Lords innocent; and I think the Proposition is undeniable, for when there are several Lords in the same Circumstances, in the same Facts, there is no Distinction;

 and the Commons leave some of these Men at the Head of Affairs, near the King's Person, to do any Mischiefs, if they were inclined to it; it looks as if they thought them all Innocent. This was a thing
 I was in hopes I should never have heard asserted, when the Beginning of it was from the House of Commons.*

1701.

“The said Lord being here Interrupted,
 “he desired to be heard out, and that his “Words might be taken down in Writing. But
 “the Managers for the Commons broke up,
 “and departed, refusing to hear any Expla“nation. Now the said Lord, as to any im“plicit Charge of a Design to reflect on, or “dishonour the House of Commons, denies “any such Design or Intention; having,
 “for many Years, had the Honour to Sit in “the House of Commons, and having ever had “an Honourable and Respectful Sense thereof;
 “But the said Lord was led to express himself
 “in the manner aforesaid, for the Reasons “aforesaid, and takes himself to be justified
 “therein, by the Facts and Reasons following.
 “That the Nature of that Conference was,
 “That it should be Free; the Occasion of it,
 “Because either House apprehended the other
 “to be in an Error; and the End of it That “each side might urge such Facts as are True,
 “and such Reasons as are forcible to convince.
 “That one Article of the Impeachment against “John Lord Somers, was, That the Treaty of “Partition of 1699. was Ratified under the “Great Seal, which then was in the Custody “of the same Lord, then Lord Chancellor of “England; That the Commons on the 1st. of “April, 1701. Resolved, That the Earl of “Portland by Negotiating and Concluding, the “Treaty of Partition, was Guilty of a High “Crime and Misdemeanor; and pursuant “thereto lodged an Impeachment against him
 “in the House of Peers; which Vote and Im“peachment could not have Reference to any “Treaty, other than the Treaty of Partition
 “of 1699. the Treaty of 1698. not being be“fore the House of Commons, till after the “time of that Vote and Impeachment; and “yet the Earl of Jersey, who then was Secre“tary of State, and a Privy Councillor, and “actually Sign'd the said Treaty of 1699. as a “Pleni-

1701. Plenipotentiary with the Lord Portland, stands Unimpeached, and continues at the Head of Affairs, being Lord-Chamberlain, near His Majesty's Person, and in His Presence and Councils (without Complaint:) That the Earl of Orford, and the Lords Somers and Halifax, are severally Impeached for Adviving the Treaty of Partition, of 1698. and yet Mr. Secretary Vernon, who then was Secretary of State, and a Privy Counsellor, and acted in the Promoting of the Treaty of Partition of 1698. stands Unimpeached, and still continues one of the Principal Secretaries of State; and Sir Joseph Williamson who then was a Privy Counsellor, and Transacted and Sign'd the Treaty of Partition of 1698. as a Plenipotentiary, stands Unimpeached. That the Lord Halifax is Impeached, for that he being a Commissioner of the Treasury, assented to the Passing of divers Grants from the Crown to several Persons, of Lands in Ireland; and yet Sir Edward Seymour, Sir Stephen Fox, and Mr. Pelham, who being severally Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, did severally Assent to the Passing of divers like Grants from His Majesty, of Lands in Ireland, stand Unimpeached. That in the Impeachments against the Earl of Orford and Lord Somers, one of the Articles against them is for procuring a Commission to Captain William Kidd, and likewise a Grant under the Great Seal, of the Ships and Goods of certain Persons therein named, to certain Persons in Trust for them; and yet other Lords equally concerned in procuring the said Commission and Grant, stand Unimpeached. That the said Mr. Secretary Vernon, Sir Edward Seymour, Sir Stephen Fox, and Mr. Pelham, notwithstanding their being Parties in the same Facts, charged in the said respective Impeachments, have been permitted to Sit and Vote in the House of Commons, touching the Impeachments and the Matters thereof. That these Facts being True and publickly known, the Consequences resulting therefrom (as the said Lord Haversham apprehended) are undeniable, viz. That the doing of the same thing, by Two Persons in equal Circumstances, cannot be a Crime in one and not in another. That the Commons had no Reason to insist, That the Lords should not permit that in their Members, which the Commons had first permitted, and continued to permit, and so begun the First Precedent in their own Members. That it must be thought, that the Impeached Lords (notwithstanding the Facts alledged in the Impeachment) are Innocent of Danger to the King, when the Lord Jersey and Mr. Secretary Vernon, who were respectively concerned in the Partition Treaties, are permitted without Complaint, to be at the Head of Affairs, and in the King's Presence, and of His Councils, as not Dangerous; That the Word Innocent, used in the Words spoken by the said Lord Haversham, can extend no farther than to such matters as were done by the Impeached Lords, of the same Nature with what was done by those Unimpeached. All which Facts being true, and the Consequences obvious, the said Lord being ready to prove the same; He insists that the Words spoken by him at the said Free Conference, were not Scandalous or Reproachful, nor False, or Reflecting on the Honour or Justice of the House of Commons; but were spoken upon a just Occasion, given in Answer to several Expressions that fell from the Managers for the Commons, remote, as he conceives, from the Matter in Question, and reflecting on the Honour and Justice of the House of Peers; and in Maintenance and Defence of the Lords Resolution and Judicature, and conformable to the Duty he owes to the said House. And the said Lord humbly demands the Judgment of this Honourable House therein. And the said Lord Haversham denies, that he spoke the Words specified in the said Charge, in such Manner and Form, as the same are therein set down. And having thus given a true Account of this Matter, and it being true and indisputable, that some Lords in this House, equally concerned in Facts, for which other Lords are Impeached by the House of Commons, are still near the King's Person, in the greatest Places of Trust and Honour, and Unimpeached; and also, That several Members of the House of Commons, equally concerned in the same Facts, for which some of the Lords are Impeached, do however remain Unimpeached; The said Lord thinks, such a Truth could never have been more properly spoken, in the Maintenance and Defence of your Lordships Judicature, and Resolutions; and insisteth, that what he said at the Free Conference, was not any Scandalous Reproach, or False Expression, or any ways tending to make a Breach in the good Correspondence between the Lords and Commons, or to the Interrupting the Publick Justice of the Nation, by delaying the Proceedings on the Impeachments, as in the said Charge alledged; but agreeable to Truth, in Discharge of his Duty, and in the Defence of the undoubted Right and Judicature of this House.

Haversham.

The Commons on Friday 20. after the sending and receiving the foremention'd Messages, Ordered, That no Member should presume to appear on Monday next at the pretended Tryal of the Earl of Orford, upon Pain of incurring the utmost Displeasure of the House; and then Adjourn'd to Tuesday Morning. But the Lords continued sitting, and on the 21st. Resolved, That unless the Commons Charge against the Lord Haversham, were presented by them with effect before the end of that Session, the Lords would declare and Adjudge him wholly Innocent of the Charge.

Contest betwixt the Two Houses.

On Monday, June 23. It was Resolved by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament Assembled, That the Resolutions of the House of Commons in their Votes of the 20th Instant, contained most unjust Reflections on the Honour and Justice of the House of Peers, and were contrived to cover their affected and unreasonable Delays in Prosecuting the Impeached Lords: And did manifestly tend to the Destruction of the Judicature of the Lords, to the rendering Tryals and Impeachments impracticable for the future, and to the subverting the Constitution of the English Government; and therefore whatever ill Consequences might arise from the so long deferring the Supplies of this Year's Service, were to be attributed to the fatal Counsel of the putting off the meeting of a Parliament so long, and to the unnecessary Delays of the House of Commons.

Then the Lords adjourn'd to Westminster-Hall, and after two Proclamations made for silence and Prosecution, the Articles of Impeachment against Edward E. of Orford were read, and also his Lordship's Answer to the said Articles; and after taking the same Methods as in the Tryal of the Lord Somers, His Lordship by unanimous Vote was Acquitted of the Articles, and the Impeachment was dismissed.

Tryal of the Earl of Orford

H. Lordship by unanimous Vote acquitted

1701. On Tuesday June 24. being the last day of the Session of this Parliament, this Order was made by the Lords.

Order of the Lords. "The House of Commons not having presented their Charge which they brought up against John Lord Howartham for Words spoken by him at a free Conference the 13th. instant, the said Charge is hereby dismissed. The Earl of Portland being Impeached by the House of Commons of high Crimes and Misdemeanors, the first day of April last, the Impeachment is hereby dismissed, there being no Articles exhibited against him. The House of Commons having impeached Charles Lord Halifax of High Crimes and Misdemeanors on the 15th. day of April last. and on the 14th. day of this instant June exhibited Articles against him, to which He having Answered, and no further Prosecution thereupon, the said Impeachment and Articles are hereby dismissed. At the same time their Lordships dismissed an old Impeachment against the Duke of Leeds.

Bill for stating the Publick Accounts. The Affair of the Impeached Lords had so much divided Both Houses, that the Correspondence was almost broken off or interrupted with continual Disagreements. Hence the Commons having pass'd a Bill for appointing Commissioners to Take, State, and Examine the Publick Accounts, the Lords made some Amendments to it, which the Commons would by no means allow; and drew up these Reasons for their Disagreement, to be offered to the Lords at a Conference.

Reasons of the Commons. "The Commons do disagree to the first Amendment made by the Lords, because it is notorious That many Millions of Money have been given to His Majesty by the Commons, for the Service of the Publick, which remain yet unaccounted for, to the great Dissatisfaction of the good People of England, who cheerfully contributed to those Supplies. And their Lordships first Amendment prevents any Account being taken of those Moneys by the Commissioners appointed by the Commons for that purpose.

"The Commons do disagree to the second Amendment made by the Lords, because John Parkhurst and John Pascall Esquires, have for several Years been Commissioners of the Prizes taken during the late War, and are accountable for great Sums of Money arising thereby, which ought to be applied to the Use of the Publick. That the said John Parkhurst and John Pascall were frequently pressed to Account for the same by the late Commissioners appointed by Act of Parliament; but by many Artifices and Evasions delayed and avoided giving any such Account as was required by the said Commissioners. That the Clause to which their Lordships have disagreed by their second Amendment, requires them to Account before the 1st. of September next, but by their Lordships Amendment they are exempted from giving any such Account, which is highly unreasonable.

"The Commons do disagree to the Third Amendment, because their Lordships have in a Clause directed the Commons to allow and certify a pretended Debt to Colonel Baldwin Layton; whereas the disposition as well as granting of Money by Act of Parliament, hath ever been in the House of Commons; and this Amendment relating to the disposal of Money, does intrench upon that Right.

"The Commons do disagree to the Fourth Amendment; because it is notorious, That Edward Whitaker, mentioned in the Rider left out by their Lordships, hath by Colour of his Impeachment, as Solicitor to the Admi-1701. "ralty, received the Sum of Five and twenty thousand Pounds and upwards of Publick Moneys, without producing any just or reasonable Vouchers for the Expence thereof; and therefore ought to be accountable for the same.

"And that by reason of their Lordships disagreeing to the several Parts of this Bill, the Supplies provided by the Commons for paying the Arrears of the Army, must of necessity be ineffectual till another Session of Parliament.

To interrupt these fatal Disputes between the two Houses, it was the greatest Wisdom of His Majesty first to take no Notice of them, and then to put a more speedy End to this Session; and therefore on the said Tuesday, June 24. the King came to the House of Peers, and sent for the Commons to attend him; when Mr. Speaker upon presenting the Money-Bills, deliver'd himself to His Majesty in this Speech.

S I R,

'Tis with great Joy and Satisfaction that I attend Your Majesty at this time, since Your Commons have comply'd with all Your Majesty was pleas'd to desire at their Meeting. They have pass'd the Bill of Succession, which hath settled the Crown in a Protestant Line, and continu'd the Liberty of England which Your Majesty hath restored and preserv'd. They have pass'd a Bill for taking away those Privileges which might have prov'd burthensome and oppressive to Your Subjects. They have given Your Majesty those Supplies which are more than ever were given in a time of Peace, to enable Your Majesty when You are Abroad to Support Your Allies, procure either a lasting Peace, or to preserve the Liberties of Europe by a necessary War.

Then His Majesty gave the Royal Assent to, 1. An Act for Granting to His Majesty an Aid for Defraying the Expence of His Navy, Guards and Garrisons for one Year, and for other Necessary Occasions. 2. An Act for Granting to His Majesty several Duties upon Low-Wines, or Spirits of the first Extraction; and continuing several Additional Duties upon Coffee, Tea, Chocolate, Spices and Pictures; and certain Impositions upon Hawkers, Pedlars, and Petty-Chapmen, and the Duty of Fifteen Pounds per Cent upon Muslins; and for Improving the Duties upon Fanned and Lacquered Goods, and for continuing the Coinage-Duty for the several Terms and Purposes therein mentioned. 3. An Act for Appropriating Three thousand Seven hundred Pounds Weekly, out of certain Branches of Excise, for Publick Uses, and for making a Provision for the Service of His Majesty's Household and Family, and other His Necessary Occasions. 4. An Act to enable His Majesty to make Leases and Copies of Offices, Lands and Hereditaments, parcel of His Dutchy of Cornwall, or annexed to the same, and for Confirmation of Leases already made. 5. An Act to enable Sir Thomas Stanley, Baronet, to Charge certain Mannors and Lands in the County of Lancaster, with Three thousand Pounds, for Payment of his Sisters Portions, and his Debts. 6. An Act for Sale of the Estate of James Deane, and for Securing the Moneys rais'd thereby for the Benefit of himself and Family, according to the Settlement thereof. 7. An Act for Naturalizing Peter Bagwel, Daniel Senault, and others. 8. An Act for Naturalizing Gasper Gordoso, Harman Van't Weede, and others. 9. An Act to Enable Richard Bigg to Charge part of his Estate in the Counties of Hertford and Bedford, with the Payment of his Debts. And afterwards made this Speech to Both Houses.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

THE Session being now come to a Conclusion, I must return you My hearty Thanks for the great Zeal you have expressed for

1701. “ for the Publick Service, and your ready Compliance with those things which I recommended to you at the opening of this Parliament. “ And I must thank you, Gentlemen of the House of Commons in particular, both for your Dispatch of those necessary Supplies which you have granted for the Publick Occasions and “ for the Encouragements you have given Me “ to enter into Alliances for the Preservation of the Liberty of Europe, and the Support of the Confederacy; in which, as it shall be My Care, not to put the Nation to any unnecessary Expence, so I make no doubt that whatsoever shall be done during your Recess, for the Advantage of the Common Cause in this Matter, will have your Approbation at Our Meeting again in the Winter.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

“ I shall conclude with Recommending to you all, the Discharge of your Duties in your respective Counties; that the Peace of the Kingdom may be secured by your Vigilance and Care in your several Stations.

Then the Lord Keeper (by His Majesty's Command) Prorogued the Parliament until Thursday the Seventh Day of August next.

Thus ended this memorable Session.

Honours and Preferments.

On March 27. His Majesty had appointed Thomas Earl of Pembroke, Lord President of the Council, to be First Lord Commissioner of the Admiralty, in the room of John Earl of Bridgewater, who died on March 19. much lamented for a just and good Man, a Faithful Friend, and a Wise Counsellor. On the same day Henry Boyle, Esq; Chancellor and Under-Treasurer of His Majesty's Exchequer, was Sworn of the Privy-Council; and Thomas Pelham, Esq; was made one of the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury. On April 2. Henry Howard Duke of Norfolk died a Sudden Death: He had been bred a Roman-Catholic, but leaving the Church of Rome about the time of the Popish Plot, he ever since continued stedfast to the Church of England, and was a Zealous Promoter of the Revolution. His Place of Earl-Marshal was conferr'd upon the Earl of Carlisle, during the Minority of his Nephew my Lord Thomas Howard's Eldest Son, who succeeded him in his Honour and in his Estate, if at the Age of Eighteen he should conform to the Rights of the Church of England. Within the same Month died Francis Lord Carrington, Robert Earl of Lindsey, and Theophilus Earl of Huntingdon; the latter a great Enemy to the Government, and for that Reason to his own Son. On April 3. His Majesty conferr'd the Dignity of a Baronet of this Kingdom upon Samuel Moyer of Pitsey-Hall, in the County of Essex, Esq;. On April 26. the King appointed Sir George Rook to be Admiral and Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Fleet this Summer, which lay at Spithead; and on May 3. was joined by Admiral Allemond and Admiral Callemburg, with 5 Dutch Men of War. On May 23. Captain William Kidd, and three other Pirates lately Condemned at the Admiralty-Sessions at the Old-Baily, were Executed at Execution-Dock. At the beginning of this Year, the Count de Wratislaw came Envoy Extraordinary from the Emperor, and the Baron de Spanheim Envoy Extraordinary from the King of Prussia; and Hadgi Mustapha Aga, Envoy from the Bashaw and Government of Tripoli. On June 1. His Majesty upon a sense of His own declining Health, was pleas'd to declare John Earl of Marlborough to be General of the Foot, and Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Forces in Holland. On June 18. His Electoral Highness of Hannover, and the Duke of Queensbury were Elected Knights of the Garter, in a Chapter held at Kensington. On June 19. Robert Earl of Lindsey Lord Great Chamberlain of England, and Charles Earl of Carlisle, Earl-Marshal of England during the Minority of the Duke of Norfolk, were Sworn of the Privy-Council.

Within four Days after the Parliament rose, the King declared in Council, That the Publick Affairs requiring His going over into Holland for a short time, He had appointed the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Keeper, the Earl of Pembroke, the Duke of Devonshire, the Duke of Somerset, the Earl of Fersey, and the Lord Godolphin, to be Lords Justices of England, for the Administration of the Government during His Majesty's Absence. At the same time the Duke of Somerset was Sworn of the Privy-Council. At the same time His Majesty was pleas'd to appoint the Earl of Marlborough to be His Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary for the Negotiations at the Hague; and to Constitute Edward Southwell, Christopher Musgrave, and James Vernon, Jun. Esq; Commissioners for Executing the Office of Keeper of His Majesty's Privy-Seal, vacant by the Death of the Right Honourable Ford late Earl of Tankerville, who died on June 25. being succeeded in the Barony Werke by his Brother the Honourable Ralph Gray, Governor of Barbadoes. In the same Evening His Majesty appointed Sir Thomas Trevor, Kt. His Attorney-General, to be Lord Chief-Justice of the Common-Pleas, in the place of Sir George Treby, deceas'd; and Edward Northey of the Middle-Temple, Esq; to be Attorney-General. And when on the same Day the Lord-Mayor and Court of Aldermen had waited on His Majesty to take Leave of Him, His Majesty was graciously pleas'd to accept that Demonstration of their Loyalty and Affection, and conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Peter Floyer, Esq; Alderman, and one of the Sheriffs Elect for the Year ensuing. On June 28. His Majesty conferr'd the like Honour of Knighthood upon the Sieur Benjamin Pontle of Amsterdam, in consideration of his good Services.

On Monday-Morning, June 30. the King went from Hampton-Court, and lay that Night at Canterbury, and the next Day about Noon Embark'd at Margate in a Yacht, with a Convoy under Command of Rear-Admiral Munden, on whom His Majesty conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood on Board the Yacht in Margate-Road. He arriv'd in the Maeße on Thursday Morning, and went that Night to the Hague. The next Day he receiv'd the Compliments of the Ambassadors, and other Foreign Ministers; as also of the Courts of Justice, and of the Council of Brabant; and in the Afternoon he went to the Assembly of the States-General, to whom he Address'd himself in this Manner.

High and Mighty Lords,

“ I always come into this Country with Joy, His “ but more especially in this dangerous Con- Speech to “ juncture of Affairs, because I foresee My Pre- the States-“ fence will be necessary for the Service of the General “ State. I was in hopes, and desir'd to have “ pass'd the rest of my Days in Repose and “ Peace; and after the End of my Days, to “ have left this State in a quiet and flourishing “ Condition. To which End I have always li-“ bour'd, particularly after the Conclusion of the “ last Peace: But since there have happen'd such “ great Alterations in the Affairs of Europe, that “ we know not what will be the Disposal of “ Divine Providence concerning them: Never“ theless, I can sincerely assure your High Pui“ fances, that whether Affairs may be accom“ modated

Other Honours and great Offices.

1701.

The King goes to Holland.

1701. "modated without coming to further Embroil-
 "ments, or whether we must be obliged to take
 "Arms again, I persist in the same Affection,
 "and the same Zeal which I ever had for the "Service and Prosperity of these Provinces;
 "and will contribute as far as lies in my Power,
 "whatever may tend to advance the Welfare
 "of this State, the Maintenance of their Li"berties and Religion, and their particular Se"curity, as well as that of Europe. I am over-
 "joyed to find all things still in a quiet Condi"tion; which next to the Blessing of the Al"mighty, must be ascribed to the Speedy and
 "unanimous Resolution of your High Puissances,
 "to put your selves in a Posture of De"fence. I am perswaded, that the respective "Confederates will contribute strenuously to"wards it; which I look upon as the only "Means to prevent a War; or in Case of a "Rupture, to defend the State from the Danger
 "that threatens it. 'Tis a great Satisfaction to "me, that I can assure your High Puissances,
 "not only of my Affection, but of the whole
 "English Nation; and that they are ready to "assist this State, and strongly to contribute to"wards their Defence, and to whatever may
 "tend to the common Security: And this is
 "what your High Puissances may be fully con"vinced of. I hope the Great God will Bless
 "the Means which you have made use of,
 "either by way of Negotiation, or by Force of "Arms, in case of a Rupture, to attain the "End proposed; that is to say, reasonable Se"curity for the Common Cause, and particu"larly the Preservation of this State in their "Liberties and Religion. There is nothing
 "which I wish with more Fervency; and I will "contribute towards it whatever lies in my "Power. This is what I thought necessary to "say at present, only that I desire the Con"tinuance of your High Puissances Affection
 "and Amity.

Answer of the States. To this their High and Mightinesses return'd an Answer to this Effect. "That they thank'd
 "His Majesty with all their Hearts, for the "Honour he had done them to come again in-
 "to their Assembly; and at the same time testi"fied their unexpressible Joy to see his happy
 "Arrival. That they were sensible how much
 "His Majesty's Presence was necessary among "them, in such a Thorny Conjunction, to set"tle Affairs in a good Condition, and so to "preserve them, with the Assistance of God,
 "out of the great Confidence which they all
 "had, from the highest to the Lowest, in His "Majesty's Prudence and surpassing Abilities.
 "That they were extremely obliged to His Ma"jesty, and most heartily thanked Him for His "persevering in His kind Inclinations for their "Repose and Tranquility. That they were "fully convinced, that since the last Treaty of "Peace, His Majesty's Care and Application
 "had tended to the Preservation of the said
 "Peace, and the publick Tranquility. That "they were overjoy'd that their Conduct, since
 "the strange Mutations in General Affairs, had "met with His Majesty's Approbation. And
 "in regard the State was in so much danger,
 "that their Religion and Liberties lay at Stake
 "they are resolv'd to use all possible Means for
 "the Preservation of those inestimable Pledges.
 "That they could not omit to thank His Ma"jesty for His Assurances, not only in His own,
 "but in the Name of the English Nation, in "favour of themselves and the Common Cause;
 "well knowing how much they might rely upon
 "a People, whose Courage and Valour had "gained so much Reputation in the World.

1701. "That they were always of Opinion, that their "Interests were inseperable from those of Eng- "land. In the mean time, they most ardently
 "besought the Almighty to Bless His Majesty
 "and His Counsels, and to grant Him long "Life, Health and Strength, that He might be "able to continue His Cares for the Publick
 "Good, and the Welfare of His own Kingdoms
 "and their State: Assuring Him of their Per"severance in that Amity and high Esteem
 "which they have always had, and ever shall
 "be bound to have of His Majesty, so long
 "as their State endures.

After this, His Majesty went to view the Frontier Garisons; and returning to the Hague,
 He found that on the 26th Instant Monsieur D'
Avaux had delivered a Letter from the King of France, accompanied with a Memorial of His own, to notify the Recalling of the Ambassador. The Letter was this.

To our most Dear Great Friends and Allies.

Most Dear, Great Friends,
 Allies and Confederates.

WE have thought fit to recall the Count D' Letter of Avaux, our Ambassador Extraordinary to the French you, seeing the little Fruit those Conferences have pro- King to duced which you have desired of us, and which you the States.
 have since often interrupted. We are not the less inclined to the Establishing of the Peace: As he will further declare his Intentions to you before his Departure. Nothing remains for us, but to assure you,
 That it still depends on you to receive Marks of our Ancient Friendship for your Republick, and of our Desire to give you Proofs thereof, upon all Occasions:
 So we pray God, that he may have you, Most Dear, Great Friends, Allies and Confederates, in his Holy Keeping.

Given at Versailles the 18th of July, 1701.

Your Good Friend, Ally and Confedrate,

LEWIS.

Colbert.

The Memorial which accompanied this Letter, contained in substance.

"That his Excellency was in Hopes, that Memorial their Lordships would have had that Confi- of the dence in his Master's Affection, and his De- Count D' sires of Peace, that would have dissipated those Avaux.
 vain Fears, which the Advancement of his Grandson to the Throne of Spain had infused into them, and that he should have returned to the King his Master, with the satisfaction of having been employ'd in preventing the new Troubles that threatned Europe. Which hope was confirm'd, when, by their acknowledging the Lawful Rights of the King of Spain, they Wrote to Congratulate Him, and seem'd thereby to disown the Injustice of Foreign Pretensions, whatever they might persist in demanding for themselves. So that all things seem'd to be in a fair way towards the settling of Peace, when the Proposals made by your High Puissances, and the King of England's Envoy, gave occasion to judge, that War rather than Peace would be the Fruit of that strict Union, which the Conformity of Proposals denoted between that Prince and your High Puissances. They protested, That their excessive Demands, were the effect of a Just Fear, grounded on the King's Power.
 But if that Fear, so lively express'd in their Letter to the King of Great Britain, during the Sitting of the Parliament were real, and that they had no other end in representing them, than to prevent them; the Means of doing it were in their own Hands; there was no need of making all those Preparations for the "greatest

1701. "greatest War. That their Lordships had de"fired the Conferences, and it depended upon
 "them to render them useful. But their Lord-
 "ships had again delayed the Conclusion of "them, by demanding the Admission of the "King of England's Envoy into the Conferen"ces. Which if he opposed for some time,
 "twas out of his sincere Desire to remove all
 "Obstacles, which the Enemies to Peace are con"tinually laying in the Way. Nor did His Ma"jesty believe their Lordships would so easily
 "have insisted upon the pretended Satisfaction
 "to be given to the Emperor, confounding the "Interests of other Princes with their own, and "set themselves up for Arbitrators between the "Houses of France and Austria; that so Wise a
 "Republick should, in Favour of the House of "Austria against France, resolve to break these "Treaties, which they had look'd upon as the "Confirmation and Seal of their Sovereignty;
 "that they should engage themselves, at the
 "Expence of their Provinces, their Countries,
 "and their Wealth, to Support Foreign Inter"ests, when a little before they had acted
 "quite the contrary, by Acknowledging the "King of Spain.

"That his Excellency should abuse his Master,
 "should he write to him that any Success was to "be expected from the Conferences. That his "Master had too discerning a Judgment, after
 "the King of Great Britain's Envoy had declar"ed, That his Master would never depart from
 "the Interest of the Emperor; that he would
 "not enter into any Proposals of Accommoda"tion, unless Satisfaction were given to that
 "Prince: That the Ties between their Lord-
 "ships and the King of England were too strict,
 "and had too well made known their blind Sub-
 "mission to the Sentiments of that Monarch,
 "and no doubt that they had already taken a "Resolution to make the same Declaration to
 "the most Christian King's Ambassador. In"deed, they had done it already before-hand, by "declaring that their Commissioners should not "continue the Conference without the Inter"vention of the English Envoy: So that if he
 "exclude himself, the Conferences were suspen"ded; and therefore it would be to no purpose
 "for the most Christian King's Ambassador,
 "sent only for the sake of those Conferences,
 "to continue any longer at the Hague. Where,
 "if he has not the satisfaction to fulfil His Ma"jesty's Intentions in establishing a durable Peace
 "between him and the United Provinces, yet it "will be some Consolation to him, that he had "made known His Majesty's Desire to contri"bute whatever depends on him, to prevent a "Rupture of the Publick Peace. That he has "taken Arms in the Defence of his Grandson
 "only; and that if it had been his Design to "make new Conquests, he might have done it
 "when his Forces, upon the Frontiers of their
 "Republick, afforded him the Means to have "made his Advantage of their Weakness. At "length his Excellency wishes, that their Lord-
 "ships, convinced by His Majesty's Conduct of "the Sincerity of his Intentions, would while it
 "was yet time, take such Resolutions as might
 "be conformable to their true Interests."

To which the States-General return'd an An"swer, which was on the 1st. of August, N. S. deli-
 "ver'd to the Ambassador, to this Effect.

"That they were obliged to the most Christi"an King, for sending hither the Count d'Avoux
 "as his Ambassador Extraordinary: They
 "wish'd sufficient Means might have been found "in the Conference to have obtain'd a General
 "Peace, and Reasonable Security for themselves, 1701. "and that he had carried till that had been done.

 "They were troubled he should be recall'd before
 "those things were effected; and so much the
 "more, that the Cause of it should be imputed
 "to their Conduct. That upon His most Chri"stian Majesty's signifying to them, that he ac"cepted the Will of the late King of Spain in"stead of the Treaty of Partition, they gave "him their Reasons why they could not come "to a speedier Resolution in that Affair: And,
 "as soon as their Constitution would allow it,
 "they offered to enter into a Conference with
 "any that His Majesty should think fit to ap"point. That they appointed Deputies accor"dingly to treat with the Count d'Avoux; and
 "in Compliance with His Majesty, own'd the "new King of Spain, that they might remove
 "all Occasions of Delays, and give a convin"cing Proof of their Desire to preserve the "Grand Peace. They cannot apprehend how "they should obstruct the same by the Interven"tion of the King of Great Britain, who was "one of those concerned in the Treaty of Par"tition, or by the Intervention of any other
 "Potentate that has an Interest in preserving
 "the General Peace. That they had not there"by owned the Justice or Injustice of the Pre"tensions of a third Party, nor separated their "Interests from any who are concern'd in the "General Peace. That since His Majesty's Mi"nisters had represented to them, that the End "of the Treaty of Partition might be as well
 "obtain'd by the Acceptation of the Will, they
 "desir'd the Count d'Avoux might make Pro"posals for the General Peace, and their parti"cular Security; and he excusing himself, and "desiring Proposals from them, they had, in "Concert with His Majesty of Great Britain, de-
 "liver'd him Proposals. They cannot compre"hend why the Effect of that Union betwixt
 "them and the said King, should be rather War
 "than Peace, since His Majesty of Great Britain
 "has on all Occasions given sufficient Proofs of "His Inclinations to Peace. That they were "strictly united with him by Alliances many "Years ago, for their mutual Security: That "he was one of the chiefest Parties in the Tre"aty of Partition; and that they declared be"fore their Proposals were communicated, they "thought his Consent necessary, as well for "these Reasons, as for his private Relation to "their Republick; and no Objection was then
 "rais'd against it. They were sorry the King
 "of France had returned no Answer to their "Proposals; which, though they had heard to "be called Excessive, no body had undertaken
 "to prove them such. That the General Peace
 "could not be preserved, without Satisfac"tion to the Emperor, whose Pretensions were
 "so far own'd by the King of France himself in
 "the Treaty of Partition, that it was agreed
 "how the same should be satisfied: That there"fore there was nothing in this Article of their "Proposal that could be called Excessive; and
 "what they had demanded for their own Secu"rity, was not equal to what they had before
 "the Death of the late King of Spain, or to
 "what they had acquired by the Treaty of Par"tition. That their Forces were not grounded "alone on their own private Sentiments, but on
 "the Opinion of their Allies, who had not scrup-
 "pled to send them the Assistance they were "obliged to by their Alliances. That had it
 "been in their Power to rid themselves out of "their Difficulties, without Aiming, seeking
 "new Alliances, and drowning their Country,
 "they would certainly have done it. That the "Difficulties rais'd about admitting the English
 "Favoy

1701.

“ Envoy, was not from them, but from the “ Count d'Avaux, and not chargeable upon “ them, for the Reasons before-mentioned.
 “ That the King of France had Reason to think
 “ they would insist on Satisfaction to the Empe“ ror, seeing that was the first of their Propo“ sals, which the King of France himself thought “ just and necessary. That they had given no “ Cause to think that they presumed to set up
 “ as Umpires betwixt France and Austria, or to “ determine which of the Two last Kings of “ Spain had a Right to alter the Laws of the “ Succession to that Crown; but desired His “ Majesty to remember, that he himself, as “ well as the King of Great Britain and the “ States, thought a War would be unavoidable,
 “ if upon the Death of the late King of Spain,
 “ either he or the Emperor should insist upon
 “ the Pretensions of their Families to the Suc“ cession; and therefore they entred into the “ Treaty of Partition. That their Owning the “ King of Spain could not be judged to be a “ Step contrary to this, since it did not hinder “ giving reasonable Satisfaction to the Emperor.
 “ And the King of France ought to be convinc'd
 “ that they would do nothing to the Detriment
 “ of their Provinces, Commerce or Riches, but
 “ what was absolutely necessary to their Preser“ vation. They had done nothing that could “ be construed a Breach of the Treaties, which “ confirm'd and seal'd their Sovereignty, and “ did not well apprehend the Meaning of that “ Assertion: Their Provinces were always Free
 “ and Sovereign; their Ancestors spent their “ Lives and Fortunes to assert their Freedom,
 “ and they resolv'd to do the like. They were “ sorry to hear that the Count d'Avaux expect“ ed no Success from the Conferences, because “ of the English Envoy's declaring that Satisfa“ ction must be given to the Emperor. They “ own'd, that the King of Great Britain and “ they thought it reasonable to treat of Satisfa“ ction to that Prince; and that the Emperor “ should, in order thereunto, be invited into the “ Negotiation. The States did not blindly fol“ low the King of Great Britain's Sentiments,
 “ but had a great Deference for his Advice, be“ cause they were persuaded He is wholly inclin'd
 “ to preserve the Peace, and convinc'd he seeks no“ thing but the Welfare of their Republick.
 “ That if the Conferences were suspended upon
 “ that Account, they should look upon it as a “ great Misfortune: But if the King of France
 “ had thought fit to let them continue, and to “ allow Satisfaction to the Emperor, they had “ hopes of a good Conclusion. They had been “ oblig'd indeed, to Arm, but did not begin to “ do it, till they saw their Barriers in the Spanish
 “ Netherlands, that had cost them so much Blood
 “ and Treasure, possess'd by French Troops, their “ own Forces detained, and great Preparations
 “ of War made there. Their Jealousie was be“ sides considerably increased by the strict Uni“ on that appeared every Day between France
 “ and Spain; though the Treaty of Partition “ was made for this, among other Reasons, to “ prevent Jealousies from the Union of too ma“ ny States. That they had endeavour'd by all “ possible Means to preserve Friendship, but if “ they must contrary to their own Inclination “ enter into a War, they have no Cause to “ blame themselves for it, and therefore hop'd
 “ that God would protect them.

Return of the Count
d'Avaux.

Thus all the Pretensions of the French to give the States a reasonable Security, went off with the Count D'Avaux; who yet was willing to retire without any open Breach, and therefore took his Leave of the States in very obliging
 Terms, accepted from them the Present of a

Gold Chain and Medal, and left his Secretary behind, under a Shew of renewing the Negotiations, when he had made a Report of them to his Master. But the States understood the Artful Recess of the Ambassador; and therefore daily augmented their Army with the Troops arrived from Ireland, and with other Auxiliary Forces, and were indefatigably at work on the Fortifications of their Frontiers; so as the People seem'd now no more to fear than to love the French. To strengthen the Alliances, his Majesty sent the Earl of Galloway to treat with the Elector Palatine, and the Elector of Cologne; the Earl of Maclesfield to the Courts of Hanover and the Duke of Cell; Sir Robert Sutton to Venice, &c.

In England the People were in an uneasy Sus-pence between Peace and War; and as much, between the continuance of the present Parliament and the expectance of a new one. Some Addresses did insinuate the Desire of a Dissolution: One from the County of York concluded thus; And we humbly beg leave further to assure Your Majesty, That whenever the Dissolution of this present or any other Parliament shall happen, either by virtue of the Triennial Bill, or Prerogative Royal, we will from time to time make it our constant Endeavour to elect such Persons as shall be in the true Interest of Your Majesty and these Kingdoms. One from the High Sheriff, Gentlemen of the Grand Jury, and Justices of the Peace for the County of Cumberland, ended to the same effect; We humbly beg leave further to assure Your Majesty, That upon all Occasions of Elections, we will constantly endeavour to chuse such Representatives, as shall manifest their Affection to Your Person, and their Zeal to the Church and State, as by Law established. And yet another Address from another Set of Men in the very same County of Cumberland, was made to run in a direct Opposition; while “ they crave leave to give “ His Majesty the Assurance of their Unanimous
 “ and Hearty Concurrence with their Represen“ tatives in Parliament; who they do not doubt
 “ will give His Majesty such fresh Testimonies
 “ of their firm Loyalty at the next Attendance
 “ on His Majesty in the approaching Winter, as “ becomes the Representatives of a most obedi“ ent and dutiful People.” And indeed some Persons did imagine that the very Members did instruct the People to address for the Continuance of their Power in Parliament: For an Address from Exeter, said to be signed at the Assizes there by all the Grand Jury, and by their Foreman Sir John Pole delivered in open Court to Mr. Justice Blencoe, concluded thus; We have not Confi- dence to think we can direct His Majesty, or His Great Council the Parliament: We acquiesce in every thing they have done, and should be extremely concerned that any Device should be set on foot to divide this Nation in the Reign of the Best of Kings, and when we have the best House of Commons, except that which brought His Majesty to the Throne.

The truth is, these Popular Addresses for or against the Continuance of a Parliament, were a very ill Precedent, and therefore not countenanc'd by the King; who yet was always disposed to take his general Measures from the prevailing Inclinations of the People. But to solve this Difficulty, another unforeseen Accident now happen'd, which gave Things quite another Turn, and produced Addresses from all Parts, of the most unanimous Adherence to His Majesty, and of an Abhorrence to the last degree of the French King: We mean the Death of the late King James; who after above Twelve Years Second Exile, and several unsuccessful Attempts of Restoration, and even many Contempts and Neglects of the French King, was so broken with Relentments and Sorrows, that on Sept. 4. O. S.

1701.

Inclinations of the People for a new Parliament.Death of
K. James.

1701. he fell into a Lethargy at St. Germain's, and was thought to be immediately dead; but He recovered some part of his Senses, and lay in Maze and Confusion till Saturday, Sept. 6. when He expir'd between Three and Four that Afternoon. Upon his Decease, the French King presently declared the Young pretended Prince of Wales to be King of England, Scotland, and Ireland. It was supposed this Matter was concerted between the French King and King James, upon the last Indisposition of King William; that in case He died, the Other's Absolute Title should be set up again, either in his own Person, or in his surviving Heir. Others believ'd it a Dying Request of the Unfortunate King James, which the French Monarch in his last Visit to Him, thought it Humanity to grant. Though many Persons did infer, that it was no Point of Honour in the French King, but Self Interest and Revenge, to affront King William, and to keep up a Jacobite Party in England, where Divisions must be his only Hopes. Some of the wisest Men look'd upon this Action as a Rant, and a prodigal sort of Madness, rather than the effect of mature and sedate Counsels: And therefore it was oppos'd by a Majority of that very Junto whom the King pretended to advise with on this occasion; and among others, they say, by the very Dauphin himself; because they saw the necessity of a War depending on it, which had not otherwise come to any speedy Crisis. King William was a Prince of too much Spirit to digest such an Indignity; and the People of England had such a universal Belief of the Spuriousness of the Prince of Wales, and such a Detestation to have a King impos'd by Lewis the Great, especially at a time when the Succession was just settled in a Protestant Line, that it serv'd only to animate an effectual War against France.

The French King declares for the pretended Prince of Wales.

King William resents this Indignity.

The King recalls his Ambassador from France.

Lord Mansfield's Letter.

M. de Torcy's Answer.

M. Poussin commanded to leave England.

Accordingly, His Majesty was no sooner inform'd of this Insolent Step taken by the Court of France, but he forthwith dispatch'd a Courier to the King of Sweden (as Guarantee of the Treaty of Ryswick) to give him an Account of the manifest Violation of it. On the same day His Majesty sent an Express to my Lord Manchester, His Ambassador in France, to come directly away, without taking Leave. My Lord having received his Orders, sent the following Letter to M. de Torcy, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

My Lord,

The King my Master being informed, That His Most Christian Majesty has acknowledged another King of Great Britain, thinks that His Glory, and Honour permits him no more to have an Ambassador near the King your Master; and has sent me Orders to depart immediately; which I do myself the Honour to acquaint you by this Letter; and withal to assure you, that I am, &c.

Hereupon the French King, who was then at Fontainebleau, assembled his Council; and after Two or Three Days this Answer was returned.

My Lord,

I have nothing more to add to what I had the Honour to tell you Eight Days ago, of the sincere Desire the King has always had, to preserve with the King your Master the Peace confirm'd by the Treaty of Ryswick. I pray you only, as to me in particular, to be persuaded, that in what Place soever you be, you will have none that shall be with more Sincerity than I shall be all my Life-time, Your &c.

My Lord hereupon having obtained his Passports, made haste to leave that Intriguing Court: And before 23. Sept. Notice was given by His Majesty's Command, to Monsieur Poussin the French Secretary here, That he should forthwith depart out of England. Before his departure, one thing happen'd, that made a noise of Jealousies and Fears: Three Gentlemen, Members of the House of Commons, Mr. Anthony Hammond, Mr. John Tredenham, and Dr. Charles Davenant, were found at Supper with him at the Blue Posts a Night or two before he went off: This gave an Alarm of Secret Correspondence; and though they excus'd themselves upon Accident and common Civility, yet the World open'd their mouths against them, and left them the Name of Poussincers, as a Blot and Reproach that was not easily wip'd off.

In the mean time, the Nation as well as His Majesty began to resent this Indignity offer'd by the French King: The City of London set the good Example in this Address present'd to the Lords Justices, containing their Declaration of Abhorrence in these Words:

Great Sir,

"We are deeply sensible how much we are induty bound highly to resent that great Indignity and Affront offer'd to Your most Sacred Majesty by the French King, in giving the Title of King of England, Scotland, and Ireland, to the pretended Prince of Wales, contrary to Your Majesty's most Just and Lawful Title, and to the several Acts of Parliament for settling the Succession to the Crown in the Protestant Line.

"By this it is apparent he designs, as much as in him lies, to dethrone Your Majesty, to extirpate the Protestant Religion out of these Your Majesty's Kingdoms, and to invade our Liberties and Properties; for the maintaining whereof Your Majesty hath signaliz'd Your Zeal, by the often hazarding Your precious Life.

We therefore, Your Majesty's most Loyal Subjects, do sincerely, unanimously, and cheerfully, assure Your Majesty, That we will at all Times, and upon all Occasions, exert the utmost of our Abilities, and contribute whatever lies in our Power, for the Preservation of Your Person (whom God long preserve), and the Defence of Your Just Rights, in opposition to all Invaders of Your Crown and Dignity.

This Address being transmitted to the King in Holland, His Majesty was very well pleas'd with this Expression of the Loyalty and Affection of the City; and order'd their Excellencies the Lords Justices, as by his special Direction, to acquaint the Lord Mayor and Aldermen with the great Satisfaction He received in it: Which their Excellencies signified to the Aldermen on October 14. And next day the Lord Mayor summon'd the Common-Council to meet, to communicate to them His Majesty's most Gracious Acceptance of their Address. According to this Precedent, numerous Addresses came from all Parts of the Kingdom with like Expressions of Detestation of the Spuriousness of the French King, and Assurances of asserting and defending His Majesty's undoubted Right and Title to the Imperial Crown of these Kingdoms, against the pretended Prince of Wales and all his Adherents: And several Corporations express'd themselves to this effect, That if Occasion should require, they would make Choice of such Persons to represent them in Parliament, as they had good Reason to believe, would readily go into all such Measures as might effectually conduce to the Ends of supporting and defending His Majesty's Person and Government, and the Succession in the Protestant Line.

His Majesty, when He had perfected the Alliances He was making abroad, and especially that between England, Holland, and the Empire, which was concluded about the middle of Sep-1701.

Address of the City of London.

The King much pleas'd with this Address.

General Alliance made by the King.

1701. tember, began to prepare for His Return; but under that Intention He was detain'd at the Hague above a Month, very much indispos'd, tho' it was kept very private: For the very News of His Sickneſs would have been a dreadful Obſtruction to the Interests of Europe; and if His Death had happened at that time, it muſt have occasion'd in England and other Parts unſpeakable Confuſion. His Majesty however began to make His Illneſs a Prefage of His not having long to live: And therefore, upon a Diſcourſe concerning the Succeſs and brave Actions of the King of Sweden, in the North, againſt the Poles and Saxons; and of Prince Eugene, in Italy, againſt the French; He fetch'd a ſort of languiſhing Sigh, and ſaid; It was a ſne thing to be a Young Man. It is moſt certain, His Majesty from this time was very ſenſible of His declining State; and He was pleas'd to tell my Lord Portland this Winter in his Garden at Hampton-Court, That He found Himſelf ſo weak, that He could not expect to live another Summer: But charged him at the ſame time to ſay nothing of it till He was dead.

Parliament diſſolv'd. Soon after His Majesty's Arrival, the Parliament was Prorogued till the 13th of November, and ſoon after Diſſolv'd by a Proclamation importing the Reaſons of it to be, in this extraordinary Juncture, to give the People Opportunity of chuſing ſuch Perſons to repreſent them in Parliament, as they ſhould judge moſt likely to bring to effect their juſt and pious Purpoſes; of ſhewing a Reſentment of the Injuſtice and Indignity offer'd by the late Proceedings of the French King; and of expreſſing an Affection to His Majesty's Perſon and Government; and of doing all things which can be deſir'd from good Engliſhmen and Proteſtants; and therefore to call a New Parliament on Tueſday the 30th of December next. The Elections went on with unhappy but not unuſual Conteſts. The City of London, and Borough of Southwark, having choſen by great Majority very Worthy Perſons to be their Representatives, they deliver'd Papers of Inſtructions to them, that deſerve to be remembred. That from the City to their Members ran thus:

Inſtructions to Members elected. Gentlemen,
 "We earneſtly deſire and charge you our Representatives, that in the approaching Parliament you heartily purſue the Engagements made to his Majesty in the Adreſs of this City, and other Loyal Adreſſes from all Parts of the Kingdom. To this purpoſe we expect, that to the utmoſt of your Power, and without loſs of Time, you endeavour to put His Majesty into a Condition to maintain his undoubted Right and Title to the Crown, and to vindicate His and the Nation's Honour. To enable Him in this Critical Juncture, to provide for the Security of His Kingdoms; to appear at the Head of the Proteſtant Intereſt; to make good His Alliances, and in Conjunction with His Allies, ſo to reduce the French King, that it may be no longer in his Power to diſturb and oppreſs the reſt of Europe. In order to theſe good Ends, we deſire You diligently to labour to preſerve an entire good Correſpondence between the Two Houſes of Parliament, and hinder the purſuing of private Piques and Animofities; to take care of our Trade, ſupport publick Credit, make good the Deficiencies, and to have ſpecial Regard to the Royal Navy. And ſo God proſper Your Undertakings.

That from the Borough of Southwark was drawn by ſo peculiar a Hand, and gives ſo concise a Recapitulation of the Affairs of Europe, that tis more remarkable than the other.

Gentlemen,

1701.

"It is notorious, that for more than Forty Years the French King hath affected Universal Monarchy; that he has conſtantly purſued the ſame by all the Methods of Violence, Rapine and Injuſtice; and that he has no otherwiſe regarded his Oaths, Treaties and Religion, than as ſo many Solemn Cheats to catch and enſnare all that have depended on him.

"To enable himſelf to Marry the Infanta of Spain, he, by Oath, renounced any Title to that Crown for all the Iſſue of that Marriage; yet he hath made the Invalidity of that Renunciation the Ground of every one of his Wars with the King of Spain.

"By the Pyrenean Treaty he ſtipulated with the King, to give no Aſſiſtance to his Enemy the King of Portugal, yet preſently after diſpatch'd ſo many Troops to the Aſſiſtance of that Prince, as reduced the Spaniſh Monarchy to a Degree of Weakneſs, from which it hath never ſince recover'd.

"He lull'd the Spaniard aſleep with repeated Promiſes of Friendſhip; and then, without giving him any time to prepare for his Defence, carried his Conqueſts over the greateſt part of Flanders; and was prevented only by the Triple Alliance of England, Holland, and the King of Sweden, from reducing the remainder of that Province.

"To the everlaſting Diſhonour of the late King Charles II. he diſengag'd that Prince from ſo neceſſary an Alliance, and preſently after Invaded the Seven United Provinces with all his Forces; and could give no better Reaſon for a bloody War, which reduced thoſe flouriſhing States almoſt to utter Ruin, than that he had been ill ſatisfied with their Conduct.

"To break a powerful Confederacy againſt him, he made the Peace of Nimeguen; by which Conceſſion was made to him of almoſt all his Conqueſts in that War, and immediately after Invaded the Empire himſelf, to aſſiſt his Infidel Confederate.

"The Peace of Ryſwick gave an End to that War, and a Balance to Europe, till the French King by Colour of a Will ſurreptitiouſly gain'd from the late King of Spain, in favour of the Duke of Anjou, has poſſeſt himſelf of the Spaniſh Monarchy, contrary to his own Renunciation, and the Pyrenean Treaty. Flanders and Milan he hath inveſted with his own Troops, while the Duke of Anjou is forced to govern the reſt of that Monarchy, as Vice-Roy to his Grand-Father, both to obtain his Support, and for fear of being excluded from a better Kingdom.

"He has exalted himſelf upon this good Succeſs, and hath already named a Vice-Roy for more Countries, by giving the Title of His Majesty's Kingdoms to the Pretended Prince of Wales. Our Condition muſt be very miſerable, if we are to be governed by the Diſcretion of a King, who hath deſtroy'd the Proteſtants of his own Kingdoms by the Sword, Fire and Gallies; we cannot hope to be us'd with greater Tenderneſs than his own Subjects.

"Nevertheless, we cannot doubt but his repeated ill Succeſſes in Italy, the vaſt Debts of his Crown, increaſed by his prodigious Expences among his Confederate Princes, will oblige him to offer a Treaty, that he may ſave by a Peace a conſiderable ſhare of the Spaniſh Monarchy, rather than loſe the whole by a War. And we had Reaſon to be afraid that the Division of the Two Houſes of Parliament,

1701. "ment, the Animofities of thofe Men that have
"oppofed the Settlement, the Recognition and "Affociation, and the great Authority of "others, who in former Reigns had always
"given Countenance for the French Invaſions,
"might oblige His Majesty to hearken to ſuch a
"Peace as France would pleaſe to give him

"But we hope, Gentlemen, that the Diſſo-
"lution of the Parliament has put an End to the "Division of the Two Houſes; and we have
"that Assurance of your Integrity and Mode"ration, that you will do nothing to revive the "ſame Division. It is indeed very popular, and "very juſt, to be ſevere with ſuch Miniſters as "have betrayed the Commonwealth: But when
"the Lords, ſo conſiderable a Part of the Legi-
"ſlative Power, have eſpouſed the Innocency
"of any Perſon, We hope you will either give "Credit to their Authority, or defer your Re-
"ſentments during our Common Danger. We "are aſſured that you will neither join with the "Enemies of the King, nor with the Advocates
"of France, to hang upon the Wheels of the "Government.

"We beſeech you, Gentlemen, not to be a-
"muſed with the Offers of any Treaties from
"the French King, or for the ſake thereof, to "defer any Supplies that ſhall be convenient,
"before he ſhall have given entire ſatisfaction to
"the Emperor for his Right to the Spanish Mo"narchy, and to His Majesty for the Affront put
"upon Him and his People, by giving the Title
"of his Kingdoms to the Pretended Prince of "Wales. We hope you will be ready upon all
"Occaſions to Adreſs the King, that he will "never enter into any Treaty with France,
"which ſhall not effectually ſecure to his Peo"ple their Religion and Commerce.

"We beſeech you, Gentlemen, that ſetting
"aſide all other Buſineſs, you will be ſo early,
"and ſo liberal in your Supplies to His Majesty,
"to ſupport his Great Alliances, that France
"may have no Hopes, nor her Enemies any
"Fears of the Neutrality of England: That
"other Princes, like thoſe of Savoy, Portugal, and "Cologne, may not make ſeparate Treaties for
"themſelves with the common Enemy of Eu"rope.

"We beſeech you, Gentlemen, to be careful
"of the Credit of the Government, and to join
"your Votes with ſuch as ſhall be for the moſt
"ſpeedy and moſt eaſie Methods of raiſing Mo"ney; that the Blame of Buying every thing
"for the King at expenſive Prices, may not be
"caſt upon the Miniſters, which has been moſt
"juſtly due to the Diſtance or Inſufficiency of
"thoſe Funds which Parliaments have given.

Above all, Gentlemen, we conjure you to be moſt tender of the Perſon of His Majesty, to endeavour that no Indignity may be offered to a Prince, Born for the Good of Europe; to diſtinguiſh between one that ſits upon his Throne, and ſends Generals Abroad to make Slaughters and Deſolation among his Neighbours, and a King who has ſo liberally and ſo generously expoſed his Life for the Liberty of his Country againſt this common Enemy.

Since the Receſs of the laſt Parliament ſome few Titles and Places had been thus diſpoſed.

Honours
and Pre-
ferments.

On September 1ſt. His Majesty was pleaſed to Confer the Dignity of a Baronet upon John Thornicroft of Milcomb, in the County of Oxon, Eſq; On November 22. His Majesty was pleaſed to grant to the Earl of Radnor, the Office of Steward of the Duchy of Cornwall, and of Warden and Steward of the Stannaries, and of Rider and Maſter of His Majesty's Foreſts and Chaces of Dartmore; in the room of John Earl of Bath deceaſed; and to appoint the Earl of

Rivers to be Lord Lieutenant of the County of Lancaſter, in the room of Charles Earl of Macceſfield deceaſed; who ſoon after his Return from an Embaſſy to the Court of Hanover, died on November 5. ordering by Will all his juſt Debts to be ſatiſfied; and leaving moſt part of his Perſonal Eſtate to his Kinſman, the Lord Mobun, thinking his Hereditary Eſtate and Honours to be ſufficient for his Brother Fiſſon Gerrard. On 27. December His Majesty was pleaſed to conſtitute Charles Earl of Carliffe firſt Lord Commiſſioner of his Majesty's Treafury. And at the beginning of the Parliament, the more wiſely to Balance the Publick Couſels and Interests; on January 1ſt. the Earl of Radnor was Sworn of the Privy Council; On January 4th. the Earl of Mancheſter was conſtituted one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State; On January 8th.
the Earl of Burlington was admitted into the Privy Council; and to compleat the choice of able Miniſters, the King with an admirable Sagacity on January 18. appointed the Earl of Pen-broke to be Lord High Admiral of England and Ireland, and the Dominions thereunto belonging, while the Duke of Somerſet ſucceeded him as Lord Preſident of the Privy Council.

On the appointed day, 30th. December, the Parliament met, and the King came to the Houſe of Peers, and ſent for the Commons; to whom the Lord Keeper ſignified his Majesty's Pleaſure, that they ſhould forthwith proceed to the choice of a Speaker, and preſent him next Morning:
The Competition was between Mr. Harley and Sir Thomas Littleton, to which latter the King and Court inclin'd; but the former was elected by a Majority of Fourteen Votes; who being the next day preſented and approved, His Maje-ſty made this Memorable Speech to Both Houſes.

Meeting
of the
New Parliament.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I Promise My Self you are met together full
"of the juſt Senſe of Our common Danger
"of Europe, and that Reſentment of the late "Proceeding of the French King, which has been
"ſo fully and univerſally expreſt in the Loyal
"and Seaſonable Adreſſes of My People.

King's
Speech.

"The Owing and Setting up the Pretended
"Prince of Wales for King of England, is not "only the higheſt Indignity offered to Me and
"the whole Nation, but does ſo nearly concern
"every Man, who has a Regard for the Prote-
"ſtant Religion, or the preſent and future Qui"et and Happineſs of your Country, that I need
"not Preſs you to lay it ſeriously to Heart, and
"to conſider what further effectual Means may "be uſed for ſecuring the Succeſſion of the "Crown in the Proteſtant Line, and Extinguiſh-
"ing the Hopes of all Pretenders, and their
"open or Secret Abettors.

"By the French King's placing his Grandſon
"on the Throne of Spain, he is in a Condition
"to oppreſs the reſt of Europe, unleſs ſpeedy
"and effectual Meaſures be taken. Under this "pretence, he is become the real Maſter of the "whole Spanish Monarchy; he has made it to be "entirely depending on France, and diſpoſes of "it as of his own Dominions, and by that means
"he has ſurrounded his Neighbours in ſuch a "manner, that though the Name of Peace may "be ſaid to continue, yet they are put to the "Expence and Inconveniencies of War.

"This muſt affect England in the neareſt and
"moſt ſenſible Manner, in reſpect to our Trade,
"which will ſoon become precarious in all the "valuable Branches of it; in reſpect to our "Peace and Safety at Home, which we cannot "hope ſhould long continue; and in reſpect to
"Vol.III. N n n n n z that 1701. "that part which England ought to take in the "Preservation of the Liberty of Europe.

"In order to obviate the general Calamity
"with which the rest of Christendom is threatned
"by this Exorbitant Power of France, I have "concluded several Alliances, according to the "Encouragement given Me by Both Houses of "Parliament; which I will direct shall be laid "before you, and which I do not doubt you
"will enable Me to make good.

"There are some other Treaties still depend"ing, that shall be likewise communicated to
"you as soon as they are perfected.

"It is fit I should tell you, the Eyes of all "Europe are upon this Parliament, all Matters
"are at a stand till your Resolutions are known,
"and therefore no Time ought to be lost.

"You have yet an opportunity, by God's "Blessing, to secure to you and your Posterity
"the quiet Enjoyment of your Religion and Li"berties, if you are not wanting to your selves,
"but will exert the Ancient Vigor of the Eng"lish Nation: But I tell you plainly My Opinion
"is, If you do not lay hold on this Occasion,
"you have no Reason to hope for another.

"In order to do your part, it will be necessary
"to have a great Strength at Sea, and to pro"vide for the Security of our Ships in Harbour;
"and also that there be such a Force at Land as
"is expected in proportion to the Forces of Our "Allies.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

"I do recommend these Matters to you with
"that Concern and Earnestness which their Im"portance requires: At the same time I cannot
"but press you to take Care of the Publick Cred"it, which cannot be preserved but by keep"ing sacred that Maxim, That they shall never
"be Losers, who trust to a Parliamentary Secu"rity.

"It is always with Regret when I do ask Aids
"of my People; but you will observe, that I "desire nothing which relates to any Personal
"Expence of Mine; I am only pressing you to "do all you can for your own Safety and Ho"nour at so Critical and Dangerous a Time;
"and am willing that what is given shall be "wholly appropriated to the Purposes for which "it is intended.

"And since I am speaking on this Head, I "think it proper to put you in mind, That dur"ing the late War I ordered the Accounts to "be laid Yearly before the Parliament, and also "gave my Assent to several Bills for Taking the "Publick Accounts, that My Subjects might have "Satisfaction how the Money given for the War
"was applied; and I am willing that Matter
"may be put in any further way of Examina"tion; that it may appear whether there were "any Misapplications and Mismanagements, or "whether the Debt that remains upon us has "really arisen from the Shortness of the Supplies,
"or the Deficiency of the Funds.

"I have already told you how necessary Dis"patch will be for carrying on that great Pub-
"lick Business, whereon Our Safety, and all that "is Valuable to Us depends. I hope, what "Time can be spared, will be employed about
"those other very desirable Things, which I
"have so often recommended from the Throne;
"I mean, the Forming some good Bills for Em"ploying the Poor, for Encouraging Trade,
"and the further Suppressing of Vice.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I hope you are come together, determined
"to avoid all manner of Disputes and Differen"ces, and resolved to act with a general and
"heartly Concurrence, for promoting the Common Cause; which alone can make this a 1701.

"happy Session.

"I should think it as great a Blessing as could
"befal England, if I could observe you as much
"inclined to lay aside those Unhappy Fatal A-
"nimosities, which Divide and Weaken you,
"as I am disposed to make all My Subjects safe
"and easy, as to any, even the highest Offences
"committed against Me.

"Let Me conjure you to disappoint the only
"Hopes of Our Enemies, by your Unanimity.
"I have shewn, and will always shew, how de-
"sireous I am to be the Common Father of all
"My People: Do you in like manner lay aside
"Parties and Divisions; Let there be no other
"Distinction heard of among Us for the future,
"but of those who are for the Protestant Reli"gion and the present Establishment, and of "those who mean a Popish Prince and a French
"Government.

"I will only add this, If you do in good ear"nest desire to see England hold the Balance of "Europe, and to be indeed at the Head of the "Protestant Interest, it will appear by your
"right improving the present Opportunity.

This Wise and Affectionate Speech was ex"tremely grateful to Both Houses, and they were "very Unanimous in their Thanks for it. The "Lords began the New Year with this seasonable "Present.

Die Jovis 1. Januarii, 1701.

"We Your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal
"Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in
"Parliament assembled, did hear, with all ima"ginable Satisfaction, Your Majesty's most Gra"cious Speech to Both Your Houses of Parlia"ment; for which we return Your Majesty
"our most humble and hearty Thanks. And
"tho' the several Particulars which Your Ma"jesty was pleased to recommend to us, are of "the highest Importance; and that we will lose
"no time in proceeding to the Consideration of "them, with great Duty to Your Majesty;
"Yet we cannot defer expressing our just Re-
"sentments of the Proceedings of the French
"King, in Owning and Setting up the pretend-
"ed Prince of Wales for King of England, and
"other Your Majesty's Realms and Dominions:
"Which we take to be the highest Indignity that "can be offered to Your Sacred Majesty, and
"this Kingdom. And we do assure Your Maje"sty, we are so sensible thereof, that we are re"solved to Assist Your Majesty to the utmost of
"our Power, in defending Your Sacred Person
"and Government from all Attempts whatsoe"ver, that shall be made either from Your open
"or secret Enemies. And that no Enemies to "our Religion and Country, may ever hope to "prosper in their Attempts against Us, when,
"to our great Unhappiness, it shall please God
"to deprive us of Your Majesty's Protection,
"We do further declare our Resolutions to Assist
"and Defend, to the utmost of our Power,
"against the pretended Prince of Wales, and all
"other Pretenders whatsoever, every Person and
"Persons who have Right to Succeed to the "Crown of these Realms, by Virtue of the "Two Acts of Parliament, entitled, An Act
"declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject,
"and settling the Succession of the Crown; and An
"Act for the further Limitation of the Crown, and
"better Securing the Rights and Liberties of the Sub- "ject. And we conclude with our earnest
"Prayers to Almighty God, for Your Maje"sty's long and happy Reign over us.

Address
of the Lords.

1701. To this Address His Majesty made an agreeable Answer.

The King's Answer. My Lords,
 "I heartily thank you for your very reasonable Address, and for all your kind Expressions of Duty to Me in it. I recommend to you to take into your speedy Consideration the other Matters mentioned in my Speech, and doubt not but that your Resolutions will be for the Honour and Safety of the Kingdom.

On the 5th. of January the Commons presented their Address in this agreeable Form.

Address of the Commons. Most Gracious Sovereign,
 "We Your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects the Commons of England in Parliament Assembled, do return our most humble and hearty Thanks to Your Majesty for Your most Gracious Speech from the Throne; and humbly crave Leave to assure Your Majesty, That this House will support and defend Your Majesty's lawful and rightful Title to the Crown of these Realms, against the Pretended Prince of Wales, and all his open and secret Abettors and Adherents, and all other Your Majesty's Enemies whatsoever. And we will enable Your Majesty to shew Your just Resentment of the Affront and Indignity offered to Your Majesty and this Nation by the French King, in taking upon him to declare the Pretended Prince of Wales King of England, Scotland and Ireland: And we are firmly and unanimously Resolved to maintain and support the Succession to the Imperial Crown of this Realm, and the Dominions and Territories thereunto belonging, in the Protestant Line, as the same is settled by an Act declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, and settling the Succession of the Crown, and farther provided for by an Act of the last Parliament, entituled, An Act for the further Limitation of the Crown, and better securing the Rights and Liberties of the Subject. And for the better effecting the same, we will, to the utmost of our Power, enable Your Majesty to make good all those Alliances Your Majesty has made, or shall make, pursuant to the Addresses and Advice of Your most Dutiful and Loyal Commons of the last Parliament, for the preserving the Liberties of Europe, and reducing the Exorbitant Power of France.

King's Answer. To which His Majesty gave this grateful Answer. Gentlemen, I give you My hearty Thanks for this Address, which I look upon as a good Omen for the Session. The Unanimity with which it passed adds greatly to the Satisfaction I receive from it; so good a Step at your first Entrance upon Business, cannot but raise the Hopes of all who wish well to England, and to the Common Cause. I can desire no more of you than to proceed as you have begun; and I depend upon it. For when I consider how cheerfully and universally you concurr'd in this Address, I cannot doubt but every one of you will sincerely endeavour to make it effectual in all the Parts of it.

The Lords had taken into seasonable Consideration the dangerous State of Europe, more especially arising from the Duke of Anjou's possessing the Crown of Spain, which made in effect a Conjunction with France, and so must inevitably overthrow the Balance of Power, unless timely prevented by strong Alliances of other States and Princes: And therefore on Jan. 6. their Lordships address'd the King a second time in these clear Words.

Second Address of the Lords. "We Your Majesty's most Loyal and Dutiful Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament Assembled, are highly sensible of what we owe to Almighty God, for the great 1701. "Deliverance he hath wrought for us by Your Majesty. We are highly sensible of his Mercies in preserving You hitherto, in so many publick and private Dangers to which Your Sacred Person hath been expos'd; and we hope the same Providence will carry Your Majesty through the great Work, (which seems reserv'd for you) the reducing the Exorbitant Power of France, and maintaining the Balance of Europe.

"All true Englishmen, since the Decay of the Spanish Monarchy, have ever taken it for granted, that the Security of their Religion, Liberty and Property, that their Honour, their Wealth, and their Trade, depend chiefly upon the proper Measures to be taken from time to time in Parliament against the Growing Power of France: But it is their peculiar Blessing in Your Majesty's Reign, to have a Prince upon the Throne, who not only agrees with them in this Opinion, but who, in the frequent Parliaments Assembled, is ever Reminding them of this their greatest Concern; and who to compleat their Happiness, is always ready, with the hazard of his Person, to support his Subject and Allies against their Common Enemy.

"And we esteem it a further good Fortune; in the time of publick Danger, That the French King has taken such Measures, which will make it impossible for him to propose any more upon the World, by Treaties often Violated: Neither can he hope any longer to Cover his Ambitious Designs, or Justifie his Usurpations under the specious Pretences of Peace.

"Your Majesty hath so justly represented the Danger to which Europe is expos'd, by the French King's placing his Grandson on the Throne of Spain; Your Majesty is so justly sensible, that under that pretence he is become Absolute Master of the whole Spanish Monarchy; and we are all so well apprized of the dangerous Consequence of this bold Attempt, that we think it most proper to assure Your Majesty in Your own Words, That we are under the highest Impatience, that speedy and effectual Measures may be taken against the undoubted Ambition of the French King.

"And as the Placing his Grandson upon the Throne of Spain is visibly to the whole World, the Cause of all those Dangers mentioned in Your Majesty's Speech, and of the Breach of the Balance of Power in Europe, which the People of England are so deeply engag'd to Preserve; so we humbly conceive the Remedy is as apparent as the Disease; and that Your Majesty, Your Subjects and Allies, can never be safe and secure, till the House of Austria be Restored to their Rights, and the Invader of the Spanish Monarchy brought to Reason.

"To Conclude, Sir, As we humbly Address'd to Your Majesty last Parliament to enter into Alliances with the Emperor, the States of Holland, and all other Princes and States, willing to Unite against the Power of France; so we take the Liberty at this time to assure You, we are all Willing and Zealous to lay hold of this Opportunity, which the Blessing of God, and Your Majesty's Care, have put into our Hands; Resolving to make our utmost Efforts for our own Security, and the Support of our Allies; desiring of Your Majesty to rest assured, That no time shall be lost, nor any thing wanting on our Part, which may Answer the Reasonable Expectation of our Friends Abroad: not doubting but to support the Reputation

1701. "putation of the English Name, when Engaged under so Great a Prince, in the Glorious Cause of Maintaining the Liberty of Europe.

Answer
of His Majesty.

His Majesty return'd this good Answer. My Lords, I am extremely pleas'd to find the just Sentiments you have of the present State of Affairs, and your Readiness to do your Part in this great Conjunction. I hope your joint Endeavours will be successful for restoring the Balance of Europe, and Establishing our Common Security.

State of Europe and before the
Commons.

To bring the House of Commons into more effectual Measures for Espousing and Supporting the Cause of a new War, the King commanded Mr. Secretary Vernon to lay before them the Copies of the Treaties of the Grand Alliance.

1. Treaty between the King of Denmark and the States General, 15 June, 1701.

2. Secret Articles of Treaty with Denmark, 15 June, 1701.

3. Treaty between the Emperor, His Majesty, and the States-General, 7 Sept. 1701.

4. A Convention between the King of England, the King of Sweden, and the States-General, 26 September, 1701.

5. Treaty between the King and the States-General, 11 November, 1701.

All which were so well approved, that the House immediately Resolved on the 7th. of January, that a Supply be Granted to His Majesty: And that whosoever shall advance or lend into His Majesty's Exchequer the Sum of Six hundred thousand Pounds for the Service of the Fleet, shall be repaid the same with Interest at Six per Cent, out of the first Aids to be granted this Session. And that whosoever shall advance the further Sum of Fifty thousand Pounds for the Subsistence of the Guards and Garisons, shall be repaid in like manner.

Resolutions
of the
Com-
mons.

Then they took the State of the Navy into Consideration, and ordered the Commissioners of the Admiralty to lay before that House a State of the Fleet, and Condition of each respective Ship, and Place where they are; with a State of the Debt of the Navy, and an Estimate of what is necessary for the Extra-Repairs of it. And to encourage the People with the hopes of making good all former Deficiencies, they ordered an Account of the Debts of the Nation unprovided for, both Principal and Interest, to be laid before them. And further to justify the Disposal of Publick Funds, they ordered the Speaker to write to two of the Trustees for the Forfeited Estates in Ireland, to attend the House, and lay before them a full Account of their Proceedings in Execution of that Act. And what gave the greatest Life and Spirit to a War Abroad, and Unity at Home, on Jan. 9th. they resolv'd Nemine Contradicente, That Leave be given to bring in a Bill for a further Security of His Majesty's Person, and the Succession of the Crown in the Protestant Line, and Extinguishing the Hopes of the Pretended Prince of Wales, and all other Pretenders, and their open and secret Abettors. And on the next Day they farther Resolved, "That an Humble Address be presented to His Majesty, that He will be graciously pleas'd to take care, that it be an Article in the several Treaties of Alliance with His Majesty and other Potentates, That no Peace shall be made with France, until His Majesty and the Nation have Reparation for the great Indignity offer'd by the French King, in owning and Declaring the Pretended Prince of Wales King of England, Scotland, and Ireland." To which the King gave a cheerful Answer, That He would take Care of what they desired. They Agreed at the same time, That the Proportion of Land-Forces to act in Conjunction with the Forces of the Allies, for making good the Alliances, be Forty thousand Men, and Forty thousand more for Sea-Service.

Happy Proceedings.

They proceeded to a Bill for the Attainder of the pretended Prince of Wales. The Lords were intent upon the same Measures, and pass'd a Bill for the Security of His Majesty's Person and Government, and for maintaining the Succession of the Crown, according to the two late Acts of Parliament; which they sent down to the Commons, who after twice Reading let it lye upon their Table, as thinking their own depending Bills more effectual. Yet the chief of those Bills, that for the further Security of His Majesty's Person, &c. was likely to have been weakened, by an Instruction to the Committee, that they take Care that the Oath in the said Bill mentioned be Voluntary. But the Question being put upon this Offer, it pass'd in the Negative. And on Jan. 22. they gave a much better Instruction to the said Committee, That they do take care to make it equally Penal to compass or imagine the Death of Her Royal Highness the Princess Anne of Denmark, as it is to compass and imagine the Death of the King's Eldest Son and Heir, by the Statute of 25 Ed. III. The House had a Multiplicity of other Business before them; as, the Produce of Customs; the Quakers Bill; the Forfeitures in Ireland; the more effectual Punishing of Vagrants; the Number, and Charge, and Condition of the Forces, to be fill'd up and rais'd for Sea and Land; the Affair of the Abuses committed in the Kings Brewhouse at St. Catherine's; the Apothecaries Bill; the Care of Regulating Collections; the Examination of Shams and Stories told by William Fuller; and of a Letter sent to the Speaker from one Dr. Stringer, pretending the Discovery of a Plot against the Government; with other intervening Affairs that were enough to retard the more important Business of the Nation; wherein notwithstanding, they proceeded with a very vigorous Application. On Febr. 3. they Resolved, That a Sum not exceeding Three hundred Fifty two thousand Pounds be Granted to His Majesty, for the Maintaining of Guards and Garisons, and for providing for Officers upon Half-pay. And to quicken the Allies, as well as to support the King, they Resolved at the same time, "That an Humble Address be presented to His Majesty, that He will be graciously pleas'd to interpose with His Allies, that they may increase their Quota's of Land-Forces to be put on Board the Fleet, in proportion to the Numbers His Majesty shall have on Board His Fleet." To which His Majesty was pleas'd to Answer, He would do it. When they had settled the Sums appropriated to the several Uses of the War, on Febr. 7. they agreed on another Address to the King, "That He would be graciously pleas'd to provide for the Half-pay Officers in the first place, in the Re-ruits and Levies to be now made." To which He Answered, That it was always His Intention.

1701. They proceeded to a Bill for the Attainder of the pretended Prince of Wales. The Lords were intent upon the same Measures, and pass'd a Bill for the Security of His Majesty's Person and Government, and for maintaining the Succession of the Crown, according to the two late Acts of Parliament; which they sent down to the Commons, who after twice Reading let it lye upon their Table, as thinking their own depending Bills more effectual. Yet the chief of those Bills, that for the further Security of His Majesty's Person, &c. was likely to have been weakened, by an Instruction to the Committee, that they take Care that the Oath in the said Bill mentioned be Voluntary. But the Question being put upon this Offer, it pass'd in the Negative. And on Jan. 22. they gave a much better Instruction to the said Committee, That they do take care to make it equally Penal to compass or imagine the Death of Her Royal Highness the Princess Anne of Denmark, as it is to compass and imagine the Death of the King's Eldest Son and Heir, by the Statute of 25 Ed. III. The House had a Multiplicity of other Business before them; as, the Produce of Customs; the Quakers Bill; the Forfeitures in Ireland; the more effectual Punishing of Vagrants; the Number, and Charge, and Condition of the Forces, to be fill'd up and rais'd for Sea and Land; the Affair of the Abuses committed in the Kings Brewhouse at St. Catherine's; the Apothecaries Bill; the Care of Regulating Collections; the Examination of Shams and Stories told by William Fuller; and of a Letter sent to the Speaker from one Dr. Stringer, pretending the Discovery of a Plot against the Government; with other intervening Affairs that were enough to retard the more important Business of the Nation; wherein notwithstanding, they proceeded with a very vigorous Application. On Febr. 3. they Resolved, That a Sum not exceeding Three hundred Fifty two thousand Pounds be Granted to His Majesty, for the Maintaining of Guards and Garisons, and for providing for Officers upon Half-pay. And to quicken the Allies, as well as to support the King, they Resolved at the same time, "That an Humble Address be presented to His Majesty, that He will be graciously pleas'd to interpose with His Allies, that they may increase their Quota's of Land-Forces to be put on Board the Fleet, in proportion to the Numbers His Majesty shall have on Board His Fleet." To which His Majesty was pleas'd to Answer, He would do it. When they had settled the Sums appropriated to the several Uses of the War, on Febr. 7. they agreed on another Address to the King, "That He would be graciously pleas'd to provide for the Half-pay Officers in the first place, in the Re-ruits and Levies to be now made." To which He Answered, That it was always His Intention.

His Majesty to encourage the Dispatch of the Publick Affairs, came to the House of Peers on Tuesday, Feb. 10. and gave the Royal Assent to a Bill which had formerly miscarried, entitled, An Act for reviewing and continuing an Act entitled an Act for the appointing Commissioners to take, Examine and Determine the Debts due to the Army, Navy, and the Transport-Service; and also an Account of Prizes taken during the late War.

The Commons were dispos'd to assert their own Privileges, as well as to consult the common Good; and therefore on the controverted Election at Ataidston, between Thomas Blisse and Thomas Colepepper, Esquires, they resolv'd, That the latter had been Guilty of Corrupt, Scandalous, and Indirect Practices, in endeavouring to procure himself to be elected a Burgess; and being one of the Instruments in promoting and pre-

Acts pass'd.

Commons assert their Privileges.

1701. presenting the Scandalous, Insolent and Seditious Petition, commonly called the Kentish Petition, to the last House of Commons, was guilty of promoting a Scandalous, Villanous and Groundless Reflection upon the said House of Commons, by aspersing the Members with receiving French Money, or being in the Interest of France; for which Offence he should be committed to Newgate, and His Majesty's Attorney-General should prosecute him for the said Crimes.

Under this Indignation, they Resolved on Febr. 26. that agreeable to the Opinions of a Committee appointed to consider of the Rights, Liberties and Privileges of the House of Commons, That to assert that the House of Commons is not the only Representative of the Commons of England, tends to the Subversion of the Rights and Privileges of the House of Commons, and the Fundamental Constitution of the Government of this Kingdom. 2. That to assert, that the House of Commons have no power of Commitment, but of their own Members, tends to the Subversion of the Constitution of the House of Commons. 3. That to Print or Publish any Books or Libels reflecting upon the Proceedings of the House of Commons, or any Member thereof, for, or relating to his Service therein, is a high Violation of the Rights and Privileges of the House of Commons. 4. That it is the undoubted Right of the People of England, to Petition or Address to the King for the Calling, Sitting, or Dissolving of Parliaments, and for the Redressing of Grievances. 5. That it is the undoubted Right of every Subject of England, under any Accusation, either by Impeachment or otherwise, to be brought to a speedy Tryal, in order to be Acquitted or Condemned. And indeed, if every Vote of any Body of Men can create a Privilege to 'em, it is a great Favour to other Bodies and Persons, that they are but short and modest in those Votes and Resolutions.

His Majesty was very sensible that the Protestant Succession would not be so easily settled in Scotland, where it might be retarded on purpose for a Claim to an Independence on the Crown of England; and that nothing was more seasonable at this Juncture than a Union of the Two Kingdoms; to which effect his Majesty in a hearty Concern for the Common Good, writes this Letter to the House of Commons, being disabled from coming to the House of Peers by his late Fall.

William R.

“ HIS Majesty being at present hindered, by an unhappy Accident, from coming in Person to his Parliament, is pleased to signify to the House of Commons by Message, what he designed to have spoken to Both Houses from the Throne. His Majesty in the first Year of his Reign did acquaint the Parliament, That Commissioners were authoriz'd in Scotland to Treat with such Commissioners as should be appointed in England, of proper Terms for Uniting the Two Kingdoms, and at the same time expressed his great Desire of such an Union: His Majesty is fully satisfied, that nothing can more contribute to the present and future Security and Happiness of England and Scotland, than a firm and entire Union between them; and he cannot but hope, that upon a due Consideration of our present Circumstances, there will be found a general Disposition to this Union. His Majesty would esteem it a peculiar Felicity, if, during his Reign, some happy Expedient for making Both Kingdoms One, might take place; and is therefore extremely desirous, that a Treaty for that purpose might be set on Foot; and does in the most earnest manner recommend this Affair to the Consideration of the House.

1701.

The Commons appointed first one and then another day to consider of this Message, but the shortness of his Majesty's Life prevented their coming to any Resolution; for his Majesty being in a very infirm State of Health, was still willing to continue his usual Diversions of Hunting; So on February 21. riding out from Kensington to Hunt near Hampton Court, as he was putting his Horse to the Gallop, the Horse fell, and his Majesty in the Fall broke his Right Collar Bone. Upon this fatal Accident, his Majesty was carried to Hampton-Court, where the Bone was dexterously set by Monfieur Ronjat, Serjeant Surgeon to the King, who having felt his Majesty's Pulse told him he was Feverish, and that any other Person in his Condition would be let Blood; as for that, reply'd the King, I have now and then had a Hand-ake, and some shivering Fits this Fort-night, and had this very Morning a Pain in my Hand before I went out a Hunting. In the Afternoon the King finding himself easy, contrary to Advice, return'd to Kensington, and slept almost all the way in his Coach: He came to Kensington about Nine at Night, with his Right Arm tied up; and as he enter'd the Great Bed-Chamber he saw Dr. Bidloo, to whom he spake in this Manner: I have got a hurt in my Arm, pray come and see it. Soon after, he continued to this Effect; I was Riding in the Park at Noon, and while I endeavour'd to make the Horse change his Walking into a Gallop, he fell upon his Knees: Upon that I meant to raise him with the Bridle, but he fell forwards to one side, and so I fell with my Right Shoulder upon the Ground. 'Tis a strange thing, for it happen'd upon a smooth level Ground. Ronjat (his Majesty's Surgeon) says, There's a little Bone broken; and indeed I feel some Pain towards my Back. At the same time he pointed with his Left hand to the Shoulder-blade, saying, There, there. Dr. Bidloo finding his Pulse in good order, dissuaded him from Bleeding, and after viewing the affected part, gave his Majesty to know, that the Right Channel Bone was broke obliquely a little below its Juncture with the Shoulder-blade. Then his Majesty ask'd, If it was well set? And the Doctor answering, No; he said to Mr. Ronjat, his Surgeon, Justify yourself, Monsieur Ronjat, Is it well set? Mr. Ronjat made answer, That it was well set; but that the jolting of the Coach, and the loosening of the Bandage had occasion'd that Disunion. After the Fracture was taken care of, his Majesty went to Bed, and slept the whole Night so sound, that the Gentlemen who sat up with him, said, they did not hear him complain so much as once.

His Majesty seem'd in a fair way of doing well, till on Sunday, March 1st. a Defluxion fell upon his Knee, which was a great Pain and Weakness to him, and thought to be a very ill Symptom; he took it as a warning for the Dispatch of Publick Affairs; and therefore the next Morning this Message was sent from the House of Peers to the Commons. Mr. Speaker, The King hath granted a Commission under the Great Seal, for passing the Royal Assent to those Bills which have been agreed to by Both Houses of Parliament; and the Lords Com-missioned by the King do desire that this House would presently come up with their Speaker, to be present at the Passing thereof. Then Mr. Speaker with the House went up; and the Lord Keeper acquainted Both Houses, That his Majesty by an unhappy Accident had been prevented from coming in Person, and had Granted a Commission to several Peers for passing the Bills therein mentioned; and

His Majesty's Misfortune and Indisposition.

The King grants a Commission to pass some Bills

1701. and that the Royal Assent was given by Commission to these following Bills: 1. An Act for the Attainder of the Pretended Prince of Wales of High Treason. 2. An Act for Punishing Officers and Soldiers who shall Mutiny or Desert in England and Ireland. 3. An Act for continuing an Act Entituled, An Act that the Solemn Affirmation and Declaration of the People called Quakers shall be accepted instead of an Oath in the usual Form. 4. An Act for Naturalizing Charlelotte, the Wife of Hugh Boscawen, Esq;

On Wednesday, March 4. His Majesty seem'd so well recover'd of the Lameness in his Knee, that he took several Turns in the Gallery at Kensington; but at length finding himself tir'd and faint, he sat down on a Couch and fell asleep, which probably occasion'd that Shivering Fit which soon after seiz'd him, and which turn'd to a Fever, accompany'd with Vomiting and a Looseness: Thereupon the King thought fit to send for Sir Thomas Millington, who attended him to the last Moment, as did also Sir Richard Blackmore, Dr. Hutton, Dr. Hanes, Dr. Browne, Dr. Lawrence, Sir Theodore Collidon, Dr. Bidloo, and others of that Faculty. These Learned Physicians Administred several Remedies to his Majesty that gave him great Relief, and he continued indifferent well till Friday 6th. when his Vomiting and Looseness return'd so violent upon him, that he refus'd to take any Sustenance till Two of the Clock on Saturday Morning, when he sup'd a Cup full of Chocolate, that staid with him; soon after they gave him a gentle sleeping Draught to compose him, which had that good effect that he rested for Three Hours after: In the Forenoon he sup'd some Broth and a Cordial, and found himself somewhat easier, tho' excessive Weak. His Mind was so fixt upon the Publick Interest, that he immediately order'd another Commission, for Passing those Bills that were ready for his Assent; and because he was now so weak, that he could not write his own Name, a Stamp was prepar'd by which he Sign'd the Commission. The Earl of Albemarle arriv'd at Kensington from Holland about Five-a-Clock this Saturday Morning, and immediately went to wait on the King; who being willing at that time to be retir'd, bid his Lordship go and take some Rest, and come to him some Hours after. The Earl attending accordingly, the King call'd him to one side of the Bed, where his Lordship gave him an Account of the Posture of Affairs in Holland, at which His Majesty seem'd well pleas'd. The King had order'd the Two Houses to Adjourn till Six a Clock this Evening; when being met, the Royal Assent was given by Commission to these Bills: 1. An Act for granting an Aid to His Majesty, by laying Duties upon Ale, Malt, Cider, and Perry. 2. An Act for the further Security of His Majesty's Person, and the Succession of the Crown in the Protestant Line, and extinguishing the Hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and all other Pretenders, and their open and secret Abettors. 3. An Act for enabling Lionel Earl of Orrery in the Kingdom of Ireland, by Sale of certain Lands and Tenements, to raise Money for Payment of his Debts, and settle other Lands to the Uses and Purposes in that Act mentioned.

On Saturday Night an extraordinary Council was call'd, before whom the Physicians appear'd frequently, and at last acquainted them by Sir Thomas Millington, That all their Hopes, under God, depended upon the Use of those Remedies they had already prescribed, and upon His Majesty's taking some little Sustenance. Upon this the Duke of Devonshire and several other Noblemen, desir'd Dr. Bidloo to press His Majesty to take something: Accordingly, Dr. Bidloo spoke to Him in Dutch, and His Majesty made Answer, Lift me up, and I'll take as much as I can of what is thought proper. Then He took some of Rawley's Cordial, with the Cordial Julep, and soon after some hot Claret. About the same time he thank'd Bidloo for the great Care he had taken of His Person; adding to this effect, If you and the other Learned Physicians have done all that your Art can do for my Relief, but finding all Means ineffectual, I submit. About Three a Clock on Sunday Morning he call'd again for Dr. Bidloo, and complain'd to him, That He had had a bad Night, and could not sleep: Upon that He sat up, and lean'd on him, saying, I could sleep in this Posture, sit nearer Me, and hold Me so for a little time. In this Posture He slept about half an Hour, and when He awak'd, said, You can bear Me up no longer. Then He was held up by Mr. Freeman on the Right Side, and Mr. Sewell on the Left, both of 'em having Pillows in their Arms. Soon after, the Physicians gave Notice, they were apprehensive His Majesty had not long to live: The Archbishop of Canterbury, who attended him in those Extremes with his Prayers and proper Exhortations, administred the Sacrament to Him about Five in the Morning, which His Majesty received with firm Attention, and very grave Devotion. The Lords of the Privy-Council, with many of the Nobility and Gentry, attended in the adjoining Apartments, and several of 'em were call'd in at times, to whom His Majesty spoke a little, and then they withdrew. Amidst all their Tears, His Majesty did not betray the least Concern or Fear of Death, but labour'd to speak with Ease and Chearfulness; and particularly when he talk'd a little to the Lord Overkirk, He rais'd His Voice in a distinguishing Manner: He took Leave of all of 'em with a great deal of Satisfaction, and deliver'd to the Lord Albemarle the Keys of His Closet and Scripture, telling him, He knew what to do with 'em. After Seven a Clock He took Bidloo by the Hand, and breathing with great Difficulty, He ask'd him, If this could last long? The Doctor answering, No; He ask'd again, How long? To which the Doctor replied, An Hour, or an Hour and half; though you may be snatch'd away in the twinkling of an eye. After that, while the Doctor was feeling His Pulse, His Majesty took him again by the Hand, saying, I do not dye yet; hold Me fast. Having taken a little of the Cordial Potion, he faintly enquir'd for the Earl of Portland, who immediately came to Him, and placed his Ear as near as he could to His Majesty's Mouth; but though His Majesty's Lips were seen to move, his Lordship was not able to hear any distinct articulate Sound. About Eight a Clock, His Majesty sitting on his Bed in his Night-Gown, and in the Arms of Mr. Sewell, one of the Pages of the Back-Stairs, He lean'd a little backwards towards the Left, and shutting His Eyes, Expir'd with two or three soft Gasps. As soon as the Breath was out of His Royal Body, the Lords Lexington and Scarborough, who were then in Waiting, order'd Montier Roujat to pull from the King's Left Arm a Black Ribbon, which tied next to His Skin a Gold Ring with some Hair of the late Queen Mary.

Two Days after, the Royal Body was open'd; and the Physicians and Surgeons summon'd by the Privy-Council to assist at and examine the Dissection, made this Report.

1. Upon the viewing the Body before the Dissection, the following Appearances were remarkable: The Body in general was much emaciated: Both the Legs up to the Knees, and a little higher, as also the Right Hand and Arm, as far as the Elbow, were considerably swell'd: There

Acts passed

King's last Illness.

Acts passed by Commission.

Report of the Physicians.

1701.

The King's last Agonies.

The King's Death.

Report of the Physicians upon Dissection.

1701. There was likewise on the Left Thigh near the Hip, a Bladder full of Water, as big as a small Pullet's Egg, resembling a Blain.

2. Upon opening the Belly, the Guts were found of a livid Colour, and the Blood contained in their Vessels black. The Gut called Illon had in some places the Marks of a slight Inflammation. The Stomach, Pancreas, Mesentery, Liver, Gall, Bladder, Spleen, and Kidneys, were all found, and without Fault.

3. In the Thorax or Chest, we observ'd, That the Right Side of the Lungs adher'd to the Pleura, and the Left much more: From which, upon Separation, there issued forth a quantity of purulent or frothy Serum. The Upper Lobe on the Left Side of the Lungs, and the part of the Pleura next to it, were inflam'd to a degree of Mortification: And this we look upon as the Immediate Cause of the King's Death. From the Ventracles of the Heart, and the greater Blood-Vessels arising out of them, were taken several large, tough, flesh-like Substances, of the kind call'd Polypus. The Heart it self was of the smaller size, but firm and strong.

4. Upon laying bare the Right Collar-Bone, we found it had been broken near the Shoulder, and well set. Some extravasated Blood was lodg'd above and below the Fracture.

5. The Brain was perfectly found, and without any sign of Distemper.

6. 'Tis very rare to find a Body with so little Blood as was seen in this: There being more found in his Lungs, than in all the Parts besides put together.

Doctōrs present.	Surgeons present.
Sir Richard Blackmore,	Mr. Bernard,
Sir Theodore Golladon,	Mr. Cowper,
Dr. Hannes,	Mr. Gardner,
Dr. Harrel,	Mr. Ronjat, &c.
Dr. How,
Dr. Hutton,
Dr. Lawrence,
Sir Thomas Millington,
Professor Bidloo, &c.

Interment of His Royal Body.

The Royal Body having been Embalm'd, and for some time lain in State at Kensington, the private Interment in a Method adjusted by the Lords of the Privy Council, was perform'd on Sunday Night the 12th of April, in a Solemn Procession from the Palace at Kensington to the Collegiate Church of St. Peter's Westminster, where the Royal Corps was laid into a Vault in Henry the VIIIth's Chappel: And after the Office of Burial perform'd by the Dean of Westminster, and an Anthem sung by the Choir, Clarenceux King of Arms concluded in these Words, Thus it hath pleased Almighty God to take out of this Transitory Life to his Divine Mercy, the late most High, most Excellent, and most Mighty Monarch, William the Third, by the Grace of God King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, and Sovereign of the most Noble Order of the Garter. Let us beseech Almighty God to bless and preserve with long Life, Wealth, and Honour, and all Worldly Happiness, the most High, Most Excellent, and most Mighty Princess, our Sovereign Lady Anne, now by the Grace of God Queen of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, and Sovereign of the most Noble Order of the Garter. God save Queen Anne. This being done, the several White Staff Officers of his late Majesty's Household broke their White Staffs, and threw them into the Vault or Grave.

Towards the beginning of May, the last Will which His Majesty had made in the Year 1695, and deposited in the Hands of Monsieur Schuylenberg, was open'd in the Presence of Mr. Stanhope and M. Smettau, Envoys from the Queen of Great Britain and the King of Prussia, and before the Agents of the Prince of Friesland, Anhalt, and divers others, with several Members of the Council of State, and some Commissioners appointed by the Court of Justice in Holland. The Copy of it follows:

1701.

"We William by the Grace of God King of Great Britain, Prince of Orange, &c. Considering the Infirmary and Mortality of Man, the Certainty of Death, and the Uncertainty of the Time and Hour of it, have thought fit and resolv'd, before We leave this Earthly Vale, to dispose of the Temporal Goods which it hath pleased God to give us, as well Feodal as Allodial, by Virtue of a Grant from the States of Holland and West-Friesland, bearing Date, June the 15th. 1673. Recommending first our Immortal Soul into the Merciful Hands of God, and of our Saviour Jesus Christ, and our Mortal Body to the Earth; Revoking, Cancelling and Annulling by these presents, all Testaments, Codicils, or other Disposals, which we have hitherto made or executed; it being our Desire that neither they, nor any of them should be valid, or in any wise take Effect. But disposing thus anew, We declare that we have named and appointed, as by these Presents we do name and appoint, our Cousin the Prince Frison of Nassaw, eldest Son of Prince Cassimur of Nassaw, at present Stadholder of Friseland, our sole and universal Heir of all our Estates, as well Feodal as Allodial, which we shall leave at the Day of our Death, reserving to our selves to appoint him such Guardians as we shall hereafter think fit.

His Majesty's Last Will and Testament.

"We farther declare, that we reserve to our selves the Power of Bequeathing under our Hand and Private Sign Manual, such Legacies and Gifts, as we shall hereafter think fit; Willing and Desiring, that whether they be Written by Us only, and Sign'd by Us, or Written by another, and Sign'd by Us, they may have the same Force and Validity as if they were particularly Inserted and Express'd in our Will. We declare all that is abovewritten, to be our Last Will and Testament; desiring that it may have, and take Effect, either as Testament, Codicil, Donation because of Death, or in any other manner that may render it most Valid and Effectual, notwithstanding any Neglects or Mistakes that may be committed in it, which We desire may be rectified and made good in the best manner that is possible.

"Naming and Appointing for Executors, of this our Last Will and Testament, the States General of the United Provinces; Desiring them to Accept of it, and to be pleased to Execute this Our Last Will and Testament. In Witness whereof, We have caused these Presents to be Written, and have Signed them with Our Hand and Sign Manual, and Seal'd them with our Seal. At the Hague, October the 18th. 1695.

Sign'd William R.

The Seal of His Majesty was put on the side of it, Impressed on Black Wax.

The Subscription was as follows.

To Day being the 19th of October 1695. Before me Adrian Van Stervelt, Publick Notary with Allowance of the Court of Holland, and Residing at the Hague, in the presence of the undernamed Witnesses, Appear'd William III. by the Grace of God, King of Great Britain, Prince of Orange, &c. being known to me the said Notary, and being in 1701. perfect Health of Body, exhibited to me the said Notary, this present Paper, Seal'd in Four Places with His Majesty's Seal, and sew'd with Black Silk, and said that in it was contain'd the Last Will and Testament of His Majesty, and desir'd that it should take Effect as such, tho' all the Forms requisite might not have been Observed.

This was done and pass'd at the Hague, in the Presence of William Earl of Portland, and William de Schuylenbourg, who were desir'd to be Witnesses to it, and who, together with His Majesty and Me the said Notary, Sign'd these Presents, the Day and Year above-written.

It was Sign'd William, KING. Portland, William de Schuylenbourg. And lower, in the Presence of me Adrian Van Stervelt, Notary.

It agrees with the Original, Sign'd,
P. Van Assendelft.

By a Codicil Annex'd to this Will, the Lordship of Breevort, and 200000 Guilders were given as a Legacy to the Earl of Albemarle.

His Majesty's Death was most respectfully Condol'd by the Queen, in this Declaration made at Her first sitting in the Privy-Council at St. James's on March 8.

My Lords,

The Queen Condoles the Death of His late Majesty.

I am extremely sensible of the General Misfortune to these Kingdoms, in the unspeakable Loss of the King, and of the great Weight and Burden it brings in particular to My Self; which nothing would encourage Me to undergo, but the great Concern I have for the Preservation of Our Religion, and the Laws and Liberties of My Country. All these being as Dear to Me, as they can be to any Person whatsoever, you may depend upon it, That no Pains nor Diligence shall be wanting on my Part to Defend and Support them; to Maintain the Succession in the Protestant Line, and the Government in Church and State, as it is by Law Establish'd.

I think it proper, upon this Occasion of My first speaking to you, to declare My own Opinion of the Importance of carrying on all the Preparations We are making to oppose the Great Power of France: And I shall lose no Time in giving Our Allies all Assurances, That nothing shall be wanting on My Part, to pursue the true Interest of England, together with theirs, for the Support of the Common Cause.

In order to these Ends, I shall always be ready to ask the Advice of My Council, and of Both Houses in Parliament, and desirous to Countenance and Employ all those who shall heartily Concur and Join with Me in Supporting and Maintaining the present Establishment and Constitution, against all Enemies and Opposers whatsoever.

Her Majesty gave a farther Testimony of Her Grateful Respect to the Memory of King William, by this Letter to the States-General.

High and Mighty Lords, Our very good Friends,
Allies and Confederates,

And pays a grateful Respect to His Majesty.

IT is not without a sensible Grief, that We find Our selves obliged to Notify to you, the afflicting News of the Death of the most High and most Mighty Prince, William the Third, King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Our Dearest Brother of Glorious Memory. On Monday last He was attack'd with a Fever, which increased so much the Days following, that notwithstanding all possible Remedies, He died on Sunday about Eight a Clock in the Morning. 'Tis certainly a very great Loss to all Europe, and particularly to your State, the Interest of which He always maintain'd with so much Valour, Prudence, Zeal and Conduct. And since it hath pleas'd God, that We should succeed Him upon the Throne of these Kingdoms, We shall likewise succeed Him in His Inclinations to entertain a constant Union and Friendship with your Lordships, and to maintain all the Alliances which have been made with your State, by Our said Most Dear Brother, and Our other Predecessors; and also to concur with you in all such Measures as shall be necessary to preserve the Common Liberty of Europe, and to reduce the Power of France within due Bounds. This is what We would pray you to rest assured of, and that We shall always look upon the Interest of England, and that of your State, to be inseparable, as being united by such Ties that cannot be broke, without the greatest Prejudice to both Nations. So We conclude, praying God, High and Mighty Lords, Our very good Friends, Allies and Confederates, to take you into his Holy and Worthy Protection.

Given at Our Court at St. James's the Tenth Day of March, 1701. And of our Reign the First.

Your very good Friend,

ANNE R.

And underneath,

Ja. Vernon.

The first Reflections that were publickly made on the deceased King, came from the French Court, who had most Reason to be angry with Him. The Sieur de Bane, whom the French King had lately invest'd with the Title of Resident in Holland, presented a Memorial to the States; wherein he was to insinuate, That by the Death of King William, they were now to recover their Time of Liberty, and be no longer under Violence and Constraint: For now their Republick was Restored to it self, and their own Spirit was to Govern, and their own Interests alone to be consulted." The States in their Answer paid this profound Veneration to the Memory of their late Friend and Supporter.

Their High and Mighty Lordships are very much surprized to see, that this whole Memorial seems founded upon this, That they are now more at Liberty to take such Resolutions as they think Expedient, than formerly. Doubtless this has reference to the Death of His Majesty, the late King of Great Britain, of Immortal Memory: But herein the said Sieur Resident has extremely deceived himself, for want of understanding the Constitution of their Government. That he ought to know, that their High and Mighty Lordships have heretofore had as much Liberty as at present, to Debate, and to take all such Resolutions as they judged necessary and useful for the Good and Preservation of their State. It is true, they cannot enough deplore their Misfortune, to see themselves deprived of the Direction and Conduct of a Prince, whose Wisdom, Moderation, and Valour, will be famed as long as the World endures. A Prince, whose Heroick Actions, and whose Merits from this Republick will never be forgot: And in a word, whose Death is lamented in this Country by all Persons whatsoever, from the Meanest to the Highest. That the Councils of His said Majesty having never had any other Aim, both in Deed and in Word, than the Preservation of their Liberty and Religion; and their High and Mighty Lordships being entirely convinced of this Truth, as having found the Benefit thereof, they are resolv'd to follow the same Principles, and not to depart from the Alliances contracted during the Life of His said Majesty, but to persist in the Measures 1701.

His Memory Vindicated by the French.

Vindicated by the States of Holland.

1701. "sures taken pursuant to those Alliances; and
"in short, to make use at all times of the Means
"God has put into their Hands, for Maintain"ing the Liberty of Europe.

Slanders and Idle Stories,

The little Tools of France were likewise working in England, to depreciate the Memory of the late King, by Libels, and Verses, and Healths, so very rude and impudent, that they shew'd nothing but sorry Wit and implacable Malice. But the deepest Fetch of Slander, was a confident Story, invented by them, That the King had form'd a Plot to Exclude Her present Majesty from Her Succession to the Crown, and that at His Decease there were Papers found in His Closet to that purpose. This Sham was so in-dutriously obtruded upon the People, that the House of Lords thought themselves concern'd to make Enquiry into this Matter, and to Vindicate
the Honour of their late Royal Sovereign;
which they did in this Noble Resolution,
May 5th. 1702.

Refuted
by the Lords.

"Whereas their Lordships have been Inform"ed, that there has been a Report spread a"broad, that among the late King's Papers,
"some Paper or Papers have been found, tend-
"ing to the Prejudice of Her present Majesty,
"or Her Succession to the Crown: And where-
"as the Lord President, the Lord Steward, the "Lord Chamberlain, the Earl of Marlborough,
"and the Earl of Albemarle, who were the Per"sons appointed by Her Majesty to inspect the "said Papers, have, at the Desire of the House
"severally declared, That amongst the late "King's Papers, they did not see or find any "Paper or Papers in the least tending to the "prejudice of Her Majesty, or Her Succession
"to the Crown, or to Her prejudice in any re"spect whatsoever, or which might give any "Ground or Colour for such Report: It is
"thereupon Resolved by the Lords Spiritual and
"Temporal in Parliament Assembled, That the
"said Report is Groundless, False, Villanous,
"and Scandalous, to the Dishonour of the late "King's Memory, and highly tending to the "Diservice of Her present Majesty.

"It is Ordered by the Lords Spiritual and
"Temporal in Parliament Assembled, that the "Matter of Fact aforesaid, and the Resolution
"of this House thereupon, be laid before Her "Majesty by his Grace the Duke of Bolton, the "Earl-Marshal, the Earl of Radnor, the Earl of "Stamford, the Earl of Scarborough, and the "Lord Ferrers: And that they do humbly Desire
"Her Majesty from this House, that Her Maje"sty will give Order to Mr. Attorney-General,
"to Prosecute with the utmost Severity of Law,
"the Authors or Publishers of the above-men"tioned, or such like Scandalous Reports."

In pursuance of this Resolution and Proceeding, the Duke of Bolton acquainted the House, that he and the other Lords had attended Her Majesty, and had presented their Lordships Resolution to Her. In Answer whereunto Her Majesty was pleased to say:

I am very Ready to do any thing of this Kind: I will give Directions to Mr. Attorney-General, effectually to Prosecute the Authors and Publishers of such false Reports.

Libelous
Pamphlet.

While their Lordships were doing this Justice to the Merits of King William, a Complaint was made to them of an Insolent Passage in the Preface of a Printed Book, entituled, The History of the last Parliament begun at Westminster the 10th. Day of February, in the 12th. Year of King William, A. D. 1700. The Passage was read to the House, as followeth: "And perhaps
"there was a third Thing in prospect, of deeper "Reach than all these; which was. that should

"it have pleased God for our Sins to have
"snatch'd from us the King on the sudden, by "Chance of War, or other Fatal Accident, du"ring the Tumult of Arms abroad, and the "Civil Disorders they had raised amongst us at "home, and a numerous, corrupt, licentious
"Party throughout the Nation, from which the "House of Commons was sometimes not free;
"they might entertain Hopes from the Advan"tage of being at the Helm, and the Assistance
"of their Rabble, to have put in Practice their "own Schemes, and to have given us a new
"Model of Government of their own Projecti"on; and so to have procured to themselves a
"lasting Impunity, and to have mounted their "own Beast, the Rabble, and driven the sober
"part of the Nation like Cattle before them.

1701.

"That this is no Conjecture, will readily ap"pear to any considering Persons, from the "Treatment her Royal Highness the Princess of
"Denmark, the Heiress Apparent to the Crown,
"met with all along from them and all their "Party. They were not contented to shew her
"a constant Neglect and Slight themselves, but "their whole Party were instructed not only to "treat her with Disrespect, but Spight: They "were busie to traduce her with False and Scan"dalous Aspersions; and so far they carried the "Affront, as to make her at one Time almost
"the common Subject of the Tittle-Tattle of "almost every Coffee-House and Drawing-
"Room; which they promoted with as much
"Zeal, Application and Venom, as if a Bill of "Exclusion had then been on the Anvil, and
"these were the Introductory Ceremonies."

The Passage being thus read, it was thereupon Ordered by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament Assembled, That Francis Coggan, Robert Gibson, and Thomas Hodgson, for whom the said Book was mentioned to be Printed, should, and were thereby required to Attend that House on the Saturday following at Eleven a Clock. But their Lordships in the mean time being inform'd, That Dr. Drake own'd himself to be the Author of the Book, and that he desired he might be appointed to attend at the same time; thereupon it was Order'd, That he should attend that House on Saturday the same Hour;
when after reading the Order made the 6th. at the Desire of Dr. Drake for his Attendance that Day, the House took into their Consideration the above-mention'd Paragraph. After the Reading whereof, Dr. Drake, was call'd in; and the Order being read to him, the Lord Keeper ask'd him, What he had to say concerning the said Book: And the Book and the said Paragraph being shew'd him, he own'd he writ the Book, and that Paragraph in particular; and he thought he had just Reason to write it, he having heard her Highness talk'd of disrespectfully in almost every Coffee-House. Then he withdrew, and after some Debate, was call'd in again; and the Lord Keeper told him, The House was not satisfied with what he had said, but thought he trifled; and required him to acquaint the House with the Grounds of his writing that Paragraph.
He answer'd, He found it mention'd in divers
Anonymous Pamphlets publish'd at that time, and hop'd it was no hurt to Answer those Pamphlets, and desired time to recollect what those Pamphlets were: And then withdrew.

After some time he was called in again, and asked the following Questions, viz.

If he could Charge any Person or Persons in the Kingdom, with the Matters asserted by him in that Paragraph?

To which he Answered, That he did not know any such Person.

1701. Then he was asked, Whether he had heard any other Person say, That they could charge any Person whatsoever with the Matters contained in that Paragraph?

He said he did not know of any such Person.

Being further ask'd, If he had any other Grounds besides the Pamphlets, and what these Pamphlets were?

He said, He had no other Grounds besides the Pamphlets; and named the several Pamphlets following, as his Reason for Writing the said Paragraph, viz. The Two Legion Letters: The Black List: The Jura Populi Anglicani; and Toland's Reasons for inviting over the Princess of Hanover. And being asked, If in any one of these Pamphlets there was any thing said about setting aside the Present Queen; He answered, He did not remember there was.

Then, he being withdrawn, the said Paragraph was taken into Consideration, and it was proposed to pass a Censure thereupon. And after Debate, this Question was put, That a Censure should be then put upon the said Paragraph. It was resolved in the Affirmative.

And censured by the Lords.

Then this Question was put, That in the Preface of the Book, entituled, The History of the last Parliament, begun at Westminster the 10th Day of February, in the Twelfth Year of the Reign of King William, Anno Domini, 1700. there were several Expressions which were groundless, False and Scandalous; tending to create Jealousies in Her Majesty of Her People, and to cause great Misunderstandings, Fears and Disputes amongst the Queen's Subjects, and to disturb the Peace and Quiet of the Kingdom. It was Resolved in the Affirmative, in these Words, "It is Resolved and Declared by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in Parliament Assembled, That in the Preface of a Book, entituled, The History of the last Parliament, begun at Westminster the 10th Day of February, in the Twelfth Year of the Reign of King William, Anno Domini, 1700. (Written by Dr. Drake, as he owned at the Bar) there are several Expressions, which are Groundless, False, and Scandalous, tending to create Jealousies in Her Majesty of Her People, and to cause great Misunderstandings, Fears and Disputes amongst the Queen's Subjects, and to disturb the Peace and Quiet of the Kingdom." After which they order'd Her Majesty's Attorney General, forthwith effectually to Prosecute the said Dr. Drake for having Writ the said Paragraph.

State of Religion.

We left the Convocation Sitting, and the Archbishop and Bishops asserting and maintaining the Ancient Rights and Usages of the Metropolitan and his Suffragans, in such Provincial Assemblies. The Inferior Clergy did not care to prosecute the Argument in Writing, but on Monday the 31st. of March, first in a Committee, and then in a House, they Voted their own Right to Adjourn themselves; and then the Prolocutor went up with a Message to the Archbishop and Bishops, That they had considered of their Lordships Reply to the Paper brought up by the Lower House, which did not give them the Satisfaction they desired; and therefore they pray'd a FREE CONFERENCE with their Lordships, upon the Subject Matter in Debate. Then the Prolocutor and the Members with him withdrew, and being soon after called in, the Archbishop spoke to them as follows, We received your verbal Message, and took the same into Consideration. And whereas we sent you Two Questions in Writing, to which you Answered in Writing; and we gave a large and distinct Answer to the same in Writing, in which there were several Quotations referring to Proceedings in Convocation.

Matter of Fact; We therefore expect an Answer in Writing to the same, and we shall then take the Matter into further Consideration, and desire no time may be lost. The Prolocutor replying, that their Answer would take up about Twenty Sheets, his Grace took occasion to declare, that he did not confine them to Length or Breadth, but expected their Answer in Writing.

But in spite of these Admonitions and Canonical Commands, a Majority in the Lower House were resolved not to join Issue in the Merits of the Cause, by any Intercourse in Writing, but to insist on the Parliamentary Practice of a Free Conference, a Word that never appeared in the Acts of any former Convocation. And therefore they would send no other Written Paper, but of Reasons for not Writing; which they presented on Saturday the 5th. of April.

To the most Reverend his Grace the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, and to the Right Reverend the Bishops his Suffragans, of the Upper House of Convocation.

Reasons of the Lower House.

The Clergy of the Province of Canterbury, Assembled in the Lower House of the said Convocation, in Answer to the Papers sent down by your Grace and your Lordships to the Lower House by their Prolocutor, on Saturday the 22d. of March last past, touching Adjournments and Prorogations.

Most Humbly Represent,

THAT your Grace and your Lordships having sent down Two Questions to this House by our Prolocutor, which we did apprehend to be of the highest Importance to our Sitting and Acting according to the undoubted Usage of former Convocations, we conceive it became us not to suffer too long, by our own Neglect, either in the exercise of our Just Rights, or in the Opinion of your Grace and your Lordships, for want of a speedy Answer to those Questions.

In consideration whereof, this House having agreed to the Report of the Committee, and thereby made it their own Act, did conceive that the Prolocutor being sent up to attend your Grace and your Lordships therewith, might Verbo tenus supply the want of any Written Form. And in order to our giving your Grace and your Lordships the most speedy Satisfaction herein that might be, we thought this Method more adviseable, then to have deferr'd our Answer longer for want of Form; Wherein nevertheless we did neither then design, nor do for the future intend, to be wanting to your Grace and your Lordships.

And we take this occasion most humbly to profess, that it is far from our Intentions, in any respect to derogate from those Just and Legal Rights, which belong to your Grace as President of the Convocation of this Province; being as unwilling to contribute to any Injurious Diminution thereof, as we are desirous to continue in the Possession and Use of such other Rights, as we conceive do justly belong to us, who constitute the Lower House of Convocation, and which we apprehend to be necessary to the preservation of the Fundamental Constitution thereof.

And as to the Subject-Matter of the aforesaid Papers, and the Arguments therein objected against our Report, whereunto the said Papers do refer; we crave leave most humbly to acquaint your Grace, and your Lordships, that having fully debated, and seriously considered the weight of the same amongst ourselves, we conceive our selves upon the whole 1701. "Matter obliged to declare, that we find not sufficient Reason to recede from our said Report, or any Part thereof; but have been induc'd to conclude, That the Lower House of Convocation has Power to Adjourn it self. Which Conclusion being the Result of mature Deliberation, and necessary (as we conceive) to be maintained for supporting the Fundamental Constitution of our English Convocation; we know not how to justify our selves, either to the Friends or Enemies of that Constitution, should we, under the Force of such Convictions, depart from the said Report, and not profess our selves upon this Occasion, to be ready with all Dutifulness and Submission, to give such farther Proof of each Part thereof, in the regular way of a Free Conference, as may shew the Insufficiency of those Objections, which have been made against it, and put a speedy end to the present Controversy. We do therefore now again make our humble Application to your Grace, and your Lordships, to appoint a Time for such Free Conference in order thereunto.

"Matter

"In which humble Suit we are the more pressing, on the Account of the near Approach of the Festival of Easter, and that Recess which either House may think fit to make during that Solemnity. And the Arguments and Instances in your Lordships Paper are so numerous, that a particular Discussion thereof in Writing, would not consist with the joint and earnest Desire of Both Houses, as we humbly apprehend, to have a Controversy of this Nature speedily determin'd, in order to their proceeding upon such other Business as the World may justly expect from them.

In the mean time, his Grace and the Bishops were willing to give all possible Satisfaction to the Inferior Clergy, upon their Complaint of Mr. Toland's Book: And, to go by Precedent, the safest Guide, they carefully enquir'd what had been formerly done in such Cases; and found in the Convocation of 1689. these Steps of Proceeding.

"First, That there had been brought up a Message from the Lower House, on December the 11th, 1689. in these Words: "We are commanded by the House humbly to represent to your Lordships, that there are several Books of very dangerous Consequence to the Christian Religion, and in particular to the Church of England; viz. Notes upon Athanasius's Creed, and Two Letters relating to the present Convocation, newly come abroad; and to desire your Lordships Advice, in what way, and how far safely, and without incurring the Penalties of the Stat. of 25. Hen 8. the Convocation may proceed towards preventing the Publishing the like Scandalous Books for the future, and for the inflicting the Censures of the Church, according to the Canons, upon the Authors of them.

"Secondly, That the Prolocutor was ordered to bring the Books he complain'd of.

"Thirdly, That Sess. 12. after the President and Bishops had consider'd the said Books, they sent for the Prolocutor, and declar'd to him, that those Books were of pernicious Consequence; but they could not yet find what Power they had to proceed in this Matter.

"Fourthly, That in the last Sessions of that Convocation, the President acquainted the Lower House, That he and the Bishops were sensible of the Evil of those Books; but having consulted the Learned in both the Laws, they understood that the particular Courts had Power to proceed against the Authors of such Books; but that they (as a Convocation) did not think it proper to meddle in it: Or to that effect.

1701. After the Report of these former Proceedings in a like Case, there was a Committee of Bishops appointed to Examine Toland's Book; who accordingly read it, and found therein several Positions, as they conceived, of most dangerous Consequence; and one in particular, which they look'd on as the Foundation of all the rest; of which the Lower House had not taken notice: And therefore they made this Report.

"Upon Perusal of the Book that was brought up from the Lower House, entituled, Christianity not Mystrious, by John Toland, (which said Book was of the Second Edition, Printed in the Year 1696.) we find in the Second Chapter thereof, which is entituled, Of the Authority of Revelation, these following Words, Page 38, 39.

Revelation was not a necessitating Motive of Assent, but a Mean of Information.--- We should not confound the way we came to the knowledge of a thing, with the Grounds we have to believe it.--- A Man may inform me concerning a thousand Matters I never heard of before, and of which I should not so much as think, if I were not told: Yet I believe nothing purely upon his Word, without Evidence in the things themselves. Not the bare Authority of him that speaks, but the clear Conception I form of what he says, is the ground of my Persuasion.

"Which Words manifestly importing a Denial of the Authority of Divine Revelation, and particularly tending to the Subversion of the Christian Faith: And the same Design also appearing in many other Places of the said Book; some of which are remark'd in the Paper affix'd to it by the Lower House of Convocation: It is therefore by the Archbishop, with Consent of his Brethren, recommended to the Bishop in whose Diocese the Author of that Book doth or shall reside, to call him to Account for that Book; and as he shall see Cause, to proceed thereupon, according to the Ecclesiastical Laws.

"And it is also to be considered, what may further be done for the Prevention of the Publishing of the like pernicious Books for the future.

When this Report of a Committee of Bishops was made to the Upper-House, they were all unanimously of Opinion to proceed (as far as legally they could) against the Book and the Author. But considering the Result in Convocation, 1689. founded on the Opinion of Lawyers; they also agreed before they went further, to advise with Council Learned in the Law; and to that End drew up the Two following Queries. 1. Whether the Convocation giving an Opinion concerning a Book, that it is Heretical, Impious, and Immoral, is contrary to any Law? 2. Whether the Words in the affix'd Paper, (before-recited) are such an Opinion as is contrary to any Law? When their Lordships had received the Judgment of some Eminent Lawyers hereupon, they then drew up this Answer of the Archbishop and Bishops, to the Representation of the Lower House of Convocation, concerning Toland's, and other Books. "Upon our consulting with Council Learned in the Law, concerning Heretical, Impious, and Immoral Books, and particularly concerning a Book of Toland's sent up to us from the Lower House; We do not find, how without a License from the King, which we have not yet received, we can have sufficient Authority to Censure Judicially any such Books: But on the contrary, we are advis'd, That by so doing, both Houses of Convocation may incur the Penalties of the Statute of 25. Henry VIII."

Proceedings of the ABp. and Bps.

1701. Committee of Bishops to consider of Mr Toland's Book

Questions in Law

1701. On the same Day, April the 8th. another Paper was delivered to the Prolocutor and Clergy, Entitled, The Answer of the Archbishop and his Brethren the Bishops, to the Paper brought up by the Prolocutor from the Lower House, upon Saturday April the 5th. 1701.

Answer of the Archbishop and Bishops to a Paper of the Lower House.

“ The Archbishop, President of the Convocation of this Province, and his Brethren the Bishops do declare, that they hold themselves obliged to Maintain and Preserve the Ancient Fundamental Constitution of the Christian Church, the Government and Discipline of the Church of England, as now by Law Established, and all the Ancient Usages of Convocation.

“ And as they will always have a due Regard to the Just Rights of the Lower House in all Points; so they neither ought nor can depart from those Rights which are vested in them by the Constitution of the Catholick Church in General, and of the Church of England in particular: Which they find by Immemorial Custom and Practice have belong'd to the Archbishop and Bishops of this Province, and accordingly have been exercis'd by them in the Upper House.

“ And therefore the Archbishop and Bishops, having carefully searched the Registers, and followed the regular Methods and Precedents they found therein, cannot but take notice, that the Proceedings of the Lower House, have been Irregular, and without Precedent in sundry Particulars. Such as their appointing Committees of the whole House, which we do not find to have been ever done before: And their assuming a Power in that House, to give Leave to their Members to be Absent, which of Right belongs to the President only.

“ But the Instances now chiefly to be considered, are those in the last Paper brought up by the Prolocutor.

“ Whereas the Archbishop and Bishops had given a full and distinct Answer to every particular, contain'd in a short Paper, brought up by the Prolocutor from the Lower House, concerning Adjournments and Prorogations: They expected that either they would have acquiesc'd in that Answer, or shew'd a Reason why they would not, by returning at least some kind of Reply to the Arguments and Authorities by which that Answer was supported and confirmed.

“ The Lower House did neither of these, but to our great Surprize sent up a Paper, in which they declare that they are come to Resolutions and Conclusions; and then say, that they conceive those Resolutions are necessary to be maintain'd, and they cannot under the force of these Convictions, depart from them; and all this without offering any Reason on their side, or Answering any of ours.

“ This is a Method altogether new, and such as can never make a fair End of any Controversy.

“ The way which they propose to put an end to the Matter, is by a Free Conference; which it seems strange that they should ask, after their having declared, that they are come to Resolutions and Conclusions, which they cannot conceive necessary to be maintain'd by the Force of their Convictions. This Declaration of theirs was very irregular, if the Regular way is that of a Free Conference, as they call it in the same Paper.

“ But before they had called this the Regular way, they ought to have shewn some Instances of it in Former Convocations; where

“ in all the Registers there does not appear so much as one Instance of any Conference desired by the Lower House: They have indeed been call'd up Ad Colloquium, upon occasion: And some here present cannot but remember, that they were so called up in the Convocation in the Year One Thousand Six Hundred Eighty Nine, by the Bishop of London, being then President in the Vacancy of the See of Canterbury. But the Consequences, of it, were such as do by no means encourage the doing of the like at this present time.

“ But the greatest Attempt of Innovating upon the Constitution of the Convocation, appears in the Conclusion of that Paper; wherein it is express'd, that either House may make a Recess during the approaching Festival of Easter: Which Words imply that the Lower House if they think fit, may by their own Authority make such a Recess (as they word it) apart from the Upper House, and without Order from the President. This is a Claim so altogether New, that it was never heard of before, and here it stands without any pretence of Law or Usage to support it. But besides, this is such a manifest Violation of the President's Authority, as cannot be comply'd with, nor suffer'd, without destroying the Fundamental Constitution of an English Convocation.

When these Two Answers of the Archbishop and Bishops had been read by the Publick Notary to the Prolocutor and Lower Clergy call'd up to the Jerusalem-Chamber, and Copies of both delivered to them; Then the Archbishop spoke in this manner.

Mr. Prolocutor, and you the rest of the Clergy,

“ I have observed on several occasions a new method of Proceeding in the Lower House, with a deep Sense of the ill Effects it may have, if it were suffer'd to go on. We have born long with it: But since you have declared to us, that you have fix'd on Resolutions, we think, contrary to that Authority that by Law and Custom, as well as by our Character, is vested in us; we must now speak more plainly to you.

“ We have begun no new Practice in this Convocation; but we must tell you, we have found you attempting many Innovations. We do earnestly desire you to consider these Things more maturely; and not to force us to Proceedings, that will be very uneasy to our selves, as well as to you.

“ We have many Enemies on all Hands, and they wait for nothing more than to see the Union and Order of this Church, which is both its Beauty and its Strength, broken by those who ought to preserve it.

“ For the maintaining the Episcopal Authority is so necessary to the Preservation of the Church, that the rest of the Clergy are no less concerned in it, then the Bishops themselves.

“ I have thought fit, with the rest of my Brethren, to Prorogue the Convocation for some time. It is a Season of Devotion, and I pray God it may have a good Effect on all our Minds.

“ We, on our part, are willing to forget all that is past, and to go on with you, at our next Meeting, as well as at all times, with all Tenderness and Paternal Affection, in all such Things as shall conduce to the good of this Church. Remember the Sentence that our Blessed Saviour has pronounced against them by whom Offences come: And “ consider

1701. " consider seriously with your Selves, what an " Offence it will give, if you should break the " Subordination of Presbyters to their Bishops,
 " which has been observed not only in the Pri" mitive Church, but in all the Convocations
 " of this Province, down to the present Time.
 " Above all things remember the great Account
 " we must one Day give to the chief Pastor and
 " Bishop of our Souls.

Convocation Prorogued.
 The Clergy keep intermediate Sessions.
 This Speech being ended, the Archbishop continued and prorogued the Convocation to Thursday, May 8th. But the Prolocutor with several of the Lower House, returned to Hen. VIIth's Chappel, (tho' divers Members refused to join with them, as well knowing the whole Convocation was legally Prorogued, and all things were to continue in the same State till the next Synodical Day) and sat there as a House for some time, and then Adjourn'd themselves to the next Day. An Affectation of Independance that was unknown to former Convocations, and never before attempted by any Presbyters in any Episcopal Church.

For this Irregularity, a calm Reproof was given on the next Synodical Day, 8. May, in these Words.

Speech of the President.
 " Mr. Prolocutor, We are satisfied, that what" soever has been done in the Lower House, as " a House, from the time that the whole Con" vocation was Prorogued in this Place upon
 " the Eighth of April, to this present Eighth of
 " May, is not only Null, as being without Au" thority, but of very dangerous Consequence
 " to the Constitution of our Church, and to the " Sacred Synod of this Province, and particu" larly to the Lower Clergy, whom that House
 " represents. We have all possible Tenderness
 " for them, and shall ever join in any Methods
 " that shall appear just and proper for Maintain" ing their true Rights and Liberties, and for de" fending them from all Difficulties and Dan" gers.

" And therefore we cannot receive from you,
 " either by word of Mouth, or in Writing, any " thing done by the said House, as a House, in
 " the Interval aforesaid.

" We hope you will duly consider these " Things, and may God so direct you, that you
 " may never engage in any Proceeding, that " may be prejudicial to our Holy Mother the " Church of England.

Proceedings of the Lower
 Clergy.
 This being done, the Prolocutor holding a Paper in his Hands, spoke to this effect; I am commanded by the Lower House to bring up this Paper, and I do present it as the Act of the House this Day: And then he laid upon the Table a very long Paper, as an Answer of the Lower House to two Papers read to them in Jerusalem-Chamber, upon Tuesday, April 8. 1701. and then deliver'd to the Prolocutor. Wherein they tell their Lordships, there was no Occasion to consult Lawyers in the Case of Toland's Book; and had there been occasion for a License, his Grace might easily have obtain'd it from His Majesty, or elsewhere; and therefore they cannot but repeat their humble Suit, that their Lordships would not finally decline giving that Assistance that had been already desir'd by the Lower House:
 Lest otherwise, what was intended for the Service of Religion, should be turn'd to its Disad-vantage, and a very bad Use made of their Lordships omitting to express any Mark of Dislike to so ill a Book.

Then they proceed to justify their own Proceedings against the Objections of their Lordships, which (they say) had charg'd them with many Irregularities; and conclude with recri-minating in a Complaint of some Grievances
 they suffer'd from the Upper-House.

1701. This Paper being left on the Table, was not thought fit to be Read; yet a Reply was prepared by a Committee of the Bishops to this Effect.
 " That with regard to the Proceedings about
 " Toland's Book, they thought it not only safest
 " for them, but withal most for the Interest of " the Church and Religion, that in this Matter
 " as well as in others of like Importance, they " should govern themselves by the Precedents of " former Convocations, and maturely consider
 " how far their Authority reach'd, before they " made use of it: For to attempt to extend their " Power beyond the Limits which the Laws of " the Land, and the Practice of Convocations
 " have set, would be very unsafe and imprudent,
 " considering the Penalties and dangerous Con" sequences to which such an Attempt might " expose them and the whole Clergy. Not " withstanding, the Archbishop and Bishops be" ing unanimously Resolved to do all that was
 " in their Power against Toland's Book, and the " wicked and dangerous Doctrines therein con" tained, had appointed a Committee to Exa" mine it, who found several Positions of most " dangerous Consequence; and one in particu" lar, which they look'd upon as the Foundati" on of all the rest, of which the Lower House
 " had taken no Notice. As to a Royal License,
 " such have been always granted, ex merito motu;
 " not upon any Petition of the Clergy for it,
 " His Majesty being the properest Judge when
 " to grant it, and when not; tho' considering
 " the Treatment the License His present Maje" sty and the late Blessed Queen granted to that " Convocation, 1689. met with, it could not " be thought Advisable to desire another, till a " better Spirit had appear'd in those of the Low" er House, than either then did, or now doth.
 " —But as the Archbishop and Bishops have se" veral times endeavour'd to procure the passing
 " of a Law to regulate the Press, and thereby
 " to prevent the publishing such impious Books,
 " tho' hitherto without the desir'd Success; so
 " they will never be wanting in the like Endeav" ours for the future. In the mean time, the " particular Bishop in whose Diocese Toland, or " any such Author lives, is indeed (as the Law
 " now stands) the proper Person to proceed a" gainst him. And he hath sufficient Power to " do so; and now knowing the sense of all his " Brethren in this Matter, it is not to be doubt-
 " ed, but that he will make use of it as becomes
 " him. But if he who hath such Power does " not make use of it, he alone ought to bear the " Blame of it, and not the Upper House of " Convocation, who for ought yet appears, have
 " no such Power.—Then as to the Irregularities
 " charg'd upon the Lower House, their Lord-
 " ships take notice, that in their Paper, the " Lower Clergy do solemnly profess, That they " do not in the least desire that his Grace or their
 " Lordships should depart from any of their Just
 " Rights; and the Archbishop and Bishops can" not but wish, their Actions were agreeable to
 " this Profession: But those have been quite " contrary, and carried up to higher Degrees of " Disrespect, and Invasion of the Metropo" litan and Episcopal Rights, (even such Rights
 " as are supported by the Law of the Land, and
 " the King's Writ, than ever was attempted by " any Lower House of Convocation before this " time, or perhaps by any Body of Presbyters,
 " where Episcopacy was settled and acknowledg'd
 " of Divine and Apostolical Institution; unless
 " it were by such Presbyters, as design'd to de" stroy that Institution, which the Archbishop
 " and Bishops are fully perswaded the Body of " the Lower House do not, though the Actions

1701. Reply of the Upper House.

1701. " of a part of them manifestly tend that way.
 " ——— And their Lordships give the particular
 " Instances of their exorbitant Claims and Pra" ctices, In separate Adjournments; in appoint-
 " ing Committees of the whole House; in giv" ing Leave, as a House, to their Members to " be Absent; in not Answering the Archbishop
 " and Bishops in Writing when so requir'd; in " demanding a Free Conference; in pretending a " Power of making a distinct Recess, and some " other Practices; which together with some " Reports rais'd upon 'em, have given the great" est Blow to this Church that hath been given
 " it, since the Presbyterian Assembly that sat at " Westminster in the late times of Confusion.
 " ——— God grant these Reports and the pre" sent Conduct of divers in the Lower House
 " may not bring on the like again.

Committee of Both Houses appointed by the President.

Amidst these unhappy Disputes, the Archbishop and Bishops hoped it might be one Method to compose them, if a Committee of Both Houses do inspect the Books and Acts of the present
Convocation; and therefore on the same 8th of May, a Committee of Five Bishops was appointed to meet another like Committee of the Lower House (not exceeding Ten) to inspect all the Acts of each House in this present Sacred Synod or Convocation, and to report their Judgments thereupon. But in a new and unprecedented way of Contempt, the Lower House answered, That they did not think fit to appoint such a Committee: And when the Schedule of Prorogation was (as usual) brought down to the Lower House, to be intimated to them by the Prolocutor, he refused to intimate the Archbishop's Schedule, and Adjourn'd the House to the next day; whereas the Archbishop's Prorogation was to Friday 16. May. So when the said Synodical Day came, those Members who had acted in conformity to the regular Precedents, and with due Submission to the Archbishop and Bishops, knew not how to appear any longer in the Lower House, till this Form of Address was presented in their Name to the President, by the Honourable and Reverend George Verney, D. D. one of the Proctors for the Clergy of the Diocese of Lincoln.

Refused
by the Lower House.

Address
of some Members.

May it please your Grace,
 " I am desir'd and empower'd by several Mem" bers of the Lower House of Convocation,
 " humbly to present an Address to your Grace,
 " that you would be pleas'd not to interpret
 " their Absence this day from their Attendance
 " in Hen. VII's Chappel, as any the least disrespect
 " of your Grace's Prorogation of the late Con" vocation, to which we shall, as we are by " Law and Conscience bound, always pay due
 " Obedience, and which we do apprehend was
 " to this Day. And the Reason upon which we " presume to absent our selves, is, because your
 " Grace's last Prorogation was not intimated to
 " the Lower House of Convocation by the Pro-
 " locutor: Whereupon we humbly conceive that " should we meet this Day, and concur in any
 " Convocational Act, by Virtue of any other
 " Prorogation than what issues from your Grace,
 " we should involve our selves in a Practice
 " which we utterly disavow, and which we ap" prehend would be of dangerous Consequence
 " to the Church of England, and the Rights of " the Convocation of your Grace's Province of " Canterbury. And I further humbly beseech
 " your Grace to permit such of our Members of " the Lower House of Convocation as shall de" sire it, leave to subscribe their Names to this
 " Address; to which in all Humility and Sincerity

" ty I do Subscribe my own Name this 16th day 1701.
 " of May, 1701.

George Verney,
 Proc. Diac of Lincoln.

The same Paper was soon after subscrib'd with these Names, Will. Stanley, Sam. Freeman, C.
Trimmell, William Sherleck, William Beverege, Tho. Littell, Jo. Whitefoot, Jo. Jefferys, Giles Pooley, William Hayley, Jo. Evans. Rich. Bowchier.

The Lower House had employ'd themselves in drawing up a Representation of their Sense upon the Bishop of Sarum's Exposition of the XXXIX Articles of the Church of England, which they brought up to the Lords on May the 30th. when the Archbishop read to them a Paper, drawn up by consent of the Bishops, and approved by them, as followeth: If you have any thing to offer, we cannot receive it, till the late Irregularity of refusing to meet the Committee of Bishops, to inspect the Books of this Convocation, be set Right.
A Copy of this Paper at the Prolocutor's Desire was given to him, and he and his Attendants making a short Step to the Lower House, came back and waited in the Chamber adjoining to Jerusalem Chamber. Then Humphry Lord Bishop of Bangor, by direction of the Archbishop, and with consent of the Bishops, went out to ask the Prolocutor this following Question, Whether the Message he had now to bring in was to set the Irregularity complain'd of right? His Lordship returning into the House, did acquaint his Grace and the rest of the Bishops, that the Prolocutor told him once, That it was something in order to set that Irregularity right; then as recollecting said, It was concerning that Irregularity. Upon which the Prolocutor and his Attendants were called in,
and his Grace spoke thus, If you have any thing
to offer in order to the setting right the Irregularity
we have complain'd of, we are ready to receive it.
The Prolocutor said, It was something concerning
it, and so fell to reading a Paper in these Words,
The Paper that the Lower House order'd the Prolocutor to present to your Grace and your Lordships, was their Humble Representation concerning a Book, entituled, An Exposition of the XXXIX Articles of the Church of England, and hath no Relation to the supposed Irregularity your Grace and your Lordships think fit to complain of; of that we are ready to give your Lordships satisfaction, when there-unto called. And in the mean time most humbly repeat our Request, that your Grace and your Lordships will be pleas'd to receive the said Paper. The Archbishop and Bishops were surpris'd at the Prolocutor's way of introducing such a Paper;
and the Bishop of Bangor who had been very cautious in bringing in the Message from the Prolocutor's Mouth, found it necessary to make a Complaint against the Prolocutor, in this Writing Subscribed by his own Hand. I asked
Dr. Hooper, whether the Message he had now to bring in was to set the Irregularity complain'd of right? he told me once, it was something in order to set that Irregularity right; and then recollecting, said, It was concerning that Irregularity; but that he was to deliver his Message to his Grace, and must not drop it at the Door. When he was called in, it appeared that his Message was not to set the Irregularity right, but concerning another Matter, which I have reason to complain of, that Dr. Hooper has prevaricated in this Matter.

Proceedings of the Lower House.

That other Matter was a Paper offered by the Prolocutor. thus entituled, To the most Reverend Father in God Thomas Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, and to the Right Reverend the Bishops his Suffragans. The Humble Representation of the Lower House of Convocation.

" Whereas

1701.
Representation of the Lower House against the Bishop of Sarum's Exposition, &c.

“Whereas a Book hath been lately Published, entituled, An Exposition of the XXXIX Articles of the Church of England, by GILBERT Lord Bishop of SARUM, which the Author declares to have passed the Perusal of both the Archbishops, and several Bishops and other Learned Divines, and suggests their Approbation of it: And whereas we think it our Duty, as much as in us lies, to secure the Doctrines contained in those Articles, from any Attempts that may be made against them: We most humbly offer to your Grace and your Lordships the Sense of this House, which is as follows.

“I. That the said Book tends to introduce such a Latitude and Diversity of Opinions, as the Articles were fram'd to avoid.

“II. That there are many Passages in the Exposition of several Articles, which appear to us to be contrary to the true meaning of them, and to other receiv'd Doctrines of our Church.

“III. That there are some Things in the said Book, which seem to us to be of dangerous Consequence to the Church of England as by Law established, and to derogate from the Honour of its Reformation.

“All which Particulars we humbly lay before your Lordships, praying your Opinion herein.

After a short time of Withdrawing, the Prolocutor and those with him were again call'd in; and his Grace told them to this effect. “That he and his Brethren could not depart from their Resolution, Not to receive any thing from the Lower House, till the late Irregularity complain'd of were set right. That he and his Brethren would be always ready to shew their Affection and their Zeal for the Good of the Church: and they would have been glad to have shewn it more particularly in the Case of Toland, but that there had been several Obstructions and Stumbling-Blocks laid in the way.”

Protestation of some Members.

Then appear'd the Dean of St. Paul's, and several other Members of the Lower House, and exhibited a Complaint in Writing, Subscribed with their own Hands in the following Form.

To his Grace the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Reverend Bishops his Suffragans.
May the 30th. 1701.

“We whose Names are under-written do humbly beg leave to represent to your Grace, That whereas we did move in the Lower House of Convocation, that we might enter our Protestation against all Intermediate Sessions of the Lower House, betwixt your Grace's ordinary Prorogations: The Question being put upon the said Motion, it passed against us in the Negative. And a farther Motion being made, and the Question being put, whether the said Vote should be Registred, it likewise passed against us, that it should not be Register'd as yet:

“Whereupon we humbly beg Leave, that we may be admitted to enter our Protestations against all such Intermediate Sessions.

William Sherlock, Dean of St. Paul's.
George Verney, Proc. Dioc. Linc.
J. Wichart, Dean of Winton.
Sa. Freeman, Dean of Peterborough.
Geo. Bull, Archdeacon of Landaffe.

Will. Stanley, Archdeacon of London.
Jo. Jeffery, Archdeacon of Norwich.
Charles Trimnel, Archdeacon of Norfolk.
Richard Bowchier, Archdeacon of Lewes.
John Evans, Proctor for the Diocese of Bangor.
John Whitefoot, Proctor for the Diocese of Norwich.
Giles Posley, Proctor for the Diocese of Bath and Wells.
Thomas Little, Proctor for the Church of Norwich.

1701.

In the next Session, June the 6th. the Archbishop spoke thus to the Prolocutor, “I must inform you, that till the Irregularity already complain'd of be set right, I cannot according to the Order of this House receive any thing from you. But it appearing from the Paper you Read upon the 30th Day of May last, that you had something to offer relating to the Lord Bishop of Sarum's Exposition of the XXXIX Articles, which the said Lord Bishop of Sarum has earnestly requested may be brought up to this House; Therefore I and my Brethren, without prejudice to our former Order, and at the repeated Request of the Lord Bishop of Sarum, are now willing to receive the said Paper.”

Archbishop's Speech.

“To which the Prolocutor Answered, That the Paper, which he had now to offer was concerning the Irregularity, and that he had not brought up any Paper relating to the Bishop of Sarum. Whereupon his Grace order'd him to fetch up that Paper, while he left the other, which at command of the Archbishop was read by the Register, and was as follows.

To the most Reverend his Grace the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Right Reverend the Bishops his Suffragans, in the Upper House of Convocation.

Representation of the Lower House in defence of their Proceedings.

The Clergy of the Lower House of the said Convocation, in Answer to the Declaration made by your Lordships on the 30th. past, most humbly present;

“That we were surprized to find, when we came up that Day with Business to your Lordships, that your Lordships had conceived a Displeasure against us for declining to meet the Committee of Bishops, appointed by your Lordships on May the 8th. to inspect the Acts of both Houses of this present Convocation to that Time; and that your Lordships had judged this an Irregularity, and thereupon formed a Resolution to receive nothing offer'd by us, till it was set right.

“We could have wished that your Lordships had taken the Opportunity of your Session next ensuing the 8th. and held on May the 16th. to have acquainted us with that your Displeasure, and that your Lordships had been then pleas'd to have demanded the Reasons for our so acting, before you had proceeded to any Determination against us.

“Had your Lordships thought it convenient to have taken that Method, we should have offer'd the following Reasons, which we now do in our Justification.

“That we of the Lower House, being a distinct House, with a Power of Dissenting from the Proposals of the Upper, conceive our selves entirely at Liberty to admit or decline the Appointment of Committees from time to time as we shall see fit. And particularly in this Case, we conceive that the only regular way, your Lordships knowing the 1701. " Transactions of our House, is by our voluntarily laying them before you; and if your Lordships demand the View of our Journals, as of Right, we are thereby the more obliged to insist upon this our Liberty.

" That your Lordships having mentioned no particular Acts desir'd to be inspected, nor assign'd any particular Reason for such Inspection, we could see no ground for such a Committee, nor give any Instructions for the Management of the Matter to be consider'd by it. We might also have added, that it was not unreasonable in us to expect, that your Lordships should put into our possession the Journals of the Lower House of Convocation, of the Years 1586, 1588, 1640, 1661, &c. which have been requested by us, and which of Right we conceive do belong unto us, before your Lordships would think fit to require the Inspection of our present Proceedings.

" That notwithstanding this, the Respect and Duty we owe your Lordships had prevailed with us to have comply'd with your Lordships Proposal, had it not been introduced by what was very surprizing, and did much discourage us from agreeing to any such Inspection; namely, your Lordships declaring it to be your Opinion, That whatsoever we had done, as an House, in any intermediate Session, between the 8th. of April and the said 8th. of May, was of dangerous Consequence, not only to our Selves, but to the Clergy of this Province, whom we represent.

" These are some of the Reasons which under those Circumstances and at that time mov'd us to decline the Appointment of any such Committee. And these Reasons, we presume, had your Lordships given us Occasion to present them, had been sufficient to have clear'd us in your Opinion from any Irregularity, and to have prevented you from proceeding immediately to any Sentence against us, though your Lordships had conceived you had such a Power.

" But we cannot forbear to represent to your Lordships, that had we been duly found Guilty of any Irregularity in this Matter, yet your Lordships Sentence cutting off all Intercourse and Correspondence between the Two Houses, is not only over-severe, being pass'd upon so small an Occasion, but destroys for the present the whole Design, and the very Being of a Convocation.

We therefore hope that your Lordships will be induced by these Reasons, to lay aside this your Resolution, and to restore the Regular and Customary Communication between the two Houses.

After the Reading this Paper, it was referr'd to a Committee of Bishops to examine it, and Report their Judgments of it; who found it to contain a higher Contempt and repeated Indignities put upon his Grace and his Suffragans: So their Lordships drew up the following Answer.

The Archbishop and Bishops in Answer to a Paper left by the Prolocutor in the Upper House, on Friday June 6th.

Answer of the Archbishop and Bishops.

" The Clergy of the Lower House ought rather to have acknowledg'd the Patience and Tenderness of the President and Bishops towards them, than to say as they do: They were surprized to find that their Lordships should at last take notice of the great Irregularity, which they of the Lower House were 1701. " guilty of, in refusing to appoint a Committee to meet with a Number of Bishops for the inspecting the Books of both Houses; as the President, with the Concurrence of his Suffragans, have requir'd them to do.

" The President and Bishops did not Censure this Irregularity at the next Meeting, in hopes that they of the Lower House would have consider'd, and thought better of their Duty in that Matter, and submitted to the performance of it; and not have attempted (as they did) to thrust in other Business upon the Bishops, and so to frustrate that very necessary Order and Appointment for the inspecting of the Books.

" And tho' the President and Bishops, when they made this Appointment, were sufficiently satisfied, that what they did therein was agreeable to the Practice of former Convocations; yet, when they found that Matter was Disputed in the Lower House, they would not proceed to do any thing thereupon, till they had first look'd out Precedents for the Satisfaction of those that differ'd from them.

" For this End, they took Time to Examine the Registers and Proceedings of former Convocations, with regard to the appointing Committees of both Houses; there they found that it was the common Method in former Convocations, for the President, with the Concurrence of the Bishops, to appoint such Committees, and to require the Clergy of the Lower House to send a certain Number of their Body to attend them; and that the Lower House had never before refus'd to comply with such an Appointment, sitting the Convocation.

" Upon full Evidence of this, the President and Bishops could not but judge, that they of the Lower House, by their present Refusal, had departed from the Order and Usage of Convocations, disobey'd the Establish'd Authority of the President and Bishops, and thereby broke the regular Subordination of the Clergy to their Metropolitan and Bishops, and the Intercourse between the Two Houses of Convocation.

" This Refusal of theirs, the President and Bishops might justly have call'd Disobedience and Contempt, and might also have proceeded against them for it by Canonical Admonitions and Censures. But they call'd it by the softest Name they could, An Irregularity; and to give them of the Lower House time to rectify it, they have hitherto forbore all such Proceedings against them, as the Nature of their Offence did deserve, and the Consequences seem'd to require.

" Only this the President and Bishops have done; they have given them of the Lower House to understand, That until they return to their Duty, and the regular Methods observ'd by all Predecessors, they cannot proceed on Business with them, nor receive any Thing from them. But, that whenever they of the Lower House shall rectify these Irregularities, and restore thereby that Subordination and Intercourse which they have disturb'd, the President and Bishops shall then most readily receive, and duly consider whatever they have to offer to them.

" This the President and Bishops thought to be the gentlest Method they could use, and withal the likeliest way to bring them of the Lower House to consider and rectify the Irregularity they were guilty of; which was all their Lordships desir'd and intended.

" They

1701.

“ They of the Lower House do indeed seem “ to think they were guilty of no Irregularity at “ all, and offer some Reasons for their own “ Justification: But those Reasons are founded “ upon plain Mistakes, both of Right and Fact.
“ First, They seem to assume to themselves,
“ to be such an Independent Body, as can Sit
“ and Act by themselves, without any Depen“ dence upon, or Conjunction with the Upper “ House: But this is certainly a very great “ Mistake.

“ For the whole Convocation is but one “ Body: They meet together first in one Place
“ before the Archbishop as President, sitting pro
“ Tribunali, as it is always express'd; and tho'
“ afterward the Lower Clergy have (by the Ap“ pointment of the President) a particular Place
“ assign'd them to Treat and Debate in apart;
“ yet, whenever the President pleases, they are “ oblig'd to return to the Upper House, where “ they first assembled; and both Houses are al“ ways Continued and Prorogued by one In“ strument or Act.

“ The Subject of their Debates is often ap“ pointed by the President: Matters of Form,
“ and Methods of Proceeding are directed by “ him, according to the Precedents of former “ Convocations. The President acting as the “ Head of that one Body, appoints Committees
“ of both Houses, as he did in the present Case:
“ And as such Appointments were always obey'd
“ by former Convocations, so the Lower House “ ought at this time, so far at least to have com-
“ ply'd with the Order made by the President,
“ as to attend the Bishops in the Committee ap“ pointed by him; tho' they might not think “ themselves thereby oblig'd to concur in the “ Resolutions of such Committee, but might “ have agreed or disagreed, as they saw Occa“ sion.

“ The President and Bishops, if they had de-“ sird a sight of the Act-Book of the Lower-“ House, might have requir'd it of Right, as “ they find their Predecessors have done; but “ their Intention was to have the Books of both “ Houses inspect'd together by a joint Commit“ tee of both Houses; not in order to prejudice
“ the Lower Clergy in any thing, or to bring “ any Censure upon them; but in order to have “ both Books Examind, and all the Proceedings
“ and Entries therein regulated in an amicable “ way, to prevent all Mistakes, and to take a“ way all Occasion of Disputes and Controversies “ between the Upper and the Lower House:
“ And thereby not only to prevent the evil Con“ sequences which any irregular Proceedings or “ Entries upon either of the Books might bring “ upon the Church and Clergy hereafter, but “ also to bring all Things to a regular Method,
“ and such fair Intercourse, as ought to be be“ tween the Bishops and Clergy of this Pro“ vince; that so they might have proceeded to“ gether in such Matters as would have been for “ the Honour and Interest of Religion, and the “ Security of the Church of England, as now
“ by Law Established.

“ 2. As to the Complaint in this and the o“ ther Papers, for want of their former Jour“ nals, as if they had a Right for the keeping
“ of them, (if they knew where) the President
“ and Bishops Answer, That this Complaint is “ very Unreasonable and Unjust.

“ For altho' all the Registers and Act-Books
“ of Convocation, whether of the Upper or “ Lower House, do of undoubted Right belong “ to the Archbishop, and are to be kept by his “ Officer in such Place as he shall appoint; to “ which Place the Members of the Upper and 1701.

“ Lower House may have, and always had a
“ free Access, when, and as oft as they please:
“ This Complaint is so much the more Unjust,
“ because, they cannot but know that the Arch“ bishop hath been so favourable, as to send all
“ the Act-Books mention'd in this Complaint,
“ and also the Modern Register-Books of the “ Upper-House, to a Committee of the Lower “ House, to be freely us'd by them as often as “ they have desir'd it; and has given them no“ tice, that all the ancient Registers were in the “ Library at Lambeth, where they or any of “ them might have free Access to them; and “ they had Access to them, and the Use of them “ accordingly.

“ They of the Lower House cannot be igno“ rant that the Archbishop's Register is of com“ mon Right the Register of the Convocation
“ of this Province; and altho' he as such is to “ attend the President and Bishops in the Upper “ House, yet the Clergy of the Lower House
“ pay Fees to him, not only on their first ap“ pearance, but at every Prorogation by the “ King's Writ: And the Actuary, who attends
“ the Lower House, is but the Register's Ser“ vant, and acts as such; and the Register may “ employ one to Day, and another to Morrow,
“ as appears in the Journal of the Lower House, “ 1588.

“ 3. The President and Bishops had just Rea“ son to hope, That if that Committee had met,
“ not only the Entries in the Books would have “ been rectify'd, but that the Bishops appointed
“ by them, would have been able to have satis-
“ fy'd those of the Lower House, that their Ad-“ journaling themselves by their own Authority,
“ and Sitting and Acting as a House when the “ Upper-House did not Sit, and indeed, con“ trary to the Prorogation made by the Presi“ dent in the Upper-House, is not only Illegal,
“ but of dangerous Consequence.

“ For the President and Bishops do upon cer“ tain Grounds judge, That all the Proceedings “ upon such intermediate Days Transacted by
“ the Lower Clergy, acting as a House of Con“ vocation, are Irregular, Null, and Void, as “ being done in an Assembly of Presbyters, not “ warranted by Law, and acting not only inde“ pendently of their Metropolitan and Bishops,
“ but in opposition to the Authority which the “ Constitution of the Church and Laws of the “ Land have Vested in them.

“ The President and Bishops having given this “ clear and distinct Answer to the Reasons of“ fer'd by them of the Lower House in their “ own Justification, cannot but hope that they “ will consider better of the Irregularity they “ are guilty of, and remove the Obstructions,
“ which by introducing several dangerous Inno“ vations they have laid in the way of all Busi“ ness in this Convocation, and conform them“ selves to the ancient and regular Methods of “ Proceedings; that so both Houses may go on “ Unanimously and Vigorously in the Prosecu“ tion of such Things as may tend to the Glory
“ of God, and the Good of this Church.

To return to the Proceedings on this 6th. of Further June. The Prolocutor at the Motion of his Proceeds Grace, brought up the Paper of Complaint against ings in the Lord Bishop of Sarum; which being read over Convoca-and consider'd by the Archbishop and Bishops, tion his Grace soon after spoke to the Prolocutor to this Effect. “ Your Paper of Complaint against “ my Lord of Sarum's Book does contain only “ Generals; and therefore we must require you
“ to bring up the Specialties or Particulars of “ your Charge against that Book.” The Prolo-
Vol. III. P p p p 2 cure

1701. cutor and his Company going back to the Lower House, his Grace thought they were preparing such a Particular Charge against the Bishop's Exposition; and therefore after some time of Expecting, the Archbishop sent the proper Messenger, Mr. Tillot, to the Lower House, to enquire of the Prolocutor, Whether they had any thing in Readiness to present to the Archbishop and Bishops, as to any particular Articles against the Lord Bishop of Sarum's Book? And soon after, the Messenger return'd with this abrupt Answer in Writing: This House desires Mr. Tillot to return their Lordships their humble Thanks for their Message, and to tell them, That this House is preparing Business, but are not yet ready with it. Upon which, the Archbishop with Consent of his Brethren, Prorogued the Convocation to June 13th.

Declaration of a Committee of Bishops.

In the mean time, a Committee of Bishops had come to this Declaration of their Judgment, in reference to the extraordinary Steps taken by the Lower House.

"First, In Relation to the Complaint and Censure of the Bishop of Sarum's Exposition of the XXXIX Articles, made by the Lower House, and presented to the Archbishop and Bishops on May 30th, 1701;

I. It is our Opinion, That the Lower House of Convocation has no manner of Power judicially to Censure any Book.

II. That the Lower House of Convocation ought not to have entred upon the Examination of a Book of any Bishop of this Church, without first acquainting the President and Bishops with it.

III. That the Lower House of Convocation's Censuring the Book of the Bishop of Sarum in general Terms, without mentioning the particular Passages on which the Censure is grounded, is Defamatory and Scandalous.

IV. That the Bishop of Sarum, by his Excellent History of the Reformation, approved by both Houses of Parliament, and other Writings, hath done great Service to the Church of England, and justly deserves the Thanks of this House.

V. That tho' private Persons may Expound the Articles of the Church, yet it cannot be proper for the Convocation at this Time to approve, and much less to condemn such private Expositions.

Secondly, In relation to the Prolocutor's Complaint against the Bishop of Bangor, and his Behaviour on that and the like Occasions in the Upper House;

I. We are of Opinion, That the Bishop of Bangor made a true and just Report in the Upper House, of the Answer made by the Prolocutor, to a Question propos'd unto him on the 30th. of May, at the Door of this House.

II. We are further confirm'd in this Opinion, because the Prolocutor gave the same Answer in Effect to his Grace, after he had been call'd in to the House.

III. We are of Opinion, That the Paper read by the Prolocutor after he was call'd in, was not concerning the Irregularity which this House Complain'd of, but principally to introduce a Complaint against the Bishop of Sarum, which had no relation at all to that Irregularity.

IV. It plainly appears, by comparing the Paper which the Prolocutor Read after he was called in, with his Answer to the Que-tion propos'd by him, as well by his Grace as by the Bishop of Bangor, that the said Prolocutor's Answer was such as by no means ought to have been given by him to his Grace, or to any Member of that House.

Thirdly, In relation to Dr. Verney, and other Members of the Lower House, who had dissented from the Majority, and had protested against their Irregular Proceedings; their Lordships in a Committee were of Opinion;

I. That Dr. Verney, and others of the Lower House, who comply'd with the Prorogations made by the President in the Upper House, and declined to Act on the intermediate Days, have behaved themselves as of Right and Duty they ought to do.

II. That they have thereby maintain'd the Just Rights of Convocation, and the Legal Authority of the President and Bishops, and have Acted as became true Sons of the Church of England.

III. That they deserve the Protection of the Upper House for their dutiful and worthy Behaviour.

IV. That the Prolocutor, and some others of the Lower House, have violated the Methods of Proceedings in Convocation, and attempted to introduce divers Innovations and Irregularities, destructive of the Metropolitan and Episcopal Authority of the Archbishop and Bishops of this Province, and thereby endangered the Constitution of this Church, and given great Advantages to the Enemies thereof.

V. That by not submitting to the Prorogations made by the President, with Concurrence of his Suffragans, and pretending to an Authority to Adjourn themselves, and Sitting and Acting as a House, after such Prorogation by the President, and on Days when the Upper House did not Sit, the Prolocutor and those joining with him in such Practices, are guilty of manifest Disobedience and Contempt.

VI. That by refusing to nominate a Committee of their House, to meet with a Committee of the Bishops as the President had appointed, they are likewise guilty of a great Contempt and Disobedience.

In the next Session, June the 20th. when the Archbishops and Bishops had ended their Prayers, the Prolocutor appear'd, with the greatest part of the Lower House attending him, holding in his Hands Two several Papers, and offering to deliver both of them: To whom the President spoke to this effect, That he could receive no Paper from him, but that containing the Particularities of the General Charge against the Bishop of Sarum's Exposition of the XXXIX Articles, which at the Request of the said Bishop, he was now ready to receive: To which the Prolocutor replied, That he had Two Papers in his Hand, ready to present to his Grace, and the rest of the Bishops then present, if his Grace would please to receive them: But without Direction of the Lower House, he could not present the One without the other. That therefore he would return, and take the Opinion of the House thereupon. But he never came back with that Opinion, till the Convocation by Royal Writ directed to the Archbishop, was Prorogued to August the 7th. thence to September the 18th. and so on, till the Parliament being Dissolved, the Convocation of each Province by Writs directed to the respective Archbishops were accordingly Dissolved.

Convocation Dissolved.

1701. A new Convocation of the Province of Can- terbury being Summon'd to meet in concurrence with the New Parliament, was open'd in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, London, with Solemn Prayers, and an Excellent Latin Sermon, Preached by Dr. William Sherlock, Dean of that Church, on Epist. Jude, v. 3. In the Choice of a Prolocutor, the Competition was between the Learned Dr. Beveridge, Archdeacon of Colchester, and Dr. Woodward Dean of Sarum, a Civilian grown Popular by opposing his Diocesan, to whom he ow'd his Preferments.
 He was by a Majority Elected, and Confirm'd by the Archbishop. The First Synodical Act was an Address to the King, presented by the Archbishop, at the Head of the Bishops and Clergy, to His Majesty at Kensington, on January the 22d.

Address
of both Houses.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

"We humbly beg Leave to lay before your Majesty, now we are Assembled in Convocation, the deep Resentment that every One of us had, at our First hearing of the great Indignity which the French King offered to your Majesty and your People, in declaring the pretended Prince of Wales to be King of your Majesty's Realms and Dominions.

"We do hereupon take Occasion to renew our sincere Protestations, of a firm and unshaken Allegiance to your Majesty, humbly assuring your Majesty; That we will do our utmost Endeavours, by Gods Assistance, in our respective Places and Stations, to Defend your Sacred Person, and to Maintain your Majesty's Rightful Title to the Imperial Crown of these Realms, and the Succession thereof in the Protestant Line, as now by Law Established, against the said pretended Prince, and all other Your Majesty's open and secret Enemies.

"We will always, according to our especial
 Duty, make it our earnest Prayer to God,
 That he will long continue your Majesty's Happy Reign over us, that you may perfect all those great Works, in which he hath hitherto wonderfully conducted you with so much Glory and Success, for the Peace and Welfare of these Kingdoms, and the Support of your Allies, the Safety and Tranquility of Europe, and the Preserving the Protestant Religion, both here in this Church of England,
 by Law Establish'd, and in all other Protestant Churches.

His Majesty seem'd to be very well pleas'd with this Venerable Appearance, and made this Gracious Answer.

My Lords and the Rest of the Clergy,

I cannot but be very much pleas'd with these Expressions of your Affection to me, and your Concern for the Honour of the Nation, for Maintaining the Succession to the Crown in the Protestant Line; and for the Preservation of the Protestant Churches. And I am glad of this Opportunity to give you fresh Assurances of my firm Resolution, in an especial manner, to Protect and Support the Church of England, as by Law Establish'd.

King's
Answer.

On Wednesday January the 28th. an unhappy Occasion began of widening the Difference between those Members who believed the Archbishop of this Province had the Right and constant Practice of Continuing and Proroguing the whole Convocation, and those others who thought the Lower House might have a Power to Adjourn it self. This difference of Opinion led into some Disputes in every Sessions; which yet were manag'd consistently with Peace and Order: For whatever Notions of Independency were advanc'd by a few particular Members, the House in general had hitherto so ordered their Entries in the Journal, that All unanimously met upon the Synodical Days and Hours, appointed by the Archbishop in his Schedules of Prorogation. But on this Day a Member unhappily mov'd to change the Form of Entry in the Minutes, and to assume the Phrase of Dominus Prolocutor Continuat & Prorogavit quoad hanc Domum, which was accordingly entred instead of the usual Form, Prolocutor intimavit hanc Convocationem esse continuatam, &c.

1701.
Unhappy Disputes.

In the next Session, Tuesday, February the 3d.
 this new Phrase in the Entry of the Minutes was excepted against by several Members; but there was a Majority to Resolve, that the Words in the Entry shall stand as they are; and that This Matter shall not be now further Debated. When the Schedule of Prorogation came down, it was laid aside upon the Table, while the House was proceeding to other Business. Upon which a Member moved, that "He had observed some Message from above had been deliver'd to the Prolocutor; and he thought it the Right of this House to have it Communicated to 'em, before they entred upon New Business." But this was oppos'd by the Majority, and they went on to appoint a Committee of Grievances, &c. After which the Prolocutor adjourn'd as by Authority of the House; while the Members on the other side declared, "That this House had no pretence of Right to Adjourn it self, when the Schedule interposes to Prorogue the whole Convocation; and that therefore they did verbally protest against such an Irregular way of Adjourning." And before the next Meeting, they put their verbal Protestation into Writing to this effect.

"That whereas in the Lower House, the last Session, February the 3d. the Prolocutor refus'd to Read the Schedule of Prorogation sent down by the Archbishop, when it was call'd for by several Members; the Majority of the House at the same time interposing to hinder it: And that whereas after notice given by the Prolocutor, of the Schedule's being received, the Majority of the House made an Order to proceed upon New Business and at the end of that would not suffer themselves to be Prorogued by the Schedule, but Adjourn'd by their own Act, upon a Question propos'd to the House which was verbally declared against by several Members then present: Therefore the Parties whose Names were Subscribed, believing it to be the Right of the Archbishop, to Continue and Prorogue the whole Convocation of Prelates and Clergy by Schedule; and to send down such other Messages to be communicated to the Lower House, as his Grace shall think fit; and believing it also to be the Right of every Member of the Lower House to have the Archbishop's Messages Intimated, and his just Orders observed, as they conceive it to be the Duty of the Prolocutor to Intimate and Observe them: They do hereby protest against the foremention'd Acts, as contrary to these Rights.

Protestation of several Members

On Monday, February the 9th. the Dean of Peterborough in a very proper Speech mov'd, that the foresaid Protestation might be admitted, and entred in Writing, as a standing Evidence of their asserting the Just Rights and Authority

1701. Authority of their Metropolitan and President, to Prorogue the whole Convocation or Synod, the Lower as well as the Upper House, by Schedule; and of their disowning any inherent Right or Power, this House is said to have in it self to Prorogue, or as the new Word lately taken up is, to Adjourn it self.

This Motion being warmly opposed by the Majority, drew out the House into a long Debate, till for Peace sake, Dr. Beveridge put this Question in Writing. Whether upon supposition that the House may sit upon Synodical Business, after the coming down of the Schedule, till they think their Business over; the House will agree, that the Schedule shall be then Executed, and the House Prorogued to the Day and Hour there specified, by vertue of the said Schedule, and in obedience to the Authority whereby the Whole Convocation is Prorogued. This Question was dropt by the Majority, and to evade the Answering of it, it was at last Agreed, "That a Committee should be appointed to consider of such an Expedient about the Prorogation of this House, as may tend to the composing all Disputes in this Matter." Which Committee should consist of the Number of Sixteen, Light on each side of the Controversy.

Dr. Hooper.	Dr. Beveridge.
Dr. June.	Dr. Hayley.
Dr. Aldrich.	Dr. Willis.
Dr. Atterbury.	Dr. Kennet.
Dr. Binckes.	Dr. Trimmel.
Mr. Needham.	Dr. Prideaux.
Mr. Moor.	Dr. Green.
Dr. Wynne.	Mr. Lloyd.

Their Agreement.

This Committee met on Tuesday, February the 10th. and by degrees fell into these Three Heads of Agreement.

"I. Agreed, That in Order to an Accommodation, no Forms of Prorogation shall be used by the Prolocutor hereafter, that were not used by the Prolocutor before the last Convocation.

"II. That the Forms of Prorogation used by the Prolocutor in the Convocation of 1586. and 1588. shall hereafter be used by the Prolocutor, in the order they lye in the Books, beginning with the First, till they are all gone through.

"III. That these Forms shall be pronounc'd by the Prolocutor, when the House agrees that their Business is over.

It soon appear'd, that the Majority would interpret the Peace to be a Victory; and therefore within few Hours after the Committee was up, some forward Persons were boasting of the Advantages gain'd on the side of the Lower House; and that the Archbishop's Friends had given up his Cause, and had now excluded the Schedule from any concern in the Adjournment. This Story was so industriously spread, that the Members of the Committee (who knew they had receded from no Principles of Truth and Right) found themselves insulted by some and almost suspected by others. They despised the Rumour, and chose rather to have been censur'd for going in too far, than for standing too much off. But the whispers had however this effect upon some very considerable Members, who had not been present at the Committee, that they resolv'd in the next Session to take some opportunity to renounce that invidious Sense which some People had thus put upon the Third Article of Agreement. And after mature Deliberation, the Result was to subscribe a Declaratory Form, to be offered to the House in their next meeting, to this Effect.

1701.

That whereas by Report made from a late Committee, they found the Third particular to be in these Words, That these Forms (meaning the Forms of Prorogation used in the Convocations of 1586. and 1588.) shall be pronounc'd by the Prolocutor, when the House agrees that the Business of the House is over: "They declare that the meaning is understood by them, with an Exception to any Case, when the President shall see Cause to send an Order with the Schedule, signifying the express time of intimating the Prorogation upon that Day: otherwise if it were pretended to mean, that the Authority of the Archbishop, or any Order sent from the Upper House, was thereby excluded or diminished; they then solemnly protest against any such Meaning or pretended Meaning.

This Paper was Subscribed by several of the most considerable Members, and was brought by one of them to be offered to the House on Thursday, February the 12th. The other Eight Members who had been of the Committee, hearing daily of many false Constructions put upon the Agreement they had made with their Brethren, met together and unanimously Resolved to make a plain Declaration of their own Sense in those Three Particulars, which they did to this effect.

"That some Misrepresentations having been made concerning the Three Articles, agreed to in a Committee of the Lower House of Convocation, February the 10th. 1701. they take this occasion to declare,

"That they came with a sincere Desire of Peace; and when they came, finding that the Dispute of the Right on either side was not like to end in Peace, but rather to continue the Division; they therefore endeavour'd to find out an Expedient for the present Practice, that should not determine the Merits of the Question between 'em.

"That, in order to this, they thought proper to go by the Methods of the Antient Convocations, in which these Controversies had not been moved, which was the Ground of the First Proposition.

"That they could not easily pitch upon any single Form of Prorogation, which was not thought to Favour the Pretensions of one Side or the other, though they propos'd to have that Form that should appear to be most usually upon the Books. That therefore, both sides agreeing that the Books of 1586. and 1588. were the most Authentick Acts remaining of the Lower House; they agreed to take all the Forms in Order, as they lay in those Books, according to the Second Proposition.

"As to the Third Proposition, they declare, That though it be their Opinion that the whole Convocation of Prelates and Clergy is Prorogued by the Authority of the Archbishop, according to the Tenor of a Schedule Sign'd by him to that End; yet presuming that the Archbishop did not expect the immediate intimating of his Continuation, unless he sent particular Order to that purpose; they therefore agree to that Third Proposition.

Declaration of some Members.

"And

1701. " And as an Argument, that this was their Sense in that Agreement, they refused an Alteration that was offered upon the Third Article, viz. That the Form should not be pronounced by the Prolocutor, till the House agree that their Business was over.

" This they affirm to have refus'd for this Reason (which was then express'd) because tho' they might generally presume upon the Archbishop's Consent for their sitting to dispatch all proper Business; yet they could not agree to any thing, that should preclude the Archbishop's Right to Prorogue 'em immediately if he found it expedient.

" That they think it also proper to add, That they used the words Pronounced by the Prolocutor, in order to prevent the putting any Question to the House about Adj. writing themselves. And that the Prorogation might be always to the time and place appointed by the Schedule.

On Thursday, February 12. the Prolocutor being indispos'd, did assign the Dean of Christ-Church as his Deputy to act for him. The Members who disavow'd the common Proceedings of the Majority, were content to accept of a Deputy so appointed by the Prolocutor, provided that Application was duly made to the President to Approve and Confirm him. To this, the Majority seem'd to agree, and one of the Leading Members said, That there was no design of making a common Referendary between the Two Houses without consulting his Grace. But it being resolved, that no such proper Application should be made, His Grace sent for the Clergy to Jerus. lem-Chamber, and spoke thus; My Brethren of the Clergy, there has happened an Incident of great Moment, which I and my Brethren must take time to consider of between this and Saturday next; to which I have thought fit to Prorogue the Convocation. I order you Mr. Tyllot to read the Schedule.

Death of the Prolocutor. On Friday, February 13; Dr. Woodward the Prolocutor died in his Lodgings at Westminster, in very unhappy Circumstances. On the next day, Saturday February 14. his Grace on this occasion thus address'd himself to the Inferior Clergy, Brethren of the Clergy, I hear the Prolocutor is dead, and we are very much surpriz'd at the News of it. We must consider what is proper to be done on this occasion. The Dean and Chapter of Westminster (as my Lord of Rochester tells us) will make use of this place on Monday and Tuesday next: Wednesday is a Day of Solemn Devotion, being Ashwednesday, therefore I have order'd the Prorogation to be till Thursday. Mr. Tyllot, do you read the Schedule.

We must observe, that just before the last Sickness of the Prolocutor, he had endeavour'd to recommend himself to a great Party by complaining of his best Friend, his own Bishop: The grounds of the Complaint was only this, His Lordship held his Triennial Visitations constantly in Person, and the Parochial Clergy, as in duty bound, paid their Attendance, in a regular and respectful Manner. But the Dean of Sarum, as Rector of Pensy, declin'd his Appearance at the time and place of Visitation, without making any reasonable Excuse; but rather aggravating his Absence by such Signs of Contempt, as made it evidently an Ill Example, and oblig'd his Lordship to order a Citation as in a usual Method, before any Privilege of Convocation did obtain or was pretended: When the time of Privilege did afterward Commence, his Lordship order'd his Chancellor to put a Stet upon the Cause, and there was no farther Proceeding in it. This light Matter was to be improv'd into a Grievance, and a Remonstrance upon it. So on February 9th. this Form of Complaint was presented to the Archbishop and Bishops.

1701. " Whereas it is the ancient undoubted Right of every Person Summon'd to the Convocation of this Province by his Majesty's Writ, and your Grace's Mandate thereupon, to be Privileged from all Suits, except for Breach of the Peace, during the time of its Assembling. " And whereas it appears to us, That the Reverend Dr. Robert Woodward, Dean of Sarum, a known Member of this House, and also Prolocutor of it, is at this time (or has lately been) Prosecuted, by the Order of the Right Reverend Gilbert Lord Bishop of Sarum, in a certain Cause of pretended Contempt and Disobedience; and that George Frome lately the Proctor of the said Dean in this Cause, was on Tuesday the 27th, or Wednesday the 28th of January last, Admonish'd in the said Lord Bishop's Consistory to appear and answer in it on the Tuesday following; which days are within the time of the sitting of this present Convocation: We the Clergy of the Lower House of Convocation being aggrieved in this Fact, not only by the unlawful Molestation of a Member of our House, but by the Injury offer'd to whole Body of the Convocation, in the Person of the Referendary between the Two Houses of it, do humbly beseech your Grace, and your Lordships, so effectually to deal with the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Sarum, that the said Prolocutor may be freed from this unlawful Visitation; and that the Rights of the particular Members of Convocation, and the Honour of the whole Body, so puckerly violated by so eminent a Member of it, may not suffer by the ill Example, but may have some proper Reparation made; such as your Lordships in your Wisdom and Justice shall think fit.

Complaint of Breach of Privileges

This Complaint however singular, was not rejected by his Grace and the Bishops; they received it, and considered it, and return'd this Answer to it.

Answer of the Archbishop and Bishops.

" The Archbishop, as President of the Convocation, together with his Brethren and Suffragans, will always take care to maintain the just Rights of the Lower House, and particularly their Privilege of Exemption from Suits.

" And therefore having upon occasion of this Address enquired into the Matter of Complaint against the Lord Bishop of Sarum contained therein, they have received this Account of the Matter of Fact, from the said Bishop of Sarum: That the Proceedings against Dr. Woodward, as Rector of Pensy, (now the Referendary of the Lower House) were begun at a time when there was no Privilege: And that upon the opening of this present Convocation, his Lordship did order his Chancellor to put a Stet upon the Cause; by whom he is assured, That notwithstanding no Privilege was pleaded, nor so much as any Motion made to suspend further Proceedings, he did nevertheless put a Stet upon it. Nor was there any Citation or Process decreed against the said Doctor, since the opening of this Convocation. This being the State of the Case;

" The Archbishop and his Brethren, cannot see what ground there was for Complaint; and think you had done well to have been better assured, that the Matter was such as it was represented to you; before you had charged it with the hard Terms of an unlawful Molestation, and Exaction, and demanded Reparation up-1701. " on it. Whereas by this Misrepresentation of " the Bishop's Proceedings in this Case, it

" plainly appears to whom Reparation ought to " be made.

There was indeed so much of Partiality and Prejudice in the beginning and prosecuting of this Complaint, that had the Author of it liv'd, many good Christians did hope he would have repented of it. In the mean time, this unhappy Subject may conclude with what is modestly said by the Writer of the Present State of this Convocation, Correcting the Mistakes and Slanders of the pretended Faithful Accounts. 4to. p. 40.

" It would be too large a Story to give you
" the Rise and Prosecution of this warm Com" plaint, and the several Debates upon it in the " Lower House. I am the more tender in the " Matter, because the plainest Relation of it " would affect the Veracity of a Person now
" Deceased, who has thereby a Title to have
" many parts of this Cause to be kept in Si" lence.

After the Prolocutor's Death, there being no Business depending, and nothing in Debate but the Clergy's Pretensions of Exemption from the Synodical Authority and Rights of the Archbishop and Bishops; his Grace, with Advice of his Brethren, on Thursday, Febr. 19th. dismiss'd the Clergy with this tender Speech.

Brethren of the Clergy,

The Speech of the President.

" When you brought up your last Address,
" complaining of a Breach of Privilege by the " Bishop of Salisbury, we readily received it,
" and no one of us was more ready to do it,
" than the Bishop himself. We then promised
" you should have an Answer to it on the next " Day of our Meeting. The Answer was ac" cordingly prepared, being founded upon the " Acts of the Bishop's Court at Salisbury, and
" the Account given by the Judge of that " Court; which Answer you may see enter'd in " our Journal.

" The late Prolocutor's Illness, and an Incident
" that happen'd upon it, were the Cause that
" this Answer was not communicated that Day.
" We hope, when you have read that Answer,
" you will not suffer your selves for the future
" to be surpriz'd into Complaints of this Na" ture, but will stay till you are fully assur'd
" that they are well grounded both in Fact and " Right; I say Right, as well as Fact. For your
" Assertion, That we are privileg'd from all
" Suits, except for Breach of the Peace, was not " well consider'd; since there are Matters of a " higher Nature, wherein Privilege cannot be " pleaded. I might add, That if I mistake not
" the Sense of the late Act, it suffers the Cause
" to go on, provided that the Person remains " unmolested. But of this enough, especially " considering that the Person particularly con" cerned, is lately Dead.

" By his Death the Prolocutor's Chair becom" ing void, you may justly expect I should say " something concerning the filling of it. That " is a Matter, which as the State of our Affairs
" at present stands, needs much Deliberation:
" I have had many Thoughts upon that Sub" ject, and I will freely communicate such of " them as I judge to be proper at this time.

" The Choice of a Prolocutor or Referendary,
" is equally the Right and Concern of the " whole Lower House. Many of the Members
" (several of which desired earnestly to be dis-
" miss'd) are now absent in the Country, and
" divers of them at a great distance from Lon" don. They are (I believe) gone down, as for
" other Reasons, so chiefly that they may attend

1701. " their respective Cures in this Solemn Time
" of Lent, and bestow a considerable part of it
" in Catechising, and preparing Persons for the " Blessed Sacrament at Easter.

" It will not, I think, be fair to exclude them
" from a share in a New Election: And to send
" for them up, when they are so well employ'd,
" merely for the Choice of a Prolocutor, without
" other necessary Business here, will be a Hardship to " them, and a Prejudice to their Cures. No
" Synodical Business is yet, by Royal Authority,
" laid before the Convocation. If there were,
" yet till the Formulary be better settled, the Busi" ness would, at every turn, be interrupted
" by Debates about Methods of Proceeding.

" During a Recess, good Progress may, I " hope, be made in that matter. Many Mate" rials are brought together in order to the " preparing of a Draught for composing a *Mo-
" d'us tenendi Convocationem*. I have communica" ted one Authentick Book, which came lately to
" my hands, and am in hopes of recovering an" other, together with several Papers which " may be useful to this purpose. And I doubt " not but the Members of both Houses will contri" bute their Endeavours towards the same good " Work.

" For the abovesaid Reasons, as also because
" a War seems to be breaking out, which will
" in some Measure divert Men's Thoughts from " Business of this Nature, and there are like" wise appearances of a speedy winding up of " Publick Affairs, I purpose further to deliberate
" about appointing the Choice of a Prolocutor,
" and at present to proceed to a Prorogation: But " I shall do it by such Intervals, during this Ses" sions of Parliament, as may upon any emergent
" Occasions, leave room for the Choice of a *Pro-
" locutor*, and the Sitting of the Convocation.
" And for those who look upon Me or any of " my Suffragans, as designing to bring *Convoca-
" tions* and the Prolocutors thereof into Disuse, or
" to put any unreasonable Restraints upon the Lower
" House, they are greatly mistaken; and I hope
" a little time will shew them their Error, and
" put an end to all such groundless Suspicions,
" as well as allay the Heats which they have
" occasion'd. Such Heats have given great
" Scandal and Offence, even to those who un" derstand not the nature of the Controversy,
" but are much concern'd, that there should be
" any Differences among Men, who are by Pro" fession the Ministers of the Gospel of Peace.
" And I am sorry to find, that in a Paper which " came to my hands last Night, mark'd Num" ber 1. (shewing a design of the continuance
" of it, in case the Convocation should also " continue to sit) a strange Method is laid for
" giving Publick Intelligence from time to time,
" of any Differences that might hereafter arise.
" The Title of it is, A Faithful Account of some
" Transactions in the Three last Sessions of the present
" Convocation. But, as I am told this Morning,
" it will speedily be shewn in several Particu-
" lars, how far it is from Answering that Title,
" especially in the Relation of what pass'd in a
" late Committee. When the Explications then
" directly insisted on shall be more publickly un" derstood, the Partiality of the Writer of this " Paper will be no less publick.

" I beseech you, Brethren, to look forward to " the things that make for Peace, and whereby we " may edify one another, and the Established " Church, of which, by the singular Goodness
" of God, we are Members: That for those " Differences which have continued too long al" ready, may be speedily and happily compos'd.
" To which end, I heartily commend my self
" and 1701. "and you, to the God of Peace and Unity, through "Jesus Christ our Lord.

Proceedings of the Lower Clergy.

A great part of the Clergy were entirely satisfied with these Reasons; and thought it a reasonable Juncture to have the Liberty of returning to their Churches and Families; and there to expect a Call upon such emergent Occasion, as should require the Choice of a Prolocutor, and the Sitting of the Convocation. But what is much to be pity'd, other Some took up the pretence of greater Discontent, and would meet in Henry VII's Chappel Two Days after, and would Resolve themselves into a sort of Assembly, and chose a Moderator or Chair-Man to that purpose. And when the Day came, to which the Archbishop had prorogued the Convocation, they came up as a House, without a Prolocutor, to the Chamber adjoining to the Jerusalem Chamber, and there meeting the Bishop of Lincoln, who as his Grace's Commissary had now Prorogued the Convocation to a further Day, they desired his Lordship to carry a Message to his Grace, of their desire to proceed to the Choice of a Prolocutor. His Lordship with great Kindness told them, that he was unwilling to carry any Message by Word of Mouth, for fear he might Mistake in the delivery of it: But if they pleased to Dictate to him, he would take their Sense in Writing, and so lay it before his Grace: Upon which they began to express themselves to this Effect, That it was the unanimous Desire of the Lower House of Convocation, &c. Upon which another Member of different Opinion, who had that Morning waited on his Lordship, and was his ordinary Chaplain, did Modestly interpose, and say, "That he hop'd no such Message would be worded in the Name of the whole Lower House; For as they were not a House, and did not act in that Capacity without a Prolocutor; so many of the Members (of which himself was one) had not assented to any such Message; and therefore he presum'd it would be more true and proper, to let the Message run in the Name of Several Members of the Lower House;" And the Bishop in his Writing down their Sense, did so accordingly express it. But this raised a new Clamour, and those who assumed the Name of a House (especially Dr. Feib) fell severely on the Member who proposed the alteration of their Phrase, as a Betrayer of their Rights and Liberties; though no One had taken more Pains to understand, or had better Resolutions to assert, all manner of Rights and Powers, that were agreeable to the Practice of former Convocations, and to the established Constitution of this Church and State.

Within a Day or Two after, the King's Death, which should have put an end to these Disputes, did raise another Question, Whether the Convocation did expire with Him? His Grace and the Bishops were rightly sensible, that the Convocation being assembled by the Archbishop's Mandate in obedience to the King's Writ, could no longer subsist, than while that Royal Writ remain'd in Force and Virtue: And therefore the Writ of Summons abating by the King's Death, the Convocation was virtually dissolved. But on the other hand, that part of the Lower House who had entred upon new Claims, were taught to call themselves a Parliamentary Body, and at least to Attend upon the Parliament, by virtue of the Præmunientes Clause, which they had lately got executed in several Dioceses. And therefore there having been a late Act to continue this Parliament after the Demise of the King, these Members would imagine that the Convocation was such a Part of the Parliament as could not be separated from it. And therefore if they were no longer a Provincial Synod, they were however a part of the National Clergy, summon'd by the Præmunientes Clause, to meet in Parliament. And indeed had their Parliamentary Notions been true, this had been a just Inference from them. But when they came to consult with Men Learned in the Laws, they soon found, that the Act for continuing the Parliament, did by no means include the Convocation; which being called by a different Writ, had a different Constitution, and must needs determine with the King's Death. When they were under this Disappointment, they solicited some Friends in the House of Lords, to bring in an extraordinary Clause, to revive the dead Convocation, and to declare it to be still in Being, notwithstanding that it was otherwise by the King's Death actually Dissolved. This Clause of giving Resurrection, was thought so extraordinary, that the greater number of Peers could not be reconciled to it, and the Attorney-General declaring it was against the Queen's Ecclesiastical Supremacy, it was at last dropt. And happy had it been if all other Disputes of this nature could have dropt with it.

1701. Question, Whether the Convocation was dissolved with the King's Death.

F I N I S.

A N

INDEX

To the THIRD VOLUME of the Compleat

History of ENGLAND.

A.

Abbeyville, Marquis of, King James's Ambassador in Holland; his Falshood, Page 466. His fruitless Negotiation to get the States to send home the 6 English Regiments, 471. His Memorial to the States, disowning King James II. having any private Alliance with the French King, 489.

Abbot, Dr. John, Archbishop of Canterbury, Sequestred, 37. Recall'd to Court, 46. His Lenity and Character, 50. His Honesty and Suspension, ibid. His Death and Character, 64.

Abhorrence, a Test of, Past, 303.

Abhorrents, Addressers against Petitioning the King, to call'd, 382. Proceeded against by the Parliament, 385, 388. Cambridge University Addresses, an Abhorrence of the Association and altering the Succession, 402.

Abington, Earl of, goes to the Prince of Orange at Exeter, 496.

Abjuration Oath, that pass'd by the Rump against King Charles II. 217. Refus'd by many of the Members, ibid.

Acton, Sir William, Sheriff of London, Committed to the Tower about Tunnage and Poundage, 47.

Adda, Ferdinando D', the Pope's Nuncio, his publick Entry, 468. A Favourite of Queen Mary's, ibid. What Intrigues he troubled himself most with, 469. Demies to be recall'd, ibid.

Addresses to Charles II. suspected to be set on by the Court, 400. Ridiculous ones to King James from the Orfordshire Dissenters, and the County of Hertford, 469.

Aeth Beliegd by Three Marechals of France, 737. And taken, ibid.

Aghrim, Battel of, 627, 628, 629.

Aix La Chapelle, Treaty of, 271.

Albion, George Monk, made Duke of, 224. His Care of the Cities of London and Westminster in the Plague time, 256. Worsted by the Dutch Fleet, 260. He gains a Victory over them, ibid. Made first Commissioner of the Treasury, 266. His Death and Pompous Funeral, 274.

Albermarle, Christopher Monk Duke of, sent Governour to Jamaica, 470.

Albermarle, Mr. Kappel made Earl of, 754. In great Favour with King William, ibid. Made Knight of the Garter, 784. His Attendance on the King in his last Sickneis, 832. The King's Legacy to him, 834.

Algerines, reduc'd to Terms by the Lord Sandwich, 24. By Sir Thomas Allen, 272.

Allen, Sir Thomas, sent with a Squadron of Men of War to the Streights, by Charles II. 272. Forces the Algerines to conclude a Treaty of Peace, ibid.

Amembador, Danish, his Memorial to King William for a Peace with France, 664.

Ambassadors, French and Spanish, Quarrel for Precedence on Tower Hill, 224.

Amber in Drubbe taken by the Duke of Angus, Earl of, kill'd at Steinkirk, 651. Anjou, Philip Dukke of, declar'd King of Spain, by his Grandfather the French King, 789.

Anabaptists turn'd out of the Army by Monk, 216. They first Address King James, upon his Declaration for Liberty of Conscience, 465.

Anne, Princess, goes to visit her Father the Duke of York in Scotland, 401. Marry'd to Prince George of Denmark, 416. She retires from London, and leaves a Letter for K. James's Queen, 499. Desires the Succession might be settled in the Protestant Line, 529. Debates about the Revenue to be settled upon Her, 547. Her kind Letter to King William, on the Death of her Royal Sister Queen Mary, 674. She is happily reconcil'd to his Majesty, ibid. An Act to make it Treason to Conspire against Her, 830. She Succeeds King William in the Throne, 834.

Anne, Queen of England. Her Speech to the Council on her Accession to the Throne, 834. Her Letter to the States of Holland, to Condole the Death of King William, ibid. A false Report of Design against Her by King William, 835. Refuted by the Lords, ibid.

Apprentices of London; King Charles gives them Two Bucks for a Feast, and why, 401. Duke of Grafton one of their Stewards, ibid. Fin'd and Pillory'd for keeping the 5th of November, 408.

Archdale, a Quaker chosen a Member of Parliament, 765. Not admitted into the House, ibid.

Argyle, Earl of, made a Marquis by Charles I. 111. Hated by Montrose, 179. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid. Raises a faction in Opposition to Duke Hamilton, to the prejudice of King Charles II's Interest, 182.

Argyle, Earl of, moves for Security against a Popish Successor, 401. Found guilty of High Treason, and saves himself by flight, ibid. Lands in Scotland, 431. His Declarations, 432. The Scots tho' provok'd don't joyn him, ibid. He is defeated, Betray'd, Taken and Beheaded, 433. His Death one of the Scots Conventions charges against King James, 537.

Argyle, Earl of, his Son; Sert by the Scots Convention to take King William and Queen Mary's Coronation Oath, 538.

Arlington, Earl of, one of the Cabal that advis'd the Shutting up of the Exchequer, 84. Sent Ambassador to the French King in Holland, with the Duke of Bucks and the Lord Halifax, 289. Queries of his Conduct, ibid. Dislik'd by the Prince of Orange, 301.

Arminianism. Complain'd of in the House of Commons, 5. Those who favour'd it hated as a Civil Faction, 30. Favour'd by the King, and the ill Consequence of it, 32. Remonstrated against, 43. Encourag'd by Dr. Laud, Bishop of London, 47. The Parliament protest against it, ibid. The Lord Clarendon's Character of them, 53. Proceedings in Parliament upon it, 50, to 54. Factions in Oxford about it, 61. It makes more Noise, 65.

Armstrong, Sir Thomas, accus'd of the Phantick Plot, a Proclamation against him, 419. Taken and Executed, 422. Debates about reverting his Attainder, 547.

Army, Parliament, refuse to be Disbanded, 155. They remonstrate and engage in an Association, ibid. They Impeach 11 Members, ibid. The Parliament against them, ibid. They are too strong for them, 156. They break off the Isle of Wight's Treaty, and require that the King be brought to Justice, 163. They come to London without Consent of Parliament, and exclude several Members the House, 163, 166.

Aryan, Earl of, Committed to the Tower for plotting to restore King James, 516. Opposes King William's Interest at the Meeting of the Scots Lords and Gentlemen in London, 520.

Articles, the 39. The Protestation of the Commons upon the Sense of them, 54. They are laid aside to make room for the Assembly of Divines Confession of Faith, 16.

Arundel, Earl of, Imprison'd in time of Parliament without Cause assign'd, 20. Sealed on the Complaints of the House of Peers, ibid. Confin'd again, 25. Sent Ambassador to the Emperor, returns without taking Leave, 79. Made General in the Expedition against the Scots, 91.

Arundel, Henry, Lord of Wardour Committed to the Tower for Treason, 368. Made a Privy Counsellor, 452. And Lord Privy Seal, 453.

Ascham, Mr. the Rump's Agent in Spain Assassinated, 181.

Asburnham, Mr. flies with the King from Hampton-Court, 157. Delivers him to Colonel Hammond Governour of the Isle of Wight, ibid.

Ascham, Mr. Thomas, a Minister in Northampton, his Errors and Recantation, 400.

Ashe, Anthony Ashby Cooper, Lord, made one of the Lords of the Treasury by Charles II. 266. One of the Lords that advis'd the shutting up of the Exchequer, 284. Created Earl of Shaftesbury, 288. See Shaftesbury, Earl of.

Ashton, Sir Arthur, Governour of Drogheda, put to the Sword with his whole Garrison by Cromwell, 176.

Ashton, Mr. Condemn'd for a Jacobite Plot, and hang'd, 755.

Assemblies of Divines meet by order of Parliament, 177. Their Acts, 134. Witchell's Character of them, 135. Archbishop Laud's, ibid. Earl of Clarendon's, ibid. Scots admitted amongst them, 134. Their further Acts, 143, 144, 148, 151, 152, 159, 160. They publish their Catechism, 160. And Confession of Faith, ibid. and 174.

Assizes, the Bloody, in the H. B. 438.

Association Bill against the Duke of York and Papists, 389.

Association

Association to stand by King William, Sign'd by all the Members of Parliament, presented to the King by the Lords and Commons, and all the Corporations in England, 716. Deposited in the Tower, ibid.

Ashby, L. Commands the L.R. Army in the Field for the King, 147. Is detented by Sir W. L. Lane Breton, ibid.

Athlone, Siege of, 626. Taken by General Cooke, 627.

Atkins, one of the Yorkshire Conspirators against Charles II. His Insolence 217. He is hang'd, ibid.

Attendants, Act of, the cruel and general one pass'd by King James in Ireland, 479.

Auxerre, Court de, the French Ambassador at the Hague, discovers the Prince of Orange's Design to the French King, and the French King to King James, 488. His Memorial to the States upon it, 499. The French King's Ambassador to King James at Dublin, Sworn of that King's Privy Council, 539. His Intuigues at the Hague about the Spanish Succession, 800, 821. His Memorial when he left Holland, 822, 823.

Aylesbury, Earl of, in a Plot to bring in the French, 709.

Aylmer, Captain, Convoys home a rich Turkey Fleet, 630. Made Rear Admiral of King James's Reign, 432.

Aylmer, Colonel, taken with the Earl of Argyle, 433. Kills himself, ibid.

Aylmer, Mr. John, hang'd at Temple-Bar in the Red, 659. Vice Admiral, 723.

Aysene, Sir George, taken by the Dutch, 260.

B.

Baden, Prince Lewis of, his Actions in Germany. Comes into England, and is magnificently Treated, 668. Other Actions of his in Germany, 721.

Baker, Major, chosen Joint Governor of Londonderry, with Mr. Walker the Minister, 539. His Death, 541.

Balfour, Sir William, sent to raise Forces in the Low-Countries, 38. It gives Discontent, ibid. Remov'd from being Constable of the Tower, 42.

Balmerino, Lord, he and his Father Try'd, Cor. demn'd and Pardon'd, 71.

Banfield, Mr. Chosen Speaker of Richard Cromwell's Parliament, 212. The Third Speaker before they dispartch'd any Business, ibid.

Banfield, Mr. a Dissenting Minister dies in Newgate, 429.

Banks, Land, its deficiency, 725.

Bantry Bay, the Sea Fight there between the English and French, 528.

Barbadoes, Island of, attack'd by De Ruyter, 256. Beat him off, 257. Ralph Grey, Esq; made Governor of, 735.

Barcelona taken by the French, 738.

Barclay, Sir George, one of the Chief Managers of the horrid Assassination Plot to Murder King William, 709. Brings King James's Commission to Attack and Siere the Prince of Orange in his Winter Quarters, into England, 710.

Barillon, Monsieur, the French Ambassador, Conversant with Court Intrigues in Charles II's Reign, 399. His Proposal to King James to assist him against the Prince of Orange, 439. Advises him to fend away his Queen, and the Pretended Prince of Wales, 500. He endeavours to sow Divisions among the Lords after King James's departure, 508. He is order'd to be gone in 24 Hours by the Prince of Orange, ibid.

Barnard, Mr. Nathaniel, Prosecuted for Preaching against Arminianism, 65

Barnardiston, Sir Samuel, his Troubles in King Charles II. Reign, 414, 421.

Barr, Captain Du, destroys a Fleet of Dutch Men of War and Merchantmen, 722.

Bastwick, Dr. John, his Catè and Sufferings, 83.

Batonian, Mr. Charles, hang'd in King James's Reign, 442.

Battel of Lutworn between the Danes and Germans, 26. Of Leipzig between the Swedes and Germans, 59. Of Lutzen, 67. Of Norlingun between the same, 71. Of Etzschill, in the Civil Wars in England, 117. Of Langdown, 127. Of Mytton Moor, 138. Of Chariton Down, ibid. First and Second of Nembury, 128, 139. Of Mifby, 145. Of Langport, ibid. Of Preson, 162. Of Dunbar, 179. Of Worcester, 183. Naval one of Solt-Bay, 256. Of Senef, 301. Of Scdgeonore, 437. Of the Boyne, 560. Naval one of Beachy, 562. Of Aghrim, 627, 628, 629. Of Stenkirk, 560. Landen, 661. Of Mar-faglia, 663.

Bates, Dr. takes the Oath of Allegiance with a very odd Distinction, 259. His Speech to King William, 522. And to Queen Mary, 523.

Bavaria, Maximilian Emanuel Duke of, made Governor of the Netherlands by King William's Means, 650. One of his Servants betrays King William's Councils, 651. His Actions at the Siege of Namur, 694, 695. His Wife the Electores's Miscarries at the Bombardment of Bruffells, 696. His Bravery at Namur, 698. Visits King William, to thank him for his Care of him in the Partition Treaty, 756.

Baxter, Mr. Richard, the Dissenting Minister, Courts Richard Cromwell, 213. His Disingenuity at the Savoy Conference, 235, 236. His Speech to the King about tolerating Papiests and Socinians, 240. His Opinion of an Indulgence, 248. His Conference with the Lord Keeper Bridgman about a Comprehension Bill, 272. He is Imprison'd for keeping a Conventicle, 277. Who help'd and protect'd him, ibid. His Correspondence with the Duke of Lauderdale about a Comprehension, 281. Offer'd a Bishopruck in Scotland, ibid. Proposals drawn up by him for a Union, at the Desire of several Persons of Quality, 297. Has a Conference with Dr. Tillotson and Dr. Stillingfleet for a Union, in which they agreed, 302. How it came to nothing, ibid. His Sufferings, 428. His Trial at large, 446. Pardon'd by the Lord Powis's Mediation, 463.

Beachy, Naval Fight, 562.

Beaufort, Henry Somerset, Duke of, made President of Wales, by James II. 428.

Beaumont, Colonel, refuses to admit Irishmen into his Company, 487. Imprison'd for it by King James, ibid.

Bedford, Earl of, Prosecuted in the Star Chamber, for spreading a Libel, 5. Deferts the Parliament, and goes to the King, 127. Deferts the King, ibid. One of the Assembly of Divines, 134.

Bedford, William Russell Earl of, made Duke, 670.

Bedloe, Mr. William, discovers Sir Edmund Bury Godfrey's Murder, 364.

Beecher, Sir William, his Speech to the Rochesters, 35.

Bellamont, Earl of, seizes Captain Kid in New England, 779.

Bellasis, John Lord, made Governor of Tangier, by Charles II. 263. Captain of the Band of Pensioners, 270. Committed to the Tower for Treason, 368. Excuses himself from being Deputy of Ireland, 450. Made a Privy Councillor, 452.

Bellasis, Colonel, Governour of York for the King; detented at Selly by the Lord Fairfax and his Son Sir Thomas, 137.

Bembow, Captain, Bombards Harve de Grace, 671. And Granville, 696. And Calis, 719.

Bennet, Sir Henry, one of King Charles's Followers in his Exile, Is for his turning Papiest, and joyning in a League against the Protestant Interest, 220. The Lord Galpeper's brave Saying to him Abroad, ibid. His fear of the Consequence of it, ibid. Made Secretary of State, 245. Lord Clarendon's Reflection upon it, ibid.

Bentink, Mr. the Prince of Orange's Favourite, sent into England to Negotiate the Match with the Princess Mary, 314. Sent to the Duke of Monmouth to warn him of his Danger, 434. His Message to King James from the Prince about the Duke, 436. Arrests the Earl of Ferensham by the Prince of Orange's Order, 523. Made a Privy Councillor and Groom of the Stool by King William, 515. Created Earl of Portland, 524. See Portland, Earl of.

Berkley, John Lord, made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 280. His Reception by the University of Dublin, ibid. Religius the same to the Earl of Essex, 289

Berkley, Lord Admiral of the Blue; his Actions at Camarot Bay, 670, 671. He Bombards the Coasts of France, 671. Again, 696. And again, 722.

Berkley, Sir Robert, a Judge, his Arbitrary Judgment about Ship-Money, 78. Impeach'd by Parliament, 110.

Berkly, Sir John, thought to betray Charles I. to Colonel Hammond Governor of the Isle of Wight, 137.

Berkly, Sir William, kill'd in the Dutch Wars, 260.

Berry hang'd for Sir Edmundbury Godfrey's Murther, 369.

Berkshire, Earl of, His great Age and Death, 273.

Berwick, James Fitz Roy, one of King James's Natural Sons, sent to Hungary, 470. Flies from Ireland to France with King James, 567. Taken Prisoner at Landen by Brigadier Churchill, 661.

Beveridge, Dr. William will not accept of the Bishopruck of Barb and Wells, 641.

Biddle, John, his Heretical Notions, 196.

Bidloo, Dr. his Care of K. William in his last Sickness, 832.

Bierly, Coll. carries up the Articles of Impeachment against the Earl of Orford to the Lords, 806.

Biron, Sir John, removed from the Lieutenantancy of the Tower by the Parliament, 113. Strikes the first Stroke against them, 117.

Bishops, the Court, too bulie in the Loan, 28. Irish Bishops Protest and Preach against Tolerating Papery, 35. Several made, 65.

Decline Voting in the Lord Strafford's Case, 107. The Lord Clarendon's Opinion of it, ibid. The Clamour of the Mob against them, 112. Voted by the Lords to sit in Parliament, 114. By the Commons to be Impeach'd, ibid. 13 of them Impeach'd, ibid. They Protest against their being Outed by Parliament, ibid. Twelve of them Charg'd with Treason, and Ten sent to the Tower, 115. Reflections upon their Protestations, by the Author of the Hist. of the Rebellion, 115. Carry'd in the Houe of Lords, that they should have no Vores in Parliament, ibid. Their Flight and Imprisonment, 119. They are restor'd to their Honours and Power, 230. Several made by King Charles II. ibid. Restor'd to their Vores in the Houe of Lords, 232. Debates about their Sitting in Tryals for Blood, 234. Their Compliance at the Savoy-Conference, 235. Their Charity in redeeming Christian Slaves, 240. Several made, 248. Several Scotts Bishops Consecrated at London, 253. Several made, 302, 307. Resolution of the Lords and Commons about their Vores in Capital Cases, 377. Fourteen against the Bill of Exclusion, 388. Scotts Bishops, their Testimonials in favour of the Duke of York, 427. Several made by James II. 429, 462. Who they were that were most in his favour, 445. One of 'em attends the Pope's Nuntio at his Entrance, 469. Refuse to Read King James's Declaration of Liberty of Conscience, 481.

Bishops, the Seven, their Petition to the King against the Dispensing Power, 483. They are sent to the Tower, 844. The People for them, ibid. Their Tryal. The Council for and against them, and the Noble Appearance for 'em in Court, 484, 485. Clear'd, and great shoutings upon it, 486. King James invites them to assist him with their Council, when the Prince of Orange was Coming, 490. Their Answer, ibid. Scotts Bishops, their Letter to King James against the Prince of Orange, 519. How they behov'd themselves upon King James's publishing his Declaration for Liberty of Conscience, 521. Several New One's Consecrated, 551. Several made in Ireland, 572. The Nonjuring, 517, 551. A Party in the Convocation favour them, 555. They will not Comply, 641. Their Places fill'd by others, 642. Several Clouten and Consecrated, 641, 642. More made, 662, 663, 753. Their Disputes with the Lower Houe of Convocation, 836 to 848.

Blairs, Sir John, Imprison'd for publishing King James's first Declaration, 530.

Blairs, Capt. his Evidence about Parker's Plot against K. William, 646.

Blakes, General, his brave Defence of Trautson, 144. His Actions at Sea, 187, 192. His Success in the Straits, 196. His Bravery at St. Cruz, 204. His Death, 205.

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

His Character, ibid. Another by the Lord Clarendon, ibid.
Blanquetfort Lewis, de Duras Marquis of, Created Lord Duras, 290. His Services, ibid. See Lord Duras.
Blood, Mr. Assaults the Duke of Ormond, and attempts to Steal the Crown, 287, 281. The manner of his Attempting to Steal the Crown, 283.
Bohemia, Elizabeth Queen of, Visits her Nephew, Charles II. 232. Dies in England, ibid.
Bolton, Charles Pawlet, Marquis of Winchester, Created Duke of, 524.
Bombay, Isle of in the East-Indies, part of Queen Katharine's Portion, 236.
Bon taken by the Prince of Orange, 597.
Booksellers and Printers Punish'd for Dealing in Seditious Books, 247.
Booth, Sir George, rises for K. Charles, 214. Enters Chester, ibid. Routed by Lambert, 215. Taken at Newport-Pagnell, ibid.
Borotski a Poland, Hang'd in Chains for the Murder of Mr. Thynne, 402.
Boufflers, Marschal de, throws himself into Namur, Besieg'd by King William, 694. Would fain get out again, but can't, 696. He is Arrested by King William when Namur was Surrendered, 699. His Discourse with Monsieur Dyckvelt, and Release, ibid. His Conference with the Lord Portland before the Treaty of Reswick was concluded, 738.
Bourdeaux Fleet, Dutch, Surpriz'd by the English before a Declaration of War, 251.
Bourdieu, Mr. a French Protestant Minister, attends the Duke of Schomberg, when he Invaded Dauphine, 642. What he did there, ibid.
Bourk, Coll. Ullick, Surrenders Ballymore at Discretion, 626.
Bowles, Mr. a Minister at York, very Instrumental in General Munk's Success in England, 216.
Boyle, Henry, Esq; made Chancellor of the Exchequer, 821. Sworn of King William's Privy-Council, ibid.
Boyne, Battle of, 559, 560.
Braddon, Mr. Lawrence, his Sufferings for enquiring into the Earl of Effin's Death, 414, 421.
Bradford, Francis Viscount Newport, made Earl of, 670.
Brandon, Lord, his Condemnation and Pardon, 42.
Bradshaw, Serjeant, made President of the High Court of Justice to Try the King, 166. His Insolent Speeches, ibid. 167, 168, 169, 170.
Brandenburgh, Elector of, assumes the Title of King of Prussia, 796. King William's Letter to him upon it, ibid.
Bray, Dr. Thomas, sent to the West-Indies to propagate the Gospel, 747.
Breda, Treaty of, 264.
Brentford, the Action there between the Parliament and the King's Forces, 118.
Breveton, Sir William, defeats and slays the Earl of Northampton, Commander of the King's Forces near Stafford, 118. Routs the Lord Astley, and the last Army in the Field for the King, 147.
Brideoak, Dr. his Conference with the Speaker Lenthall on his Death-Bed, about his share in the late Troubles, 140.
Bridgman, Sir Orlando, made Lord Keeper, 266. Is for a Comprehension Bill for Dissenters, 272. Refigns the Seal to the Earl of Shaftsbury, 289.
Bridgewater, John Earl of, made one of the Lords Justices of England by King William, 768. Prorogues the Parliament by the King's Command, 780. Again one of the Lords Justices, 784.
Bridgewater taken by General Fairfax, 145. Seiz'd by the Duke of Monmouth, 436.
Briort, Count de, the French Ambassador at the Hague, his Discourse with Mr. Stanhope the English Ambassador, on the King of Spain's Death, 789. His Speech to the States upon it, 790.
Bristol, John Digby Earl of, Persecuted by the Duke of Bucks, 13. Has no Writ of Summons to Parliament, ibid. Proceedings thereupon, ibid. The Quarrel between the Duke of Bucks and him, raises Disturbances in the House of Peers, 20. Is charg'd with High Treason at the Lords Bar, ibid. His Answer, and Charge against the Duke of Bucks, 21. The Lords incline rather to him than Bucks, ibid. He is Imprison'd, 25.

Bristol, Earl of, his Son turns Papist, while he was in Exile with King Charles, 220. His Charge afterwards; against the Lord Chancellor Hyde, about the Portugal Match, 236. And the Sale of Dunkirk, 240, 245. Disappointed in his Design of Ruining the Earl of Clarendon, 247.
Bristol City taken from the Parliament by Prince Rupert, 128. Retaken by General Fairfax, 146.
Bristol, Sir Jonathan Trelawny, Bishop of, one of the Seven Bishops that Petition'd, and were Imprison'd, 483.
Brogbill, Lord, a Creature of Cromwell's, is for making him King, 200, 201.
Brook, Lord, refuses to protest that he did not Correspond with the Scots Malecontents, 81. His Study and Papers Search'd, 96. Takes Litchfield for the Parliament by Storm, 118. But is killed, ibid. His Character by the Lord Clarendon, ibid.
Bruges, Mr. carries up the Articles of Impeachment against the Lord Hallifax to the Lords, 814.
Brussels Bombarded by the French, 696.
Buckingham, George Villiers, Duke of, sent to fetch over the Princess Henrietta Maria, Wife to Charles I. 4. Is for assisting the French King against the Rebellers, 6. Hated for it, ibid. And for the King's Favour, 9. He Excuses himself at a Conference of both Houses, ibid. Revenges himself on those Members that were against him, 12. A Restraint put on several Lords and Commoners by his means, 13. Falls upon by the House of Commons, 16. Excuses the King's severe Speech, and Addresses himself to both Houses, 18. Charg'd with High Treason by the Lord Brigden, 21. The Articles, ibid. The King interposes in his Behalf, ibid. Impeach'd by the Commons, ibid. His Answer to their Articles against him, 22, 23. He claims the Benefit of the King's Pardon, 23. Provokes the Commons by Defying them, 24. For a War with France, out of Harred to Richlieu, 26. He is sent with an Army to assist the Rebellers, 35. Lands at the Isle of Rhe, contrary to Advice, 36. His ill Conduct, ibid. Takes the Town of St. Martyn, ibid. Is out-witted by Tovras the French Commander, ibid. Is weary, and makes a dangerous Retreat, 36, 37. For which he is the more hated, ibid. Is nam'd by Secretary Croke with the King, 40. Voted to be the Cause of all Evils to the Kingdom, 43. His Creature Dr. Lamb, kill'd by the Mob, 45. He is terrify'd, ibid. Kill'd by Felton, ibid. His Character, 46.
Buckingham, George Villiers, Duke of, his Son, a Proclamation to Apprehend him, and why, 263. His Jest upon the Lord Clarendon's Petition and Defence, 270. Succeeds him in the Ministry, 271. Favours Dissenters, ibid. Sent with a private Message to the French King, 280. One of the Cabal that advis'd the Shutting up of the Exchequer, 284. Sent Ambassador to the French King in Holland, with the Lords Arlington and Hallifax, 289. Private queries of his Conduct, ibid. Speaks for the Dissenters in Parliament, 308. Committed for Questioning the Legality of the Long Parliament, 309. Dies Poor in Yorkshire, 470.
Bullingbroock, Oliver, Earl of, made one of the Commissioners for the Great Seal by the Parliament, 128.
Burley, Capt. Hang'd, Drawn, and Quarter'd at Winchester, for endeavouring to Carry off the King from the Isle of Wight, 158.
Burnet, Dr. Gilbert, accus'd of High Treason by the Papists, lies to the Prince of Orange, 488. Solicites him to come for England, ibid. Reads his Declaration in Exeter Cathedral, 496. Made Bishop of Salisbury by King William, 523. Consecrated by a Commission from Archbishop Sancroft, ibid. Made Chancellor of the Garter, ibid. What gave Offence in his Pastoral Letter, 549. His Pastoral Letter Burnt, 657. His Character of Archbishop Tillotson, 680, 681, 682. Made Preceptor to the Duke of Gloucester, 755. A Vote to remove him rejected, 777. Proceedings of the Convocation against his Exposition of the XXXIX Articles, 840. Representation of the Lower House of Convocation against it, 841. Vindicated by the Upper House, 844. Dr. Woodward his Dean's Ingratitude to him, and Complaint against him, 845, 847. He is Vindicated by the Bishops, ibid.

Burroughs, Sir John, his Actions and Death at the Isle of Rhe, 35, 36.
Burton, Henry, B. D. his Case and Sufferings, 83.
Butler, Mr. of Northamptonshire, his Troubles for presenting an Address to the Knights of the Shire, 422.

C.

Aball, who they were that were so called, 284.
Calais Bombarded by the English, 696.
Calamy, Mr. first breaks the Act of Uniformity, 243. Imprison'd and Discharg'd by King Charles's Express Order, ibid. Proceedings of the Parliament upon it, ibid.
Calliere, Monsieur, comes to Holland to Negotiate a Peace between King William, &c. and the French King, 720.
Calvinists, the Lord Clarendon's Character of them, 53.
Cambridge University Address Charles II. with an Abhorrence of the Association and Exclusion Bill, 402. They chuse the Duke of Albemarle their Chancellor, in the room of the Duke of Monmouth, 404. They Burn the Duke of Monmouth's Picture, ibid. They Complement the Duke of York, and Address him, ibid. Their Troubles about Alban Francis, a Monk in King James's Time, 475.
Cambridge, Duke of, his Birth and Death, 317.
Cameret Bay, the Unfortunate Action there, 670, 671.
Canon, President, his Negotiation at the Hague for his Master the Duke of Lorraine, 721.
Canon, Col. joins Dundee in Scotland, and protracts the War, 538.
Capell, Lord, Condemn'd by a High Court of Justice, and Beheaded, 175. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.
Capell, Sir Henry, desires to be excus'd his Attendance at the Council-Board, 379. His Speech against Popish Councils, 383. Made a Baron by King William, 659. And Lord Deputy of Ireland, 693.
Campbell, Capt. Marries Mrs. Wharton against her Will, 568. The Marriage made Null by Parliament, ibid.
Carewell, Madam, a French Woman, comes to Dover with the Dutchess of Orleans, 278. Is left behind with King Charles, ibid. Made Dutchess of Portsmouth, ibid.
Carleton, Lord, sent Ambassador into France, and is refus'd Audience, 47.
Carlisle, Charles Howard, Earl of, made first Commissioner of the Treasury by K. William, 827.
Carlowitz, Treaty of, 757.
Carmarthen, Thomas Earl of Danby, made Marquis of, by K. William, 535.
Carmarthen, Marquis of, his Son; his Bravery at Cameret Bay, 670, 671.
Carnarvon, Earl of, Fights Sir William Waller's Forces at Lansdown, 127. Kill'd on the King's side at the first Battle of Newbury, 128.
Carrickfergus, a Mutiny of the Soldiers in Garillon there in Charles II's Reign, 263. Suppress'd by the Duke of Ormond, ibid. The Town taken by Duke Schomberg, 542.
Carter, Admiral, kill'd in Admiral Russel's Sea-Fight with the French, 649.
Carteret, Sir George, receives King Charles into Jersey, 177.
Caryl, one of King James's Servants at St. Germain's, contrives with Parker the horrid Assassination Plot, 709.
Castle-Haven, Earl of, Try'd and Executed, 59.
Castlemain, Roger Earl of, taken up for the Popish Plot, 369. His Embally to Rome, and Cold Reception there, 460, 461. Made a Privy-Councillor, 470.
Catinat, Marschal, gains the Battle of Marsaglia, 663. Makes Peace with the Duke of Savoy, 721. Besieges, and takes Aeth, 737.
Cavendish, Lord, Leaves the Council-Board, 379.

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

Crowdon, Mr. George, the Earl of Clare's Steward, find'd for speaking a Seditious Word against Charles II. 421.

Cholmer, Mr. Hang'd by the Parliament for Mr. Waller's Plot, 127.

Chambers, Mr. A Merchant Imprison'd for not paying Tonnage and Poundage, 46. Refuses to pay Ship-Money, and is Imprison'd for it, 78. An Arbitrary Judgment given against him, ibid.

Chambers, Lord, Countenances the Petitioning for Parliaments, 391. Abhors it, and begs Pardon, ibid. Is sent Ambassador to Turkey, ibid.

Chymen, Sir John, Lord Mayor, falls into a Fit of an Apoplexy, while he was Examining the Chancellor J. Juries, 52.

CHARLES I. his Birth, 1. His Succession foretold, ibid. His Education, Learning and Disposition, 2. Feats of Chivalry, 3. He Succeeds his Father James I. and is Chief Mourner at his Funeral, ibid. Raises Forces for the Recovery of the Palatinate, ibid. Marries the Princess Henrietta Maria, 4. His Speech to his first Parliament, 5. To them at Oxford, 6. Disgusts between Him and them about Dr Mountague, 15. In the Subjects, for the Rudeness of the Soldierly, the March with France, Protecting Dr Mountague, and assisting the French King, 4, 5, 6. His Answer to the Parliaments Petition of Grievances, 7, 8. Dissolves them abruptly, raises Money by Loan, ibid. How the People became generally Discontented, ibid. He is Crown'd, and Solemnly takes the Coronation-Oath, 13. Holds his Second Parliament, but does not speak to them in Person, 14. His Messages and Letter to them, and their Answer, 15, 16. Makes a severe Speech to the House of Commons, 18. Is Disgust'd with the House of Peers, 19, 20. Defends the Duke of Bucks, whom the Commons had Impeach'd, 23. Writes a Letter to the speaker, which is not well receiv'd by the House, 24. He Dissolves the Parliament, and raises Money by Unparliamentary Methods, 25, 26. His Declaration of Reasons for Dissolving the Two Parliaments, 25. He assists the King of Denmark against the Emperor, 26. Sends away the Queen's French Servants, 27. Declares War with France, ibid. His Proclamation against Innovations in the Doctrine or Discipline of the Church, 32. Great Discontents at the Government, 37. The King's Methods to satisfy them Unsuccessful, 38. Calls his Third Parliament, and makes a Speech to them, 38. Remarks upon it, ibid. A second Speech, and several Messages, 39, 40. Sends a Message to the House not to be Answer'd, 41. Passes the Bill call'd the Petition of Right, 43. Speaks with Repentment, 44. Bears the Duke of Bucks Death with great Preference of Mind, 45. Makes a Wife and Tender Speech to the Parliament, 46. Is Offended, and Dissolves them, 48. Publishes a Declaration of the Causes of it, ibid. Peace made by him with France, 49. Prevents a Son of his being Baptiz'd by Popish Priests, 49. His Protestation about Religion, 54. His Justice, 58. He Assists Gustavus Adolphus, 59. Commands the Nobility and Gentry to Reside in their Countries, 62. Has the Small-Pox, 63. Assists the Muscovites, ibid. He goes to Scotland, and is Crown'd, ibid. Ill Effects of his Journey, 64. Concerns himself in Matters of Church Discipline, 67. His Care of the Fleet, 78. Forces the Dutch to Buy a Permission to Fish, ibid. Has the Opinion of the Judges for Ship-Money, 79. He is averse to Popery, 87. Raises an Army, his March against the Scots, 91. Suppos'd to be a Mock-War, 92. Publishes a Declaration of the Causes of it, 93. Calls a Parliament, ibid. 94. His Speech to them, ibid. He Dissolves it, and takes some ill Steps, 95, 96. Lord Clarendon's Opinion of it, ibid. Marches a second time against the Scots, ibid. His Speech to an Assembly of Lords at Tork, ibid. Comes to a Treaty with the Scots, ibid. Calls his Fifth and Last Parliament, 97. His Speech to them, ibid. His Healing Speech, 99. Comes too late, ibid. Passes the Triennial Bill, 100. Passes the Lord Strafford's Bill of Attainder, 107. His Speech and Letter to the Parliament in his Favour, ibid.

Passes the Bill for the Continuance of the Parliament, 109. And other Grateful Bills, ibid. He goes to Scotland, and holds a Parliament there, 110. Confers Honours on the Disaffected Lords, 111. And gives a-way the Kingdom there in effect, ibid. His Desires to Suppress the Irish Rebellion, ibid. Returns from Scotland, ibid. His Conduct, with respect to the Parliaments Guards, 111, 112. Orders Sir Ed. Herbert to present Articles of Treason against 5 Members, 113. Enters the House of Commons to Demand them, ibid. He Repents of it, ibid. He leaves the Parliament, and goes Northward, ibid. His Pathetical Speech to the Commons at New-Market, ibid. Is for Conformity, but in Vain, 114. Is driv'n from Parliament, 115. Shut out of Hull by Sir John Horlam, ibid. He proposes to raise an Army, 116. His Answer to the Parliament's Declaration against it, ibid. He sets up his Standard at Nottingham, ibid. Remarks and Reflections upon it by the Lord Clarendon, ibid. Proposes a Peace, ibid. Fights the Battel of Edgehill, 117. Marches towards London, and engages the Parliament's Forces at Brentford, 118. A false Step, ibid. His Answer to the Londoners Petition to him to Return, ibid. To the Parliament's Declaration about Religion, 120. Refutes the Slanders of Popery, 121. His Last Answer at the Treaty of Oxford, 124. Attempts the Relief of Reading, ibid. Besieges Gloucester in Vain, and Loses the first Battel of Newbury, 128. Holds a Parliament at Oxford, 132. His Speech to them, ibid. His Protestation against Popery, as he was about to Receive the Sacrament, 135. His Speech when he Dissolv'd the Oxford Parliament, 137. Retreats from Effix and Waller, 138, 139. Forces the Earl of Effix to run from his Army, and his Soldiers to lay down their Arms, 139. His Offers of Peace Despis'd, ibid. He is Defeated at the second Battel of Newbury, ibid. Offers Battel again, ibid. Takes Leicester, 145. His Courage and Conduct at Naseby, ibid. Loses that Fatal Battle, ibid. And Retires into Wales, ibid. Raises another Army, and is Routed by Poyntz at Rosston Heath near Chester, 146. Raises another Army, ibid. His Affairs Decline every where, ibid. Retires to Oxford, 147. He Writes to Prince Charles against Popery and Presbytery, 149. He Resolves to Trust the Scots, ibid. Goes to their Camp before Newark in Disguise, ibid. He Writes to the City of London, 149. He is Sold by the Scots, and carry'd to Holmbly, 151. He Disputes with Mr. Houclifson the Scots Divine, and is too hard for him, 152. The Lord Clarendon's Account of it, ibid. His Usage at Holmbly, 153. He is taken thence by Cornet Juice, and us'd better, 154. Invited by a Civil Message from the Parliament to Treat, 155. The Army prevents it, 156. Sends the House an Answer, with which they are dissatisfied, ibid. Makes his Escape from Hampton-Court in Disguise, ibid. Betray'd to Collonel Hammond, Governor of the Isle of Wight, 157. Writes to the Parliament, ibid. How he spent his time there, 158, 159. A Vindication of Eikon Basilike, ibid. His Reception of the Parliament's second Commissioners for a Treaty there, 161. His Concessions at the Isle of Wight Treaty, 163. His Conference with Collonel Cooke about his propos'd Escape before the Treaty was broken off, ibid. He is Seiz'd by the Army, and sent to Hart Castle, 164. Several Excellent Sayings of his in his Troubles, ibid. His Letter to Prince Charles about the Isle of Wight Treaty, 165. He is brought to Windfor, ibid. And to his Tryal, 166, 167, 168, 169. He is Condemn'd by the pretended High Court of Justice. His Preparation for Death, 170. His Last Speech, 171. He is Beheaded, 172. Why no Monument rais'd over him after the Restoration, 173. The Lord Clarendon's Admirable Character of him, ibid. 174. Mr. Henderson's Character of him, tho' his Adversary, ibid.

Charles, Prince, his Son, Born, 57. Heads a Body of his Father's Troops in Cornwall, 146. Forc'd thence by Earl Essex, he Retires to Silly, ibid. His Father's Letter to him against Popery and Presbytery, 149. Retires to France, 150. An Act to Exclude him, 175. But he is Proclaim'd in England, and Invited to Scotland, 177. Is own'd King of England by Foreign Ministers, ibid. See Charles II.

CHARLES II. Retires to Jersey, 177. Forc'd to leave that Isle, ibid. Foreign Princes afraid to assist him, ibid. Lands in Scotland, 179. Takes the Covenant, ibid. Ill us'd by the Scots, ibid. Would make his Escape, 180. Crown'd, ibid. His Ambassadors sent out of Spain, ibid. His Proceedings in Scotland, 182. Marches into England, ibid. Defeated at Worcester by Cromwell, 183. His strange Escape after it, 184. How he was Entertain'd in France, 188. His Temptations to turn Papist, ibid. 189. Unhappy in his Exile, 191. His Progress to several Courts, 195. His Conference with Cardinal de Retz, 196. Resides at Cologne, 197. Visits Queen Christina of Sweden, ibid. His Exercises and Diversions in his Exile, 197. The King's Hopes, 205. Disappointed, 207, 208. New One's by Cromwell's Death, 208. His Friends Hopes on it, 214. Risings for him, 214, 215. Suppress'd, 215. Abandon'd by Foreign Princes, 218. Goes to the Pyrenean Treaty to desire Assistance of Spain and France, ibid. Slight's put upon him there, 219. Refus'd the Command of the Spanish Army, ibid. Sends Sir John Granville to General Monk, and is favourably answer'd, 219. Great Endeavours to have him turn Papist, 220. Whether there was any such private Treaty concluded by him at the Pyrenees, ibid. Great Cause to suspect it, ibid. Goes to Mafz, ibid. His Followers incline to turn Papists, ibid. Every thing tends to his Restoration in England, 221. His Letters to the House of Lords and House of Commons, and Declaration to the People of England, 221, 222. Is Proclaim'd in England, 223. Lands at Dover, ibid. His Reception of General Monk there, and his Procession to Canterbury, ibid. His Reception at London, 224. Constitutes his Privy-Council, and Creates several Noblemen, ibid. His Remarkable Declaration about Religion, 225 to 229. He is Crown'd, 230. His Speech at the Opening his Second Parliament, about his March with a Daughter of Portugal, ibid. His Letter to them to Confirm the Act of Indemnity pass'd in his first Parliament, 231. Orders a Conference at the Savoy between the Episcopal and Presbyterian Divines, 234. He Marries his Queen Katherine, 236. The Portion he had with her, ibid. Reflected on by a Waterman about Chimney-Money, 237. His Wants, ibid. Kinder to Dissenters than the Parliament, 238. Why he was so Indulgent to them, 239. Sells Dunkirk, 240. Dispenses with the Uniformity-Act, 243. His Speech in answer to the Parliament's Address against Papists, 244. The Court more Popish, 245. His Progress, 247. His Speech to the Parliament against Rebels, and the Triennial Bill, 249, 250. Another, 251. His Speech on the Dutch War, 252. His Declaration of War, ibid. Leaves London in the Plague-time, 256. His Speech to the Parliament at Oxford against the Dutch, 257. Charges the War upon the Dutch, 258. Loth to have a War with France, but his Subjects are eager for it, ibid. Favours the Dissenters and Foreign Protestants, 259. His Ministers incline to Popery, 264. He Acts against it, ibid. Takes false Steps in the Treaty of Brach with the Dutch, 265. The Court in great Consternation on the Dutch coming up the Thames, ibid. His Two Speeches to the Parliament at their Meeting after the Peace, 266. Concludes a Defensive League with the Dutch against France, 270. His Speech to the Parliament upon it, ibid. Recommends Union among his Protestant Subjects, 271. His Speech to his Parliament in England, and Letter to that in Scotland, 274. Visits his Sister the Dutchess of Orleans at Deux, 278. Takes the Dutchess of Portsmouth into Favour, ibid. Enters into an Alliance with the French King, 279, 280. Grows Jealous of the People upon it, 280. By whom drawn away to promote the Grandeur of France, 284. Afraid of the Parliament, ibid. Shuts up the Excheq.

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

Exchequer, and is drawn into another War with the Dutch by the French King, 104, 285. His Declaration of Indulgence to Dissenters and Recufants, 287. Exercises a Dispensing Power, 288. His Subjects Discontented at the French King's Successes in Holland, ibid. He sends Ambassadors to Holland to Treat of Peace, but they do nothing, 289. Declares himself unable to pay his Debts, and stops Payment, 290. His Speech to the Parliament about the Dispensing Power, 292. His Letter to the Duke of York, Commanding him not to turn Papist, 293. Labours to quiet the Fears of Popery, 296. Concludes a Peace with the Dutch, 297. Condescends to be made a Freeman of London, 300. Puts out a severe Proclamation against Papists, 302. His Speech for Money, 304. His Saying to Sir William Temple against a War with France, ibid. Is willing to be Neuter, 305. Angry with the Commons for Addressing for a War with France, 312. Commands the Houses to Adjourn, 313. His Saying of the Prince of Orange, when he gave him his Neice the Princess Mary, 315. His Consultation with the Prince of Orange about a Peace with France, ibid. Resolves to Enter into a League with the Dutch, ibid. His Speech to the Parliament on his Marrying his Neice to the Prince of Orange, 316. His angry Message to 'em on their 2d. Address for a War with France, ibid. Puts out a Proclamation against the Author of a Book call'd the Growth of Popery, 361. Not much inclin'd to the French War, 362. Inclin'd to a War when the Peace at Nimwegen was near Concluded, 363. Does not give much Credit to the Popish Plot, 364. His Speech to the Parliament about it, 365. And the Exclusion-Bill, 366. Weary of the Proceedings of Parliament against papists, ibid. Rejects a Militia-Bill, and his Message about it, 367. Dissolves the Parliament, 368. Why he Dissolv'd it, 369. His Letter to the Duke of York to be gone, ibid. Pardons the Earl of Danby, in opposition to the Parliament, 373. Makes a Popular Privy-Council, 374. His Answer to the Commons about Deferring the Execution of Popish Plotters, 375. His, and the Lord Chancellor's Speeches about Limiting a Popish Successor, ibid. Dissolves his Parliament held at Westminster, 377. Falls Sick, ibid. His Declarations, denying his Marriage to the Duke of Monmouth's Mother, 378. Discourages Petitioning, ibid. Professes a Zeal for the Church of England, 380. And Prosecutes the Popish Plot vigorously, ibid. Yet believ'd to be a Papist, 381. Forbids Duelling, ibid. Very much embarrass'd by the Parliament's Addresses, and Remonstrances of the Growth of Popery, 386, 387. Present at the Reading the Bill of Exclusion in the Lords House, to encourage them to throw it out, 388. His Message to the Commons on the Lords Rejecting the Exclusion-Bill, 390. He favours the Duke's Friends, ibid. 391. Oblig'd to Declare against Popery, ibid. Offended at the Earl of Essex and other Lords Petition and Advice, 394. How Receiv'd at Oxford, when he met the Parliament there, ibid. His Speech at the Opening it, 395. Dissolves the Oxford Parliament, and hastens to London, 397. Puts out a Declaration to Excuse it, 398, 399. His Rebukeful Saying of Mr. Pilkington and Mr. Shute when Sheriffs, 401. Hates the Dissenters, and Loves the Church, not for their Religion, 402. Prosecutes Dissenters severely, 403. Sets up Quo Warranto's against London, and other Corporations, 405. Exercises his Supremacy on a Trivial Occasion, 407. His Declaration about the Banatick Plot, 416 to 419. And against the Dissenters, ibid. Nothing but Prosecutions and Penalties, 421, 422. Lets the Duke Govern all, 423. Inclines to Recall the Duke of Monmouth, ibid. But fatally prevented, ibid. He is taken ill, an Account of his Sickness and Death, 424. The Opinions for and against his having Foul Play, ibid. 425. His Character, ibid. 426. His Obscure Funeral, 427. Dies a Papist, 429. His Papers found in the strong Box to prove it, ibid. He was the first King that ever aim'd at Dispensing Power, 463. Instances of his doing it, ibid. He seem'd Convinc'd of his Error, ibid.

Charles XI. King of Sweden, Mediator of the Treaty of Reswyck, dyes as the Treaty was beginning, 736. And is Succeeded by his Son

Charles XII. King of Sweden at 15 Years of Age, 736. Fallen upon on all sides, 784. Assisted by the English and Dutch, ibid. Lands in Denmark, and forces that King to conclude a Peace, ibid.

Charles, Prince Elector, Son to the King of Bohemia, comes into England, 175. Returns into Germany and is Defeated by the Imperialists. 5. Taken Prisoner in a Disguise in France, 90.

Charlton, Sir Job, Chosen Speaker of the House of Commons, 291. Is weary of the Chair, and desires leave to resign it, ibid.

Charnock, Robert, a Papist, Fellow of Magdalen Colledge, his proceeding in the Election of that President, 475, 476, 481. One of the Chief of the Horrid Assassination Plot, and that to bring in the French, 7-9. Is Condemn'd, Hang'd and Quarter'd, 718. The Paper he deliver'd to the Sheriffs, ibid.

Chartres, London, and other Towns taken away by Quo Warranto, 405. Restor'd by King James in a Right, 491.

Chesler, Dr. Thomas Cartwright, Bishop of, made one of the High Commission Court by King James, 456. A Tool of Popery and Arbitrary Power, 462. His Speech to the Fellows of Magdalen Colledge, 478. His proceedings there as King James's Visitor, ibid. 479, 480. Another Speech to the Fellows, 480. Gets his Clergy to Address King James, thanking him for his Declaration of Liberty of Conscience, 521.

Chesler, delivered to Sir George Booth at his rising, 214.

Chesterfield, Earl of, Loses Littlefield to the Lord Brook, 118.

Chevreaux, Duke of, Marries the Princess Henrietta Maria in the Name of Charles I. 4.

Chichester, Dr. Lake, Bishop of, one of the Seven Bishops that Petition'd King James, and was Imprison'd, 483.

Chillingworth, Mr. his hard usage and Death, 144. The Lord Clarendon's account of him, ibid.

Chimney Money, an odious Tax, 237. Parted with by King William, 516. Taken away by Act of Parliament, 525.

Cholmely, Sir Hugh, Governour of Scarborough for the Parliament, Deserts to the King, 127.

Cholmondy, Francis, a Member of the House of Commons, sent to the Tower for refusing to take the Oaths to King William, 547.

Church of England, its Constitution alter'd by Parliament, 114. The Revenues taken away, ibid. No Face of an Establish'd Church here, 119. Petitions from several Places to reestablish it, 120. Rejected by the Parliament, ibid. To be utterly dissolv'd, 122. How the Members of it that follow'd King Charles into France were dealt with there, 186. Restor'd by King Charles II. 225. Their opinions confirm'd by those of foreign Protestants, 393. Their behaviour to King James, on publishing his Declaration of Liberty of Conscience, 465. A Memorial presented to the Prince of Orange in the name of it, 487. Church High and Low, the first distinction of it, 777. Churches, French and Dutch are proceeded against by Archbishop Laud, 72. They put in a Declaration against his Authority, ibid.

Churchill, Colonel John, made Lord Churchill, 406, 443. Sent against the Duke of Monmouth, 436. Suspected by the Lord Feversham, General of King James's Forces at Salisbury, 497. He is in danger of being Seiz'd, ibid. He goes to the Prince of Orange, ibid. His Letter to the King on that occasion, ibid. Sent by the Prince to London, to reassemble his Troop of Guards, 502. Made a Privy Councillour and Gentleman of the Bedchamber by King William, 515. Made Earl of Marlborough, 524. See Marlborough, Earl of.

Churchill, Brigadier, takes the Duke of Berwick at Landen Light, 661.

Chute, Mr. Chaloner, Chosen Speaker of Richard Cromwell's Parliament, 22. Laid by, and another Chosen, ibid. His Death, ibid.

Cirencester, Taken by Prince Rupert for the King, and the Garrison put to the Sword, 118.

Clare, Earl of, Prosecuted in the Star-Chamber for spreading a Libel, 57. Deserts the Parliament, 127. Deserts the King, ibid.

Clarendon, Edward Hyde, Earl of, Charg'd with advising the Sale of Dunkirk, 240. Articles of High-Treason and other Misdemeanors Exhibited in Parliament against him about it, ibid. Out of Favour, 245. The Articles against him, ibid. Thought to be a Personal and Popish Design, 247. He is honourably Acquitted, ibid. His Speech to the Parliament at Oxford, against the Dutch, 257. A great Promoter of the Corporation-Act against Dissenters, 259. His Fall, 265. Seal taken from him, 266. The Parliament thank the King for displacing him, 266. Charg'd by Mr. Edward Seymour, viva voce, with many great Crimes, 267. The Articles against him carry'd up to the Lords, ibid. The Lords differ with the Commons about it, 268. He withdraws and leaves a Paper of his in Vindication of all his Ministry, ibid. 259. The publick Account of his withdrawing, 269. The Parliament desire the Ports may be stop't to prevent his Escape, 270. His Paper jested upon by the Duke of Buck, ibid. Burnt by the hands of the Common Hangman, ibid. Banish'd by Act of Parliament, ibid. Very sorry for his Daughter the Dutchess of York's turning Papist, 294. See Sir Edward Hyde.

Clarendon, Henry Hyde Earl of, address'd against by Parliament, 390. Made Lord Privy Seal by James II. 428. And Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 444. The Earl of Tyrconnel put over him, 450. He is careful of the Protestant Interest, and complains of Tyrconnel, ibid. Remov'd, ibid. His Speech when he deliver'd Tyrconnel the Sword, 451. Turn'd out from being Lord Privy Seal, 453. Goes to the Prince of Orange, 499.

Claver, Mr. Thomas, His Instructions to Mr. Monk, who was sent to engage his Brother General Monk in the King's Interest, 215. His Negotiations for General Monk with the Rump, 316. Goes into Scotland and has a Conference with him, ibid. Sent by him to the Lord Fairfax, ibid. Meets General Monk at Nottingham, and informs him which way he might best serve his Country, 217. How to avoid taking the Abjuration Oath, ibid.

Cleland, Lieutenant Col. his and the Regiment of Angus, Their Bravery, 538.

Clergy, some of them too Busy in the Loan, 28. Complaints against them for favouring Arbitrary Power, 51. Many of them disaffected to the Court, 56. Questions about their Liberties and Exemptions, 62. Very Liberal in their Contributions towards the Scots War, 90. Miserably us'd in the Civil Wars, 133. Severity against them: 160. Their Charity in Redeeming Christian Slaves, 240. Their better Maintenance consider'd, 243. First Tax'd by the House of Commons, 254. Poorer sort a Bill for their Relief, 361. Divisions among them, 380. Some of them reckon'd Popishly affected, and who, 392. The Rest for Peace and Union, ibid. Speeches against the other in Parliament, ibid. They read King Charles's Declaration to excuse his dissolving the Parliament, 398. Of Ireland, how us'd by King James, 474. How they behav'd themselves upon King James's publishing his Declaration of Liberty of Conscience, 521. Some refuse to take the Oaths to King William, 549. The Nonjurors are terribly expos'd in a Pamphlet, 575. The Bishops that refus'd the Oaths vindicate themselves, 600. Oppose a Union with the Dissenters, 797. The Nonjurors and others often foment Divisions in the Convocation, 797.

Clifford, Sir Thomas, made Comptroller of the Household, by King Charles II. 263. Sworn of the Privy Council, ibid. Favours the Popish Interest, 264. Made one of the Commissioners of the Treasury, 265. Treasurer of the Household, 272. One of the Cabal that advis'd the shutting up of the Exchequer, 384. Created Lord Clifford, 288. Made Lord High Treasurer, 289. Lays down his Place on the passing of the Test-Act, 294.

Cloworthy, Sir John, one of the 21 Members impeach'd by the Army, 155.

AN INDEX to the Third Volume.

Coachmen, the Protestant one, the Story of him, 469.

ockle, Lieutenant, his Bravery at Namur, 698.

ockram, Sir John, betrays the Earl of Argyle, 433.

ogar, Dr. Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge, his Latin Speech to the Duke of York, 404.

oborn, General, Burns the Magazine at Givet, 719.

Coke, Sir Edward, made Sheriff of the County of Bucks, after he had been Lord Chief Justice, 12, 13. His Exception against the Sheriff's Oath, ibid. Speaks smartly about Grievances, 39, 40, 41. His Speech against the Duke of Bucks, 43. His Death, 70. His Papers search'd, ibid. His Will Lost, ibid.

Coke, Mr. Clement, his Son a bold Saying of his in the House of Commons, 15.

Coin of England regulated 692, 705. Speeches for and against regulating it in Parliament, ibid. The House proceeds upon it again, 725.

Colbert, Monsieur, Ambassador from France, his publick Entry, 271.

Colchester, taken by the Lord Fairfax, 162.

Colchester, Lord, Joins the Prince of Orange, 496. His Bravery at Cork, 511.

Coleman, Edward, his Letter to the French King's Confessor, 299, 300. Secretary to the Dutchess of York, taken up for the Popish Plot, 364. His Treasonable Letters, ibid. Hang'd, 369. His last Words, ibid.

Colledge, Mr. Stephen, call'd the Protestant Joyner, committed to Prison, 398. His Case, 399. His good defence, 400. He is Executed, ibid.

Collyer, Cook, and Snat, Three Nonjuring Divines, pronounce Absolution to Sir John Friend, and to Sir William Perkins, the latter one of the Assassination Plotters, at the Gallows, 718. That Action condemn'd by the Bishops, 719. Presented by the Grand Jury, ibid. Collyer writes to justify himself, ibid.

Commissioners of the High Commission Court Su'd by Mr. Huntley a Minister, 58.

Commonwealth Government establish'd by the Rump, 175, 176.

Comprehension Bill, drawn up by Judge Hale, 272. Brought into the House of Commons, 393.

Con, Seigneur sent by the Pope to be his Nuncio in England, 79.

Conference between the Arminian Divines and their Opponents, 30. At the Savoy between the Episcopal and Presbyterian Divines, 234. All Success of it, 236. Between Protestants and Papists in presence of King James, 453. One between the Lords and Commons about the word Addicate, 510. Another between the Lords and Commons about the Act to regulate Tryals in case of high Treason, 633, 639. Another about the Impeachment and Trial of the Lords Portland, Somers, Orford and Holifax, 810, 811.

Congress at the Hague, 573. The Princes and Lords there, ibid.

Coningsby, Thomas, Esq; made one of the Lords Justices of Ireland, 565. made a Privy Councillor, 664. Accus'd by the Earl of Bellmont and others, for what he did in Ireland, ibid. Clear'd by Parliament, 667.

Comingsmark, Count, try'd for the Murder of Mr. Thynne, 402.

Conti, Prince of, his comical Interview with Richard Cromwell, 14.

Conti, Prince, his Saying of King William's Valour and Merit, 662. Set up for the Crown of Poland by Lewis XIV. 737. He endeavours to get the Dutchy of Neufchotel, 768. Oppos'd by King William and others, ibid.

Conventicles, an Act against them, 251. The Parliament thanks the King for suppressing them, 274. Another Act to suppress them, 281.

Convocations, one at London, and another at Oxford, 28. Their Acts, ibid., 29. Their Debates, 32. They take no notice of Mr. Montague's Case, ibid. Another call'd to do nothing but give their Money, 52. Another, and their Acts, 100, 101. They impose an Oath and publish Canons, 102. Condemn'd by Parliament, 103. Another Sits, 104. Comes to nothing, ibid. The Members fin'd by Parliament, 114. They all retire, 133.

Convocation, not call'd with the Parliament upon the Restoration, and why, 232. Dr. Heylin's Letter concerning it, ibid. One call'd, 233. Their Acts, ibid., 241, 248, 249, 254, 255.

Convocation, King William's first, against an Accommodation with Dissenters, 552. The King's Commission to them, 552, 553. Discontents and Divisions in it, 554. Their Addresses to the King, ibid. Why they were angry with the Presbyterians, 555.

Convocation, another, oppose the Union with Dissenters, 737. Treat the Bishop of London unworthily, ibid. They oppose the Archbishop's Prorogation, and set up for an Independence on the Upper House, ibid. Their Address to King William, 798. Their Proceedings against a Book call'd, Christianity not Mystrious, 799. The Upper House's Proceedings against another Book, call'd, The Balance of Power, ibid. The difference between the Bishops and their Inferior Clergy, 836, to 840. Several Members protest against the Lower House's Proceedings, 841. Their Defence of them, ibid. The Bishops Answer, 842, 843.

Convocation, a new one, continue the Disputes about their Independency on the Upper House, 845, to 849. Dissolv'd by the King's Death, ibid.

Cooper, Sir Anthony Ashley, made one of King Charles's Privy Council at the Restoration, 224. See Lord Ashly.

Conway, Secretary, his Orders to Captain Penington to joyn with the French King's Forces against the Rochellers, 6. Vindicates the Duke of Bucks in the House of Lords, 18. The Lord Bristol's Charge against him, 21. Made General of the Horse in the Second Expedition against the Scots, 94.

Cony, Mr. a Merchant prosecuted by Cromwell for not paying Custom, 197. Pleads his own Cause, ibid.

Cook, Sir John, Secretary of State, the chief Advocate for the Prerogative in the House of Commons, 39. Brings Propositions from the King to the House, ibid. Brings several Messages to them, 40, 41. His Character, 62.

Cook, Colonel Edward, would persuade the King to Escape from the Isle of Wight, at the Second Treaty, 163. His Reason for it, ibid.

Cook, Sir Thomas, sent to the Tower by the House of Commons, and why, 677, 685. And a Bill brought in against him, ibid. He appears before the Parliament, 685, 686. He delivers in his Account, 686. Imprison'd by Act of Parliament, 692.

Cook, Peter, one of the Assassination Plot, 709. Condemn'd, 719. Banish'd only, ibid.

Coply, Sir Godfrey, his Speech against Sir John Fenwick's Bill, 730.

Cork taken by the Earl of Marlborough, 751

Cornbury, Lord, deserts to the Prince of Orange, 496. King James's Consternation upon it, 497.

Cornish, Henry, Esq; Alderman of London, Fin'd for a Riot, 408. unjustly Condemn'd and Executed, 442. His Attainder revers'd, 531.

Corporation-Act, a severe one against the Dissenters to call'd, 259.

Corryton, Mr. William, prosecuted for his Speeches and Actions, as a Member of Parliament, 49.

Cotterell, Lieutenant Colonel, dissolves the Kirk Assembly, 139.

Cottingham, Lord, King Charles II's Ambassador in Spain, turns Papist and dies there, 180. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Cotton, Sir Robert, The Antiquary, his wife Advice to the King, 38. Prosecuted in the Star-Chamber for spreading a Libel, 57.

Cotton, one of the Yorkshire Conspirators against King Charles II. His Impudence, 247. Hang'd, ibid.

Covenant, Solemn League and, when first made, 88. The Mischiefs of it, ibid. Taken by the Parliament of England, 127. The Parliament require the King to take it, 140.

Burnt by the hands of the common Hangman after the Restoration, 231, Abrogated in Scotland, 253.

Coventry, Lord Thomas, Lord Keeper, His Death and Character, 90.

Coventry, Sir John, attack'd and wounded by Ruffians, 281.

Coventry, Henry Esq; Charles II. Plenipotentiary at the Treaty of Breda with the Dutch, 264. Sent to Sweden to engage that King against the Dutch, 284 Highly rewarded for it, ibid. Made Secretary of State, 289.

Council, Privy, their Orders on the Death of King James I. 3. Advise Charles I. to raise Money by a Loan, 27. Many of 'em suspected to be Papists, 70.

Council, Privy, a List of a Popular one made by Charles II. 374.

Court, the High Commission, that was made by James II. 454, 455, 456. The Illegality of it, 456. First fall upon the Bishop of London, ibid. They Suspend Dr. Peacher, Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge, for not admitting a Monk to a Master's Degree, by a Mandate, 475. Their Proceedings against Magdalen College, 476.

Cowsey, Governor, sent by the French King with a Letter to General Lambert Prisoner in Guernsey, to tempt him to betray the Island to him, 260. Hang'd for a Spy, ibid.

Cowley, Mr. Abraham, His Death and publick Burial, 271.

Cramborn, one of the Assassination Plotters hang'd, 719.

Creation of Noblemen, 224, 288, 296, 378, 379, 391, 401, 406, 416, 423, 443, 470, 524, 528, 535, 548, 556, 571, 640, 641, 659, 668, 670, 693, 713, 720, 735, 740, 754, 755.

Crequi, Duke and Marechal of, sent Ambassador to Cromwell, 208.

Crew, Sir Thomas, chosen Speaker of King Charles I. First Parliament, 5.

Crew, Sir Randolph, remov'd from being Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, for shewing his dissatisfaction to the Loan, 27.

Crew, John, Esq; Imprison'd for giving Offence in Parliament, 96.

Cromwell, Oliver, concerns himself with the Feuds in Religion, between the Arminians and the Orthodox, 54. His Saying concerning the Remonstrance pass'd by the Commons upon the Irish Rebellion, 111. Lieutenant General of the Parliament Army at Marston Moor, 138. Gains the Victory by his Bravery, ibid. Contin'd in Commission notwithstanding the self-denying ordinance, 144. His Success, ibid. Made Lieutenant General of the Horse, 145. Gains the Battle of Naseby by his Valour, ibid. Heads the Independent Party in the House of Commons, 151. Orders Joice to take the King and bring him to the Army, 154. Rout's Duke Hamilton, 162. Advances the Remonstrance against the King, and to have him brought to Justice, 163. He governs all by the Army, 165. Made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 176. He Ascends, ibid. His Successes in Ireland, 177. He desires to be recall'd; and returns, 178. Made Captain General of the Rump's Forces, 179. Marches into Scotland and beats the Scots at Dunbar, ibid., 180. His Successes there, 182. Leaves Monk to Command there, and pursues King Charles II. into England, 182. Gains the Battle of Worcester, 183. His Triumph upon it, 184. He purposes to Reign, 185. His Conference with several Members of the Rump and others about a Government, ibid. Weary of the Parliament, ibid. His Policy, 187. His Conference with Whitlock about his assuming the Sovereignty, ibid. Dissolves the Parliament by Force, 190. His Declaration upon it, ibid. He Summons a Pack'd Convention, ibid. Made Lord Protector, 191. His Grandeur at Home and Abroad, ibid. Forces the Dutch to accept of his Terms of Peace, 192. Has a Universal Parliament, of England, Scotland, and Ireland, 193. His Grandeur Abroad, ibid. Sends Vonales and Pen to the West-Indies, ibid., 196. Packs his Parliament, and goes to it in Pomp, ibid. Dissolves it, 194. Escapes all Dangers, 195. Falls out of his Coach-box, ibid. Cajoles the City, ibid. Turns out the Commissioners of the Great Seal that did not please him, 196. Increases his Standing Army, 197. Sets up Major Generals, and Looks into Charters, 199. Calls his Second Parliament, ibid. Syndercomb's Plot against him, 200. He refuses the Title of King, 201, 202, 203. His Speech on that Occasion, ibid. And at passing of Bills, 204. His solemn Inauguration as Lord Protector, ibid. Makes a House of Lords and Dissolves the Parliament in a Heat, 204, 205. Helps the French against the Spaniards, ibid. Discovers a Conspiracy of the Fifth Monarchists and the Cavaliers against him, 206. Proceeds severely against the latter, 207. Gets Dunkirk, 208. Glories over the French Perfidiousness, and the French Monarchy, ibid. A remarkable Instance of it, ibid. He Dies. Ludlow's account of his Death, ibid., 209. He is loth to declare his Successor, ibid. Sir Philip Warwick's account of his Death, ibid. Rejoicing at his Death, ibid. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid., 210. The extravagant Expence of his Funeral, 212.

Cromwell, Richard, Eldest Son to Olivier, Declar'd his Successor, and Lord Protector of England, &c. 211. His Proceedings upon it, ibid. His Advancement in his Fathers time, 212. He is a mean Man, ibid. His Extravagant Expence on his Fathers Funeral, ibid. Favours the Presbyterians in opposition to the Independents, 213. No Bigot to any Religion, ibid. A Prophane Saying of his gives Offence to those that call themselves the Godly, ibid. The Army force him to Dissolve his Parliament, 213. And turn him out of his Protectorate, ibid. They Petition the Rump to provide for him, but they neglect it, 214. A Story told by the Lord Clarendon of a Comical Interview between the Prince of Conti and him in France, ibid.

Cromwell, Henry, Second Son to Olivier, sent Deputy into Ireland, 192. Recall'd by the Rump, 214. He is Popular in Ireland but does not oppose the Parliament, ibid.

Culpeper, Lord, his brave Saying to Sir Harry Comet, on his waiting on Charles II. to Maf, when in his Exile, 220.

Culpeper, Sir John, his Speech against the Convocation, 103. Joyns with the King, 116.

Culpeper, William, Esq; one of the Kentish Petitioners, 805.

Culpeper, Thomas, Esq; one of the Kentish Petitioners, 805. How proceeded against by the House of Commons, when he stood for Member for Maidstone, 830.

Cumberland, George, Prince of Denmark, Created Duke of, 524.

Curtis, Langley, his Troubles for Printing a Paper called the Lord Ruffels Ghost, 421.

Cuts, Colonel John, made Baron of Gowran, 571. Governor of the Isle of Wight, 664. His Actions at Camerot Bay, 670, 671. His Brave Actions at Namur, 694, 695, 696. And again, 697, 698.

D.

Danby, Thomas Osburn, Earl of, Impeach'd by the Commons, 368. Proceedings of the Lords against him, 373. And Commons, ibid. An Act for Banishing him, and Disabling him, &c. pass'd by the Lords; and to Attain him, pass'd by the Commons, ibid. Pardon'd by the King, ibid. Bill of Attainder pass'd both Houses, 374. He Surrenders himself and makes excuses at the Bar, ibid. Imprison'd, ibid. Appears at the Lords Bar again, 375. Commons will not allow his Pardon, 376. Bail'd, 414. Speaks warmly for the Vacancy of the Throne, and supplying it by the Prince and Princess of Orange, 512. Made President of the Council by King William, 415. Marquis of Carrmarthon, 535. And Duke of Leeds, 670. See Leeds, Duke of.

Dangerfield, Thomas, the Cruel Sentence against him, and for what, 442. Kill'd by Francis, ibid.

Darby, Mr. John, a Printer, his Sufferings for Printing the Lord Ruffels Speech, 414.

Darien, the Scots Settlement, there Address'd against by the Lords, 774. The Scots forc'd to desert it, 785. Their Reformation of it, 786. ibid.

Dartmouth, Lord, lets the Prince of Orange Sail by him, when he was King James's Admiral, 495. Whether Voluntarily or not ibid.

Dauphin, Son of Lewis XIV. Commands the French Army in Germany and Flanders, 663, 671. His mean Character as a General, ibid. Is against owning the Pretended Prince of Wales, to be King of England, 825.

Dean, Admiral, Kill'd in the Dutch Wars, 192.

Deering, Sir Edward, his Speech in the House of Commons against Archbishop Land, 98. And against Episcopacy, ibid. Acknowledging the King's goodness, and against the Remembrance about the Irish Malignance and Rebellion, 111. For the Bishops, 114.

Delamere, Henry Booth, Lord, the Unjust Proceedings against him, 441. He is Try'd and acquitted, ibid. Made Earl of Warrington by King William, 556.

Delaval, Sir Ralph, his Letter concerning Admiral Ruffels Victory over Tourville, 648. Made Admiral by King William, 659.

Denbigh, Earl of, sent with a Fleet to assist the Rochesters, 27. His Expedition comes to nothing, ibid. Makes another inglorious Expedition to assist them, 45. One of the Parliaments Commissioners sent to the King at Oxford, 139. His bold Speech to the King, 140. He lays down his Commission on Passing the Self-denying Ordinance, 144.

Denham, One of the Yorkshire Conspirators against King Charles II. Hang'd, 247.

Denmark, King of, Beaten by Count Tilly, 26.

Denmark, King of, falls upon the Duke of Holslein, 784. Forc'd to Conclude a Peace, ibid.

Denmark, George Prince of, comes to see the English Court, 273. Returns to Denmark, ibid. Comes again to England and is Marry'd to the Princess Anne, 416. Made a Privy Counsellour by King James, 428. Goes to the Prince of Orange, 498. His Letter to King James on that Occasion, ibid. King William declares his Intentions of making him a Duke to the Parliament, 524. The Parliament thanks him for it, ibid. Naturaliz'd by Act of Parliament, ibid. Created Duke of Cumberland, ibid. Accompanies King William to Ireland, 558.

Derby, Earl of, raises 1500 Men for King Charles II. 182. Defeated by Colonel Lilburn, Taken and Beheaded, 183, 184. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Derby, Earl of, rises with Sir George Booth for King Charles II. 214. Taken Prisoner, ibid.

Derby, Countess of, Besieg'd in Latham House by Sir Thomas Fairfax, defends herself bravely, 137. Reliev'd by Prince Rupert, ibid.

Desborough, Col. Cromwell's Brother in Law, in a Confederacy against him, 209. Turn'd out by the Rump, 215. Commanded to return to England by Proclamation, in Charles II. Reign, 258.

Devonshire, William Cavendish, Earl of, strikes Col. Culpeper in King James's Court, 488. Fin'd 3000*l.* ibid. Zealously disposed to Invite over the Prince of Orange, ibid. Guards the Princess Anne from Nottingham to Oxford, 499. Made Steward of the Household by King William, 515. Knight of the Garter, 524. His Case with Culpeper, for which he was committed to the King's Bench, redrest by the House of Lords, 529. Made Duke, 670. One of the Lords Justices of England, 693. And again, 720. Again, 735. Again, 755. And again, 768. Again, 784. Again, 821.

Dip, Bombarded by the English, 671.

Digby, Lord, his Speech against Ship-Money, 97. For frequent Parliaments, 98. Against the Convocation, 103. His Treachery to the King about the Five Members, 113. He deserts him and goes to Holland, ibid. Takes Marlborough from the Parliament, 118. Prevails with Sir John Hotham and his Son to desert to the King, 127. He endeavours in vain to Join the Lord Montrose, 146. Flies to Ireland, ibid. His Letters taken and Publish'd by the Parliament, ibid.

Digby, Sir Dudley, His Speech at the Lords Bar, when he Impeach'd the Duke of Bucks. 22. He is Imprison'd, ibid. Released, 24. Made Master of the Rolls, 50.

Directory of Worship, publish'd by Parliament, 144, 148.

Discontents, general, and why, 4, 6, 10, 12, 27, 37, 38, 44, 48. At Ship-Money, 70, 78. About the Plantations, 83. Burton and Bastwick, ibid. In Scotland about the Book of Canons and Common Prayer, 84.

Disney, William Esq; Hang'd for Printing the Duke of Monmouth's Declaration, 442.

Dispensing Power exercis'd by King Charles the Second, 463. And highly by King James II. ibid.

Disputers, The Lord Chancellor Hyde's Speech against their Teachers, 236. Address to the King to be reliev'd against the Uniformity Act, 238. The Parliament Address against repealing or dispensing with that Act, 239. They are more favour'd by the King than by the Parliament, ibid. Their disposition after the passing the Uniformity Act, 248. Are against the Dutch War, 258. The Government Angry with them, ibid. The Corporation Act pass'd against them, 259. Several Ministers take the Oath of Allegiance with a very odd distinction, ibid. Favour'd by the King, ibid. A state of their Case after the Fine, 264. They are pleas'd with the Lord Clarendon's Fall, and Buckingham's Rise, 271. A Proclamation against them, ibid. For a Comprehension, 272. Indulg'd, 277. Persecuted, ibid. Are Formidable, ibid. Persecuted, 281. King Charles's Declaration of Indulgence, 287. A Bill in favour of 'em pass'd by the Commons, Thrown out by the Lords, 292, 294. Their Case, 308. Indulg'd a little, 311. Their behaviour on the discovery of the Popish Plot, 371. The best Clergy moderate towards 'em, 392. Their Separation blun'd by Foreign Protestants, 393. Favour'd by the House of Commons, ibid. A Bill to revoke what relates to 'em in the Act of 35 Elizabeth, pass'd, ibid. Lost in the Lords House by Stealth, ibid. Complaint of the Loss of it in the Oxford Parliament, 396. Everard and Fitcharris's Plot to destroy them, ibid., 397. Why Hated by King Charles II. 402. A Court Trick to Prosecute them, and why, 403. The Laws against Papists turn'd against them, ibid. Mark'd out for Hatred and Prosecution by the Government, 419. Complaint of their Sufferings, 428. Yet are Sorry for Charles II. Death, 429. Their Case in King James's Reign, 446. Severe Acts against them in Scotland, 447. Liberty of Conscience first granted by King James there, 448. Further Executions against them in England, 462. Fond of King James's Declaration of Liberty of Conscience, 465. They Address him upon it, ibid. They perceive the Treachery of it, ibid. The Apology for 'em, ibid. They suspect King James's Favours will not last when the Papists are settled, 481. King William's Speech for Tenderness to them, 518. Several Attempts in Parliament in their Favour, rejected, ibid. What Lords protested against it, ibid., 519. Their Reasons, ibid. Some of their Ministers attend the Bishop of London, when he went up with the Clergy to Address King William, 521. Their particular Address to him, 522. The King's Answer, ibid. Act for Toleration them pass'd, 530. Proceedings in Parliament in their favour comes to nothing, 549. A Project of Accommodation broken, and by whom, 551, 552.

Disputers, Dr. the Rumps Agent in Holland Assailinated, 176.

Dorset, Charles Earl of, Conveys the Princess Anne from London to Nottingham, 499. Made Lord Chamberlain by King William, 515. Made one of the Lords Justices of England, 693. And again, 720. Again, 735. Again, 755.

Dover, Lord, Receiv'd into Protection by King William, 564.

Dowglas, Sir Robert, Kill'd at Stratford, 451.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles II.'s Ambassador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the first Rapture, 525 &c.

251. His Paper-War with them, 253. Sent to the Tower, 284.

Drake, Dr. Question'd by the Lords for his History of the Last Parliament, 835. Order'd to be Prosecuted, 836.

Dublin, University of, how us'd by King James, 474, 541.

Duck us'd, Col. Infults the Speaker Lambert by Lambert's Order, 215.

Dudley, Sir Robert, Residing at Florence, Author of a Letter call'd, A Proposition to His Majesty to Bridle the Impertinency of Parliaments, 57.

Duellings, Charles II's Declaration against it, 381. A Bill order'd to be brought in against it in Parliament, 775.

Duffie, John, a Scots Papist, made Rector of Kaile in Essex, 407. Forc'd to Fly, ibid.

Dunbar, Battel of, 179. Lord Clarendon's Account of it, 180.

Duncomb, Mr. Charles, sent to the Tower for Unlawful Practices about Exchequer-Bills, 741. A Bill against him lost by One Voice, ibid. How 'twas thought he got off, ibid.

Dunle, Viscount, retires from the Scots Convention, 536. Rebels against King William, 538. Fights and forces General Mackay to Retreat, ibid. He is Slain, ibid.

Dunkirk, how got by Cromwell, 208. Sold to the French by Charles II. 240.

Duras, Lord, sent Ambassador from King Charles to the French King, to Treat of a Peace between him and Holland, 315. Does not succeed, ibid.

Durham, Dr. Nathan'el Crow, Bishop of, most in Favour with King James II. and why, 445. One of the High Commission Court, 454. Made one of the Commissioners to Exercise Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction in the Diocese of London, when the Bilhop was Suspended, 461. Order'd to draw up a Thanksgiving for Queen Mary's being with Child, 470. Leaves King James's Interest, 495. Excepted out of King William's Act of Indemnity, 557.

Dutch, their League with the French against the Spaniards, 78. Their Fishers Dispers'd, ibid. Buy a Permission to Fish, ibid. They are Neuters in the Dispute between Charles I. and the Parliament, 119. Their Ambassadors Interpose between King and Parliament, 141. Their War with the Rump, 187. Beaten by Cromwell's Admirals, 192. Murmurs against them in Charles II's Reign, encourag'd by the French Court, 250. King Charles's Declaration of War with them, 252. Their Paper-War with Sir George Downing, King Charles II's Ambassador, 253. They apply to the French King, but are little help'd by him, ibid. Not willing to have a War, 255. Beaten at Sole-Bay, 256. Murmurs amongst them upon it, ibid. Their Ambassador Recall'd, 258. Charg'd by King Charles to be the Authors of the War, ibid. Hard prest by the Bishop of Manster, and faintly assist'd by the French, ibid. Gain an Advantage of the English, 260. Betray'd by the French, ibid. Beaten by the English, ibid. Murmurs at their ill Success, 261. Their Fleet comes up the River of Thames, and Burns several Ships, 265. Other Attempts upon the Ports and Coasts of England, ibid. They Conclude a Peace with Charles II. ibid. And a Defensive League, 271. Their Answer to King Charles II's Declaration of War, 285. England and France at War with them, 287. Their Country Over-run by the French, 288. They are in a dreadful Confirmation, ibid. Send Deputies to King Charles to desire a Peace, 289. King Charles Concludes a Peace with them, 297. The French driv'n out of their Country by the Prince of Orange, ibid. They highly Honour him, ibid. Incline to a Separate Peace, 363. And Sign it, ibid. They refuse to send Home King James's 6 Regiments, knowing him to be in the French Interest, 471. Their Preparations to assist the Prince of Orange, 488. Their Bold Answer to King James's Envoy, ibid. The French King's Ambassador's Memorial to them upon it, 489. A Bill pass'd in England, 534. Entirely in King William's Interest, 720. The States Answer to that King's Speech on the Alteration in Europe by the Duke of Arceus: Usurping the Spanish Monarchy, 812. To the Count D'Avaux the French Ambassador's Memorial, when he was Recall'd, 823. Queen Anne's Letter to them to Condole the Death of King William, 834. They Vindicate his Memory Viliify'd by the French, ibid.

Duttoncole, John, Esq; Fin'd 100000 l. Damage to the Duke of York, and for what, 422.

Dyer, an Impudent News-Writer, brought before the Parliament, 673. Writes for the Jacobites, and Bread, ibid.

E.

Earthquake, one in England, 653.

East-India Company, Old, their Case laid before the Parliament, 632. The Parliament Address that they may be Dissolv'd, 655. A long State of their Case before the Parliament in Sir Thomas Cook's Affair, 676, 677, 678. Further Proceedings in the Case, 685, 686, 687, 688, 689, 690. Their Hearing before the Parliament against the New Company, 748, 749. Reasons against their Charter, ibid. They Petition the Parliament to be Reliev'd against the New Company, 761. Do not succeed, ibid.

East-India Company, New, their first Establishment, 748. Their Hearing before the Parliament against the Old, ibid., 749. Vast Sums quickly Subscrib'd by them, 750. Their Proceedings, 761.

East-India Company, Scotts, Address'd against by the English Parliament, 706. King William's Answer, ibid. Disputes about it in Scotland, 762, 763. They apply to the King in England, 773, 774, 775. Further Disputes about it in Scotland, 784.

Ecclesiastical Courts, their Jurisdiction Question'd, 85. Confirm'd by Charles I. ibid. Put down, 114.

Edinburgh, Bishop of, Prays for the Restoration of King James before the Scots Convention, 535.

Edge-Hill, Battel of, 117.

Elizabeth, Princess, Daughter to King Charles I. Born, 75. Her Treatment by Cromwell, 198. Her Death, ibid.

Ellenburgh, Major-General, safely delivers up Dixmuyde, and the Garison there to the French, 695.

Elliot, Sir John, his Speech at the Conclusion of the Duke of Bucks Impeachment, 23. He is Imprison'd, ibid. Releas'd, 24. Confin'd in the Gate-House, 37. Speaks against the Duke's being nam'd with the King, 40. Is forbidden by the Speaker, Sir John Finch, to Speak in the House, 43. His Speech on a Declaration before the XXXIX Articles, 47. Imprison'd in the Tower, 48. Fin'd 2000 l. 49. A Speech of his about Arminianism and Papery, 53.

Ely, Dr. Turner, Bishop of, one of the Seven Bishops that Petition'd, and were Imprison'd, 485. Suspended for refusing to take the Oaths to King William and Queen Mary, 551. A Proclamation to Apprehend him for Plotting, 575.

Episcopacy Condemn'd in Scotland, 93. Defended by Bishop Hall, ibid. Petitions against it, 100, 105. Abolish'd, 114. The King will not Consent to it even at the last, 163. Cromwell inclines to it, 206. Restor'd by King Charles II. 230. Restor'd in Scotland, 253.

Erle, Coll. his Bravery at the Battel of Aghrim, 628. Twice Taken and Retaken then, ibid. Gets off, ibid.

Essex, Robert Devereux, Earl of, made Vice-Admiral to the Lord Wimleton, in the Expedition to Calis, 11. Vice-Admiral to the Earl of Linsay, 75. Made Lieutenant-General of the Army, in the first Expedition against the Scots, 91. In Disgrace, 92. Made General of the Parliament Army, and Proclaim'd Traitor by the King, 116, 117. Marches against the King, ibid. And fights the Battel of Edge-Hill, 117. Besieges and Takes Reading, 124. Gains the Battel of Newbury, 128. Pursues the King, 138. Marches into the West, ibid. Leaves his Army, 139. Religns his Commission, 144. His Death, and the Lord Clarendon's Character of him, 151.

Essex, Arthur Capel, Earl of, made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 289. Religns his place in the Treasury, 379. His Speech when he deliver'd the Petition against the Parliament's Sitting at Oxford, 393. Accus'd of the Phanatick Plot, 409. Found dead in the Tower with his Throat cut, ibid. Suspected to be Murder'd, ibid. And on what Circumstances, ibid. The King's Saying on his Death, ibid.

Essex, Algernoon Capell, Earl of, attends King William into Flanders, 625.

Essex, Count de, Commander of the French Fleet; His Cowardice or Treachery, 295, 296.

Evans, John, a Popish Priest hang'd at Cardiff, 380.

Everard, his Plot to ruin the Dissenters, 396, 397.

Every, Henry, the Pirate, a Proclamation against him, 723.

Eugene of Savooy, Prince, takes Gap in Dauphine, 652. Leads the main Body at the Battel of Marfaglia, 663.

Exchequer, Barons of, their Arbitrary Proceedings about Tonnage and Poundage, 46, 47.

Exchequer shut up by King Charles II. 284.

Exchequer Bills first invented, and by whom, 726, 727. Abus'd, and how, 742, 743. Renew'd, 795.

Exclusion Bill first thought of, 365. The King's Speech upon it, 366. Brought into the House, 377, 386. Passes the House of Commons, Rejected by the Lords, 388.

Exeter, See of, its Revenues enlarg'd, 277.

Eyles, Sir John, appointed Lord Mayor by King James, 487.

F.

Fagell, Mr. Pensionary of Holland, his Letter to Mr. Stewart, containing the Prince and Princess of Orange's Opinion about Liberty of Conscience and the Test, 466, 467. To the Marquis of Aberville in Defence of it, 467.

Fairborn, Sir Palmer, kill'd at Tangier, 391.

Fairfax, Lord, made General of the North for the Parliament, to oppose the Earl of Newcastle. 118. Joins the Scots, 137. His Death, 159.

Fairfax, Sir Thomas, Besieges Latham-House, 137. Draws off and defeats Colonel Bellasis, ibid. Joins the Scots Army, ibid. Is distressed in the Battel of Marston Moor, but reliev'd by Cromwell, 138. Made General of the Parliament's Army, and Models it, 144. Marches to reduce the West, ibid. But is Countermanded, ibid. Fights the King at Naseby, 145. Retakes Lewesford, ibid. Beats Colonel Goring, and takes Bridgewater, &c. ibid. Takes Bristol, 146. Takes Dartmouth by Storm, beats the Lord Hopton, forces the Prince to retire into Sally, and reduces all the West, 146, 147. Takes Oxford, 150. Heads the Presbyterian Party in the House, 151. Waits on the King when He was brought to the Army, 154. Leads the Army to London, and is made Constable of the Tower, 156. Sends the King his Chaplains, and is thank'd by him for it, 157. Succeeds his Father the Lord Fairfax in his Honours and Posts, 159. Takes Golchester, 162. Against the Murder of the King, resolves to prevent it, but is deceiv'd by Cromwell, 172. Contin'd General of the Army by the Rump, 176. Why Cromwell was put over his head, 177, 179. His Conference with a Committee of Parliament about the Scots War, 179. He lays down his Commission, ibid. Promises to join with General Monk, 217.

Fairfax, Lady, interrupts the preceeded High Court of Justice at the King's Tryal, 166.

Fairfax, Dr. his bold Speech to the High Commission Court upon the business of Magdalen Colledge, 477. Publicly treated by Jeffries, ibid. Stands boldly by Dr Hough's the President, and is unjustly expell'd the Colledge, 479.

Falkland, Lord, Deputy of Ireland opposes the Papists there buying a Toleration, 34. Appoints Deputies to carry Grievances to Court, 49. His Son makes a vehement Speech against Ship-Money, 98. And is Kill'd on the

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

the King's side at the Battel of Newbury, 118. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid., 130, 131, 132.

Talkland, Lady, goes in Pilgrimage to Holywell a-Foot, 83. Her Character from the Lord Clarendon, 129.

Eshmoor, Earl of, and Two Gentlemen more, kill'd by one Shot at Solday Fight, 256.

Fame, Common, Voted by the House of Commons to be a good Ground of their Proceeding, either by Enquiry or Complaint, 17.

Farmer, Anthony, made President of Magdalen College on his Promise to turn Papist, 475. The Fellows Exceptions against him as to his Religion and Morals, 477.

Faust, a Publick one order'd, 5. One appointed by King Charles at the opening of the Dutch War, 255. Another on the break-out of the Plague, 256. A General one, 362. Another, 373. Another, 703.

Favourites at Court odious to the English People, 9.

Faithful leaves the Assembly of Divines, 135. Punish'd for it, ibid.

Faulding, Colonel, Governor of Reading for the King, Surrenders it to the Earl of Essex, 124. Sentenc'd to die, ibid. Is Repriev'd, ibid.

Felton, John, Lieutenant, kills the Duke of Bucks, 45. His Motive, ibid.

Fenwick, Sir John, in a Plot to bring in the French, 709. Taken, his Letter to his Wife, 727. Spirits away Goodman the Evidence by his Agents, ibid. Would do the same by Porter, but cannot, ibid. Perjurates with the King and Parliament, 727, 728. A Bill brought in to Attaint him: It causes great Debates and many Speeches, 728, to 731. It passes Both Houses, 730, 731. The plotting Lords Reasons against it, 731. He is Beheaded, ibid. The Paper he deliver'd to the Sheriffs, ibid.

Fenwick, John, a Jesuit hang'd for the Popish Plot, 380.

Ferguson, Robert, a Phanatick Teacher Accus'd of the phanatick Plot, 409. Always thought a Traytor, ibid. A Proclamation against him, with a Description of him, 412. Call'd a Bloody Villain by the Duke of Monmouth on the Scaffold, 438.

Feverisham, Lewis de duras, Earl of, Address'd against by Parliament, 380. Commands King James II's Forces against the Duke of Monmouth, 436. And against the Prince of Orange, 497. Advises King James to secure the Lord Churchill, ibid. King James's Letter to him to Disband, 500. He Disbands the Army, 501. He is Censur'd for it: His Letter to the Prince upon it, 502. Arrested for it by the Prince's Order, 503. Released by the Queen Dowager's Intercession, 507.

Fiennes, Colonel Nathaniel, Governor of Bristol for the Parliament; surrenders it to Prince Rupert, 128.

Finch, Sir Henry, Chosen Speaker of the House of Commons, 15. His Speech to the King, ibid.

Finch, Sir John, Chosen Speaker of Charles II's Third Parliament, 39. His Speech to the King to justify their Proceedings, 41. Forbids a Member to speak, and desires leave to go out of the House, 43. Goes to the King privately and brings a Message from him, ibid. Held down in his Chair while the House publish'd their Protestations, 48. Made Lord Chief Justice, 70. Suppos'd to be instrumental in the Ship-Money Tax, ibid. His Character, ibid. Made Lord Keeper, 94. A ridiculous Speech of his at the opening of the Parliament, ibid. Voted a Traytor, 98. He lies, ibid. The Censure pass'd upon him by the Author of the History of the Rebellion, ibid.

Finch, Sir Henry, Nephew to Sir John Finch, made Lord Keeper by Charles II. 296.

Fire, the great one at London, 262. The Account of it inscrib'd on the Monument, ibid. Conjectures how it began, ibid. An Annual Fast order'd to be kept for it, ibid.

Firobrace, Sir Basil, one of the Sheriffs of London, receives the Pope's Nuncio at Temple-Bar, 469. Proceeded against in Parliament, and why, 687, 688, to 692. He is Imprison'd by Act of Parliament, 692.

Fiston, Sir Alexander, lying in Goal for Perjury, is taken out and made Lord Chancellor of Ireland by King James, 473. His Saying against the Protestants, 474.

Fitzharris, an Account of him and his Libel, 396. His Contrivance to Rether it upon the Dissenters, 397. Impeach'd by the Parliament, the Lords sling out the Impeachment, ibid. Commons Vote that No-body shall try him, ibid. He is Try'd, Condemn'd and Hang'd, ibid. 398.

Flags at Sea, a Proclamation concerning them, 38.

Fleetwood, General, made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland by Cromwell's Means, 187. Opposes the Parliaments making Cromwell King, 200. In a Conspiracy against him, ibid., 209. Very instrumental in turning out his Brother-in-Law Richard Cromwell, 213. Forces him to dissolve his Parliament, ibid. The Army petition the Rump to make him General of their Forces, ibid. The Rump address to him for Protection against Lambert, 215. General Monk writes angrily to him on the turning out of the Rump, 216. Restores the Rump again, 217.

Foley, Paul, Esq; Chosen Speaker of the House of Commons, 678. And again, 703.

Foulks, Mr. Robert, a Minister in Shropshire, hang'd for killing a Bastard Child, 372.

Foulks, Sir David, Prosecuted for Opposing the Project of Knighthood, 64.

Francis about a Monk, has his Degree of M. A. refus'd him by the Vice Chancellor of Cambridge, contrary to the King's Mandate, 478.

Francis, Robert, kills Dangerfield and is hang'd, 442.

Friend Sir John, in a Plot to bring in the French, 709. Found guilty of High Treason; his Confession before a Committee of Parliament, 718. Hang'd, Drawn, and Quarter'd, ibid. The Paper he deliver'd to the Sheriffs, ibid.

French, their Perfidioufness, 208. Their Cruelty, 663.

Fuller, William, a notorious Cheat, Amuses the House of Commons with false Evidence, 639. Their Declaration against him, ibid. He is pillory'd, ibid. His further Villany, 800.

G.

Galloway, Surrender'd to the English by Dillon the Governor, 629.

Galloway, Lord Viscount, sent General to Saroy, 668. His endeavours to find out the Duke of Saroy's separate Treaty with France, 721. Made one of the Lord Justices of Ireland, 732. Made Earl of Galloway, 735.

Gaming, a Bill, order'd to be brought in against it by the House of Commons, 775.

Gap, in Dauphine, taken by Prince Eugene of Saroy, 652.

Garret, alias, Gawen, John, a Jesuit, hang'd, 380.

Germane, Mr. try'd upon an Action of Adultery with the Dutches of Norfolk, 668.

Gerard, Sir Gilbert, ill receiv'd by Charles II. when he deliver'd a Petition for the sitting of the Parliaments, 378.

Ghent, taken by the French, 316.

Ginkle, Baron de, Suppresses the Rebellion of Two Scots Regiments who revolted from King William, 518. His Bravery and Danger at the Boyne, 560. Takes Ballymore, 626. And Athlone, 627. His good Conduct, ibid. Gains the Battel of Aghrim, 628, 629. Takes Galloway, ibid. His bold Saying to Sarsfield at Limerick Camp, 630. Takes that Town and ends the Irish War, ibid. Has the Thanks of the House of Commons, 639. His modest Reception of it, 640. Treated by the Lord Mayor, ibid. Created Earl of Athlone, ibid.

Glanvill, Serjeant, chosen Speaker of Charles I. Fourth Parliament, 94.

Glanham, Sir Thomas, Surrenders Tork to the Parliament, 138. And Oxford, 150.

Glenco Bulinefs, King William's Honour in that matter Vindicated by the Parliament of Scotland, 922.

Gloucester besieg'd by Charles I. in vain, 158.

Gloucester Henry Duke of, taken out of the Jesuits College, where his Mother had put him, and carry'd to his Brother King Charles II. in Germany, 195. How he was Treated by Oliver, 198. And by his Mother, ibid. He will not be perverted to Popery, 198, 199. Returns with his Brother King Charles to England, 223. His Death and Character, 224.

Gloucester, William Henry Duke of, Son to Her Royal Highness the Princess Anne, Born, 530. Install'd Knight of the Garter, 723. King William fond of him, 755. His Governor, Preceptor and other Officers, ibid.

Gloucester, Dr. Erampton, Bishop of, suspended for not taking the Oaths to King William and Queen Mary, 551.

Glynne, John, Esq; Charges Twelve Bishops with High Treason at the Lords Bar, 115. One of the 11 Members Impeach'd by the Army, 155. Made Lord Chief Justice of the Upper Bench by Cromwell, 197. His Declaration of Treason in favour of Oliver, 200. For making Cromwell King, ibid. His House Seiz'd and Garrison'd by Colonel Whitby for King Charles II. 214. Made eldest Sergeant to Charles II. 669.

Godfrey, Colonel, goes over to the Prince of Orange, 496.

Godfrey, Sir Edmund Burr, Murder'd, 364. His Murder discover'd, ibid. His Murderers hang'd, 369.

Godfrey, Mr. his Brother, a Merchant of London, kill'd at the Siege of Namur, 695.

Godolphin, William, Esq; Knighted, and sent Ambassador to Spain, 271. Accus'd of High Treason, 366. The Commons Address to have him recall'd, ibid.

Godolphin, Sydney, Esq; made one of the Lords of the Treasury by Charles II. 369. Made Secretary of State, 423. Made a Baron, ibid. And Chamberlain to the Queen, 428. And one of the Commissioners of the Treasury, 453. One of the Lords appointed to Treat with the Prince of Orange, 499. First Commissioner of the Treasury, and one of the Lords Justices of England by King William, 670, 693. And again, 720. First Commissioner again, 791. Again one of the Lords Justices, 821.

Goodman, Dr. Bishop of Gloucester, asserts the Real Presence of Christ in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, in a Sermon before King Charles I. 32. Turns Papist, ibid., 198. His Poverty, ibid.

Goodman, a Player, one of the horrid Assassination Plot to Murder K. William, and bring in the French, 709. Spirited away by Sir John Fenwick's means to prevent his Witnessing against him, 727.

Goodwin, Mr. Thomas, Cromwell's Chaplain, his bold Expotulations with Heaven in his Behalf, 208, 209.

Gorge, Sir Ferdinando, refuses to join the French, and brings off his Ship contrary to order, 6.

Goring, Colonel, Governor of Portsmouth for the Parliament, defects to the King, 127. Routed at Langport by General Fairfax, 145. Condemn'd by the High Court of Justice, and sav'd by the Speaker's Vote, 175.

Gosbels, a famous Tory in Ireland, takes the Castle of Cornet Ormsby in Charles II's Reign, 263.

Govard, Duke of, refuses to Surrender Edinburgk Castle to the Scots Convention, 535, 536. Reduc'd to great Streights and Surrenders at discretion, 538.

Gower, Dr. Vice Chancellor of Cambridge, his fine Speech with the University's Address of Abhorrence of the Association and Exclusion Bill, 422. King Charles II. Answer, ibid.

Grafton, Henry Fitz Roy, Duke of, Steward of the City Apprentices Feast, 401. Made Vice-Admiral, 406. Goes against the Duke of Monmouth and is in Danger, 436. Conducts the Pope's Nuncio in his Audience, 468. Goes over to the Prince of Orange, 497. Order'd by him to take Possession of Tilbury Fort, 502. Kill'd at Cork, 571.

Gramard, Earl of, made Lord Justice of Ireland, 449. He pretends to be Zealous for the Protestant Interest, ibid.

Grants, King William's, to several Lords and others, 771. Return'd, ibid.

Granvill, Sicur de, Plots to Assassinate King William, 625, 651. He is taken and Confesses, 652. He's hang'd, ibid. Put upon it by an Archbishop and a Crown'd Head, ibid.

Granville, Sir Bevil, his Death and Character from the Lord Clarendon, 127.

Granville, Sir John, sent to General Monk by King Charles, 219. Very warily receiv'd, ibid. Carries the King's Letters to General Monk and the Parliament, 221.

Granville, Sir Bevil, his Bravery at Stenkirck, 651.

Granville, Dr. Dean of Durham, refuses the Oath to King William and Queen Mary, 641.

Gray, Ford Lord, Fin'd for a Riot in the City, 408. Accus'd of the Phanatick Plot, a Proclamation against him, 434. Lands with the Duke of Monmouth, 434. Is pardon'd and suspected, 438. Made Earl of Tankerville by King William, 693. Vide Earl of Tankerville.

Gray, Ralph, Esq; made Governor of Barbadoes, 735.

Green hang'd for Sir Edmund Bury Godfrey's Murder, 369.

Gregory, Serjeant, chosen Speaker of the House of Commons by the Lord Russell's Recommendation, 372.

Grievances, drawn up by Charles I's Second Parliament, 15. Forbidden to be enquired into, 16. Complain'd of by the House of Lords, 19, 20, more 37. Complain'd of by Charles I's Third Parliament, 39. Voted in general Particulars, 41. As to Tunnage and Poundage, 46. In Religion, 47, 54. From Ireland, 49. About the Plantations, 83. Complain'd of by Charles I. Fourth Parliament, 96. Many Complain'd of by his Fifth Parliament, call'd the Long Parliament, 97. By Charles II. Parliament about the Growth of Popery, 387.

Griffin, Lord, Proceedings against him, 545.

Grimston Harbottle, Esq; His Speech in Parliament on the Diseases of the State, 95. His severe Speech against Archbishop Laud, 98. Against the Convocation, 103. Another warm one of his against Archbishop Laud, 105. Chosen Speaker of the Parliament, that was call'd by Monk and the Long Parliament, and call'd in the King, 221.

Grotius, Hugo, writes against the Dominion of the English at Sea, in a Book stit'd Mare Liberum, 68.

Grove, Mr. Thomas, severely persecuted by Dr. Ward Bishop of Salisbury, for Non-conformity, 280.

Grove, John, hang'd for the Popish Plot, 369.

Guiscard, Count, surrenders Namur to King William, 699.

Guy, Mr. Henry, sent to the Tower for taking a Bribe of Two Hundred Pounds, 675.

Gwyn, Francis, made Clerk of the Council, 379. His Evidence at the Lord Shaftsbury's Trial, 400. Order'd by the Lords on King James's Abdication to sign their Orders, 504.

Gwyn, Sir Rowland, turn'd out of his Places for reflecting on the Lord Sidney, 645.

II.

Hacker, Coll. Francis, very busy at the Murder of the King, 170, 171.

Hæretico Comburendo, the Writ so call'd, abolish'd by Act of Parliament, 361.

Hague, Congress of, 573.

Hale, Sir Matthew, draws up a Comprehension Bill for Dissenters, 272.

Hall, Dr. Bishop of Exeter, his Vindication of Episcopacy, 93.

Hall, Mr. Timothy, a sorry Divine, made Bishop of Oxford by King James, 491.

Hallifax, George Savil Viscount, (worn of Charles II's Privy-Council, 287. Sent Ambassador to the French King then in Holland, 289. Not well us'd by the Duke of Bucks, his Fellow-Ambassador, ibid. Address'd against by Parliament, 390. Leaves the Duke of Monmouth and Lord Shaftsbury, 406. Falls in with the Duke of York, and is made a Marquis, ibid. President of the Council, 428. His Ironical Saying on King James in the House of Lords, 440. One of the Lords appointed to treat with the Prince of Orange, 490. Opposes the Regency, and is for the Vacancy of the Throne, 510. Speaks warmly for the Vacancy, and puts the Question, Whether the Prince and Princess of Orange shall be declar'd King and Queen, 512. Tenders the Crown to the Prince and Princess of Orange, in the Name of the Parliament, 513. Made Lord Privy-Seal by King William, 515. A Motion against him in Parliament, 533.

Hallifax, Charles Mountague created Lord, 791. Impeach'd by the House of Commons for the Partition Treaty, 802. The Articles of Impeachment against him carried up to the Lords by Mr. Bridges, 814. The Impeachment dismiss'd by the Lords, 820.

Hamburg Fleet taken by the Dutch, 255.

Hamilton, Marquis, made General of Charles II's Troops, sent to the Assistance of Gustavus Adolphus, 58. Accus'd of Treason, but still trusted, 59. How he lost the Honour of being at the Battel of Leipsick, ibid. Sent Commissioner into Scotland upon the breaking out of the Covenant, 88. Unsuccessful with the Fleet against the Scots, 91. Suspected by all Parties, 92. Advances with an Army into England, to release the King, 161. Defeated by Cromwell, 162. Condemn'd by a High Court of Justice, and Beheaded, 175. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Hamilton, Duke of, opposes the Earl of Argyle's Faction, 182. Kill'd at Worcester, 184. Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Hamilton, Duke of, suppresses a Rebellion in Scotland against Charles II. 264. President of the Meeting of the Nobility of Scotland in London to Address the Prince of Orange, 520.

Hamilton, Sir William, sent Agent to Rome in the Reign of Charles I. 79.

Hamilton, Col. Richard, sent by King William with a Letter to Tyrconnel, to require his Submission, 521. Joins with Tyrconnel against the King, ibid. Made Lieutenant-General by King James, 539. Routs the Protestants, ibid. The Garrison of London-derry reproach him with his Treachery, 541. Taken Prisoner at the Battel of the Boyne, 560. The Gentle Rebuke given him by the King, ibid.

Hamilton, Gustavus, Esq; Governor of Iniskilling, routs General Maccarty, and takes him Prisoner, 542.

Hammond, Col. Governor of the Isle of Wight, fetches K. Charles I. from Titchfield-House, and carries him to that Island, 157. The King's Discourse with him, 158.

Hampden, John Esq; His Case about Ship-Money, 85. One of the Parliament-Spies on the King in Scotland, 110. One of the Five Members demanded by the King, 113. He Engages Prince Rupert, and is kill'd, 126. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, 126, 127.

Hampden, Richard Esq; Instrumental in the Revolution, 488. His Speech at the Conference with the Lords about the word Abdicate, 510. He is made a Privy Counsellor by King William, 531. He makes an ill Step in Parliament, ibid. Made Chancellor of the Exchequer, and one of the Lords of the Treasury, 549.

Hampden, John Esq; his Trial and Fine, 414. Condemn'd to dye, but pardon'd, 443. Instrumental in the Revolution, 488. Examined by a Committee of Lords in King William's Reign about the proceedings against the Lord Russell, &c. 546. His Vanity, ibid. His Speech against some of King William's Ministers, ibid. Very busy in Parliament against them, 547.

Hanover, Electress of, visits King William at the Hague, 784. The Protestant Succession thought to be there first concerted, ibid.

Harbord, Mr. sent by Queen Mary to the States, to consult Measures with them on the Defeat of their Fleet, 563.

Harcourt, Marquis de, his Negotiation in Spain against the House of Austria, 756, 757.

Harcourt, William, a Jesuit, Rector of London, hang'd, 380.

Harcourt, Mr. impeaches the Lord Somers at the Bar of the House of Lords, 802. Carries up the Articles of Impeachment against him, 807. Manages the Conference about his Tryal, 813, 815.

Harley, Edward Esq; One of the 11 Members impeach'd by the Army, 155.

Harley, Robert Esq; chosen Speaker of the H. of Commons, 791. His Speech to the King at the Breaking up of the Session, 820. Chosen Speaker again, 827.

Harman, Sir John, his Bravery in the Dutch Wars, 260.

Harrison, Coll. his Insolence when Cromwell Dissolv'd the Rump, 190. Head of the Fifth Monarchists, 206.

Harvey, Mr. Frederick, his Reflections upon Charles II. 407. Committed to Newgate for Treason, ibid.

Hastlerig, Sir Arthur, one of the 5 Members of Parliament Demanded by the King, 113. Wou'd persuade Monk to take the Government on himself, 218.

Hastings, Col. Kill'd in Admiral Russell's Fight with Tourville, 649.

Hastings, Col. Calhien for Undue Practices in the Army, 676.

Haversham, John Lord, his Speech at a Conference about the Impeach'd Lords, 814. Gives Offence to the Commons, ibid., 816. His Answer to their Complaint, 817. Clear'd by the Lords, 820.

Havre de Grace Bombarded by Captain Bemlow, 671.

Hayman, Sir Peter, sent to the Wars in Germany for refusing to Comply with the Loan, 37. Persecuted for his Speeches and Actions as a Parliament-Man, 49.

Heath, Sir Robert, turn'd out from being Lord Chief Justice, without Reason, 70.

Hedges, Sir Charles, made Secretary of State by K. William, 790.

Heidelbergh Taken by the Duke de Lorge, 663. The horrid Cruelties the French Committed there, ibid.

Henderson, Mr. a Scots Divine, his Dispute with Charles I. about Presbytery, 152. His Repentance at his Death, 174.

Henrietta Maria, Queen of England, Marry'd to Charles I. 4. The Match with her Censur'd, ibid. Suspected to do ill Offices between England and France, 26. Made to Walk to Tyburn a-Foot for Penance, 27. She is Enrag'd at the sending away her French Servants, ibid. Importunes the King to Favour Papists, 70. Promotes Popery, 86. Disgusts the Earl of Strafford, 92. Solicites Supplies in Holland for the King, 119. Lands in Yorkshire with them, ibid. Impeach'd of High Treason, 125. Leaves the Kingdom, 138. Her bad Advice to her Son, Charles II. 177. Her Endeavours to get Charles II. profess her own Religion, 188, 189. Puts her youngest Son, the Duke of Gloucester, into the Jesuits College, 195. And wou'd pervert him to Popery, 198, 199. Comes into England after the Restoration, 224. Suppos'd with an Intention to persuade her Son King Charles to Surrender Dunkirk, ibid. Her Death, 273.

Henrietta, Princess, Daughter to Charles I. Born at Exeter, 138.

Henry, Prince, his Jest on his Brother King Charles I. for his Learning, 2.

Herbert, Lord, Son to the Marquis of Worcester, Routed by Sir William Waller, 124.

Herbert, Lord, of Cherbury, goes over to the Prince of Orange, 488.

Herbert, Col. Murder'd by the Irish, 628.

Herbert, Sir Edward, Attorney-General. Charges the 5 Members with High Treason, 113.

Herbert, Sir Edward, Lord Chief-Justice, one of King James's High Commission Court, 454.

Herbert, Admiral, goes over to the Prince of Orange in Holland, 488. Fights the French Fleet at Bruny-Lay, 528. Created Earl of Torrington, 535. See Torrington, Earl of.

Herber increase in England, 173, 201, 206, 713.

Horn, Sir Nathaniel, Sheriff of London. his Saying to the Bishops. Discouraging him about Persecuting Dissenters, 308.

H. C. Daughters, Prince of, his Actions in Catalonia against the Duke of Vendôme, 701.

Howe, Dr. Try'd for a Conspiracy against Cromwell, 207. He is Condemn'd, and Beheaded, ibid. His Character from the Lord Clarendon, ibid.

Heylin, Dr. A Letter of his on King Charles II's not Calling a Convocation with his Second Parliament, 232.

Higgins, Three Brothers, Sons of Sir Thomas Higgins, Charg'd with the Assassination-Plot against King William, 711.

Hill, Hang'd for Sir Edmund Goffey's Murder, 369.

Hide, Sir Nicholas, made Lord Chief Justice of the King's-Bench upon the removal of Sir Randolph Crew, who was dissatisfied with the Loan, 27. His Death and Character, 59.

Hide, Mr. Edward, an Assessor for the reading of the Articles of Impeachment against the Lord Keeper Finch, 98. Has the Thanks of the House of Commons for it, ibid. Knighted.

Hide, Sir Edward, Agent for King Charles II. in Flanders, 180. Parties against him in that King's Court abroad, 190. His Speech when Lord Chancellor, about King Charles's Declaration of Indulgence in Religion, 229. Accus'd by the Earl of Bristol about the Portugal Match, 236. Vindicated as to that and the Surrender of Dunkirk, ibid. His Speech against Dissenting Teachers, ibid. His good Service to the Parliamentary Constitution, 237. See Clarendon, Earl of.

Hide, Mr. Lawrence, order'd by King Charles II's Long Parliament to thank the University of Oxford for their Loyalty to King Charles I. 257. His Negotiation with the Prince of Orange about a French War, 363. Made one of the Commissioners of the Treasury, 369. The Parliament Address to remove him from all Places, and from the King's Presence and Council for ever, 390. Made Viscount, 401. And Earl of Rochester, 423. See Earl of Rochester.

Hobert, Sir Miles, Prosecuted for his Speeches and Actions as a Parliament-Man, 49, 58.

Holland, Earl of, made General of the Horse in the first Expedition against the Scots, 91. He is inglorious, ibid. Challeng'd by the Earl of Newcastle, 92. Sent to Disband the Royal Army in the North, 109. Deserts and Betrays the King, 110. Deserts the Parliament, 127. Deserts the King again, ibid. Condemn'd by the High Court of Justice, and Voted to die by the Speaker's single Voice, 175. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Hollis, Mr. Denzil, Proceeded against for his Speeches and Actions as a Member of Parliament, 48, 49. Glories in his Sufferings, 49. Find 1000 Marks, ibid. Carries up the Charge of High-Treason against Archbishop Laud to the House of Lords, 195. One of the five Members demanded by the King, 113. One of the Eleven Impeach'd by the Army, 155. See Lord Hollis.

Hollis, Denzil Lord, sent Ambassador to France by King Charles II. 258. And Plenipotentiary to Treat of a Peace with the Dutch, 264.

Holloway, Mr. James, Hang'd for the Phantick Plot, 421.

Holms, Sir Robert, Burns and Destroys the Isle of Uly, 261. Lies in wait for the Dutch Smirna Fleet, 284.

Holt, Sir John, of Grays-Inn, Knighted by King James, 444. Made Recorder of London, ibid. Made King James's Serjeant, 452. Turn'd out of all, and why, 468. His Speech at the Conference for the Word Abdicare, 212. Made Lord Chief Justice of England, 528.

Hone, Mr. William, Hang'd for the Phantick Plot, 429.

Hooper, Dr. George, Minister of Lambeth, made Dean of Canterbury by Queen Mary, 642.

Hopton, Sir Ralph, Reads the Long Parliament's Remonstrance about Ireland and the Rebels there, to the King, 112. Made Lord Hopton, and Commands the King's Forces at Cheriton Down, 138. Beaten by Sir William Waller, ibid. His Forces Routed by General Fairfax, 146. He Disbands, 147. His Death abroad, 188.

Hosham, Sir John, Imprison'd for giving Office in Parliament, 96. His Speech to moderate things, 97. Seizes Hull, and refuses to let the King into the Town, 115. That, the first act of Hostility in the Civil War, ibid. Proclaim'd a Traitor by the King, defended by the Parliament, 116. Betrays the Parliament and is beheaded with his Son, 127. His Character from the Lord Clarendon, ibid.

Hough, Dr. Chosen President of Magdalen College, in opposition to King James's Mandate, 476. Depriv'd by King James's Visitors, 479. His bold Carriage, ibid. Turn'd out, 481. Recall'd by King James in a Hight, 491.

Houslow Heath, King James's Camp there, 453.

How, John, Esq; made Vice-Chamberlain to the Queen by King William, 515. Moves in Parliament to Address the King against Evil Counsellors, 531.

Howard, Lord of Eberick, Sits in the House of Commons, tho' a Peer, as a Burgess for Carlisle, 176.

Howard, Lord, Sent Ambassador to Morocco, 273.

Howard, Lord of Eberick, committed to the Tower for writing Fitzharris's Libel, 398. Reconcil'd to the Court by the Dutchess of Perthshire, to go thro' the drudgery of Swearing, 409. A thoroughpact'd Evidence in the Phantick Plot, ibid.

Hubert, Robert, a Frenchman, Hang'd for the Fire of London, 262. His hasty Execution, why so order'd, ibid.

Huddleston, Father, excepted in King Charles II's Declaration against Papists, 302. Attends King Charles as his Priest at at his Death, 429.

Hungford, Mr. John, Expell'd the House of Commons for taking 20 Guineas indirectly, 679.

I.

Iacobites, the Faction against King William. So call'd, 562. Their Plot against Queen Mary and the Government, ibid. Proclamations to Seize the Chief of 'em for Conspiring against the Government, ibid. A Plot of theirs discover'd, 575. They resolve to Treat with the French King, ibid. The Plotters taken up, ibid. Their Plots Charg'd on the Nonjuring Clergy, ibid. Their Memorials to the French King, 600. Maintain a constant Correspondence with the French King, 625. Conspire to Assassinate King William, ibid. And again, 645. Deceive the French King with false News, and are the Occasion of the Loss of his Fleet, 646. Industrious and Implacable in their Plots, 672. Their News-Writer, Dyer, Reprimanded by the Parliament, 673. Mortify'd at the Loss of Namur, 699. Their Horrid Assassination Plot, 709. Fully detected, 710, 711. Enrag'd at the French King for Abandoning King James by the Treaty of Ryswick, 739. An Address against 'em by the Parliament, 760, 761. Their Restless Endeavours against the Government, 793.

Jamaica Taken by the English, 193.

Jamaica's, Duke of Alenquerle made Governor of it, 497. Colonel Breston made Governor of it, 659.

James I. King, His Saying of K. Charles I's Knowledge in Divinity, 3. A Saying of his at his Death, ibid. His Burial, ibid. James II. King of England, Succeeds his Brother K. Charles II. 427. His first Speech to the Council, ibid. Publishes the Strong-Box Papers, to prove that King Charles II. died a Papist, 429. He is Crown'd, 430. His Speech to his Parliament, 431. Rejects the Prince of Orange's offer to joyn against the Duke of Monmouth, 436. His Behaviour to the Duke after he was Taken, 437. Makes an ill use of his Success against him, 438. His Pardon ridiculously Cruel, ibid. His Speech at the meeting of his Parliament after it, 439. He treats them very roughly, ibid. 440. Protects Popish Officers against the Parliament, 440. Cruel Sentences pass on several, 441, 442. Bloody Executions, 438, 442, 443. His Professing himself a Papist surprizes the People, 444. Endeavours to introduce Popery, against the Advice of the Pope and Spanish Ambassador, ibid. Declares he will dispence with the Test Act, and keep in his Popish Officers, 445. His Endeavours to repeal the Test in Scotland, 448. Gives Li-berly of Conscience first there, 449. He Prevaricates with the Earl of Clarendon about the Lieutenantancy of Ireland, 450. Makes Tyrconnell Deputy, ibid. He attempts to bring in Popery and Arbitrary Power in England, 451. Turns out those Judges that will not own his dispensing Power, ibid. Makes Popish Judges, 452, 453. And Popish Lords Privy Counsellors, ibid. More Cruel Sentences, 452. Will not suffer the Clergy to preach against Popery, 454. Sets up a High-Commission-Court, ibid. His Letter to the Bishop of London against Dr. Sharpe, 457. Receives a Nuncio from Rome, and sends an Ambassador thither, 463, 468. Neglected at Rome before and after he was King, 461, 462. Resolves to repeal the Penal Laws and Test, and to dispence with taking any Oaths, 463. His Speech to the Council after Liberty of Conscience, ibid. His Declaration, ibid. Closets Gentlemen to get their consents for the repeal of the Test, 466. Endeavours to get the Prince and Princess of Orange to consent to it, ibid. Revives Martial Laws, 468. Is advis'd to Reign by his Judges and Standing Army, without a Parliament, 469. His Trophies, ibid. He declares his Resolution to have the Test and Penal Laws Repeal'd, 470. His Arts to influence Elections of Parliament-Men, ib. He declares his Queen is with Child, ibid. Not believ'd, 471. The People begin to look towards the Prince and Princess of Orange, and the Princess of Denmark, and he is afraid of 'em, 471. He sends for the Six English Regiments from Holland, ibid. He is in the French Interest, ibid. Will not suffer the French King's Usage of his Protestant Subjects to be complain'd of, 472. Yet is Generous to 'em, ibid. Ireland almost Ruin'd by his Governors, 473. His Arbitrary Proceedings with the Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge, 475. And Magdalen College, 476, 477. Goes in person to Oxford about it, ibid. His rough Speech to the Fellows of Magdalen, 478. Turns 'em out Arbitrarily, 481. Puts out a New Declaration for Liberty of Conscience, ibid. Seven Bishops petition against Reading his Declaration of Liberty of Conscience, 487. He uses 'em Roughly, and Imprisons 'em, ibid. Turns out the Judges that were for Clearing 'em, 486. Turns out his Protestant Officers, and puts in Papists, 487. Neglects the information he receiv'd of the P. of Orange's intended Invasion, 488. Disowns the French Ambassador's Memorial to the States of Holland in his Favour, 489. Believes the Invasion, and endeavours to soften Matters, 489. He gives Notice of the Invasion, and that he had refus'd Foreign Help, ibid. Pretended offers of Service to him, 490. Invites the Bishops to Assist him with their Council, ibid. Promises to do as they would have him, 491. Restores Charters, Magdalen College, &c. ibid. Repents of it, ibid. Is Impolitick, ibid. Examines the Bishops about their Inviting the Prince, 495. Receives an unsatisfactory Answer, ibid. Depends on his Strength, and acts accordingly when the Prince Landed, 496. He is in a great Consternation on the Lord Cornbury's deserting him, 497. Several Lords petition the King to call a free Parliament, ibid. His Answer not lik'd, ibid. His Speech to his Officers when he was going to Salisbury, ibid. Leaves the Administration with persons, most of whom were very Exceptionable, ibid. Left by the Duke of Grafton, the Lord Churchill and others, ibid. By the Prince of Denmark, ibid. He leaves Salisbury with precipitation, ibid. Calls a Parliament, ibid. Advice given him by several Lords Spiritual and Temporal, 499. Appoints several Lords to Treat with the P. of Orange, ibid. Skirmishes between his and the Prince's forces, 498, 499. His Despair, 500. His Letter to the Lord Faversham, to Disband his Army, ibid. He retires, and the Lords Spiritual and Temporal declare for the Prince, ibid. Seiz'd, Affronted, and Robb'd at Faversham, 502. Returns to Whitehall, and invites the Prince to London, 503. Desir'd by the Prince to remove to Hen in Surrey, ibid. His Last Order in Council, and Act of Government in England, ibid. His Conference with the Lords sent by the Prince to desire him to leave

James, King's 24. He returns to Rouen, ibid. Resolves to go to France, ibid. 100. His Letter to St. Germain to the King of France, 59. Another to the Parliament, which they refuse to open, ibid. Voted to have Uden the original Contract, 510. The Parliament's Declaration of the Reason why he Voted the Throne, 517. He is in France, 517. Some Bishops Letter to him against the Prince of Orange, 519. His first Declaration publish'd in England, 555. Calls a Parliament in Ireland, 539. Marches against Leimon-Derry, and is warmly receiv'd by the Garrison, 539. His Speech to the Parliament he held at Dublin, 547. Rejects the Act of Settlement, ibid. And gives his Assent to the Black Act of Attainder, 551. Goes to meet King William on his Landing in Ireland to give him Battel, 558. He loses the Battel of the Bunoy and dies at Dublin, 560. His Speech to the Citizens of Dublin before he left that City to go to France, 561. He returns to France, 565. His Letter to St. John, his Lieutenant General, when he Land'd in France from Ireland, from whence he was driven by General Garde, 630. Writes to several English Lords and Gentlemen to come to St. Germain and see his Queen deliver'd of a Daughter, 645. He prepares to invade England, 646. But loses his Declaration, ibid. The Names of Persons he excepted in his Pardon, ibid. His Letter to the French King, on his Fleet's being beaten by Admiral Ruffell, 649. The French will not trust him with the Knowledge of their Designs upon England, 719. He has an Army provide'd to invade England, ibid. Grants a Commission to Sir George Barkley and others to Attack and Seize the Prince of Orange in his Winter Quarters, 710. Comes Post to Calais to be in a readiness to invade England, 711. Is abandon'd by the French King, 739. Makes a vain attempt to have some relief by the Treaty at Resayck, ibid. His Retirement and Despair, 754. How he behav'd himself while the Lord Portland was Ambassador in France, ibid. His Death after a Second 12 Years Exile, 824, 825.

James, Dr. opposes the Accommodation with Dissenters, 551, 552. Chosen Prolocutor of King William's first Convocation, 552.

Jessier, Sir George, address'd against by Parliament, 388. Made a Judge by King Charles II. 301. Is ruin'd by Col. Sney at his Trial, 412. Made Lord Chief Justice, 416. His Triumph over Charters, 423. His Bloody Assizes, 438. His horrid Cruelty, and brutal Avarice, ibid. Made Lord Chancellor, ibid. 443. His Insolence at Rastor's Trial, 446, 447. One of the High Commission Court, 454. His rude impertinent Discourse to Dr. Turfax of Magdalen-College, 477. and to the 7 Bishops, 483. Taken at Happing in a Seaman's Disguise, 502. In danger of being torn to pieces by the Mob, ibid. Dies miserably in the Tower, ibid. A Bill to take away his Estate and Honour brought into the House of Commons, 544. Excepted out of K. William's Act of indemnity, 557.

Jenkins, Sir Lodowick, made Plenipotentiary for the Treaty of Nimwegen, 317. Secretary of State, 383. Speaks against the Exclusion-Bill, 381. Offends the H. of Commons, and begs Pardon, 397. Relinquishes his Place, 433.

Jenkins, Mr. a Dissenting Minister, dies in Novgorod, 478.

Jenyns, Sir Thomas, his Pun when he visited Magdalen-College, 479. Excepted out of King William's Act of Indemnity, 557.

Jephson, Col. William, first moves in Parliament to make Cromwell King, 200.

Jermyn, Lord, earnest with Charles II. to go to the Baginbun Church at Charenton, when he was in France, 148, 149.

Jermyn, Edward, Lord Viscount Jilliers, made Earl of, 740. And Ambassador in Holland, ibid. Ambassador in France, 754, 755. Secretary of State, 767. One of the Lords Justices of England, 768. King William's Plenipotentiary for the Second Treaty of Partition, 781. Made Lord Chamberlain, 785. A great one of the Lords Justices, taken and imprison'd, 53. A Contention between the English and French, about the Papists Behaviour in the Troubles of England, 178. An Address against them by Charles II. second Parliament, 244. A Declaration and Proclamation against them by Another, 246. Banish'd by another Proclamation, 253, 282. Their Treasonable Practices complain'd of by Charles II. 365. One hang'd for Treason, 369. Several hang'd, 380. How they flatter'd the Earl of Castlemain King James II. Ambassador at Rome, 461. Their Requests of Queen Mary's Conception, 470.

Jones encourag'd by Cromwell, 198.

Lichington, Earl of, forc'd by Cromwell to desert his Army, 177.

Indemnity Act, who were Voted to be left out of it by King William's first Parliament, 547. Act passes, 557. The Names of those excepted out of it, ibid.

Independent Party in Parliament set up against the Presbyterian, 151. The Army (out of it). Too hard for the Presbyterians, ibid. 131. They are the Prevailing Party, 213. They hold an Assembly, and publish their Faith and Discipline, ibid. Richard Cromwell not favorable to them, ibid. Their Cause goes down, 219. They are more opposite to Kingly Government than the Presbyterians, ibid.

Independents, their Address of thanks to King James for Liberty of Conscience, 465.

Ingham, Colonel, Suppresses General Lauder's Insurrection against Monk, and takes him Prisoner, 220.

Johnson, Mr. Samuel, a Minister, Find for writing Julian the Apostate, 414. His Address to the Army, and the cruel Sentence pass upon him for it, 452.

Jones, Colonel, his service at Routon Heath on the Parliament side, 146. Routs the Marquis of Ormond, 176.

Jones, Sir William, Resigns his Attorney-General's place, 379. His Speech upon the Loss of the Dissenters Bill, 396. Writes a Vindication of the Westminster and Oxford Parliaments, 399.

Joyes, Corner, his Impudence towards the King when he took him from Holmbury, 154.

Ireland, Papists very insolent there, 34, 49. Too much Conniv'd at there, 63. State of that Kingdom, 65, 71. Affairs there 93. The Rebellion there, 111. The Rebels pretend a Commission from the Court, ibid. Affairs there, 132, 135, 176, 187, 192. Sends Members to the English Parliament, 193. Affairs there after the Restoration, 232. A Mutiny at Carrick-Fergus, 263. Affairs there, 273, 285, 289. Papists encourag'd there, 384. Lord Clarendon made Lord Lieutenant, 444. Duke of Ormond remov'd, and why, 449. The Papists grow bold, ibid. Protestants disam'd, 450. Tyrconnel made Deputy, ibid. The State of it under his Arbitrary Government, 473. Affairs there after the Revolution, 521. The Parliament Complains of Mismanagement of Affairs there, 521, 533. A State of it under King James and Tyrconnel, 539, 540, 541, 542. The War there continu'd to, 572. The Civil Government settled by King William, ibid. Ballymore and Athlone taken, 526, 627. The Irish beaten at Aghin, 628, 629. Other Affairs there, 641, 693, 700, 722. The Parliament there Sign the Association, 723. Molyneux's Book for the Independency of that Kingdom, Answer'd, 751. Another Parliament there, 764. Grants of Forfeited Estates there resum'd, 771, 772.

Irish, William, a Jesuit, hang'd for the Papish Plot, 369.

Jevon, General, his Death, 177. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, 187.

Jugh Evidence, how manag'd at the Lord Shaftsbury's Trial, 4.

Judges, their Opinion about Ship-Money, 79. Censur'd for it, and for their Resolutions in the Case of Burton and Biffwick, ibid. The same Judges Opinion of Ecclesiastical Courts, 85. Of the Dissolution of the Convocation, 191. They are Impeach'd by Parliament, 191.

Jugos, the King's, a List of them who consented to his Murder, 169, 170. Several of them Try'd and Executed, 221. More taken in Holland, brought over and Executed, 227.

Judges made by the Rump, 176.

Judges, Charles II. their answer to the Justices of Peace Queries about executing Penal Laws against Papists, 370. Voted Unjust, 386. Their Account of Papists in their Circuits, 391. Pick'd to take away Charters, 405. Several turn'd out by King James, for being against his Dispensing Power, 451. Others made that were more complying, ibid. Papish ones made, 452. Who for, and who against the Bishops, 485, 486. King James's Question'd by the House of Lords for their unwarrantable Proceedings, 529. Several made in Ireland, 572.

Jure Divino, Pretended to by the Presbyterians, 143, 151, 152.

Jurier, Resolutions of Parliament against discharging them by the Judges, 383.

Justice, the pretended High Court of, to try the King, and their Acts, 166, to 170. Another to try the Lords Hamilton, Holland, &c. 175. Another set up by Oliver to try Sir Henry Slingsby, &c. 207.

Justices of Peace, their Queries about Laws against Papists, 370. Answer'd by the Judges, ibid. All ones made by King James, 463.

Justices, Lords, of England, made by King William, 693.

Juxon, Dr. Dean of Worcester, made Clerk of the Closet, by Bishop Laud's Recommendation, 65. Made Bishop of London, and Lord High Treasurer, 76. His Attendance on King Charles I. at his Death, 170, 171, 172. Made Bishop of Canterbury, 230. His Death, 248.

K.

Katherine, Princess of Portugal, Marry'd by Proxy to Charles II. at Lisbon, 236. Refuses to be Marry'd by a Protestant Minister, ibid. Arrives at Whitehall, ibid.

Keeling makes a long and confus'd Discovery of the Phanatick Plot, 408.

Kern, Dr. Thomas, made Bishop of Bath and Wells, 429. Not allow'd to attend King Charles at his Death, ibid. one of the Bishops that Petition'd King James and were Imprison'd, 483. Refuses to take the Oaths to King William and Queen Mary; and is Suspend'd, 551.

Kent, Rutben Earl of, made one of the Commissioners of the Great Seal by Parliament, 132.

Kentish Petitioners Committed to Prison, 805.

Keppel, Mr. his Rise, 754. Supplants the Lord Portland in King William's Favour, ibid. Made Earl of Albermarle, ibid. Vide Earl of Albermarle.

Keys, one of the Assassination Plotters hang'd, 718.

Kid, Captain, the Pirate, seiz'd in New England, 773. Hang'd at Execution-Dock, 821.

Killegrew, Thomas, his Saying to King Charles about the Papish Plot, 369.

Killegrew, Henry, Esq; made Admiral by King William, 659.

Kimbolton, Lord, one of the 5 Members of Parliament demanded by King Charles I. 113.

King, one of the Assassination Plotters hang'd, 718.

Kirk of Scotland how contemptible, 193.

Kirk, Colonel, his monstrous Cruelty in the West, 438. Sent to relieve London Derry, but cannot enter the place, 541.

Knighthood impos'd upon all Persons of 40 Pounds a Year, 12, 58.

Knightly, Mr. an Assassination Plotter, pardon'd, 719.

L.

L Almont a Taylor, raises a Rebellion against Charles II. in Scotland, 264. Routed by Duke Hamilton, ibid.

Lamb, Dr. kill'd by the Mob, 45. His bad Character, ibid.

Lambert, Major General, order'd to March towards Scotland, when the Scots began to Mourn, 156. Offended with Cromwell at the Loss of the Government of Ireland, 187. Presents the Petition of the Army to the Rump, when restor'd, 213. His Speech to them on that occasion, 214. Routs Sir George Bask, 215. Grows proud upon it and turns the Rump out of their House again,

AN INDEX to the Third Volume

again, ibid. General Monk writes angrily to him upon it, 216. Sent against Monk, ibid. Leaves his Army, 217. Order'd by the Rump to Disband his Forces upon their second Restoration, ibid. Rifles against Monk, is surpris'd and taken, 221. Excepted out of King Charles II. Act for a general Pardon, 224. He is Try'd, Condemn'd and Repriev'd, 238. Banish'd to France, and lives 30 Years a Prisoner, ibid. Tempted by the French King to betray the Island to him, 262.

Lancashire Plotters against King William condemn'd by Parliament, 674, 675.

Lancaster, Battel of, 661, 662.

Langdale, Sir Stewart, Commands the Left Wing of the King's Army at Naseby, 145. His Defeat by Cromwell occasions the Loss of the Battle, ibid. He endeavours in vain to join the Lord Montrose, and flies to Ireland, 146.

Langborn, Richard, a Lawyer, hang'd for the Popish Plot, 357.

Langport, Battel of, 147.

Lanier, Sir Joh'n, has Edinburgh Castle surrender'd to him by the Duke of Gordon, 538. Kill'd at Stenbirk, 651.

Lansdown, Battel of, 127.

Laud, Dr. Bishop of Sr. David's, order'd to supply the Bishop of Lincoln's Place at the Coronation of Charles I. 12. He is a hearty Friend of Mr. Montagu, prosecuted by the House of Commons, 31. Lies under the Odium of Ambrosianism, and being Popishly Affected, 33. Made Bishop of Bath and Wells, ibid. The Instruction he drew up for the King to give the Archbishops how to behave themselves about the Loan, 33, 34. Made Dean of the Chappel, 34. Reforms Abuses, ibid. Made Bishop of London, 45. Libels against him, and why, 48. Accus'd of Ambrosianism by the Parliament, 52. Is heartily for Dissolving Charles III's Third Parliament, 54. Presents Considerations for Settling Church Discipline to the King, 55. Makes Instructions to the Archbishops, and is Zealous to have 'em Executed, 56. His Great Designs, 60. His Character, 61. His Actions give Offence, ibid. Is the occasion of punishing Mr. Fryme for his Hifrio-Maffix, 62. Brought under greater Odiums by Recommending Sir Francois Mandelank to be Secretary, ibid. He made Archbishop of Canterbury, 63. A Continuation of his Character, ibid. Displeas'd the Scots by a Sermon he Preach'd at Edinburgh, when Bishop of London, ibid. How he promoted the Book of Sports, 66. For Scots Uniformity in Religion, 67. His Proceedings with the French and Dutch Churches, 72. And Factories, ibid. His Account of the Visitation of the Dioceses in his Province, with the King's Notes upon it, 73, 74. Further Rigorous Proceedings of his, 76. Another Account of the Visitation of the Dioceses in his Province, 76, 77. Offends the Scots more, 76. He demands the Visitation of the Universities, and has it, 80. Another Account of the Visitation of the Dioceses of his Province, with the King's Notes upon it, 80, 81, 82. His Justification of himself, as to Innovations, 85, 86. An Utter Enemy to Popery, 86. Another Account of the Visitation of the Dioceses in his Province, 87. His Willdorn, 90. Another Account of the Visitation of the Dioceses in his Province, 90, 91. His Zeal for Episcopacy, 93. His State of his Church, 94. One of the first Movers to the Calling a Parliament, ibid. Fall'n upon in the House of Commons, 98. Voted a Traytor, ibid. His Defence of the Book of Canons, 103. The Fury of the Mob against him, 105, 106. A Charge of High Treason brought against him, ibid. His Speech in his Defence, 106. Sent to the Tower, ibid. Resigns his Chancellorship of Oxford, and is Sequestred from Archbishopial Jurisdiction, 115. His Sufferings, 122, 136. His Speech to the Lords, ibid. 137. His Tryal, Condemnation, Last Speech, and Execution, 143, 142, 143.

Lauderdale, Lord, Imprison'd by Cromwell, Released at the Intercession of the King of Sweden, 100. His Speech to the Parliament in Scotland when he was made Duke, and Lord High-Commissioner there, 275. One of the Cabal that advis'd the Shutting up of the Exchequer, 283. Gets the King's Dispensing Power pass'd into a Law in Scotland, 292. Petition'd against by Parliament, 379. His Death and Character, 4, 5.

Leicester, Count de, his Advice to King James at the Battel of the Boyne, 560. The Duke of Ormonde's House at Kilkenny prefer'd by him, 564. Returns to France, 573.

Law Martial Executed in time of Peace, 4. Voted a Grievance, 41.

Laws Penal against Papists dispens'd with 26.

Laws of England, a Project for Altering them, 181.

Laws Made in Charles I. First Parliament, 12. In his Third Parliament, 44. In his Fifth, 120, 129.

Laws Made in the Reign of Charles II. 224, 235, 237, 251, 259, 263, 271, 278, 283, 281, 282, 283, 292, 304, 312, 301, 377. In the Reign of James II. 433, 435, 436. In the Reign of K. William III. 516, 518, 524, 525, 528, 533, 531, 532, 545, 547, 548, 557, 559, 631, 633, 640, 656, 657, 658, 666, 667, 669, 673, 686, 697, 707, 709, 711, 716, 717, 721, 722, 733, 734, 742, 744, 747, 753, 751, 752, 759, 766, 769, 767, 773, 782, 795, 811, 82, 830.

Langson, Admiral, Declares against the Government of the Committee of Safety, 217. For General Monk, 221. Deserted by Dr. Royner in the Streights, 253. Dies of the Wound he receiv'd at Sole-Bay Fight, 256.

League between the French and Dutch against Spain, 75.

Leeds, Thomas Oxborn, Marquis of Carmarthen, made Duke of, by King William, 670. Upon what Occasion he was Impeach'd by the Commons, 688, 689, 690. His Speech in the House of Lords, and House of Commons, to Defend himself, 689, 690. Another in the Lords House, ibid. Upon his being Impeach'd, 693. Other Speeches of his about it, 691. His single Vote flings out the Bill against Mr. Duncomb, 741. The Impeachment against him Dismiss'd by the Lords, 820.

Legal, Mr. the Messenger, his Account of Robert Ferguson's Treachery from the beginning, 4-9.

Leicester Taken by the King, 145. Retaken by General Balfour, ibid.

Leighon, Dr. his Case and Sufferings, 60.

Leighon, Sir Elis, his Corruption and Treachery, 308, 309.

Leinster, Duke of, Embarks with a Body of Troops aboard the Fleet, 649. Lands them again, 650.

Leitchell William, Esq; Chosen Speaker of Charles III's Fifth Parliament, call'd the Long Parliament, 97. His Character, ibid. Runs away from the Parliament, 155. Brought back again by the Army, 156. His single Voice saves the Lord Goring, and condemns the Earl of Holland, 175. Thrust out of the Chair by Colonel Hannson, 190. Chosen Speaker of Cromwell's First Parliament, 194. Lord Clarendon's Reasons for it, ibid. His Answer to the Army's Petition, when the Rump was Restor'd, 214. Insulted by Col. Dunckley, ibid. 217. Therwood writes to him to return to his Chair again, 217. His Death and Reburial, 242.

Leffes, General, his Policy, 91. Created Earl of Ligon, 111. Matches into England to assist the Parliament, 137. Joins the English Army, Besieges Tork, and beats the King's Forces at Morston-Moor, 137, 138. Takes Newcastle by Storm, ibid. He Besieges Newark, 147. His Letter to the Parliament, upon the King's coming to his Camp, 149. He carries him to Newcastle, ibid. Surpriz'd by Monk, 184.

L'Esperance, Sir Regis, Knighted by King James, 443. Picks Matter out of Mr. Bayle's Paraphrase on the New Testament for his Tryal, 446. Excepted out of K. William's Act of Indemnity, 557.

Letter, Charles I. for a Loan, 11. To the Speaker of the House of Commons about Grievances, 15. His Second to the Speaker in favour of the Duke of Brid, 19. Another of his to the Speaker of the House of Commons, 24. Of Three Bishops to the Duke of Prace, in favour of Mr. Richard Montagu the Bishop, Complain'd of by Parliament, 30. Of the Papists to their Rector at B. C. L. 7. Archbishop Laud's to the Archbishop of Ar. Andrew's, 76. The Lord Sturford's Letter to the King, and the King's to the Parliament, 127. The Assembly of Divines to Foreign Churches, 135. Charles I. to the Lord Cappeper, and another to Prince Charles against Popery and Presbytery, 143, 149. General Leffes's Hypocritical One to the Parliament, upon the King's coming to the Scots Camp, 149. The King's to the City of London, ibid. From the Kirk of Scotland to the Parliament, Lord-Mayor, and Assembly of Divines, in favour of Presbytery, 152. King Charles I. to the Parliament, from the Isle of Wight, 157. Another, 161. Others, 162. To the Prince about the Isle of Wight Treaty, 165. Cromwell's to the Rump, to be Recall'd from Ireland, 178. One of Charles II. to the City, Burnt by the Hands of the Common Hangman, 183. Cromwell's to the Rump, on his Victory at Marston, ibid. Mrs. Anne's to Cromwell, 208. King Charles II. to General Monk, the House of Lords, and House of Commons, 221, 222. To the Speaker of the House of Commons, to pass the Indemnity Act, 231. Dr. Hayler's on King Charles II. not Calling a Convocation with his Second Parliament, 232. Earl of Marlborough to Sir Hugh Pollard, a little before he was Kill'd at Sole-Bay Fight, 256. K. Charles to the Parliament in Scotland, 274. The Scots Parliament's Answer, 276. King Charles I. to the Duke of York, Commanding him not to turn Papist, 273. Archbishop Sheldon's against Private Schools, 294. Colman's to the French King's Confessor, 299, 300. Charles II. to his Brother the Duke of York, to be gone, 369. King James II. to the Parliament of Scotland, to Repeal the Test and Penal Laws against Papists, 448. Mr. Egell's to Mr. Stewart and the Marquis of Abbeville, about the Test and Penal Laws, 466, 467. The Irish Papists to King James in favour of Tyrconnel, 473. Pen's to Dr. Bayly, one of the Fellows of Magdalen, to persuade them to submit to King James's Mandate, 478. The Fellows Answer, ibid. The Prince of Orange's to the English Army, 492. Lord Churchill's to K. James, when he went to the Prince of Orange, 497. The Prince of Denmark's to him on the same Occasion, 498. The Princess Anne's to King James's Queen, when Her Royal Highness left London, and went Northward, 499. King James's to the Lord Trevorsham, to Disband his Army, 500. The Lord Trevorsham to the Prince upon it, 502. King James from St. Germain's to the Privy-Council and Parliament, 509. King William's to the Scots Convention, 535. King James to his General Sheldon, who was driv'n out of London, 630. Admiral Ruffels, and Sir Ralph Delarell's on the Victory over the French Fleet, 648. King James to the French King on that Occasion, 649. Her Royal Highness the Princess Anne to King William, on the Death of Queen Mary her Sister, 652. King William's to Prince Francois, on his admirable Retreat, 694. The Marshal of Willyow's to the Governor of Bress's before he Bombarded it, and the Governor's Answer, 696. King William's to the Elector of Brandenburgh, on the Taking of Namur, 698. And to the Parliament of Scotland, 7. Archbishop Tomlinson's Circular Letter to the Bishops, for the Peace and Honour of the Church, 714, 715. Sir John Burwick's to his Wife, after he was Taken, 727. King William's to the Lord Somers about the Partition-Treaty, 755. Another of L. William's to the Scots Parliament, 761. Archbishop Tomlinson's to the Bishops for promoting Peace and Piety, 776. Another of K. William's to his Scots Parliament, 782. Another, 774, 785. The Earl of Melf, 779. The Earl of Port, 792, 791. King William's to the Elector of Brandenburgh, on his taking on him the Title of King of Prussia, 796. To the Duke of York, when he is to be King of Spain, 811. To the Lord Comes about the Partition-Treaty, 812. The Lord Comes to the King in answer, 1673. The Lord Manchester, King William's Ambassador to the French King, his Letter to Montezel de Torcy, Secretary of State in France, on his being Recall'd, 825. Montezel de Torcy's Letter to the Lord Manchester, ibid. Queen Anne's to the States, to Condone the Death of King William, 834.

Lewis, Sir William, one of the 11 Members Impeach'd by the Army, 155.

Lovellocks for King Charles II. 177.

Loring, Sir Richard, sent to the Tower by Parliament, and why, 771.

Louis XIII. the French King, assist'd by Charles I. against the Rockellers, 6. Seizes the English Ships in France, 27.

Louis XIV. not allow'd to be King of France by Cromwell, 268. Writes his Name after the Protector's, ibid. Pretends to assist the Dutch, but does it faintly, 258. Declares War with Charles II. ibid. Betrays the Dutch, 262. His Invasion of Flanders, and Successes, 270. Comes to Dunkirk to meet the Dutch of Orleans at her Return from England, 278. Enters into an Alliance against the Dutch, 279. A Close One with King Charles, ibid. His Intrigue with King Charles's Ministers, 284. Declares War with Holland, 287. He Over-runs Holland, 288. His Insuperiourness upon it, 289. Further Successes in Flanders, 314, 316. Persecutes his Protestant Subjects, 472. Offers King James 30000 Men, 488. King William's Declaration of War with him, upon the Parliament's Address for it, 527. The Grand Alliance form'd by William against him at the Congress at the Hague, 573. The Terms the Princes resolv'd to bring him to, 574. Monsieur deliver'd to him by the Burghers, ibid. Takes Namur in Person, 650. His Disdainful Saying of Admiral Ruffell's Victory over Tourville, ibid. His Designs upon Brabant broken by King William, 661. Weary of the War, tho' fortunate, 664. Why dispos'd to a Peace, 720. He sends his Minister to Propose it first, ibid. Makes Peace with Sword in Hand, 737. Endeavours to set the Prince of Conti on the Throne of Poland, ibid. Makes the Partition-Treaty, and at the same time Intrigues with Spain against it, 756. Prepares for War, 757. His Force and Fraud, 790. His Intrigues to Secure the Spanish Monarchy for his Grandson the Duke of Anjou, 801. His Letter to the States, when he Recall'd his Ambassador, 822. Abhor'd by the English for Owning the pretended Prince of Wales, 824. He Owns him as King of England, Scotland, and Ireland, 825. The Grand Alliance Concluded against him by King William and his Confederates, 826.

Libels publish'd against Archbishop Land, and others, 48. Another reflecting on the Government, 57. Against Oliver and his Government, 194, 195, 197, 205. Proclamation against them by Queen Mary, 653.

Liberty and Property, Resolutions of the Commons about them, 39, 40. Conference with the Lords on the same Subject, ibid.

Liberty of Conscience, put forth in a Declaration by Cromwell, 192. By King James II. in Scotland first, 448. How receiv'd there, 463. King's Declaration for it in England, ibid. 454. A New Declaration for it, 481.

Lilburn, Col. defeats the Earl of Derby, who was to join Charles II. 183.

Limerick, besieg'd by King William, 564. Besieg'd by General Ginckle, 629. Takes the Town, 630.

Lincoln, John Williams Lord Bishop of, preaches King James III's Funeral Sermon, 3. Reprov'd by the Duke of Bucks, and his Answer, 12. He is in Disgrace, ibid. Is forbidden to attend the King's Coronation, ibid. Has no Writ of Summons to Parliament, 13. Proceedings upon it, 14. Prosecuted in the Star-Chamber, for speaking against the Loan, 28. Is Popular, and hardly us'd by the Court, 37. Suspended, Fin'd, and Imprison'd, 85. Advises the Bishops, when they were out by Parliament, to Protest, and draws up their Protestation, 114. Made Archbishop of Tork, ibid. See Tork, Archbishop of.

Lincoln, Bishop of, his poor Endeavours to get his Clergy Address'd to King James, 521.

Lincolns-Inn, Benchers, reprimanded by the Privy Council, for opposing the Loan, 28

Lindsay, Earl of, Sails to the Relief of Roccell, but cannot do any thing to purpose, 46. Sent with a Squadron of Ships to scour the Seas, 75. General of the King's Forces at Edge-Hill, 117. Is kill'd there, ibid. His Character from the Lord Clarendon, ibid.

Lisle, Sir George, Shot to death at Colchester by Order of the Parliament, 163. Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Lisle, Mr. made Commissioner of the Great Seal by Parliament, 176.

Lisle, Mrs. Alida his Wife, beheaded, 438. Her Attainder revers'd, 530.

Litchfield, Taken by the Lord Brook by Force from the King's Forces, 118.

Litchfield, Bertius Stuart Earl of, kill'd at Roston in the King's Army, 146.

Litchfield, Edward Henry Lee Earl of, His Regiment refuse to consent to the Taking off the Penal Laws and Test, 487. King James's Saying to them, ibid.

Littleton, Sir Edward, made Lord Keeper in the room of Sir John Finch, who fled beyond Sea, 98. Retires with the Great Seal to the King at Tork, 116.

Littleton, Sir Thomas, chosen Speaker of the House of Commons, 758.

Litwargy, a Vote to review it, pass'd in the Negative, 549. Commissioners appointed by King William for that purpose, 551.

Lloyd, William, a Popish Priest, hang'd at Cardiffe, 380.

Loam, Money rais'd by it by Charles I. 10. An ill Project, 11. Requir'd again, 26. A new Declaration for it, and Instructions to the Commissioners that were to raise it, 27. The Methods taken to levy it, render it the more odious, ibid. Promoted by the Papists, 28. The Court Bishops and some of the Clergy too busy in it, ibid. A large voluntary one to Charles I. 96.

Lofus, Lord, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, his Quarrel with the Earl of Stratford, 93.

London, Lord Mayor and Aldermen find 6000 l. for the Mob's killing Dr. Lamb, 45. 62. City of, Petition against Ship-Money, 70. Will not yield to it, 79. Their dutiful Reception of King Charles at his Return from Scotland, 111, 112. They Petition the King to return to the Parliament, 118. They join with the Parliament, ibid. With the Army and Rump, 176. Against the Abolishing Tithes, 192. They are for Oliver, 195, 205. They offend the Rump, and are chastiz'd by Monk, 218. They join with Monk to restore the secluded Members, ibid. Lend King Charles II. Money, and are thank'd for it by Parliament, 251. Plague in the City, 256. The Great Fire, 262. Disturbances at the Election of Sheriffs there, 404, 405. The Charter taken away, ibid. 408. Citizens condemn'd for a Riot, ibid. The Lord-Mayor gives up their Charter by Consent of the Common Council, ibid. The Charter restor'd by King James in a Frigate, 491. Lend the Prince of Orange 200000 l. 57. Their good Address to him when King, 531. Their Loyal and Brave Address to Queen Mary after the Murther at Sea under the Earl of Torrington, 562. Their Loyal Address to King William, on the French King's owning the pretended Prince of Wales to be King of England, 825. Their Instructions to the Members they chose for King William's last Parliament, 826.

Lonaon, Dr Henry Compton Bishop of, His Prudence in Charles II's Reign, 393. Writes to Foreign Protestant Divines about the Church of England, ibid. King James's Letter to him against Dr. Sherp, 457. His Answer to the Secretary, ibid. Cited to appear before the High-Commission-Court, ibid. His Trial and Suspension, 457, 458, 459, 460. Ill us'd by the Commissioners, 460. Conveys the Princess Anne to Nottingham, 499. Zealous for the Revolution, 510, 517. His Speech to King William at the Head of his Clergy, 521. Chosen by King William to Crown him and his Queen, 524. Ill treated by the Convention, 597.

Londonderry, like to be betray'd to King James by Lunede the Governor, 539. The Inhabitants chose Mr. Walker, a Minister, to be their Governor, ibid. The ill Condition of the City for Defence, ibid. The great Streights to which the Garrison was reduc'd, 541. Their undaunted Resolution, ibid.

Reliev'd when they were at the last Extremity, 542. The Siege rais'd, ibid.

Lonsdale, John Lowther Lord Viscount, made Lord Privy Seal, and one of the Lords Justices of England, 768; again 784.

Long, Walter Esq; prosecuted for his Speeches and Actions as a Parliament-Man, 49. Glories in his Sufferings, ibid. One of the 11 Members impeach'd by the Army, 155.

Long, Sir Lisbon, chosen Speaker of Richard Cromwell's Parliament, 212. Dies soon after, ibid.

Lord's-Day, Disputes about the Observati-on of it, 62. Book of Sports upon it publish'd, 66. The ill effects of it, ibid. Burnt by Order of Parliament by the hands of the Common Hangman, 193. An Act for the Religious Observing that day, 361.

Lorge, Duke De, takes Heidelberg, and opposes Prince Lewis of Baden on the Rhine, 662, 663.

Love, Mr. Christopher, preaches a Seditious Sermon at the Treaty of Uxbridge, 140. His Plot against the Rump, 187. He is beheaded, 188. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Lovelace, Lord, taken Prisoner as he was going to the Prince of Orange, 496, 497. Made Captain of the Band of Pensioners by King William, 515.

Lowick, Major, one of the Assassination Plotters, hang'd, 719.

Lucas, Sir Charles, Lieutenant General to the Earl of Newcastle, taken Prisoner at the Battle of Marston-Moor, 138. Shot to Death at Colchester, 162. The King weeps for him, ibid. Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Lucas, Lord, made Governor of the Tower by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal who declar'd for the Prince of Orange, 501.

Ludlow, Colonel, one of King Charles's Judges, comes into England, 544. A Proclamation against him when he had made his Escape, ibid. He retires unto Switzerland and writes his Memoirs, ibid.

Lunede, Colonel, Governor of London-Derby, Address'd against by the Parliament, 533. His ill Conduct, 539. Flies from Ireland in Disguise, ibid. Taken in Scotland, and sent to London, ibid.

Lunsford, Colonel, made Lieutenant of the Tower, 112. Oppos'd by the House of Commons, ibid. And the Populace, ibid.

Lunt his Negotiations between King James and the Jacobites, 645.

Luttrell, Governor of Dublin, his severe Order against the Protestants, 474, 541.

Luxembourg, Duke of, Lofes Narden while he lay with an Army to relieve it, 297. The Prince of Orange again too hard for him, 307. His Bravado at the Siege of Mons, 363. Avoids coming to a Battle with King William, 625. Attacks the Rear of the Confederate Army, ibid. Covers the Siege of Namur while the French King took it, 650. Repulses the Confederates at Stenkirk, 651. Takes Huy, and gains the Battle of Landau, 660, 661.

Luzancy, Mr. forc'd by Father St. Germaine to renounce the Protestant Religion to which he had been Converted in England, 307.

M.

Maccarty, General, routed and taken Prisoner by Colonel Hamilton Governor of Ipswich, 542.

Mackay, General, sent by King William with Forces into Scotland, 536. Made General by the Scott Convention, ibid. Fights Dundee and is forc'd to Retreat, 538. Compleats the Reduction of the Highlands, 626. His Bravery at Abhorne, ibid. His Advice and Courage at the Battle of Abhorne, 627, 628. Takes Fort Inveron at Limerick, and gives his Name to it, 629. Kill'd at Stenkirk, 651.

Macklin, Sir John, Surrenders the Isle of Mull to King William and Queen Mary, 609.

Mackph Jon, Sir Encas, made Governor of the Lowland Islands, 487.

Mackworth, Sir Humphrey, Knighted for his Loyal Speech to Charles II. when Treasurer of the Temple, 406. His Speech to King James II to thank him for taking the Customs, Customs without staying for an Act of Parliament, 27.

Maclefeld, Earl of, Retires to Holland to the Prince of Orange, 488.

Maclefeld, Lady, her Irregular Life, 742. Divorc'd from the Earl by Act of Parliament, ibid.

Maftricht, Siege of, Rais'd by the Prince of Orange, 311.

Maffey, Count de, Ambassador from Savooy, his Memorial about the Dutcheffs of Savooy's Succession, 394.

Magdalen College, an Account of the Troubles there in King James's Reign, 475 to 480. Restor'd by him in a Fight, 491.

Maintenon, Madam de, her Authority in the French Court, 792.

Mancheſter, Earl of, Joins the Scots Army, 137. Commands the Left Wing of the Parliament's Army at Mansſon-Moor, 138. Takes several Castles from the King, ibid. Very instrumental in gaining the Battel of Newbury, 139. Lays down his Commission, 144. Runs away from the Parliament, when he was Speaker of the House of Lords, 155. Brought back by the Army, 156.

Mancheſter, Earl of, attends King William to Ireland, 558. The King's Ambassador in France, his Audience of the French King on the Death of the King of Spain, 709. His Letter to Monsieur de Torcy, on his being Recall'd, when the French King Own'd the pretended Prince of Wales to be King of England, &c. 825. Made Secretary of State, 827.

Manning, Mr. a Follower of Charles II's Court in his Exile, betrays his Councils, 195.

Manton, Dr. Imprison'd in the Gate-Houſe for Preaching, 281.

Manwaring, Dr. Roger. Preaches 2 Sermons, to shew that the King's Will to Impose Taxes without Consent of Parliament, obliges the People on pain of Damnation, 28. He is Censur'd in Parliament, but Preferr'd, ibid. Declaration of the Lords and Commons against him, 51. His Dissembling Submission, 52. Proclamation against his Sermons, ibid. Made Bishop of St. David's, 76.

Marchmont, Patrick, Earl of, holds a Parliament in Scotland for King William, 761. 784.

Marlborough taken from the Parliament by the Lord Digby, 118.

Marlborough, James, Earl of, kill'd at Soleſay Fight, 256. His Letter to Sir Hugh Pollard just before the Battel, ibid.

Marlborough, John Lord Churchill, made Earl of, by King William, 524. Sent General to Reduce Cork, &c. 571. His Dispute with the Duke of Wirttemberg, ibid. His Successes, 571. 572. King William's Saying of him, ibid. Sent to Flanders by the King, 625. Made Governor to the Duke of Gloucester, and Privy-Counsellor, 755. One of the Lords Justices, ibid. And again, 768. And again, 784. Made General of the Foot, and Commander in Chief of the English Forces in Holland by King William, 821. His Ambassador Extraordinary, and Plenipotentiary at the Hague, ibid.

Marsaglia, Battel of, 663.

Marillon-Moor, Battel of, 138.

Martyn, Sir Henry, Judge of the Admiralty, his Complaint against the Judges of the King's-Bench, 58.

Marvel, Mr. Andrew, his Book of the Growth of Popery, 361.

Mary de Medicis, Queen-Mother of France, Visits the Court of England, but is not Welcome to the Englsh, 90.

Mary, Princess of Nodona, Wife to James Duke of York, the Parliament against his Marrying her, 296. Crown'd, 430. Her Furious Councils for Popery, 450. The Pope's Nuncio a Favourite of hers, 458. The Report of her being with Child not much Credited, 470. She makes Preparations for a Prince of Wales, 484. The Truth of her being with Child reasonably Suspected, ibid. She pretends to be Deliver'd, ibid. She flies to France in a Disguise, 500. Is said to be Deliver'd of a Daughter, 645.

Mary, Princess, Daughter to the Duke of York, Marry'd to the Prince of Orange, 315. Proclaim'd Queen, 515. Made Regent in King William's Absence, 557. Her Wife Administration, 561, 562. Puts out a Proclamation against Papists and Jacobites, 625. Her Letter to the Middlsex Justices about the Reformation of Manners, 640. She Encourages that Society, ibid. Her prudent Care against K. James's Intended Invasion, 646, 647. Her Vigilance, 672. Falls Sick of the Small-Pox, 673. Archbilhop Tunison's large Account of her Death, ibid, 674. Her Magnificent Funeral, 682, 683. Archbilhop Tunison's Character of her in her Funeral-Sermon, 683, 684.

Masque, one made by the Inns of Court, to Entertain the King and Queen, 65.

Maffey, Major-General, one of the Eleven Members Impeach'd by the Army, 155. Joins with Charles II. 182.

Maurice, Prince, with the King's Forces fights the Parliament's under Sir William Waller at Lansdown, 127. Retires to France, 150.

Maynard, Sir John, one of the Eleven Members Impeach'd by the Army, 155. Imprison'd for pleading a Cause against Cromwell, 197. Made one of the Commissioners of the Great Seal by King William, 515.

Mazarine, Cardinal, against the Restoration of Charles II. 177, 195. Writes a flattering Letter to Cromwell, 208. His Final Answer to the Marquis of Ormond about Assisting King Charles, 219. Uses that King ill at the Pyrenean Treaty, ibid. His Compliments to Mr. Lockhart the English Ambassador there from the Rump, ibid. Advises the Spaniards not to Assist King Charles, 220.

Meath, Bishop of, Speaks in King James's Parliament in Ireland against Repealing the Act of Settlement, 540. Intercedes with King James for the Protestants in the North, 541.

Melfort, Earl of, his Letter to the Lord Porth about King James's Affairs, 792. Despis'd by the Parliament, 793.

Memorial of the Church of England presented to the Prince of Orange in Holland, 487.

Messages from the King to the Parliament, after he was driv'n from London. One when he Rejected the Militia-Bill, 115. And from the Parliament to the King, ibid, 116, 117, 118. They grow Rare and Sharp, ibid. About a Treaty, 118, 119. The King's to Renew a Treaty, 124. Rejected by the House, ibid, 139. The King's to the Parliament after he was in the Scots Camp, 149. The Parliament's Civil Ones to the King, 155, 156.

Metuain, John, Esq; his Speech in Parliament for Sir John Fenwick's Bill, 728, 729, 730. Made Lord Chancellor of Ireland, 732.

Middlsex Justices pray King James to Exercise his Dispensing Power, 463.

Middleton, Earl, Zealous for the Restoration of Episcopacy in Scotland, 254. Made a Privy-Councillor and Secretary of State in England by Charles II. 423. Out-law'd in Scotland, 702.

Middleton, Major-General, Commander of Charles II's Forces in Scotland, Defeated by General Monk, 195.

Mildmay, Sir Henry, his Estate Confiscated, and himself drawn with a Halter about his Neck from the Tower to Tyburn, and why, 232.

Militia Seiz'd by the Parliament, 113. The King offers to put it into Certain Persons Hands, 147. The sole Right declar'd to be in the King, 237.

Millenour, Le Chevalier de, a Domestick of the Duke of Bavaria, betrays King William's Councils, 651. Hang'd on a Tree in the Camp, ibid.

Minmus, Sir Christopher, Vice-Admiral of the Blue, Scowres the Channel, 258. The Compliment paid him by General Wrangle, when he lay off the Elbe, ibid.

Miremount, Marquis of, an Officer in King James's Army, Declares for the Prince of Orange, 500.

Mobb, or Rabble encourag'd by the Long Parliament, 105. Their Fury against Archbilhop Land, ibid. They side with the Parliament against Colonel Lunsford, Lieutenant of the Tower, 112. Their Clamour against the Bishops, ibid.

Mobum, Charles Lord, try'd for the Murder of Mountford the Player, 660. Acquitted by a great Majority, ibid. Try'd for that of Richard Coor, Esq; 767. Acquitted with Honour, ibid. The Earl of Maclefeld's Legacy to him, 827.

Molineux, William, Esq; His Book call'd the Case of Ireland, &c. censur'd by Parliament, 751.

Monarchieſts, Esqhs. Their Rise and Plot against Cromwell, 226.

Monachy, Abolish'd by the Rump, 175. Those very Men plead for it in the Case of Cromwell afterwards, 232.

Monk, Mr. Nicholas, a Minister, sent to engage his Brother General Monk in the King's Interest, 215. Persuades him to march into England, 216. Sent by the General to animate the Rump against the Officers of the Army, ibid.

Monk, General commands the Rump's Army in Scotland against King Charles II. 182. His Actions there, 184. Admiral in the first Dutch Wars, 192. Defeats Major-General Middlton and King Charles's II's Forces, 195. Writes to Fletcher and Lambert about their turning out the Rump, 215. Addresses the Parliament for a Commonwealth, ibid. The Officers in England afraid of him, 216. Escapes a Plot to seize him in Scotland, ibid. Seizes Berwick, and models his Army, ibid. His Speech to them to defend the Rump, ibid. What he said of his designs to Mr. Charges, ibid. The Lord Fitzfax sends to him, ibid. Receives Instructions and Promises of Assistance from Ireland and the Fleet, ibid. Thank'd by the Rump when restor'd again, 217. Enters England, ibid. Met by the Parliament and City Commissioners, ibid. Several Counties address him, ibid. Sir Philip Warwick's Character of him, ibid. Writes to the Rump to order all the Soldiers out of London, to make room for his, ibid. Comes to Town, Goes to the House and speaks to the Rump, ibid. Chastises the City, and sends to the Rump to rise, 218. Is offended that he is not of the Government of Persons nam'd by them to govern the Army, ibid. Restores the Secluded Members, ibid. Endeavours us'd to persuade him to take the Government on himself, ibid. The French Ambassador tempts him to do it, ibid. His Answer to all that motion'd it to him, ibid. His wary Reception of Sir John Granville, sent to him by the King, 219. His Answer to the King's Message, ibid. Made Captain-General of all the King's Forces, 221. Waits upon the King at his landing at Dover, and how receiv'd by Him, 223. Made one of His Privy-Council, and Duke of Albemarle, 224. See Albemarle, George Duke of.

Monmouth, James Duke of, made Captain of King Charles II's Life-Guard of Horse, 272. His Birth and Breeding, 273. In great Favour with King Charles his Father, ibid. Marries the Earl of Bucklugh's Daughter, 280. Sent General of the Forces in the French King's Service, and his Reception abroad, ibid. Chosen Chancellor of Cambridge, 300. His Bravery at Mons, 363. Supersedes the Scots Conventiclers, 378. Grows extremely popular, ibid. A Report that the King was marry'd to his Mother, ibid. Publickly deny'd by his Father Charles II. ibid. Retires to Holland, ibid. Returns and is joyfully receiv'd, ibid. Is disgrac'd, 404. His Character, ibid. Ill us'd by the University of Cambridge, ibid. Accus'd of the Phantick Plot, and a Proclamation against him, 409. His Troubles before, ibid. He surrenders himself, 415. His own Account of his Private Correspondence with the King, ibid. Falls under his Displeasure again, and why, ibid. King Charles inclin'd to recall him, but fatally prevented, 433. Against invading England, 434. Puth'd on by others, ibid. Lands at Lime, and publishes his Declaration, ibid. Receiv'd at Taunton with Joy, 436. Is proclaim'd King, and loses his Interest by it, ibid. His False-Step, ibid.

...rested and taken. His Conference with the King, 437. He is beheaded, 438.

Monmouth, Charles Viscount created Earl of, 524. Is Colonel of the Royal Regiment rais'd by the City, 548.

Monopoly, One of Soapmaking in the Reign of Charles I. 59.

Mons deliver'd to the French King by the Burglers, 574.

Montgomery, Lord, in a Plot to bring in the French, 759.

Montjoy, Lord, his Cowardice at the Isle of Rhé, 35.

Montjoy, Lord, sent to France by Tyrconel, to invite King James to Ireland, 539. Imprison'd in the Bastile, being a Protestant, ibid.

Montrose, Earl of, leads the Van of the Scots Army into England against the K. 96. Said to be the Occasion of breaking off the Uxbridge Treaty, 110. Hated and persecuted by the S. ors, 177. Is betray'd to them, 178. His Bold Defence, ibid. He is barbarously Executed, 179. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid. His Death resent'd by Charles II. 179.

Mordant, John, Esq; try'd for a Conspiracy against Cromwell, and acquitted, 207.

Mordant, Charles Viscount, goes over to the Prince of Orange, 488. Sworn of King William's Privy-Council, 515. Made Gentleman of the Bed-Chamber, and one of the Lords of the Treasury, 115. Created Earl of Monmouth, 524.

Moreson, Bishop, sent to the Tower for Christening a Child after the Church of England Way, 147.

Morgan, General, joins General Monk in Scotland, and declares he will follow his Fortunes, 216.

Morgan, Sir Charles, sent with a Body of Troops to join the King of Denmark against the Emperor, 26. Surrenders Scouts on the Elbe to the Imperialists, 45.

Morland, Sir Samuel, tries his Water-Engine before Charles II. 421. Highly rewarded by him, ibid.

Morley, Dr. Bishop of Winchester, his Correspondence with Mr. Laxter for a Union, 297, 298. Not sincere, ibid.

Morris, Mr. William, introduces Sir John Granville to General Monk, 219.

Mountague, Ralph Lord, Created Earl of, 524.

Mountague, Mr. Richard, a Divine complain'd of by Parliament, for favouring and promoting Arminianism, 28. The King's Message to the House in his Defence, ibid. Three Bishops write a Letter to the Duke of Bucks in his Favour, 28. His Prosecution, and the Articles Exhibited by the Commons against him, 30. Many Answers to his Book, ibid. He is prefer'd to the See of Chichester, 53. A Mock Condemnation of his Book Appello Casarem, ibid.

Mountague, Admiral, gains the Fleet over to Monk's Party, 221. Convoys King Charles II. over at the Restoration, 223. Made Earl of Sandwich, 224. See Sandwich, Earl of.

Mountague, Mr. Ralph, sent Ambassador to France, 273. Delivers Two Letters of the Lord Dunby's to the Commons, upon which that Lord is Impeach'd, 368. Created Earl of Mountague, 524.

Mountague, Charles, Esq; his Argument at a Conference with the Lords upon the Bill of Trials of High Treason, 633. Made one of the Lords of the Treasury, 641. Chancellor of the Exchequer, 670. His Speech about the Coin, 705. Very instrumental in regulating it, 705, 706. His Service towards retrieving Credit, 725, 726, 727. Voted by the House of Commons to deserve his Majesty's Favour, 741. Protects the New East-India Company, 745. Made one of the Lords Justices of England, 755. Again, 768. Made Lord Hullifax, 791. The preamble of his Patent, ibid. See Hullifax, Lord.

Mountford the Player kill'd, 660.

Mulgrave, Edmund Shiffild Earl of, is one of Charles's House of Lords, 204.

Mulgrave, John, Earl of, Elected Knight of the Garter, 300. Made Governor of Hull by Charles II. 379. Commands the Forces that go to Tangier, 391. Made

Lord Chamberlain by King James, 443. Sent from King James with a Compliment to the Prince of Orange, 503. A long Speech of his upon the Bill for Free and Impartial Proceedings in Parliament, 655, 656. Made Marquis of Normanby by King William, 670.

Munday, Black, what day to call'd, and why, 360.

Mundy, Captain, retakes the Island of St. Helena from the Dutch, 296. Knighted by King Charles, ibid.

Munson, William Lord, degraded, his Estate Confiscated, and himself drawn in a Sledge, with a Halter about his Neck from the Tower to Tyburn, for being concern'd in the Death of Charles I. 232.

Munster, Bishop of, hir'd by Charles II. falls upon the Dutch, 258. Takes several Towns, ibid. Makes Peace with them, and Deferts King Charles, 259.

Murray, Earl of, King James's Commissioner in Scotland, his Speech to the Parliament to repeal the Test and Penal Laws, 448.

Murray, Mr. Thomas, King Charles I. Tutor, inclin'd to Presbytery, 2.

Musgrove, Cesar of, Comes into England to see King William, 140.

N

NAmur, taken by the French, 650. The Siege of it by K. William, 694. The numerous Garrison, Condition of the Place, and Progress of the Siege, ibid. 695. The Town surrender'd, ibid. The Siege of the Castle continu'd, 695, 696. A Parley, but comes to nothing, 697. A General Assault, ibid. 698. Great Loss, ibid. The Treaty, and Surrender of the Garrison, ibid. 699.

Narborough, Sir John, his Actions against the Pirates of Tripoli, 306. Forces them to a Peace, ibid.

Narden, taken by the Prince of Orange in fight of Luxembourg's Army, 297.

Nasby, Battel of, 145.

Naylor, James the Quaker, his Blasphemies and Punishment, 201.

Nesfchastel, Disputes about that Dutchy, 768.

Newark, besieg'd by the Scots, 147. Surrender'd by the Lord Bellasis, when the King came to the Scots Camp, 149.

Newburgh, Prince of, visits King Charles II. 506. Made Doctor of Laws at Oxford, ibid.

Newbury, first Battel of, 128. Second, 139.

Newcastle, William Cavendish Earl of, challenges the Earl of Holland, 92. Is disgust-ed, ibid. Made Governor of Hull by the King, but is not admitted by Sir John Hotham, 115. His Loyalty, 118. Made General in the North for the King, ibid. His Actions, ibid. His Endeavours to hinder the Scots Army joining the Parliament's, 137. He leaves the Kingdom after the Defeat at Marston-Moor, 138.

Newcastle, Town, taken by storm by the Parliament Army, 138. The King carry'd thither by General Lefley and the Scots, 149.

Newcastle, John Earl of Clare made Duke of, 670.

New England, How the People there came to cast off their Subjection to the Church of Old England, 83. Sir Edmund Andros made Governor, 641.

Newport, Lord, imprison'd by Cromwell for High Treason, 198. Made Earl of Bradford, 670.

Nicholl, Anthony Esq; one of the 11 Members impeach'd by the Army, 155.

Nineguen, Treaty of, begins, 307. Slow Progress of it, 310. In Suspence, 314. Manag'd with Artifice and Insolence by the French, 363.

Noblemen created, 224, 238, 296, 378, 379, 391, 401, 406, 416, 423, 443, 470, 524, 528, 535, 548, 556, 571, 640, 641, 659, 661, 670, 693, 713, 720, 735, 740, 754, 755.

Norfolk, County of, thanks King Charles II. for recalling the Duke of Tork from Flanders, 382.

Norfolk, Duke of, his Tryal about his Dutchess's Adultery, 668. His Case, and Arguments for passing the Bill of Divorce, 778, 779.

Normanby, John Earl of Mulgrave made Marquis of by King William, 670. Sworn of his Majesty's Privy Council, ibid.

Norris, William Esq; sent Ambassador to the Great Mogul by King William, 761.

North, Sir Francis, made Lord Keeper, 406. An unjust Decree of his, 428.

North, Mr. Dudley, made Sheriff in opposition to Mr. Papillion and Dubois, 405. Made a Baron, 416.

Northampton, Earl of, defeated and slain near Stafford, 119. His Character from the Lord Clarendon, ibid.

Northumberland, Algermoon Piercy Earl of, sent with a Fleet to Scour the Sea, 78. Disperses the Dutch Fishers, ibid. Made General of the Army in the Second Expedition against the Scots, 94.

Northumberland, Duke of, declares for the Prince of Orange, 500.

Norwich, Dr. Lloyd Bishop of, suspended for refusing to take the Oaths to King William and Queen Mary, 551.

Nottingham, Earl of, One of the Lords whom King James appointed to treat with the Prince of Orange, 499. Is for a Regency, at the Debate of the Vacancy of the Throne, 509. His Speech at the Conference against the Word Abdicate, 510. Made a Privy Councillor, and Secretary of State by King William, 515. His Difference with Admiral Ruffel, 654. The Parliament seem to make a Vote upon it, 655.

Noy, Mr. projects Ship-Money, 69. His Death and Character, 70.

Nugent, Son of an Irish Rebel, made Lord Chief Justice there by King James, 473. Brings in a Bill in King James's Parliament in Ireland, to repeal the Act of Settlement, 540.

O

OAtt, Dr. Titus, discovers the Popish Plot, 363. Complains of Judge Scroggs, 379. Fin'd in 100000 l. Damages to the Duke of Tork; and why, 422. His Servants convicted, ibid. The Cruel Sentence pass'd upon him in K. James's Reign, 441. Debates in the House of Lords about reverting the Judgment against him, 530. A Conference about him occasions great Heats, ibid. He is pardon'd by King William, and has a Pension, ibid.

Obedience, Passive, High Notions of it gave great Advantage to the Papists, 381. Carry'd higher than Law or Reason by some Churchmen, 419, 478.

O Farrell, Col. delivers up Deynse and the Garrison to the French, without firing a Gun, 695.

Opdam, Admiral of the Dutch Fleet, blown up at Solebay Fight, 256.

Orquendo, Don Antonio de, Admiral of the Spanish Fleet, beaten in the Downs by the Dutch, 93. His Design suppos'd to be to assist the Papists in England, ibid.

Orange, William Henry Prince of, depriv'd of his Offices in Holland by Cromwell's Means, 195. Visits King Charles II. 278. His Reception at Court, at London, and the Universities, 279. His Return to Holland, ibid. Made General, Admiral, and Stadtholder of Holland, 285. Is tempted by England and France to assume the Sovereignty of the Provinces, ibid. His Noble Answer to those that tempted him, ibid. The only Protector of the Liberties of Europe, 292. His brave Answer to the Duke of Bucks, tempting him to assume the Sovereignty of the United Provinces, ibid. His first Actions in War, ibid. Takes Narden in fight of the Duke of Luxembourg's, 597. Takes Bon, ibid. Drives the French out of Holland, ibid. Highly honour'd by the States, ibid. His great Actions at the Battel of Senef, 301. The Prince of Conde's, and General Zouch's Characters of him, ibid. His Conference with the Prince of Orange about a Peace, ibid. His Aversion to the Lord Arlington, and King Charles's Ministers, 306, 307. Other Actions of his, ibid. Forc'd by Marschal Schomberg to raise the Siege of Maeffrich, 310. Against a separate Peace with France, ibid. His Conference with Sir William Temple about Marrying, 313. Desir'd by the Malecontents in England to head them, 314. What he desir'd in a Wife, ibid. Sends Mr. Bentley to Negotiate the Affairs, ibid. Comes into England, ibid. His Saying on the King and Duke's requiring hard Terms on the Marriage, ibid. On the News of their Consent, 315. Marries the Princess Mary, ibid. Consultations between the King, the Duke, and him, about the Peace, ibid. His Bravery at the Siege of Mons, 363. His Danger, ibid. Drives Luxembourg from before it, ibid. A Saying of a French Officer on this Action, ibid. He retires upon the Peace, ibid. His Discontent with Sir William Temple, on King Charles's being for a War after the Peace was concluded, 364. Visits the Court of England again, 401. His respectful Offer to King James, and generous one to the Duke of Monmouth, 434. His Second Offer to the King, to join against the Duke of Monmouth, 436. Rejected, ibid. His and the Princess's Opinion of Liberty of Conscience, and Repealing the Test, 466, 467. The People of England begin to look towards them, 471. Memorial of the Church of England presented him, 487. Several Persons of Quality go over to him, 488. He desires the States to assist him, ibid. Prepares to invade England, 492. His Declaration, ibid. Vain Endeavours to suppress it, 493. His Letter to the English Army, 494. His Speech to the States, when he took his Leave of them, ibid. He weeps, ibid. He embarks: His Attendance, ibid. Is put back by a Storm, 495. Lands, and goes to Exeter, 496. His Speech to the Gentlemen that join'd him, ibid. Several Persons of Note come in to him, ibid. He advances to St. Ives on King James's leaving it, 498. Several Persons of Quality join him, 497, 498. Avoids a Treaty, 499. Skirmishes between his and the King's Forces, 499. The Officers of the Army, and the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in London, declare for him, 500. And the Lieutenant, 521. His Answer to King James's Commissioners for a Treaty, and their Proposals, ibid. His Declaration about King James, and the Disbanded Soldiers, 502. He desires that King James should remove from London to Hon. 503. Encourages King James's Design of Leaving England, 504. Comes to St. James's, and is Congratulated by the City, ibid. He consults with the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, ibid. Their Advice to him, Resolutions and Proceedings, ibid. He Summons the Parliament-Men, that had serv'd in former Parliaments, to meet, 505. The Lords Opinion about Chusing a Convention, ibid. His Answer to their Address, 506. Visits the Queen Dowager, and what pass'd there, 507. Summons the Convention to meet, and borrows 200000 l. of the City, ibid. His Speech to the Convention, ibid. He and his Consort the Princess Mary, declar'd King and Queen, 512. The Princess arrives in England, 513. His Speech when he accepted the Crown, 514. See William III. and Mary II.

Orange, Princess of, visits her Brother King Charles II. on the Restoration, 224. Her Death, ibid.

Orford, Edward Russell made Earl of, 735. And one of the Lords Justices, 755. Impeach'd by the House of Commons, about the Partition-Treaty, 802. The Articles exhibited against him by the Commons, 806. Carry'd up to the Lords by Col. Bierly, ibid. The Earl's Defence, ibid. Tryal, and Honourable Discharge, 819.

Orkney, Counts of, her Grant from King William, 771.

Orleans, Dutchess of, visits her Brother Charles II. at Dover, 278. Leaves the Dutchess of Portsmouth behind her, ibid. Her sudden Death, ibid.

Ormond, Marquis, King Charles I. when Prince, had that Title conferr'd upon him, 1. Ormond, Marquis of, treats with the Irish Papists, 132. Routed by Col. Jones, 176. Forc'd to fly to France by Cromwell, 177. Takes the Duke of Gloucester out of a Jesuit's College, and carries him to Germany, 195. Comes into England to act for K. Charles II. 205. His Escape, ibid. His Conference with Mazarine at the Pyrenean Treaty, 219. Made Duke and Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 232, 258. Holds a Parliament there, 258

Suppresses a Mutiny in the Garrison of Carrikerjurgus, 263. Recall'd, and is chosen Chancellor of Oxford, 273. Seiz'd by Blood and others, 280. Made a Duke in England, 476. Why turn'd out of the Lieutenantancy of Ireland, 449. Is ill receiv'd by King James, ibid. Fears what will become of Ireland, ibid. And dies, ibid. 487. His Character, ibid.

Ormond, James Butler Duke of, intercedes in vain for Magdalen College, 476. Goes to the Prince of Orange, 498. Made Knight of the Garter by King William, 524. Attends the King to Ireland, 558. Entertains him at Kilkenny, 564. Attends the King into Flanders, 625, and 660. Taken Prisoner at London, 662.

Ossory, Thomas Butler Earl of, sworn of the Privy-Council, 263. Commands in Ireland, 273. Made Rear-Admiral of the Blue, 295. His Bravery at Mons, 363. His Death, 390.

Ostern, Sir Thomas, appointed one of the Commissioners of Accounts by Charles II. 264. Recommended to King Charles by the Duke of Buckingham, 296. Made Viscount Dunblaine in Scotland, and Lord Treasurer, ibid. See Dunley, Earl of.

Overkirk, Henry de Nassau Lord of, saves the Prince of Orange's Life at Mons, 363. Made Master of the Horse to King William, 515. Naturaliz'd by Act of Parliament, 528. His Bravery in the Action near Parham, 625.

Owen, Sir John, condemn'd by a High Court of Justice, but repriv'd by the Rump, 175.

Owen, Dr. John, turn'd out from being Dean of Christ Church, 219.

Oxford, a Parliament adjourn'd thither by Charles I. 6. Factions in the University there, 61. The King's Quarters in the Civil Wars, 117, 118. A Parliament held there, in Opposition to that at Westminster, 133. Sir Thomas Glenham surrenders it to the Parliament, 150. The University Visit'd by Order of Parliament, 174.

Oxford, the Long Parliament adjourn'd thither by Charles II. The University thank'd by them for their Loyalty, ibid. Term kept there, 258. Theatre there open'd, 273. The famous Parliament held there, 395. Dissolv'd in haste, 397.

Oxford, University, Their Solemn Declaration for a passive Obedience, 419, 420, 421. What was done with it after the Revolution, 421.

Oxford, City, its Privileges declar'd to be dissolv'd, 469. King James dissatisfy'd with it, ibid. King William visits the University, but does not Eat with them, 703.

Oxford, Earl of, attends King William to Ireland, 558.

P.

P*ack*, Alderman, moves in Parliament to make Cromwell King, 200.

Packer, Samuel, his Troubles for a Libel against the Government in Charles II's Reign, 422.

Palatinate, Forces Rais'd for its Recovery by Charles I. 3. Further Endeavours to Recover it, 59, 63. Others in Vain, 79.

Palatine, Prince Elector or Palgrave, his Death, 63.

Papillon, Thomas, Esq; Fin'd 10000 l. to Sir William Pritchard, and others, 422.

Papists Complain'd of by the Parliament, 7. A Proclamation against them, 11. The Compounding their Forfeitures suspected to be a Toleration of Popery, 26. They are forward to pay the Loan, 28. Their Religion too much Toleration, 32. The Irish Treat for a Toleration, 34. Irish Bishops draw up a Protestation against it, 35. Petition'd against by the Parliament, 40. Remonstrated against, 43. Their Religion Protested against by the House of Commons, 48. The Insolence of their Priests, 49. Their Violence, ibid. The Danger of their Growth, 50, 51, to 50. They commit a Riot in Dublin, 56. Favour'd and Advanc'd at the Queen's Impertunity, 70. Fears of their Growth, 79. Insolent in their Numbers, 86. A Proclamation against them, 87. Spaniards come to their Assistance, 93. A Remonstrance against them by the Long Parliament, 99. Make their Advantage of the Troubles in England, 178. Their Interest and Policy in Charles II's Reign, 240. The Parliament Address the King against them, 244. Endeavour to Divide the Church and Dissenters more and more, and set them against the Government, 249. Address'd against by Parliament, 263. Dangers of them, 264. Another Address against them, ibid. 271. The Dangers of them, 282. Great Fears of them, 294, 296. Orders against them, ibid. An Address against them, 297. A Proclamation, 298. Their Plot begins, 299. Another severer Proclamation against them, 302. Their Insolence, 307. Dangers of them, 311. Their Plot against the King discover'd by Ons, 363. Forbid to come within 10 Miles of London, 365. They are Encourag'd, 368. Checkt by a Proclamation, ibid. Excluded sitting in Parliament, 370. Proceeded against Vigorously in Parliament, 375, 376, 377. And by the King, 380. Encourag'd by him, 386, 387. Promote the Persecution of Dissenters, 392. Charles II's Ministry Partial to them, 403. They grow Insolent, ibid. Their Insolence and Hypocrisy, 407. Zeal against 'em made Criminal, ibid. Advanc'd and Protected against the Parliament by James II. 440. The Test against them Dispens'd with by him, 445. And in Scotland, 448. Made Privy-Councillors, 452. Their Address of Thanks to King James for Liberty of Conscience, 465. They give out Queen Mary is with Child, and that it will be a Son, 470. Ruin all in Ireland, 473. Their Recommendatory Letter to King James in favour of Tyrconnel, ibid. Declar'd Incapable of the Succession to the Crown of England, 510. King William's Clemency to them, 532. Their Insolence in Ireland, when King James was there, 541. A Proclamation against them by Queen Mary, 625. And an Address against them by the Parliament, 760, 761.

Parker, Dr. Samuel, made Bishop of Oxford, 462. A Tool of Popery and Arbitrary Power, ibid. Has a Mandate to be President of Magdalen-College, but the Fellows will not chuse him, 477. Forcibly made President by Proxy, 479. Charnock the Assassinator, his Vice-President, 481.

Parker, Col. Plots to Assassinate K. William, 626. Lands in England on that Design, 645. His Proceedings here, 646. Taken, and escapes out of the Tower, 672. In Charnock's Assassination-Plot too, 709.

Parliament, the First, held by Charles I. 4. Joy at their Sitting, 5. Their Debates, ibid. And Acts, ibid. They are Adjourn'd to Oxford, and sit in Christ-Church-Hall, 6. Are Displeas'd on several Accounts, 5, 6. Their Petition upon it, 7, 8. Their Debates about the King's Answer, and the Duke of Buckingham's Plea, 9. Their Declaration, 10. And abrupt Dissolution, ibid.

Parliament, the Second, held by Charles I. meet in an ill Humour through the Duke of Bucks Management of himself to the Members, 14. Put off the Supply and go upon Grievances, 15. Their Answer to the King's Messages and Letters, 15, 16. Fall upon the Duke of Bucks, ibid. They remonstrate 17. They impeach the Duke of Bucks, 21. Their Articles against him, 22, 23. Their Proceedings upon Sir John Elliot and Sir Dudley Diggs Imprisonment, 24. Offended at a Letter of the King's, ibid. Their Answers to it and Remonstrance, ibid. The Lords Address against a Dissolution, 25. The Parliament Dissolv'd, ibid.

Parliament, the Third, Held by Charles I. 38. Their Votes about Liberty and Property, 39. They Petition against Recusants, 40. Conference with the Lords on Liberty and Property, ibid. The Question put who should Trust King or People, 41. Are surpriz'd with a Prolongation, 44. Their Second Session, 46. And various Proceedings about Tonnage and Poundage, &c. 47, 48. They are Dissolv'd, ibid.

Parliament, the Fourth, held by Charles I. 94. They enter upon Grievances, and delay the Supply, 95. They are Dissolv'd, ibid.

Parliament, the Fifth, held by Charles I. Call'd the Long Parliament, 97. They are angry that the Scots are call'd Rebels, ibid.

all rigorously upon Grievances, ibid. they proceed against Archbishop Land, and the Earl of Strafford, 98. They Correspond with the Scots, 99. Demonstrate against the Papists, ibid. Are Influenc'd by the Scots, ibid. Vote 'em a Supply, 100. They as it were keep 'em in pay, ibid., 103. Warm Proceedings against Archbishop Land, the Earl of Strafford, and Episcopacy, ibid. Against the Convocation, 103. They encourage the Mob, 105. They pass the Lord Strafford's Bill of Attainder, 107. And that for their Continuance, ibid. They are in a Conspiracy with the Scots, 109. They put down the High Commission Court and Star-Chamber Court, ibid. They set Spies upon the King in his Journey to Scotland, 110. They proceed against several Judges, ibid. Their Irregular Committees during a Recess, 111. They meet again with Guards, ibid. Their Remonstrance upon the Irish Rebellion, ibid. Their Guards dismiss'd by the King, ibid. They refuse to suppress the Mob, 112. Articles of Treason presented against 5 of their Members, 113. The Advantage they made of the King's entering the House to take them, ibid. They remove to Guildhall, ibid. They turn out Sir John Byron from the Lieutenantcy of the Tower, ibid. And Remonstrate, ibid. Their Proceedings against the Church of England, 114. They set up Presbytery, ibid., 121. They act independently of the King, set out a Fleet, and make an Admiral, 115. Their Declaration upon the King's raising an Army, 116. They throw the Odium of the War on the King, ibid. Several Members leave 'em, ibid. They reject the King's proposal of Peace, ibid. And send out an Army under the Earl of Effix, 117. They insult the King, 118. They reject Petitions in behalf of the Church, and put out a Declaration upon it, 120. They associate with their Brethren of Scotland, in Religion, 121. Impeach the Queen of High-Treason, 125. They Enter into an Alliance with the Scots, 128. And take the Covenant, ibid. They make a New Broad-Seal, and Seize the King's Revenues, 132. The smallness of their Number, 133. They are extremely Concern'd for the Scots Army, 137. They despise the King's Messages for Peace, but send Commissioners to Treat, 139. Pass the Self-denying Ordinance, and Model their Army, 144. Their Affairs thrive after it, ibid., to 147. They refuse to Treat with the King, ibid. They are afraid of the King's Coming to them, 149. All England reduc'd to their Obedience, except the Garisons held by the Scots, 150. They are weary of the Scots, ibid. They send Commissioners to the King at Newcastle with hard Terms, ibid. They buy him of the Scots, ibid. Weary of Presbytery, 151. Grow Jealous of their Army, 154. Are for Disbanding, ibid. The Two Speakers run away, 155. They invite the King Civilly to Treat, ibid. Their Address, ibid. The Army too strong for 'em, 156. They renew their Debates of Treating; send to the King, but are dissatisfied with his Answer, ibid. They send their Last Propositions, ibid. And Commissioners to the Isle of Wight to Treat, 157. They Vote for no more Addresses, and Recall those Votes, ibid., 161. They publish a bitter Declaration against the King, 159. They send other Commissioners to the Isle of Wight, 161. The Lords make good Votes, but the Commons are refractory on their Successes, 162, 163. A Force put upon them by the Army, and several Members Excluded, 165. Those that Remain'd pass a Bill to Attain the King, which the Lords Reject, ibid. The Commons pass it without them, and order the King to be brought to his Tryal, 166. They pass an Act to Exclude King Charles II. Vote the House of Lords useless, Abolish Monarchy, and set up themselves for a Commonwealth, 175. From this time call'd.

Parliament, Rump, their War with the Scots, 179, 180. Their Reputation Abroad, ibid. They Court the City, and pass popular Acts, 181. They Incorporate Scotland with England, 187. Have War with the Dutch, ibid. Succeed every where, ibid. Unwilling to be Dissolv'd, 190. Cromwell

Dissolves them by Force, ibid. Their stupid Behaviour on that Occasion, ibid.

Parliament, one held at Oxford in opposition to that at Westminster, 132. Their Acts, and Character, 133.

Parliament, or rather Convention, pack'd by Cromwell, and call'd by his Summons, 190. They give up their Powers to Cromwell, ibid.

Parliament, Cromwell's 1st. how manag'd by him, 193. They don't please him, and are Dissolv'd, 194.

Parliament, Cromwell's 2d. how manag'd and pack'd by him, 199. Their Acts, 200. Their Debates about making Cromwell King, ibid. They Resolve it, ibid., 201. They Court him to it, 201, 202, 203. They solemnly make him Lord Protector, 204. They Quarrel with the House of Lords, and are Dissolv'd, 204, 205.

Parliament, Richard Cromwell's, 212. Debates about the Form of Electing it, ibid. Two Speakers die before any Business was dispatch'd, ibid. Their Proceedings offend Richard's Party, ibid. Their Divisions make way for the Restoring the Rump, 213.

Parliament, Rump, Restor'd by the Army, 213. Their Declaration upon it, ibid. They neglect providing for Richard and his Family, 214. Turn'd out again by Lambert and the Army, 215. Restor'd again by Electors, 217. They Abjure King Charles, ibid. They turn out the Soldiers in London, to make room for Monk's, ibid. Are Offended with the City, and send Monk to chastise it, 218. They Displease him for not making him of the Quorum of Persons to Govern the Army, ibid. He Restores the Secluded Members, ibid. The Old Members Enter, and those of the Rump leave the House, ibid. They Vote to call a New Parliament, Parliament or Convention call'd by the Long One, meets, 221. They receive Letters from the King, ibid., 222. Their Submissive Answer, 223. They order him to be Proclaim'd King, and give him and his Brother Money, ibid.

Parliament, First, held by Charles II. 224. Their Debates about his General Pardon, ibid. Their Acts, ibid. Call'd the Healing Parliament, ibid.

Parliament, his Second, or the Second Long-Parliament, Meet, 230. Approve of the King's March with Queen Katherine, 231. Burn the Covenant, ibid. Their further Acts, 232. They advance the Prerogative, 237. Very Loyal, ibid. They Address the King against Indulging Dissenters, 238. Are more severe to them than King Charles, 239, 243. They Address against Papists, 244. Their Resolutions against the Dutch, 250. Adjourn'd to Oxford in the Plague-Time, 257. They Thank the University for their Loyalty, ibid. Their Address to King Charles about the Lord Chancellor Clarendon, 266. Against Indulgence to Dissenters, 271. Thank the King for Suppressing Conventicles, 274. Are Apprehensive of Popery and Arbitrary Power, 291. Against King Charles II's Dissenting Power, ibid. They d. down the Dutch War, and pass a Bill in favour of Dissenters, 292. Thrown out by the Lords, ibid. Pass the Test-Act against the Papists, 294. Address the King against the Duke of York's Marrying the Princess of Modena, 296. Discontented, and Address against Popery, 297. They bring him into a Peace with Holland, ibid. Their Test of Abhorrence, 303. The Legality of their being Question'd, 309. Several Lords Committed about it, ibid. They Address for a War with France, 312. The Legality of their being Question'd without Doors, 323. They thank the King for Marrying his Niece to the Prince of Orange, and Address for a War with France again, 316. More inclin'd than the King to the French War, 362. Talk of Disbanding the Army, and are Prorogu'd, ibid. Their Votes about the Popish-lot, 365. Their Proceedings upon it Offend the King, and they are Dissolv'd, 368. How long they Sat, 369.

Parliament, his Third, meet at Westminster, 372. They proceed against the Lord Danby, 373, 374, 375, 376. Vote against the Duke of York, 375. Bring in the Exclusion-Bill, 377. Are Prorogu'd, ibid. They Meet, 382. They proceed against Popery, and Popish Succession, 358. Their Warm Address, and Remonstrance on the same Subjects, 386, 387. Make several Remarkable Votes, and are warm against the Papists, 389, 390. Their parting Votes, ibid. They are Dissolv'd, ibid.

Parliament, his Fourth, at Oxford, 395. Their warm Proceedings about the Bill of Exclusion, and Fitzharris, 397. They are Dissolv'd, ibid.

Parliament, James II. chuse a Speaker of the King's Nominating, 431. They are very Liberal of their Money, 433, 435. Their Hasty Loyalty against the Duke of Monmouth, 437. They are Adjourn'd, ibid. Their Address against Popish Officers, 440. Offend the King, and are Prorogu'd, 441. They would not pass the Bill against Dissenters, nor repeal the Lord Stafford's Attainder, 444. They are Dissolv'd, 469.

Parliament or Convention Summon'd by the Prince of Orange, 507. Their Address to him to take on him the Government, ibid. The Commons Vote the Throne Vacant, 508. Disagreed to by the Lords, ibid. The Commons Reasons for it, ibid. Refuse to Open King James's Letter, 509. Several Lords for a Regency only, ibid. The Names of them, ibid. Debates about the Word Abdicate, 510, 511, 512. They Resolve that the Prince and Princess of Orange be Declar'd King and Queen, 512. Their Declaration of the Reasons why King James Vacated the Throne, 513. Divisions amongst them, 516. The Convention chang'd into a Parliament, ibid. Their Address to King William, on the News of K. James's Landing in Ireland, 517. Their Address for a War with France, 526. Lords and Commons differ about Taxing, 528. Their Proceedings about the Succession, 529. Heats between the Lords and Commons occasion'd by Orsi's Business, 530. Differences between them, 533. Insulted by the Silk-Weavers, ibid. Proceed Vigorously against the Instruments of King James's Arbitrary Power, 544.

Parliament, King William's Second, meet, 555. Confirm all the Acts of the Convention, and go on Happily, 556, 557. Prorogu'd from time to time till October, 625. They Meet again, 630. Their Acts, 631, 632, 633, to 640. They are Prorogu'd, ibid. They Meet again, 653. Their Acts, 654 to 659, and 664. They Meet again; Their Acts, 665, 666, 667, 668. They are Prorogu'd, 670. They Meet again, and pass the Triennial-Bill, 672. Their Addresses to the King on the Death of the Queen, 674. Their Acts, 675. They attend at the Queen's Funeral, 682. Their Acts about Bribery, 685, 686, 687, 688, to 691. Are Prorogu'd, 693. Dissolv'd, 703.

Parliament, King William's Third, open their Session, 703. Their Acts, 704. They Regulate the Coin, 705, 706. Their other Acts, ibid., 707, 708, 709. Their Loyal Proceedings on the Discovery of the horrid Assassination-Plot, 712, 714, 715, 716. Their other Acts, ibid. Prorogu'd, 717. They Meet again, 728. They proceed again upon the Coin, 724. Their other Acts, 725, 726. About Bank-Bills and Exchequer-Bills, ibid. Sir John Fenwick's Attainder, 728 to 731. Other Affairs, 732, 733, 734. They Meet again, 740. The Dispute about Standing Forces, 741, 742. Their other Acts, 742, 743, 744, 745. About the New East-India Company, 747, 748, 749, 750. And Molienex's Book, 751, 752.

Parliament, King William's Fourth, Open their Session, 758. Will not admit Standing Forces, ibid. Their other Acts, ibid., 759, 760, 765, 766, 767. They are Prorogu'd, ibid. Meet again and proceed upon the Forfeited Estates in Ireland, 770, 771, 772. On Kid's affair, 773. On the Grants again, 779. Dissolv'd, 790.

Parliament, King William's Fifth, Open their Session, 791. Their Acts, ibid., 792. They settle the Succession in the Protestant Line, and under what Limitations, 794. They

They Address against the Partition Treaty, 795. They impeach the Lords Portland, Somers, Oxford, and Halifax about it, 801, 802. The Lords differ with the Commons about them, 804. Their Proceedings disliked, 805. The Kentish Petition and Legation Libel against them, ibid. Lords mind the Commons of their Impeachments, 806. The Proceedings between the Lords and Commons about those Impeachments, 807, 809, 810, 811. About the Trial of the Lord Somers, 813, 815, 816. The Lords try and Acquit him, the Commons Remonstrate upon it, 817. Other Contentions between them, 820. People incline to have them dissolv'd, 824. Dissolv'd, 826.

Parliament, King William's last, 826. The Instructions given the Members by the Inhabitants of several Places, ibid. Two Addresses of the Lords, and One of the Commons to the King, on the French King's owning the Pretended Prince of Wales to be King of England, and setting the Spanish Monarchy, 828, 829. Their Happy Proceedings, 830.

Parliament in Scotland, held in King Charles II's Reign, Penitential Conventicle Preachers, 258. Another held by the Duke of Lauderdale, 274.

Parliament, or Convention in Scotland prefer King William's Letter to King James's, 535. Their Answer to King William's Letter, 536. They Vote the Throne Vacant, and Proclaim King William and Queen Mary, 537. Their Claim of Rights and Liberties, ibid. Another held by the L. of Marlborough, 762, 763. Another by the Duke of Queensbury, 784, 785. Their Proceedings about the Affair of Davion, ibid., 786.

Parliament in Ireland, held by the Duke of Ormond; their Acts, 258.

Parliament, one held by King James at Dublin, 540. Their Thanks to him and the French King, ibid. Repeal the Act of Settlement and pass the Black Act of Attainder, 541. Held by the Lord Capell, and their Acts, 700. Another by the Lords Justices, 764. Their Acts, ibid.

Parliaments, the manner of Election of, New-Modell'd by Cromwell, 191.

Parsons, Sir John, one of the Sheriffs of London, receives the Pope's Nuncio at Temple-Bar, 469. Order'd to be taken into Custody of the Serjeant at Arms, on a Complaint of Ill Victualing the Navy, 544.

Partition, Treaty of, 755, 756. A Second Treaty, 781. The Articles of it, 786, 787, 788, 789. The Disadvantages of it, ibid. The Parliament's Address against it, 798. Debates and a Conference about it, 796. Warm Debates about it, 799.

Peacher, Dr. Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge, Suspend'd for not admitting Alban Francis a Monk to a Master's Degree, 475, 766.

Pelham, Mr. Chosen Speaker of the House of Commons when Lenthall run away, 155.

Pemberton, Serjeant, sent to the Tower for acting as a Council in an Offensive Cause, 303.

Pembroke, William Earl of, his sudden Death and Character, 57.

Pembroke, Philip Earl of, chosen Chancellor of Oxford on the Resignation of Archbishop Laud, 115. Visits that University, 174. Sits in the House of Commons as Knight of the Shire for Berksh. ibid. 176.

Pembroke, Philip Earl of, Committed to the Tower for Blasphemy, 362. Found guilty of Manlaughter. ibid.

Pembroke, Thomas Herbert Earl of, sent Ambassador to Holland by King William, 545. Sworn of his Privy Council, and made first Commissioner of the Admiralty, ibid. Made Lord Privy Seal, 641. One of the Lords Justices of England by King William, 693. And again, 720. Made first Plenipotentiary for the Treaty at Ryswick, 732. Again one of the Lords Justices, 735. And again, 755. Made President of the Council, 767. And again one of the Lords Justices, 768. Made Knight of the Garter, 784. Again One of the Lords Justices, ibid. First Commissioner of the Admiralty, 821. Again one of the Lords Justices, ibid. Made Lord High Admiral of England, 827.

Pen, sent with Venables to the West Indies, is Unfortunate and Imprison'd by Cromwell, 196. Knighted by King Charles II. and made Admiral of the White in the First Dutch War, 257.

Pen, William, his Son, a Reputed Quaker, a Close Attendant on King James, 469. Thought to be an Ambitious Crafty Jesuit, 478. His Letter to Dr. Early one of the Fellows of Magdalen to persuade them to submit, ibid. A Proclamation against him by Queen Mary, 563. Another, 575.

Pendergrafe, Mr. Discovers the horrid Assassination Plot against King William to the Lord Portland, 710.

Pennington, Captain John, Commander of a Squadron of Ships, refuses to join the French as he was order'd, 6. Knighted and made Admiral by the King, but not admitted by the Parliament, 115.

Pemraddock, Captain, rises for Charles II 195. Proclaims him at Salisbury, ibid. Beheaded, ibid.

Percy, James, a Trunkmaker, his Claim to the Earldom of Northumberland, 295. Said to be an Impostor, ibid.

Perkins, Sir William, in a Plot to Murder King William and bring in the French, 709. Found guilty of High Treason; his Confession before a Committee of Parliament, 718. Hang'd, Drawn, and Quarter'd, ibid. The Paper he deliver'd to the Sheriff, ibid.

Peterborough, Dr. Henshaw Bishop of, dies suddenly, 371.

Peterborough, Dr. White Bishop of, one of the 7 Bishops that Petition'd King James, and were imprison'd, 483. Suspend'd for refusing the Oaths to King William and Queen Mary, 551.

Peterborough, Henry Earl of, first Governor of Tangier, displac'd, 240. Sent to Modena to espouse that Duke's Daughter in the Duke of York's Name, 462. His Account of the Pope's ill usage of the Duke of York, ibid. Voted to be Impeach'd of High Treason for turning Papist, 543.

Peters, Mr. Hugh, his impertinence as to reforming the Law, 187. Excepted out of King Charles's Act for a General Pardon, 224. Condemn'd and Executed, ibid.

Petition of Right sent up from the Commons to the Lords, 41. The Act finish'd, ibid. Heads of it, ibid. Pass'd, 45.

Petition and Advice to Charles II. by the Duke of Monmouth, and 15 other Lords before the Oxford Parliament met, 394. The 7 Bishops to King James against his Declaration of Liberty of Conscience, 483.

Petitions to the King, not to be admitted against a Command, 26. Discourtenanc'd by Charles II. 378. Abhorrents punish'd by Parliament, 385. The Right of it Asserted, ibid.

Petition, the Kentish, to the House of Commons, 805.

Petes, William, Lord, Committed to the Tower for Treason, 368.

Petes, Father, Edward, the Jesuit, his Saying of the Lord Sunderland's being reconcil'd to the Church of Rome, 453. Made a Privy-Counsellor, 469. Design'd to be Archbishop of York, 461. Threatens the Protestant Clergy, 481. He runs away on the Prince of Orange's Landing, 487.

Philepeaux, Montieur, unsuccessful in his Negotiation in England, to settle a Trade with France again, 755.

Phips, Sir William, brings a vast Treasure from the West-Indies, 470. Made Commander in Chief of the Militia of New England by King William 641.

Pickard, Captain, destroys a Fleet of French Merchant-Men, 670.

Pilkington, Thomas, Esq; chosen Sheriff of London in opposition to the Court party, 451. King Charles speaks Churlishly to him, ibid. Sent to the Tower, and why, 404. Find'd for a Riot, 408. Lord Mayor of London, and Knighted by King William, 524. Continu'd Mayor, 548. Treats K. William and the Royal Family, ibid.

Plague, a great one in London, and where it began, 4. Another, 77. The Great One Breaks out at London, 256.

Plantations, in the West-Indies; many Families of Dissenters transport themselves thither, 83. Restrain'd by Proclamation, ibid.

Plessington, William, a Popish Priest hang'd at Chester, 380.

Plot, Mr. Love's against the Rump, 187. Sunderland's against the Protector Oliver, 200. The Fifth Monarchists 270, 271, 272, 206. The Cavaliers, ibid.

Plot, Popish, Discover'd, 364. Proofs of it, ibid. The King's Speech and Parliaments Votes about it, 365. King angry 'twas brought into Parliament, 369. He prosecutes it vigorously, 380. Votes of the Lords for the Relief of it, 390.

Plot, Everard and Fitz Harris, against the Dissenters, 396.

Plot, the Phanatick, 408. Dr. Spanglet set to work to vanquish over the Ills of it, 432.

Plot, Meal-tub, 442.

Plot, Parker's and Ormond's Assassination Plot against King William, 626, 645. The Lancashire Plot against him, ibid. Condemn'd by Parliament, 675.

Plot, the Jacobites horrid Assassination-Plot, for which they had a Commission from France to Murder King William, 709. The Plotters Names and villainous Projects, ibid., 710. Discover'd, 710, 711.

Plot, Fenwick's Sham one to save himself, 727.

Plunket, Dr. Oliver, Titular Archbishop of Dublin, hang'd, 398.

Plymouth Garrison'd by the Parliament, 118.

Poland, Elector of Saxony, chosen King of, 737. Gets entire possession of the Kingdom, 758. Attacks Riga, 784. His defence for King William, ibid.

Polignac, Abbot, wastes the French King's and the Prince of Conti's Money in Poland to make that Prince King, 737.

Pollard, Sir Hugh, sends Mr. Nicholas Monk a Minister to engage his Brother General Monk in the King's Interest, 215. The Earl of Marlborough's Letter to him, written just before he was kill'd at Solby, 256.

Pope Innocent XI. his Advice to King James against introducing Popery, 444. Sends a Nuncio to King James, but receives his Ambassador coldly, 461. Uses King James ill while Duke of York, 462.

Popish Lords, committed to the Tower for Treason, 368. Impeach'd by Parliament, 375. A Committee for their Tryal, 374. They answer, 375. Preparations for their Tryal, 377. Bail'd, 414. Three of them made Privy-Councillors by King James, 452.

Popish Priests, A Declaration and Proclamation against 'em, 245. Banish'd by Proclamation, 263, 264, 282, 298, 302. Hang'd, 369, 380, 398.

Porter, Sir Charles, made Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and one of the Lords Justices, 572. A Complaint against him by the Lord Bellamont and others, 664. Chosen Lord Justice of Ireland by the Council there, 722. Dies suddenly, 723.

Porter, Capt. one of the Assassination-Plot, 709. Discovers Sir John Fenwick's Design to spirit him away, 727.

Portland, Earl of, kill'd at Soleby Fight, 256.

Portland, William Bentinck made Earl of, 524. Begs Lands, Part of the Principality of Wales, 727. The Grant disputed before the Lords of the Treasury, and the Parliament, ibid. 728. Petition'd against by Parliament, ibid. The King's Answer concerning him, 709. Made Knight of the Garter, 732. His Conference with Marschal Boufflers hastens the Peace at Ryswick, 738. Various Reflections upon it, ibid. Sent Ambassador into France, 745. His Magnificent Entrance into Paris, and Reception, 753. The vast Charge of his Embassy, 754. He is supplanted by Mr. Kappel in the King's Favour, ibid. King William's Plenipotentiary for the Second Treaty of Partition, 781. Impeach'd for it, 801. Address'd against by the Commons; Vindicated by the Lords, 803, 804. The Impeachment dismiss'd by the Lords, 820. His Attendance on the King in his last Illness, 832.

Posnett, Left Agent in England by Count Tallard, 790. Is order'd to leave England, 805.

Posnett, who they were that were so call'd, and why, 815.

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

Fewis, R. is a list of, committed to the Tower for Treason, 363. Made a Privy-Counsellor, 422. Minutes for Mr. Baxter's Pardon, 463.

Field, Sir Thomas, Attorney-General at the Bishops' Trial, 484. His Argument against Charles, 485.

Field, Mr. desires to be excus'd Attendance at the Council-Board, 379. Chosen Chairman of the Assembly of Parliament-Men call'd by the Prince of Orange before the Convention, 521. Speaker of the Convention, 522. His Speech to Congratulate King William and Queen Mary on their Coronation, in the Name of the House of Commons, 525. Another on his presenting the Money-Bill to the King, 526. Another, 527. An Address to his Majesty, on presenting the Bill to pay the Dutch, 534. Another, 545. His Death, 639.

Fitzroy, Col. joins the King at Rouen, 59. He is dead, 146.

Fletcher, Mr. a discoverer Sir Edmond, 60. Member, 104. Recants in King James's Reign, 482.

Fletcher, Thomas, when first read in Scotland, 84. The Consequences of it, ibid. Taken away in Prison by the House of Commons, 114. Debates about it at the P. of H.'s Treaty, 163. Charles II's Letters for receiving it, 211. Alterations in it, ibid. Things chang'd by the Presbyterians to be Unlawful in it, 235. Uncertainty is of the Charge, ibid. Order'd to be translated into Latin, and by whom, 242. Into Italian, and by whom, 243. A Vote to review it, pass'd in the Negative, 249. Several Lords dissent, and give their Reasons for it, ibid.

Flores, for the 11th of November, Thirtieth of January, and Twenty Ninth of May, made by the Convocation, 242.

Prerogative, highly advanc'd by Charles II. his Second Parliament, 237.

Protestants, declar'd for by the Parliament, 114, 121. Said to be Non-Dei by the Assembly of Divines, 143, 144. Settled by Parliament, 148.

Protestant Divines, assist the Parliament, and draw up their Instruments, 121. Two Canting Declarations drawn up by them, ibid. They quarrel with the Independants, 148. The Parliament weary of them, 151. An Ordinance for settling their Discipline, 174. Their Divines Remonstrate against the Death of the King, 175. Their Discipline establish'd, 177. The Independant Army too hard for them, ibid. Against the Rump's War with the Scots, who had call'd in King Charles II. 179. The Spirit of them, from the Lord Clarendon, 182. Out-witted by the Independants, 187. Their Plot to assist Charles II. ibid. Their Interest declines, 189. Humbled by Oliver, 195. Richard inclines to them, 213. They Court him, and prevail in his Parliament, ibid. Are best dispos'd to the King, 219. Their Party is uppermost, ibid. Ministers wait up on the King at Brux, 229. Their Conference with the Episcopal Divines at the Straw, 234. Not to be stirr'd, 235. They are persecuted in Scotland, 253. And are troublesome there, 264.

Protestants, their Address of Thanks to King James for Liberty of Conscience, 465.

Prison, Lord, question'd for taking a Patient of Honour from King James, when he was in France, 545. Condemn'd for Treason, 575.

Prison, Battle of, 162.

Price, Mr. Robert, a Remarkable Speech of his in King William's Parliament, 78.

Pritchard, Sir William, Lord-Mayor of London, arrested, 458. Has 10000 l. Damages of Mr. Poppleton, 422.

Protestants, French, their Influence in King Charles II's Reign, 333. The Parliament address the King about it, 369. The King's Answer, ibid.

Protestant Places, the Grievance of 'em, 734.

Protestant Parliament, determin'd by the Judges, 48. Members persecuted at Law for inferring on them, 49.

Proposals to raise Money, 57. Another, ibid. Another, 58. More Proposals, 59. More, 59, 60.

Protestant, granted by the House of Parliament, 102, 103, 104.

Protestants, Foreign, their Disposition towards the Church of England, at the Breaking out of the Civil Wars, 122. King Charles's Defence of himself to 'em, 143.

Protestants, French, reliev'd by Charles II. 473. Persecuted by their King, 472. Reliev'd by King James, ibid. Are abandon'd by the Refuge Treaty, 739. Vain Efforts of King William to relieve 'em, 740.

Protestation of the Parliament against Popery, Arminianism, and Tonnage and Poundage, 48. Of the Bishops, when they were deny'd sitting in Parliament, 114.

Protestants, Mr. William, writes his Histrio-Mystic against Plays, and is punish'd for it, 62, 64. His further Sufferings with Burton and Bartholomew, 83. The Lord Clarendon's Opinion of it, ibid. Sent by Order of Parliament to seize Archbishop Laud's Papers, 135.

Protestants in England encourag'd by the Scots, 94.

Protestants, Mr. his Speech about Arminianism and Popery, 53. About Grievances, 95, 97. Carries up a Charge of High-Treason against the Earl of Stafford, 98. One of the Five Members demanded by the King, 113. Carries up a Charge of High-Treason against the Queen to the Lords, 125. His Death, and the Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Protestants, Treaty of, 219.

Q.

Quakers, their Madness, 201. Their Address of Thanks to King James for Liberty of Conscience, 465. Their Boldness in Elections, ibid. 765. An Act of Parliament in their Favour, 832.

Quakers, brought against London, and other Towns, 48. Reflections on them, ibid. Brought against most of the Towns in England by King James, 469. Against the Corporations in Ireland, 474. That against London Revers'd, 557.

R.

Rappaport, P. was a Jew call'd so, do Mitchell, 626.

Ratton, John, Hang'd for a Plot against King Charles II. 262. To Fine London, part of it, ibid.

Reading Surrender'd to the Parliament, 124. A Skirmish there between the Prince of Orange, and King James's Forces, 499.

Reformation of Manners, the use of that Society, 642. They were commended to Queen Mary by Dr. Sidney, Bishop of Worcester, 643. The Queen encourages 'em, ibid. A Scheme of their Design, ibid. Call'd the Left Friends of the Church of England by Archbishop Hooker, 645. Proclamation for it by the King, 745. A State of the Societies for it, 746.

Regiment, Royal, rais'd in the City in King William's Reign, 548.

Religion, the State of it in the beginning of Charles II's Reign, 28. Two Parties in it, 30. A further State of it, before and after the Dissolution of his Third Parliament, 51, 52, to 56. A further State of it, 60 to 62. A further State of it, 65, 66. People Jealous of Alterations in it, 67. Care of Ordination, 68. A State of Religion, 71 to 75, and 76, 77, 80 to 82, and 85, 86, 87, and 90, 94. A further State of it, 100 to 104. A Committee of Lords, and another of Commons sit about it, 105. Sad Confusions in it, 102 to 123. A further State of it, ibid., 143, 144, 159, 161, 177, 178, 181, 185, 186. The sad State of it, 189, 192, 211, 225, 206. State of it in the Usurpation of Richard Cromwell, 212. In the Rump's Time, 219. State of it after the Restoration, 232, 241, 258, 272, 277, 281, 292, 298, 302, 307. A further State of it, 361, 373, 383, 391, 412, 406, 416. A State of it in King James's Reign, 444, 451, 455. A State of it in the Reign of King William, 521, 549, 641, 679, 703, 733, 745, 750. A further State of it, 775, 796, 836.

Religionists, one drawn up by Parliament, 18. Another, 24. A Proclamation against it, 25. Another presented to the King, 27. Another intended, 44. One against the Popes by the Long-Parliament, 99. One upon the Irish Rebellion, 111. Another about the Five Members, 113. Of the Army, 155. Of the Scots Repenting that they Sold the King, 156. Another of the Army against the King, 165. Of the Presbyterian Divines against the King's Murder, 175. By Charles II's Second Parliament against the Growth of Popery, &c. 387.

Refuge, Treaty of, begins 729, 735 to 740.

Retz, Cardinal de, his plain Advice to Charles II. about Popery, 196.

Reynolds, Col. his Bravery in Flanders, and Death, 204.

Richardson, Judge, in his Circuit in Somersetshire, Suppresses Feuds at the Dedication of Churches, 62, 65. Bishop Laud Complains of him to the King, and he is Reprov'd, ibid. 66.

Ricklow, Cardinal, in Ill Terms with the Duke of Bucks, and why, 26. Sends an Agent into Scotland, 92.

Rice, a Gamester in Ireland, made Lord Chief Baron by King James, 473. His Acts, ibid.

Riot, one in London, 58. Of the Silk-Weavers against the Parliament, 533.

Roberts, Lord, made Lieutenant of Ireland, 273.

Rocheville, Charles I. assists the French against them, 6. Lord Dunbligh sent with a Fleet to their Relief, 27. Do 'em no Service, ibid. Jealous of the Duke of Buckingham's Sincerity, when he came to their Assistance, 35. They at last declare for the English, 36. Are Besieg'd, and reduc'd to great Straights, 37. Send to King Charles for Assistance, ibid. A Second Expedition to help them, Unfortunate, thro' the Lord Dunbligh's ill Conduer, 45. A Third Unsuccessful, 46. Their Distress and Surrender, ibid.

Rochester, Lawrence Hyde, Earl of, made President of the Council by Charles II. 423. Lord Treasurer by James II. 428. Endeavours to prevent Tyrconnel's being Deputy of Ireland, 450. Pretend'd by King James to turn Papist, 452. Desires to hear a Conference between Protestant and Popish Divines, and to side with the Conquerors, ibid. Declares for the Protestants, and is turn'd out of the Treasury, ibid. The Jesuits Curse him, ibid. He has a Pension, ibid. One of the High-Commission Court, 454. Sworn of the Privy-Council to King William, 631. Made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland by him, 791.

Rolls Serjeant, one of Cromwell's Judges, desires his Quietus, and why, 197.

Romney, Henry Lord Viscount Sidney, made Earl of, 670. And one of the Lords Justices, 735. And again, 755.

Ronquillo, Don Pedro de, Ambassador from Spain to King James, his Advice to him against Introducing Popery, 444. Persuades King James not to accept of the 30000 Men offer'd him by the French King against the Prince of Orange, 488. His Death, 641.

Roos, Sir George, Surpriz'd with the Turkish Fleet by the French, 664. The Parliament Enquiring into that Misfortune, ibid. The Fault laid on the Three Admirals, ibid. Order'd to Intercept the Thorn Fleet, 722. Made Admiral of the Fleet by King William, 821.

Rooswood, one of the Assassination-Plotters, Hang'd, 719.

Ross, a Frenchman, Commands the Irish Army before Londonderry, 541. His Cruelty Condemn'd by King James, ibid.

Roswell, Mr. Thomas, a Dissenting Minister found guilty of Treason, 422. His shameful Parliament Trial, 428. King Charles orders an Execution to be found out for him, ibid.

Ross, Mr. his Speech in Parliament against Dr. Maunder's Arbitrary Principles, 51. His Speech about Arminianism and Popery, 53. One of the Assembly of Divines, 134. Chosen Speaker of Cromwell's Packed Convention, 191. Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Ross, Mr. Committed to Prison for Treason against Charles II. 398. Hang'd for the Phanatick Plot, 49.

Rufiana, Sir Benjamin, Moderator between King and People, 139. His Speech about about the Discontinuance of Parliaments, 95.

Rus, Mr. de la, discovers the horrid Assassination-Plot against King William to the Lord Pembroke, 710.

Rumfild, Mr. the Master, Executed in Scotland, 437.

Rump Parliament, Vide Parliament.

Rush, Mr. Accus'd of the Phœnix Plot, Slanders himself, & S. A. Loose and Wicked Evidence, 441.

Russell, William, Lord, makes Sergeant Gregory Speaker of the House of Commons by his Recommendation, 371. Carries up their Votes against the Duke of York to the Lords, 375. Brings a Message from the King to the Lords, 376. Withdraws from the Council, 377. His Speech against the Growth of Popery, 382. Carries up the Bill of Exclusion to the House of Lords, 388. Beheaded for the Phœnix Plot, 439. His Speech and Paper to the Sheriff, 437, 438, 441, 442. His Attainder Revers'd, 518.

Russell, Edward, Esq; goes over to the Prince of Orange, 488. Made Admiral of the Fleet, 561. Endeavours to bring the French to an Engagement at Sea, but cannot come at them, 637. Beats Count Turenne and the French Fleet, 647, 648. His Letter upon it, ibid. Has the Thanks of the House of Commons, 654. Laid aside, 659. Made Admiral again, 664. Is Master of the Mediteranean, 671. His diligence to fit out the Fleet to prevent King James's Landing from Calais, 711. Made Earl of Orford, and one of the Lords Justices of England, 735. See Earl of Orford.

Rupert, Prince, Son of the King of Bohemia, comes into England, 75. Returns into Germany, and is taken Prisoner by the Imperialists, 85. He and Sir John Byron strike the first Stroke in the Civil War, 117. Takes Chronesbor, and puts the Earl of Strafford's Regiment there to the Sword, 118. Takes Bristol, 128. Takes Longford in Shropshire, St. Asaph in Cheshire, Bolton and Leicesterspool in Lancashire, and Marches to Relieve the Earl of Newcastle in York, 137. Entirely defeated at Marston-Moor, 138. Surrenders Bristol to the Parliament's Forces, 146. Retires to France, 150. Made Admiral against the Dutch by Charles II. 251. He Surprizes their Bourdeaux Fleet, ibid. Commands the Fleet in Conjunction with the Duke of Albemarle, 259. Obtains a Victory over the Dutch, 265. Commands in Chief at Sea again, 295. Fights the Dutch, and pretends to the Victory, ibid. 295. Proves a Faithful Counsellor in his late Years, 438. And therefore neglected by the Court, ibid. His Death, ibid.

Ruvigny, Marquis de, his Bravery at Athlone, 626. And at the Battel of Agbrou, 628. Highly Instrumental in gaining the Battel, 629. See Galway, Lord.

Ruyter, Admiral de, Deferts Sir John Lawson in the Streets, and falls upon the English in Guinea and the West-Indies, 253. He Attacks Barbadoes, and is beaten off, 257. Quarrels with Tim Troup, 261. Fights Prince Rupert, and pretends to the Victory, 295, 296.

S.

SA, Don Pontoleon de, Brother to the Portuguese Ambassadors, beheaded for a Riot, 192.

Safety, Committee of, set up by the Army to govern instead of the Rump, 215. Their Declaration, ibid.

St. Albans, Duke of, sent to France by King William, to Compliment the King and the Dauphin on the Marriage of the Duke of Burgundy, 745.

St. Andrews, Dr. Sharp Archbishop of, murder'd by Scots Conventiclers, 373.

St. Asaph, Dr. Lloyd Bishop of, one of the Seven Bishops that petition'd King James, and were imprison'd, 483. Prevails with Queen Mary to Relieve the Prisoners, 612. Translated to Country and Litchfield, 657.

St. Germain, Father, with other Papists, forces Monsieur Luxembourg a Minister, who was a Convert to the Protestant Religion, to renounce it, 387. Charles II.'s Proclamation against him, ibid.

St. Helena, Island of, taken by the Dutch, 296. Retaken by the English, ibid.

St. John, Mr. Prosecuted in the Star-Chamber for Forecing a Label, 57. Made one of the Commissioners of the Great Seal by Parliament, 132. One of the Council of State by the Rump, 181.

St. Malo Bombar'ded by the English, 695.

St. Marins Bombar'ded by the English, 722. St. Paul's Church, an Act to rebuild it, 733.

St. Ruth, omits to succour Arborea, 627. His Speech and Cruel Orders to the Irish, before the Battel of Agbrou, ibid.

St. Severin, William Esq; and other Gentlemen of Northampton, their Troubles for standing by the Liberties of the Borough, 421.

Saltun, Earl of, sits in the Rump Parliament as a Commoner, 186.

Saltun, James Earl of, Voted to be impeach'd of High Treason for turning Papist, 543.

Saltun, See of the Chancellorship of the Garter annex'd to it, 278.

Saltun, a Heretic, his wicked Tenents, 178.

Sandwich, Dr. William, made Archbishop of Canterbury, 301. His Directions about Letters Testimonial, 371. Nam'd to be one of the High-Commission Court, 384. Refuses to do it, 486. Chief of the Bishops that petition'd King James, and were imprison'd, 483. His Answer to King James, about insiting over the Prince of Orange, 495. Refuses to own the Government, on King William and Queen Mary's Accession to the Throne, 517. Refuses to Consecrate Dr. Bennet Bishop of Salisbury, but grants a Commission to others to do it, 523. Depriv'd for refusing to take the Oaths to King William and Queen Mary, 641. He dies in Retirement, 669.

Sandwich, William, hang'd for a Plot against King Charles II. 262.

Sanderson, Dr. Robert Bishop of Lincoln, his Death, 244. His Account of his Faith and Persuasion in Matters of Religion, set down in his Will, ibid.

Sanderson, Col. Thomas, sent with 2000 Men to assist the Czar of Moscow against the Poles, 67. Kill'd by Col. Ledy a Scot, ibid.

Sanderson, Mr. expell'd the House of Commons in Ireland, for not signing the Association, 723.

Sandwich, Edward Montague made Earl of, 224. Goes against the Algerines, but does nothing, 232. Is King Charles's Proxy for the Marriage of Queen Katherine at Lisbon, 236. Obliges the Pirates of Tunis, Tripoly, and Algiers, to treat of a Peace, 242. Commands the Fleet against the Dutch under the Duke of York, 256. His Actions and the Prizes he took, 257. Sent Ambassador to Spain, 259.

Sandwich, Sir Thomas, and other Russians assault and barbarously wound Sir John Coventry, 281.

Sandwich, Col. the first that struck a Stroke on the Parliament's side in the Civil Wars, 117. Is kill'd in that Action, ibid.

Sandwich, Capt. His Bravery at Arborea, 627.

Sandfield, Col. His fortunate Attempt on King William's Train of Artillery in Ireland, 564. He quarrels with St. Ruth about Arborea, 627. Treats with General Ginckle for the Surrender of Limerick, 630. Has high Words with him, ibid.

Sarag, Duke of, invades Dauphine, and takes several Towns, 652. Falls sick and retreats, ibid. His Actions the next Campaign, 663. Loses the Battel of Maringha, ibid. Concludes a separate Treaty with France, 721. The Reasons of it, ibid.

Sarag, Dutchess of, protests against Settling the Succession on the Princess Sophia, 794.

Sarag, Conference of, between the Episcopal and Presbyterian Divines, 234. All Succels of it, 236.

Sarag, Sir Robert, expell'd the House of Commons for being concern'd in the Death of Sir T. Tompion, 547.

Sarag, Lord, refuses to Protest that he did not Correspond with the Scots, 91.

Saxony, Augustus Elector of, obtains the Crown of Poland from the Prince of Con-

Scarborough, Mayor of, Told in a Blanket by an Officer in the Army, 487. King James does not punish him, ibid.

Schomberg, Marechal of, Commands 6000 English design'd for a Descent upon Hollana in the Dutch War, 296. Commands the French Army in Flanders, 310. Forces the P. of Orange to raise the Siege of Mastricht, 311. Comes to England with him at the Revolution, 494. His Stratagem to try the Affections of the People, 502. Frights the City of London and the whole Kingdom, ibid. Made Master of the Ordnance by King William, 513. Knight of the Garter, and is Naturaliz'd, 524. Made Duke of Schomberg, 535. Sent General to Ireland, his Actions there, 542, 543. Discovers a Plot in his Army, carry'd on by French Papists, ibid. His Army destroy'd by Sickness, 543. His Saying to the French Protestants whom he led to the Charge at the Bynes, 559. He is kill'd there, 560. His Character and great Actions, ibid.

Schomberg, Duke of, his Actions in Dunkirk with the Duke of Sarag, 652. His Bravery at the Battel of Maringha, 653. He is slain there, ibid.

See, Mr. a Member of the Rump, zealous for the Abjuration-Oath against King Charles II. 27. Sent to Congratulate General More on his coming into England, ibid. Would persuade him to take the Government on himself, 218. Try'd and Executed for the Death of the King, 224.

Scotland, King Charles I's Progress there, 64. State of Religion there, 66. Seditions there, 71. Conquer'd by the Rump, and United to England, 187. A Project to Unite it in Charles II's Reign ineffectual, 278.

See, disguised first with Charles I. and why, 63, 64. The Liturgy not lik'd there, 76, 80. They mutiny upon Reading the Common-Prayer, 84. Distractions amongst them, 87. They set up the Tables, and frame the Covenant, 88. And take Arms, 89. They are too hard for the King's Forces, 91. A Treaty and Pacification with them, 92. Their Insolence and Proceedings at home, ibid. Their Letter to the French King, ibid. A Second War with them, 94. Ends in a Treaty, 96. The Parliament renews that they are call'd Rebels, and the King excuses it, 97. They correspond with, and influence the Parliament of England, 99. Are supply'd by them, 100. They associate with them in Religion, 121. They enter into an Alliance with the Parliament of England, 128. Their Ministers admitted into the English Assembly of Divines, 134. Their Army marches into England, joins the Lord Essex, and besieges York, 137. They besiege Norwich, 147. They Sell the King, and return home, 151. They repent that they sold him, 156. Are aw'd by the Army, ibid. Protest against the hard Terms impos'd on the King by the first Message sent to him to the Isle of Wight, 157. They invade England to release the King, 161. Routed by Cromwell at Presston, 162. Invite Charles II. to Scotland, but upon insolent Terms, 177, 179. Routed at Dunkirk, 180. Beaten at St. Albans, 182. They Pray for a Union, 187. Their Zeal and Folly, 189. Their Rank dissolv'd by an English Officer, 193. Episcopacy restor'd there, 253. The Presbyterians mutinous against King Charles II. 264. Disturbances by Field-Conventiclers, 378. Duke of York governs there, 377, 385, 400, 404. Anglican lands there, and is suppress'd, 431, 437. The Lords and Gentlemen of that Kingdom address to the Prince of Orange, 520, 521. Their Convention to make him King, 535, 536. A Scots Parliament held by the Marquis of Down for King William, and their Acts, 701, 702. The Affair of the English Company, 706. Other Acts, 713, 712. Their Parliament sign the Association in Defence of King William, ibid. Another Parliament held by the Earl of Mar, 761. Their Acts about their English Company, 761, 763, 784, 785.

See, Judge, complain'd of by the Evidence in the Popish Plot, 379. Commons resolve to Impeach him, 388. He is Imprison'd, 390.

See, its Dominion affected by the English, 68.

68. A Proclamation concerning Sea-Affairs, ibid.

Seamen, English, their Bravery, and Hatred of the French, 6. Disturb'd with the Government in the Reign of King Charles I. They clamour at Whitehall for their Pay, 37.

Sea-Ports, The Inhabitants leave 'em, to avoid paying Ship-Money, 26.

Sedgemoor, Battel of, 437.

Seditious in Scotland, 71.

Selwin, Mr. John, prosecuted for his Speeches and Actions as a Member of Parliament, 59. Prosecuted in the Star-Chamber for spreading a Libel, 57. Further prosecuted for his first Offence, 58. Answers Hugo Grotius's Book fill'd Mare Liberum, written against the English Dominion at Sea, 68. His Book highly valu'd by the King, 78. One of the Assembly of Divines, 134. Banterers them, 135.

Seniff, Battel of, 301.

Serjeants at Law, a Call of them by King Charles II. 391. Partially call'd, ibid. Another Call by King Charles, 416. Their Servile Motto, ibid. A Call by James II. 452. Another, 456. A Call by King William, 528. Their good Motto, ibid.

Seymour, William, of Beiphol, the Cure he work'd upon the Duke of Albemarle, 274. Settlement, Act of, repeal'd in Ireland by King James's pretended Parliament, 540.

Seymour, Mr. Edward, charges the Earl of Clarendon, Lord Chancellor, et cetera, with many great Crimes, 267. His Speech when he carry'd up the Articles against him to the Lords, ibid. Chosen Speaker of King Charles II's Long Parliament, 291. See Page 312, 313. Chosen Speaker of Charles II's Third Parliament, reject'd by the King, 372. Impeach'd by the Commons, 388. A Motion for an Address to remove him from the King's Presence and Council for ever, ibid. Made a Privy-Counsellor by King William, 641. And one of the Lords of the Treasury, ibid.

Shaawel, Church, Consecrated, 282.

Shafsbury, Anthony Ashley Cooper Earl of, made Lord Chancellor, 289. His Remarkable Speech to Baron Thurland, 296. He is in disgrace, and has the Seals taken from him, ibid. Is the Head of the discontented Party, ibid. Committed for Questioning the Legality of the Long Parliament, 309. Is us'd hardly, 310. Submits, and is discharge'd, ibid. Made President of the Council, 374. His Zeal against Popery, 379. Why turn'd out of being President of the Council, ibid. His Speech against Popery, ibid. His Tryal, 400. The Bill found Ignoramus, ibid. Great Rejoycings upon it, ibid.

Shafsbury, Anthony Earl of, his Grandson, his Surprise in Parliament, 705.

Shales, Mr. John, His ill Practices, when Commiary of the Army in Ireland, 544, 545.

Shapcott, Robert, Esq; expell'd the House of Commons in Ireland, for Disloyalty to Charles II. 258.

Sharp, Dr. John, his Offence against King James, by preaching against Popery, 457. He is suspended, but restor'd, 460. Made Archbishop of York by King William, 642.

Shermest, Fort, taken by the Dutch, 265.

Sheldon, Dr. Gilbert, made Bishop of London, 230. Archbishop of Canterbury, 248. The main Instrument of the severe Act call'd the Corporation-Act against the Dissenters, 258, 259. Persecutes the Nonconformists, 277. Charg'd with saying there are many Things in the Church of Rome, that should have been kept, 293. He denies the Words, ibid. His Letter against private Schools, ibid. Retires to Croydon, 361. Dies there, ibid.

Sheldon, Mr. taken up for the Popish Plot, and releas'd upon Bail, 379.

Sheldon, Lieutenant General for King James in Ireland, driv'n out of Ireland by General Ginkle, 630.

Shepherd, Mr. lets the New East-India Company on Foot, 748.

Shonfield, Henry, Esq; Prosecuted for taking down the Painted Glass out of a Church in Sarum, 65.

Sherlock, Dr. William, reconcil'd to King

William's Government, 641. Is made Dean of St. Paul's, ibid. His Dispute with Dr. South, 713, 714.

Sheriffs, Contentions about Electing them in London, 404.

Ship-Money, laid upon the Ports and Maritime Counties by the King's Authority, 26. Several Petitions against it, ibid. The Inhabitants of the Ports leave 'em to avoid paying it, ibid. Projected by Mr. Noy, 69. The Writ for it, ibid. The demand of it enlarg'd, 75. Grows more Odious, ibid. More Murmurs about it, 73. The Judges give their Opinion about it, 79. Lord Clarendon's Opinion of it, ibid. Voted Illegal by Parliament, 98.

Shorter, Sir John, Lord Mayor of London, Compliments the Pope's Nuncio, 469.

Shovell, Sir Cloudfly, Knighted on the Action at Bantry Bay, 528. Made Admiral by King William, 659.

Shrewsbury, Charles Talbot Earl of, quits a Regiment of Horse in K. James's Service, 488. Mortgages his Estate for 40000 l. and goes over to the Prince of Orange, ibid. Made Secretary of State, 668. Duke, 670. One of the Lords Justices of England, 693. Against 720. And again, 735. Relinquishes his Secretary's Place to Travel, 767. Made Lord Chamberlain, 769.

Shute, Samuel, Esq; Chosen one of the Sheriffs of London, in Opposition to the Court Party, 401. Sent to the Tower, and why, 404. Bind for a Riot, 408.

Sibthorp, Dr. Preaches a Sermon to justify the King's imposing publick Taxes without Consent of Parliament, 28. His Advancement and Character, ibid.

Sidney, Algernon, Esq; his Trial, unjust Sentence and Death, 412. His last Speech, ibid. 413, 414. His Attainder Annull'd and made Void, 528.

Sidney, Henry, Esq; his Brother made Gentleman of the Bed-chamber by King William, 515. Created Viscount, 524. One of the Lords Justices of Ireland, 565. Secretary of State, 571. Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 641. His Quarrel with Sir Rowlan Gwyn, 645. The Lord Chancellor of Ireland's Speech to him, 659. Made Master of the Ordnance, and Colonel of the first Regiment of Guards, 668. And Earl of Rumney, 670. See Rumney, Earl of.

Skelton, Sir Berwill, King James's Ambassador in Holland, his fruitless Endeavours to seize the Duke of Monmouth, 434. He discovers the Design of the Prince of Orange's Landing, 488. Committed to the Tower, and then made Governor of it, 489, 498. Turn'd out by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, 501.

Skeyne, Laird of, his Justification of the Conventiclers Designs in Scotland against Charles II. 392.

Scalley, Sir Charles, his Speech against large Salaries and Pensions from the Crown, 556.

Slaves Redeem'd, 295.

Slingsby, Sir Henry, Condemn'd by Cromwell's High Court of Justice, 207. His Death, and Character from the Lord Clarendon, ibid.

Smith, Mr. Alexander, a depos'd Minister in Scotland, his bold Behaviour and Punishment, 258.

Smith, Mr. Francis, a Bookseller, his Troubles for Printing the Paper call'd Rance-show, 422.

Smith, Mr. Aaron, order'd to be taken into Custody of the Serjeant at Arms, for speaking against the Being of Charles II's Long Parliament, 313.

Solriize, Duke of, Advises the Duke of Bucks to attack Oleron, 35. His Advice not follow'd, ibid.

Socinianism first broach'd in England, 189. Spreads, 713.

Solebay, Naval Battel of, 256.

Solmes, Count of, advances with the Prince of Orange's Guards to St. James's, 503. Finds the King's Guards at their Posts, ibid. The Loss of the Battel of Stenkirk owing to him, 651. In Disgrace with King William, ibid.

Somers, John, Esq; Council for the Bishops, 484. His Argument for them, 485. His Speech at the Conference for the Word Abdicat, 511. Is said to have drawn up King William's Declaration of War with France, 525. Made Solicitor-General by him, 528. Made Lord Keeper of the Great-Seal, 660. And one of the Lords Justices of England, 693. Again, 720. Made Lord Chancellor, and Baron Somers, 735.

Somers, John Lord, made Lord High Chancellor, 735. One of the Lords Justices again, ibid. And again, 755. The King's Letter to him about the Treaty of Partition, ibid. Again one of the Lords Justices, 768. A Motion against him Rejected, 780. The Seals taken from him, 783. Many People displeas'd at it, ibid. Vindicates himself in the House of Commons, as to the Partition-Treaty, 802. Another Letter of King William's to him, ibid. His Letter to the King, ibid. Impeach'd by Mr. Harcourt in the Name of the Commons, ibid. Their Address against him, and the Lords for him, 803, 804. The Articles of Impeachment against him carried up by Mr. Harcourt to the Lords, 807. The Lord Somers's Answer, ibid. Contests between the Lords and Commons about his Tryal, 813, 814, 815, 816. He is Try'd, and Honourably Acquitted, 817. The Commons Remonstrate upon it, ibid.

Somers, Earl of, Prosecuted in the Star-Chamber for spreading a Libel, 57.

Somers, Charles Seymour, Duke of, refuses to attend the Pope's Nuncio at his Entrance, 469. Sworn of the Privy-Council to King William, and appointed one of the Lords Justices, 821. Made President of the Council, 827.

Somers, County of, Loyal to Charles I. 159.

Sophia, Princess, Dutchess Dowager of Hanover, first mention'd to Succeed to the Crown of England, 529. Declar'd next in Succession to the Crown of England, 794. The Crown settl'd on her, 811, 820.

South, Dr. his Dispute with Dr. Sherlock, 713.

Southampton, Wriothesley Earl of, Impos'd upon by a Court-Party to Act against our Parliamentary Constitution, 237. Vehemently opposes the Corporation-Act against the Dissenters, 259. His Death, 266.

Southwark, Borough of, their Instructions to the Members they Chose for King William's Last Parliament, 826.

Spain, Charles II. King of, his Death, 789. His Will, 790.

Speakers, Three Chosen in one Parliament, before any Business was dispatch'd, 212.

Speeches, severe ones to the Parliament from the Throne, of ill Consequences, 17.

Speeches, King Charles II's to his First Parliament, 4. Lord Keeper's to them, 5. King Charles's to them at Oxford, 6. The Lord Treasurer's about the King's Debts, ibid. Lord Keeper's to King Charles's Second Parliament, 14. Sir Heneage Finch, Speaker of the House of Commons, to the King, 15. Several in Parliament, 17. The King's, and the Lord Keeper's to the House, ibid. A severe one of the King's, 18. Sir Dudley Diggs's Speech at the Lords Bar, when he Impeach'd the Duke of Bucks, 22. Sir John Elliot's at the Conclusion of it, 23. The King's in his Defence, ibid. To the Queen's French Servants when he Dismiss'd them, 27. Sir William Beeche's to the Robbellers, 35. The King's and the Lord Keeper's to the Third Parliament, 38, 39. One without Doors, a Letter so call'd, 39. Several in Parliament about Grievances, ibid. Another of the King's in Answer to the Parliament's Petition against Recufants, 40. More speeches in Parliament, 40, 41. Lord Keeper's to Urge the Dispatch of Money-Bills, 41. Two Speeches more of the King's at passing the Petition of Right, 43. Several in Parliament, 42, 43. An Angry Speech of the King's, 44. The Speaker's to the Lords at Delivery of the Money-Bill, ibid. The King's at the Opening of a Second Session, 46. At the Dissolution of that Parliament, 48. Several in Parliament, 46, 47, 48. Mr. Ross's against Dr. Manwaring, 51. Archbishop Laud's at the Centure of Burton, Bastwick, and Prynne, 85. King Charles I. to his Fourth Parliament, 94. A Ridiculous one of the Lord Keeper Finch, ibid.

ibid. Several in Parliament, 95. The King's at the Dissolution of this Parliament, ibid. To the Lords at York, 96. His Speech to his Fifth and Last Parliament, 97. Several Speeches by Members of it, ibid., 98. Charles I.'s Healing Speech, 99. Another at passing the Triennial Bill, 100. Several Speeches against the Convocation, 103. Several in Parliament, 105. Archbishop Laud's when he was charg'd with High Treason, 106. The King's in favour of the Lord Strafford, 107. The Lord Strafford's Last Speech, 108. The King's Two Speeches about the Supply, and Tonnage and Poundage, 108, 109. Another, ibid. To his Scots Parliament, 110. Two Speeches of the King's after his Return from Scotland, 112. His Speech when he demanded the Five Members, 113. His Pathetical Speech at Newmarket, ibid. Sir Edward Dering's for the Bishops, 114. The King's to the Gentlemen at York, when he propos'd to Raise an Army, 116. To a Parliament he held at Oxford, 133. To the same when he Dissolv'd them, 137. Archbishop Laud's at his Tryal, 141. And Execution, 142. King Charles's several Speeches at his Tryal, 166 to 170. His Last Speech, 171. Cromwell's to the Rump, when he Dissolv'd them by Force, 190. To his First Parliament, 193. And when he Dissolv'd them, 194. Several to Cromwell, to persuade him to be King, 201. Cromwell's Self-denying Speech, 203. Major-General Lambe's to the Rump, when they were Restor'd, 214. General Monk's to the Rump, when he came from Scotland, 217. Lord Chancellor Hyde's about King Charles's Declaration of Indulgence in Religion, 229. King Charles's and the Lord Chancellor Hyde's about the Match with the Infanta of Portugal, 230. The Chancellor Hyde's against Dissenting Teachers, 236. King Charles's in Answer to the Parliament's Address against Papists, 244. Another against Regiments, and the Triennial Bill, 249, 250. Another, 251. King Charles and the Lord Chancellor Hyde's to the Long-Parliament adjourn'd to Oxford, against the Dutch, 257. King Charles and the Lord Keeper Bridgman's to them, after Peace with the Dutch, 266. Mr. Edward Seymour's when he carry'd up the Articles against the Lord Clarendon to the Lords, 268. King Charles's on his Concluding a Defensive League with the Dutch against France, 270. Another of his to the Scots Parliament, 275. King Charles II. about the Dispensing Power, 291. Lord Chancellor Shaftsbury's Remarkable One to Baron Thurland, 296. King Charles and the Lord Keeper's for Money, 304. King Charles II.'s on Marrying his Niece to the Prince of Orange, 316. Charles II.'s about the Popish-Plot, 365. The Bill of Exclusion, 366. And a Supply, 367. The King's and Lord Chancellor's at the Opening of his Parliament at Westminster, 372. The King's to them on making a Popular Privy-Council, 374. King's and Lord Chancellor's about Limiting a Popish Successor, 375. Duke of York to the Privy-Council in Scotland, 377. Lord Shaftsbury's against Popery, 379. Lord Russell and Sir H. Capell's against Popery, and Popish Successors, 383 to 385. Sir Leoline Jenkins's against the Exclusion-Bill, 385. A very bold one against the Duke of York, 386. Several against a Popishly-Affected Clergy, 392. One in favour of the Dissenters, 393. Earl of Essex's when he deliver'd the Petition and Advice, 394. King Charles II.'s to the Oxford Parliament, 395. The Speaker Williams's to the King, 395, 396. The Lord Chancellor's Answer, ibid. Sir William Jones's on the Loss of the Dissenters-Bill, 396. Dr. Gower's and Dr. Cocker's, Vice-Chancellors of Cambridge, to the King and Duke of York, 402, 404. The Lord Russell's Last Speech, 410. Algernon Sidney's, 412. James II.'s First Speech to the Council, 427. And Parliament, 431. The Lord Keeper's, ibid. The Speaker's to the King, and another of the King's to the Parliament on passing the Tonnage and Poundage Bill, 433. King James's to his Parliament after the Duke of Monmouth's Defeat, 439. Several against his Stranding Army, ibid. King James's rough one to the Fellows of Magdalen, 473. The Bishop of Chester's to them, ibid. Another, 480. King James's to the Officers of the Army, when he was going to Salisbury, 497. Sir George Treby's to the Prince of Orange when he came to St. James's, 504. The Prince of Orange's to the Parliament that met before the Convention, 505. To the Convention, 507. Several at a Conference between the Lords and Commons, for and against the Word Abdicato, 510, 511. The Prince of Orange's when he accepted the Crown, 514. His First Speech to the Parliament, 515. His Speech to them about Tenderness to Dissenters, 518. To the Scots Lords and Gentlemen in London, 520. Bishop of London's at the Head of his Clergy to King William, 521. Dr. Barrow's to King William, 522. And to Queen Mary, 523. Mr. Powle's, Speaker of the House of Commons, to Congratulate King William and Queen Mary upon their Coronation, 525. On presenting the Money-Bill to the King, 526. Another of his on a like Occasion, 531. King William's to them to quicken their dispatch of Business, 532. An Artful one of Mr. Speaker Powle's on paying the Debt to the Dutch, 534. A Remarkable one of King William's before he went to the Congress, 543. Another, 547. Another Speech of Mr. Speaker Powle's to King William, 545. Mr. Hampden's, Jun. against some of King William's Ministers, 546. The King's at the Opening of his Second Parliament, 555. Sir Charles Stiley's against Large Pensions and Salaries from the Crown, 556. King William's on his going for Ireland, 558. To the Parliament at his Return, 565. About the Civil-List, 568. Two other Speeches of his, 569. Count De la Tour, the Savoy Ambassador's, to King William, 570. His Speech to the Princes at the Congress, 573. St. Ruth's to the Irish before the Battel of Agbrin, 627. King William's when the Parliament met again, 630, 631. Another, 633. Another Remarkable one when they met again, 653. A long one of the Earl of Mulgrave's, 655, 656. King William's when the Parliament broke up, 659. Lord Chancellor of Ireland's to the Lord Sidney Deputy, ibid. King William's to the Parliament when it met, 665. Another, 668. Another, 669. His Speech to the Parliament when they met again, 672. Another, 686. Several in Parliament about the Duke of Leeds on his Impeachment, 689. The Duke's Speech in the House of Lords in his own Defence, ibid. And in the House of Commons, ibid. Other Speeches in Parliament for his Impeachment, 690. Others of the Duke's in his Defence, 691. King William's when the Parliament broke up, 692. The Lord Capell's to the Parliament in Ireland, 700. And the Lord Tweedale's to that in Scotland, 701. King William's to his Parliament at their first Opening, 703. Speeches about Altering the Coin, 705. Mr. Price's Speech against the Lord Portland's Grant of Donbigh, and King William's at the breaking up of the Parliament, 717. And at their Sitting again, 723. Mr. Methwin's for Sir John Fenwick's Bill, 728, 729, 730. Sir Godfrey Coply's against it, 730. Who spoke for and against it, ibid. King William's at the breaking up of the Parliament, 734. And at their next Meeting, 740, 741. At their breaking up, 752. At the Meeting of his Parliament, 758. Another on passing the Disbanding-Bill, 759. Lords Justices to the Parliament in Ireland, 762. King William's when the Parliament broke up, 767. And when they met again, 769, 770. At their next Meeting, 774. The French Ambassador's to the States, on the Duke of Anjou's being Declar'd King of Spain, 790. King William's about the Liberty of Europe, 812. Lord Harcourt's Offensive to the Commons, 814. Mr. Speaker Harley's to the King, 820. The King's at the breaking up of the Session, ibid. To the States on the Alterations in Europe, and their Answer, 822. His Memorable Speech to his Last Parliament when they met, 827. Dr. Tenison's, Archbishop of Canterbury, to the Lower House of Convocation, on their Difference with the Upper, 838. Another Tender Speech of his to them when he Dissolv'd them, 848.

Sprague, Sir Edward, defends Sheerney's Foil against the Dutch, 265. Engages the Dutch in the Thames, ibid. Sent Envoy to the Constable of Castile, Governor of the Netherlands, 271. His Bravery, and Death, 295, 296.

Spraz, Dr. Thomas, a great Favourite, made Bishop of Rochester by James II. 429. One of the Prelates most in Favour with him, 445. One of the High-Commission-Court, 446. Order'd to draw up a Thanksgiving for Queen Mary's being with Child, 470. Taken up for Young's Sham-Plot, and Discharg'd, 653.

Stafford, Lord, Committed to the Tower for Treason, 368. Condemn'd and Executed, 388. An Act to Repeal his Attainder pass'd in the House of Lords in King James's Reign, 444. Dropt by the Commons, ibid.

Stages, its Liberty very Scandalous, 765.

Stamford, Earl of, his Regiment in the Parliament's Service put to the Sword by the King's Forces at Cirencester, 118.

Stamford, Thomas Gray, Earl of, the unjust Proceedings against him in King James's Reign, 441.

Stanhope, Mr. Ambassador at the Hague, his Discourse with the French Ambassador there, on the Death of the King of Spain, 789. His Memorial on the French King's breaking the Partition-Treaty, 799.

Staples, Alexander, Esq; Expell'd the Parliament in Ireland for Dilloyalty to Charles II. 258.

Stapleton, Sir Philip, one of the Eleven Members Impeach'd by the Army, 155.

Star-Chamber-Court Censur'd, 65. Put down, 109.

Stapley, William, a Papist, Hang'd for Treason against Charles II. 369.

Stayer, Captain, takes 2 Millions from the Spaniards, 200.

Stenkirck, Battel of, 630.

Stephens, Mr. William, his Sermon before the House of Commons, 777. His Character, ibid.

Stern, John, Hang'd for Murdering Mr. Tymme, 402.

Sterry, Mr. a Minister, a Prophane Saying of his on Cromwell's Death, 209.

Stewart, Mr. James, his Negotiation with Mr. Egell, to get the Prince and Princess of Orange's Consent to Repeal the Test and Penal Laws, Ineffectual, 466, 467.

Stewart, Archibald, his Justification of the Scots Conventiclers Proceedings against Charles II. 392.

Stillingfleet, Dr. Edward, Chosen Prolocutor of the Convocation, 362. His Sermon on Separation, 392.

Stock-Jobbing, the Grievance of it, 734.

Strafford, Thomas Wentworth, Earl of, hates Sir Henry Vane, 92. His Quarrel with the Lord Chancellor Loftus, 93. His Favour, ibid. One of the first Movers to the Calling a Parliament, 94. Made Lieutenant-General in the Second Expedition against the Scots, ibid. A Charge of High-Treason brought against him by the Commons, 98. He is taken into Custody, ibid. His ill Conduct, ibid., 106. His Tryal, and good Defence, ibid. Attainted in Parliament, 107. His Letter to the King, ibid. He is Beheaded, 108. His Last Speech, ibid.

Strickland, Walter, Esq; sent by the Parliament to be their Agent in Holland, 119.

Stringer, Dr. pretends to discover a Plot against King William, 830.

Stroud, Mr. William, a Member of Parliament, proceeded against for his Actions in the House, 48, 49, 58. One of the Five Members demanded by the King, 113.

Succession in the Protestant Line first debated in Parliament, 529. All Papists disabled, 546.

Succession in the Protestant Line to the Crown of England settled, 794. The Limitations of it, ibid., 811, 820.

Sunderland, Earl of, Slain on the King's side at the Battel of Newbury, 128. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Sunderland, Robert Spencer Earl of, made Secretary of State by Charles II. 369. And President of the Council by James II. 444. What is said of his being reconcil'd to the Church of Rome, 453. One of the High-Commission Court, 452. His Evidence at the Bishop's Trial, 485. Instrumental in King James's refusing the 30000 Men offer'd him by the French King against the Prince of Orange, 488. Turn'd out of his Offices by King James, 492. Excepted out of King William's Act of Indemnity, 557. Made Lord Chamberlain by King William, and grows great in Favour, 735. Made one of the Lords Justices of England, ibid. Relinquish his Lord Chamberlain's place, and why, 745.

Sunderland, Countess of, Instrumental in the Revolution, 488.

Sweden, Gustavus Adolphus King of, his Expedition into Germany, 58. Beats Count Tilly at Leipzig, 59. His Death, 63.

Syndercomb, Miles, his Plot against Cromwell, 200. His sudden Death, ibid.

Synods, Scots, the Form of 'em, 254.

T.

TAbernacles, Meeting-Houses turn'd into, 281.

Tallard, Count de, lands at Greenwich. Ambassador from Lewis XIV. to William the III. 745. His ordinary Entrance, 754. Has his Audience of Leave on the King of Spain's Death, 790.

Talmajh, Colonel, his Bravery at Athlone, 627. And at the Battel of Aghrim, 628. His Saying to General Bourk before Galloway, 629. For taking the Town by Storm, ibid. His fine Retreat at Landen, 662. Kill'd at Camerac Bay, 791. Suppos'd to be sent a Sacrifice to Envy, or something worse, 670.

Tangier, in Africa, part of Queen Katherine's Portion, 236. Made a Free Port, 240. The Conveniency of its Situation, ibid. The Expence of Keeping it, ibid. Debates of the Conveniences and Inconveniences of it, 387. Demolish'd, 416.

Tankerville, Ford Lord Grey made Earl of, 693. First Commissioner of the Treasury, and one of the Lords Justices of England, 784. Made Lord Privy Seal, 790. His Death, 821.

Taunton, reliev'd by the Parliament Forces, 144.

Temple, Sir William, Resident for Charles II. at Brussels, concludes a defensive League with the Dutch on the French King's Invading Flanders, 270. King Charles's Plenipotentiary at Aix la Chapelle to mediate a Peace between France and Spain, 271. Sent Ambassador to the States, ibid. Ill us'd by Charles II. 280. Negotiates a Peace with the Dutch, 297. His Conference with the Prince of Orange, about a Peace, 301. About King Charles's Ministers, 306, 307. Plenipotentiary for the Treaty at Nimwegen, ibid. His Conference with the Prince of Orange about a Separate Peace, 311. His Conference with the Prince of Orange, about the Prince's Match with the Princess Mary, 313, 314. His Concern in that Match, ibid. 315. His last Negotiation with the Prince of Orange about the War, 363. His discourse with him on King Charles II. being for a War after the Peace was Sign'd by the Dutch, 364. Disappointed of being Secretary, 369.

Temple, Mr. his Son, drowns himself for recommending Colonel Hamilton a Traytor to King William, 521.

Tennison, Dr. Thomas, made Bishop of Lincoln, 642. His good Character, ibid. His Account of Queen Mary's Death, 673. Very Instrumental in Reconciling Her Royal Highness the Princess Anne to King William, 674. Made Archbishop of Canterbury, 682. His Character of Queen Mary in her Funeral Sermon, 683, 684, 685. Procures Injunctions to be put forth by King William to restore Church Discipline, 684. Made one of the Lords Justices of England, 693. His Circular Letter to the Bishops for the Peace and Honour of the Establish'd Church, 714. 715. Again one of the Lords Justices, 720. And again, 735, and 755. Again, 768. His Circular Letter to the Bishops for promoting Peace and Piety, 776, 777. Again one of the Lords Justices, 784. And again, 821. His Speech to the Lower House of Convocation on their Divisions with the Upper, 838. Another tender Speech of his when he dismiss them, 848.

Term kept at Oxford in the Plague time, 258.

Tess Act past, 294. Test of Abhorrence,

Test Act and Penal Laws dispens'd with by King James, 445. He endeavours to have 'em Repeal'd in Scotland, 448. And in England, 466.

Testimonial Letters, Archbishop Sancroft's Directions about 'em, 871.

Theatre at Oxford open'd, 273.

Thomas, Dr. William, made Bishop of St. Davids, 361.

Thompson, Richard, a Parson of Bristol call'd to an account by Parliament for Opposing Petitioning, &c. 392. Made Dean by King Charles, ibid.

Thurlo, Mr. Oliver's Secretary, his Vigilance, 206. Leader of the Court Party in Richard's Parliament, 212. Sent into Holland to conclude a League with the Dutch, 315.

Thynne, Thomas, Esq; Assassinated by Count Coningsmark's Ruffians, 402.

Tillotson, Dr. John, has a Conference with Mr. Baxter for an Accommodation, 302. Made Archbishop of Canterbury, and Sworn of the Council, 641. His Consecration, 642. His Death, 679. The Lord Bishop of Sarum's Character of him, ibid. 680, 681, 682. King William's Saying of him, ibid.

Tilly, Count, Beats the King of Denmark at the Battel of Luttern, 26. Beaten by Gustavus Adolphus at Leipzig, 59.

Titus, Colonel, writes, Killing no Murder, a Libel against Cromwell, 205. Sworn Privy Counsellor to King James, 486.

Tiviot, Earl of, made Governor of Tangier, 240.

Tobago Island, taken from the Dutch, by Sir Toby Bridges, 296.

Tolras, Count, the French General, outwits the Duke of Bucks at the Ile of Rhe, 36.

Toland, Mr. a Scandalous Book of his censur'd by the Convocation, 837, 839.

Toleration Act past, 530. Heads of it, 550.

Tomkins, Mr. hang'd by the Parliament for Mr. Waller's Plot, 127.

Tonnage and Poundage, a Remonstrance about it, 44. It causes Disputes, 46. A bill pass'd for it, 109.

Torcy, Monsieur de, Secretary of State to the French King, his Letter to the Earl of Manchester when he was recall'd from his Embassy in France, 825.

Torrington, Arthur Herbert Admiral, Created Earl of, 535.

Tory, when that Party first so call'd, 381.

Tories, troublesome in Ireland in the Reign of King Charles II. 263.

Tour, Count de la, Ambassador from the Duke of Savoy to King William, his Speech, 570.

Tourville, Count, Admiral of the French Fleet, beaten by Admiral Ruffel, 647, 648.

Trade, Abuses in, Regulated, 64.

Travendale, Treaty of, 784.

Treaty and Pacification with the Scots, 92.

Treaties, between Charles I. and the Parliament,

1. At Brentford, comes to nothing, but is removed to,

2. Oxford, 118, 119. Continued there, and in what manner, 123, 124. Broke off, ibid.

3. Of Uxbridge, 140.

4. At the Ile of Wight, 161. Preliminaries to it, 162. It opens, ibid. The Army breaks it off, 163.

Treaty, between the English Parliament and the Scots, 128.

Treaty Pyrenean, between France and Spain, 218, 219. Of Breda, with the Dutch, 264. Of Aix La Chapelle, between France and Spain, 271. Between the English and the Algerines, 272.

Treaty of Peace between K. William and his Confederates begins, 720. Preliminaries of it, 735. The Allies Demands, ibid. First Conference, ibid. Goes on slowly, 737. Sign'd, 738, 740.

Treaty of Partition, 755. How manag'd, ibid. 756. Second Treaty of Partition, and the Articles of it, 786 to 789. Between France and Sweden, 756.

Treaty of Carlowitz between the Emperor and the Turks, 757. Of Travendall, between the Swedes and Danes, 784.

Troby, George, Esq; Knighted, and made

Recorder of London, 391. His Speech to congratulate the Prince of Orange on his coming to St. James's, 504. Made Attorney-General by King William, 528.

Tredagh, or Drogheda taken by Storm by Cromwell, 176. Surrendered to K. William, 563.

Trevor, Sir John, Secretary of State, Private Queries of his, relating to the Conduct of the Duke of Bucks, and others, Ambassadors in France, 289. His Death, ibid.

Trevor, Sir John, chosen Speaker of the House of Commons, held by James II. 431. Nominated first by the Lord Middleton, ibid. Chosen Speaker by K. William's Second Parliament, 555. Made one of the Commissioners of the Great-Seal, 558. Made Master of the Rolls, 659. Is charg'd with Corruption, and expell'd the House, when Speaker, 679.

Trump, Van, Admiral, with the Dutch Fleet, falls upon the Spanish Fleet in the Downs, 93. His Death, 192.

Trump, Van, his Son, Quarrels with De Ruyter, 261. Turn'd out of Commission for it by the States, 262. Restor'd to his Command, 295.

Tryals in Cases of High-Treason; Conferences and Debates in Parliament about them, 633.

Turkey Fleet, Surpris'd by the French, 664.

Turner, Sir Edward, chosen Speaker of Charles II's Second Parliament, 230. Made Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, 291.

Turner, Dr. his Queries in Parliament, 17. Explains and justifies himself, ibid.

Turner, Anthony a Jesuit, hang'd, 380.

Tusfany, Prince of, comes into England, 272. Visits the University of Cambridge, ibid. His Reception there, ibid. At Oxford, ibid. 273. And at London, ibid.

Tweedale, Marquis of, King William's High Commissioner in Scotland, holds a Parliament there, 701, 702.

Twisden, Serjeant, imprison'd for pleading a Cause against Cromwell, 197.

Twiss, Dr. Prolocutor of the Assembly of Divines, 134.

Tyddeman, Sir Thomas, Attacks the Dutch Merchant-ships at Bergen in Norway, 25. But takes none, ibid. Refuses to engage the Dutch, and why, 260.

Tyrconnell, Col. Talbot Earl of, his Rise, 450. Accus'd by Oats of the Popish Plot, ibid. He models the Irish Army, ibid. His Speech in answer to the Lord Clarendon, when he receiv'd the Sword of him as Deputy, 451. Made a Privy-Councillor in England, 452. Answers the Expectations of the Papists, who recommended him to be their Governor in Ireland, 473. King William writes to him to submit, 521. Secures Ireland for King James, 538. Made a Duke, 539. Flies to France, 572. He dies of Grief, 629.

Tythes, abolish'd by the Rump, 189. The City of London against it, 192.

V.

Valentine, Mr. Benjamin, prosecuted for his Speeches and Actions as a Member of Parliament, 49. Fin'd 500 l. ibid. Remov'd to the Gate-House, 58.

Vane, Sir Henry, his Embassy to the King of Sweden in Germany, 59. His Negotiations there, 63. Made Secretary of State, 92. Carries Two Messages from the King to the House of Commons, 96. His Evidence against the Earl of Strafford, 106.

Vane, Sir Henry, Jun. brings up a Charge of High Treason against Archbishop Laud to the Lords, 105. Opposes the Recognizing Richard in Parliament, 212. Is a Republican, ibid. Excepted out of King Charles II's Act of General Pardon, 224. He is Try'd, 238. His troublesome Behaviour at his Tryal and Execution, ibid.

Vaudmont, Prince of, his admirable Retreat, and King William's Letter to him upon it, ibid.

Vaudois, reliev'd and assist'd by King William, 652.

Vendosme, Duke of, his Actions in Catalonia, against the Prince of Hesse Darmstadt, 721.

Venables, sent with Pen to the West-Indies, is unfortunate and imprison'd by Cromwell, 196.

W.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Waller, Mr. his Plot, 127.

Venner, Thomas, the Fifth Monarchist, Conspires against Cromwell, 206. Raises an Infurrection against King Charles II. 225. The Madnes of his Followers, ibid. His own Brutal Courage, ibid. Wounded, taken and executed, ibid.

Vienna, besieg'd by the Turks, 416.

Villeroi, Marechal de, Commands the French Army on the Death of the Duke of Luxemburg, 693. Will not Exchange the Garisons of Dixmuyde and Depuse according to the Cartel, 696. Bombards Brussels, ibid. Makes a vain Attempt to raise the Siege of Namur, 697. He retires, 699.

Villiers, Edward Lord Viscount, made Plenipotentiary at the Treaty of Reswyck by King William, 732. One of the Lords Justices of Ireland, 735. And Earl of Jersey, 740.

Vincent, Shadrach Esq; His Loyal Addresses to Queen Mary, from the Miners of Cornwall, 562.

Uniformity-Act passes, 236. Proceedings of the Parliament about it, 241. The chief Matters contain'd in it, 242. The Wisdom and Moderation of it, 243. By whom first broken, ibid.

Uratz, Capt. a German, hang'd for Murdering Mr. Thynne, 402.

Usher, Dr. James, Archbishop of Armagh, protests against Tolerating Popery, 34. Voted out of the Assembly of Divines, 125. Goes to the King at Oxford, ibid. Allow'd to preach by the Parliament, 160.

Usbridge, Treaty of; 140.

W.

Walcot, Capt. Thomas, hang'd for the Phanatick Plot, 409.

Waldeck, Prince, Commands the Confederate Army in Flanders again, 625. His Rear attack'd, ibid.

Wales, pretended Prince of, said to be born, 484. The Manner of his Baptism impolitic, 491. Believ'd to be an Imposture, 492. King James's vain Attempt to remove Suspicion, ibid. Carry'd off to France by Advice of the French Ambassador, 500. Own'd King of England, Scotland, and Ireland, by Lewis XIV. 825. No Peace to be made with France, till Satisfaction be giv'n by the French King, for the Affront he put upon the Nation in it, 830. He is attain'd by Parliament, ibid. 832.

Walker, Mr. a Minister in Ireland, raises a Regiment for the Defence of the Protestants, 539. Chosen Governor of Londonderry, ibid. Preacher to the Garrison in its Extremity, 542. Thank'd for his good Services by the House of Commons, 544. Kill'd at the Boyne, 560.

Wallace, a Scots Covenanter, raises a Rebellion against King Charles II. 264. Defeated by Duke Hamilton, ibid.

Wallenstein, his Treason and Death, 63.

Waller, Edmund Esq; his bold Speech in Parliament, 95. His Plot to Seize some Leading Men of the Parliament, 127. His Punishment and Character, ibid.

Waller, Mr. his Son, a Member of Parliament, turns Quaker, 765.

Waller, Sir William, takes Farnham-Castle, and Winchester, for the Parliament, 118. Takes Malmesbury, Chepstow, Monmouth, and Hereford, 124. Defeats the Lord Herbert, and is himself defeated, ibid. Fights Prince Maurice and the Earl of Carnarvon at Lansdown, 127. Beats the Lord Hopton at Cheriton-Down, 138. Pursues the King, ibid. Very instrumental in gaining the Battel of Newbury, 139. One of the Eleven Members impeach'd by the Army, 155.

Waller, Sir William, his Son, discovers Fitzharris's Plot, 397.

Wallingford House, the General Council of Officers there meet, and turn out Richard Cromwell, 213. Their Address to the Rump about the Form of Government they would have settled, ibid. They turn out the Rump, and settle a Council of Officers in the Government, 215. Set up a Committee of Safety to Govern. ibid. They are afraid of Monk, 216. They send Lambert against him, ibid. Their Government put an end to by Fleetwood, 217.

Wallop, Robert Esq; drawn from the Tower to Tyburn, with a Halter about his Neck, &c. 237.

Warwick, Earl of, made Admiral by the Parliament, 115.

Warwick, Robert Rich Earl of, is one of Oliver's House of Lords, 204.

Warwick, Sir Philip, his Account of Cromwell's Death, 209. His Character of General Monk's being tempted by the French Ambassador to take the Government on himself, 218. Of the Faction and Violence of the Independant Preachers, 220.

Warwick, Edward Rich-Earl of, try'd for the Murder of Richard Coor, Esq; 767. Found guilty of Manslaughter, ibid.

Weavers, Tumultuous, and why, 533, 534.

Wellwood, Dr. taken up for meddling with the Parliament in his Observations, 632.

Wentworth, Sir Thomas, made Sheriff of Yorkshire, to prevent his being chosen a Member of Parliament, 13. Speaks smartly about Grievances, 39, 40, 41, 42. Made a Baron, and brought over to the Court, 45. Made Deputy of Ireland, 63. His Actions there, 65. Promotes Arminianism in Ireland, 71. His Advice to the King about the Scots War, 91. Made Earl of Strafford, 92. The Queen offended with him, and why, ibid. See Strafford, Earl of.

Wentworth, Sir Peter, hector'd by Cromwell out of a Cause at Law, 197.

Werdt, John de, beats the Swedes at Norlinguen, 71.

West, Robert, an Evidence in the Phanatick Plot, 409.

Weston, Sir Richard, his High Message to the Commons from King Charles I. 16. His Second, about Mr. Cook's Saying, and Dr. Turner's Queries, 17. Made Lord Treasurer, and why, 45. Against a pompous Funeral for the Duke of Bucks, ibid. Dies a Papist, 70. His Character, ibid.

Wharton, Philip Lord, Committed for questioning the Legality of King Charles II's Long Parliament, 309. His Journey to Germany a Feint to see the P. of Orange, 483.

Wharton, Thomas Esq, joins the Prince of Orange, 496.

Wharton, Mrs. forcibly Married to Capt. Campbell, 568. The Marriage made void by Parliament, ibid.

Whig, when that Party first so call'd, 381.

Whitaker, Mr. Edward, his Troubles in King James's Reign, 452.

Whitebread, Thomas, Provincial of the Jesuits, hang'd, 382.

Whitlock, Bullstode Esq; made Commissioner of the Great Seal by the Rump, 176. His Speech to Cromwell, to persuade him to be King, 201.

Whitby, Col. Roger, his Message from King Charles to Sir George Booth, 214. Garisons Harling-Castle for the King, ibid.

Wich, Sir Peter, Sent Ambassador to Muscovy, 273.

Widdrington, Lord, kill'd at the Battel of Worcester, 185. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Widdrington, Sir Thomas, impeaches Doctor Wren Bishop of Ely, at the Lords Bar, 114. Chosen Speaker of Cromwell's Second Parliament, 200.

Wild, Serjeant, impeaches 13 Bishops at the Lords Bar, 114. Made one of the Commissioners of the Great Seal by Parliament, 132.

Wildman, Major, excluded the Parliament-House by Cromwell, 193. Seiz'd for penning a Libel against him, 194. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

William III. (and Mary II.) King of England; Proclaim'd, 515. The King Constitutes his Privy-Council, ibid. His First Speech to the Parliament, ibid. He parts with Chimney-Money, 516. His Answer to the Parliament's Address on King James's Landing in Ireland, 517. Two Scots Regiments revolt from him, and are suppress'd, 518. His Speech about Tenderness to Dissenters, ibid. His Two Speeches to the Scots Lords and Gentlemen, whom he Summon'd to a Consultation in London, 520. His Answer to the Bishop of London's, and the Dissenting Ministers Address, 522. His and his Queen's Coronation, and the Manner of it, 524. His Answer to the Parliament's Address for a War with France, 526. His Declaration of War, 527. Desires the Parliament to settle the Succession in the Protestant Line, 529. A good Address of the City of London to him, 531. His Clemency even to Papists, 532. His Speech to the Parliament, to quicken their Dispatch of Business, ibid. The Lords Address to him, about paying the Debt to the Dutch, 534. His Letter to the Scots Convention, 535. He and Queen Mary declar'd King and Queen of Scotland, 537, 538. His Objection to the Scots Coronation-Oath, ibid. A Remarkable Speech of his to the Parliament, before he went to the Congress, 543, 548. He and the Royal Family treated by the Lord-Mayor, 548. His Picture in Guild-hall abus'd, ibid. His Speech to his Second Parliament, 555. When he went for Ireland, 558. He Lands in that Kingdom, ibid. Obtains the Glorious Victory of the Boyne, ibid. 559, 560. The Queen's Behaviour on the Defeat of the Fleet, 562, 563. He goes to Dublin, ibid. Besieges Limerick, 564. In danger at the Siege of Limerick, 565. He returns to England, and makes a Speech to the Parliament, ibid. The Lords Address of Congratulation to him, 566. And Commons, 567. His Speech to Thank 'em, and about the Civil-List, 568. Two other Speeches of his, 569. Goes to the Congress at the Hague, and is in danger at Sea, 572. His Speech to the Princes Assembled there, 573. Passes over to England, returns immediately to Holland, Commands the Confederate Army, and takes the Field, 625. Endeavours to draw Luxemburg to a Battel in Flanders, ibid. Leaves the Army, ibid. And returns to Kensington, 626. His Speech when the Parliament met, 630, 631. Other Speeches of his, 633, 640. Makes several Bishops and Deans in the room of the Nonjurors, 641, 642. His Care for Reformation of Manners, ibid. Goes for Holland, 645. Endeavours to Relieve Namur, 650. He Attacks Luxemburg at Steinkirk unsuccessfully, 651. His Concern for the English there, ibid. Brings the Duke of Savoy into the Confederacy, and afflicts him, 652. Leaves the Army, and returns to England, 653. Dines at Guild-Hall, ibid. His Speech to the Parliament when they met, ibid. Another when they broke up, 659. Goes for Holland and Flanders, seizes Park Camp, and breaks the French King's Design, 660. Makes large Detachments to force the French Lines, and relieve Liège, 660. Attack'd at Landen by Luxemburg, ibid. And is forc'd to retire, 661, 662. His Piety, Courage, and Conduct in that Action, 661, 662. His Danger, ibid. Rais'd by the French, ibid. Peace offer'd to him, 664. He returns from Holland, 665. His Speech to the Parliament when they met, ibid. He twice refuses the Bill for free and impartial Proceedings in Parliament, 666. Two Speeches more of his to the Parliament, 668, 669. Goes for Holland, 670. And Flanders, 671. His Fleet Triumphant in the Mediterranean, ibid. His Actions in Flanders, ibid. 672. Takes Huy, ibid. He returns to England, ibid. His Speech to the Parliament when they met again, ibid. How he bore the Loss of his Queen, 674. Regulates the Coin, 692, 705, 706. His Speech when the Parliament broke up, ibid. Goes for Holland and Flanders, 693. His Marches, ibid. 694. He besieges Namur, ibid. His Letter to Prince Vaudemont on his admirable Retreat, ibid. His Saying of the English at Namur, ibid. His Marches to prevent Villeroi's Raising the Siege, 697. Takes the Place gloriously, 699. He returns to England, 703. His Progress, ibid. What happen'd at Oxford in it, ibid. He Dissolves the Parliament, and Calls Another, ibid. His Speech to them, ibid. 704. Two Affairs in Parliament that nearly concern'd him, 707. His Answer to the Commons about the Lord Portland, 709. Examines Mr. Pendergrass and Mr. de la Rue, about the Assassination-Plot, 711. His Speech to the Parliament upon it, 712. His Preparations to oppose King James's Invasion from Calais, 711, 712. Puts out Instructions for Unity in the Church, 714. Denies the Royal Assent to the Bill about Regulating Elections, 717. His Speech at the breaking up of the Session, ibid. Passes over to Holland, 720. Acts Defensively in Flanders, ibid. Visits the Court of Brandenburg at Cleves, 723. Returns to England, ibid. His Speech at the Meeting of the Parliament, ibid. And at the Breaking up, 734. Goes for Holland again, 735. His Indisposition hinders him from relieving Ash, 737. The Peace owing to him, 738. Orders an Answer to be writ to K. James's Intended Memorial, to be deliver'd at Reswick, 739. Cannot prevail for any Relief for the French Protestants, ibid. 740. Visited by the Czar of Muscovy, ibid. His Speech at the Meeting of the Parliament after the Peace, 740, 741. His Mentioning Standing Forces does not please, ibid. He disbands great part of the Army, 742. Puts out a Proclamation against Prophaneness and Immorality, 745. His Speech at the Parliaments breaking up, 752, 753. Fond of the Duke of Gloucester, 755. Goes for Holland, ibid. His Letter to the Lord Chancellor Somers about the Partition Treaty, ibid. He concludes it, 756. Visits the Duke of Zell, ibid. His Influence on the Affairs of Europe, 757. He returns to England, 758. His Speech at the Opening of His Parliament, ibid. Is for Standing-Forces, and why, ibid. The Parliament against it, ibid. Another Gracious Speech, opposing the Disbanding Bill, 759. Desires his Dutch Guards might stay, but cannot prevail with the Parliament to admit of it, 760. His Speech at breaking up the Session of Parliament, 767. Goes for Holland; His Diversions and Affairs Abroad, 768. Claims the Dutchy of Neuchastel, ibid. Returns to England, 769. His Speech when the Parliament met again, ibid. 770. Uneasie at their refusing His Grants, 771, 772. Goes for Holland, 782. Visited by several Princes, 784. By the Princess Sophia, Electress of Hanover, ibid. Assists the King of Sweden, ibid. Returns to England, ibid. His Speech when the Parliament met again, 794. He forms a New Confederacy against the French, 795. His Letter to the Elector of Brandenburg, at his taking the Title of King of Prussia, 796. His Answer to the Convocational Address, 798. His Demands of the French King, to prevent a New War, 799, 800. His Message to the Commons on the French Ambassador's Answer, ibid. His Letter to the Duke of Anjou, acknowledging him King of Spain, 801. What occasion'd His acknowledging him, ibid. His Answer to the Commons Address against the Lords Portland, Somers, Orford, and Hullifax, 804. His Message to the Parliament about the Danger of Holland, ibid. Their Address in Answer, ibid. His Speech to the Parliament about the Liberty of Europe, 812. His Speech at the breaking up of the Session, 820. He declines in Health, and gives the Command of his Forces to the Earl of Marlborough, 821. Goes for Holland, ibid. His Speech to the States on the Alterations in Europe, and the States Answer, 822. Addresses to Him by the City of London, and other Cities and Towns, on the French King's owning the Pretended Prince of Wales to be King of England, 825. Concludes the Grand Alliance against France, ibid. Is detain'd in Holland by Sickness, 826. He believes he shall die in a little time, ibid. Calls His last Parliament, ibid. His MEMORABLE SPEECH to that Parliament, 827. Two Addresses of the Lords, and One of the Commons to him, on the French King's owning the Pretended Prince of Wales to be King of England, 828. And Seizing the Spanish Monarchy, 829. The King's Answer, ibid. Acts for the Security of his Person, 830. Falls from his Horse, and breaks his Collar-Bone, 831. His Discourse with the Surgeon and Doctor, ibid. Grants a Commission to Pass Bills in Parliament, ibid. His Last Agonies and Death, 832. His Love for his Queen, ibid. Report of the Physicians on Dissecting him, ibid. 833. His Will, ibid. His Memory vilify'd by the French, 834. Vindicated by the States, ibid. Slanders and idle Stories on him, 835. Refuted by the Lords, ibid.

Williams, William Esq; Speaker of the Westminster Parliament, 382. Chosen Speaker of the Oxford, 395. His Speeches to the King, ibid. 396. Solicitor General at the Bishops Tryal, 486. Moves that those who shouted when they were clear'd, should be imprison'd, ibid.
Williamson, Sir Joseph, made Secretary of State by Charles II. 300. Sent to the Tower for Signing Warrants for Papists to be in Commission, 366. Sells his Secretary's Place, 369. Made a Privy-Councillor by King William, 772. And Plenipotentiary for the Treaty of Reswyck, ibid.
Willis, Sir Richard, betrays Charles II's Councils to Cromwell, 205.
Willmore, Mr. undone for not Finding the Bill against Stephen Colledge, 400.
Willoughby of Parham, Lord, chosen Speaker of the House of Peers, when the Lord Manchester ran away, 155. Sent to the Tower by Cromwell, 198. Cast away in the West-Indies, 263.
Wiltshire, Charles Pawlet, Earl of, goes over to the P. of Orange, 488.
Wimbleton, Sir Edward Cecill, so Created, 11. Made Commander of the Forces sent against Coles, ibid. His Character, ibid. He's unfortunate, ibid.
Wincanton, A Skirmish there between the Prince of Orange and King James's Men, 498.
Winchester, taken by Sir William Waller for the Parliament, 118. Its Priviledges declared to be dissolv'd by King James's Judges, 469.
Winchester, Charles Pawlet, Marquis of, attends King William into Flanders, 625. Made one of the Lords Justices of Ireland, 735.
Windbank, Sir Francis, a Reputed Papist, made Secretary of State, 62. He flies beyond Sea, 98. His Guilt, ibid.
Windham, Mr. Windham, imprison'd for pleading a Cause against Cromwell, 197.
Windham, Coll. his Bravery at London, 662.
Winter, Capt. of Gloucestershire, a Proclamation against him for Clipping, 723.
Wirtemberg, Duke of, His Actions at the Siege of Limerick, 565. His Dispute with the Earl of Marlborough at Cork, 572. His Bravery at Athlone, 626. At Stenkirk, 651. Forces the French Lines in Flanders, 660. His Care and Zeal in King William's Service, when King James was preparing to invade England, 711.
Wood, Anthony a, Author of Athenæ Oxonienses, Expell'd the University, and why, 669. His Bitterness and Immoderate Zeal, ibid.
Woodward, Dr. Dean of Salisbury, his Ingratitude to the Bishop, 845, 847. The Dispute he rais'd in the Convocation, when he was Prolocutor of it, ibid. His Death, ibid.
Worcester, Battel of, 183.
Worcester, Marquis of, comes into England to promote Charles II's Interest, 188. Taken and Imprison'd, ibid. Address'd against by Parliament, 390. Made Duke of Beaufort, 406. Vide Duke of Beaufort.
Wren, Dr. Bishop of Ely Impeach'd by the House of Commons, 114. Seiz'd at his Palace, 119. His Long Imprisonment, ibid.
Wright, Alderman of Oxford, Prosecuted for standing by the Liberties of the City, 421.
Wright, Sir Robert, Chief-Justice, threatens the Fellows of Magdalen College with the Military Power, 479. Threatens them again, 480. His Rude Language, ibid. For Dispensing Power, and against the Bishops, 485. Sent to Newgate, and question'd by the Lords, 529. His Defence, ibid.
Wright, Sir Nathan, made Lord Keeper by

K. William, 783. And one of the Lords Justices, 824. Again one of the Lords Justices, 821.

Wyke, a Heretick, his Blasphemous Tenents, 178.

Wythers, Sir Francis, Knighted, for presenting an Address of Abhorrence of Petitions, 382. Reprov'd and expell'd by the House of Commons, 385. His False Judgment, when a Judge, against the Charter of London, 405. Excepted out of K. William's Act of Indemnity, 557.

Y.

York, Dr. John Williams, Archbishop of, carries the Bishops Protestation when they were Outed, to the King, 115. Imprison'd in the Tower by Parliament, ibid.

York City Seiz'd by the Earl of Newcastle for the King, 118. Besieg'd by the English and Scots Army, 137. Reliev'd by Prince Rupert, ibid. Surrender'd after the Defeat at Marston-Moor by Sir Thomas Glanham, 138.

York, James Duke of, brought up at St. James's by the Parliament, 150. Serves in the French Army under the Viscount Turenne, 188. Commended by him, ibid. Returns to England with his Brother K. Charles, 223. Goes Aboard the Fleet, to Command it against the Dutch, 255. Injults the Coasts of Holland, ibid. Returns, and the Dutch take the Hamburgh Fleet, ibid. Beats the Dutch Fleet at Sole-Bay, 256. King Charles's Letter to him, Commanding him not to turn Papist, 293. How many Crimes he Committed by not Obeying those Commands, ibid. Lays down his Places on the passing the Test-Act, 294. Is about Marrying Mary Princess of Modena, 296. The Parliament against the Match, ibid. His Saying when he gave his Consent that the Pr. of Orange should Marry his Daughter, 315. A Bill of Exclusion talk'd of against him, 368. He is order'd to be gone by his Brother, 369. Retires to Brussels, ibid. Votes of the Commons against him, 375. His Return, 377. Gives Offence to the People, ibid. Goes to Scotland, ibid. Prevails with the King to turn the Duke of Monmouth out of his Places, 378. Returns to England, and lays down his Place of Lord Admiral, ibid. Goes to Scotland again, 385. A Bill of Exclusion brought in against him, ibid. A bold Speech against him, 386. Voted against by Parliament, 390. Has an Oblequious Parliament in Scotland, 400. Returns, and is receiv'd at Norwich with seeming great Joy, 401. His Picture in Guild-Hall defac'd, ibid. Complimented by the University of Cambridge, 404. Endeavours against his own Genius to be Popular, ibid. Goes again to Scotland, and is in Danger at Sea, ibid. Returns with Testimonials from the Scots Bishops, 407. Has 100000 l. Fine of Mr. Duttoncolt, and 100000 l. of Dr. Oates, 422. Governs all, and is Restor'd to all his Places, 423. See James II.

York, Dutchess of, her Death and Issue, 282. She Dies a Papist, 292. The Reasons she left behind her for her pretended Conversion, ibid. Her Father the Lord Charlton very torry for it, 294.

Young, Robert, his Sham-Plot against the Bishop of Rocheſter, and others, 652.

Z.

Zell, Duke of, comes to Visit K. William in Holland, 723. The great Respect the King paid him, ibid.

Zuylenstein, Monsieur, sent by the Prince of Orange to King James, to desire him to stay at Rocheſter, 503. Made Master of the Robes by K. William, 515.

